WOODROFFE AND AMEER ALI'S

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO BRITISH INDIA

FIFTH EDITION

BY

JOHN GEORGE WOODROFFE

Barrister-at-Law, a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William Bengal

AND

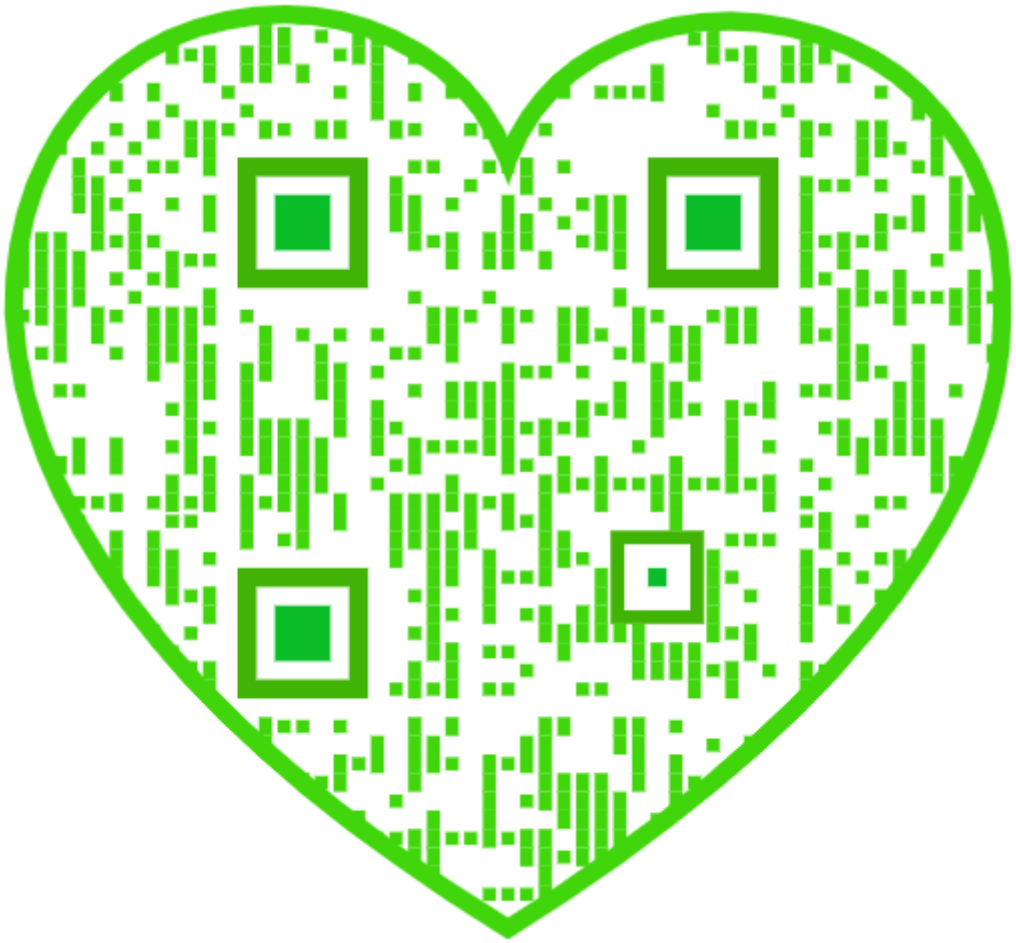
FRANK JAMES MATHEW

Barrister-at-Law

CALCUTTA

THACKER, SPINK & CO

1911



WOODROFFE AND AMEER ALI'S

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO BRITISH INDIA

FIFTH EDITION

BY

JOHN GEORGE WOODROFFE

Barrister-at-Law, a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal

AND

FRANK JAMES MATHEW

Barrister-at-Law

CALCUTTA
THACKER, SPINK & CO

1911 attention to several additions and alterations in dition. The Introduction has been re-written and Portions of it, as it appeared in the last edition, such as se dealing with the construction of Codes, have been removed o the Commentary on Civil Procedure which we have in preparation, and which in answer to enquiries we may state will be published on, or shortly after, the publication of the new Code and before it comes into operation. Others have been placed in the text. We have acquired the copyright of the Introduction to the Evidence Act of the late Sir James Fitzjames Stephen and have incorporated it in our own. The critical portion of the latter has been expanded chiefly in two particulars. A much fuller statement has been given of Mr. Whitworth's criticism of Sir J. Stephen's theory of relevancy as embodied in the Act than in the previous editions. Some apology may appear needed for the extensive citations we have made. If so, excuse will be found both in the instructive character of the criticism in Mr.

Whitworth's pamphlet as also in the fact that it has been out of print now for some twenty-four years. We have also thought it better to give, for the most part, the criticism in the author's own words rather than as before, a summary of such criticism of our own. Nextly previous editions thou they referred to, did not, we now think, sufficiently emphas the criticism of the historical school of which Professor Thayer is the chief exponent. The importance of this criticism is the more readily recognized, the greater the experience which is gained in the practical working of the Act.

Similarly, matters have been withdrawn from, and added to the text. The portions withdrawn are those referred to in the preface to the last edition, and have been embodied e Authors' Civil Procedure Code. Their place has ta new matter bearing strictly on the Law of Evidence. Amongst the text-books laid under contribution for this matter we wish particularly to indicate the recent work of Professor J. H. Wigmore (Treatise on Evidence: An Encyclopedia of Statutes and cases up to March 1904. 4 vols., Canadian Edition containing English cases), a valuable and exhaustive book written in an original and modern spirit and thus free of what Bentham calls "grimgribber nonsensical reasons" for the rules of evidence.

The commentary has throughout been thoroughly revised and in part re-written. New cases have been noted up to the end of last year. In some instances either these cases or further consideration have necessitated a change in the Authors' views. We may here note for example some of the more important changes and additions to which we have referred.

The question of the admissibility of judgments under section 13 has been again reconsidered by Geidt, J., in a careful opinion [Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402 (1904),] which is helpful to dispel some of the obscurity in which the question was left by the judgment in Tepu Khan v. Rajoni Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 501 (1898). The views of Geidt, J., constitute a sound re-action from the loose notion that any judgment may go in "for what it is worth" for which in our opinion no sanction can be found in the decisions of the Judicial Committee. The opinion however expressed by the learned Judge in the first mentioned case that the judgment in Bhitto Kunwar v. Kesho Pershad, 2 I. A., 10 (1897), was admitted by the Privy Council under section 42, is incorrect as will appear from the judgment of the Subordinate Judge in that case which we have been able to obtain through the courtesy of the Chief Justice of the Allahabad High Court, and which has been reprinted in the Appendix. The commentary on this section has been re-written and enlarged upon this point.

The important question as to the admissibility of evidence of conduct under section 92 has again come under consideration in several recent cases and has been dealt with at length in the commentary, and at p. 481* we have stated what appears to us to be the true rule on the subject which has been more recently dealt with in an article in Nos. 20 & 21 of the Bombay Law Reporter of last year. As further supporting the views there expressed the following cases in the Addenda should be referred to:—Keshavarao Bhagwant v. Ray Pandu, 8 Bom. L. R., 287; Maung Bin v. Ma Hlaing, 3 L. B. R., 100 F. B. In Ram Sarup v. Allah Rakha, 107 P. L. R., 1905, evidence appears to have been allowed. The grounds on which the Privy Council proceeded in Ismail Mussajee v. Hafiz Boo, 10 C. W. N., 570, are not clear, but the decision apparently rested on a construction of the document.

Considerable additions on the subject of estoppel have been made to section 115, and we have thought it necessary to expand our observations on the nature and limits of cross-examination, a power which is sometimes abused.

Other alterations and additions will be found in their respective places in the text.

The reported cases in the text and Addenda are noted up to the end of 1906. For the summary of decisions in the Addenda taken from the L. B. R., N. R., P. L. R., & O. C., which we have not previously cited, we are indebted to Mr. Sanjiva Row's excellent Digest. The excessive bulk of the Addenda is both recognized and regretted. It is due to an unfortunate accident which prevented for some months the printing off of the book after the whole of it had been set in type. As is, however, often the case with reported decisions in this country, a large number of those cited in the Addenda, scarcely do more, in their favourable results, than freshen knowledge, either by recalling what has been previously said by other judges, or by restating in ampler form the concise definition of the Legislature. Such cases therefore while they add to, do not alter the text. With a few exceptions we have not drawn afresh on American case-law. A very proper tendency now prevails to restrict any excessive citation from this source. (See In re Missouri Steamship Co., 42 Ch. D., 321, 330, 331.)

* See page 586 of the present edition.

While recourse to it doubtless not infrequently serves a purpose more useful than a mere display of learning, yet most will we think judge the sensible freedom of modern English practice to be (particularly in this country) of better example than the technicality which is not uncommonly to be found in the trials of cases by the American Courts. The few American decisions therefore which have been added are those only which have been selected by Prof. Wigmore in support or illustration of such portions of his exposition of the law as have been quoted in this work. It is instructive in this connection to note how few are the cases on evidence in the English Law Reports of recent years as compared with the past. This circumstance is due to the growing sense of the inutility of many objections to evidence and to a desire to free all judicial enquiry of anything which, without sound and certain justification, may baulk or hinder it. The dictum of the Judicial Committee in Ameeroonissa Khatoon v. Abedoonissa Khatoon, 23 W. R., 208, 209, now represents also the views of other English Courts. It may, however, be necessary to add that a proper interpretation and liberal application of the law is not the same thing as the abrogation of it.

In the Appendix we have at request restored the Proceedings in Council prior to the passing of the Bill, which appeared in the first two editions but were omitted in the last. We agree that these proceedings will be generally considered useful as they and the Introduction of Sir James F. Stephen, here reprinted, form a complete explanation of the Act by its chief framer and others who approved of, and were responsible for it.

14*th March*, 1907.

A. A.
J. G. W.

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION.

THOUGH but a comparatively short time has elapsed since the publication of the Second Edition, a considerable number of cases of importance have been decided during that period which have been incorporated in the text. The additions made are, however, not limited to these. Former editions contained generally speaking, only those Indian cases which are in the Weekly Reporter, Bengal Law Reports, Calcutta Law Reports, Calcutta Weekly Notes and the Authorized Law Reports The present edition includes also cases reported in the Madras Law Journal, the Bombay Law Reporter and the Allahabad Law Journal. Further, not merely has the whole work been revised and brought up to date, but portions have been re-written such as, amongst others, the matter relating to Brokers' Books and Notes in the Commentary to section 91, and other portions are entirely new, of which the Commentary at pp. 254—263 dealing with the important and recurring question as to the party on whom the onus lies of proving the voluntary character of a confession, may be taken as an example. The inclusion of all this new matter, and the desire on the Authors' part to limit an already bulky work as much as possible to its strict subject have necessitated the exclusion of certain matters appearing in the last from the present editions. They are, moreover, of opinion that the Appendices in last editions reproducing former legislation and the Debates in Council upon the Evidence Act Bill have been sufficiently circulated, at any rate for the present. Some other Appendices which dealt with Civil Procedure are strictly foreign to, though connected with some of, the matters treated by this Act. There still remains much in the text itself which is open to the same comment and which therefore appears in this edition for the last time. Such of this and of the matter already removed which relates to Civil Procedure will

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION.

THE present edition has been revised throughout. The text and addenda contain all decisions reported up to the present month. Portions of the book have been re-written, such as amongst others, the notes to sections 13, 44, 45—47, 92 and 110. Other portions which appeared in the former edition in the text have been placed in the Appendix, such as those dealing with Discovery, Evidence on Commission, Res Judicata, Stamps, Registration, Oaths, Bankers' Books and others. The matters therein treated are the subject of other Acts and, with a view to facilitate reference, an endeavour has been made in the present edition to limit the notes in the body of the work to an exposition of the law contained in the sections to which they are appended.

CALCUTTA,
31*st August*, 1902.

A. A.
J. G. W.

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION.

In the preparation of this Commentary on the Indian Evidence Act the Authors have striven to meet the wants, both of the profession and of students, believing that a work framed merely for the use of one of these classes will prove unsuited to the needs of the other. Much that must be set out for those who have little or no knowledge of the subject, is superfluous to the professional reader: while the close and elaborate detail which the practising lawyer requires is not only useless, but often a source of confusion, to the beginner. The novel scheme of this work, which is designed to satisfy the wants of both classes of readers, demands a few words of explanation.

The Act is divided into three Parts and eleven Chapters. Each Part and Chapter is preceded by an Introduction dealing with its subject-matter. The Introduction prefixed to the Parts or main divisions of the Act are more general in character and broader in treatment than those which precede the Chapters; while these again exhibit less detail than is found in the notes appended to the sections. Elementary notions are explained and a general, and sometimes historical, survey of the subject of the sections is given in the several Introductions which also contain references to matters akin to, but not part of, the actual material of the Act. While these Introductions will, as the Authors hope, be of aid to students, the separation of their subject-matter from the commentary to which alone the profession will in general refer, should spare the practitioner in search of decisions bearing directly upon the meaning of the sections unnecessary reading. A short paragraph immediately follows each section presenting with all possible brevity the principle upon which it is founded and has been enacted. This paragraph is succeeded by a note of cognate sections which in turn is followed by a collection of references to [illegible]

English, American, or Indian text-books dealing with the material of the section. The Authors are indebted in part for the idea of this arrangement to the recent work by Mr. S. L. Phipson on the Law of Evidence (London, 1892). Next comes the Commentary proper on the section which elucidates its important words and phrases by the aid of the case-law and text-books.

The work as thus finished departs in many respects from the original and advertised plan of its Authors. At the outset they proposed to write a short Commentary for the use of the profession only and to collect therein the provisions of all other Acts on the Indian Statute-book which touch upon this branch of the law. They, however, realised in the course of their task that though a book so planned might be of assistance to members of the profession practising in the Presidency Towns with large libraries available for reference, it would yet be of little use to others in the mofussil. The attempt to serve a wider circle of readers has entailed a large increase in the bulk of the work beyond the limits originally proposed, while the length of time consumed in its preparation in its modified form has prevented the inclusion of that complete collection of provisions of other Acts bearing upon this branch of the law to which allusion has been made. The more important of these provisions (taken from more than a hundred Acts and Regulations) will, however, be found in the Commentary and, should another edition be called for, the Authors hope to make it complete in this respect. At the instance of several correspondents the Authors have republished a full record of the proceedings in Council and of the Law Commissioners relative to the preparation of this Act; as also the text of the preceding Act (II of 1855) with reference to the provisions of which many of the decisions here cited were decided. The full Index which closes the book will, it is hoped, notwithstanding the increased bulk of the work, render the search for references both easy and expeditious.

The authors desire to acknowledge the assistance they derived from the standard works on the Law of Evidence in this country, in England, and in America. In especial, much aid has been gained from the American text-books, amongst which are perhaps the most valuable and scientific works on this branch of the law. The Law of Evidence as it obtains in the Courts of the United States is founded upon the English Law and is in nearly every respect identical with the law which prevails in England and in this country; and though it is not of binding authority upon Indian Judges, yet the decisions of those Courts are as Lord Chief Justice Cockburn said in England (Scaramanga v. Stamp, L. R., 5 C. P. D., 295, 303), and Sir Lawrence Peel observed in this country (Braddon v. Abbot, Tailor and Bell's Reports, 342, 359, 360; Malcolm v. Smith, ib., 283, 288), of great value to a correct determination of questions for which our own or the English law offers no solution.* Following the Table of Cases cited is printed a Bibliography, the first published, of works upon the Law of Evidence. References in the text to any of these works are to the last editions, unless where otherwise expressly stated. Every effort has been made to collect the whole of the Indian case-law touching the subject of evidence. The decisions reported during the progress of this work through the press (up to and including the month of December 1897) are collected in the Addenda.

CALCUTTA,
March, 1898.

A. A.
J. G. W.

* But see also observations in Preface to the Fourth Edition.

CONTENTS.

	Page.
TABLE OF CONTENTS OF THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT	xvii—xxii
TABLE OF CASES CITED	xxiii—lxxxiii
BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE	lxxxiv—xcvi
INTRODUCTION	1—98

THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT.

PART I

RELEVANCY OF FACTS

CHAPTER I

PRELIMINARY.

	Page.
PREAMBLE	99—103
SECTIONS
1 Short title, Extent, Commencement of Act	104
2. Repeal of enactments	106—107
3 Interpretation-clause	107—119
4 "May presume"	119
"Shall presume"
"Conclusive proof"	119

CHAPTER II.

OF THE RELEVANCY OF FACTS

		Page.
		123
5.	Evidence may be given of facts in issue and relevant facts	125
6	Relevancy of facts forming part of same transaction	132
7.	Facts which are the occasion, cause or effect of facts in issue	134
8	Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct	138
9.	Facts necessary to explain or introduce relevant facts	149
10.	Things said or done by conspirators in reference to common design	153
11.	When facts not otherwise relevant become relevant	155
12.	In suits for damages, facts tending to enable Court to determine amount are relevant	160
13.	[illegible]	161
14.	[illegible]	187
15.	[illegible]	203
16.	[illegible]	205
	ADMISSIONS	208
17.	Admission defined	219
18.	Admission— by party to proceeding or his agent; by suitor in representative character; by party interested in subject-matter; by person from whom interest derived	219—220

Sections.		Page.
19.	Admissions by persons whose position must be proved as against party to suit	220
20.	Admissions by persons expressly referred to by party to suit	220
21	behalf	242
22		246
23.		247
24.	relevant in criminal proceeding	249—250
25	Confession made to a police-officer not to be proved	262
26	Confession by accused while in custody of police not to be proved against him	265
27.	How much of information received from accused may be proved	267
28.	Confession made after removal of impression caused by inducement, threat or promise, relevant	275
29	Confession otherwise relevant not to become irrelevant because of promise of secrecy, &c	276
30.	Consideration of proved confession affecting person making it and others jointly under trial for same offence	278
31.	Admissions not conclusive proof, but may estop	290
	Statements by Persons who cannot be called as Witnesses	293
32.	Cases in which statement of relevant fact by person who is dead or cannot be found, &c, is relevant When it relates to cause of death; or is made in course of business, or against interest of maker, or gives opinion as to public right or custom, or matters of general interest, or relates to existence of relationship, or is made in will or deed relating to family affairs, or in document relating to transaction mentioned in section 13, clause (a), or is made by several persons, and expresses feelings relevant to matter in question	297—299
33.	Relevancy of certain evidence for proving in subsequent proceeding, the truth of facts therein stated	328—329
	Statements made under Special Circumstances	340
34.		341
35.		348
36.		356
37.	n certain Acts or notifications	363
38.	Relevancy of statements as to any law contained in law books	365
	How much of a Statement is to be proved	367
39.	What evidence to be given when statement forms part of a conversation, document, book or series of letters or papers	367
	Judgments of Courts of Justice when relevant	369
40.	Previous judgment relevant to bar a second suit or trial	371
41.	Relevancy of certain judgments in probate, &c., jurisdiction	376
42.	Relevancy and effect of judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in section 41	381
43.	Judgments, &c, other than those mentioned in sections 40 to 42, when relevant	384
44.	Fraud or collusion in obtaining judgment, or incompetency of Court may be proved	389
	Opinions of Third Persons, when relevant	397
45.		401
46.		401
47.		413
48		417
49.	when relevant levant	419—420

Sections.		Page.
50.	Opinion on relationship, when relevant	421—422
51.	Grounds of opinion, when relevant	424
	Character, when relevant	426
52	In civil cases character to prove conduct imputed irrelevant	427
53	In criminal cases, previous good character relevant	428
54	Previous bad character not relevant, except in reply	428
55.	Character as affecting damages	433

PART II

ON PROOF. 437

CHAPTER III.

Facts which need not be proved 440

56.	Facts judicially noticeable need not be proved	441
57	Facts of which Court must take judicial notice	442—444
58	Facts admitted need not be proved	452

CHAPTER IV.

Of Oral Evidence 457

59.	Proof of facts by oral evidence	462
60.	Oral evidence must be direct	463

CHAPTER V.

Of Documentary Evidence 469

61.	Proof of contents of document	472
62	Primary evidence	472
63	Secondary evidence	473
64.	[illegible] ..	478
65.	[illegible] 479—480
66.	[illegible] ..	494
67.	[illegible] or written document produced	495
68.	Proof of execution of document required by law to be attested ...	500
69	Proof where no attesting witness found	503
70.	Admission of execution by party to attested document ...	504
71.	Proof when attesting witness denies the execution ...	505
72.	Proof of document not required by law to be attested ...	506
73.	Comparison of signature, writing or seal with others admitted or proved	506

Public Documents ... ...

74.	Public documents
75	Private documents
76.	Certified copies of public documents
77	Proof of documents by production of certified copies . ..
78.	Proof of other official documents

Presumptions as to Documents

79.	Presumption as to genuineness of certified copies .
80.	Presumption as to documents produced as record of evidence

Sections.		Page.
81	Presumption as to gazettes, newspapers, private Acts of Parliament and other documents	529
82	Presumption as to document admissible in England without proof of seal or signature	530
83	[illegible]	536
84.		538
85.		538
86.		540—541
87.		542
88.		542—543
89.		543—544
90.		544—545

CHAPTER VI

Of the Exclusion of Oral by Documentary Evidence 551

91.	Evidence of terms of contracts, grants and other dispositions of property reduced to form of [illegible]	556—557
92		571—572
93.		608
94		613
95	[illegible] reference to existing facts	614
96	Evidence as to application of language which can apply to one only of several persons	614—615
97.	Evidence as to application of language to one of two sets of facts to neither of which the whole [illegible]	615
98.		620
99		625
100		626

PART III

PRODUCTION AND EFFECT OF EVIDENCE 627

CHAPTER VII

Of the Burden of Proof 629

101.	Burden of proof	632
102	[illegible]	632
103		632
104		633
105		676
106.		678
107.	[illegible] alive within thirty	681
108	Burden of proving that person is alive who has not been heard of for seven years	681
109.	Burden of proof as to relationship in the cases of partners, landlord and tenant, principal and agent	683
110.	Burden of proof as to ownership	684
111.	Proof of good faith in transactions where one party is in relation of active confidence	694
112	Birth during marriage conclusive proof of legitimacy	699
113	Proof of cession of territory	704—705
114	Court may presume existence of certain facts	705

CHAPTER VIII.

Estoppel 746

115.	Estoppel	746
116.	Estoppel of tenant and of license of person in possession	756
117.	Estoppel of acceptor of bill of exchange, bailee or licensee	784
		794

Sections.		Page.
	CHAPTER IX
	Of Witnesses	798
118	Who may testify	880
119	Dumb witnesses	803
120	Parties to civil suit and their wives or husbands; Husband or wife of person under criminal trial	803
121	Judges and Magistrates	805
122	Communications during marriage	807
123	Evidence as to affairs of State	809
124	Official communications	809
125	Information as to commission of offences	810—811
126	Professional communications . . .	811—812
127	Section 126 to apply to interpreters, &c	813
128	Privilege not waived by volunteering evidence	813
129	Confidential communications with legal advisers	813
130	Production of title-deeds of witness not a party	822
131	Production of documents which another person, having possession, could refuse to produce	822
132	Witness not excused from answering on ground that answer will criminate Proviso	825
133	Accomplice	827
134	Number of witnesses	835

CHAPTER X.

	Of the Examination of Witnesses ...	838
135	Order of production and examination of witnesses	845
136	Judge to decide as to admissibility of evidence	845
137	Examination-in-chief . ... Cross-examination . .. . Re-examination	848
138	Order of examinations . . .. Direction of re-examination	848
139.	Cross-examination of person called to produce a document	862
140	Witnesses to character	863
141	Leading questions	863
142.	When they must not be asked	863
143.	When they may be asked	863
144	Evidence as to matters in writing	868
145.	Cross-examination as to previous statements in writing	869
146	Questions lawful in cross-examination	872
147	When witness to be compelled to answer	872
148	Court to decide when question shall be asked and when witness compelled to answer	872—873
149	Question not to be asked without reasonable grounds	875
150.	Procedure of Court in case of question being asked without reasonable grounds	876
151.	Indecent and scandalous questions	876
152	Questions intended to insult or annoy	876
153.	Exclusion of evidence to contradict answers to questions testing veracity ...	877
154.	Question by party to his own witness	880
155	Impeaching credit of witness	884—885
156.	Questions tending to corroborate evidence of relevant fact, admissible ...	891
157	Former statements of witness may be proved to corroborate later testimony as to same fact	892
158	What matters may be proved in connection with proved statement relevant under section 32 or 33	895
159.	Refreshing memory ... ... When witness may use copy of document to refresh memory ...	895—896
160.	Testimony to facts stated in document mentioned in section 159 ...	896
161.	Right of adverse party as to writing used to refresh memory ...	896
162.	Production of documents ... ... Translation of documents	901

Sections.		Page
163	[illegible] ...	907
164.	...	908
165.	...	909
166	...	915

CHAPTER XI.

OF IMPROPER ADMISSION AND REJECTION OF EVIDENCE .. 916

167. No new trial for improper admission or rejection of evidence ... 918

SCHEDULE—ENACTMENTS REPEALED

APPENDIX

(A) Places to which the Act has been applied .. 929—938
(AA) Law Commissioners' Report .. 939—983
(B) Stamps .. 984—988
(C) Registration .. 989—991
(D) Indian Oaths Act .. 992—994
(E) Bankers' Books .. 995—996
(F) Appendix to s 13 .. 997—999

GENERAL INDEX .. 1001—1048

TABLE OF CASES CITED.

PAGE

A

Aba v. Sonabai . .. 764
Abaji Annaji v. Luxman Tukaram 587
Abbas Ali v. Ghulam Muhammed 165
Abbey v. Hill . . 205, 207
Abbott v. Hendricks 591
Abbott v. Massie . . 611, 625
Abdool Ali v. Abdoor Rahman .. 499
Abdool Ali v. Kurrumnissa 696
Abdul Ali v. Raj Chandra Das . 71
Abdul Aziz v. Ebrahim . 314
Abdul Hamid v. Kiran Chandra 359, 360
Abdul Hossein v. C. A. Turner 645, 646
Abdul Karim v. R. 260, 830, 833, 834
Abdul Karim v. Manji Hansraj .. 719
Abdul Karim v. Salimun 502, 503, 506, 641
Abdul Majid v. Amolak . . 670
Abdulla Paru v. Gannibai 306, 499
Abdul Rahim v. Madhavrao Apaji 714
Abdul Rahman v. Mahomed Azim.. 640
Abdul Rasak v. Aga Mahomed 422 731
Abed Ali v. Moheshur Buksh .. 723
Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath 126, 173, 177, 178, 369, 386
Abinger v. Ashton .. 398
Abouloff v. Oppenheimer .. 391
Abraham v. Abraham . 645
Abrath v. N. E. R. Co .. . 645
Abudh Singh v. Ram Raj .. 235
Abul Hossain v. Habibullah .. 645
Accidental Death Insurance Co v. Mackenzie 791
Acerra v. Petroni 866
Achhan Kuar v. Thakur Das .. 698
Achunth Singh v. Kishen Pershad.. 645
Achutaramaraju v. Subbaraju 575, 581, 586
"Actæon," The 215
Adam v. Kur 739
Adams v. Lloyd 823
Adams v. Peters 420
Adakkalam v. Teetham 989
Adarkkalam Chetti v. Marimuthu .. 639
Admr.-Genl. v. Rudolf 829

PAGE

Admr.-Genl. of Bengal v. Prem Lall 101, 626
Admr.-Genl. of Madras v. Ananda Chari 731
Adrishappa v. Gurushidappa .. 644
Adurmoni Devi v. Chowdhry Sibnarain 657
Adu Shikdar v. R. 117, 262, 263, 268, 269, 270, 271, 273, 274
Afzul-un nissa v. Tej Ban .. 984
Agace Ex parte 233
Agar, H. W., In the goods of .. 635
Agarchand Gumanchand v. Rakma Hanmant . .. 767, 769
Agassiz v. London Tram Co 143, 226
Aga Syud v. Hajee Jackariah 624, 634, 635, 659
Aghore Nath v. Radhica Pershad 386, 388, 667
Aghoree Ram v. Ramolee Sahoo .. 647
Agrawal Singh v. Foujdar Singh .. 774
Ahmedbhoy v. Vulleebhoy 377, 390, 392, 393, 395, 396
Ahmed Yar v. Secretary of State for India in Council 769
Ahsanullah Khan v. Hurri Churn .. 686
Ah Thain v. Moothi Chetty 568, 569
Airey, Re 547
Aizunnissa Khatoon v. Karimunnissa Khatoon .. 422, 729
Ajabsingh v. Nanabhau 320
Ajoodhya Prashad v. Babu Omrao 7, 476
Akbar Hussain v. Alia Bibi 754
Akbar Khan v. Sheoratan .. 383
Akbar Ali v. Bhyea Lal 131, 671
Akhil Chandra v. Nayu 345, 899
Akhoy Kumar v. Jayat Chander .. 829
Akkanna v. Venkayya 721
Akshaya Kumar v. Shama Churn 347, 514
Alagaiya Tiruchettambala v. Saminada Pillai 614
Alangamonjari Dalee v. Sonamoni Debee 95, 102
Albion, The 410

	PAGE.
Alfonso v. United States ..	400
Alchorne v. Gomme ..	785
Alderson v. Clay 149, 562	570
Alderson v. Maddison ..	755
Alderson v. White	585
Alep Pramanick v. R	432
Aldridge v. G. W. R. Co ..	137
Alexander v. Gibson ..	880
Ali Buksh v. Sheikh Samiruddin	388
Ali Fakir v. R	922
Alijan v. Hara Chandra ..	182
Ali Khan v. Indar Parshad 516,	641
Ali Meah, In re	337
Ali Meah v. Magistrate of Chittagong	841, 842
Ali Moidin v. Elivachandathil Kombi ..	241, 467
Almuddin v. R	871
Alt Nasir v. Manik Chand 350, 351,	352
Alivon v. Furnival	484
Allcard v. Skinner ..	697
Allen v. Allen .. 117, 224, 861,	862
Allen v. Bennet	567
Allen v. Pink	578
Allucka v. Kashee Chunder ..	548
Allayat Chinaman v. Juggut Chunder .. 346	688
Aloksoondry Goopto v. Horo Lal ..	771
Aloo Nathu v. Gagubha Dipsanji	806
Altab Bibee v. Joogul	744
Alter Caufman v. Government of Bombay	705
Amar Chandra v. Roy Goloke	744
Amar Nath v. Achan Kuar ..	653
Amayee v. Yalumalai	505
Ambabai v. Bhau Bin	789
Ambialath Kuthu v. Raman Nair ..	665
Ambica Charan Das v. Kala Chandra Das	392
Ambica Dat v. Nityanund Singh ..	987
Ambica Prosad v. Ram Sahay	658
Ambika Churn Chakravarti v. Dya Gazi	668
Ambrose v. Clendon ..	150
Ameer Bibee v. Tukroonissa Begum	691
Ameeroonissa Khatoon v. Abedoonissa Khatoon	6
Amey v. Long .. 838, 839, 904,	905
Ammu v. Rama Kuhna	792
Amos v. Hughes	630
Amrit Nath v. Gauri Nath 154,	650
ta Ravji v. Shridhar Narayan	666
Bose v. Rajonee Kant 223,	455
Alexander .. 882,	883
ler v. Basu Budh ..	807
Ananda Coomar v. Hari Das ..	790
Ananda Hari Basak v. Secretary of State ..	663
Anandrao Gunpatrao v. Vasantrao Madhavrao ..	723
Anundarav Sivaji v. Ganesh Yeshvant ..	722
Ananta Bhicharya v. Dimo Phar Makund ..	749
Anant Das v. Ashburner & Co ..	751
Anathanath Dey v. Bishtu Chunder	239
Anderson v. Bank of Columbia 815,	821
Anderson v. Clay	683
Anderson v. Collison	379
Anderson v. Weston	738
Andrews v. Mottley	739
Ankur Chunder v. Madhub Chunder 986,	987
Annagurubala Chetti v. Krishnaswamy Nayakkan ..	598
Anna Hinde, In the goods of ..	536
Annakurnam v. Muttupayal ..	450
Annapiganda v. Keru	231
Annapiganda v. Sangadigyapa ..	231
Annesley v. Ford Anglesea 818,	843
Annoda Mohun v. Bhuban Mohini 698,	699
Annod Sundari v. Jogutmoni Dabi Dum	718
Antaji v. Dattaji	980
Antaji Kashi v. Antaji Madhav ..	374
Anund Chunder v. Punchoo Lall ..	102
Anund Chunder v. Mookta Keshee	548
Anundmoyee Chowdhrain v. Sheeb Chunder	235
Anundmoyee Debea v. Shib Dyal	645
Anundo Mohun v. Lamb ..	651
Anupchand Hemchand v. Champsi Ugerchand ..	591
Anwar Hossein v. Secretary of State	675
Apaji Patil v. Apa	352
Apothecary Co v. Bentley ..	679
Appamma Nayumula v. Ramanna	571
Appa Rau v. Subbunna .. 633,	664
Apparthuri Pattar v. Gopala Panikar 477, 547,	738
Appasami v. Mamkam	752
Apurba Krishna Bose v. R 146,	714
Arbon v. Fussel	509
Ardeshir Dhanjibhai v. Collector of Surat	718
Arding v. Flower	839
Arlapa Nayah v. Narsi Keshavji 164,	186
Arman Bibi v. Amiranissa ..	362
Arman Khan v. Bama Soondaree ..	713

PAGE.

Armory v. Delamirie 718
Armstrong v. Strokham 539
Arnold v. Cheque Bank .. 778, 796
Arnott, Re 817, 820
Arruth Misser v. Juggernath Indraswamee 655
Arumugam Chetty v. Perriyannan Servai 634, 690
Aruna Chala v. Munisami Mudali .. 658
Arunachellam v. R. 802
Arunmoyi Davi v. Mohendra Nath 380
Asghar Hossein v. In the matter of 102, 333, 334
Ashabai v. Haji Tyeb 637
Ashanullah Khan v. Trilochan Bagchi 668, 713, 714
Asharfi Kunwar v. Rup Chand .. 656
Ashford v. Price 230
Ashgar Ali v. Delros Banoo 697, 698
Ashghar Reza v. Hyder Reza .. 115
Ashidbai v. Abdulla Haji Mahomed 642
Ashootosh Chandra v. Tara Prasanna 389
Ashpitel v. Bryan 795
Ashruffoodowlah v. Hyder Hossein 729
Ashruffunnissa v. Azeemun .. 729
Ashruffoonissa Begum v. Rughoonath Sohoy 685
Ashton's Case 294
Ashunulla Khan v. Hurri Churn .. 668
Asiatic Steam Navigation Co. v. Bengal Coal Co. .. 148, 334
Asiruddin Ahmed v. R. 677
Asmatunnessa Khatun v. Harendra Lal Biswas 747, 755, 783
Asmuntoonissa Bebee v. Alla Hafiz 213, 698
Aspitel v. Sercombe 149
Assanoollah v. Obhoy Chunder .. 743
Assanullah v. Bussarat 662
Astley v. Astley 733
Atar Singh v. Thakar Singh .. 659
Atchayya v. Gangayya .. 104, 107
Atchley v. Sprigg .. 423, 702
Atherley v. Harvey 823
Atkins v. Tredgold .. 232, 240
Atkinson v. Morris 235
Atkyns v. Horde .. 736, 738
Atmaram v. Umedram .. 680, 681
Att.-Genl. v. Ashe 485
Att.-Genl. v. Berkeley 815
Att.-Genl. v. Davison 336
Att.-Genl. v. Drummond .. 144
Att.-Genl. v. Hitchcock .. 2, 877, 879
Att.-Genl. v. Moore 107
Att.-Genl. v. Munro 762

PAGE.

Att.-Genl. v. Radloff 827
Att.-Genl. v. Stephen 788
Att.-Genl of N. S. W. v. Bertrand 131, 842
Augustine v. Challis . 560
Augustine v. Medlycott 449, 450
Austin v. Evans .. . 785
Austin v. Rumsey .. . 333
Autu Sing v. Ajudhia Sahu .. 600
"Ava" and "Brenhilda," In the matter of a collision between the 482, 489, 492, 493, 515
Avery v. Bowden 739
Aveson v. Kinnaird . 190, 194, 809
Avudh Beharee v. Ram Raj 214, 244
Ayesha Beebee v. Kanhye Mollah .. 691
Aylesford Peerage Case .. 704
Ayetun v. Ram Sebuk .. 291
Azimat Singh v. Kalwant Singh .. 559
Azimut Ali v. Hurdwaree Mull .. 741
Azizullah Khan v. Ahmed Ali . 223
Azmat Ali v. Lalli Begum . 729

B.

Baba v. Timma . . 657
Babaji v. Krishna . . 772
Babaji Mahadaji v. Krishnaji Devji 659
Baban Mayacha v. Nagu .. 364
Baboo Bodhnaram v. Baboo Omrao 3, 917
Baboo Dhunput v. Sheikh Jowahur 555, 598, 605
Baboo Dolee v. Sham Beharee .. 789
Baboo Doorga v. Musst. Kundun 556
Baboo Ganesh v. Mugneeram Chowdry 667
Baboo Ghansam v. Chukowree Singh 641
Baboo Gooroo v. Durbaree Lal .. 482
Baboo Gunga v. Baboo Inderjit 3
Baboo Radhakissen v. Musst. Shurreefunnissa 765
Baboo Rambuddun v. Ranee Kunwar 554, 555, 614
Baboo Ram v. Sirdar Dyal .. 667
Babu v. Sitaram .. 608, 614
Babu Singh v. Bihari Lal 657, 659
Bachan Singh v. Karan Singh .. 744
Bacharam Mundul v. Peary Mohun Banerjee 671
Bacon v. Bacon 875
Badam Kumari v. Suraj Kumari .. 645
Badi v. R. 278, 281
Badi Bibi v. Jami Pillai 698
Badrad Din Ahmed v. Nizamuddin Haider 991

PAGE

Badri Narain v. Joy Kishen 238, 245
Badri Prasad v. Madan Lal .. 657
Badul Singh v. Chutterdharee Singh 651
Baerlein v The Chartered Merc Bank 340
Bageshri Dayal v. Pancho .. 575
Bagranji Singh v. Manokarnika Baksh Singh . 418, 652, 783
Bahadur Singh v. Mohar Singh 325, 757
Bahadur Singh v Viru 700
Bahir Das v. Nobin Chunder 751
Bai Baiji v Bai Santok 382, 384, 417, 645
Bai Diwalli v. Patel Bechardas . 722
Bai Gungadhur v R. .. . 804
Bai Gangabai v Bhugwandas Valji 674
Baijnath Sahay v. Raghunath Pershad . 633, 637
Baij Nath v Sukku Mahton 350, 351, 514
Bal Gangadhar v. R 924
Baikanta Nath Roy v Debendra Nath Sahi . 664
Baikanta Nath Roy Cowdhry v Mohendra Nath Roy 396
Baikanthanath Kumar v Chandra Mohan . 216, 217
Bai Kesserbai v Narranji Walji 485
Baikunt Nath v Lukhun Majhi 546
Bain v Whitehaven Ry Co 99, 130, 917
Bainbrigge v Browne . 696
Bainee Singh v. Bhurth Singh .. 651
Bajal Bahadur v Bhupindar Bahadur 423
Bajrangi Singh v Manokarnika Baksh Singh 418
Baksh Das v Nadu Das 642
Baksu Lakshman v Govinda Kanji 579, 580, 581, 584, 586, 592
Bala v. Shiva 634, 668
Balabux v Rathmabai 724
Balaji Raghunath v Balbin Raghoji 374
Balayya v Kistnappa .. . 682
Balbadhar Prasad v Maharajah of Betia . 479, 562, 570, 987
Baldeo Pershad v. Fakhr-udd in .. 769
Baldeo Singh v. Imdad Ali .. 788
Balkishan v. Kishan Lal .. 372, 374
Balkishen Das v. Legge 554, 580, 581, 583, 585, 586
Balkishen Das v. Ram Narain 555, 556, 650
Balkrishna v Gopikabai .. 673
Ball v Taylor 738, 739
Ballard v. Way 364
Balmakundas Atmaram v Moti Narayan 198
Balmakund Ram v Ghansam Ram . 113, 118, 143, 192, 643, 680

PAGE.

Bal Mookand v Jirjudhun Roy . 122
Bamasoondaree Dossee v Verner . 101
Bamasoondery Dassyah v Radhika Chowdhrain 661
Banapa v Sunderdas Jagjivandas 573, 580, 583, 584, 592
Banbury Peerage Case 423, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703
Bandi Bibi v Kalka . .. 640
Bandon v Becher . .. 389
Banee Madhub v Bhaggobutty Churn 723
Banee Madhub v Thakoor Doss 785, 788, 789, 791
Bainee Pershad v. Baboo Manu 768, 783
Bani Madhub v Sadasook Kotary . 592
Bani Madhub v Shridur Deb 662, 664
Bank of Bombay v Suleman Somji 199, 519, 996
Bank of England v Cutler . 769
Bank of England v Vaghano Bros. 8, 102, 796
Bank of United States v Dandridge 737
Bank of Utica v Hillard .. 905
Bankalal v Chuhramekkansa 793
Banku Behari v Shama Churn . 600
Banku Behari Sikdar v Secretary of State for India . .. 795
Banku Behari v Raj Kumar . 772
Banner v Jackson . 818
Banoo v Kashee Ram .. 649, 651
Banshi Singh v Mir Amir Ali 326
Bansi Lal v Dhapo .. 393
Bansi Lal v Ramji Lal . 389, 393
Banwari Das v Muhammad Mashat .. . 713, 769
Bapuji v Semravji 748
Bapuji Bolal v Sytabhamabhai . 237
Baquar Ali v Anjuman Ara .. 323
Barbat v. Allen 129
Bareli v Lytle 711
Barkut-un-nissa v Fazl Haq 394, 638
Barlow v Chuni Lal . .. 679
Barlow v Chuni Lal .. 306, 882
Barnes & Co v. Toye . .. 759
Barnett v. Allen 400
Barnett v. Tugwell 732
Barony of Sale, The 702
Barough v White .. 212, 236, 241
Barr v. Gratz 387
Barrow's Case . .. 760
Barrow v Hem Chunder Lahiri .. 189
Barry v. Bebbington 316
Barry v Rutlin 673
Bartlett v Wells 759

PAGE

Barton v. Bank of New South Wales 580
Barwick v. English Joint Stock Bank 124
Barwick v. Thompson 790
Basant Bibi, In re 840
Bashi Chunder v. Enayet Ali 237, 238, 746, 771
Baso Kooer v. Hurry Dass . 658
Bastin v. Carew 848, 881
Basummoti Adhikarini v. Budra Kalita 841
Biswantappa v. Shidappa Banu 768
Bata v. R 303
Batta Krishna v. Chintaman 651
Batai Ahir v. Bhuggobutty Koer 664, 687
Bate v. Kinsey . 495
Bateman v. Bailey 145, 150, 240
Bater v. Bater . 366
Bates v. Townley . 212
Baugh v. Cradocke 816
Bauerman v. Radenius 234
Baxendale v. Bennett 796
Baxter v. Browne 556
Bayliffe v. Butterworth 734
Bayliss v. Att.-Genl 611
Beale v. Com. . . 737
Bean v. Quimby . 815
Beasley v. Magrath 212
Beatson v. Skene . 809, 906
Beattie v. Jetha Dungarsi . 825
Beauchamp v. Parry 240
Beaufort v. Smith . 326
Beaumont v. Fell . . 625
Beavan v. McDonnell . .. 197
Beckwith v. Bonner . . 818
Bedford v. Birley .. . 328
Beebee Ashrufoonissa v. Umung Mohun 672
Beer Chunder v. Deputy Collector of Bhullooah 665
Beer Chunder v. Ramgutty Dutt 639, 661, 742
Beer Narain v. Teen Cowrie .. 648
Beharee Lall, In the matter of . 564
Beharee Lall v. Kalee Dass .. 660
Beharee Lall v. Kaminee Soondaree 101, 578
Behari v. Sadho Mal 687
Behari Hadji, In the matter of .. 252
Behari Lal v. Habiba Bibi .. 698
Behari Patak v. Mahomed Hyat 644
Behary Lall v. Juggo Mohun Gossain 380
Behary Lall v. Tej Narain 580, 581, 584
Bejai Bahadur v. Bhupindar Bahadur .. 319, 323, 450, 346

PAGE.

Bejoy Gobind v. Bheekoo Roy 345
Belaet Khan v. Rash Beharee 342, 346, 347
Bell v. Ansley 233
Bell v. Ingestre 598
Bell v. Kennedy 712
Bell v. O'Sullivan .. . 986
Bellefontaine Ry. Co. v. Bailey . 409
"Bellerophon," The 807
Belt v. Lawes 412
Bemjon, In the goods of .. 721
Bemola Dossee v. Mohun Dossee .. 653
Benarsi Das v. Bhikari Das 559, 570, 987
Bengal Banking Corporation v. Mackertich 989
Bengal Indigo Co., The, v. Tarinee Pershad 460
Beni Madhab v. Dina Bandhu .. 244
Beni Madhub v. Jai Krishna 164, 184
Beni Madhub v. Sadasook Kotary .. 591
Beni Madhub v. Sridhar Deb 662, 664
Beni Prasad v. Mukhtesar Rai .. 779
Benjamin, In . . 683
Bennett v. Marshall 616
Bennison v. Cartwright 132, 145, 146
Benodhee Lall v. Dulloo Sircar .. 608
Benson v. Olive 333
Benyon v. Nettlefold 593
Bepinbehari Chowdhry v. Ram Chandra 589, 590, 786
Bepin Behari Kundu v. Durga Charan Banerji 653
Bepin Behari v. Sreedam Chunder 321, 322
Berkeley v. Musst. Chittiar .. 454
Berkeley Peerage Case, 2, 319, 325, 216, 221, 318
Bernandi v. Motteux 378
Bernasconi v. Atkinson .. 607
Berryman v. Wise 737
Bessela v. Stern 139
Betham v. Benson 226
Bethell v. Blencowe 562
Beti Maharani v. Collector of Etawah 354, 607, 852
Bettley v. McLeod 838
Bevan v. Waters .. 483, 818
Bewicke v. Graham 823
Bishen Dutt v. R. .. 282, 283
Bishop of Meath v. Marquess of Winchester 548
Bhaddar v. Khair-ud-din Husain .. 666
Bhagain Megu v. Gooro Pershad .. 514
Bhagawan Das v. Balgobind Singh 164
Bhagbut Chunder v. Hurrogobind Pal 740

	PAGE.
Bhagoji v. Bapuji	354, 355
Bhagubhai v. Tukaram	647, 650
Bhagvandas Tejmal v Rajmal ..	162
Bhagwat Dayal Singh v. Debi Dayal Sahu .	652
Bhagwandas Hurjivan, In re	452
Bhagwan Singh v. Bhagwan Singh 166,	445
Bhagwan Singh v Mahabir Singh	670
Bhasker Tatya v Vijalal Nathu .	227
Bhau Nanaji v Sundrabai 164, 166,	185
Bhiuram Madan v Ram Narayan .	985
Bhawanji Haribhum v Devji Punji . 500	986
Bhaya Dirguj Deo v Pande Fateh Bahadoor Ram	170
Bheeknaram Singh v Nerot Kooer	776
Bhikumber Singh v Becharam Sircar . ..	840
Bhim Sen v Sitaram .	667
Bhima v Dhulappa	665, 703
Bhitto Kunwar v Kesho Pershad .. . 173, 178,	181
Bhog Hong Kong v Romanathen Chetty . . 344, 719,	720
Bholanath v Ajoodhya 648, 651,	723
Bholinath Khettri v Kali Prasad Agurwalla .. 577,	582
Bholoram Chowdhry v. Administrator-General . .	513
Bhoobun Moyee v Umbica Churn	330
Bhoorun Koer v Sahebzadee	654
Bhootnath Chatterjee v Kedar Nath	665
Bhowanee Peisad v Oheedun	771
Bhowany Sunkur v Pureem Bibee	771
Bhubuneswari Debi v Harisaran Surma . 144, 481, 483,	490
Bhugut Pershad v. Girija Koer ..	657
Bhuggobutty, In the goods of ..	139
Bhugmunt Narain v Lall Jha ..	213
Bhuggobutty Misrain v Domun Misser	650
Bhugwan Chundei v. Mechoo Lall	222
Bhugwandeen Doobey v. Myna Bace	748
Bhugwan Doss v Upooch Singh ..	771
Bhugwan Dutt v Sheo Mungul ..	347
Bhupatram v Hari Prio	796
Bhyah Ram v. Bhyah Agur ..	166
Bhyro Dutt v. Musst. Lekharnee ..	768
Bibee Jokai v. Beglar	453
Bibee Kubeerun v. Bibee Sufeehun..	646
Bibee Meheroonnissa v. Abdool Gunnee	669
Bibi Gyannessa v. Musst. Mobarukunnessa .. 158, 159,	245
Bibi Khaver v. Bibi Rukha 167,	345
Bibee Nujeebunnissa, In re ..	729
Bibee Rukhun v. Shaikh Ahmed 697,	698
Bibee Wuheedun v. Wuseo Hossein	729
Bickerton v Walker	776
Biddel v Bridges .. 326,	545
Biddomoye Dabee v. Sittaram .	787
Biddle v Bond . .	796
Bigsby v Dickinson 412,	850
Bikao Khan v R . 889,	890
Bindesuree Dutt v Doma Singh ..	406
Bindo Bashunee v Pearee Mohun 637,	664
Binja Ram v Rajmohan Roy ..	986
Bipro Doss v Secy. of State for India in Council 821,	822
Bipro Pershad v Kena Dasee ..	651
Biraj Mohinee Dassee v. Kedar Nath Karmakar	990
Bir Baddar v Sarju Prasad .	787
Birbhadra Ruth v Kalpataru Pandu	990
Birch, In re	762
Birch v Depeyster .. 603,	622
Birch v Ridgeway .. .	508
Birch v Wright . ..	787
Birchall v Bullugh	897
Bir Chandra v Bansi Dhar 132,	753
Birendra Lal v R	923
Birjanandan Lal v. Musst. Kunwari	670
Birj Mohan v Ram Nursingh ..	771
Birj Nath v Chunder Mohan ..	380
Birman, The	199
Bishambar Nath v. Nand Kishore 985,	986
Bishan Dutt v. R. .. 282, 283,	290
Bishen Chand v Rajendro Kishore	796
Bishen Dyal v. Musst. Khadeema..	492
Bisheshur v. Muirhead .. 768,	780
Bisheshur Bhuttacharjee v. Lamb ..	548
Bishnath Chowdhry v. Radha Churn	660
Bishnu Banwar v. R.	281
Bishonath Neoghy v. Huro Gobind	388
Bishonath Rukhit v. Ram Dhone 733,	840
Bishoo Manjee v. R .. 260, 267,	269
Bishop of Meath v. Marquis of Winchester	748
Bishop Mellitus v. Vicar Apostolic of Malabar 484,	498
Bissessur Chuckerbutty v. Ram Joy 652,	655
Bissessur Chuckerbutty v. Wooma Churn	671
Bissessur Das v. Smidt .	613
Bissessur Lall v. Luchmessur Singh	648
Bissessur Singh v. Gunput ..	372
Bissonath Binda v. Dayaram Jana	505
Bissonath Roy v. Lall Bahadur ..	652

PAGE.

Bissumbhur Sircar v. Soorodhuny Dassee 650
Blackett v. Royal Exchange Assurance Co. 555, 603
Blackstone v. Wilson 230
Blake v. Albion Life Ass. Co. 5, 126, 137 188, 192, 194, 200, 204, 798
Blake v. Pilford 810
Blewett v. Tregonning 862
Blue and Deschamps v. Red Mountain Railway 356
Blundell v. Gladstone 625
Board v. Board .. 750, 783, 785
Boddy v. Boddy 137
Bodh Singh v. Gunesh Chunder 291, 648, 724
Boidonath Parooye v. Russick Lall 127, 347
Boikunt Nath v. Lukhun Majhi .. 548
Boileau v. Miller 774
Boileau v. Rutlin .. 242, 372
Boisogomoff v. Nahapiet Jute Company 114, 337
Boldron v. Widdows 201
Bolton v. Corporation of Liverpool 813, 823
Bolton v. Sherman 455
Bomanjee Cowasjee, In the matter of 888, 894
Bomanjee Muncherjee v Hossein Abdoolah 776
Bommarauze Bahadur v. Rangasamy Mudaly 131
Bond v. Douglas 188
Bonfield v. Smith 193
Bonham, Ex parte 391
Bonnard v Perryman 105
Bonnaud v. Charriol 641
Boodh Narain v. Omrao Singh .. 128
Boo Jinatboo v. Sha Nagar 695, 696
Boolee Singh v. Hurobuns Narain .. 665
Borrodaile v. Chainsook Buxyram 565
Bottomley, Ex parte 332
Bottomley v Brougham .. 840
Bourne v. Gatliff .. 137, 144, 713
Boverbank v. Monteiro 575
Bowes v. Foster .. 292, 776
Bowes v. Shand 603
Bowling & Welby's Contract, In re .. 379
Bowman v. Bowman 881
Bowman v. Hodgson 506
Bowman v. Taylor 747
Boyes v Cook 607
Boyle v. Wiseman .. 484, 826
Boyson v. Coles 770
Braddon v. Abbott .. 554, 601

PAGE.

Bradlaugh v. De Ren 738
Bradley v. James 316
Bradley v. Ricardo 880
Brain v Preece 308
Braja Kishor v. Kirti Chandra .. 774
Brajanath Dey v. Anandamayi Dasi 566
Brajanath Kundu v. Lakhi Narayan 741
Brajendro Coomar v. Madhub Chander 640
Brajeshwari Peshakar v. Budhanuddi 646, 670, 776
Brassington v. Brassington .. 825
Breckon v. Smith 212
Brembridge v. Osborne 158
Brenchley v. Still . .. 739
Brett v. Beales 326
Brewer v. Palmer 559
Brewster v Sewell 489
Brickell v. Hulse 242
Briddon, In the goods of 540
Briggs v. Aynsworth 850
Briggs v. Wilson 311
Brigham v Fayerweather . 378
Bright v. Doe d. Tatham .. 505
Brij Bhookun v. Mahadeo Dobey. 753
Brij Nath v. Chandar Mohan .. 380
Brijonath Chowdhry v. Lall Meah 360, 792
Brimho Moye v. Ram Dalub .. 771
Brindabun Chander v Chundra Kurmokar 731
Brindabun Chowdhrain v. Radhica Chowdhrain 676
Brindabun Chunder v. Taracband Bandyopadhya 640
Brine v. Bazalgette 427
Bringloe v. Goodson 898
Brisbane v. Dacres 734
Brisco v. Lomax 319
Bristow v. Cormican .. 159, 327
Bristow v. Segueville 404
British, &c, Assurance Co, Re .. 738
British and American Telegraph Co. v. Colson 207, 543 British Sailing Ship "Falls of Ettrick", Re . .. 381
Brocas v. Lloyd 838
Brodie v. Brodie 146
Brodie v. Howard 232
Brohmo Dutt v. Dhurmodass Ghosh 758, 759
Brojendra Coomar v. Chairman, Dacca Municipality 23, 236, 291, 292
Brojo Kishoree v. Sreenath Bose .. 656
Brojo Mohun v. Radha Koomaree .. 652

	PAGE.
Brojonath Ghose v. Koylash Chunder	771
Brojonath Roy v Kishen Lall	667
Brojo Soondery v Luchmee Koonwaree	740
Brojo Sunder v Koylash Chunder.	691
Bromanund Gossain v Govt	665
Bromley v G I P Ry Co	726
Brook v Brook	795
Brookes v Tichborne	508
Brown v E C R Co	136
Browning v State	228
Bruce v Nicolupolo	146
Brown v Foster	812, 817, 818
Brown v Woodman	478
Browne v McClintock	455
Browne v Murray	631
Bruce v Garden	213
Bruce v Nicolupulo	738
Bruff v G N. Ry Co	226
Brukowsky v Thacker, Spink & Co	150
Brunner, Re	241
Brunswick v Harmer	400
Bryan v White	503
Buccleuch v Metropolitan Board of Works	805, 806
Bucharam Gundul v Peary Mohun	671
Bucher v Jarratt	563
Budree Lall v Bhoosee Khan	525, 527
Budree Lall v. Kantee Lall	657
Bull v O'Sullivan	986
Bulley v Bulley	215, 291, 292
Bullock v Corrie	816
Bullubee Kant v Doorjodhun Shikdar	690
Bunbury v Bunbury	818
Bunbury v Mathews	737
Bunwaree Lall v Maharajah Hetnarain	7, 114, 459, 460, 470, 471
Bunware Chund v Mudden Mohun	655
Bunwarry Lall v Forlong 348, 482, 663,	669
Burberry's v Cording	623
Burdicant Roy v Chunder Koomar	743
Burdett's Case	117
Burgoyne v Showler	739
Burha Mandari v Megh Nath	314
Burjorji Cursetji v. Mancherji Kuverji	441, 453, 455, 479, 576
Burjorji Dorabji v. Dhunbai	238
Burkinshaw v Nicolls	764
Burling v. Patterson	738
Burmester v Barron	206
Burn v Achumbit Roy	359
Burn & Co. v. Bushomoyee Dasee	785, 792
Burnable v. Bailhe	158, 484
Burnside v. Dayrell	226
Burr v Smith	840
Burrell v. North	474
Burrough v. Martin	901
Burrowes v. Lock.	762
Bursill v Tanner	817, 818, 824
Burt v Walker	333
Burton v Payne	483
Burton v Plummer	901, 902
Bury v Philpot	701, 702
Bustros v White	815
Buteshire, The	455
Butler v Allnutt	206
Butler v Ford	737
Buxton v Cornish	360
Buzloor Ruheem v Shumsoonissa Begum	101, 102, 740
Buzrung Sahoy v Mantra Chowdhain	654
Bvathamma v Avulla	168, 171, 175, 176, 213, 351
Bynath Lall v Ramoodeen Chowdhry	772
Byjonath Sahoy v Doolhun Bewanath	769
Bykant Nath v Goboollah Sikdar	772
Byne, Ex parte	839
Byrne v Shivshanker	800
Byrne v Broadle	727

C.

Caine v. Horsefall	604
Cairncross v Lorimer	779
Caldey v Richards	813
Cameron's &c, Co., Re	825
Cammell v Sewell	390
Campbell, Ex parte	813, 816 817
Campbell, Re	103
Campbell v Campbell	730
Campbell v. Loader	916
Cannell v Curtis	737
Cantello v Cantello	137
Carew, Ex parte	804
Cargile v Wood	730
Carnarvon v Villebois	326
Carpenter v. Buller	748, 777
Carpenter v Wall	871
Carpmael v Powis	819
Carr v. London and N.-W Ry Co	757, 765, 766, 767, 777, 778, 779, 782, 783
Carter v Pryke	136
Case v Case	727
Caspersz v Kedar Nath	461, 745, 769
Cassumbhoy Ahmedbhoy v Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy	634, 644

	PAGE.
Caston v. Caston ..	381, 390
Castrique v. Imrie	388
Cathcart, In re ..	816, 817
Catt v. Howard ..	240, 367
Cavaly Vencata v. Collector of Masulipatam . .	652
Cazenove v. Vaughan ..	336
Central Ry. Co v. Kisch .	764
Chabildas Lallubhai v. Dayal Mowji 198,	199
Chadwick v. Bowman .	822
Cham Mahto v. R .	133, 134
Chakauri Sing v. Suraj Kuar	330
Chamanbu v. Multan Chand .	320
Chamarnee Bibee v. Ayenoolah Sirdar	347
Chambers v. Barnasconi .. .	308
Chambers v. The Queen's Proctor	5
Champabaty v. Bipi Jibnu	985
Chand Huree v. Rajah Norendro .	651
Chandi Charan v. Boistob Charan	510, 513, 519
Chaondika Baksh v. Numa Kunwar	185
Chandi Prosad v. Mohendra Singh	373
Chandi Singh v. Jangi Singh	653
Chandler v. Greaves , . ..	452
Chandra Kali Dabee v. Chapman ..	795
Chandra Kant v. Kartic Chunder ..	986
Chandra Kunwar v. Chandri Narpat Singh	246, 292
Chandra Nath v. Nilmadhub Bhuttacharjee .	297, 301, 323
Chango v. Kalaram	579
Channel, Re . .	332
Chant v. Brown ..	816
Chapin v. Lapham .. .	900
Chapman v. Black	556
Chard v. Jervis	105
"Charkieh," The	452
Charlottee, The	411
Charoo v. Zobeida Khatoon .	358
Charter v. Charter	616
Chathakelan v. Gobinda Karumiar	245
Chathu v. Viraryen .. .	483, 565
Chatenay v. Brazilian Submarine Telegraph Co	623
Chatring Moolchand v. Whitchurch	696
Chaurand v. Angerstein	624
Chedambara Chetty v. Renga Krishna Muthu	697
Chedambaran Chetty v. Karunalyavalangapuly Paverin	991
Cheetha v. Miheen Lall ..	650, 723
Cheetun Lall v. Chutter Dharee ..	144
Chenbasapa v. Lakshman Ram	986, 987
Chengal Reddi v. Venkata Reddi ..	993
Chenvirappa v. Putappa 394, 395, 748.	772, 775
Cherukunneth v. Vengunat	449, 752
Cherry v. Colonial Bank of Australasia	765
Chesire v. Bailey .	124, 761
Chetti (Venugopal) v. Chetti (Venugopal) .. .	758
Chhato Ram v. Bilto Ali .	231
Chidambara v. Thirumani	840
Chidambaram Pillai v. R .	202
Child v. Grace .. .	148
Childerson v. Barrett .	839
Chimnaji Govind v. Dhunkar Dhondev . . .	131
Chinn v. Morris	160
Chinna Krishna v. Dorasami Reddi	990
Chinnan v. Ramchandra	641, 642
Chinnappa Reddi v. Manickka Vasagam .. .	669
Chinnasami v. Hariharabadra .	380
Chinna Umaya v. Tegarai Chetti .	165
Chinnaya v. Gurunatham Chetti .	227
Chintamar Ramchandra v. Dareppa	767
Chintamanrao Mehendale v. Kashinath ..	657
Chintamon Singh v. R . .	432
Chintu v. Dhondu .	773
Chitko v. Janaki . .	773
Chockalingam Pillai v. Mayandi Chettiar	720
Chokkey Singh v. Jote Singh ..	749
Cholmondeley v. Clinton ..	816
Chooa Kara v. Isabin Khalifa .	115
Chotey Narain v. Mussamut Ratan	471
Choutmull Doogur v. River Steam Navigation Co ..	726, 727
Chowdhrani v. Tarini Kanth	638, 740
Chowdhry Debi v. Chowdhry Dowlat	594, 670
Chowdhry Herasutollah v. Brojo Soondur	655
Chowdhry Pudum v. Koer Oodey ..	656
Christacharlu v. Kasibasayya ..	681
Christian v. Delanney	366
Chuckun Lall v. Poran Chunder .	227
Chumman Shah, In the matter of ..	252
Chundee Churn v. Eduljee Cowasjee	365, 762
Chunder Coomar v. Harbans Sahai	770, 771, 783
Chunder Kant v. Bungshee Deb ..	689
Chunder Kant v. Pearee Mohun .	291
Chunder Kant v. Broje Nath ..	550

	PAGE.
Chunder Kant v. Ramnaraın Dey ..	223
Chunder Monee v Joykissen Sircar ..	652
Chunder Monee v Raj Kishore .	685
Chunder Nath v. Kristo Komul	649, 740
Chundernath Roy v Kooer Gobindnath	722
Chundreshwar v Chuni Ahn ..	224
Chuni Kuar v. Udai Ram	638, 641, 720
Chunni Kuar v Rup Singh ..	696
Churaman v Balli .. .	197
Chutter Lal v Govt ..	383
Chyet Naiain v Bunwaree Singh .	640
Citizens Bank v First National Bank ..	756, 757, 781
Civa Rau v Jevana Rau .	754
Clarges v. Sherwin .. .	387
Claridge v Mackenzie .. .	792
Clark v. Adie . . .	787
Clark v. Alexander .	683
Clarke v Bindabun Chunder	235, 240, 686
Clarke v. Magruder .	739
Clarke v. Mullick . .	222
Clarke v Saffery . .	881
Clarkson v Woodhouse .	327
Clarton v. Shaw .	567, 568
Clay v Crowe .. .	987
Claydon v Green . .	101
Clayton v Lord Nugent	611, 622
Clayton v Wardell ..	727
Cleare v. Cleare .	673
Cleave v. Jones ..	129, 818, 820
Clifford v Burton .	227
Clifford v. Hunter .. .	855
Clive Durant, In re .	856
Cloak v. Hammond	819
Closmadeuc v. Carrel	738
Clunes v Pezzey	718
Coates v Bainbridge	226
Cobbett v Grey . ..	217
Cobbett v Hudson	802
Cobbett v. Kilmmster	508
Cobden v Kendrick	818
Cockran v. Retberg	624
Cockrill v. Sparkes	234
Coggs v. Bernard ..	726, 796
Coglan v Cumberland	117
Cohen v. Bank of Bengal	576, 588
Cohen v Sutherland	578
Cole v. Hawkins	839
Cole v. Langford	392
Cole v. Manning ..	137, 804, 836
Coles v. Coles . .	891, 883
Collier v. Simpson	448

	PAGE.
Collector of Allahabad v Suraj Baksh . ..	788, 792
Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh 5, 6, 8, 9, 99, 100, 102, 103, 126, 144, 164, 167, 168, 171, 176, 182, .	383, 385, 386
Collector of Madura v Motoo Ramalinga . ..	166, 445
Collector of Masulipatam v Cavaly Venkata	652
Collector of Monghyr v Hardai Naraın	657
Collector of Rajshahye v Doorga Soondaree	162, 358, 360, 362
Collector of Rungpore v Prosunno Coomar .. .	665
Collector of Sea Customs v P H. Chithambaram ..	103
Collector of Thana v Hari Sitaram	655
Collector of Trichinopoly v. Tekkamani	742
Colledge v Horn . ..	230
Collier v Baron ..	321, 777, 779
Collier v Simpson ..	398, 467
Collins v Bennett	679
Collins v Blantern	593
Colpoys v Colpoys ..	556, 612
Colsell v. Budd	158
Com v Casey	303
Com v. Fox	898
Com v Kimball .	727
Com v. Morell	474
Com v Webster .	415, 717
Concha v Concha ..	378, 379, 566
Concha v Murietta ..	398, 405
Constable v. Leibel .. .	408
Cook v Ward	328
Cook v Wilby	539
Cooke v. Banks	326
Cooke v. North Met Tram. Co.	821, 822
Coole v Braham ..	236, 240, 241
Coombs v. Coether	326
Cooper, In re	197
Cooper v. Blandy ..	788, 789
Cooper v Dedrick	683
Cooper v. Met. Board of Works	226, 227
Cooper v. Slade.. ..	115, 124, 228
Cope v. Cope ..	699, 701, 702, 703, 704
Corbett v. Brown	764
Cornish v. Abington	764, 766, 778, 779
Cornish v. Searell	791
Cornwallis, Trial of Lord . .	116
Corsen v. Dubois	905
Cory v. Bretton	247
Cory v Gerteken ..	759, 760

	Page.
Costello v. Crowell	898
Cotman v. Orton	818
Cotton v. James	194
Coulson v. Disborough	913
Courteen v. Touse ..	137, 224
Court of Wards v. Venkata Suriya ..	618
Coventry v. G. E. R. Co. 765, 766, 767,	775
Coventry v. Tulsi Pershad ..	753
Covert v. Gray	711
Cowan v. Abrahams	563
Cowasji Ruttonji v. Borjorji Rustomjee	588, 596
Cowen v. Truefitt	617
Cowie v. Remfrey	568
Cowley v. People	803
Cowper v. Cowper	729
Cox v. Bruce	775
Cox v. Burbridge	188
Craft v. Com.	895
Crawcour v. Salter	818
Crawford v. Spooner ..	..99, 102
Crease v. Barrett ..	316, 317, 917
Creevy v. Carr	855
Cresswell v. Jackson	508
Criffin v. Rice	420
Crisp v. Anderson ..	715, 738
Crispin v. Doglioni	484
Croft v. Croft	739
Cromack v Heathcote	815
Cropper v. Smith .	782, 787
Crossfield (R T.), trial of ..	116
Crowdie v. Kullar Chowdhry ..	990
Crowley v Page	889
Crowthier v Appleby	905
Cunliffe v. Sefton	505
Cunningham, In re	124
Cunningham v. Faublanque ..	186
Currier v Hampton	415
Curry v. Walter	806
Cursetji J. Khambatta v. Crowder..	106
Curteen v. Touse	866
Curtes v Peek	400
Curzon v. Lomax	326
Cuthbertson v. Irving	786
Cutts v. Brown .. 577, 578, 583,	584, 592, 596

D

	Page.
Dabee Misser v. Mungur Meah ..	753
Dabee Pershad v. Ram Coomar 169,	363
Dabee Suhai v. Sheo Dass ..	651
Dabjee Sahoo v. Shaik Tumeeroodeen	691
DaCosta v. Jones	877
DaCosta v. Pym	416
Dadabhai v. Jamsedji	450
Dadabhai Narsidas v. Sub-collector of Broach 691,	692
Dada Honaji v. Babaji Jagushet ..	598
Dadan Gazi v. R.	871
Dadoba v. Collector of Bombay ..	608
Dagdu v. Bhana .. 595,	596
Dagdu v. Kamble	654
Dagdu v. Panchom Singh ..	8
Dagleish v. Dodd	368
Dalmoddee Paik v. Kaim Taridar ..	580
Daines v. Hartley	400
Daintree, In re	249
Daintree v. Hutchinson	624
Daitari Mohanti v. Jugo Bundhoo 163, 167, 171, 503,	690
Dakhina Kali v. Jagadeshwar Bhattacharjee	652
Dale v. Hamilton	582
Dalglish v Guzuffur Hassain 165,	384, 418, 419
Dalip Singh v Durga Prasad 458,	570, 571, 990
Dalip Singh v Nawal Kunwar 138,	143
Dalison v. Stark	562
Dalton v. Fitzgerald	750
Damodar Jagannath v. Atmaram Babaji 488,	986, 987
Damodara Mudaliar v The Secretary of State for India ..	8
Damodhar Gordhan v Deoram Kanji 443, 448, 449, 450, 541,	705
Damudar Dass v. Mahiram Pandoh	773
Dan v. Brown	232
Daniell v. Pitt	241
Daniell v Potter	233
Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry. Co. ..	201
Daniel v. Wilkin	326
Danmull v B I. S. N Co ..	665
Darbha Venkamma v. Raina Subbarayudu	752
Darby v. Ousely .. 246,	367
Dasarath Mandal v. R.	716
Dattaji v. Kalba	769
Dattaram v. Venayak	758
Dattatraya, In re	129
Dattoo v. Ram Chandra .. 580,	581, 586
David, In the matter of .. 281,	802
Davies, Ex parte	796
Davies v. Lowndes 319, 323, 324,	387
Davies v. Ridge	223
Davies v. Waters .. 818,	824
Davis v. Dale	862
Davis v. Field	898
Davis v. Jones	598

	Page.
Davis v Hutchings	199
Davis v. Lloyd	206
Davis's Trusts, In re ..	452, 539
Davlata v. Ganesh Shastree	634, 670
Dawan Singh v Mahip Singh ..	840
Dawson v. Rokeby .	810
Day v Trig	618
Dayal Jairaj v. Khatav Ladha ..	748
Dear v. Knight ..	882, 883
Debi Churn v Issur Chunder	691
Debi Rai v. Gokul Prasad	752
Debi Singh v R. ..	643
Debnath Roy v. Gudadhur Dey	786
DeBretton v DeBretton & Holme	798, 804
DeBussche v Alt . .	768
Deby Prasad v. Dowlut Singh .	4
DeLassallo v Guildford .	578
Deely's Patent, In re . ..	373
Deendyal Lall v Jugdeep Narain .	657
Delany v. Fox	787
Delhi and London Bank v Orchard	102
DeMedina v. Owen	388
DeMora v. Concha ..	378, 379, 566
De Ross Peerage .. .	423
Dennett v. Crocker	561
Dinomoni Devi v Roy Luchmiput	5
Denonath v. Hurry Narain	648, 723
Denonath Batabyal v. Adhor Chunder	752
Denoo Singh v. Doorga Pershad ..	458
Deo v. Andrews .. .	348
Deojit v. Pitamber	610
Deokinandan v Sriram	350
Deo Kuar v Man Kuar ..	653, 698
Deoli Chand v. Nerban Singh ..	777
Deo Nath v Peer Khan	637
Deo Pershad v. Lujoo Roy ..	653
Depy. Comsr. of Bara Banki v. Ram Parshad	307, 344, 345
Depy. Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna Boistobi	117, 192, 197, 254, 255, 281, 643, 678, 680
Depy. Legal Remembrancer v. Mir Sarwar	713, 714
De Rosaz, In the goods of ..	611
De Ross Peerage Case	423
Derry v. Peak ..	199, 200
Desai Motilal v. Parashotam Nadlal	090
Desai Ranchoddas v. Rawal Nathubai	184
DeSouza v. Pestanji	164
Devachand v. Hirachand Kamraj ..	984
Devaji Gaya v Godabhai Godabhai	550, 751
Devala Co., Re	226

	Page.
Dewan Run v. Indarpal Singh ..	652
Dhan Bibi v Lalon Bibi	729
Dhanka v. Umrao Singh ..	774
Dhanmull v Ramchunder Ghose	322, 759, 760
Dhanookdharee Sahee v Toomey ..	347
Dhanukdari Singh v Nathuma Sahu	673
Dharam Das v Ganga Devi ..	565
Dharam Kunwar v Balwant Singh	774
Dharmaji Vaman v Gurrav Shrinivas	212
Dhaini Singh v Hur Pershad ..	686
Dharnidar v Dhundiraj . ..	174
Dhurrup Nath v Gobind Saran ..	682
Dhondo v Keshva .	764
Dhondo Balkrishna v Raoji ..	769
Dhondo Bhikaji v Ganesh Bhikaji	682
Dhondo Ramchandra v. Balkrishna Gobind	652
Dhumimal v Kalu . ..	644
Dhun Monee v Suttoorghun Seal ..	671
Dhunno Kazi, In the matter of the petition of	716
Dhunookdharee Lall v Gunput Lall	723
Dhunput Singh, In re	451
Dhunput Singh v. Gooman Singh ..	741
Dhunput Singh v Mahomed Kazim . ..	789, 793
Dhunput Singh v Russomoyee Chowdhrain . ..	671
Dhurmadas Ghosh v. Brohmo Dutt	759
Dhurm Das v Shama Soonduri	647, 723
Dickinson v. Inhabitants of Fitchburgh	425
Dickson v Evans	678
Digumburee Dossee v Banee Madhub Ghose	635
Dil Gazi v R.	141
Dina Nath Das v. Matimala Dassya	991
Dinanath Mookerjee v. Debnath Mullick	990
Dinamoyee Debi v Bon Behari Kapur	502
Dinendranath Sannial v Ramkumar Ghose	237
Dinkar v. Apaji	227
Dinnonath Sen v. Guruchurn Pal ..	752
Dinobundhoo Suhaye v. Furlong	665
Dinomoney Dabea v Doorgapershad Mozoomdar	453, 754, 789
Dinomoni Chowdhrani v. Brojo Mohini	179, 182, 183, 327, 362, 536, 688
Dinomoyi Debi v Roy Luchmiput	3, 6, 458, 557
Dinonath Mukerji v. Gopal Churn Mukerji

PAGE.

Dintarini Debi, In the matter of the petition of .. 673, 843
Dintarini Debi v. Doibo Chundra .. 676
Dip Singh v. Girand Singh .. 720
Di Sora v. Phillips .. 405, 623
Divethi Varada v. Krishnasami Ayyangar .. 488, 990
Diwan Rau v. Indarpal Singh .. 724
Doe v. Allen 145, 616
Doe v. Barnes 355
Doe v. Barton 322
Doe v. Bevins 315
Doe v. Bird 230
Doe v. Bover 919
Doe v. Bray 350
Doe v. Cartwright 562
Doe v. Date 815, 824
Doe v. Davies 309, 319, 322
Doe v. Deakin 732
Doe v. Derby 329
Doe v. Ford 575
Doe v. Frankis 148
Doe v. Gosley 850
Doe v. Griffin 732
Doe v. Harvey 560, 561
Doe v. Hawkins 316
Doe v. Hertford 819
Doe v. Hiscocks .. 616, 619, 620
Doe v. James 818, 905
Doe v. Jauncey 814
Doe v. Jones 315
Doe v. Kelly 839, 904
Doe v. Kemp 159
Doe v. Langdon 824
Doe v. Lloyd 452
Doe v. Morris 498
Doe v. Needs 616
Doe v. Oliver 751
Doe v. Perkins 901
Doe v. Pettett 236
Doe v. Phillips 545
Doe v. Powell 333, 334
Doe v. Pulman 169
Doe v. Pye 145
Doe v. Robson 313
Doe v. Roe 455, 850
Doe v. Ross 230, 478, 484, 492, 518, 904
Doe v. Steel 215
Doe v. Suckermore 414
Doe v. Thomas 815
Doe v. Turford .. 305, 306, 308, 316
Doe v. Vowles 313
Doe v. Webber 239
Doe v. Westlake 616
Doe v. Witcomb 326, 489

PAGE.

Doe v. Wolley 545
Doe d. Barlow v. Wiggins 788, 789, 792
Doe d. Bullen v. Mills 790
Doe d. Child v. Roe 751
Doe d. Derby v. Foster 337
Doe d. Devine v. Wilson 508
Doe d. France v. Andrews 352, 353
Doe d. Gilbert v. Ross .. 3
Doe d. Higginbotham v. Barton 787, 791
Doe d. Hiscocks v. Hiscocks .. 605
Doe d. Jagomohan Rai v. Nimu Dasi 164
Doe d. Johnson v. Baytup 785, 790, 794
Doe d. Knight v. Smythe .. 785
Doe d. Lloyd v. Evans 249
Doe d. Lloyd v. Passingham .. 336
Doe d. Marriott v. Edwards .. 792
Doe d. Pearson v. Ries 556
Doe d. Plevin v. Brown .. 789, 792
Doe d. Spencer v. Beckett .. 790
Doe d. Spilsbury v. Burdett .. 503
Doe d. Welsh v. Langfield .. 3
Doe d. Wright v. Tatham .. 465
Dolder v. Huntingfield 448
Dolz v. Morris 411
Domi Lal Sahu v. Roshan Dubey 239, 565
Domun Lall v. Pudmun Singh .. 663
Donzelle v. Kedar Nath Chuckerbutty 590, 747, 786
Dookha Thakoor v. Ram Lall .. 594
Doolee Chand v. Muest. Oomda 698, 769
Doongrusee Ryde v. Gridharee Mull 667
Doorga Churn v. Shoshee Bhoosun 384
Doorga Churn v. Syud Najunoodeen 668, 679
Doorga Dass v. Doorga Churn .. 388
Doorga Dass v. Nurendro Coomar 171
Doorga Pershad v. Kesho Pershad 658
Dorab Ally v. Abdool Azeez 237, 451
Dorasamy v. Muthusamy 668
Dowden v. Blakey 818
Dowley v. Winfield 732
Dowling v. Dowling 158
Downs v. Cooper .. 790, 792
Doyachand Shaha v. Anund Chundra 661
Doyanidhi Panda v. Kelai Panda .. 667
Doyle v. Hart 735
"Drachenfels," The "Retriever" v. "Drachenfels," In the matter of the 410, 412, 450
Drant v. Browne 562
Draupner, The 669
Drinkwater v. Porter 317
Dubey Sahai v. Ganeshi Lal .. 101
Durga Das v. Norendro Coomar .. 382

	PAGE.
Du Bost v. Beresford	328
Duchess of Kingston's Case	389
Duke v. Ashby	785
Duke of Devonshire v. O'Connor	103
Duke of Leeds v Earl of Amherst	768
Dukhi Mullah v. Halway	101
Dullab Sirkar v. Krishna Kumar	768, 769
Duncombe v Daniell	455, 483
Dungariya v. Nand Lal	216, 780
Dunne v. Legge	667
Dunne v. Dharani Kanta Lahiri	360
Durga v. Jhinguri	782, 788
Durga Das v Samash Akon	792
Durga Dihal v Anoraji	842
Durga Prosad v Bhajan Lal	563, 596
Dwarka Bunia v R	432
Dwarka Dass v Sant Baksh	132, 342. 343 996
Dwarka Doss v. Baboo Jankee	205, 345
Dwarka Nath v Tara Soonduree	348
Dwarka Nath v. Unnoda Soonduree	752
Dwarkanath Bose v Chundee Churn	223
Dwarkanath Chattopadhya v Bhoggoban Panda	600
Dwyer v Collins	483, 495, 497, 818
Dyer v. Pearson	770

E

E I Co. v. Tritton	734
E I. Ry. Co. v. Kalidas Mukerji	726, 727. 734
Eade v. Jacoba	819
Earl's Trust, In re	539
Earl of Bandon v Becher	394
Earl of Darnley v. Proprietor, &c., of London, Chatham and Dover Railway	601
Eastern Counties, &c, Companies v. Marriage	100, 101, 102
Eaton v Swansea Waterworks	387
Ebrahim Pir v. Cursetjee Sorabjee	588, 596
Ecker v McAllister	733
Eckowrie Singh v. Heera Lall	127, 362, 458, 471
Ede v. Kantho Nath	681
Edgington v. Fitzmaurice	192
Edie v. Kingsford	305
Edmunds v. Groves	453
Edwards, Ex parte	241, 312, 315
Edwards v. Muller	840
Edwards v. Toulls	148, 149
Ekowrie Singh v. Kylash Chunder	550
Elahee Buksh, In the matter of	923
Elgin Mills Co. v. Muir Mills Co.	659
Eliot v. Boyles	859
Elkin v. Janson	678
Ellis v. Saltan	806
Elton v. Larkins	230
Ely v. Caldecott	326
Enayet Hoosein v Deedar Bux	744
Enayetollah Meah v Nubo Coomar	347
Enayutoolah v. Elaheebuksh	744
England d Syburn v. Slade	792
English v Tottie	822
Eranjoli Illath v. Eranjoli Illath	184
Eranjoli Vishnu v Eranjoli Krishnan	773
Eravaat v Sidramappa Pasar	772
Erfanoonissa v. Pearee Mohun	660
Erskine v Government	347
Ertaza Hossein v Baney Mistry	691
Eshan Chandra Samanta v Nil Moni Singh	165
Eshan Chunder v. Protab Chunder	618
Eshan Chandra v Nundamoni	389
Eshan Chundra v Shama Charan	115
Eshoor Dass v Venkatasuba Rau	591
Eugene Aram's Case	143
Evans v Birch	206
Evans v Evans	733
Evans v Morgan	424
Evans v Mosely	863
Evans v Rees	384
Evansville R R Co v Young	421
Exeter v Warren	316

F

Fabrigas v Mostyn	242
Fackeroodeen Adam Saw, In the matter of	379
Faez Bux v. Fakiruddin Mahomed	460, 638
Fairlie v. Denton	148, 149
Fairlie v Hastings	221, 225, 226
Fairtitle v Gilbert	760
Faiz Ali v. Koromdi	855
Faizulla v. Ramkamal Mitter	484
Faizun-nissa v. Hanif-un-nissa	585, 595, 604
Fakeeruddeen Mahomed v Official Trustee	372
Fakir Muhammad v. Tirumala Chartar	450
Falconer v. Hanson	368
"Falls of Ettrick," In the matter of	381
Fani Bhusan Banerji v Surjya Kanta Row Chowdhry	682
Fanindra Nath Banerjee v. R.	716, 893
Fanduunissa, In re	840
Farmloe v. Bain	775

PAGE.

Farquharson v. Dwarkanath Singh 4, 347
Farr v. Price 987
Farrar v. Beswick 739
Farrar v. Hutchinson . 776
Farrow v. Blomfield .. 246
Farzand Ali Khan v. Bismillah Begum 753
Fatechand Harchand v. Kisan . 986
Fatimunnissa Begum v. Soonder Das 782
Fatma v. Darya . 354, 355
Fatteh Singji v. Bamanji. .. 794
Faulkner v. Brine . .. 882
Fawkes v. Lamb . . 604
Fazlar Rahman v. Raj Chunder . 691
Feeham, Re 367
Fegredo v. Mahomed Mudessur . 655
Felder v. State 303
Fellowes v. Williamson .. 189, 245
Feltham, In the matter of . . 605
Fenn v. Griffith . .. 559
Fenner v. Duplock .. 788, 792, 793
Fenner v. S. E. R. Co. . 819, 821
Fenwick v. Thornton . 222, 234
Fergusson v. Govt. 347
Fernandez v. Alves .. . 505
Ferrand v. Milligan .. . 917
Few v. Guppy 824
Fielder v. Ray 560
Finch v. Finch 836
Fisher v. Owen 823
Fisher v. Ronalds 826
Fitz v. Rabbits 489
Fitzgerald v. Dressler 740
Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald 336
Fitzhardinge v. Purcell 418
Flatau, Ex parte 391
Fleming v. Fleming .. 700, 730
Fleming v. Gooding 785
Fletcher v. Braddyll 207
Fletcher v. Froggatt 217
Flower v. Lloyd 391
Foakes v. Webb 816
Folkes v. Chadd .. 402, 413
Follett v. Jefferyes .. 812, 814
Foolcoomary Dasi v. Woody Chunder 389
Fool Kissory v. Nobin Chunder 333, 339, 895
Forbes v. Ameeroonissa Begum .. 593
Forbes v. Meer Mahomed 222, 636, 672
Forbes v. Mir Mahomed 235, 237, 292, 660, 664, 742
Forbes v. Watt 144
Ford, Ex parte 763, 769

PAGE.

Ford v. Agar .. . 792
Ford v. De Pontes 815
Ford v. Yates 555
Fordham v. Wallis 232
Fordyce v. Bridges 102
Forester v. Secy. of State for India 449, 450
Forshaw v. Lewis 818
Foster, Ex parte 115
Foster, Re 485
Foster v. Hall 815
Foster v. Mackinnon 796
Foster v. Pointer 392
Foster v. Shaw 387
Foulkes v. Chadd 137
Fountain v. Boodle 427
Fowler v. Fowler 825
Fowler v. Savage 387
Fox v. Waters 223, 231, 233, 234
Foxall v. International Land Credit Co. 187
Framji v. Mohansing Dhansing 7, 8, 103, 812, 813, 814, 816, 817, 818, 819
Framji Hormusji v. Commissioner of Customs 718
Franklin v. Merida .. 784, 792
Franklin Bank v. Pensylvania D. & M. S. N. Co. 224, 225
Fraser, Re 391
Freeman v. Arkell 489
Freeman v. Cooke 754, 763, 765, 770, 778, 779
Freeman v. Cox .. 148, 149
Freeman v. Fairlie 354
Freeman v. Phillips 319
Freeman v. Reed 326
Frein v. L. C. & D. R. Co. .. 822
Freshfield v. Reed 503
Friedlander v. London Assurance Co. 880
Frith v. Frith 149, 356, 399
Fryer v. Gathercole .. 399, 414
Fulli Bibi v. Banisuddi Medha .. 670
Futtehsangji v. Dessai 100
Furness Withy Co. v. Hall .. 376
Fuzeelun Bibee v. Omdah Bibee .. 729
Fuzloodeen Khan v. Fakir Mahomed 744

G

G. v. M. I. R. 397
G. I. P. Ry. Co. v. Hanmandas Ramkison 775, 787
Gahay M. v. Alston 489
Gajanam v. Nilo .. 229, 704
Gajendur Singh v. Sardar Singh .. 725

PAGE.

Gajraj Puri v. Achaibar Puri .. 944
Gale v. Williamson 575
Galpin v. Page 686, 736
Ganee Mahomed v. Tarini Charan . 541
Ganes v. Lanesborough .. 405
Ganesh v. Purshottam 239
Ganesh Lal v. Bapu .. . 758
Ganesh Daji v. Sukharam Ram .. 752
Ganesh Jagannath v. Ramchandra Ganesh 380
Ganga v. Murli Dhur .. . 752
Gangadhar Sikhdar v. Azimuddin Shah .. 743
Gangamoyi Debi v. Troilucky a Nath Chowdri 714
Ganga Dei v. Shiam Sundar 502
Ganga Prasad v. Ajudhia Pershad 658
Ganga Prasad v. Bhagat Singh . 234
Ganga Ram v. Amir Chand . 559
Ganga Ram v. Chandan Singh .. 681
Ganga Ram v. Secretary of State for India 672
Ganga Sahai v. Hira Singh . 778
Ganges Manufacturing Co. v. Souruj-mull 751, 755, 756, 775, 787, 797
Gangulee v. Ancha Bapulu .. 658
Ganouri Lal v. R. 467
Gunpat Rao v. Ganpat Rao 687, 689, 694
Gunpat Rao v. Ram Chandra .. 555
Gardner v. Irvin .. . 816
Gardner v. Moult .. . 242
Gardner Peerage Case .. 410, 423
Garnett, In re 836
Garth v. Howard .. 225, 226, 227
Garurudhwaja v. Saparandhwaja 320, 350, 417, 419, 421, 450, 466, 644
Garvey v. Hibbert 539
Gaskill v. Skene 149
Gasper v. Mytton 713
Gathercole v. Miall 489
Gatty v. Fry 862
Gaurand v. Edison Gower Bell Telephone Co. 815
Gaur Mohan v. Tarachand .. 725
Gaya Prasad v. Bhagat Singh .. 338
Gee v. Ward 319
Genda Puri v. Chhattur Puri .. 656
George v. Surrey 415
George v. Thyer 730
George Whitchurch, Ld. v. Cavanagh 764
Gerish v. Chartier 189
Getty v. Getty 216
Ghasti v. Umrao Jan 165
Ghassee Khan v. Kulloo 749
Gellabhai v. Nandubhai .. 601, 614

PAGE.

Gheran v. Kunj Behari .. 767, 768, 769
Ghirdharee Singh v. Koolahul Singh 644
Gholaub Koonwaree v. Eshur Chandey 752
Ghulam Ali Shah v. Shahbal Singh 645
Gibbs, In re . .. 607
Gibson v. Doeg 740
Gibson v. Hunter .. 188
Gilbert v. Endean . .. 105
Giles v. Powell . 841, 844
Gill v. Gill 676
Gillard v. Bates 818
Gillies v. Smithers 204
Girdhar Nagjishet v. Ganpat Moroba 144, 984, 985
Girdharee Lall v. Kantoo Lall .. 657
Girdharee Lall v. Modho Roy .. 458
Girdharee Singh v. Lalloo Koonwur 776
Girdhari Singh v. Hurdeo Narain .. 753
Girdharlal Dayaldas v. Jaganath Girdhar bhai . .. 667
Girdlestone v. Brighton Aquarium Co 394
Girindra Chandra v. Nogendra Nath 351, 362
Girindra Chundra v. Rajendro Nath 130
Girindra Nath v. Bejoy Gopal Mukerjee .. 502, 503
Girish Chunder v. Bhugwan Chunder 416
Girish Chunder v. Broughton 379, 380
Girish Chunder v. R. 131
Girish Chunder v. Shama Churn 213, 222
"Glencoe" The .. . 673
Goberdhan Singh v. Ritu Roy .. 772
Goberdhun Lall v. Singessur Dutt .. 658
Gobind Chunder v. Doorgapersaud 648, 723
Gobind Chunder v. Sri Gobind . 171
Gobind Das v. Sarju Das 565
Gobind Lall v. Debendronath Mullick 666
Gobind Nath v. G M Reilly .. 636
Gobind Prasad v. Mohan Lal .. 684
Gobind Suain v. Narain Raoot .. 836
Gobinda Nath Shaha Chowdhry v. Surja Kantha Lahiri 789
Goblet v. Beechey 625
Goculdas Bulabdas Manufacturing Co. v. Scott 752
Goday Naram v. Sri Ankitam 398, 733
Goff v. Mills 838
Gogun Chunder v. Dhuronidhur Mundul 681
Gogun Chunder v. R 388
Gokaldas Gopaldas v. Puranmal Premsukhdas 735, 743, 747
Goka Prasad v. Radho 445
Gokool Kristo v. David .. 666, 712

PAGE.

Gokul Chunder v. Nilmoney Mitter .. 606
Gokul Dichit v Maharaj Dichit .. 356
Golam Ali v. Tagore 662
Golam Nubee v Bissonath Kur .. 690
Golap Chand v Thakurani Mohokoom 987
Golden River Mining Co. v. Buxton Mining Co. 856
Goloke Chunder v. Magistrate of Chittagong 218
Goluck Chunder v. Raja Sreemurd .. 458
Goluck Kishore v. Nund Mohun .. 458
Gomaji v. Subbarayappa .. 989
Good, In the goods of 721
Goodall v. Little . .. 815
Goodman v. Sayres .. . 734
Goodrich v. Venkanna . .. 760
Goodright v Harwood 675
Goodright v Saul 423
Goodtitle v. Southern .. 617, 618
Goodwin v. Parton . .. 235
Goomanee, In the matter of 119, 458
Gooroo Pershad v. Bykunto Chunder 132, 358, 546
Gooroo Doss v. Huronath Roy .. 665
Gooroo Doss v. Issur Chunder . 741
Gooroo Pershad v. Juggobundoo Mozoomdar 671
Gooroo Pershad v. Kalee Pershad 650
Gooroo Prosunno v Nil Madhub 655, 722
Gopal v Dasarath Set .. . 374
Gopal v Kanaram 650
Gopal v. Krishna .. 714, 715
Gopal v Mageshwar 374
Gopal v. Narayan 776
Gopalasami Chetti v. Aruna Chellam .. 323, 423, 699, 724
Gopalayyan v. Raghupatiayyan 162, 164, 165, 184, 773
Gopal Chunder v. Herembo Chunder 743
Gopal Chunder v. Madhub Chunder 362
Gopal Chunder v. Sarat Chunder .. 768
Gopal Chunder v. Umesh Narain .. 664
Gopal Lall v Manick Lall 849, 913
Gopal Lall v. Tiluck Chunder 661, 741
Gopal Mundul v Nobbo Kishen 342, 347
Gopal Narain v. Muddomutty 227, 774
Gopal Narhar v. Hamant Ganesh . 644
Gopal Sahu v Joyram Tewary .. 751
Gopanund Jha v Lalla Gobind 663, 793
Gopaul Chunder v. Gour Monee . 777
Gopeekristo Gossain v. Gungapersaud .. 636, 648, 651, 723, 740
Gopee Lall v Musst. Sree Chundraolee .. 216, 291, 454, 774, 780

PAGE.

Gopee Mohun v. Abdool Rajah .. 344
Gopeenath Naik v. Jadoo Ghose .. 772
Gopeenath Singh v Anund Moyee 127, 361, 714
Gopi Nath v. Bhugwat Persaud .. 741
Gopi Wasadev v. Markande Narayan 772
Gorachand Sircar v. Ram Narain 127, 329, 847, 855
Gorakh Babaji v. Vithal Narayan .. 639
Gordon v. Gordon 702
Gordon Stuart & Co v. Beejoy Gobind 291
Gore v. Gibson 213
Goreebollah Sircar v Boyd .. 235
Goreti Subbarow v Virgonda Narasimhamon 600
Goriboolla Kazee v. Gooroodas Roy 460, 461, 471
Gorrison v. Perrin 624
Goshain Tota v Rajah Rickmunee .. 917, 918, 919, 922
Goss v Lord Nugent .. . 590
Goss v Quinton 488
Goss v. Watlington . . 231
Gossain Dass v. Siroo Koomaree 649, 665
Gossain Rambharti v Gosavi Ishvarbharti 644
Gour Huri v Amirunessa Khatoon 794
Gour Lall v Mohesh Narain 213, 222
Gour Lall v Rameswar Bhumik 788
Gour Monee v Huree Kishore . 358
Gour Monee v. Krishna Chunder . 776
Gour Paroy v Woma Soonduree 548, 550, 690
Gour Sundar v Hem Chunder . 237
Gour Surun v Kanhya Singh .. 482
Goura Chandra v Secretary of State 769
Gouree Narain v. Madhoosoodun Dutt .. . 640
Gouree Dass v Jagunnath Roy 785, 791
Government v Gridharee Lall .. 788
Govinda v Josha Premaji 634, 635
Govinda Kuar v. Lala Kishun 772, 773
Govindasami v. Kuppusami .. 681
Govind Atmaram v Santai .. 635
Govinda Priya v. Ratan Dhupi . 662
Govindji Jhuver v. Chhotalal Velsi 174, 224
Govindrav Deshmukh v Ragho Deshmukh 355
Govind Vaman v. Sakharam Ramchandra 752
Gowree Narain v. Modhoosoodun Dutt 640
Gown Patra v. Reiley 662

PAGE.

Grace v. Baynton 248
Grant v. Bynath Tewaree .. 548
Grant v. Maddox 624
Grant v. Norway .. . 775
Grant v. Robinson 743
Gravenor v. Woodhouse .. 788, 792
Graves v. Key .. 754, 776
Gray v. Warner 696
Great Western Railway Co. v. McCarty 698
Great Western Railway Co. v. Wilkis 225, 226
Greaves v Greenwood .. . 732
Green v New River Co. . .. 386
Green's Settlements, In re .. 682
Greender Chunder v. Mackintosh . 198
Greender Chunder v Troyloko Nauth 749
Greenough v. Eccles .. 881, 882, 883
Greenough v. Gaskell 799, 813, 814, 816, 817, 818
Greenshields v. Henderson .. 732
Greensdale v. Dare .. 197, 400
Greesh Chunder v Musst. Bhuggobutty 698
Gregg v. Wells .. 754, 767, 778
Gregory v. Doidge . .. 792
Gregory v. Dooley Chund 329, 336
Gregory v Howard .. 222, 249
Gregory v. Molesworth .. . 372
Grellier v Neale .. . 739
Grey v. Redman 314
Gridhar Hari v. Kalikant Roy 678, 679
Gridhari Lall v. Govt of Bengal . 656
Griffin v Brown 387
Griffin v. Mason .. . 738
Griffith v Hughes 762
Grish Chander v. Iswar Chandra 139, 291, 779, 781
Grish Chunder v Mohesh Chunder .. 645
Grish Chunder v. R. .. 806, 807
Grish Chunder v Soshi Shikhareshwar 571
Grish Chunder v. Bhagwan Chunder 789
Guardhouse v Blackburn . 595
Gudadhur Banerjee v. Tara Chand Banerjee 358, 361
Gudadhur Paul v. Bhyrub Chunder 549
Guddalur Ruthna v Kunnatur Arumuga .. 576, 577, 578, 598, 599
Gugden v. Bisett 598
Gujjo Koer v Aalay Ahmed .. 347
Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall 7, 101, 102, 103, 128, 133, 163, 164, 166, 168, 170, 171, 173, 176, 177, 181, 183, 317, 382, 385, 386, 417

PAGE.

Gulamali v Miyabhai 680
Gully v Bp of Exeter 489
Gulzar Ali v Feda Ali . .. 763
Gulzari Mal v. Madho Ram .. 238
Gummanee Kazee v Hurryhur Mukerjee 672
Guman Gallubhai v Sorabji Burjorji 458
Gumani Singh v. Chakkar Singh .. 638
Gunga Bishen v Ram Gut .. 788
Gungadhur Singh v. Bimola Dassee 671
Gunga Gobind v Bhopal Chunder .. 667
Gungamala Chowdhrain v Madhub Chunder . .. 639
Gungamoyee Debi v Apurba Chandra 353
Gunga Narain v Radhika Mohun .. 537
Gunga Narain Gupta v. Tiluckram Chowdhry . .. 646
Gunga Pershad v Inderjit Singh 343, 499
Gunga Pershad v. Gogun Singh . 214
Gunga Pershad v Ramphul Sahoo 733
Gungaram Ghose v Kalipado Ghose 990
Gunga Sahai v Lekhraj Singh 106
Gunindra Prasad v Bainjath Singh 754
Gunjra Kuar v Ablakh Pande . 351
Gunnesh Dutt v Mugneeram Chowdhry 840
Gunnesh Pattro v Ram Nidhee 390
Gupta Narain v Bijoya Sundari . 990
Gurdayal Mal v Jhandu Mal 162, 184, 383
Gureebullah Sirkar v Mohun Lall .. 101
Gurney v Gurney . .. 702
Gurudas Day v Sambhu Nath . 550
Gurulingaswami v. Ramalakshmamma 754, 773
Gurunath Shrinivas v Chenbasappa 990
Gurusami Chetti v Sadasiva Chetti 658
Gurusami Sastrial v. Ganapathia . 659
Gutee Koiburto v Bhukut Koiburto 163, 171
Gutty v. Fry 986
Gya Singh v. Mohamed Soliman 807, 910
Gyan Chunder v Durga Churn .. 752

H

Habi Bullah v. R. 836
Hadley v. Baxendale .. 161
Hadley v Carter 150
Haidar Ali v Abru Mia 827
Haider Khan v Secretary of State for India in Council .. 686, 740
Haigh v Brooks 736
Haimun Chull v. Koomar Gunesheam 741
Haines v. Guthrie 321
Hait Singh v. Dabia Singh .. 651

	PAGE.
Haji v Gohna	687, 693
Haji Khan v. Baldeo Dass ..	634
Haji Mahomed v. E. Spinner & Co.	144, 604, 624
Haji Sahoo v. Ayesha Bai ..	159
Hakim Khan v. Gool Khan ..	723
Hakim Muhammad v. Najeban	696, 698
Hakiman v. R	210, 290
Hales v. Kerr	136, 205
Hall v. Bainbridge . .	738
Hall v. Gazenove	575
Hall v. Hall	478
Hall v. Venkata Krishna . .	667
Haller v. Worman .	147, 230, 455
Halliday v. Holgate .	896
Hallmark's case . .	197
Hamilton v Nott ..	819
Hamilton v Tennant	137
Hamlin v. G. N. R. Co. .	161
Hammond v. Bradstreet	318, 326
Hampden v. Wallis ..	148, 149
Hanmantrao v. Secy. of State for India . ..	460, 692
Hanooman Prosad v. Musst Babooe	653, 654, 747, 775
Hanson v. Parker .	233
Hanuman Dat v. Assadula	769
Hanuman Dutt v. Kishen Kishore .	658
Hanuman Kamat v Dowlut Mundar . .	658
Hanuman Singh v Nanak Chand	657, 658
Hara Coomer v. Doorgamoni	380
Haradhun Roy v. Hulodhur Chunder .	789
Harak Chand v Bishnu Chandra	130, 590, 599
Haran Chunder v Russick Chunder	988
Haranand Roy v Ram Gopal	461, 474, 482, 498, 514, 521
Haranund Roy v Chettangia Ram	541
Hara Sundari v. Kumar Dukhinessur	752
Harbans v. R .	142
Harbans Lal v Maharajah of Benares . .	662
Harbuns Sahai v Bhairo Pershad	5
Harding v Crethorne	144, 197
Harding v Jones .	249
Harding v. Williams .	995
Hardwick v Coleman	193
Hardy's trial .	880
Hareehur Majoomdar v Churn Majhee .. .	7, 128
Hargrave v Hargrave .	423, 701
Hari v Lakshman . ..	769
Hari Chintaman v. Moro Lakshman	306, 309, 314, 398, 548, 549, 682, 685
Hari Churn Singh v R.	564
Hari Das v. Ghansam Naram ..	663
Harikishore Mitra v. Abdul Baki	111, 807
Hari Khardu v. Dhondi Nath ..	686
Hari Mohun v. Krishna Mohun ..	604
Hari Mohun v. Kissen Sundari ..	645
Hari Narayan v. Ganpatrav Daji ..	749
Harish Chandra v. Tara Chand ..	330
Harish Chandra v Prosunno Coomar .. .	213, 222
Harish Chunder v. Nishi Kanta ..	667
Harjivan v Shivram . ..	667
Harnath Pershad v. Mandal Dass ..	383
Harok Chand v. Bishun Chandra	574
Haroprosad v. Sheo Dayal	115, 806
Harratt v. Wise .	197, 364
Harripria Debi v Rukmini Debi	481, 490
Harris, Re . .	248
Harris v Brown .	623
Harris v. G W. R Co . .	698
Harris v Knight .	490, 736
Harris v Rickett	576, 578
Harrison v Barton .	144
Harrison v Mayor	700, 730
Harrod v Harrod	700, 730
Harshankar Partab Singh v. Lal Raghuraj Singh ..	722
Hart v Hart	489, 544, 738
Hart v Newman ..	214
Hartley v Wilkinson . .	575
Harvey v Croydon Union .	454
Harvey v. Farnie	381
Harvey v Francis .	788
Hasaji v Dhondiram	847
Hasha Khand v Jesha Pemaji .	580
Haskins v Warren	420
Haslam v Hall.	819, 821
Hathaway v Haskell .	232
Hatim v R .	449, 467
Hawke, Re .	485
Hawkes v Drager	704
Hawkes v Salter ..	207
Hawkins, Re ..	391
Hawkins v Warre .	560, 562
Hay v Gordon	224
Haynes v McDermott .	508
Hayslep v Gymer ..	148
Hayward v Stephens . ..	539
Head v Head . .	699, 700, 702
Heane v Rogers	244, 246, 291, 754
Heath v. Crealock	763
Hebbard v. Knight .	824

Page

Hedgley v. Holt 759
Heeralall Bukshee v. Rajkishore . 786
Heera Lall v. Barkunnissa Beebee 660
Heera Lall v. Petumber Mundal . 671
Heinger v. Droy .. 318, 381
Helan Dasi v. Durga Das Mundali 655, 757
Helena, The 378
Hellier v. Silleox 780
Hemanta Kumari Debi v. Jogendro Nath Roy .. . 665
Hem Chandra v. Kali Prosanno 244, 306, 313, 634, 715
Hem Chunder v. Kally Churn 580, 581, 582 584
Hem Coomaree v. R . .. 840
Hem Lotta v. Sreedhone Barooa 713
Hemnath Rai v. Janke Rai 636, 648
Henderson, In the goods of 447, 534, 535
Henderson v. Carbondale Coal Co . 739
Henderson & Co. v. Williams . 797
Henman v. Lester .. 246, 873
Hennessy v. Wright 5, 799, 809, 810, 811, 906
Henry Coxon, The 308
Henry Francis Blanford, In the goods of 536
Henry Packer, In the goods of .. 535
Henry v. Leigh 483
Henry v. Marquis of Westmeath . 539
Heretnbdhev Dharmidhardev v. Kashinath Bhaskar 600
Hetherington v. Kemp 205, 307
Het Lall Roy, In re 806
Hey v. Moorhouse . . 562
Heyworth v. Knight 568
Hibberd v. Knight .. 484, 488
Hicks v. Thompson 248
Hidayut Oollah v. Rai Jan Khanum 729
Higgins v. Nobin Chunder .. 555
Higgins v. Senior .. . 571
Higham v. Ridgeway 309, 311, 313, 315
Hilbourn v. Fogg 791
Hill v. Campbell . .. 823
Hill v. Clarke 593
Hill v. Dolt 838
Hill v. Manchester, etc., Co .. 232
Hill v. Wilson 836
Hills v. Ishore Ghose 449
Himmat Sahai v. Llewhellen .. 597
Hira Lal v. Datadin 987
Hira Lal v. Ganesh Prasad 490, 496
Hira Lal v. Saheb Jan .. . 804
Hira Lal v. A. Hills 169, 170, 171, 172
Hiran Miya, In the matter of 262, 263, 266
Hirbai v. Gorbai 644

Page

Hitchins v. Basset 675
Hitchman v. Waltman .. 787
Hoare v. Coryton 738
Hoare v. Graham 571
Hodges v. London Delhi Bank .. 698
Hodgson, In re 836
Hodsoll v. Taylor 161
Hoghton v. Hoghton 248
Holbard v. Stephens . .. 560
Holcombe v. Hewson . .. 136
Holding v. Elliott . .. 775
Holdsworth v. Dinsdale . .. 249
Hollingham v. Head 136, 137, 201, 711
Holloway, Re . .. 822
Holmes v. Mathews .. 580
Holt Ex parte .. 249
Holt & Co v. Collyer .. 621
Holt v. Jesse . 752
Holt v. Squire . .. 229
Home v. Bentinck . 810, 811
Honapa v. Narsapa . 772, 780
Hood v. Lady Beauchamp .. 321
Hoperaft v. Keys . 792
Hope v. Hope . . 295
Hope v. Liddell . .. 825
Horendra Narain v. Chandra Kanta 502
Hormasji Karsetji v. Pedder .. 450
Hormusji v. Baidhanbaiji . 379
Horne v. Mackenzie 902
Hossain Ali v. Abid Ali . 452
Hossein Buksh v. R 116, 131, 825
Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank .. 761
Houlston v. Smyth .. . 738
How v. Hall . 563
Howard v. Hudson 765, 770, 782
Howard v. Wilson .. . 106
Howe v. Malkin .. 146, 236, 314
Howland Will case 467
Hridoy Nath v. Moholutnissa Bibee 650
Huckvale, In re 739
Huddleston v. Briscoe 991
Hudson v. Parker 503
Hudson v. Roberts 188
Huffer v. Allen .. 389, 392
Hughes v. Cornelius 378
Hughes v. Hughes 917
Hughes v. Secretary of State for India 738
Hughes v. Thorpe . .. 212
Hughli v. Drachenfels 306
Huguenin v. Basely .. 695, 699
Hukum Chand v. Hiralal . 489
Hulodhur Roy v. Jupoo Nath .. 223
Humfrey v. Dall 602

PAGE.

Hungate v. Gascoigne 423
Hunooman Persad v. Munraj Kunwaree .. 554, 655, 679
Hunooman Pershad Panday's case 655
Hunsa Koer v. Sheo Gobind 163, 171, 292
Hunsraj Purmanand v. Ruttonji Walji 795
Hunt v Hort .. 611
Hunt v. Livermore .. 575
Hunter v. Leathley .. . 825
Huntingford v. Massey 200
Huntley v. Donovan . . 355
Hurdey Narain v. Rooder Perkash 659
Hur Dyal v. Heeralall . .. 454
Hur Dyal v. Roy Kristo 635, 655
Hureehur Mookerjee v. Raj Kishen Mookerjee . 751
Hureehur Mozoomdar v Churn Majbee . 7, 514, 520
Huri Ram v. Bhikari Roy 672, 685
Huri Ram v. Raj Coomar 637, 985
Hurrish Chunder v Prosunno Coomar 213, 222, 477, 489, 491, 492, 493, 514, 541
Hurish Chunder v Tara Chand 330
Hurjee Mull v. Imam Ali. . 118
Huronath Sircar v. Preonath Sircar 106, 213, 222, 350
Hurpurshad v. Sheo Dyal 164, 184
Hurrichurn Bose v. Monindra Nath 471
Hurro Chunder, Re . 803, 806, 807
Hurrochunder v. Shooro Dhonee . 99
Hurro Dyal v Mahomed Ghazi 668, 679, 714
Hurronath Mullick v. Nittanund Mullick 169, 183, 325, 327, 328
Hurro Soondery, In re . .. 840
Hurry Churn v R . 449, 467, 716
Hurryhur Mookerjee v Abbas Ally 671
Hurryhur Mookhopadya v Madub Chunder . . 660
Hurry Sunkur v Kali Coomar 771
Hussey v Horne Payne . 561
Hutcheson v Mannington 452, 539
Hutcheson v Smith . . 232
Hutchins v Scott .. 681
Hutchinson v Barnard . .. 332
Hutton v Warren . .. 602
Hyde v Palmer . 145, 146
Hyder Hossain v. Mahomed Hossain 723

I

Iftikarunissa Begum v. Amjad Ali . 735
Iggulden v May .. 144, 556
Ina Sheikh v. R. .. 708, 709

PAGE.

Inayet Husen v. Ali Husen 689, 693
Incledon v. Berry 389
Indayet v. Lal Chand 594
Inderan Valungypuly v. Ramaswamy 731
Inder Narain v. Mahomed Nazirooddeen .. 165, 383
Indur Chandra v Lachmi Bibi .. 604
Ingham v. Primrose 796
Ingram v. Lea 562
Ings' Trial 860
Innasimuthu v Upakarthu Dayan 693
Iqbal Husen v. Nand Kishore .. 689
Ireland v. Livingstone 736
Irish Society v Derry 917
Isab Mandal v R. 352
Isac Mohammed v. Bai Fatma .. 681
Ishan Chandra Mitter v Ramrangan Chuckerbutty .. 662, 668
Ishan Chundra v R . 708, 828, 829
Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub 237, 238, 245
Ishan Chunder v. Bhyrub Chunder 481
Ishan Chunder v Haran Sirdar 217, 340, 344
Ishan Chunder v. Ram Lochun 309, 688
Ishan Muchi v R. .. . 708
Isharmal v Tejram Jagrup .. 984
Ishore Ghose v Hills . . 449
Ishri Prasad v Lalji Jas . 451, 547, 722
Ishur Chunder v Doyamoy Debea . 566
Ismail Ariff v Mahomed Gous 672, 691
Ismail Khan v Aghore Nath 662, 742
Ismail Khan v Broughton 742, 769
Ismail Khan v Fidayutunissa . 729
Ismail Khan v Joygoon Bibee 743, 769
Ismail Khan v Mrinmoye Dassi .. 742
Ismail Mussajee v Hafiz Boo 580, 696, 698
Isri Singh v Gunga . . 350
Issen Meah v Kalarani Chunder . 994
Issur Chunder v Nobodeep Chunder 453
Issur Chunder v Russeek Lall .. 127
Iswar Chundra, In the matter of . 105
Ittapan v. Nanu . .. 234

J

Jacker v I. C Co . .. 914
Jackson, In re . .. 663
Jackson v Irwin . .. 712
Jackson v Thomason .. 881, 890
Jackson v Ward 663
Jackson v. Wood 387
Jacob v. Lee 490
Jacob v. Lindsay .. . 570
Jacobs v. Humphrey 241

PAGE.

Jadabram Dey v Bulloram Dey 669, 743, 744, 808, 907
Jadoomoney Dassee v Gungadhur Seal 651
Jadu Lal Sahu v. Janki Koer .. 445
Jadubar Singh v. Sheo Saran .. 386
Jadunath v. Ramsoondur .. 690
Jadu Nath v. Rup Lal 772
Jadu Rai v Bhubotaran Nundy 127, 568, 588, 624, 846
Jafar Hasain v Mashuq Ali .. 665
Jafar Husen v. Ranjit Singh 554, 555
Jagadindra Nath v. Secretary of State for India .. 359, 361, 743
Jagannadha Narayana v Pedda Pakir . 742
Jagan Nath v. Mannu Lall .. 227
Jagannatha v Ganga Reddi .. 769
Jagannath Prasad v. Runjit Singh . 380
Jagar Nath Singh v Lalta Prasad .. 760
Jagat Mohini v Rakhal Dass . 626
Jagat Pal v. Jageshar Baksh 301, 308, 316, 322, 324
Jaggers v. Binnings . . 232
Jaggun Lall, In the matter of . 352
Jagjivandas v Bai Amba 693
Jagobhai Lalubhai v Vij Bhukandas 657
Jagun Koer v Raghoo Nundun . 342
Jai Narayan v. Kadumbini Dasi 785, 786
Jai Narayan v R .. 252, 564
Jamulla Sheikh v Inu Khan . 173
Jainutulla v Ramani Kant 172, 182
Jaipal Gir v Dharmapala . .. 450
Jakaria v. Haji Kasim .. . 906
Jakir Ali v Raj Chunder 447, 516, 520, 523
Jambu Ramaswamy v. Sundaraja Chetty 710
Jameela Khaton v Pagul Ram .. 164
James v Biddington 161
James v. Bion 144
James v. Williams 987
James Pegredo v. Mahomed Moddessur 482
Jameson, In re 606
Jamna v. Nain Sukh . 657, 658
Jamnadas v. Srinath Roy .. 562
Jamsedji Sorabji v Lakshmiram Rajaram 785
Jamsetji N Tata v Kashinath 657, 659
Jamaheer Sirdar, In re 677
Janaki Ammal v Kamalathammal. 751, 752, 753, 773
Janan Chowdhry v Doolar Chowdhry 291
Janardan v Anant .. . 554
Jangi Nath v. Janki Nath .. 752
Janki v. Bhairon 554
Janki Pershad v Ulfat Ali .. 238
Janmajay Mazumdar v Keshab Lal 682
Janokee Dassee v Kisto Komul 648, 723
Janoki Debi v. Gopal Acharjia .. 656
Jarao Kumari v Lalonmoni .. 537
Jarrett v. Kennedy .. 735
Jarrett v Leonard .. 241
Jasimuddin Biswas v. Bhuban Jelini 990
Jaswant Sing v Sheonarain Lal 340, 341, 509
Jayne v. Price . 727
Jayubunnissa Bibi v Kuwar Sham 476
Jehangir v Secretary of State . 810
Jenkins v Bushby 819, 823
Jervis v Berridge . 567
Jesingbhai v Hataji 792
Jesus Coll v Gibbs . 485
Jeswunt Singjee v Jet Singjee 700, 729, 842
Jethabai Duvaljee v Gudhar .. 990
Jethabhai v Nathabhai 694, 764, 780, 781
Jetha Parkha v Ram Chandra .. 116
Jethibai v Ramchandra Narottam 985
Jew v Wood . 792
Jewell v Parr 112
Jhama v Deobux . 713
Jhinguri Tewari v Durga 779, 781
Jhubboo Mahton, In the matter of the petition of 856, 896, 900, 903
Jiamutullah Sirdar v Romani Kant 168
Jibanti Nath v Shib Nath 688
Jivandas Keshavji v Framji Nanabhai 449, 559 570
Jnan Chowdhry v Deolar Chowdhry 235
Jnanendra Mohan v. Gopal Dass . 600
Jodunath Roy v Raja Buroda . 216
Jogendro Narain v. Banki Sing .. 664
Jogendra Nath v Sangap Garo .. 831
Jogendra Nath Rai v. Baladeo Das.. 666
Jogendro Chunder v Dwarka Nath 205, 207
Jogendro Deb v Funindro Deb .. 377
Jogendro Nath v. Nitai Churn 506, 739
Jogessur Singh v Bycunt Nath .. 537
Jogini Mohun v Bhoot Nath 668, 757
John Eliot, In the goods of . 534
John Kerr v. Nuzzur Mahomed and Azeem Serang .. . 538
Jogun Koer v. Raghoonundon Lal 723
Joharmal v. Jejram Jagrup .. 984
Johnson v. Gibson 368
Johnson v Kershaw 852
Johnson v Lawson 322

PAGE.

Johnson v. Pye 750
Johnson v Tucker 816
Johnstone v. Marks 759
Johnstone v. Todd .. 114, 859
Jolly v. Arbuthnot 785
Jolly v. Rees 741
Jolly v. Taylor 563
Jolly v. Young 624
Joloke Singh v. Gundar Singh .. 672
Jones v. Edwards 496
Jones v. Godrich .. 673, 818
Jones v. Gordon 710
Jones v Howell 560
Jones v. James .. 428, 434
Jones v. Jones .. . 676, 732, 882
Jones v. Morrell . .. 148
Jones v. Smith . .. 198, 199
Jones v. Williams 159, 161, 162, 170, 186
Joogul Kishore v Kalee Churn .. 658
Joomna Pershad v. Joyram Lall .. 646
Joorub Haji v Kemp . .. 513
Jordan v. Money .. 249, 781
Joshua v Alliance Bank of Simla 198, 199
Jotadhari Lal v Raghubir Pershad 658
Jotendra Mohun v. Ganendramohun Tagore .. . 229, 449, 450
Jotendra Mohun v Ranee Brijo .. 365
Jowala Buksh v Dhurum Singh . 685
Joy Chandra Bandopadhya v Srinath Chattopadhya .. . 763
Joy Chandra v Sreenath Chatterjee 764
Joy Coomar v. Bundhoolal 111, 112, 114
Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narayan 164, 185
Joy Kissen, In the matter of .. 924
Joykissen Mookerjee v Pearee Mohun 661
Joy Lall v. Gossain Bhoobun . 655
Joyram v Narayan 770
Joytara Dassee v Mahomed Mobaruck 115, 358, 360, 688
Judge v Cox . . 188
Judoonath v Raja Burodakanto 214, 217
Judoonath Mullick v. Kalee Kisto. 639
Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath Dutt 786
Jugal Kishore v. Fakhr-ud-din . 565
Jugdanund Misser v. Nerghan Singh 597, 598, 597
Jugdel Narain v Lalla Ram . 654
Jugdish Chunder v Chowdhry Zuhoor-ul-Huq 358
Juggernath Sew v Ram Dyal . 591
Juggessur Buttobyal v. Roodro Narayan 655
Juggessuree Debia v Gudadhur Banerjee 563
Juggeswar Mookerjee v. Gopee Kishen 352
Juggobundhu Mitter v. Purnanund Gossami 669
Juggobundhu Mukerjee v. Ram Chunder 667
Juggobundu Chatterjee v. Watson & Co. 752
Juggodanund Misser v. Hamid Russool 666
Juggomohun Ghose v Kaisreechund 602
Juggomohun Ghose v. Manick Chund 164, 165, 186
Juggurnath Sahoo v Syund Shah .. 145
Juggun Lall, In the matter of .. 343
Juggut Chunder v Bhugwan Chunder 641, 670
Juggut Mohinee v Dwarka Nath .. 445
Jugmohandas v. Mangaldas 164, 183, 185, 417
Jugodumba Chowdhrain v. Ram Chunder 665
Jugul Kishori v Anunda Lal . 230
Julius v. Bishop of Oxford .. 102
Jumant Ali v Chutturdharee Sahee 744
Jumna Das v Srinath Roy 367, 368, 377
Jumoona Pershad v Deg Narain . 658
Junmajoy Mullick v Dwarkanath Mytee . 167, 358, 362, 536
Jussoondah v Ajodhia Pershad .. 723

K

Kachali Hari v R . 526, 527, 714
Kachubai bin Gulabchand v Krishnabaikom Babaji . .. 560
Kader Moideen v. Nepean .. 580
Kadumbini Dassi v Kumudini Dasi 154
Kahl v Jansen 225, 226
Kaikhusru Noroji v Jehangir .. 189
Kailasa Padiachi v. Ponnukannu . 231
Kailash Chandra v Harish Chunder 595
Kailash Chunder v Ram Lall . 111
Kain v. Farrer . . . 906
Kaines v Knightly . . 571
Kalachand Sircar v. R. .. . 884
Kalappa v. Shivaya . . 772
Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh .. 743
Kalee Churn v Banshee Mohun .. 655
Kalee Churn v Bengal Coal Co. .. 225
Kalee Doss v. Tara Chand .. 776
Kaleekanund Bhattacharjee v. Gireebala Dabia .. 453, 454
Kalee Koomar v. Gunga Narain .. 681
Kalee Kumar v Maharaja of Burdwan 636

PAGE.

Kripamoyi Dabia v. Durga Govind 630, 661
Krishna v. Vasudev .. 654, 724
Krishna Behari v Brojeswari Chowdhranee .. . 749
Krishnabhupati v. Ramamurti 239, 393, 395
Krishnabhupati Devu v Vikrama Devu 783
Krishna Chandra Saha v Bhairab Chandra Saha .. 239
Krishnacharya v. Lingawa . 358
Krishnaji v Moro . .. 774
Krishnaji v Rajmal .. 454, 557, 987
Krishnaji v. Wamanji . .. 646
Krishnaji Ramchandra v Antaji Pandurang . . 789
Krishna Kishori v Kishori Lall 477 481, 489, 490, 492, 514, 521
Krishna Kanta v Bidya Sundaree . . . 106
Krishna Lall v Radha Krishna . 667
Krishnama Chariar v Narasimha Chariar . .. 118
Krishnamarazu v Manuju 571, 589
Krishnarav Yashvant v Vasudev Apaji . . 692
Krishnasami Ayyangar v Rajagopala 170, 176, 214, 229, 235, 351 385 387
Krishnasami Pillai v Rangasami Chetty . 987
Krishno Chunder v Meer Sajdar 362
Krishno Monee v R 252
Kristnappa Chetty v Ramasawmy Iyer . . 651
Kristo Indro v Huromonee Dassee 753
Kristo Moni v Secy. of State 361, 782, 785
Kristo Nath v T F. Brown 447, 539
Kristo Prea v. Puddo Lochun . 748
Kubeerooddeen v Jogul Shaha .. 646
Kullan v R. 802
Kulum Mundul v. Bhowaniprosad 835, 836
Kultoo Mahomed v. Hurdev Doss 460
Kumar Saradindu v Dhirendra Kant Roy 640
Kumara v. Srinivasa 594
Kumarasami v Pala Nagappa .. 227
Kumara Upendra v Nobin Krishna 722
Kumaru Reddi v. Nagayasami Tham- 184
K er v. Rujjub Ali 491
Vayoth Palliyil 482, 489, 492
Sam- .. 786

PAGE.

Kurali Prasad v Anantaram Hajra 509
Kurtz v Spence 248
Kuru Chaubi v Janki Persad .. 756
Kusum Kumari v Satya Ranjan . 656
Kuthupermal Rajah v Secretary of State for India 786
Kutti Mannadiyar v Payanu Muthan .. 651
Kuvarbai v Mir Alam . .. 776
Kuverji v. Babai . 757, 781

L

Lacey (in re) . 235
Lachho v Har Sahai 691, 693
Lachman Das v Dipchand . 990
Lachman Rai v Akbar Khan 162, 164, 383
Lachman Singh v Tansukh .. 223
Lachmeedhur v Rughoobur .. 163
Lachmi Narain v Raja Partab 443, 448, 450, 452, 705
Lacho Bibi v Gopi Narain 673, 674
Lady Dartmouth v Roberts . 518
Lady Ivy's Case .. 158
Lafone v Falkland Islands Co . 815
Lakhee Kowar v Hari Krishna . 741
Lakhi Chundra v Kali Kumar .. 169
Lakhoo Khan v Wise 789
Lakshman v. Amrit 131, 159, 168, 174, 176, 183, 385
Lakshman Bhaukhopkar v. Radhabai 652
Lakshman Dada Naik v. Ram Chandra Dada Naik .. 749, 776
Lakshman v Damodar . .. 601
Lakshman v. Jamnabai 649
Lakshmamma v. Kameswara 989, 991
Lakshmibai v. Ganput 773
Lakshmibai v. Vithal Ramchandra 692
Lal Bahadur v Kanhaiya Lal .. 723
Lala v. Hira Singh .. 164 383
Lala Beni v. Kundan Lal .. 769
Lala Bansidai v Govt of Bengal .. 919
Lal Achal v. Raja Kazim .. 641
Lala Himmat v Llewhellen 592, 594, 597
Lala Jha v. Musst Bibee .. 114
Lala Lakhmi v. Sayed Haider 109, 124, 341, 641
Lala Muddun v Khikhinda Koer .. 774
Lala Narain v. Lala Ramanuj .. 469
Lala Parbhu v Mylne .. 237, 238, 239
Lala Ranglal v. Deonarayan Tewary 171
Lala Suraj v. Golab Chand .. 8
Lalchand v. R 564
Lalit Mohan Singh v. Chukkun Lal Roy 621
Laljee Sahoy v. Fakeer Chand .. 658

PAGE.

Johnson v. Pye 759
Johnson v. Tucker 816
Johnstone v. Marks 759
Johnstone v. Todd .. 114, 859
Jolly v Arbuthnot 785
Jolly v. Rees 741
Jolly v. Taylor 563
Jolly v. Young 624
Joloke Singh v. Gundar Singh .. 672
Jones v. Edwards 496
Jones v. Godrich .. 673, 818
Jones v. Gordon . .. 710
Jones v. Howell 560
Jones v. James .. 428, 434
Jones v. Jones .. . 676, 732, 882
Jones v. Morrell 148
Jones v. Smith 198, 199
Jones v. Williams 159, 161, 162, 170, 186
Joogul Kishore v. Kalee Churn .. 658
Joomna Pershad v. Joyram Lall .. 646
Joorub Haji v Kemp 513
Jordan v. Money .. 249, 781
Joshua v Alliance Bank of Simla 198, 199
Jotadhari Lal v Raghubir Pershad 658
Jotendra Mohun v. Ganendramohun Tagore 229, 449, 450
Jotendra Mohun v Ranee Brijo .. 365
Jowala Buksh v. Dhurum Singh . 685
Joy Chandra Bandopadhya v. Srinath Chattopadhya .. . 763
Joy Chandra v. Sreenath Chatterjee 764
Joy Coomar v Bundhoolal 111, 112, 114
Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narayan 164, 185
Joy Kissen, In the matter of .. 924
Joykissen Mookerjee v. Pearee Mohun 661
Joy Lall v. Gossain Bhoobun . 655
Joyram v Narayan 770
Joytara Dassee v Mahomed Mobaruck .. 115, 358, 360, 688
Judge v. Cox . . 188
Judoonath v Raja Burodakanto 214, 217
Judoonath Mullick v. Kalee Kisto. 639
Judoonath Paul v Prosunnonath Dutt 786
Jugal Kishore v Fakhr-ud-din 565
Jugdanund Misser v Nerghan Singh 597, 598, 597
Jugdel Narain v Lalla Ram . 654
Jugdish Chunder v Chowdhry Zuhoor-ul-Huq 358
Juggernath Sew v. Ram Dyal .. 591
Juggessur Buttobyal v Roodro Narayan 655
Juggessuree Debia v Gudadhur Banerjee 563

PAGE.

Juggeswar Mookerjee v. Gopee Kishen 352
Juggobundhu Mitter v. Purnanund Gossami 669
Juggobundhu Mukerjee v. Ram Chunder 667
Juggobundu Chatterjee v. Watson & Co. 752
Juggodanund Misser v. Hamid Russool 666
Juggomohun Ghose v. Kaisreechund 602
Juggomohun Ghose v. Manick Chund 164, 165, 186
Juggurnath Sahoo v. Syund Shah .. 145
Juggun Lall, In the matter of .. 343
Juggut Chunder v Bhugwan Chunder 641, 670
Juggut Mohinee v. Dwarka Nath .. 445
Jugmohandas v Mangaldas 164, 183, 185, 417
Jugodumba Chowdhrain v Ram Chunder 665
Jugul Kishori v Anunda Lal .. 230
Julius v Bishop of Oxford . 102
Jumant Ali v. Chutturdharee Sahee 744
Jumna Das v Srinath Roy 567, 568, 577
Jumoona Pershad v Deg Narain .. 658
Junmajoy Mullick v. Dwarkanath Mytee . 167, 358, 362, 536
Jussoondah v Ajodhia Pershad .. 723

K

Kachali Hari v. R .. 526, 527, 714
Kachubai bin Gulabchand v. Krishnabaikom Babaji . .. 560
Kader Moideen v Nepean .. 580
Kadumbini Dassi v Kumudini Dasi 154
Kahl v Jansen . 225, 226
Kaikhusru Noroji v. Jehangir .. 189
Kailasa Padiachi v. Ponnukannu . 231
Kailash Chandra v Harish Chunder 595
Kailash Chunder v Ram Lall . 111
Kain v. Farrer 906
Kaines v. Knightly . . 571
Kalachand Sircar v R. .. . 884
Kalappa v Shivaya . .. 772
Kalee Chunder v. Adoo Sheikh .. 743
Kalee Churn v. Banshee Mohun — 655
Kalee Churn v. Bengal Coal Co ..
Kalee Doss v Tara Chand ..
Kaleekanund Bhattacharjee v. Gireebala Dabia .. 453,
Kalee Koomar v Gunga Narain ..
Kalee Kumar v. Maharaja of Burdwan .. .. ..

PAGE.

Kalee Natain v. Anund Moyee 685, 693
Kaleenath Kur v. Doyal Kristo 771, 772
Kaleepershad Tewaree v. Raja Sahib Prahlad 641
Kalian Dass v. Bhagirathi .. 383
Kalian Singh v Maharaja .. 665
Kali Chandra v. Shib Chandra 460, 875
Kali Charan v. Ram Chandra 590, 900, 990
Kali Charan v Rasik Lal .. 772
Kali Churn, In the matter of the petition of 677, 678, 888
Kali Churn v. Nobo Kristo .. 985
Kali Coomar v Ram Dass .. 652
Kalidas v. Ishan Chunder .. 676
Kalidhun Chuttapadhya v Shiba Nath 163
Kali Dutt v. Abdul Ali 223
Kali Kishore v. Bhusan Chunder . 656
Kali Kissor v Gopi Mohan 231, 232
Kali Krishna v. Secretary of State. 372
Kalil Munda v. R. . . 155
Kalka Parshad v Kanhaya Singh .. 390
Kalka Prasad v. Mathura Prasad . 325
Kallianji v Bezangi . .. 649
Kallonass v. Gunga Gobind .. 806
Kally Churn v. Secy. of State 666 712
Kally Dass v. Gobind Chunder .. 771
Kally Nath v. Rajeeblochun .. 752
Kamala Prasad v. Sital Prasad 828, 831, 835
Kameshar Prasad v Bhikan Natain 101
Kameshwar Persbad v. Amanutulla .. 131, 480, 488, 494, 813
Kameshwar Prasad v. Ram Bahadur 653, 654
Kameshwar Persad v Rajkumari Rutton 373
Kamini Sundari v. Kali Prosunno .. 606
Kampilikaribsavappa v. Somasumuddiram 458
Kanai Lall v. Kamini Debi 696, 697
Kanailal Khan v. Soshi Bhoosan .. 751
Kanayalal v. Pyarabai .. 477
Kanhai Lall v Suraj Kunwar .. 375
Kanhaya Lall v Radha Churn 170, 377, 378, 381
Kanhaya Lal v. Stowell 986
Kanhai Lall v Debidas .. 648, 651
Kanhai Chand v Ram Chunder 106, 115
Kannamal v. Virasami .. 773
Kanshi Ram v. Badda .. 753, 763
Kanto Prasad v Jagat Chandra 130, 357, 358, 536, 537
Karali Charan v. Mahtab Chandra.. 779
Karamali v Rahimbhoy .. 389
Karampalli v. Thekku 600

PAGE.

Karim Khatav v. Pardhan Manji .. 165
Karunakar Mahati v Nilhardo Chowdhry 741
Karuppa Goundan v Thoppala Goundan .. 566, 618
Karupan v Ramasami . .. 752
Kasan Singh v Bhup Singh .. 658
Kashaba v Chandrabhagabai .. 335
Kashee Chandra v Noor Chandra . 515
Kashee Kishore v Bama Soondaree 222, 358
Kashee Nath v Mohesh Chundra .. 482
Kashee Nath Chatterjee v Chundy Churn 558, 578, 579, 580, 592, 596
Kashi Nath v Brindabun Chuckerbatti . . . 591
Kashi Nath v Collr of Poona . 806
Kashi Nath v Hurrihur Mookerjee 579, 580, 581, 582, 585
Kassim Mundle v Sree Mutty 591, 596
Kasturi v Venkatachulpathi 769
Katama Natchier v Rajah of Shivaganga . . 650
Kaung Hla Pru v San Paw 109, 159, 787
Kausalia v Gulab Kuar 662
Kaverji v Babai . 773
Kawa Manji v Khowaz Nussio 691
Kay v Poorunchand Poonalal 816, 819
Kazee Abdool v Baroda Kant . 618
Kazi Ghulam v Aga Khan 878, 879
Kazi Koibut-oollah v Motee Peshakar . . 667
Kearney v. London, Brighton & S. Coast Ry. 727
Kearsely v. Phillips .. 905
Keate v Phillips . . 762
Kebul Kristo v. Ram Coomar .. 763
Kedar Nath, In the matter of .. 128
Kedarnath Chuckerbutty v. Donzelle 729, 747
Kedarnath Doss v Protab Chunder 656
Kedar Nath v. Bhupendra Nath .. 845
Kedarnath v. Shurfoonnessa Bebee 561, 570, 571
Kedarnath Mitter v. Sreemutty Sorojoni 675
Keeling v Ball 504, 506
Kell v Charmar 625
Kelly v Jackson .. 812, 814
Kelly v Kelly 804
Kemble v. Farren 232
Kemp v King 825
Kempland v. Macauley 241
Kennedy v Lyell 817
Kensington v Inglis .. 489, 902

PAGE.

Kent v. Lowen 205, 207
Keramutoolah v. Gholam Hossein 386, 388
Kesho Rao v. Poran Barai .. 663
Keshavarao Bhagwant v. Ray Pandu 592, 594
Keshub Chunder v Vyasmonee Dossia 771
Kessowji Issur v. G. I. P. Ry. Co . 118
Ketu Dass v. Surendra Nath 792, 793
Kettika Bapanamma v. Kettika Krishtanamma . .. 600
Kettlewell v. Barstow 906
Kettlewell v. Watson . .. 197
Ketthlamma v. Kelapan.. 389, 390
Khadar v. Subramanya 766
Khadeem Ali v. Tajunnissa 348, 353, 354
Khadijah Khanum v. Abdool Kureem Sheraji 844, 888
Khajah Abdul v. Gour Monee . 454
Khajah Enaetoollah v. Kishen Soondur 690, 691
Khajooroonissa v. Rowshan Jehan 729
Khalilul Rahman v Gobind Pershad 657
Khana v. R. 303
Khankar Abdur v. Ali Hafez 580, 581, 586
Kharsondas Dharamsey v Gangabai 649
Khas Mehal v. Admr.-Genl. of Bengal . .. 673, 697, 698
Khatija Bibi, In the matter of .. 744
Kheero Monee v. Bijoy Gobind 340, 345, 346, 348
Khelat Chunder v. Poorno Chunder 660
Khenum Kuree v Gour Chunder 235, 239
Kheoraj Jusurub v. Lingaya . 769
Kheraj Mullah v. Janab Mullah . 119
Khetridas Agarwallah v Shib Narayan 571, 580
Khetter Chunder v. Khettei Paul 489, 490, 547
Khilut Chunder v Koonj Lall . 723
Khoob Lall v. Jungle Singh . 984
Khoorshed Kazi v R . . 643
Khugowlee Singh v Hossein Bux . 373
Khurruckdharee Singh v Prosadhee Mundal . . 855
Khusalchand v. Madahevgiri . 655
King v. Hunt 478
King v Norman .. 386
King v. Winn . 606
Kip v. Brigham . .. 387
Kirby v G. W. Ry. Co. 698
Kirkstall Brewery Co. v. Furness Ry. Co. 226
Kirpal Narain v. Sakurmoni 349, 731
Kirshaw v. Wright 420
Kirteebash Maytee v. Ramdhun Khoira 471
Kirty Chunder v. Anath Nath .. 749
Kishan Lall v. Ganga Ram 237, 238
Kishen Chunder v Buratee Sheikh.. 663
Kishen Chunder v. Hookoom Chand 684
Kishen Dhun v Ram Dhun .. 645
Kishen Mohun v. Collypersaud . 843
Kishore Dass v Pursun Mahtoon .. 347
Kishore Singh v Gunesh Mookerjee 806
Kishoree Lall v. Chumman Lall .. 649
Kishoree Lall v. Enaeth Hossein .. 667
Kishori Lal v. Rakhal Das 131, 488
Kishori Mohun v Mahomed Mujaffar 239
Kissen Kaminee v Ram Chunder 129, 130, 131
Kitchen v. Robbins 215
Kitchen, In re . .. 389
Kittu Hegadthi v Channama Shettathi 744
Klein v Landman .. . 772
Knight v. Martin . .. 483
Knight v Waterford .. . 315
Knight v Wiffen . 775, 781, 797
Komolochun Dutt v Nilruttun Mundle 379
Kondappa v. Subba . . 227
Kondayya Chetti v. Narasimhulu Chetti 8
Konnerav v Gurrav .. 749
Konwar Doorganath v Ram Chunder 214
Kooldeep Narain v Govt 237, 741
Koomar Runjit v Schoene .. 665
Koomadinee Debia v Poorno .. 357
Koondo Nath v Dheer Chunder 163, 168, 171
Koonj Beharee v Khetturnath Dutt 723, 724
Koonj Beharee v Shiva Baluk .. 602
Koonjee Singh v Jankee Singh .. 771
Koonjo Beharee v. Roy Mothooranath 460, 669
Koonwur Doorganath v Ram Chunder . .. 217, 653, 655
Kopasan v. Shamu .. 986, 987, 988
Kottala Uppi v Shangara Varma .. 658
Kotta Ramasami v Bangari Seshma 227
Kower Narain v Sreenath Mitter 454
Kowsulliah Sundari v Mukta Sundari 224, 231, 232
Koylasbashiney Dassee v Gocoolmoni Dassee .. 636, 660
Koylash Chunder v Raj Chunder .. 359
Koylash Chunder v. Sonatun Chun 100

PAGE

Kripamoyi Dabia v Durga Govind 630, 661
Krishna, v Vasudev .. 654, 724
Krishna Behari v. Brojeswari Chowdhranee .. . 749
Krishnabhupati v Ramamurti 239, 393, 395
Krishnabhupati Devu v Vikrama Devu 783
Krishna Chandra Saha v. Bhairab Chandra Saha .. . 239
Krishnacharya v Lingawa . 358
Krishnaji v. Moro . . 774
Krishnaji v. Rajmal . 454, 557, 987
Krishnaji v Wamanji . . 646
Krishnaji Ramchandra v Antaji Pandurang .. 789
Krishna Kishori v. Kishori Lall 477 481, 489, 490, 492, 514, 521
Krishna Kanta v Bidya Sundaree . . . 106
Krishna Lall v Radha Krishna . 667
Krishnama Chariar v Narasimha Chariar .. . 118
Krishnamarazu v Manju 571, 589
Krishnarav Yashvant v Vasudev Apaji . . . 692
Krishnasami Ayyangar v Rajagopala 170, 176, 214, 229, 237, 351, 385 387
Krishnasami Pillai v Rangasami Chetty .. 987
Krishno Chunder v Meer Sajdar . 362
Krishno Monee v R. . 252
Kristnappa Chetty v. Ramasawmy Iyer .. . 651
Kristo Indro v Huromonee Dassee 753
Kristo Moni v Secy. of State 361, 782, 785
Kristo Nath v. T F. Brown 447, 539
Kristo Prea v Puddo Lochun .. 748
Kubeerooddeen v Jogul Shaha .. 646
Kullan v. R 802
Kulum Mundul v. Bhowaniprosad 835, 836
Kultoo Mahomed v. Hurdev Doss 460
Kumar Saradindu v. Dhirendra Kant Roy 640
Kumara v. Srinivasa 594
Kumarasami v. Pala Nagappa .. 227
Kumara Upendra v Nobin Krishna 722
Kumaru Reddi v. Nagayasami Thambichi Naicker 184
Kumeezoodeen Holder v. Rujjub Ali 491
Kunneth Odaugat v. Vayoth Pallyil 482, 489, 492
Kuppu Konan v Thirugnana Sammandam Pillai 786

PAGE.

Kurali Prasad v Anantaram Hajra 509
Kurtz v Spence 248
Kuru Chaubi v Janki Persad .. 756
Kusum Kumari v Satya Ranjan .. 656
Kuthupermal Rajah v Secretary of State for India . .. 786
Kutti Mannadiyar v Payanu Muthan .. 651
Kuvarbai v Mir Alam .. 776
Kuverji v Babai 757, 781

L

Lacey (in re) . .. 235
Lachho v Har Sahai 691, 693
Lachman Das v Dipchand .. 990
Lachman Rai v Akbar Khan 162, 164, 383
Lachman Singh v Tansukh .. 223
Lachmeedhur v Rughoobur .. 163
Lachmi Narain v Raja Partab 443, 448, 450, 452, 705
Lacho Bibi v Gopi Narain 673, 674
Lady Dartmouth v Roberts .. 518
Lady Ivy's Case . 158
Lafone v Falkland Islands Co . 815
Lakhee Kowar v Hari Krishna .. 741
Lakhi Chundra v Kali Kumar 169
Lakhoo Khan v Wise . 789
Lakshman v Amrit 131, 159, 168, 174, 176, 183, 385
Lakshman Bhaukhopkar v Radhabai 632
Lakshman Dada Naik v Ram Chandra Dada Naik 749, 776
Lakshman v Damodar . . 601
Lakshman v Jamnabai . 649
Lakshmamma v Kameswara 989, 991
Lakshmibai v Ganput 773
Lakshmibai v. Vithal Ramchandra 602
Lal Bahadur v Kanhaiya Lal .. 723
Lala v Hira Singh . 164, 383
Lala Beni v. Kundan Lal .. 769
Lala Bansidar v Govt. of Bengal .. 919
Lal Achal v Raja Kazim .. 641
Lala Himmat v Llewhellen 592, 594, 597
Lala Jha v. Musst. Bibee .. 114
Lala Lakhmi v Sayed Haidar 109, 124, 341, 641
Lala Muddun v Khikhinda Koer .. 774
Lala Narain v Lala Ramanuj .. 469
Lala Parbhu v Mylne .. 237, 238, 239
Lala Ranglal v. Deonarayan Tewary 171
Lala Suraj v. Golab Chand .. 8
Lalchand v. R. 564
Lalit Mohan Singh v Chukkun Lal Roy 621
Laljee Sahoy v. Fakeer Chand .. 658

PAGE.

Lalji Singh v. Syad Akram .. 984
Lalji, In the matter of the petition of 807, 915
Lalla Beharee v. Lalla Modho .. 651
Lalla Bunseedhur v. Kunwar Bindeseree 653
Lalla Probhoo v. Sheonath Roy .. 217
Lalla Roodroo v. Benode Ram .. 645
Lalla Sheebloll v Sheikh Gholam .. 660
Lalla Sheoprasad v Juggernath .. 219
Lalla Sreedhur v. Lalla Madho .. 723
Lall Mahomed v. Kallanus 791, 792, 793
Lall Mahomed v. Watson & Co .. 642
Lal Singh v. Deo Narain . 657, 658
Lalu Mulji v. Kashibai .. . 237
Lamb v Munster 826
Lamb v Orton 819
Laucum v. Lovell 316
Land Mortgage Bank v. Roy Luchmiput 646
Langdon v. Doud .. 764, 781
Langhorn v. Allnutt . .. 226
Lano v. Neale 571
Lapsley v. Grierson 727
Laros v. Com 403
Last, re . . 387
Lastings v Gonsalves 745
Latafat Husain v Badshah Husain 752
Latch v. Wedlake 232
Lathulan's Case .. . 601
Lauderdale Peerage Case .. 712
Lavergne v Hooper 787
Lawless v. Queale . . 246
Lawrence, re .. . 485
Lawrence v. Campbell 815
Lawrence v. Clarke 499
Lawrence v French .. 329, 337
Lawrence v. Ingmire 801, 836
Laybourn v Crisp . . 383
Leach v Simpson .. . 115
Lee v. Birrell 814, 904
Lee v. Merest .. . 827
Lee v. Pain .. . 625
Leech v Schweder . .. 114
Leeds v Cooks . . . 497
Leeds v Lancashire .. . 575
Leelanund Singh v. Basheeroonissa 115, 636, 689, 712
Leelanund Singh v Luchmun Singh 639
Leelanund Singh v Musst. Lakhputtee 352
Lees v. Marton 143
Legal Remembrancer v. Chema Nashya 272, 273
Le Geyt v. Harvey 787

PAGE.

Leggatt v. Tollervey 386
Legge v. Edmonds 222, 234, 702, 707
Lekhraj Rai v. Mahtab Chand 230, 654
Lekhraj Singh v. Dhulma Koer .. 993
Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh 9, 100, 126, 348, 350, 352, 353, 419
Leman v. Damodaraya 101
Lennox, Ex parte 399
Levene v Brougham 751
Lever v. Goodwin 200
Levy v Pope 818
Lewis v Davison . .. 736
Lewis v. Fermor 200
Lewis v Hartley 908
Lewis v. Jones 136
Lewis v Levy .. 695
Lewis v Pennington . .. 817
Lewis v. Rogers 194
Ley v. Barlow 825
Ley v. Peter 227, 229
Lightfoot v Cameron . .. 839
Lincoln v Wright . 583, 585
Lindley v Lacy . .. 598
Lindo v Belisario .. 366, 405
Line v. Taylor 458
Lishman v. Christie . .. 775
Lister v Smith . .. 598
Liverpool Adelphi Loan Association v Fairhurst . .. 759
Livesy v Smith 836
Llewellyn v Winckworth .. 137
Lloyd v Freshfield and Kaye .. 814
Lloyd v Mostyn .. 496, 820
Lloyd v Sturgeon Falls Pulp Co . 578
Lloyd v Willan . . 224
Loburi Domini v Assam Ry. & Trading Co 806
Lochun Chowdhry v. Anup Singh .. 663
Lockett v. Carey 825
Lockett v. Nicklin 555
Lockwood v Lockwood .. 140
Lockyer v Ferryman 375
Lodai Mollah v Kally Das 788, 791, 792, 793
Logan v Courtown . .. 102
Login v R 366
Lohre v. Deo Hans . .. 753
Lokessur Koer v. Purgun Roy .. 666
Lolit Mohan v R . 117, 197, 417
London & N.-W. Ry Co. v West . 790
London & Tilbury Ry. Co. v. Kirk 821
London & Yorkshire Bank v Cooper 906
London Gas Co. v. Chelsea 819, 822
London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons 373
Longman v. Bath Electric Ry. 763, 766

PAGE

Looloo Singh v. Rajendur Laha 654, 842
Lootf Ali v. Peary Mohun 198, 206
Lopez v. Lopez 730
Lord v. Colvin 861, 862
Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre .. 4, 159
Lord Advocate v. Lord Lovat 169, 327, 665
Lord Barrymore v Taylor . 368
Lord Cornwallis, trial of . 116
Lord Kinnaird v. Lady Saltoun . 536
Lord Melville's trial . . 128
Lord Waterpark v Fennell 185
Loughbro' Highway Board v Curzon 227
Lovatt v. Tribe .. 197
Lovatt Peerage Case . 321, 325
Loveden v Loveden . .. 117
Low v Bouverie 755, 762, 763, 764, 775
Lows v. Telford .. . 689
Lucas v. De la Cour 231, 232
Lucas v. Novosilieski 206
Lucas v Williams . 399, 417, 474
Luchman Chundra v. Kali Churn 453, 770, 783, 784
Luchman Dass v Gridhur Chowdhury . .. 658
Luchman Dass v. Khunnu Lal 659
Luchman Rai v. Akbar Khan 184, 417
Luchman Singh v Puna 476, 481, 483, 489
Luchmee Dai v Ashman Singh .. 657
Luchmeedhur Pattuck v. Rughoobur Singh .. . 130 171, 489
Luchmeeput Singh v Sadaulla Nashyo . . . 164
Luchmi Koer v Roghu Nath . 731
Luchmun Chunder v Kali Churn 754
Lucy v Moufiet .. 148, 149
Luckee Koer v Ram Dutt . 691
Lukheemoni Dossee v Shunkuree Dossee 128
Lukhee Narain v. Taramonee Dossee 772
Lukhi Narain v Maharaja Jodhu Nath 639
Lukhynarain Chattopadhya v Gorachand Gossamy 349
Lukshman v Damodar .. . 601
Lulect Narain v Narain Singh .. 359
Lumley v. Osborne 105
Luximon Row v Mullar Row 648, 650
Lyell v. Kennedy 348, 350, 352, 354, 813, 817, 818, 819, 823

M.

Ma Wun Di v. Ma Kin 731
Macdonald v. Longbottom .. 605
Macdonnell v. Evans 3
Macfarlane v. Carr 601
Macgowan, In the goods of .. 540
Macgregor v Kelly 206
Machell v. Ellis .. 455
Mackenzie v. British Linen Co .. 795
Mackenzie v Dunlop . .. 186
Mackenzie v Yeo .. 819
Mackenzie Lyall & Co v Chamroo Sing & Co .. 186
Mackintosh v Marshall .. 197
Mackintosh v Nobinmoney Dossee 844
MacNaghten's Case .. 411
Madapusi Srinivasa v Tirumalai Kasturi . . 643
Maddison v Alderson .. 781
Maddison v Gill 606
Madeleine Smith's Case .. 116
Madhabi Sundari v Gajanendranath 357, 537
Madhavrao v Balkrishna 185
Madhavrao v Deonak 127, 351, 355, 662
Madhub Chunder v Gangadhur Samunt 580
Madhavrav v Gulabbai 247, 249, 919
Madhub Chunder v Gobind Chunder 777
Madhub Chunder v Law 765
Madhub Chunder v Rajcoomaridas 187
Madhub Chunder v Tomee Bewah 170, 382, 383
Madras Deposit and Benefit Society, Ld. v Oonamalai Ammal 502, 504, 989
Madras Hindu Mutual Benefit Permanent Fund v Rangava Chetti 757, 787
Magbulan v Ahmad Hossain 525
Magnay v. Knight 560
Magniram v Gurmukh Roy . 989
Mahabeer Persad v Oomrao Singh 661
Mahabeer Persad v Ramayad Singh 658
Mahabir Prosad v. Bashdeo Sing .. 657
Mahabir Prasad v. Bishen Dyal .. 641
Mahadaji Gopal v. Vithal Ballal 748, 772
Mahadeo Misser v Lahoree Misser.. 647
Mahadevappa v Basugonda . 653
Mahadevi v Neelamoney 696, 698, 777, 782
Mahalal v. Sankallu 914
Mahalatchmi Ammal v Palani Chetti 554
Mahamad Amin v Hasan .. 174
Maharajah Gobind v Raja Anund.. 458
Maharaja Jagadendra v Bhabatarini Dasi 918
Maharajah Juggernath v. Ahlad Kowur 686
Maharajah Koowur v. Nund Lall .. 920
Maharajah Pertab v. Maharanee Sabhao Kooer 423

PAGE

Maharajah Rajendro Kishen v. Sheopursum Misser .. . 461
Maharaj Singh v. Raja Balwant Singh 585
Maharana Shri Rammalsingji v. Vadilal Vakhatchand .. 231, 449
Maharani Rani Pershad v Dudh Nath 454
Maharani Hiranath v Baboo Ram 185
Maharani Hiranath v Ram Narayan 185
Mahatala Bibee v Haleemoozooman 623, 729
Mahendro Nath v. Jogendra Nath 591, 596
Mahipat v. Lakshman .. . 714
Mahomed v Abdul .. 907
Mahomed Abdul v. Gujraj Sahai . 737
Mahomed Aizaddi v Shaffi Mulla . 550
Mahomed Akbar v Reilly . 660
Mahomed Ali v R .. 889, 899
Mahomed Ali v Nazar Ali 445, 580, 581, 586
Mahomed Ali v. Khaja Abdul 665, 666, 689, 712
Mahomed Amin v Hasan 168
Mahomed Ashruff v. Bijessuree Dassee . 652
Mahomed Ausar v Prokash Chunder 640
Mahomed Basir v Kurreem Buksh 686
Mahomed Bauker v Shurgoon Nissa 729
Mahomed Bhoy v Chutterput Sing 569
Mahomed Buksh v Hosseini Bibee 698
Mahomed Bux v. Abdool Kurreem 690, 918
Mahomed Tedve v Ozeeoodeen 362, 545
Mahomed Golab v Mahomed Sulliman . 391, 646
Mahomed Hamidulla v Modhoosoodun Ghose . 776
Mahomed Hamid-ud-din v Shib Sahai . . 769
Mahomed Haneef v Mozhur Ali 291, 292
Mahomed Husain v Mulchand 789
Mahomed Ibrahim v. Morrison 665, 666
Mahomed Imam v Husain Khan 215
Mahomed Ismail v Bhuggobutty Barmanya . . 474
Mahomed Jackeriah & Co v Ahmed Mahomed . 823
Mahomed Mahmood v Safar Ali 345, 899
Mahomed Meher v Sheeb Pershad 358
Mahomed Mozaffer v Kishori Mohan 238, 768
Mahomed Mudun v Khodezunnissa 775
Mahomed Rowthan v Husain Rowthan . . 984
Mahomed Sahib, In re . 281
Mahomed Shumsool v Shewukram 607, 652
Mahomed Sultan Sahib v. Horace Robinson 741
Mahtab Chand v. Bengal Govt. .. 742
Maidin Saiba v. Nagappa .. 789
Mailathi Anni v. Subbaraya Mudaliar 185
Makbul Ali v. Srimati Masnad Bibi 476
Makhun Lall v. Ram Lall .. 651
Makin v. Att.-Genl for N S W. 194, 195, 923
Makund Bahori, In re . . 670
Makundi Kuar v. Balkishan Das .. 774
Malcolm Brunker & Co v Waterhouse 124, 761
Malcolmson v O'Dea . 169, 327, 384
Malla Reddi v Aswa Natha Reddi 752
Maloji Santiji v. Vithu Hari . 670
Manada Sundari v. Mahananda Sarnakar 638
Managers of Met Asylum v. Hill 124, 137
Mana Vikrama v Rama Patter 602
Manchaiam v Kalidas 393
Mangal Sen v Hira Singh . 514
Mangal Sen v Shankar Sahai 547
Man Gobind v Jankee Ram . 752
Maniklal Baboo v Ramdas Mazumdar . . 670
Maniram Deb v Debi Charan 399, 688
Manjanali Devi v Ramdas Shome 380, 388
Manjayya v Shesa Shetti .. 840
Mankura Passi v R . 202, 432
Mannu Singh v Umadat Pande 696
Mano Mohun v Mothura Mohun 631, 666, 712
Manohar Das v Bhagabati Dasi 592
Manpal v Sahib Ram 753
Mansel v Clements 193
Manser v Dix . 817
Manson v Golam Kebria . 127
Manud Louis Kunha v Jnana Coelho 590
Maqbulan v Ahmad Husain . 460
Marapu Tharalu v Telukula Neelakanta Behara . 672
Marine Investment Co v Haviside 544, 738
Mark Ridded v Muthuramen Chetty 984
Marks v Beyfus . 811
Marquis of Anglesey v Lord Hatherton . 186
Marriott v Chamberlain . 819
Marshall v Berridge . . 144
Marshall v Cliff . 229
Marshall v Davies . .. 844
Marshall v Lamb . .. 737
Marshfield, Re .. . 906
Marston v Dean 560

	PAGE.
Marston v. Downes	904
Martin v Harding	607
Martin v. Mackonochie . ..	116
Martin v. Martin . ..	356
Mary Blandy, trial of . ..	116
Mary Goodrich (Payne v. Bennett)..	354
Mary Tug Co v B. I S. N. Co. ..	673
Masil-un-nessa v Pathani .	731
Mason, Re	815
Mason v. Mason	732
Mason v Phelps . ..	404
Mason v Wood.. . ..	206
Massey v. Allen .. 306, 312,	315
Mathews v Munster . .	230
Mathias v. O'Neill .. .	206
Mathura Das v. Bhikhan .	607
Mathura Pandey v. Ram Rucha 462,	646
Maugham v. Hubbard . .	898
Maung Bin v Ma Hlaing 586,	600
Maung Shwe v Maung Tun .	577
May v Burdett.. .	188
Mayandi Chetti v Oliver.	600
Maybank v. Brooks . ..	571
Mayen v. Alston 596, 597, 635, 669, 679,	725
Mayenborg v. Haynes . ..	777
Mayhew v Nelson . .	226
Mayo v. Williams . ..	379
Mayor, etc, of Bristol v. Cox ..	815
Mayor v. Murray .. .	854
Mayor v Sefton . ..	852
Mazhar Ali v. Budh Singh 682,	704
Mazhar Hasan v. Behari Singh ..	687
Mazhar Husen v Bodha Bibi .	676
McAleer v. Horsey . .	780
McAllister v. Reab	734
McCance v. London & N.-W. Ry. Co	765
M'Combie v Anton .. .	336
McConnell v Mayor . 767,	769
McCormuodale v. Ball	822
McDougal v Knight .. .	917
McDowell v. Ragava Chetti 657,	659
McGowan v. Smith	454
McGrews v. McGrews . .	736
McGregor v. Rhodes	796
McKenzie v. British Linen Co ..	778
McLaren Morrison v. Verschoyle ..	766
M'Lean v Herizog .. .	563
McLeod v. Sindamull	882
McLeod v Wakely	454
McNaghten's Case	398
McQueen v Phipps	399
Mease v. Mease	571
Meekins v Smith	830
Meer Ashrut v Meer Arshud ..	729
Meer Usdoollah v. Musst Beeby Imamam .. 5, 114, 458, 461,	490
Meer Yar Ali, Re 187, 192, 197,	709
Meethun Bibee v Busheer Khan ..	806
Megji Hansraj v Ramji Jeita ..	237
Megraj v Sewnarain . 342,	474
Meharban Khan v Muhboob Khan	458
Meherally Morraj v Sakerkhanoobai	638
Mekjee Khestu v Devachund ..	372
Melbourne Banking Corporation v Brougham .	642
Melen v Andrews . ..	145
Melhuish v Collier 139, 141, 879,	882
Memon Hajee v Moulvie Abdool Karim . 816,	817
Meredith v Footner . ..	227
Meres v Anselle	571
Metropolitan Ry Co v Wright .	917
Metters v Brown ..	234
Meux Executor's Case . ..	226
Mewa Lall v Bhujun Jha	389
Meyer v Dresser . ..	186
Middleton v Melton . .	310
Middleton v Pollock	783
Mighell v Sultan of Johore 443, 446,	448, 452
Milan Khan v Sagai Bepari ..	119
Millar v. Travers . .	571
Millard, In re 643,	730
Miller, Re . . .	391
Miller v Babu Madho 130, 242, 245,	659, 846
Miller v Barber . ..	630
Miller v Madho Das . 850,	914
Milles v. Lamson .	399
Milne v Leister . 132,	917
Mina Konwari v. Juggul Setani .	753
Minet v. Morgan . 813,	815
Minu Sarker v Rhedoy Nath ..	548
Mir Sarwarjan v. Fakharuddin Mahomed Chowdhury	230
Mirtherjeet Singh v Choker Narain	744
Mirza Himmut v. Sahebzadee ..	729
Mirza Mahomed v Radha Romun..	662
Mirza Mahomed v. Surapatoonissa Khanum	665
Misir Raghobur v. Sheo Buksh ..	373
Misrut Banoo v Mahomed Sayem..	839
Mithan Bibi v. Bashir Khan ..	115
Mitterjeet Singh v. Radha Pershad	712
Mobaruck Shah v. Toofany ..	743
Modee Huddin v. Sandes ..	618
Modee Kaikhoosrow v. Cooverbhaee	640
Mohabeer Pershad v Mohabeer Singh	691
Mohabeer Singh v. Dhujjoo Singh 249,	744

	PAGE.
Mohan Mahtoo v. Meer Shamsod ..	792
Mohansing Chawan v. Henry Conder	665
Moharani Beni v. Goberdhan Koer	716
Moheema Chunder v. Poorno Chunder	3
Mohendra Lall v. Rosomoyi Dasi ..	171
Mohendro Chunder v Surbo Kokhya 645, 667
Mohendro Nath v. Koylash Chunder	667
Mohendra Nath v. R.	913
Moher Sheikh v. R. 102, 264, 799, 827, 872
Mohesh Chunder, In the matter of ..	811
Mohesh Chunder v Barada Debi 690, 740
Mohesh Chunder v. Dino Bondhu 163, 171
Mohesh Chunder v Gooroo Pershad 785, 786
Mohesh Chunder v Issur Chunder	770
Mohesh Chunder v. Inggut Chunder 358. 379
Mohesh Chunder v Kamini Kumari	681
Mohesh Chunder v. Madhub Chunder	102
Mohesh Chunder v Mohesh Chunder	802
Mohesh Chunder v. Satrughan Dhal	185
Mohesh Chunder v. Ugra Kant .	788
Mohesh Lal v Mohunt Bawan .	743
Mohi Chowdhry v Dhiro Misseain	351
Mohidin Ahmed v Sayyid Muhammad .. .	458
Mohima Chundra, In re .	843
Mohim Chandra Roy v Kali Tara Debia . .	921
Mohima Chunder v Huro Lall .	689
Mohima Chunder v. J. P Wise .	361
Mohima Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder	665
Mohima Chunder v. Rajkumar .	358
Mohima Chunder v. Ram Kishore 455, 632, 751
Mohini Mohun v. Promoda Nath .	159
Mohinudin v. Mancher Shah .	667
Mohiny Mohun v. Krishno Kishore 666, 712
Mohori Bibee v. Dharmodas 758, 760
Mohun v. Saratchand .	914
Mohun Das v Nilkomul .	733
Mohun Lall v Cotton Mills Co .	985
Mohun Lall v. Umopoorna Dossee .	355
Mohun Sahoo v Chutto Mowar 213, 235, 236
Mohunt Burm v Kashee Jha	655
Mohunt Doss v. Nilkamal Dewan 779, 781
Mohunt Gour v. Hayagrib	667
Mohur Sing v. Ghuriba . 466, 918, 919, 920, 922
Moises v. Thornton . 415, 500
Mollwo March v. Ct of Wards ..	762
Monatt v. Castle Steel Co ..	782
Monckton v. Att.-Gen. .. 319, 324
Monmohiney Dassee v. Greesh Chunder	541
Monmohinee Dassee v. Bishomoyee Dassee	990
Monmohinee Dassee v Kedarnath Karmokar	990
Monmohinee Joginee v. Jugobundho Sadhookhan 768, 783
Monohar Singh v Sumirta Kuar 670, 776
Monroe v. Twistleton .. 808, 609
Mochee Ram v Bissambhar Roy 362, 689
Moodlay v. Morton	809
Mooktakeshee Debia v Collector of Moorshedabad	672
Mookto Keshee v Anundo Chunder	637
Mooljt Lilla v Gokuldas .. 649, 651
Moolla Cassim v. Moolla Abdul ..	682
Monee Ummah v. The Municipal Commissioners for the Town of Madras	667
Moonshee Ameer v Maharani Inderjeet .. . 751, 777
Moorshee Buzlool v. Pran Dhan .	237
Moonshee Buzloor v Shumsoonissa Begum . 637, 645, 695, 696, 697
Moonshee Syud Ameer v Syef Ali ..	783
Moore v Foley . . .	556
Moore v Knight .. .	232
Moore v Smith	148
Moore v Tuckwell .. .	917
Moore v Tyrrell . .	818
Moran v Mittu Bibee .	588
Moorewood v Wood 296, 318
Morgan v. Bissell . ..	556
Morgan v Brydges . ..	854
Morgan v. Couchman . ..	780
Morgan v Evans . .	148
Morgan v. Morgan . ..	921
Morgan v Nichol	329
Moriarty v. Gray	489
Moriarty v London C. D Ry Co 126, 139, 143, 234
Morley v. Harford . ..	571
Moro Desai v Ramchandra Desa 665, 666
Moro Vishvanath v Gonesh Vithal	724
Morris v. Bethel	137
Morris v. Davies 423, 699, 701, 702, 703, 704
Morris v. Edwards . ..	823
Morris v Hauser . .	496
Morris v Miller	216
Morris v Panchanada Pillay ..	604
Morrish v Murrey	148

	PAGE.
Marston v Downes .. .	904
Martin v Harding . ..	607
Martin v Mackonochie	116
Martin v. Martin	356
Mary Blandy, trial of . .	116
Mary Goodrich (Payne v. Bennett).	354
Mary Tug Co. v B I. S N. Co. .	673
Masil-un-nessa v Pathani ..	731
Mason, Re	815
Mason v. Mason .. .	732
Mason v Phelps .. .	404
Mason v. Wood.. .	206
Massey v Allen . 306, 312,	315
Mathews v Munster . .	230
Mathias v O'Neill ..	206
Mathura Das v. Bhikhan .	607
Mathura Pandey v. Ram Rucha 462,	646
Maugham v. Hubbard . .	898
Maung Bin v Ma Hlaing 586,	600
Maung Shwe v Maung Tun .	577
May v Burdett..	188
Mayandi Chetti v Oliver.	690
Maybank v Brooks . .	571
Mayen v. Alston 596, 597, 635, 669, 679,	725
Mayenborg v. Haynes . .	777
Mayhew v Nelson . .	226
Mayo v Williams . ..	379
Mayor, etc, of Bristol v Cox ..	815
Mayor v. Murray .	854
Mayor v. Sefton . ..	852
Mazhar Ali v. Budh Singh 682,	704
Mazhar Hasan v. Behari Singh ..	687
Mazhar Husen v Bodha Bibi	676
McAleer v. Horsey	780
McAllister v Reab	734
McCance v. London & N.-W. Ry. Co	765
M'Combie v Anton	336
McConnell v. Mayor . 767,	769
McCormondale v. Ball . ..	822
McDougal v. Knight	917
McDowell v. Ragava Chetti 657,	659
McGowan v Smith .. .	454
McGrews v. McGrews .. .	736
McGregor v. Rhodes . ..	796
McKenzie v British Linen Co. ..	778
McLaren Morrison v. Verschoyle ..	766
M'Lean v. Hertzog	563
McLeod v Sirdarmull	882
McLeod v Wakely	451
McNaghten's Case	398
McQueen v. Phipps	399
Mease v. Mease	571
Meekins v. Smith	839
Meer Ashrul v Meer Arshad ..	729

	PAGE.
Meer Usdoollah v Musst. Beeby, Imamam .. 5, 114, 458, 461,	490
Meer Yar Ali, Re 187, 192, 197,	709
Meethun Bibee v Busheer Khan ..	806
Megji Hansraj v Ramji Jorta ..	237
Megraj v Sewnarain . 342,	474
Meharban Khan v Muhboob Khan	458
Meherally Morraj v. Sakerkhanoobai	638
Mekjee Khestu v Devachund ..	372
Melbourne Banking Corporation v. Brougham .	642
Melen v Andrews . ..	148
Melhuish v Collier 139, 144, 879,	882
Memon Hajee v Moulvie Abdool Karim	816, 817
Meredith v Footner . ..	227
Meres v Ansell	571
Metropolitan Ry Co v Wright ..	917
Metters v Brown . ..	234
Meux Executor's Case	226
Mewa Lall v Bhujun Jha	389
Meyer v Dresser . ..	186
Middleton v Melton .	310
Middleton v Pollock . .	783
Mighell v Sultan of Johore 443, 446, 448,	452
Milan Khan v Sagai Bepari ..	119
Millar v Travers	571
Millard, In re . 643,	730
Miller, Re .. .	391
Miller v Babu Madho 130, 242, 245, 659,	846
Miller v Barber . .	630
Miller v Madho Das . 850,	914
Milles v Lamson . .	399
Milne v Leister .. 132,	917
Mina Konwari v Juggul Setani ..	753
Minet v. Morgan . 813,	815
Minu Sarkar v. Rhedoy Nath .	548
Mir Sarwarjan v Fakharuddin Mahomed Chowdhury	230
Mirtherjeet Singh v Choker Narain	744
Mirza Hummut v. Sahebzadee ..	729
Mirza Mahomed v. Radha Romun..	662
Mirza Mahomed v. Suraputoonissa Khanum	665
Misir Raghobur v. Sheo Buksh ..	373
Misrut Banoo v Mahomed Sayem..	839
Mithan Bibi v. Bashir Khan ..	115
Mitterjeet Singh v Radha Pershad	712
Mobaruck Shah v Toofany ..	743
Modee Huddin v. Sandes ..	618
Modee Kaikhoosrow v. Cooverbhaee	640
Mohabeer Pershad v. Mohabeer Singh	691
Mohabeer Singh v. Dhujjoo Singh 249,	744

Page.

Mohan Mahtoo v. Meer Shamsod .. 792
Mohansing Chawan v. Henry Conder 365
Moharani Beni v. Goberdhan Koer 716
Moheema Chunder v. Poorno Chunder 3
Mohendra Lall v. Rosomoyi Dasi .. 171
Mohendro Chunder v. Surbo Kokhya 645, 667
Mohendro Nath v. Koylash Chunder 667
Mohendra Nath v. R. .. 913
Moher Sheikh v. R 102, 261, 799, 827, 872
Mohesh Chunder, In the matter of . 811
Mohesh Chunder v. Barada Debi 690, 740
Mohesh Chunder v. Dino Bundhu 163, 171
Mohesh Chunder v. Gooroo Pershad 785, 786
Mohesh Chunder v. Issur Chunder 770
Mohesh Chunder v. Juggut Chunder 358, 359
Mohesh Chunder v. Kamini Kumari 681
Mohesh Chunder v. Madhub Chunder 102
Mohesh Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder 802
Mohesh Chunder v. Satrughan Dhal 185
Mohesh Chunder v. Ugra Kant . 788
Mohesh Lal v. Mohunt Bawan . 743
Mohi Chowdhry v. Dhiro Misseain 351
Mohidin Ahmed v. Sayyid Muhammad .. 458
Mohima Chundra, In re 843
Mohim Chandra Roy v. Kali Tara Debia .. 921
Mohima Chunder v. Huro Lall . 689
Mohima Chunder v. J. P. Wise 361
Mohima Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder 665
Mohima Chunder v. Rajkumar . 358
Mohima Chunder v. Ram Kishore 455, 652, 751
Mohini Mohun v. Promoda Nath . 159
Mohinudin v. Mancher Shah . 667
Mohiny Mohun v. Krishno Kishore 666, 712
Mohori Bibee v. Dharmodas 758, 760
Mohun v. Saratchand 914
Mohun Das v. Nilkomul 753
Mohun Lall v. Cotton Mills Co . 985
Mohun Lall v. Urnopoorna Dossee 555
Mohun Sahoo v. Chutto Mowar 213, 235, 236
Mohunt Burm v. Kashee Jha 655
Mohunt Doss v. Nilkamal Dewan 779, 781
Mohunt Gour v. Hayagrib . 667
Mohur Sing v. Ghuriba . 466, 918, 919, 920, 922
Moises v. Thornton .. 415, 500
Mollwo March v. Ct of Wards .. 762
Monatt v. Castle Steel Co. .. 782
Monckton v. Att.-Gen. . 319, 324
Monmohiney Dassee v. Gheesh Chunder 541
Monmohinee Dassee v. Bishomoyee Dassee 990
Monmohinee Dassee v. Kedarnath Karmokar 990
Monmohinee Joginee v. Jugobundho Sadhookhan . . 768, 783
Monohar Singh v. Sumirta Kuar 670, 776
Monroe v. Twistleton .. 808, 609
Mochee Ram v. Bissambhar Roy 362, 689
Moodlay v. Morton . .. 809
Mooktakeshee Debia v. Collector of Moorshidabad 672
Mookto Keshee v. Anundo Chunder 637
Moolji Lilla v. Gokuldas . 649, 651
Moolla Cassim v. Moolla Abdul .. 682
Moree Ummah v. The Municipal Commissioners for the Town of Madras 667
Moonshee Ameer v. Maharani Inderjeet . . 751, 777
Moonshee Buzlool v. Pran Dhan . 237
Moonshee Buzloor v. Shumsoonissa Begum . 637, 645, 695, 696, 697
Moonshee Syud Ameer v. Syef Ali .. 783
Moore v. Foley . . 556
Moore v. Knight .. . 232
Moore v. Smith . . 148
Moore v. Tuckwell . .. 917
Moore v. Tyrrell .. 818
Moran v. Mittu Bibee . .. 588
Moorewood v. Wood . 296, 318
Morgan v. Bissell 556
Morgan v. Brydges . .. 854
Morgan v. Couchman . .. 780
Morgan v. Evans . .. 148
Morgan v. Morgan 921
Morgan v. Nichol . .. 320
Moriarty v. Gray 489
Moriarty v. London C. D. Ry. Co 126, 139, 143, 234
Morley v. Harford 571
Moro Desai v. Ramchandra Desa 665, 666
Moro Vishvanath v. Gonesh Vithal 724
Morris v. Bethel 137
Morris v. Davies 423, 699, 701, 702, 703, 704
Morris v. Edwards 823
Morris v. Hauser 496
Morris v. Miller 216
Morris v. Panchanada Pillay .. 604
Morrish v. Murrey 148

	PAGE
Morrison v. Lennard	803
Morton v. Woods	785
Moseley v. Davies .. .	297
Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co	820
Moses, D. H. R., In the matter of ..	787
Moss v. Sallmon	787
Mostyn v. Fabrigas ..	366, 405
Mostyn v. West Mostyn Coal Iron Co	818
Mote Lall v. Juddooputtee Doss ..	671
Motee Lall v. Juggurnath Gurg	642, 646
Mothoora Mohun v. Peary Mohun ..	987
Mothoora Pandey v. Ram Rurhva	199
Mothoor Mohun v. The Bank of Bengal	462
Motichand v. Dadabhai . ..	751
Moti Gulabchand v. Mahomed Mehdi	710
Moti Lall v. Jogumohun Das	985, 986
Motidahu v. Parshotam Doyal .	638
Moulvi Maeenooddeen v. Greesh Chunder .. .	690
Moulvi Mahomed Ikramull Huq v. Wilkie	892
Mountney v. Collier ..	792, 793
Mowatt v. Castle Steel and Iron Works Co.	239
Mowji v. National Bank of India	763
Moyan v. Pathukutti .. .	994
Mozuffer Wahid v. Abdus Samad ..	667
Mrinmoyee Dabea v. Bhoobun Moyee	336
Mritunjaya Sirkar v. Gopal Chundra	788
Muddun Mohun v. Bhogoonanto Poddar	665, 685
Muddun Mohun v. Bhurut Chunder	672
Muddun Mohun v. Kantoo Lall ..	654
Muddun Mohun v. Sofuna Bewa ..	680
Mudhoo Soodun v. Suroop Chunder	114, 459, 471
Mufeezodeen Kazee v. Mehar Ali	481, 489, 713
Muhammad Abdul v. Ibrahim	481, 489
Muhammad Allahad v. Muhammad Ismail ..	9, 100, 702, 703
Muhammad Allahdad v. Ismail Khan	729
Muhammad Hussin v. Munna Lal	350
Muhammad Imam v. Sardar Hussin	350
Muhammad Inayet v. Muhammad Kiramatullah ..	679, 680
Muhammad Khan v. Muhammad Ibrahim	771
Muhammad Samad-ud-din v. Mannu Lal	782
Muhammad Yakoob v. Muhammad Ismail	662
Muhammad Yusuf v. P. & O. S. N. Co	673
Muir v. Glasgow Bank ..	695, 736
Mujnee Ram v. Ganesh Dutt ..	667
Mukhoda Soondary v. Ram Churn	115
Mukim Mullick v. Pamjan Sirdar ..	772
Mukunda Chandra v. Arpan Ali ..	662
Mulchand v. Malho Ram ..	587
Mulji Lala v. Nityanund Singh ..	986
Munchershaw etc. v. New Dhurmasey Spinning Co 7, 204, 307, 344, 345, 800, 813 814, 815, 816, 818	870
Munford v. Gething ..	605
Municipal Corporation of Bombay v. Cursetji Hurji .	367
Municipal Corporation of Bombay v. Secretary of State .	765
Municipality of Sholapur v. Sholapur Spinning and Weaving Co 714, 715,	738
Mun Mohinee v. Jowkissen Mookerjee . ..	661
Mun Mohinee v. Sooda Monee	650
Mun Mohun v. Sriram Pay .	671
Mannoo Lall v. Lalia Choonee 765, 766, 768,	769
Manrunjan Singh v. Talnund Singh	741
Munshi Mazhar Hasan v. Behari Singh	690, 693
Munster v. Lamb	840
Murietta v. Wolffsegen	732
Murray v. Lord Stair ..	597
Murray v. R . .	643
Murray v. Walter . .	906
Musadee Mahomed v. Meerza Ally	922
Musafir Ram v. Trelochun Bagchi	668
Musamat Parbati Kuar v. Rani Chandrapal Kuar	184, 185
Musst Ackjoo v. Lallah Ramchundra	229
Musst Ameeroonissa v. Musst Abedoonissa ..	477, 481
Musst. Anundee v. Khedoo Lal ..	723
Musst Azeezoonissa v. Bakur Khan	698
Musst. Bhagbutty v. Chowdhry Bholanath	595, 607, 614
Musst. Bibee Efatoonissa v. Khandkar Khoda	753
Musst. Bibee v. Sheik Hamid ..	744
Musst. Edun v. Musst Beechun	114, 459, 471
Musst Farzhatee v. Musst. Azizunnissa	700
Musst. Foul v. Goor Surun ..	292
Musst Fureedoonissa v. Rani Onogra	550
Musst Hurrosoondery v. Musst. Ameena	685
Musst Imami v. Hurgobind Ghose	458

PAGE.

Musst. Imrit v. Lalla Debee 237, 238
Musst. Inderbuttee v. Shaik Mahboob 786
Musst. Jaibun v. Musst. Bibee .. 729
Musst. Jarut-ool-Batool v. Musst. Hosseinee 711, 729
Musst. Jhaloo v. Shaik Furzund . 670
Musst. Kaboolun v. Shumsher Ali . 690
Musst. Khoob v. Baboo Moodnarain 680
Musst. Kurufool v. Musst. Rajkalee 670
Musst. Lall v. Murli Dhar 750, 119
Musst. Lalun v. Hemraj Singh 663, 664
Musst. Luteefoonissa v. Goor Surun 291
Musst. Natukhee v. Chowdhry Chintamun .. . 644, 689
Musst. Oodey v. Musst. Ladoo 291, 773, 780, 781, 782
Musst. Oudia v. Bhopal .. 749
Musst. Parbati Kunwar v. Ram Chanderpal Kunwar 165, 184, 185, 318, 351
Musst. Phool v. Goor Surun 546, 772
Musst Purnia v. Torab Ally 786
Musst. Ram v. Babu Bishen 594
Musst. Ramdee v. Baboo Shib . 594
Musst. Safiqunissa v. Shabun Ali 323, 547
Musst Sahordan v. Joy Narain 645
Musst. Shunemokee v. Isan Chunder . . . 842
Musst. Surajmani v. Rabi Nath Ojha 724
Musst. Ushrufoonessa v. Baboo Gridhare .. 291
Musst Ustoorun v. Baboo Mohun . 481
Musst. Zaynub v. Hadjee Baba 310 312
Mustapha Sahe v. Santha Pillai 693
Muthoora Dass v. Kanoo Beharee 654
Muthuvaiyan v. Sinna Samavaiyan 785, 794
Muttayan Chetti v. Sangli Vira 655
Muttiya Pillai v. Western 569
Muttu Karuppa v. Rama Pillai 246
Muttu Ramalinga v. Periunayagam Pillai .. 352
Muttu Ramalinga v. Setupati 656
Muttusawmy Jagavera v. Vencataswara 423
Mutty Lall v. Anundo Chunder . 580
Mylne, In the goods of 540 738

N

Nadiar Chand v. Chunder Sikhur 636
Nagalingam Pillai v. Rama Chandra 724
Nagappa v. Devu . 989, 990
Nagarji Trikanji, In re . 695
Nagar Mall v. Azeemoollah .. 776
Naginbhai v. Abdullah . 637, 740, 741
Nagindas Harivandas v. Kara Jesang 758
Nagore Monee v. Smith .. 691
Nainappa Chetti v. Chidambaram Chetti 372
Nallathambi v. Nellakumara 71, 383
Nallappa Goundan v. Kailappa Goundan 667
Nana v. Shanker 235
Nanak Ram v. Mehin Lall 101, 102
Nana Narain v. Huree Puntu .. 461
Nanda Lal v. Jagneswar Halder 662, 664
Nanda Lal Goswami v. Atarmani Dasee 743
Nandkishore Das v. Ramkalp Roy 453
Nangali v. Raman 991
Nanku Ram v. I. M. R. Co . 727
Nanomi Babusin v. Modhun Mohun 657
Naracott v. Naracott .. 428, 434
Naragunty Lutchmeedavamah v. Vengama Naidoo 7, 128, 516, 647, 723
Narain Chunder v. Cohen . 400
Narain Chunder v. Dataram Roy . 744
Narain Coomary v. Ram Kishna 213 214
Narain Dhara v. Rakhal Gain .. 731
Narainee Dossee v. Nurrohurry Mohunto . 223
Narain Kuar v. Chandi Din .. 325
Narain Singh v. Nurendro Narain 361
Narangi Bhikabai v. Dipa Umed 163, 174
Narayan v. Chintaman 655
Narayan v. Lakshmandas . 503
Narayan v. Political Agent . 673
Narayan v. Raoji . 779, 780
Narayan Bhagwant v. Sriniwas Trimbak . . 682
Narayan Ganesh v. Bhirraj 640
Narayan Kandu v. Kaigunda . 770
Narayan Undir v. Motilal Ramdas . . . 776
Narendra Lal v. Jogi Hari 713, 714
Narendra Narain v. Bishen Chundra 671
Narendra Nath v. Ram Gobind . 703
Naro Vinayak v. Nahari Bin 159
Narsidas Jitram v. G. Joglekar . 769
Narsing Das v. Rahimanbhai 758, 781, 784
Narsing Dyal v. Ram Narain 136, 144, 158 781
Narsing Narain v. Dharam Thackur 661, 687
Nasarvan v. Rasji . .. 752
Nazir Jhandar v. R. .. 257, 258, 263
Nash v. Inman 668
Natha Hari v. Jamne 679
Natha Singh v. Jodha Singh .. 646

	PAGE
Nathu Ram v. Kalya	390
Nathubhai v. Mulchand .	757
Nawab Azimut v. Hurdwaree Mull..	771
Nawab Khan v. Rughoonath Das ..	922
Nawab Shah Ara Begam v Nanbi Begam	321
Nawab Sidhee v Rajah Ojoodhya-ram .. .	772, 843
Nawab Syed v. Musst. Amanee	645, 670, 716
Nawab Tarasseed v Behari Lall ..	661
Nawabunissa v Fuzloonissa .	729
Nazir Sidhee v. Womesh Chunder .	665
Neal v. Erving .. .	137, 224
Neal v Parkin .	145
Neamut Ali v Gooroo Doss	163, 168, 171
Neel Kanto v. Jaggabundho Ghose	112, 466, 499
Neave v. Moss . . .	792
Neelkisto Deb v Beer Chunder	166, 647. 723
Nehal Chunder v. Hurree Petshad..	671
Neile v Jakle	138, 147, 148
Neill v. Devonshire .	159. 169
Nelson v. Bridport .	398
Nelson v. Whittal .. .	732
Nelson Line Limited v. Nelson & Sons .. .	554
Nemaganda v Paresha . .	372
Nemi Chand v Wallace .. .	902
Nepean v. Doe	682
Newaj Bundopadhya v. Kali Pro sonno Ghose	662, 671
Newsome v. Flowers .. .	762
Newton v Belcher .. .	291
Newton v Chaplin .. .	905
Newton v Harland .. .	838
Newton v. Leddiard .	291, 753
Nga Tha Yah v F. N Burn ..	635
Niamutoolah Khadim v Himmut Ali	216, 223, 537
Nibaran Chandra Roy v R	112, 644, 715. 716. 727
Nicholas v Asphar ..	315, 700
Nicol & Co v. Castle	122
Nicholl v Jones . ..	819
Nicolls, In re	732
Nicholls v Dowding ..	231, 864, 867
Nicholls v. Downes . ..	214
Nicholson v. Smith	249
Nidha Chowdhry v Bunda Lal ..	751
Nidhee Singh v. Bisso Nath ..	771
Nidhikrishna Bose v Nistarini Dasi	144
Nielson v Watt	624
Nilakandhen v. Padmanabha .	162
Nilkanth Surmal v. Soosela Debia..	812
Nilkristo Deb v. Bir Chandra	459, 460
Nilmani Maitra v. Mathura Nath ..	663
Nil Monee v. Zuheerunissa Khanum . .	320, 640, 776
Nilmoney Bhooya v Ganga Narain	651
Nilmony Mukhopadhya v. Amunisa Bibee	393
Nilo Ramchandra v Gobind Ballal	749
Nilratan Mandal v Ismail Khan	663, 742
Nimboo Sahoo v Boodhoo Jummadar	776
Ningawa v Bharmappa	130, 131, 205, 298, 306, 307, 308, 309, 312 315, 344, 705, 706
Ningawa v Ramappa . ..	482
Nirmul Chunder v Srimati Sarat-mani . ..	499
Nisa Chand v Kanchiram Bagani	691, 692
Nistarini v Kalipershad Dass	634, 639, 661
Nistarini Dossee v Nundo Lall	389, 390, 391, 393, 394, 623. 697, 894 902, 993
Nitrasut Singh v Nund Lall .	665
Nitia Pal v Jai Pal .	185
Nittanand Ghose v Krishna Dyal ..	721
Nittyanund Roy v Abdar Rabeem .	515
Nittyanund Roy v Banshi Chandra	636
Nitya Gopal v Nagendra Nath	502, 505
Nityanund Surmah v Kashinath Nyalunker . .	388
Niven v Belknap .. .	767
Nobin Chunder v Dhokhbala Dasi	638, 649, 740
Nobin Krishno v Russik Lal ..	509
Nobin Mundul v Cholim Mullick	743
Nobo Coomar v Gobind Chunder	358, 359, 361
Nobodoorga, In re	129, 674
Nobodoorga v. Dwarkanath Roy ..	741
Nobo Kishore v Joy Doorga ..	676
Nocoor Chunder v Ashutosh Mukerjee	600
Nogendrabala Dabee v. R ..	155
Noor Bibee v Shaik Rumzan ..	985
Noor Bux v R.	282, 283, 848, 910
Norden Steam Ship Co. v. Dempsey	624
Norendra Nath v. Kamalbasini Dasi	8
North v. Miles	241
North-Eastern Railway v Hastings	614
Noshai Mistri v R	331
Nowcouree Chunder v Birmomoyee Debea	667
Nubo Kant v Mahatab Bibee ..	729
Nubo Kishen v Promothonath Ghose	679
Nuddarchand Shaha v. Meajan ..	741
Nujmoolden Ahmed v Beebee Zuhoorun	729
Nulhit Chunder v Bugola Soonduree	656

PAGE.

Nund Coomar v. Gunga Pershad .. 654
Nund Dhunpat v. Tara Chand .. 348
Nund Kishore v Sheo Dyal .. 691
Nund Panda v. Gvadhur 235
Nundo Kumar v. Bonomally Gayan 763, 769
Nundo Lall v Nistarini Dassi .. 994
Nundo Lall v. Prosunno Moyee .. 580
Nund Ram v. Chootoo 651
Nundun Lal v Tayler 771
Nunno Lall Serowfee v. Sawala Prasad . . 193
Nur Mahomed v Bismulla Jan .. 804
Nuronath Dass v. Goda Kohta 651, 655
Nurrohurry Mohunto v Naraimee Dassee . .. 232
Nursingh Das v. Narain Das 651
Nursing Naram v. Roghoobur Singh 769
Nyamutullah v. Gobind Churn 164
Nynakka Rowthen v Vavana Mahomed . . . 990
Nyc v Macdonald 447, 539

O

Oakeley v Ooddeen 630
Obhoy Chunder v Pearee Mohun . 227
Obhoy Churn v. Gobind Chunder 649, 652
Obhoy Churn v Hari Nath 650, 684, 711, 711
Obhoy Churn v. Lukhy Monee 645
Obhoy Churn v Nobin Chunder . 773
Obhoy Churn v. Punchanan Bose 771
Obhoy Churn v. Treelochun Chatterjee . . 772
Obhoy Churn v Uma Churn 675
Obhoy Gobind v. Beejoy Gobind 222, 780
Ochanram v. Dolatram . 388
O'Connell's Case . . 902
O'Connor v Marjoribanks 808, 809
Official Receiver, Ex parte .. 391
Ofner (in re) . . . 606
Ogra Kant v. Mohes Chunder .. 667
Olpherts v. Mahabir Pershad . 460
Omer Dutt v Bum . 163, 171
Omeron v Dowick . 444
Omesh Chunder v Dukhina Soondry . 660 742
Omrita Lall v Kalee Pershad 537
Omrunissa Bibee v Dilawar Ally 685
Omychund v Barker . 3
O'Neill v Read . . 212
Onkarappa v Subaji Pandurang 743
Onraet v Kishen Soonduree . 645
Oodey Chand v. Bhasker Jagonnath 681
Oolagappa Chetty v Collector of Trichinopoly 702
Oomabuttee v Pareshnath Pandey 230

PAGE.

Oomda Bibee v. Shah Jonab .. 720
Oomut Fatima v. Bhujo Gopal 111, 358
Oriental Government Security Life Ass Co v Narasimha Chari 452, 659, 869, 893
Oriental Govt. Security Life Ass Co. v. Surat Chandra 126, 659
Oriental Life Assurance Co. v. Narasimha Chari .320, 321, 322, 463
O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke .. 4
O'Rourke v. Commissioner for Railways .. . 806
Osborne v Chacqueel 137
Osborne v. London Dock Co . 823
O'Shea v Wood 816, 817
Oudh Behari, In re . . 111

P

Pachaiperumal Chettiar v Dasi Thangam . . . 840
Padam Lal v Tek Singh . . 724
Paddock v. Forester . 247, 248
Page v Findley 712
Pahalwan Singh v Mahajah Mahesh Buksh 618
Paine v Tilden 891
Palakdhari Rai v Manners 186, 921
Palaneappa Chetti v Maung Po Sang 640
Palmer's Case . 141
Panchu Das v R 117, 304
Panchu Mondul v R . 398, 408
Pandaipa Talaver v. Puli Telaver 702, 703
Pandit Gaya Parshad Tewari v Sardar Bhagat Singh .. . 338
Pandit Hanuman v Mufti Assadullah . . 757
Panduranga v. Nagappa . . 672
Pandya Nayak, In the matter of the petition of 643
Panna Lal v Srimati Ramasundari 698
Pannappa Pillai v Pappudayyangar 657
Papendick v Bridgewater 236 314
Pappi Anterjenam v Jeyyan Nayer 731
Paramma v Ramachandra . 681
Param Singh v Lalji Mal 4, 747, 772, 775
Paranjpe v Kanade . . 389
Parbati Charn v Raj Krishna . 660
Parbati Kumari v. Jagadis Chunder 721
Parbutti Dassi v Ram Chand . 684
Parbutty Dassi v Purno Chander 351, 352
Parell v Macnamara . .. 386
Pardoe v Price 469
Pareman Dass v Bhattro Mahton .. 657
Parfitt v. Lawless .. . 699

Parker v. S E R. Co 698
Parker v. Lewis 389
Parkin v. Moon .. . 881
Parmanand Misser v Sahib Ali 665
Parnell v Wood . .. 996
Parsons v London County Council 388
Parsotam Narain v Taley Singh . 987
Partab Singh v. Chitpal Singh . 647
Parton v. Cole .. . 560, 561
Partridge v Bere .. 787
Partridge v Coates .. . 483
Parvatibayamma v Ramakrishna Rai 773
Pasley v. Freeman .. 189
Pasumarty Jagappa, In the matter of 875
Pasupati v Narayana . . 790
Patch v. Ward .. 391
Patel Kilabhai v Hargovan Mansukh 186
Patel Vandravan v. Patel Manilal 164, 185, 316
Pathammal v. Kalai Raduthar 575, 587, 626
Patman v. Harland . . 198
Pattabhiramier v Venkatarow Naiken . .. 160
Patterson v. McCausland . 449
Paxton v Douglas 826
Peacable v. Watson . .. 315
Peacock v Bell . . 736
Peacock v Harper . 248
Peacock v Harris .. 144
Pearce v Decker .. . 415
Pearce v. Foster . .. 816
Pearl Mohun v Drobomoyi Dabia 73, 172, 173, 183
Peary Mohun Mukerjee v Jote Kumar Mukerjee 184
Pearson v LeMaitre 189
Peddamuthulaty v. Timma Reddy 782
Pedda Venkatappa v Arookala Roodrapa 742
Pedru v Domingo . .. 648
Peek v Derry 765
Peek v. Gurney . . 764
Pemraj Bhavaniram v. Narayan Shivaram . .. 692
Penny v. Hanson 200
Penruddock v Hammond .. 818
Penwarden v. Roberts 503
People v Holbrook 563
Perceval v Nanson 316
Perhlad Sein v Rajender Kishna Singh 667
Permanandas Jeewandas, In re . 782
Perry v. Gibson .. 839, 862
Perry v. Mellowcroft 381
Perry v Phosphor Bronze .. 996
Perry v. Smith 816
Pershad Singh v Ram Pertab . 8
Pertab Udai v Mast Das . 349
Parton, In re 215, 682
Perumal Sethurayar v M Ramalinga Sethurayar .. 164
Petamber Manikjee v Motechand Manikjee .. 680
Petch v Lyon . 229
Pethierpermal Chetty v Muniandy Servai 772, 773
Petrie v Nuttall . 382
Peyton v St Thomas' Hospital . 227
Phanindra Nath Mitter v R 856
Pheloo Monee v Greesh Chunder 580
Phelps v Prew 101 484, 822, 824, 904
Phene's Trusts, In re 682, 732
Philip Esnouf v Att.-Gen for Jersey 924
Philipson v Earl of Egremont 389
Phillips v Cole 129
Phillips v Gomes 857
Phillips v Martin . 915
Philpott v St George's Hospital 101
Phul Chand v Man Singh 659
Phul Kuar v Surjan Pandy . 7
Pickard v Sears 751, 754, 767 770, 777, 778, 779
Pickering, Re 815
Pickering v Noyes 823
Picket v Packham . 683
Piggott v E C R Co 137
Pinney v Hunt 566
Pinney v Pinney 566
Pipe v Fulcher 326
Pirthee Singh v Sheo Soondaree . 723
Pirthee Singh v The Court of Wards 515
Pisani v Att.-Gen. of Gibraltar 751, 752
Pitamberdas v Jamusar Town Municipality . .. 788
Pitt v. Coombes 839
Pitumber Dass v Ruttan Bullub Dass 128
Plaice v. Allock . .. 187
Plaxton v Dare . 318, 326
Plower v Berry 702
Plumber v. Brisco . .. 737
Plumer v. Plumer .. 224, 227
Poe v. Darrah 712
Pogha Mahtoon v Guru Baboo . 214
Pogose v. Bank of Bengal 590, 594
Pogose v. Mokoond Chunder 358, 359
Pointer v. U. S 142
Pollock v. Garle 996
Ponindra Nath Sen v. Hemangini Dasi 607

PAGE

Ponnamal v. Sundaram Pillai 349, 352, 516
Pontifex v. Bignold 733
Pooley v. Goodwin 738
Poolin Beharee v. Watson & Co 217, 634, 678
Poote v Hayne 818
Poreman Dass v. Bhattu Mahton .. 659
Poresh Naraın v. Kassi Chunder .. 789
Poreshnath Mookerjee v. Anath Nath 239
Porter v. Moorce 767
Porter v. Incell .. 239, 762
Postlethwaite, Re . 815
Postlethwaite v. Rickman . 820
Pothi Reddi v Velayudasivan 559, 986, 987
Poulett Peerage Case . . 704
Poulton v. Adjustable Cover, &c, Co. 372
Pound v. Wilson . 882, 883
Powell v Browne . .. 776
Powell v. Knox 711
Powell v. Laytor . . 387
Powell v. Smith . 734
Powers, Re . 234
Prabhakarbhat v Vishwambhar Pandit 102
Prahlad Sen v. Budhu Singh . 358
Prahlad Sen v. Rajendra Kishor . 356
Pranal Anni v. Lakshmi Anni . 990
Pranjivandav v Moyaram 379
Pranjivang Govardhandass v Baju 777
Prankishen Paul v Mothoora Mohan 650, 723
Pran Krishna v Jadu Nath . 505
Prayag Raj v Sidhu Prasad Tewari 783
Pran Kisto v Bhageerutee Gooptea 649, 723
Pran Nath v. Jado Nath . .. 380
Prannath Roy v. Rookhea Begum 775
Pratt v. Blunt v Blunt Cornfoot 112
Prayag Raj v Sidhu Prasad Tewari 239
Premchand Dowlatram, In re 863
Prem Chand v Huree Das 690
Prem Chand v. Suraj Ranjan . 668
Prem Chand v Surendra Nath 676
Premji Trikamdas v Madhowji Munji 787
Prem Sookh v Pirthee Ram 229
Preonath Koer v. Kazi Mahomed Shazed 772
Preonath Shaha v Madhu Sudan 580, 592
Preston v Morcesu 571
Price v. Burva . 148
Price v. Manning 881
Price v. Page . . 611
Price v. Torrington 305
Price v. Woodhouse 147
Price & Co v. Union Lighterage Co 354

PAGE.

Priestman v. Thomas . . 392
Primrose, In the goods of 535, 539
Prince v. Samo 368, 862
Prince Mahomed v. Rani Dhojamani 642
Pritchard v. Bagshawe .. 242
Pritchard v Draper .. 240
Pritchard v. Hitchcock .. 386, 387
Prit Koer v Mahadeo Pershad Singh 650
Priyanath Chatterjee v Bissessur Dass 641
Probat Chandra Gangapadhya v Chirag Ali 563, 662
Probhakar Tehari v Raja Baidya Nath Pundit . .. 712
Proctor v Bennis 767, 768, 787
Proctor v Lainson 333
Proctor v. Smiles 817, 822
Promotha Nath v Dwarka Nath 987
Prosunno Chunder v Land Mortgage 358, 689
Prosunno Coomar v Koylash Chunder 786
Prosunno Kumar v Secy. of State for India 736, 742
Prosunno Kumar v Kali Das 646
Prosunno Kumar v Mahabharat 794
Prosunno Kumari v Golab Chund 655
Prosunno Nath v Tripoora Soonduree . 986
Protab Chander v Ranee Surnomoyee 537
Protab Chunder v Arathoon 75
Protab Chunder v R 118
Pryanath Chatterjee v Bissessur Dass 506
Pryer v Gribble 752
Public Prosecutor v Bonigiri Pottigadu 442
Puchai Khan v A d Sirdai 645
Puddo Monee v Jholla Polly 790
Pudmavati v Doolar Singh 130
Pulin Beharee v Watson & Co 216
Punardeo Narain v Ram Sarup 101
Punchanan Banerjee v Raj Kumar 664
Puran Chunder v Grish Chunder 508
Purna Dai v Jai Narain . 652
Pureeag Lall v Ram Jewan 699
Purmanandas Jewandas, In re 555, 556, 761, 781
Purmanandas Jivandass v Cormak 787
Purmeshur Chowdhury v Bijoy Lall 601
Purnima Chowdrain v Nittanund Shah . . 458
Purseed Narain v Bissessur Dyal 661, 672
Pursid Narayan v. Hanuman Sahay 678

PAGE

Pushong v. Munia Halwani 696, 697
Pyari Lall, In the matter of 8, 102, 103, 331, 333, 334, 335
Pye, Ex parte 734
Pyke v Crouch 336
Pym v. Campbell .. 576, 597

Q.

Quartz Hill Co, Re 855
Queen's Case 124, 155, 368, 862, 869
Queen's Estate, In re . 199
Queen's Proctor v. Fry . 350
Quilter v. Jorss .. . 484

R.

R v Abaji Ramchandra 197
R. v Abdool Setar . 842
R. v Abdool Wadood Ahmed 201
R v. Abdul Kadir .. . 644
R. v. Abdullah 6, 7, 8, 9, 100, 126, 138, 139, 143, 145, 303, 463, 865
R v Adam . 709
R v Adamson 575
R v Adey . 826
R v. Affazuddeen . 841 842
R. v. Ahmad 856
R v Ahmed Ally . 117
R v. Aickles . .. 563
R v Alagappan Bali 278, 281, 286, 287, 288
R. v. Alerton 700
R. v. Ali Husain . 708
R v. Allen 116, 131
R v. Allison . 424
R v. Alloomiya Hassan 202, 203, 430, 431, 918, 919
R v. Alloo Paroo . .. 102
R v. Alogu Kone .. . 902
R. v. Amanoollah Moolah 507, 508, 509
R v Amba Prasad 202
R v Ambergate Ry Co. .. 782
R v Ambigara Hulagu .. 286, 287
R. v. Amir Khan 143, 151, 153, 154, 831
R. v. Amiruddin 153, 364, 448, 906
R. v. Amrita Govinda 128, 131, 218, 281, 282, 283, 918
R. v. Annya 281
R. v Anunto Chuckerbutty 801, 904
R. v. Anuntram Singh 252
R. v Appa Subbana .. . 841
R. v. Appleby .. . 148
R. v. Arjun Megha 870
R. v. Arnall .. 143, 223
R. v. Arshed Ali 424
R. v. Arumugam 510, 513, 515, 832
R. v. Ashgar Ali 256, 257, 258, 260, 261, 802
R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 7, 8, 9, 100, 107, 111, 112, 114, 166, 284, 285, 286, 287, 289
R v Ashruff Sheikh 802
R v. Avery 802
R. v Babaji 218, 283, 286, 840
R. v. Babu Lall 209, 210, 254, 255, 257, 262, 263, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 271, 272, 273, 274
R v Baddry 210, 160, 161, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 169, 170, 171, 172
R v Bahar Ali .. 141
R v Bajoa Chowdhry 129, 282, 283, 287, 288, 834
R v Baikuntnath Banerjee 832, 833
R v Bailey . 204
R v Bajo Hurn 709
R v Bakhooree Chowbey .. 836
R. v Bakur Khan . 282
R v Bala Dharma 812
R v Bala Patel 281
R v Baldeo Sahai . 855
R v Baldry 250, 260
R v Bal Gangadhar 148, 202, 837
R v Balkrishna Vithal 101 103, 643, 678, 840
R. v Ball 194, 881
R v Balvant Pendharkar 253, 254, 256
R v Balya Dagdu . .. 253
R v. Banwaree Lall 282, 283
R. v Barnard 834
R v. Bartlet 143
R. v Baru Navar 288
R v. Bashya 270
R. v. Basvanta 250, 252, 253, 254, 337
R. v Bate 259, 275, 802
R. v. Bayaji Kom Undu . 285, 288, 289
R. v. Beauchamp . . 832
R v Beddingfield 143
R v. Bedfordshire . 296, 297, 317
R. v. Beharee 116, 117, 143, 192, 430
R v Behari Sing .. 117, 257
R. v Behary Lall 802
R. v Belancy 43
R. v Belat Ali .. 278, 282, 283
R v Bepin Biswas 284, 286, 288, 643, 826, 833, 834, 892, 894
R. v Bertrand . 111, 924
R. v Beshor Bewa .. . 218
R v Bhairab Chunder 246
R. v Bhairam Singh 253
R. v Bharma 837
R. v. Bharmappa 254
R. v. Bhavanrao Vithalrao .. 516
R v Bhawani 286

	Page.
R. v. Bhima	263
R. v. Bhista	116
R. v Bholanath Sen	116, 131, 806, 807
R. v. Bholu ..	102, 451, 680
R. v. Bhoobun Isher	842
R. v. Bhuttun Rujwan ..	211, 254, 255
R. v. Bidhyapatti	433
R. v. Bindabun Bowree	870
R. v Birdseye	134
R. v. Birmingham .. .	315
R v. Bishonath Pal	131, 337, 842, 865, 892, 893
R. v. Bissen Nath .	892, 894
R v. Bissorunjun Mukerjee	294, 302
R. v. Blackburn ..	258, 261
R. v. Blake ..	154, 314
R. v. Blechynden	302
R. v Bleesdale ..	192
R. v. Bliss	145, 146, 317
R v. Boidnath Singh	252
R. v. Bond	136, 196, 202, 204
R. v. Borrett	145
R. v. Boswell .	258, 261
R v Boyes	825, 828, 829, 834, 835
R. v. Brackenbury ..	277, 278
R v. Bradlaugh . .	802
R. v Braintree ..	465, 489
R v. Brandeth .. .	154
R v. Brewer .. .	814
R. v Brice .	802
R. v. Brooke ..	855
R. v Brown .	820, 887, 917
R v. Buckley .	138, 305
R. v Budd . .	711
R. v. Budder-ud-deen .	117, 254
R v Budh Lal .. .	709
R. v. Budhoobai	644
R v Budhu Nanku	287, 288, 833, 834
R. v. Bull	334
R. v. Burdett ..	115, 861
R. v. Burke	330, 331, 335, 708, 709
R. v. Burley . ..	278
R v. Burton . ..	709
R. v. Bushmo Anent . .	264
R. v. Bussiruddi .. .	279
R. v. Bykant Nath .	428, 430
R v. Bysagoo Noshyo . .	211
R. v. Carey . .	904
R. v. Carter .. .	187
R. v Cass	261
R. v. Cassy Mul .. .	187
R. v. Custer	116
R. v Castle Morton	559
R. v. Castor . ..	406
R. v. Chaddi Khan . ..	806

	Page.
R. v. Chagan Dayaram ..	5, 828, 830, 831, 832, 834
R. v. Chait Ram	992
R. v Chando Chandalinee	828, 829
R v. Chandra Nath ..	284, 285
R v. Chand valad .	280, 288
R. v. Chapman	881
R. v Charoo	841
R v. Chatur Purshotum ..	288, 834
R. v Cheadle	626
R v. Cherath Choyi .. .	800
R v. Chidda Khan	101
R v. Chinna Pavuchi .	280, 281
R. v. Chokoo Khan	218
R v. Chota Jadub ..	993
R. v Christopher ..	564
R. v. Chullundee Potamanick ..	218
R. v. Chunder Bhattacharjee	284, 285, 288, 289
R. v Chunderkant Chuckerbutty ..	814
R v. Chunder Koomar ..	128
R. v. Chutteidharee Singh	111, 828, 833, 834
R. v Clarke	917
R v Clewes .	138, 218, 251, 258, 275, 276, 728
R. v Cobden . ..	134
R v. Cole .	136, 194, 728
R v Coley	261
R v Commer Sahib	269, 273, 274
R v Conde . .	140
R v Cook . .	143
R v. Cooper	143, 197, 258, 709, 728
R. v Cotton .	204, 728
R. v Court .	250, 259
R. v Courvoisier .	143
R. v Cox .	148, 820
R v Cox and Railton .	812, 814, 818
R. v Coyle .. .	148
R v. Cramp .	143
R v Cray .	203
R v Crooks . .	917
R v. Crouch	416
R. v Croydon . ..	258
R v Dabee Pershad .	209, 264
R v. Dada Ana	112, 218, 219, 253, 254, 255, 257, 449
R v. Daji Narsu .	279, 282, 283
R v Dala Jiva	802
R. v. Dale .	193, 204
R. v. Dan Sahai	870
R. v. Daulat Kungra . ..	304
R. v. Dey ..	337, 905
R. v. Daye	474, 485, 825, 839
R. v. Degumber Thakoor ..	302

	PAGE.
R. v. Densley	708
R. v. Deodhar Singh	829
R. v. Deoki Nandan	806
R. v. Derrington	277
R. v. Despard	829
R. v. Devji Govindji	677
R. v. Dhamba Poshya	644
R. v. Dhunno Kazi	644
R. v. Dhun Singh	678
R. v. Dhurum Dutt	257, 261, 269
R. v. Dina Bandhu	880
R. v. Dingley	261
R. v. Dixon	733, 839, 904
R. v. Doherty	196
R. v. Domun Kahar	263, 266
R. v. Donaghue	108
R. v. Donellan	40, 143
R. v. Donelly	806, 807
R. v. Dosa Jiva	286, 287, 288
R. v. Dossaj Ghulam	320, 366
R. v. Dossett	728
R. v. Downer	228, 229, 820
R. v. Drage	187
R. v. Drew	258
R. v. Drummond	303
R. v. Durbarou Dass	270
R. v. Durga Sonar	529
R. v. Durgaya	256
R. v. Durant	825
R. v. Dwarka	833, 834
R. v. Dwarkanath Dutt	133
R. v. East Fairlie	489
R. v. Edge	474
R. v. Edmunds	138
R. v. Eduljee Byramjee	924
R. v. Egerton	137
R. v. Elahi Bux	8, 113, 459, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834
R. v. Elizabeth Sippets	213
R. v. Elliott	836
R. v. Ellis	134, 137, 195, 278
R. v. Etwaree Dharee	330
R. v. Exeter	314, 315
R. v. Fagent	304
R. v. Fairie	137, 216
R. v. Fakirappa	7, 132, 133, 134, 195
R. v. Fakir Mahomed	152, 160, 408
R. v. Farlar	831, 833
R. v. Farley	819
R. v. Farr	473
R. v. Farrell	230
R. v. Farrington	733
R. v. Fata Adaji	304
R. v. Fatik Biswas	524, 528, 806
R. v. Fattah Chand	807
R. v. Fennel	261
R. v. Fenton	474
R. v. Fernand	258
R. v. Firth	134
R. v. Fisher	643, 734
R. v. Fitzgerald	304
R. v. Fitzsimons	563
R. v. Flaherty	216, 223
R. v. Flanagan	138
R. v. Fontaine Moreau	385, 388
R. v. Foster	188, 197
R. v. Fowkes	132
R. v. Francis	129, 193, 197, 204, 458
R. v. Fursey	151
R. v. Gadbury	432
R. v. Gallagher	834
R. v. Ganapabhat	286, 287, 288
R. v. Gandfield	145
R. v. Ganesh	145
R. v. Ganga Prasad	826, 840
R. v. Ganbia	255
R. v. Ganraj	282, 283
R. v. Ganu	832
R. v. Ganu Sonba	829
R. v. Garner	204, 257, 259, 260, 728
R. v. Gavin	278
R. v. Gazaid	805
R. v. Gearing	204, 728
R. v. Gharya	255
R. v. Gholam Ismail	104
R. v. Ghulam Mustafa	875
R. v. Ghulet	8, 836, 837
R. v. Gibbons	258, 814
R. v. Gibson	917, 923
R. v. Gilhan	259, 814
R. v. Gillis	259
R. v. Girjashankar Kashiram	678
R. v. Gloster	190, 194, 302
R. v. Gobardhan	143, 257, 830, 831
R. v. Godai Raut	830
R. v. Goddard	143
R. v. Gogalio	456
R. v. Gonowri	527
R. v. Gokool Kahair	116
R. v. Gookool Bowree	192
R. v. Gopal Doss,	6, 102, 103, 798, 799, 800, 806, 807, 809, 811, 825, 826, 827, 872, 873
R. v. Gopal Thakoor	430
R. v. Gopeenath Kollu	211
R. v. Gopee Noshyo	841
R. v. Gora Chand	192
R. v. Gordon	116, 189
R. v. Gould

	Page.
R v Gour Chand ..	218, 805
R. v Govind Babli ..	282, 283
R v. Grant ..	.. 797
R. v. Gray ..	.. 728
R. v. Green ..	188, 259
R v Greenacre ..	.. 143
R. v. Greenaway ..	.. 904
R. v. Grees Chunder ..	343, 352
R. v. Griffin .	. 814
R v. Grish Chunder	849, 911
R v Gunesh Koormee .	. 253
R v. Gungadhur Bhunjo	. 806
R. v Gunnel ..	.. 197
R. v. Gutah ..	. 733
R. v. Guttridge ..	. 190
R v. Hammond Page .	.. 387
R. v. Hanmant ..	828, 832
R v Hanmanta 213, 214, 226, 260,	308, 345, 802
R. v Hannah More	.. 256
R v. Haradhan ..	. 643
R. v. Hardewa .	. 288
R v. Harding .	. 259
R v. Hardwick .	153, 233, 258
R. v. Hardy .	154, 811
R v Hargrave	. 828
R v Hari .	709
R. v Hari Charan .	. 870
R. v Hari Lakshman .	826, 914
R. v Harimaniram	708
R v Harvey	508
R v Hawkins	726
R. v. Hàworth	563
R v Haynes	142
R v Hayward .	820
R v Hearn .	259, 261
R v. Hedger 8, 115, 116, 141,	155, 388, 417, 471, 835, 837
R. v. Heramun	.. 143
R. v Heeson ..	138, 204
R v Hesseltine .	. 412
R. v Hewitt	. 275
R. v. Heyford .	313
R v Hicks	256, 257, 258, 259
R v Hildrich ..	841, 844
R v Hill	733, 801
R. v. Hind ..	303
R. v. Hira Lall .	. 806
R. v Hodges .	112
R. v Holden .	. 644
R. v. Hollamby	432
R. v. Holmes ..	259
R. v. Holt ..	. 451
R. v Holy Trinity, Hull	. 561
R. v. Hosseinee .	. 809

	Page.
R v. Howes ..	275, 276
R. v. Howgill ..	.. 193
R. v. Hunt ..	146, 151, 474
R v. Hurdeep Sahoy	342, 343
R v. Hurdut Surma ..	.. 900
R. v Hurribole Chunder 262, 263,	264, 266, 832, 918, 919, 923, 924
R. v. Hussein Gaibu .	.. 396
R. v Hussein Haji ..	.. 803
R. v Hyder Jolaha ..	.. 210
R. v Iles	.. 387
R v Imam ..	831, 833, 834
R. v. Imdad Khan ..	.. 833
R v. Ings .	116, 117, 483
R. v. Inhabitants of Brampton .	424
R v Inhabitants of Brightside ..	384
R v Inhabitants of Gloucestershire	727
R v Inhabitants of Harborne .	727
R v Inhabitants of Lower Heyford	. 311
R. v Inhabitants of Padstow .	560
R v Inhabitants of Mansfield	702, 703
R v Isham Dutt .	842, 354, 855
R. v Ishri	117, 143, 643
R. v Ishri Singh	336, 894, 911
R. v. Ismal Valad .	888, 898
R v Jacobs .	259, 335
R v Jadab Das 252, 255, 263, 288,	744, 871, 899, 900, 914
R v Jaffir Ali 278, 279, 281, 282,	283, 287, 288, 834
R v Jagardeo Pandi	. 890
R v Jagat Chandra .	255, 260, 280
R v Jagrup 209, 210, 265, 279, 282
R v Jaichand Mundle	141
R v Jami	710
R v Jarvis	259, 260, 828
R v Jasha Bewa	258
R v Jata Poly	525
R v Javecharam	264, 265, 829
R. v Jenkins .	. 258
R v Jetoo	252
R v Jhubboo Mahton	. 918
R v Jhurree	. 211
R v Jibhai Vaja	. 903
R v Jogendra Chundra Bose	202
R v John .	148
R. v Johnson 190, 194, 207, 337, 489
R v Jones 218, 258, 261, 828
R. v Jora Haji 103, 143, 210, 268,	269, 270, 271, 273, 274, 501, 820
R v. Justices of Cambridgeshire ..	100
R. v Kader Nasyer .	449, 450, 678
R. v. Kala Chand ..	.. 834
R. v. Kalee Thakoor ..	.. 842

PAGE.

R. v. Kali Prasanno 623
R. v. Kaliyappa Gounden 285, 287, 288
R. v. Kallu .. 427, 424
R. v. Kally Churn .. 128, 210, 279
R. v. Kalu Mal 5
R. v. Kalu Patil .. 280, 281, 461
R v. Kamal Fukeer 270
R v. Kamalia 263, 266, 268, 271
R. v. Kangal Mali .. 210, 264, 265
R v. Kanye Sheikh . 841, 842
R. v. Karoo 832
R. v. Kartick Chunder 100, 428, 430, 431, 508, 509
R v. Kashinath Dinkar 253, 255, 644, 806, 876
R. v. Kazim Mundle 456
R. v. Kehri 289
R. v. Kelvie 255
R. v. Kenilworth .. . 489
R. v. Keshub Bhooma 282, 283
R v. Keshub Mohajan 171
R. v. Khandia .. 285, 286
R. v. Khem 837
R. v. Kheoraj 280
R. v. Khotab Seikh 832
R. v. Khukee Ooram .. 282, 283
R. v. Khyroollah .. . 6
R v. Kingham . 147
R v. Kinghorn .. . 996
R. v. Kisto Soonder . . 188
R. v. Koa . .. 830
R v. Kodai Kahar .. 257, 267
R v. Kola Lalang .. . 116
R. v. Koonjo Leth .. 287, 288
R. v. Kothia . . 802
R v. Krishnabhat 112, 286, 288, 833, 834
R v. Kristo Mundul 210
R. v. Kuarpala .. . 268
R v. Kulum Sheikh 430
R. v. Labouchere 201
R. v. Lakshman .. 733, 912
R. v. Lakshman Bala .. 284, 285
R. v. Lakshmoyya Pandaram 286, 832
R. v. Lalchand Kourah .. 836
R. v. Lal Sahai .. 801, 993, 994
R. v. Langmead 708
R. v. Laugher 258
R. v. Lester 266
R v. Leverson 816
R. v. Lillyman .. 140, 146, 147
R. v. Lingate 275
R. v. Little .. 882, 883
R. v. Llanfaethly 485
R. v. Lloyd .. 102, 230

PAGE.

R. v. Long .. 134, 260
R. v. Lord George Gordon 151
R v. Lord John Russell 485
R. v. Lord Thanet 805
R v. Luchmee Pershad .. 831
R v. Luckhurst .. 261
R. v. Luckhy Narain 333, 335, 336
R v. Luffe 700, 701, 702, 704
R v. Lukhun Santhal . 335
R. v. Madar . .. 257
R v. Madhab Chandra . 111, 115, 116, 117, 119, 716, 921
R v. Madho . 888, 889
R v. Madhub Giri . .. 4
R v. Magon Lall 828, 830, 831, 832
R v. Mahabir 255
R v. Mahomed Ibrahim . 265
R v. Mahomed Humayoon .. 836
R v. Maiku Lall . .. 855
R v. Malapa Bin 279, 281, 286, 287, 288, 833, 834, 892, 893, 894
R v. Malhari 709, 828, 829
R v. Mallory 128 113, 147, 148, 212, 241
R v. Mania Dayal . 219
R v. Manikam . .. 107
R v. Manning and wife 116
R v. Mannu 368, 871, 889, 899, 900
R v. Mannu Tamoolee . 252
R v. Mansfield 260, 261, 423, 702, 704
R v. Manwaring . 424
R v. Maru 628, 801, 919, 993
R. v. Matabadal .. . 837
R v. Mathews . 265, 266
R. v. Mathura Thakur . . 304
R. v. Mathura Prasad . 349
R. v. Mayadeb Gossami .. 331, 564
R v. McDonald .. 140, 146, 209, 203, 263, 264
R v. McGuire .. 924, 995
R. v. McKenna 155
R. v. Mead . .. 303
R v. Meade . .. 196
R v. Meher Ali 209, 265, 398, 412
R. v. Merthyr Tidvil 560
R. v. Meyer 806
R. v. Michael Stokes 142
R. v. Millen 258
R v. Mills 261
R. v. Milton 326
R. v. Misser Sheikh .. 253, 525
R v. Mitchell .. 294, 304, 305
R v. Mogg 192
R. v. Mohan Lall 211, 258, 259, 834
R v. Mohesh Biswas 282, 283, 286, 287, 288, 833

PAGE.

R. v. Mohima Chundra . 830, 832
R. v. Mohiuddin Sahib 830, 833
R. v. Mohun Banfor 337, 831, 841, 842
R. v. Mona Puna .. 127, 802, 829
R. v. Monmohun Roy 263, 266, 267
R. v. Moore .. 258, 550, 917
R. v. Morris 834
R. v. Moss 824, 826
R. v. Motee Jolaha .. 187, 708
R. v. Moulton Cox 212
R. v. Mowjan 330, 331, 333, 336, 337
R. v. Mugapa bin 837
R. v. Muhammad Hadi .. 856
R. v. Mukta Singh .. 803, 806, 807
R. v. Mullins 829
R. v. Mulu ..282, 283, 330, 331, 335
R. v. Mungul Dass .. 527, 564
R. v. Murarji Gokuldas 868
R. v. Murlis 863
R. v. Murphy 115, 154, 416, 843, 881, 884
R. v. Murray 700
R. v. Murarji Gokuldas . . 993
R. v. Murton 303
R. v. Musst. Itwarya .. 801, 994
R. v. Musst. Jena . .. 254
R. v. Musst. Lachoo .256, 257, 258, 260, 261, 263, 268, 276, 278
R. v. Nabadwip Goswami .. 250, 264, 277, 278, 444, 447, 714
R. v. Naba Kumar 187, 202, 431, 432
R. v. Naba Patnak .. . 432
R. v. Nadi Chand . .. 806
R. v. Naga 282, 285, 286, 288, 289
R. v. Nagla Kala 102, 263, 265, 266, 267
R. v. Nana .. 147, 209, 210, 265, 268, 270, 271, 273, 275
R. v. Nand Ram 337, 841, 842, 918, 919
R. v. Nande Khan 335
R. v. Nasr Bhaskar . .. 930
R. v. Narain Bagdee . . 187
R. v. Narain Tel 285
R. v. Narayan . 252, 253
R. v. Narayan Raghunath Patki 255
R. v. Nash .. . 733
R. v. Natu 802
R. v. Navroji Dadabhai ..131, 256, 257, 258, 260, 261, 276, 832, 917, 918, 919, 923, 924
R. v. Nawab Jan .. 832, 833
R. v. Neville 137, 216, 400
R. v. Newton 216, 223
R. v. Niaz Ali 618, 837
R. v. Nicholas 190, 194
R. v. Nidhee Ram 830
R. v. Nilmadhub Mitter .. 209, 252, 267
R. v. Ningappa 834
R. v. Nirmal Das 285
R. v. Nirunjun Singh 644
R. v. Nityo Gopal .. 218, 257
R. v. Noakes 834
R. v. Nobokisto Ghose 117, 197, 643
R. v. Nujam Ali 918
R. v. Nur Mahomed .. 188, 195, 279, 281, 283, 429
R. v. Nussuruddin .. 527, 528, 529
R. v. Obhoy Churn 828
R. v. O'Connell 146
R. v. Oddy 129
R. v. O'Hara 829, 830, 832, 833, 919, 924
R. v. Osburns .. 140, 146, 147
R. v. Pagaree Shaha 263, 268, 272, 273
R. v. Page 644
R. v. Pahuji .. 280, 281
R. v. Palany Chetty 836
R. v. Palmer 52, 138, 139, 141
R. v. Pancham 262, 263, 266, 268, 269, 271, 274, 275
R. v. Pandharinath 209, 210, 263, 265, 916
R. v. Paparsani 192, 680
R. v. Parbhudas 3, 124, 126, 134, 155, 157, 194, 195, 431, 918, 385
R. v. Parker 258
R. v. Parmeshar Aheer 708, 709
R. v. Parratt . 258, 261
R. v. Parridge . .. 709
R. v. Parsons . .. 155
R. v. Partridge . .. 261
R. v. Patch 49, 113, 139, 140
R. v. Pattna . 280
R. v. Payne . .. 802
R. v. Peacock . . 337
R. v. Pearce 137
R. v. Perkins .. 303
R. v. Pestanji Dinsha 454, 832
R. v. Petchirini . 146, 192, 196
R. v. Peter Ram 143
R. v. Petta Gazi . 117, 254, 26
R. v. Phanendra Nath Mitter 202, 644, 678
R. v. Pherozsha Pestonji .. 808
R. v. Phillips . 143, 188, 336
R. v. Philp . .. 216
R. v. Phoolchand .. 430, 431
R. v. Pike 303
R. v. Pirbhu .. 280, 281
R. v. Pitamber Jena 9, 100, 263, 264, 266, 832, 918, 919, 923, 924
R. v. Pitambur Singh 422, 424
R. v. Pitambur Sirdar 128, 850

	Page.
R. v. Plumer	207
R. v. Pohp Singh ..	526, 528, 714
R. v. Poroosullah Sikhdar ..	117
R. v. Pountney	258
R. v Price	104
R. v. Prosonno Chundra	331
R. v Prosunno Coomar	842
R. v. Punchanun Tantee	117
R. v. Purshottamdas Ranchoddas ..	695
R. v. Pyari Lall	7, 8, 330
R. v. Radha Nath Dosadh	260, 261
R. v. Raghunath ..	564, 841
R. v. Rahimat	101
R. v. Rai Ratan ..	252, 564
R. v. Raj Krishna ..	841, 842
R. v Rama Birapa ..	7, 146, 210, 256, 257, 258, 260, 261, 268, 270, 271, 273, 274, 285, 290
R. v Ramadhan Maharam ..	810
R. v. Raman	255
R. v. Ramanund	257
R. v. Ramanjiyya .	252, 265
R. v. Ramasami Padayachi	6, 830, 831, 916
R. v. Rama Sattu	302, 893, 918, 919
R v Ramdhan Singh	257, 258, 260, 269
R. v. Ram Chand	281
R v. Ram Chandra ..	714, 725
R. v Ramchandra Govind	127, 332, 336, 337, 853, 919, 923
R v Ram Chunder	865, 869
R. v. Ram Churn	115, 213, 269, 272, 278, 802
R. v. Ram Dutt ..	328
R. v. Ramgopaul Dhur ..	128
R. v. Rami Reddi ..	7, 329, 330, 335, 336, 337, 338
R. v. Ramji Sajabarao ..	837
R. v Ram Kishan . ..	855
R. v. Ram Lall	107
R. v. Ram Ruchea ..	117, 118, 127
R. v. Ram Rutton	413
R v Ram Sahoy	196
R v Ram Saran	280, 281, 286, 287, 288, 430, 431, 460, 830, 832, 833, 834
R. v. Ram Sewak	801
R. v. Ramsodoy Chuckerbutty	829, 994
R v. Ramswami Mudaliar ..	918
R. v. Ram Vayer	254
R. v Ramzan	445
R. v. Rangi . ..	254
R. v. Ranjeet Sonial	210
R. v. Raoji Fulchand ..	433 467
R. v. Rawden	560
R. v. Rearden	134
R. v. Reason ..	260, 461, 304
R. v Reed	564
R v Rees	278
R v. Reeve ..	259, 261
R v Reg. of Greenwich County Court . ..	230
R v Remedios . ..	802
R v Remnant ..	910
R. v Rhutten Ram . ..	192
R v Richards	260
R. v. Richardson	46, 192, 194, 203, 204, 728, 811
R v Rickman	151
R v Riding .	526, 714
R v Ridsdale . ..	140
R v. Rigg	330
R v. Riley ..	871, 890
R v Robinson	190
R v Rochia Mohato	303, 333, 338
R v Roden	127, 204 728
R v Rodrigues . ..	816
R v Rookni Kant . .	192
R v. Rooney	134, 151
R. v Ross .	836, 837
R v Rowland .	147
R v Rowton	430, 435, 436
R. v Rudra	295, 303
R. v. Roster . .	275
R v Russell .	839, 904
R v Sadhu Mundal ..	279, 285, 286, 287, 288, 830, 832, 833, 834
R. v. Saffron Hill . ..	489
R v. Sagal Samba	257, 833, 855, 884
R v Sageena	213, 264, 277
R v. Sahaden . .	806
R v Sakharam Makundji	155, 849, 878, 886, 913
R v. Salemudin Sheik ..	263
R v Salisbury . ..	134
R v. Sama Papi ..	263, 266
R. v Sami ..	133, 134, 143
R v Samiappa	527, 528, 827, 828
R. v Samiruddin .	187, 304, 899
R v Savage .	216, 223
R v Scaife .	304, 334
R. v Scammonden . ..	575
R v Scott	250
R v Seetanath Ghosal	716
R. v Sellers	303
R. v Sewa Bhogta .	801, 994
R v Sexton	259
R v. Shahbaut Sheikh	219
R v Sham Lall	146
R. v Shankar	829
R. v. Shava ..	801, 994

	Page.
R. v. Shaw ..	277, 387, 879
R. v. Sheikh Boodhoo ..	.. 218
R. v. Sheikh Buxoo ..	.. 280
R. v. Sheikh Choollye ..	.. 677
R. v. Sheikh Kyamut ..	841, 842
R. v. Sheikh Magon ..	.. 128
R. v. Sheikh Mustaffa ..	.. 141
R. v. Shepherd ..	258, 733
R. v. Sherrington ..	.. 276
R. v. Sib Chunder ..	.. 832
R. v. Shiboo Mundle ..	.. 431
R. v. Shippey ..	.. 138
R. v. Shivya 252, 523,	527, 528, 564
R. v. Shrimpton ..	.. 432
R. v. Shuruffooddeen ..	192, 197, 708
R. v. Shriniva Krishna ..	.. 830
R. v. Siddu ..	.. 349
R. v. Silverlock ..	397, 403, 404, 408, 508, 509
R. v. Simmonsto	215, 216, 219, 292
R. v. Simons ..	213, 277
R. v. Sitaram Vithal	103, 525, 888, 898
R. v. Slater .	.. 678
R. v. Sleeman ..	258, 259
R. v. Smith ..	113, 294, 304
R. v. Smithers .	143, 829, 923
R. v. Sonaoollah ..	.. 218
R. v. Soobjan ..	211, 218
R. v. Sorob Roy 116, 129,	139, 141, 143
R. v. Spilsbury ..	276, 278
R. v. Sreemutty Mongola .	254
R. v. Sreenath Mookhopadhia .	843
R. v. St. Martin's Leicester	362, 898
R. v. Stephens .	.. 138
R. v. Sterne .	.. 116
R. v. Stewart ..	36, 899
R. v. Stubbs	831, 832, 833, 834
R. v. Subbarayan ..	423, 424
R. v. Suddu ..	. 513
R. v. Sudra .	. 802
R. v. Sughar Singh .	. 709
R. v. Sundar Singh .	514, 528
R. v. Surroop Chunder .	456, 861, 862
R. v. Swatkins .	251
R. v. Swendsen .	430
R. v. Syumber Singh	. 302
R. v. Taj Khan .	. 888
R. v. Tanyavalad Shivan	. 284
R. v. Tarini Churan .	306, 994
R. v. Tate ..	143, 832
R. v. Tattershall ..	143, 188, 197
R. v. Tatya Bin ..	.. 267
R. v. Taylor ..	258, 728
R. v. Thakoor Das ..	.. 431
R. v. Thistlewood ..	479, 483
R. v. Thomas ..	250, 261, 277
R. v. Thompson	250, 251, 254, 261
R. v. Thornhill ..	.. 456
R. v. Thurburn ..	.. 190
R. v. Tiluk ..	459, 623
R. v. Tirumal ..	155, 678, 918
R. v. Tolson ..	.. 356
R. v. Tooke ..	.. 630
R. v. Tribhoban Manekchand	.. 209, 210, 264
R. v. Tuberfield ..	428, 430
R. v. Tukaram ..	.. 644
R. v. Tulja ..	104, 107
R. v. Tulsha ..	.. 733
R. v. Tulsi Dosadh .	.. 856
R. v. Turner .	148, 429, 678
R. v. Tyler .	.. 258
R. v. Udhan Bind ..	.. 834
R. v. Udit Persad .	.. 171
R. v. Upchurch ..	258, 261
R. v. Uttamchand	127, 565, 888, 899
R. v. Uzeer 256, 257,	258, 261, 278
R. v. Vahala Jetha .	.. 267
R. v. Vajiram 8, 112, 133,	157, 188, 193, 194, 195, 197, 200, 203
R. v. Vaman ..	. 336
R. v. Vaughan .	.. 744
R. v. Verelst .	.. 737
R. v. Vincent .	140, 328
R. v. Viran 252, 488,	525, 526, 528, 564
R. v. Virapcrumal , .	801, 944
R. v. Visram Babaji ..	252, 564
R. v. Voke .	190, 728
R. v. Vyapoory Moodelier	133, 138, 157, 194, 195
R. v. Wainwright .	146, 465
R. v. Walker .	.. 215
R. v. Walkley .	.. 261
R. v. Waman ..	. 923
R. v. Warden of the Fleet	.. 388
R. v. Warner ..	.. 259
R. v. Warringham ..	251, 257, 258
R. v. Watson ..	475, 879, 913
R. v. Watts	.. 337
R. v. Wazira .	.. 424
R. v. Weeks .	.. 197
R. v. Weering ..	204, 427
R. v. Wells ..	.. 634
R. v. Welsh .	.. 148
R. v. Westwood ..	.. 134
R. v. Whitey 132, 134,	188, 193, 197
R. v. White ..	.. 116
R. v. Whitehead ..	201, 801
R. v. Whitmarsh ..	.. 294
R. v. Whitworth ..	.. 304

	Page.
R. v Wickham	575
R. v. Wild . .	259
R. v Wilkes .. .	833
R. v. Wilkins	465
R. v. Williams 134, 251, 334,	901
R. v. Windsor	261
R. v. Wink	140
R v. Woodcock .. 294,	304
R. v. Woodley .. .	819
R. v Woods .. .	862
R. v. Woodward	444
R. v. Woolford .. .	708
R. v. Worth	306
R. v. Wrangle . ..	562
R. v Wright . .	871
R v. Wuzir Mundul ..	210
R. v. Wyatt 136, 195, 200,	204
R v. Wylie .	197
R v. Yakataz Khan	907
R. v. Yakub Khan .. .	252
R. v. Yellaraddi	210
R. v. Yewin . ..	879
R. v Young .. .	134
R. v Zamirum . 826,	836
R v Zawar Husen	853
R. v. Ziawar Rohman	870
R. v. Zuhir .. .	141
R. R. Co. v Maples .. .	474
Radford v. M'Intosh .. .	144
Radha v Rakhal	237
Radha Ballab v. Kishen Gobind .	690
Radha Bullub v Juggut Chunder ..	655
Radha Chowdhrain v Gireedhari Shahoo 358,	360
Radha Churn v Anund Sein ..	359
Radha Churn v Chunder Monee ..	216
Radha Churn v. Kripa Sindhu ..	651
Radha Gobind v. Inglis .. 666, 693,	712
Radha Jeeban v Grees Chunder ..	843
Radha Jeebun v Taramonee Dossee 855,	881
Radhakant Shaha v. Abhoychurn Mitter	987
Radha Kishore v Mirtoonjoy Gow	654
Radha Kissen v. Fateh Ali ..	504
Radha Kisto v. Radha Munghi ..	660
Radha Prasad Mullick v. Ranee Mani Dassee	607
Radhamoni Debi v. Collector of Khulna	693
Radhan Singh v. Kanayi Dichit ..	152
Radhanath Banerjee v. Jodoonath Singh	670
Radha Pyari v. Nobin Chandra ..	640
Radha Raman v. Bhowani Prasad 586,	600
Radha Ramon v. Phool Kumare ..	651
Radhey Lal v. Mahesh Prasad 756,	777
Radhika Mohun v. Gunga Naram	360
Radhika Prosad v Dharma Dasi	723
Rae Manick v. Madhoram ..	644
Raggett v. Musgrave	149
Raghavendra v Kashinath Bhat 645,	667
Raghunath v Hoti Lal . 121,	716
Raghunathji Mulchand v Jivandas Madanjee . .. 640,	696
Raghunath v. Ganpatji . ..	635
Rahamat Ali v R . ..	923
Rahiman v Elahi Baksh 586,	587
Rahimatbai v Hirbai .. 184,	644
Rahimbhoy Hubbibhoy v. Turner	646
Rahim Bibi. In the matter of ..	841
Raichand Motichand v Narayan Bhikha . ..	589
Rai Churn v Kamud Mohan 373,	375
Rai Isri v R . 432,	435
Rainer v. Gould ..	985
Rainy v Bravo . .	477
Rai Seeta Kishun Dass .. .	763
Rai Srikishen v Rai Huri ..	213
Raja Babu v. Muddun Mohun .	686
Raja Bommarauze v Rangasamy Mudaly . .. 348, 843,	919
Raja Burdacant v Chunder Coomar	685
Raja Chandranath v Ramja Muzumdar . 634,	637
Raja Enayet v Giridhari .	237
Raja Goundan v Raja Goundan 214,	320
Raja Gouri Chandra v. Raja Makunda Deb	608
Rajah Leelanund v Mussamut Lakhputtee . 312, 313,	315
Raja Nagendur v. Rughoonath Narain 164,	185
Raja Neelanund v Nuseeb Singh	476
Raja Peary v. Narendro Nath 342,	475
Raja Prosonno v. Romonee Dossee	836
Rajah Kishen v Narendra Bahadur	634
Rajah Leelanund v. Musst. Basheeroonissa	461
Rajah Mahendra v Jokha Sing ..	644
Rajah Mahesh v. Keshanund Misr	685
Rajah Nilmoney v. Ramanoograh Roy 216, 217,	715
Rajah of Bobbili v. Muganti China	988
Rajah of Pittapur v. Sri Rajah Row Ruchi	749
Rajah Rajnaram v. Jugunnath Pershad	771
Rajah Ratan Singh v. Thakur Man Singh 647,	665

PAGE.

Rajah Run v. Musst. Lucho .. 169
Rajah Udaya v. Jadublal Aditya .. 644
Rajah Valad v. Krishnabhat .. 644
Rajah Venkata Appa Rao v. Rajah Surenani Gopala Row 721, 750
Rajah Vurma v. Ravi Vurmah .. 164
Raja Leelanund v. Raja Mohendra Narain 639
Raja Leelanund v Maharaja Moheswar 639
Rajaram v. Krishnashami .. 198
Raja Sahib v. Baboo Budhoo 641, 670, 747
Raja Sahib v. Doorgapershad Tewaree 687
Raj Coomar v Ram Sahaye .. 638
Rajender Narain v. Bijai Gobind 645, 752, 773
Rajendra Nath v. Jogendra Nath 145, 423, 508, 665, 722
Rajeswari Kuar v. Rai Bal . 638
Rajib Panda v. Lakhan Sendh .. 390, 392, 393
Raj Kishen v. Peary Mohun .. 687
Rajkishen Singh v. Ramjoy Surma 164
Raj Kishore v. Hurreehur Mookherjee 671
Rajkishore Nag v Mudhoosoodun 922
Rajkishore Surma v. Grija Kant 788, 789
Rajkissen Mookerjee v Joykissen Mookerjee . .. 672
Raj Kumar Ray v. Gobind Chunder 686, 688, 712
Raj Kumari v. Bama Sundari . 388
Rájlakhe v Gocool Chunder 197, 652, 777
Rajlukhee Debia v Gokool Chunder 653
Raj Mohan v. Gour Mohun .. 751
Raj Narain v. Rowshun Mull .. 645
Rajnarain Bose v Universal Life Assurance Co. 780
Rajoni Kant v. Asan Mullick 829, 831, 832
Rajunder Narain v. Bijai Gobind . 454
Rakhal Dass v Denomoyi Debi . 743
Rakhal Das v. Indra Monee .. 481
Rakhal Doss v. Protab Chunder 841, 842
Rakhaldass Moduck v Bindoo Bashinee .. . 770, 771
Rakhmabai v. Tukaram . 600
Rakken v. Alaguppudayan 580, 581, 582, 583, 585, 586, 592
Ralli v. Kasamalli Fazal . .. 568
Ralli v Gau Kim 131, 476, 484, 498
Ramabai v. Ram Chundra Shivram 637
Rama Karan Sing v Mangal Sing .. 127
Ramakrishna v Namasivaya . 659
Ramakrishna v. Subbakka . 656

PAGE.

Ramalakshmi Ammal v. Sivananantha Perumal 3, 164, 165, 184, 470, 471
Ramalinga Chetti v. Raghunatha 372
Ramalinga Pillai v. Sadasiva Pillai 114
Ramamani Ammal v Kulanthai Natchear . .. 459, 460
Ramanadamisar Aiyar v. Rama Bhattar 458
Rama Nath Chatterjee v. Kusam Kamini 648, 724
Ramanath Doss v. Boloram Phookun 769
Raman v. Secretary of State for India 130, 352
Ramani Pershad v Mahanta Adaiya 246
Raman Nayar v Subramanya Ayyar 840
Ramanugra Narain v. Mahasundur Kunwur 772
Ramasami v. Appavu 164, 168, 171, 174, 175, 182, 185, 383
Ramasami v Lokanada .. 643, 678
Ramasami v. Ramu 805
Ramasami Ayyar v. Vengi usami Ayyar 450
Ramasami Bhagavathar v. Nagendrayyan 449, 450
Ramasami Chetty v Ramasami Chetty 984
Ramasami Gaunden v R 828, 829, 830, 833
Ram Autar v Raja Muhammad .. 231
Ramayya v Sivayya .. 667
Rambaksh v. Durjan . . 589
Ram Baksh v Kishori Mohan 224, 855
Ram Bandhu v Kusu Bhattu .. 712
Rambert v Cohen .. 570
Rambhat v. Babhat . .. 790
Ram Bhusan v. Jebli Mahto 353, 355
Ram Bilas v Lal Bahadur . 87
Ram Bromo v. Kaminee Soondaree 723
Ram Chand v Hanif Sheikh .. 861
Ramchandra Apaji v Balaji Bhaurav 685, 686
Ramchandra Bhaskur v Raghunath Bachaset 374
Ramchandra Chowdhry v Brajanath Sarma 690
Ramchandra Narayan v. Narayan Mahadev 663
Ram Charan Das v. Gaya Prasad . 231
Ramchunder Chuckerbutty v Gindhur Dutt 664
Ram Chunder v Chunder Coomar.. 650
Ram Chunder v Gobind Chunder .. 990
Ram Chunder v Jugesh Chunder 321, 322, 707, 790
Ram Chunder v. Hari Das 197, 763, 777

PAGE.

Ram Chunder v. Bunseedhur Naik 362, 514, 515, 536, 537
Ram Coomar v. Beejoy Gobind 662, 679
Ram Coomar v Debee Pershad .. 671
Ram Coomar v. Kishori .. 990
Ram Coomar Koondoo v Macqueen 238, 768, 770, 771, 780
Ram Coomar v. Ram Sahaye .. 720
Ramdas v. Bhagwat Dass .. 635
Ram Dass v. Muthra Das .. 641
Ram Das v Official Liq, Cotton Ginning Co. 206, 207, 349, 352 354, 715, 921
Ram Dayal v Heera Lall . 580
Ram Dayal v Madan Mohan . 102
Ram Dhone v. Ishanee Dabee .. 652
Ramdhan Mandul v Rajbullab Paramanick 842
Ram Doolal v. Radha Nath .. 580
Ram Doyal v. Ajoodhia Khan . 115
Ram Dutt v. Mahender Prosad .. 658
Ramen Chetty v. Mahomed Gouse 985, 986
Ramessur Pershad v. Koonj Behari 168, 172
Rameswar Koer v Bharat Pershad 461 474, 571, 634
Ramfal Shaw v Biswanath Mandal 803
Ramgasavanti v Krishna .. . 748
Ram Gobind v. Hossein Ali .. 650
Ram Gopal v. Blaquiere 747
Ram Gopal v. Bullodeb Bose .. 653
Ram Gopal v. Gordon Stuart & Co. 471, 476
Ram Gulam v. Ram Behari 650, 723
Ram Gutty v. Mumtaz Beebee 645, 849
Ram Hari v Trihiram 650
Ramindur Deo v. Boopnarain Ghose 771
Ramji v. Bai Parvati . . 502
Ramjadoo Gangooly v Luckhee Narain 477
Ramjeebun Chuckerbutty v. Pershad Shar 661
Ramjeebun Serowgy v. Rees .. 888
Ramjiban Serowgy v. Oghur Nath 127, 572, 573, 589, 598, 599
Ramjoy Karmokar, In the matter of 197, 708
Ram Kant v. Brindabun Chunder 454
Ramkristo Paul v. Hurrydoss Koondo 342
Ram Krishna v Surfunissa Begum 635
Ramlakhan Rai v. Bakhtaur Rai .. 752
Ramlal v. Saltanat Beg 993
Ramlal Chandra v. Gobinda Karmokar 600
Ram Lall Set v. Kanai Lal 747, 775
Ram Lall v. Kishen Chunder .. 772
Ram Lall v. Rivers Steam Navigation Co. 698
Ram Lall v. Tara Soondari .. 345
Ram Lall v. Tula Ram . .. 388
Ramlochun Choudhury v. Joy Doorga 665
Ram Lochun v Unnopoorna Dassee 610, 614
Ram Mohinee v Pran Koomaree .. 771
Ram Mohun v. Jhupproo Dass .. 691
Ram Monee v Aleemoodeen 664, 687
Ram Narain v Babu Singh .. 993
Ram Narain v Mahomed Hadi .. 636
Ram Narain v Mohesh Chunder 358, 359
Ram Narain v Monee Bibee 320, 321
Ram Narain v Ramcoomar Chunder 171
Ram Nath v Lachman Rai .. 658
Ram Nandan v Maharani Janki .. 656
Ram Nursing v Tripoora Soonduree 348
Rampal Singh v Murray & Co . 642
Ram Pershad v. Ranee Phoolputee 696, 698
Ram Pershad v Shiva Persad .. 772
Ram Pershad v Lakpati Koer 343, 650
Ram Pershad v Najbunsee Koer .. 653
Ram Pershad Tewarry v Sheochurn Dass . 648, 651
Ram Pertab v Marshall .. 761
Ramphul Singh v Deg Narain 658
Ram Prasad v Raghunandan Prasad 471, 474. 476, 634, 715
Ram Prosad v Lakhi Narain . 666
Ramprotab Misser v. Abhilak Misser 655
Rampyarabai v Balaji . 306, 343
Ram Ranjan v Ram Narain 173, 177, 181, 183
Ram Ratan v. Nandu 642
Ram Ratan v. Shew Nandan .. 760
Ram Rutton v. Furrookoonnissa Begum 685
Ram Rutun v. Bunmalee Dass .. 656
Ram Sarup v. Allah Rakha 580, 595
Ram Sarup v. Sital Prosad .. 350
Ramsbotham v Senior 817
Ramsbottom v. Mortley .. 560, 562
Ramsbottom v Tunbridge 560, 562
Ramsden v. Dyson .. 761, 763, 769
Ram Shahai v. Sanker Bahadur .. 842
Ramsoonder Sandial v Raja Anund 771
Ram Soondur v Akima Bibee .. 458
Ram Surun v Mussmt. Pran 7, 8, 291, 292, 748, 771, 775
Rana Karan v. Mangul Sen .. 847
Ranchhoddas Krishna v. Bapu Narhar 7, 8, 102, 162, 164, 167, 168, 173, 371

PAGE.

Ranchod Morar v. Bezanji Eduljee 375
Ranee Emamun v. Hurdyal Singh 482
Ranee Oojulla v. Gholam Mostafa 482, 843
Rance Radha v. Gireedharee Sahoo 144
Ranee Shornomoyee v. Watson & Co. 685
Ranee Shurut v. Collr. of Myensingh 669
Ranee Surnomoyee v Maharajah Suttee Churn 460
Ranee Surut v. Rajendra Kishore 458
Ranee Tillessuree v. Ranee Asmedh 791
Rangacharıar v. Yegna Dikshatur 115
Rangama v Atchama 768
Rangammal v. Venkatachari 395, 396, 772
Ranganatha Rao v Narayanasami Naicker 650
Ranga Rau v. Bhavayammi 783, 988
Rangasami Reddi v. Guana Samantha . . 449, 663
Rangibhai Kalıandas v Vinayak Vishnu 652
Rango Balaji v Mudiyeppa 676, 682
Rani Humanta Kumari v Jagadendra Nath Roy .. . 687
Rani Mewa v. Rani Huldas 554, 763, 775
Rani Monmohini v Robert Watson & Co 359
Rani Srimati v. Khagendra Narayan 236
Rann v. Lakshmanrao . 530
Ransordas Bhoyilal v Keerısing 164, 186
Rao Karan v Baker Ali . . 666
Rao Kurun v. Fyazalee Khan . 652
Rao Kurun v Mehtab Koonwer . 776
Rapp v. Latham . . 232
Ras Behari v. Haramoni Debya 634, 636, 663
Rash Behari v Pitambori Chowdhrani 668, 714
Rashmonee Dabea v. Hurronath Roy 663
Rassonda Rayar v Sitharama Pillai 672, 693
Ratan Koer v Chotey Narain .. 472
Ratan Kuar v Jiwan Singh . 685
Ratan Lall v. Jadu Halsana .. 662
Ratcliff v. Ratcliff . .. 350
Rattonbhai v Chabildas .. 320
Ravji Vinayakrav v Lakshmibai . 773
Rawson v. Haig . . 146
Rawson v Walker 571
Rawstone v Corporation of Preston 819
Rayner v. Pearson 226
Rayner v. Rayner . 608, 621, 624
Razi-un nissa v. Sabir Hussin .. 991

PAGE

Read v Gamble 563
Read v Price ... 235, 491
Reazooddeen Mahomed v. McAlpine 347
Reazoonissa v. Bookoo Chowdhrain 471
Redfern v. Redfern 824
Reece v. Trye 818
Reed v. Deere .. . 560
Reed v James 855
Reed v. King 883
Reed v. Lyon 790
Reedoy Kristo v. Puddo Lochun .. 105
Reeve v. Whitmore 367
Reeves v. Lindsay 739
Reid v Batte .. . 560, 561
Reid v. Hoskin .. . 226
Reigard v. McNeill . . 761
Rennel v Sprye 816
Rennie v. Gunga Narain .. 771
Rennie v. Robinson .. 790, 791
Revell, Ex parte 241, 391
Reynolds, Ex parte .. . 825
Rhidoy Kristo v Nobin Chunder . 639
Rice v. Howard .. . 884
Rich v Jackson .. . 115
Richards v Black . . 736
Richards v Gellatly .. 148
Richards v Morgan . . 242
Richards v Richards . 732
Richardson v Dunn . . 149
Richardson v Peto .. . 230
Richardson v Rowntree . 698
Rickets v Gurney . 839
Ridley v Plymouth Baking Co. .. 226
Riggs-Miller v Wheatley .. 309
Right v Doed. Tatham . 145, 147
Righu Ram v. Mohan Lal . 650
Rishton v Nesbit . . 321
Rist v Hobson . .. 739
River Steam Co., In re . 247, 248
Rivett Carnac v New Mofussil Co 760, 763, 764
Robb v Starkey .. . 487
Robert v Phillips . .. 503
Robert Watson & Co v Mohesh Narain . . 144
Robinson v Davies . 130, 333
Robinson v Marks . 333
Robinson v Robinson . 216, 224
Robson v Att.-Genl . .. 423
Robson v Kemp . 818, 819
Robson v. Warwick . .. 819
Rochefoucauld v Boustead .. 585
Roddam v Morley . 235
Roe v Dey .. . 368
Roe v. Ferrars .. 215, 777

	Page.
Rogers v. Allen	169
Rogers v. Custance	496
Rogers v. Hadley	389
Rogers v. Pitcher	792
Rogers Sons & Co v. Lambert ..	796
Roghuni Singh v. R. ..	398, 412, 413, 525, 888, 898
Rohimuddi v. R. ..	118, 119
Rolton v. Corporation of Liverpool	820
Romanath Roy v Kally Proshad .	360
Rookia Banu v Roberts ..	839
Roopchand Bhukat v Hur Kishen	171
Roopmonjoree Chowdhrance v Ram Lall	481, 489
Roop Narain v Gungadhur Pershad	654, 697
Roop Ram v Saseeram Nath	638, 646
Rose v. Bryant . ..	311
Roselle v. Buchanan . ..	819
Roshun Dosadh v. R . ..	131
Ross v Bruce	563
Ross v. Gibbs	813, 816
Ross v. Hill	726
Rouch v. G. W. R. ..	143, 150
Roushan Bibee v. Hurray Kristo	343, 346
Roushun Khatoon v Collr. of Mymensingh	771
Rousseau v Pinto .	115, 806
Routledge v Carruthers ..	700
Rowcliffe v Egremont	824
Rowe v Brenton	852
Rowshan Jehan v. Enæt Hossein ..	729
Rowshun Bibee v Shaikh Kureem	771
Rowthakonni, In re	643
Royal Exch. Ass. Corp v. Tod ..	144
Roy Dhunput v. Prem Bibee ..	840
Royes Molla v Soodun ..	672
Roy Odyte v. Ubhurun Roy ..	700
Royzuddi Sheikh v Kali Nath Mookerjee	503
Roy Rashbeharee v Roy Gouree ..	771
Rozario v. Ingles 701, 704, 804,	877
Ruck v Ruck	381
Ruckmaboye v. Lulloobhoy ..	100
Rudge v. McCarthy	559
Rughoobur Doyal v. Maina Koer	106
Rughoonath Das v. Luchmee Narain	670
Ruknadowla Nawab v. Hurdwari Mul	637
Rungama v. Atchama . ..	450
Rungo Lall v. Abdool Guffoor	683, 684, 789
Rungo Monee v. Raj Coomaree ..	237
Runjeet Ram v. Mahomed Waris .	674
Runjeet Ram v. Goburdhun Ram..	686
Runjit Singh v. Bunwari Lal ..	667
Rup Chand v. Surbessur Chundra	641, 746, 749, 750, 753, 755, 785, 794
Rup Singh v. R	432
Rush v Peacock	223
Rush v Smith ..	855, 862
Russell v Jackson	812, 814, 815
Russell v Langstoffe . ..	796
Russell v Smythe ..	732
Russell v Watts . ..	768
Ruston's Case ..	804
Ruttansey Lalji v Poonbai ..	752
Ruttoo Singh v Bajrang Singh	636, 638
Ryall v Hannam ..	619
Ryan v Sams ..	712
Ryder v Wombwell ..	112, 759
Ryrie v Shiv Shankar	818, 821

S

S E Ry. Co v Wharton	775, 777
Sabapathy Mudali v Kuppusamy Mudali . ..	596
Saboo Bewa v. Nahagan Maitri ..	721
Sadabart Prasad v. Foolbush Koer	657
Sadakat Hossein v Mahomed Yusuf	729
Sadashiv v Dinkar . .	658
Sadasiva Pillai v Ramalinga Pillai	752
Sadashiv Moreshvar v Hari Moreshvar	773
Sadhama Upadhya v R .	807
Sadhu Churn v Basudev Parbeary	747
Sadhu Sahu v Raja Ram .	350
Sadhu Sheikh v R.	633, 644, 836
Sadu v. Baiza	749
Sagurmull v. Manraj .	343, 344
Sah Lal Chand v. Indrajit	575, 595
Saheb Perhlad v. Baboo Budhoo ..	670
Sahib Perhlad v. Doorga Pershad ..	664
Sahib Mirza v. Umda Khanum ..	675
Sailabala Debi v Sriram Bhattacharji	664
Sajid Ali v. Ibad Ali	451
Sakharam Shankar v. Ram Chandra	986
Sakina Khanum v. Laddan Saheba	665
Salamat Ali v. Budh Singh	197, 763
Salimatul Fatima v. Koylashpoti Narain .. .	447, 539
Salkeld v Johnson	99
Saltern v Melhuish . ..	719
Samar Dasadh v Juggul Kishore	341, 348, 514
Sambasiva Ayyar v. Visham Ayyar	555
Sambayya v Gangayya	455, 488
Sambhubhai Karsandas v. Shivlaldas Sadashivlaldas	991

	Page.
Samoo Pattar v. Abdool Sammad Sahib	503
Samuel v. Cfner	606
Sanderson v. Coleman	795
Sandilands, Re	738
Sangram Singh v. Rajan Bibi ..	323
Sankappa Rai v. R. .. 274, 280,	282
Sankaralingam v. Subban Chetti ..	165
Santacana v. Ardevol	922
Santappayya v. Rangapayya ..	773
Santaya v. Savitri .. 566,	618
Santeshwar Mahanta v. Lakhikanta Mahanta	565
Sarrabjit Partab v. Inderjit Partab	419
Sarah Hobson's Case ..	116
Saraswati Dasi v. Dhanput Singh 348, 353,	355
Sarat Chunder v. Gopal Chunder 239, 754, 755, 756, 757, 763, 765, 766, 770, 771, 774, 777, 778,	783
Sardarmull v Aranvayal .. 389, 390,	394
Sardhari Lall, In re	107
Sariatullah v Pran Nath 165, 418,	419
Sarkies v. Prosonnomoyee Dossee	776
Saroda Prosad v Luchmeeput Sing 713,	737
Saroda Prosad v. Mahananda Roy	649
Saroda Soondaree v. Muddun Mohun 673,	674
Sasi Bhusan Pal v. Chandra Peshkar	502
Sastry Velaider v Sembycutty Vayahe	730
Saskachellum Chetty v T. Gobindappa	776
Satcowri Ghosh v Secy of State 358, 359,	360
Satis Chunder v. Mohendra Lal 320,	351
Satya Moni v Bhaggobutty Churn	637
Satyesh Chunder v Dhunput Singh	576
Saunderson v. Judge .. 205,	206
Savage v Foster . .	760
Savak Singh v Girja Pande .	670
Savi v. Obhoy Nath .. .	663
Savlappa v. Devchand .	726
Sawyer v Birchmore . .	817
Saxlehmer v. Appollinaris Co.	193
Sayad Muhammad v. Fatteh Muhammad ..	699
Sayad Gulamah v Miyabhai 483,	681
Sayad Negamtula v. Nana valad .	666
Sayer v Glossop 356, 415, 417,	484
Sayer v Kitchen . ..	907
Scales v Key	712
Scarmanga v. Stamp .. .	8
Schmaltz v. Avery .. 781,	782
Scholes v. Chadwick .. 236,	314
Scholes v. Hilton	838
Scholey v. Walton	223
Scholfield v. Earl of Londesborough	796
Schumack v Lock	227
Schwalbe, The	132
Scott v Clare	216
Scott v. Jones	563
Scott v. London Dock Co. ..	727
Scott v. Marshall	241
Scott v. Sampson .. 201,	434
Scott v. Lord Dundonald ..	752
Seal v. Claridge	503
Sealy v. Ramnaram Bose ..	677
Seaman v. Netherclift .. 840,	875
Sears v. Lyons	161
Secretary of State v. Krishnamoni Gupta	712
Secretary of State v. Manjeshwar Krishnayyar .. 117,	476
Secretary of State for India in Council v. Basharatullah	985
Secy. of State for India in Council v. Dattatraya Nayaji ..	769
Secy of State for India v Krishnamoni Gupta ..	694
Secy of State for India v Shanmugarayra Mudaliar . ..	450
Seetharama Raju v Bayanna Pantulu 792,	793
Selby v. Hills . . .	839
Selam Sheikh v Baidonath Ghatak	743
Sellen v Norman . ..	206
Selwyn, In re	732
Sennandan v Kollakiram 484, 986,	987
Seshgin Shankabhoy v. Salvador Vas	769
Seton v A S Bijohn . .	635
Seton Laing Co v Lafone 765, 766, 775, 778,	779
Sevaram Aiyar v Samu Aiyar ..	638
Sevraji Vijaya v Chinna Nayana 459, 460, 471,	685
Sewall v Evans . ..	732
Shadal Khan v. Aminullah Khan 171,	176
Shafiq-un-nissa v. Shaban Ali .	119
Shah Ara Begam v. Nanhi Begam	570
Shah Golam v Musst Emanum 244,	635
Shah Gulam v Mahommad Akbar	685
Shahebzadee Shahunshah v Fergusson	513
Shah Mohsum v Bilasoo Koer ..	597
Shahzadi Begam v. Secy. of State for India . 131, 324,	488
Shaikh Abdulla v. Haji Abdulla ..	769

PAGE.

Shaik Hanif v. Jagabaddhu Shaha 784
Shaik Husain v. Govardhandas Purmanandas 546
Shaik Komuroodeen v. Shaikh Monye 291
Shaikh Koodootoolah v. Mohinee Mohun 383
Shaik Koodru v. Mohinee Mohun .. 165
Shaikh Kuleemooddeen v. Ashruf Ali 618
Shaikh Omed v. Wibhee Ram .. 101
Shaikh Shurfuraz v. Shaikh Dhunoo 216, 217, 218
Shaikh Walee v. Shaikh Kumur . 594
Shama Charan v. Madhub Chandra 667
Shama Churn v Abdul Kabeer . 691
Shama Churn v Khettro Moni .. 674
Shama Soonduree v Collector of Maldah 691
Shambati Koeri v. Jago Bibee 496, 697
Shambhoo Lall v. Collector of Surat 640
Shambu Nath v Ram Chandra 483, 565
Sham Chand v Kishen Prosad . 744
Sham Chand v Ram Kristo Bewrah 362
Sham Lall v Amarendro Nath . 772
Sham Lall v Anuntee Lall . 889
Sham Lall v. Radha Bibee . 323
Sham Narain v. Admr.-Genl of Bengal 642
Sham Narain v. Court of Wards .. 685
Shamsh-ul-jahan Begum v. Ahmad Wali 590
Sham Sundar v. Achhan Kuar 652, 655
Shamu Patter v Abdul Kadir Ravuthan 502
Shankar Murlidhar v. Mohan Lal.. 787
Shankarrao v. Ramjee 417
Shan Mull v. Madras Building Co 198
Sharfudin v. Gobind .. 545, 549, 550
Sharo Bibi v Baldeo Das .. 566
Sharoda Moyee v. Nobin Chunder 640
Sharp, In re 606
Sharp v. Birch 503
Sharpe v. Lamb 183
Shaw v. Beck 631
Shaw v. Gould 381
Shazada Mahomed v Daniel Wedgeberry 514, 520
Shearman v. Fleming 719
Shedden v Att.-Genl. .. 319, 323
Shedden v. Patrick .. 324, 389
Sheeb Chunder v. Brojo Nath .. 618
Sheeb Narain v. Chuldam Doss .. 671
Sheen v. Bumpstead .. 189, 200
Sheetul Pershad v. Junmejoy Mullick 129, 914

PAGE.

Sheikh Abdulla v Sheikh Muhummud 490
Sheikh Akbar v Sheikh Khan 986, 987
Sheikh Ashruf v Ram Kishore .. 663
Sheikh Faizulla v Ramkamal Mitter 445, 589
Sheikh Fakir v. R. 800
Sheikh Goburdhun v. Sheikh Tofail 661
Sheikh Hossein v. Sheikh Musund 749
Sheikh Ibrahim v Parvata 247, 453, 471, 479, 990, 991
Sheikh Imdad v Musst Koothy .. 199
Sheikh Mahomed Ravuther v. British India S N Co 554, 726
Sheikh Mahomed v. Kalee Pershad 990
Sheikh Milan v Mahomed Ali .. 660
Sheikh Mohammed v Jadunandan Jha . .. 668, 669, 714
Sheikh Parabdi v Sheikh Mohamed 580
Sheikh Rahimatullah v Sheikh Saritulla 990
Sheikh Roshan v Nobin Chunder 667
Sheikh Sahab v Lalla Bissessur . 660
Sheikh Sultan v Sheikh Ajmodin 449, 450
Sheikh Tenoo, In the matter of 294
Sheikh Torab v Sheikh Mahomed 672
Shelbourne v Inchiquin . 596
Sheldon v Benham . .. 622
Sheobaran v. Bhairo Prasad . 383
Sheo Golam v Beni Prosad . 752
Sheo Nath v Sukh Lall . . 993
Sheopargash Dube v Dhanraj Dube 670
Sheoprakash Singh v Rawlins, 725, 881
Sheo Prosad v. Jung Bahadur . 658
Sheo Prosad v Udai Singh .. 777
Sheo Ruttun v Gour Beharee . 651
Sheo Ruttun v Net Lall 669, 714
Sheo Shankar v Ram Sewak .. 655
Sheo Suhaye v Goodur Roy 346, 458
Sheo Shurn v Ram Khelawan . 222
Sheppard, In re .. . 730
Shepherd v Payne 185
Sheru Sha v. R. .. 871, 889, 899
Shibessource Debia v Mothooranath Acharjee 655
Shib Narain v. Shankar Pamgrahi 646
Shib Sabitri Prasad v Collector of Meerut 675
Shibo Prosad, In matter of the petition of 677, 678
Shibosoonduri Debia v. Syed Mahomed 646
Shib Pershad v. Promothonath Ghose 342, 347
Shib Singh v. Mukat Singh .. 640
Shiddapa v. Irmra 984

PAGE.

Shiddeshwar v. Ramchandrarav .. 767
Shields v Boucher 321
Shields v. Wilkinson .. 634, 642, 679
Shilling v. Accidental Death Co. .. 465
Shimbu Nath v. Gyan Chand .. 383
Shiu Golam v. Baran Singh 648, 649, 723
Shivalingaya v. Nagalingaya .. 752
Shivappa v Shidlingappa .. 119
Shivram v. Narayan .. . 749
Shobanadri Appa v. Sriramulu .. 227
Shookram Sookul v. Ram Lal 477, 481, 484, 490
Shore v. Bedford . . 816
Shore v. Wilson 555, 614, 620, 621; 624
Shoshi Bhusan v Girish Chunder 348, 351, 353, 355, 515
Shree Mohan Kishora v. Coimbatore Spinning and Weaving Co .. 723
Shrewsbury v Blount . 189, 200
Shriniwas Krishna Shriralkar v Narhar Khando Khanvilkar 234
Shristeedhur v. Kali Kant . 789
Shropshire Union Rys and Canal Co. v Queen 776
Shumboo Chunder v Modhoo Kyburt 215, 388
Shumdan Ali v. Mothooranath Dutt 660
Shums Ahmed v Goolam Mohee-oodeen 786
Shunker Bharati v Venkapa Naik 655
Shusee Mookhee v. Bissessuree Debee 357, 358
Shustee Churn, In the matter of .. 674
Shyama Charan v Herus Mollah 579, 581, 600
Shyama Charan Nundy v Abhiram Goswami .. . 549
Shyamanand Das v Rama Kanto 160, 321, 450, 645
Sia Dasi v. Gur Sahai . 763, 773
Sibo Sundari v. Hemangini Debi . 502
Sichel v Lambert . 700, 729
Sidapa v. Panchakooty 631
Sidgier v Birch . . 839
Sievewright v. Archibald 567, 569
Sikher Chand v Dulputty Singh 646, 654, 776
Silbeck v Garbett . 205, 206, 207
Simmons v. London, etc., Bank.. 226
Simmons v. Mitchell .. . 400
Simon v. Anglo-American Telegraph Co .. . 782, 797
Simon Elias v. Jorawar Mull . 635
Simpson v Margitson .. . 518
Simpson v. Robinson .. 148, 150

PAGE.

Sinclair v. Baggalay 738
Sinclair v. Sinclair 381
Sinclair v. Stevenson .. 483, 496
Sindh Punjab and Delhi Bank v. Mudsoodun Chowdhury .. 775
Sirdar Kuar v. Chandrawati .. 987
Sital Pershad v. Monohur Das 213, 235
Sital Prasad v. Parbhu Lal .. 696
Sitanath Dass v. Mohesh Chunder 336
Sitanath Koer v. Land Mortgage Bank of India 658
Sitapathi Nayudu v. R ..
Sita Ram v. Amir Begum .. 373
Sita Ram v. Zalim Singh 657, 658
Sivaganga v Lakshmana .. 657
Sivanananja Perumal v. Muttu Ramalinga .. 184, 185
Sivananananjee Perumal v Meenakshi Ammal . 164
Siva Ram v. Ali Baksh .. 775, 783
Sitaram Krishna v Daji Devaji.. 681
Sivasankara Mudali v. Purvati Ameri 657
Sivasubramanya v Secy.of State for India .. 317, 318, 326, 515
Skaife v Jackson .. 223, 776
Skinner v. Orde 745
Skinner & Co. v. Ranee Shama . 639
Skinner & Co v Shew & Co . 142
Slack v Buchanan .. 222
Sladen, In re 535, 540
Slater v Lawson 232, 240
Slatterie v Pooley . .. 246
Slaymaker v. Gundacker's Ex. .. 232
Sleeper v Van Middlesworth .. 713
Sly v Sly . 314
Small v Nairne . 332, 865
Smart v. Rayner . 630
Smidt v. Reddaway . 669
Smith v Anderson .. 340
Smith v Blakey . 308, 312
Smith v Brownlow .. 326
Smith v. Chadwick . 779, 780
Smith v Daniell . 814
Smith v E. I Co . . 809
Smith v. Fell . . 815
Smith v Henderson .. 732
Smith v Hughes 200, 698
Smith v Keal 124
Smith v Ludha Ghella 7, 187, 602, 603, 604, 622, 624
Smith v Lyon 233
Smith v. Mokhun Mahtoon .. 771
Smith v Sainsbury 416
Smith v. Smith .. 235, 236
Smith v. Tayler 290

	PAGE.
Smith v Whittingham	234
Smith v. Wilkins	136
Smith v. Wilson . ..	624
Smout v. Ilbery ..	683, 712
Snowball v Goodricke	241
Sobhag Chand v Bhaichand ..	237
Sobhandri Appa v Sriramulu	231
Soharuddin Saskar v. R. .	827
Soiru Padhmanath v. Narayanrao	724
Solano v Lallaram ..	769, 779, 781
Solomon v Bitton . .	917
"Solway," The .	215, 226
Somangouda v Bharmangouda .	650
Somar Dosadh v. Jugpul Kishori	349, 351
Somasundra Mudaliay v Durai-sami Mudaliar . .	556
Somu Gurukkal v. Rangammal ..	235, 989, 990
Sonaollah v. Imamooddeen .	753
Sonatun Ghose v. Moulvie Abdul .	660
Sonatun Shaha v Dino Nath	502, 504
Soobheddur Dossee v. Bolaram Dewan .	649, 723
Soojan Bibee v Achmut Ali .	213, 214, 222, 291, 292, 332, 336
Sookram Misser v. Crowdy	148, 390
Sooltan Ali v. Chand Bibee	216, 217
Soonatun Saha v Ramjoy Saha	685, 694
Soondur Monee v Bhoobun Mohun	718
Soopromonian Setty v. Heilgers	590
Sooraj Kant v Khoodee Narain	115, 806
Soorendronath Roy v Musamat Heeromonee . .	164, 185
Sooriah Row v. Cotaghery Boochiah	634, 716
Soorjo Coomar v Bhugwan Chunder	570, 571, 990
Soorjomonee Dayee v Suddanund Mohappatter	372
Soorjo Narain v. Bissambhar Singh	101
Sooruth Soonderee v Brodie ..	744
Sorabjee Vacha v. Koovurjee Manik-jee	343
Soroop Chunder v Troylokho Nath	773
Sorhee Mohun v. Aukhil ..	648, 651
Southwark Co. v. Quick ..	813, 821
Sowdamanee Debya v. A. Spalding	597
Spargo v Brown .. .	211
Spence v. Stuart	839
Spencely v. DeWillott ..	136, 854
Spencer v Billing ..	494, 852
Spencer v. Williams	782
Spicer v Cooper .. .	624
Spiers v Willson	561
Sreekant Bhuttacharjee v. Raj Narain	548, 550
Sreeman Chunder v Gopal Chunder	460, 637, 740
Sreemutty v Lukhee Narain ..	653
Sreemutty Debia v Bimola Soonduree . .	291, 292, 772
Sreemutty Dossee v. Pitamber Pundah	454
Sreemutty Gour v Huree Kishore	481, 484
Sreemutty Mohun v Saral Chunder	759
Sreemutty Oodoy v Bisonath Dutt	492, 515
Sreemutty Phoonee v Gobind Chunder . .	508
Sreemutty Rabutty Dassee v Sib-chunder Mullick . .	555
Sreemutty Soorjeemoney v Deno-bundoo Mullick . ..	607
Sreenath Mundle v Sreeram Rajput	843
Sreenath Nag v Mon Mohinee .	291
Sreenath Roy v. Bindoo Bashinee	291, 292, 772
Sreeram Ghose v Sreenath Dutt	724
Stee Sankaracharl v Varada Pillai	775
Sri Balusu v Sri Balusu .	806
Sri Braja v Kundana Devi ..	166
Sridhar Nandy v Braja Nath ..	671
Sridhar Vinayak v Narayan Valad Babaji	373
Sri Gajapathi v. Sri Gajapathi .	752
Sri Gonesh v Keshavrav Govind	383, 763
Srikant v R .	398, 408
Sri Kishen v Huri Kishen .	343
Srimati Alijan v Harachandra Chow-dhury	168
Srimati Anandmayi v. Dhanandra Chandra	237
Srimati Jaikali v Shib Nath ..	566
Srimati Lukhimani v Mohendra Nath	726, 749, 771
Srinath Patra v Kuloda Prosad Banerjee	547
Srinivas v. R.	110
Sri Raghunadha v Sri Brojo	114, 471
Sri Rajah Sobhanadri v. Sri Rajah Venkatanara . ..	664
Sri Rangammal v. Sandammal	392, 393
Srish Chunder v. Ronomali ..	777
Sristeedhur Sawnt v. Ramanath Rokhit	660
Stance v Stewart	874
Standage v Creighton	230
Stanford v. Hurlstone	144

PAGE.

Stanley v White 145
Stanton v. Percival 212, 217, 220, 234
Stapylton v. Clough 305
State v. Blackburn 303
State v. Glass 411
State v. Lapage 728
State v. Railroad 205
State v. Rathburn 142
State v. Roe 891
State v. Staton 900
State v. Wilson 435
Statfordshire Tramways Co v Ebbsmith 996
Stearine v. Henzman 623
Steele v. Stewart 815
Steinkeller v. Newton .. 336, 901
Stephen v. Vroman 777
Stephenson v. River Tyne Improvement Commissioners .. . 412
Stevens v. Lynch .. . 734
Stevens v Pinney . .. 560
Stevens v. Thacker . .. 224
Steward v. Young .. . 112
Stewart v. Eddowes . .. 578
Stewart's case .. . 232
Stikeman v. Dawson . . 760
Stiles v Cardiff S. N. Co. . 226
Stimson v. Farnham .. . 782
Stocken v. Collin 205, 207, 543
Stockfleth v De Tastet 247
Stockley v Stockley 734
Stone v Metcalfe 575
Storr v. Scott 340
Stewell v. Billings 752
Stracey v. Blake .. 455, 751
Stranger v. Searl .. . 416
Stratford v. Hogan 819
Stringer's Estate, In re 785
Strong v. Brewer .. 406, 415
Strong v. Dickinson 839
Stronghill v. Buck .. 776, 777
Strother v. Barr 469, 470, 478, 561
Struthers v. Wheeler 131
Studdy v Sanders 818
Sturge v Buchanan .. 367, 368
Sturla v. Freccia 293, 308, 348, 349, 350
Subba v. R 841, 842
Subbaji v. Shiddapa .. . 881
Subbaraya v. Krishnappa .. 792
Subramania Aiyar v. R. 155, 280, 918, 922, 924
Subramanian Chettiar v. Arunachalam Chettiar 575
Subramanaya Pandya v. Siva Subramanya 185

PAGE

Subramaniyayyan v. Subramaniyayyan 658
Subrahamanyan v. Paramaswaran 174, 351
Subuktulla v Hari 786
Succaram Morarji v. Kalidas Kalianji 227, 554, 607
Sudisht Lal v. Musst. Sheobarat 697, 698
Sudukhina Chowdrain v. Rajmohan Bose 362
Sufiruddeen v. R 254
Sugden v. St. Leonards . .. 490
Sugg v Bray 496
Sujat Ali v Kashinath Das .. 853
Sukaroo Kobiraj v. R. 678
Sukh Dei v. Kedar Nath . 675
Sukh Lall v. Madhuri Prasad . 647
Sukomut Bibee v Warris Ali .. 656
Suleiman Kader v Mehndi Afsur 634, 637
Sulivan v. Norton . . 876
Sullivan v. Sullivan . . 611
Sumeera Khatoon v. Tagore . 662
Summers v Moorhouse . . 611
Summers v Mosely .. 839, 862
Summersett v Adamson . 216
Sumrun Singh v Khedum Singh . 185
Sumsuddin v Abdul Husein 698
Sundra Gopalan v Venkatavarada Ayyanagar . .. 237
Sundaraja Ayyengar v. Joganadda Pillai 658
Sundarasastrial v Govinda Mandarayan 666
Sundar Kuar v. Chandreshwar Prasad 492, 494, 518
Sunker Lall v. Juddoobuns Sahaye 653, 776
Sunnud Alli v Musst Karimoonissa 712
Superundhwaja v Garuradhwaja .. 350
Suppu v Govinda Charyar .. 105
Surab Narain v Shew Govind 654, 774
Suraj Bunsi v. Sheo Prosad .. 657
Suraj Mookhi v Bhagwati Konwar 231
Suruj Mull v. Hudson .. 985, 986
Suraj Prosad v Standard Life Insurance Co 856
Surat Dhobni, In the matter of 132, 134, 139
Surat Soondaree v Rajendra Kishore 359
Surendra Keshav v Durgasundari Dassee .. 216, 454, 780
Surendra Nath v. Brojo Nath 171, 172, 173
Surendra Nath v Hiramoni Burmani 723
Surja Narain v. Protab Narain .. 985

PAGE.

Surja Prasad v Golab Chand .. 658
Surjan Singh v Sardar Singh .. 321
Surjo Kant v. Baneswar Saha .. 571
Surjo Narain v. Bissambhur Singh 163, 167
Surjyamoni Dasi v Kali Kanta .. 731
Surnomoyee v. LuchmeeputD oogru 740
Surnomoyee v Suttesschunder Roy 743
Surnomoyi v. Johur Mahomed 342, 346
Surrosutty Dossee v. Umbica Nand 362
Sussex Peerage Case 296, 311, 366, 398, 405
Sutto Churn v. Tarinee Churn .. 672
Sutton v. Ciceri 621
Sutton v. Devonport . . 719
Sutton v Sutton .. . 101
Sutton v Tatham 734
Sutto Surrun v. Mohesh Chunder .. 741
Sutyobhama Dassee v. Krishna Chunder . .. 753
Svami Nayudu v. Subramania Mudali 667
Swamirao v. Collector of Dharwar 806, 807
Swan, Ex parte .. .
Swan v. North British Australasian Co. . 766, 770, 778
Swaranamayi Raur v Srinibash Koyal . 672, 686
Swinfen v Lord Chelmsford .. 230
Swinfen v Swinfen 148
Syama Sunderi v. Jugo Bundhu .. 359
Syam Lall v Lachman Chowdry 358, 359
Syed Abbas v Yadeem Ramy 471, 489, 490
Syed Ahmed v Enayat Hossein .. 672
Syed Amir v Heera Singh . 756
Syed Ashgar v Syed Medhi . 637
Syed Fuzzul v Amjad Ali .. 698
Syed Lootfoollah v Musst Nusseebun 491
Syed Nurul v Sheo Sahai 764, 766 770
Syed Sufdar v. Amjad Ali .. 985
Syers v Jonas 602
Syud Reza v Bhikun Khan . 991

T

Tacoordeen Tewaree v. Hossein Khan 656, 696, 697
Tadman v Henman .. 785, 790
Tagore v Tagore .. 216, 454, 780
Tahboonissa v. Koomar Sham .. 655
Tajhoo Damor Singh v. Kotwar Jagatpal Singh 359
Tajuddin v Govind 550
Taju Pramanick v. R. 922
Takaet Doorga v. Takaetnee Doorga 185
Takanath v. R. 287
Talsibhai v. Ranchod 694
Talbot v. Hodson .. 506, 739
Talbot v Marshfield 815
Talluri Venkayya v R. . .. 855
Tajudin v. Gobind . .. 545
Tamarasherri Sivithri v Maranat Vasudevan . .. 698
Tamur Singh v. Kalidas Roy .. 447
Tants v. Gajadhar . .. 665
Tara Banu v. Abdul Guffur .. 690
Tara Chand v Debnath Roy .. 674
Tara Chand v Reeb Ram 164, 165, 166, 184, 185
Tara Chunder v Amir Mandal .. 744
Tara Churn v Joy Narain .. 723
Tara Lal v Sarobur Singh 754, 780, 782
Taraknath Chuckerbutty v Joy Soondur 618
Tara Pershad v Lukhee Narain .. 508
Taraprasad Mitra v Ram Nrising 237
Tarinee Pershad v Kali Charan .. 661
Tarinee Pershad v Dwarka Nath .. 216
Tarini Charan v Saroda Sun.ay 655, 721, 77 , 849, 913
Tarini Mohun v Gunga Persad .. 789
Tarruck Chunder v Jogeshur Chunder 648, 649, 651, 723
Taruck Nath v Mohendra Nath 362, 536
Taruck Nath v Prosono Coomar ..
Taruck Nath Mookerjee v Guree Churn 336
Tarucknath Mullick v Jeamat Nosya 899
Taru Patur v Abinash Chundra . 313
Tetar Abom v Gogia Gure 984
Tatia v Sadashiv . 789
Tawakkul Rai v Lachman Rai . 670
Taylor v. Barclay . 446
Taylor v. Blacklaw . 820
Taylor v Brigg .. 624
Taylor v Cook . . 738
Taylor v. Cresswell . .. 711
Taylor v. Kinloch 738
Taylor v. Needham 790
Taylor v. Rundell 906
Taylor v Willans .. 128, 141, 230
Taylor v. Williams .. 139, 201
Taylor v. Witham .. 311, 313, 315
Tayammaul v Sashachalla .. 773
Teencourie v Hureehur .. 379
Tegendro Narain v. Bakai Singh ..
Tekait Doorga v Tekait Doorga .. 165
Tekait Roop v. Anund Roy .. 670
Tehilram v. Kashibai 776
Templeton v. Lawrie .. 155, 840
Tepu Khan v. Rojoni Mohun 150, 164, 168, 170, 173, 177, 182
Thacoor Bromma v Thacoor Lullit 359
Thakooranee Dassee v Bisseshur Mookerjee 449

PAGE.

Thaji Beebi v. Tirummalaiappa Pillai 987
Thakdi Haggi v. Budrudin Saib .. 668
Thakoor Deen v. Nowab Syud .. 458
Thakoor Dyal, In the matter of .. 855
Thakoor Jeetnath v Loke Nath .. 644
Thakoor Mahtab v. Leelanund Sing 753
Thakoor Pershad v. Mussamut Bashmutty 547, 550
Thakore Fatesingji v. Bamanji Dalal 768, 989
Thakurain Balaraj v Rai Jagat Pal.. 101
Thakur Dass v. Jairaj Singh .. 696
Thakur Garuradhwaja v. Kunwar Shaparam .. 320, 350, 417, 419, 421
Thakur Singh v. Bhogeraj Singh 687, 689
Thama v. Kondan . .. 351
Thamman Pandi v Maharajah of Vizianagram 789
Thandavan v. Vallima .. . 989
Thet She v. Maung Ba . 131
Thiagraja v. Giyana Sambandha . 663
Thickness v. Bromilow .. . 796
Thimma Reddi v. Chenna Reddi .. 668
Thirthasami v Gopala 115
Thirukumaresan Chetti v. Subbaraya Chetti 635, 669
Thomas v. Connell .. . 194
Thomas v. David .. . 879
Thomas v. Jenkins . 507
Thomas v. Morgan .. 188, 249
Thomas v Newton . .. 826
Thomas v Secretary of State for India in Council .. 816
Thompson v. Trevanion 143, 146
Thomson v. Austen . 217, 249
Thomson v Hall . 739
Thorne v Heard .. 124
Thornhill v. Thornhill . 905
Thoyi Ammal v. Subbaraya Mudali 993
Thunder v. Warren . . 559
Thursby v. Plant . . 634
Thurston v. Nottingham Permanent Benefit Building Society . 759
Tiery v. Kristodhun Bose . 685
Tikamdas Javahirdas v Gangakom Mathuradas 681
Tikam Singh v. Dhan Kunwar 449, 703
Tilak Singh v. Chock Sing .. 231
Tiley v. Cowling 214
Till v. Ainsworth 907
Timangavda v. Rangangavda 547, 548
Timma v. Daramma 320
Timmana v. Putobhata .. 754
Tinappa v. Murugappa 769

PAGE.

Tinckler's Case 802
Tiruchuran Perumal v. Sangudien 789
Tirumala v. Pingalai 747
Tirumalasami Reddi v. Rama Sami 693
Tiruvengada Ayyangar v Rangasami Nayak .. 598, 599
Tofaluddi Peada v. Mahar Ali .. 502
Tokee Bibee v. Abdool Khan .. 804
Tollemache, In re .. 241, 312, 391
Toleman, In re 485
Toolsee Money v. Maria Margery Cornelius 761
Toolsey Das v. Premji Tricumdas 648, 649
Toosey v. Williams 207
Topham v. McGregor 852
Torab Ali v Chooramun Singh .. 640
Toronto Building Co. v. Corporation of Toronto . .. 379
Tota Ram v. Mohun Lall 383, 384
Townshend Peerage Case .. 423
Townsend v Strangroom .. 4
Tracy Peerage Case .. 398, 423
Trailokia Nath v. Shurno Chungoni 546, 549
Travers v. Blundell .. . 618
Treelochun Roy v Raj Kishen .. 650
Trewhitt v Lambert . .. 362
Tribhovandas Jekisandas v Krishnaram Kuberam . 618
Triccam Panachand v Bombay-Baroda, etc , Ry Co 452
Trilochun Ghose v Koilash Nath 691, 743
Trimbak Gangadhar v Bhagwandas Mulchand . . . 601
Trilok Nath v. Musstt Lachhmien . 703
Trimblestown v Kemmis 215, 314, 316
Trolokhoya Mohini Dasi v Kali Prosanna Ghose 636, 921
Trotter v. Maclean .. 205, 207
Troup, Ex parte .. 391
Troylokhanath Biswas, In the matter of 907
Troyluckho Tarini v Mohima Chundra . 789
Trustees of the Harbour of Madras v Best & Co . .. 727
Tucker, In re 235
Tucker v Linger .. . 165
Tugwell v. Hooper . .. 820
Tukaram bin Atmaram v. Ramchandra bin Budharam .. 769
Tukeya Rai v. Tupsee Koer 865, 869, 870
Tullidge v. Wade 161
Tullock v. Dunn 223
Tulsi Pershad v. Raja Misser .. 665

PAGE.

Tulsi Ram v. Mutsadi Lal .. 771
Tunley v. Evans 240
Turner v. Power 559
Turner v Railton 248
Turquand v. Knight .. 818, 819
Turton v. Turton 711
Tweedie v. Poorno Chunder 754, 775
Twynam v. Knowles 561
Tyrell v. Pointon 674

U

Ubilack Rai v. Dallial Rai .. 547
Uda Begum v. Imam-ud-din 99, 100, 768
Udit Upadhia v Bhowandin .. 563
Uggrakant Chowdhry v. Hurro Chunder 546, 547
Ujagar Singh v Pitman Singh . 659
Ulfatunnissa Elhaijan v. Hossain Khan 989
Uma Churn v. Ajadanissa Bibee . 100
Uma Shankar v. Mansur Ali .. 639
Uman Prosad v Gandharp Singh 114, 350
Umbica Churn v. Bhuggobutty Churn 651
Umbica Churn v. Madhub Ghosal.. 667
Umbica Churn Sen v. Bengal Spinning Co. 820
Umedmal Motiram v Davubin Dhondiba 599
Umesh Chundra v. Sageman 608, 610, 615, 616, 618
Umes Chunder Baneya v Mohini Mohun 597
Umrith Nath v. Gouree Nath .. 648
Unapoorna Dassee v. Nuffer Poddar 238, 245
Underwood v Wing .. 158, 720
Ungley v. Ungley 582
Unide Rajaha v. Pemmasamy Venkatadry .. 7, 128, 471, 476
United Company v. Raja Buddinath 843
United States Exp. Co. v. Henderson 905
United States v. Dickinson .. 864
Upendra Krishna v. Ismail Khan .. 742
Upendra Mohun v Gopal Chandra 921
Upendra Narain v Gopee Nath .. 651
Upendra Nath Bagchi v R. .. 695
Upooroop Tewary v Lalla Bandhjee 658
Urquhart v. Butterfield 454
Ushar Ali v. Ultaf Fatima .. 740
Uttamchandra Kruthy v. Khetra Nath 752

V

Vacher v. Cocks .. 159, 194, 197
Vaghano v. Bank of England .. 778
Vaillant v Dodemead 816
Valippa Raonthan v. Mahomed Khasim 987
Vallabha v. Madusudanan 185, 451
Vallabh Bhulee v. Rama .. 754
Vanderdonckt v. Thelluson 366, 403, 405
Van Omeron v Dowick 206, 451, 737
Van Wart v Walley . .. 230
Varadarajulu Naidu v Srinivasalu Naidu 395, 772
Varajlal v Bhaiji Nagardas .. 753
Varvar Nicholas v Asphar .. 545
Vasanji v Haribhai . 491, 513, 783
Vasanji Haribhai v Lallo Akhu .. 668
Vasudeva Bhatlu v Narasamma .. 594
Vasudeva Shanbhoy v. Naramapai 994
Vasudev Daji v Babaji Ranu 785, 788, 789, 793
Vavasseur v Vavasseur .. 836
Vaughan v Martin . .. 901
Vedamutta, In re 994
Vedanayagar Mudaliar v Vedammal 388
Vedavalli v Narayana . 648, 651
Veerappa Kavundan v Ramasami Kavundan . .. 504
Velampuducherri Padmanabhan v. Chowakaren . .. 608
Veliyammal v Katha Chetti .. 658
Venkatratnam v Reddiah .. 580
Vengama Naikar v Raghavacharry 667
Vankaji Krishna v Lakshman Devji .. . 789
Venkaji Sridhar v Vishnu Babaji 227
Venkata Chandrappa v Venkatarama Redi . .. 372
Venkatachella Chettiar v Sampathu Chettiar 810, 907
Venkatadri v. Peda Venkayamma 749
Venkatagiri v. Raghava .. 991
Venkata Gopala v. Lakshmi Venkama 650
Venkata Gopal v Rangappa . .. 788
Venkata Krishnamma v. Annapurnamma 721
Vankata Narasimha v. Bhashya Karlu 455
Venkatanarasimha Naidu v. Dundamudi Kottaya 450
Venkatarama Ayyar v. Venkata Subrahmaniam 372
Venkataramanna v. Chavela .. 226
Venkatarammanna v Viramma .. 667
Venkataratnan Naidu v Collector of Godavari 661

PAGE.

Venkatasami v. R. .. 280, 281
Venkatasami v. Venkatreddi 164, 169, 175
Venkatasubbiah Chetty v. Govindarajulu Naidu 562, 570
Venkataswami Nayakhan v. Subba Rau 383
Venkatesa v. Sengoda 571
Venkatratnam v. Reddiah 581, 584
Venkayyar v. Venkata Subbayar 570, 571, 990
Venour's Settled States, In re .. 101
Vermicombe v. Butler 739
Verabhai Ajubhai v. Rai Hirabai .. 450
Vimpakshappa v. Shidappa .. 668
Vinayak v Collector of Bombay 718, 719
Vinayak Narsingh v. Datto Govind 651
Vinayaek v. Govind 763
Vincent v. Cole .. 478, 560, 561
Virabhai Ajubhai v. Bai Hirabai.. 655
Virchand Lalchand v Kumaji .. 991
Virgo v. Virgo 388
Virjivandas Madhavdass v. Mahomed Ali 618
Vishnu v. Krishnan .. 169, 778
Vishnu Yeshawant v. New York Life Insurance Co. .. 820, 821
Vishvanath Charondu v Subraya Shivappa 238
Vithaldas v. Secretary of State for India .. 689, 693, 788, 792
Vithal Mahadeb v Mahummad Husen 550
Vithu Govinda v. Ramji Yelluji 688, 994
Volant v. Soyer . 824, 905
Volkart Bros v. Vettivelu Nadan 186, 187
Vythilinga v. Venkatachela 164, 168, 175

W

Waddington v Roberts . 206
Waddeer v. E. I Co. 809
Wafadar Khan v R .. 919, 922
Wagstaff v. Watson 229
Wahidunnessa v. Durgadass .. 796
Wain v. Bailey 987
Wajid Hossain v. Nankoo Singh .. 657
Wajibun v. Kadir Buksh 231, 483, 565
Wajid Khan v. Ewaz Ali Khan .. 696
Wake v Harrop .. 589, 593
Walcott v. American Life, etc., Society 725
Waldridge v. Kennison .. 248, 249
Wali Ahmad v. Ajudhia Kundu .. 743
Wali Ahmed v. Tota Meah 693, 694
Wali-wallah v. Ghulam Ali 993, 993
Walker, In re 683
Walker v. Burrow 205

PAGE.

Walker v. Frobisher 917
Walker v. Wilsher .. 247, 248, 249
Walker's Case .. 728, 801
Wallace v Jafferson .. 815, 821
Wallace v. Small 249
Wallingford v. Mutual Society Co. 646
Wallis v. Littel .. 598, 599
Walkner v Atma Ram Mundur .. 685
Walls v. Atcheson .. 841, 844
Walpole v. Alexander 839
Walsham v Stainton 819
Waltean v Fenwick 124
Walter v Haynes .. 206, 739
Waman Ramchandra v Dhondiba Krishnaji 570, 571, 990
Ward v Hobbs 200
Ward v. Lord Londesborough 205, 207
Ward v Marshall 818
Warren v. Warren .. 205, 206
Waterpark v. Fennell 556
Watkins v Rymill .. 198, 698
Watkins v Vince .. 137, 224
Watson, Ex parte 760
Watson v. Gopee Soonduree .. 921
Watson v Little 387
Watson v Smith 667
Watson v Woodman . .. 235
Watson & Co v. Govt. .. 712
Watson & Co v. Mohendra Nath 347
Watson & Co v Nobin Mohun 236, 237
Watson & Co v. Nukee Mundul 842
Watson & Co v Ranee Shurut 789
Watts v Cresswell 760
Watts v. Lawson 249
Weatherall v Dillon 667
Webb v. Byng .. 605
Webb v. East .. 815, 823
Webb v. Fox 684
Webb v. Smallwood 836
Webb v Smith 814
Webber v. Corbett . .. 616
Webster v Friedeberg . .. 917
Weeks v Sparke 296
Wells v. L. T. & S. Ry. Co. .. 101
Wentworth v. Lloyd .. 719, 820
West v Lawday 618
Westinghouse v. M. R. Co. 821, 822
Westmacott v. Westmacott .. 354
Weston v Eces 571
Whaley v. Carlisle 315
Wharam v Routledge 907
Wharton v. Lewis .. 841, 845
Wheatley v. Williams .. 817, 818
Wheeler v. LeMarchant 813, 814, 815, 820, 822

	PAGE.
Whicker, v. Hume ..	379, 566, 712
Whisterlo's Case ..	.. 701
Whitaker v. Izod ..	.. 823
Whitcomb v. Whiting ..	231, 232
White v. Dowling ..	.. 242
White v. Greenish ..	754, 790
White v. White ..	. 216
Whitechurch, Ld. v Cavanagh	.. 767
Whitehead v. Scott ..	497, 563
Whitelock v Musgrove	505, 732
Whitley, In re	220, 221, 223, 231, 244, 806
Whitfield v Brand ..	.. 562
Whitnash v. George ..	. 234
Whiton v. Snyder ..	. 409
Whittaker v. Morrison ..	.. 686
Whittley Partners, Int	. 985
Wiedemann v. Walpole ..	148, 836
Wight v Rogers ..	.. 506
Wilke's Case	.. 5
William Abbott Green, In the goods of	534
William Cornell, In the goods of .	536
Williams v. Bridges ..	. 241
Williams v. Curtis ..	.. 161
Williams v E I. Co ..	.. 725
Williams v. Graves ..	. 313
Williams v. Hall ..	.. 5
Williams v. Innes ..	.. 241
Williams v Richards ..	137
Williams v Star Newspaper Co. ..	810
Williams v. Thomas ..	.. 249
Williams v. Wilcox ..	. 916
Williams v Williams	117, 216, 773
Williamson v. Rover Cycle Co	. 718
Willoughby v Willoughby	. 452
Wilmott v. Barber ..	.. 708
Wilson v Bowie .	. 562
Wilson v Oakes ..	.. 621
Wilson v Rastall ..	.. 819
Wilson v. Wilson ..	.. 193
Wing v. Angrave ..	149, 158, 720
Winsor v. R	.. 802
Winterscale v Sarat Chunder	.. 742
Wintle, In re	.. 354
Wise v. Amirunnissa Khatun	.. 691
Wise v. Bhoobun Mojee	639, 661
Wise v. Sunduloonessa Chowdrance	459, 460, 471
Witmer v Schlatter ..	.. 387
Wolmershasen, In re ..	.. 240
Wolverton, In re ..	.. 616
Womesh Chunder v. Chundy Churn	919, 921
Womesh Chunder v Shama Sundari	489, 490
Wood v. Braddick ..	231, 232
Wood v. Cooper ..	.. 901
Wood v Corporation of the Town of Calcutta . .	.. 806
Wood v. Durham ..	.. 434
Wood v Mackinnon	.. 855
Woodbury v Obear .	.. 410
Woodcock v Houldsworth	205, 206
Woodward v Goulstone	.. 490
Woolley v N L R Co	797, 818, 821, 822
Woods v. Cox	. 434
Woolway v Rowe .	.. 236
Wooma Churn v Haradhun Mojoomdar . .	.. 654
Wooma Kant v Gunga Narain ..	918
Wooma Soondaree v Kishoree Mohun .	.. 661
Woomesh Chunder v Rashmoni Dassi	111, 673, 674
Worthington v Scribner	. 811
Wright v Beckett	.. 883
Wright v Doe d Tatham	145, 146, 147, 336
Wright v Holdgate	. 702
Wright v Lainson .	. 738
Wright v Tatham	193, 400, 917
Wright's Case	.. 260
Wutzler v. Sharpe	. 715
Wuzeer Ali v Kali Koomar	481, 491
Wyatt v Bateman .	333, 465
Wynne v Tyrwhitt	545

Y

Yanumula Venkayamah v Boochia Venkondora	651
Yarakalamma v Annakala	377
Yasamati v. Chundra Pappayya ..	772
Yashvant Puttee v Radhabai	757, 773
Yasin v. R. . ..	280, 563, 565
Yasvant Puttu v Radhabai .	291
Yates v. Pym	603
Yenamandra Sitaramasami v Nidatana Sanyasi	659
Yeshwadabai v. Ramchandra	415, 416, 560, 561, 743, 769
Young v. Brown	408
Young, Ex parte .	389, 855
Young Manufacturing Co, In re ..	105
Young v. Grote	796
Yusan Khatun v Ramnath Sen ..	640

Z

Zabeda Bibi v. Sheo Charan ..	752
Zakeri Begum v. Saina Begum ..	305

	PAGE.
Zamindar Serimatu v. Virappa Chetti	747, 775
Zamorin of Calicut v. Narayanan Mussad	789
Zamunia v Ram Tahal	737
Zeenut Ali v Ram Doyal ..	618
Zemindar of Ramnad v. Zemindar of Yettiapooram	646
Ziulnissa Ladli v. Motidev Ratandev	483, 565

BIBLIOGRAPHY.

THE Bibliography here given is by no means strictly complete. Omitted therefrom are: (1) Works on Roman law [of Voet, Vinnius, Cujacius, Voet, Heftius, Strykius, Puchta, Hefter and others]; (3) Works on Continental law, (4) Works incidentally, but not specifically and directly, dealing with the subject of Evidence [as, for example, Russell on Crimes, Foster's Crown Cases, Hawkins' Pleas of the Crown, Starkie's Criminal Pleadings, contain incidentally much matter relating to the subject; or general Digests, e.g., Comyn's Digest sub voc 'Estoppel'; Buller's Nisi Prius or the like], (5) Articles in Legal Magazines [of which there are a great number]. The lists given contain for the most part well known practical works specifically dealing with the subject, and in present or past use by the profession. They reproduce moreover only those which have come into the compiler's hands to date, but there are doubtless others.—Ed.

(A) CHRONOLOGICAL CLASSIFICATION.

(WORKS ON THE ENGLISH, SCOTCH AND AMERICAN LAWS OF EVIDENCE.)

1735. The Law of Evidence wherein all the cases that have yet been printed in any of our Law Books or Trials, and which in any wise relate to points of Evidence are collected and methodically digested under their proper heads, with necessary tables to the whole.

2nd Ed, London, 1735.

[The anonymous author observes in his Preface that prior to this collection there was nothing of this nature extant besides the 11th Chapter of a Book entitled Trials per Pais which was very defective. Ed.]

1756. The Law of Evidence, by Lord Chief Baron Gilbert.

London, 1756.

[2nd Ed. (?); 3rd Ed., 1769; 4th Ed., 1777; 5th Ed., in 4 vols., 1791—1796; 6th Ed., 1801, by James Sedgwick. This is the first of the [illegible] subject. Mr. Best (Ev., p. 70) says, that it is [illegible] principally indebted for reducing our law of [illegible]

1761. Theory of Evidence.

[This anonymous work is in substance Part VI of the anonymous first edition (1767) of what afterwards appeared as Buller's Nisi Prius; it is found also in all subsequent editions. Thayer's Cases on Evidence, p. 1028.]

London, 1761.

1801. A Compendium of the Law of Evidence, by Thomas Peake.

London, 1801.

1802. The Rules of Evidence on Pleas of the Crown illustrated from Printed and Manuscript Trials and Cases, by Leonard McNally, 2 vols.

London and Dublin, 1802.

1810. A Digest of the Law of Evidence in Civil and Criminal Cases, by Zephaniah Swift, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of the State of Connecticut.

Hartford, 1810.

1812. The Philosophy of Evidence, by Daniel M'Kinnon.

London, 1812.

1814. A treatise on the Law of Evidence, by the Right Hon. S. March Phillips and Ames, and (subsequently) Thomas James Arnold.

London, 1814.

[2nd Ed., 1815; 3rd Ed., 1817; 4th Ed., 1820; 5th Ed., 1822; 6th Ed., 1824; 7th Ed., 1829; 8th Ed., 1838; 9th Ed., 1843; 10th Ed, 1852 (latest). Ed.]

1820. An Essay on the Principles of Evidence and their application to subjects of judicial enquiry, by James Glassford.

Edinburgh, 1820.

1824. A practical treatise on the Law of Evidence, by Thomas Starkie. 3 vols.

London, 1824.

[2nd Ed., 1833 (2 vols.); 3rd Ed., 1842 (3 vols.); 4th Ed., 1853 (latest), by George Morley [illegible] There is an American Edition (10th, 1876) [illegible] with references to American Cases by George [illegible]

1825. A treatise on Judicial Evidence extracted from the Manuscripts of Jeremy Bentham, Esq., by M. Dumont, Member of the Representative and Sovereign Council of Geneva. Translated into English.

London, 1825.

[A translation of Dumont's "Traite des Preuves Judiciaires," published in 1823 v. post, 1827. Ed.]

1825. A practical treatise on the settling of evidence for trials at Nisi Prius and on the preparing and arranging the necessary proofs, by Isaac Espinasse.

London, 1825.

[This is a 2nd Ed.: quære date of first. Ed.]

1825. Evidence forming a title of the Code of legal proceedings according to the plan proposed by Crofton Uniacke, Esq., by S. B. Harrison.

London, 1825

[An early attempt at codification. Ed.]

1827. Roscoe's Digest of the Law of Evidence on the trial of Actions at Nisi Prius.

London, 1827.

[Quære title of first edition; 2nd Ed., 1831; 3rd Ed., 1834; 4th [illegible] 5th Ed., 1839; 6th Ed., 1844; 7th Ed., 1849; 8th Ed., 1851;

11th Ed., 1866; 12th Ed., 1870; 13th Ed., 1875; 14th Ed., 1879; 15th Ed., 1884; 16th Ed., 1891 (latest), 2 vols., by Maurice Powell. Ed.]

1827. Rationale of Judicial Evidence specially applied to English Practice from the Manuscripts of Jeremy Bentham, Esq., Bencher of Lincoln's Inn, in five volumes. Ed John S Mill

London, 1827.

[The papers from which this work was extracted were written by Bentham at various times from the year 1802 to 1812. They comprise a very minute exposition of his views on all the branches of the subject of judicial evidence, intermixed with criticisms on the Law of Evidence as it was established in England and with incidental remarks on the state of that branch of law in most of the continental systems of jurisprudence. Bentham's speculations on Judicial Evidence had already been published in a more condensed form by M. Dumont of Geneva in the "Traite des Preuves Judiciaires," published in 1823, an English translation of which appeared in 1825. See ante, and the Preface of J. S. Mill. As Professor Wigmore says, in less than three generations nearly every reform which Bentham advocated for the Law of Evidence has come to pass Law of Evidence, vol iii, § 2251 Ed]

1830. A practical treatise on the General Principles and Elementary Rules of the Law of Evidence, by Richard Garde.

London, 1830.

1831. An Examination of the Rules of Law respecting the admission of extrinsic evidence in aid of the interpretation of Wills by the Right Hon. Sir James Wigram

London, 1831.

[2nd Ed., 1835; 3rd Ed., 1840; 4th Ed., 1858 (latest), by W. Knox Wigram. Ed.]

1834. A treatise on the Law of Evidence in Scotland by George Tait.

Edinburgh, 1834.

[This is the 3rd Edition by Adam Urquhart. Ed.]

1835. Roscoe's Digest of the Law of Evidence in Criminal cases

London, 1835.

1836 A treatise on the Law of Evidence in the Courts of Equity by Richard Newcombe Gresley.

London, 1836.

[A work dealing with the system of evidence prevalent in the Court of Chancery, 2nd Ed., 1847 (latest), by Christopher Alderson Calvert. Ed]

1838. An Essay on the Principles of Circumstential Evidence, by William Wills.

London, 1838

[Quære date of 2nd Ed.; 3rd Ed., 1850; 4th Ed., 1862 (latest), edited by Alfred Wills. Ed.]

1842. A treatise on the Admissibility of Confessions and Challenge of Jurors in Criminal cases in England and Ireland, by Henry H. Joy Dublin, 1842.

1842 A treatise on the Law of Evidence, by Simon Greenleaf, LL.D.

Philadelphia, 1842.

[1st Ed., in one vol.; 2nd Ed., 1844—1846; 3rd Ed., 2 vols., 1846, quære as to subsequent editions until 1896, the date of the last edition in 3 vols., revised with additions by William Draper Lewis, who states in his preface that in upwards of 20,000 cases on evidence, the Courts have referred to some section of Mr. Greenleaf's work to support their decisions. Ed.]

1844 A treatise on presumptions of Law and Fact with the theory and rules of presumptive or circumstantial proof in Criminal cases, by W. M. Best.

London, 1844.

[The 1844 Ed. is the only edition of this work. Ed.]

1848. A treatise on the Law of Evidence as administered in England and Ireland with illustrations from American and other foreign Laws, by His Honour Judge Pitt Taylor.

London, 1848.

[Quære title of first edition; 2nd Ed., 1855; 3rd Ed., 1858; 4th Ed., 1864; 5th Ed., 1868; 6th Ed., 1872; 7th Ed., 1878; 8th Ed., 1885; 9th Ed., 1895; 10th Ed., 1906, by W. E. Hume Williams, K.C. The references throughout this work are to the 10th edition by G. Pitt Lewis, Q.C.]

1849. The Principles of the Law of Evidence with elementary rules for conducting the examination and cross-examination of witnesses, by W. M. Best

London, 1849.

[2nd Ed., 1855; 3rd Ed., 1860; 4th Ed., 1866; 5th Ed., 1870; 6th Ed., 1875; 7th Ed., 1883; 8th Ed., 1893 (latest), by J. M. Lely, with Notes to American and Canadian Cases, by Charles F. Chamberlayne of the Boston Bar. Ed.]

1850 The History and Principles of the Law of Evidence as illustrating our social progress, by John George Phillimore

London, 1850.

1855. A treatise on the Law of Evidence in Scotland, by William Gillespie Dickson 2 vols.

Edinburgh, 1855

[2nd Ed., 1864; 3rd Ed. (?) 1887, by P. J. Hamilton Grierson. Ed.]

1856. Powell's Principles and Practice of the Law of Evidence

London, 1856

1861. A treatise on Facts as subjects of Enquiry by a Jury, by James Ram.

London, 1861.

ing a case to the jury; Whewell on Theory and Fact, Hoffman's fifty resolutions in regard to professional deportment, cases of mistaken identity and erroneous conviction. Ed.]

1865. Privilege of confessions, religions, by Baddely.

1868 A treatise on the Nature, Principles and the Rules of Circumstantial Evidence, especially that of the presumptive kind in criminal cases, by A. M. Burrill.

New York, 1868.

1872. A treatise on the Law of Estoppel and its application in Practice, by Melville M. Bigelow.

Boston, 1872.

[Quære date of 2nd and 3rd Ed.; 4th Ed., 1886; 5th Ed., 1890 (latest). Ed.]

1876. A Digest of the Law of Evidence, by Sir James Fitzjames Stephen.

London, 1876.

[Reprinted with slight alterations, September, 1876; December, 1876; with many alterations, 1877; 2nd Ed., 1881; 3rd Ed., 1887; 4th Ed., 1893 (latest). There is also an American Edition (Boston, 1886), from the fourth English Edition, with Notes from American cases, including those of J. W. May. Ed.]

1877. A Commentary on the Law of Evidence in Civil Issues, by Francis Wharton, LL.D.

Philadelphia, 1877

[2nd Ed., 1879; 3rd Ed., 1888 (latest). Ed.]

1879. Famous cases of Circumstantial Evidence by S. M. Phillips.

Jersey, 1879.

[This is the 4th American Edition of the English work by the author of Phillips on Evidence. Ed.]

1880. An Exposition of the Practice relative to the Right to Begin and Reply, by W. M. Best.

Burlington, N. J., 1880.

[This is an American Edition of the English work. Quære date. Ed.]

1880. A treatise on the Law of Evidence in Criminal Issues, by Francis Wharton, LL.D. 8th Ed.

Philadelphia, 1880.

[8th Ed., 1880; 9th Ed. (latest), 1884. Previous to 1890 [illegible] this book was one of the volumes of [illegible] editions of which are as follows: 1st E[illegible] 1857; 5th Ed., 1861; 6th Ed., 1868; [illegible]

Law. Ed.]

1883. The Theory of the Law of Evidence as established in the United States and of the Conduct of the Examination of Witnesses, by W. Reynolds.

Chicago, 1883.

[2nd Ed., 1890; 3rd Ed., 1897. Ed.]

1883. The Law of Expert Testimony, by H. W. Rogers, LL.D.

St. Louis, Mo., 1883.

[2nd Ed., 1891, re-written and enlarged. Ed.]

1884. The Law of Estoppel, by L. F. Everest and E. Strode.

London, 1884.

1885. A treatise on Communication by Telegraph, by Morris Gray.

Boston, 1885.

[A fourth of this book deals with the subject from the point of view of the Law of Evidence. Ed.]

1886. The Law of Presumptive Evidence including presumptions, both of law and of fact, and the burden of proof both in Civil and Criminal cases, by John D. Lawson.

San Francisco 1886.

[The law of presumptive evidence is here reduced to definite rules. Ed.]

1886. The Law of Expert and Opinion Evidence reduced to rules, by John D. Lawson.

San Francisco, 1886.

1886. Wood's Practice Evidence for ready use in the trial of causes, by H. G. Wood.

New York, 1886.

1887. A treatise on the Law of Witnesses, by Stewart Rapalje.

New York, 1887.

1887. Law of Evidence under the Code of Civil Procedure of the State of New York, by Henry E. Warner.

Albany, 1887.

1887. The Practice relating to Witnesses in all matters and proceedings, Civil and Criminal, at, after, and before the trial, or hearing both in the superior and inferior Courts, by Walter S. Siebel.

London, 1887.

1888. An Essay on the Principles of Estoppel, by M. Cababé.

London, 1888.

1889. Privileged Communications as a branch of Legal Evidence, by John Frelinghuysen Hageman.

New Jersey, 1889.

1889. The Ohio Law of Opinion Evidence, expert and non-expert, by Francis B. James.

Cincinnati, 1889.

1891. A brief on the modes of proving the facts most frequently in issue or collaterally in question on the trial of Civil or Criminal cases, by Austin Abbott of the New York Bar.

New York, 1891.

[By the same author "A brief for the trial of civil issues before a jury" and "A brief for the trial of criminal cases." See also 1895. Ed.]

1892. The Law of Evidence, by Sidney L. Phipson.

London, 1892.

[2nd Ed., 1898; 3rd Ed., 1902.]

1892. The General Principles of the Law of Evidence with their application to the trial of civil actions and criminal cases, 3 vols, by Frank S. Rice.

Rochester, N. Y., 1892.

[The first two volumes deal with civil actions and the third with criminal cases. Ed.]

1892. A treatise on the Law of Identification, by G. E. Harris.

Albany, 1892

[Identity of persons and things—animate and inanimate—living and dead—mistaken identity—corpus delicti—opinion evidence. The author omits the subject of poisoning and drowning. Ed.]

1892. Select Cases on Evidence at the Common Law with notes, by J. B. Thayer, LL.D., Professor of Law at Harvard University

Cambridge, 1892.

["The only writer who has added much to our knowledge of the principles of evidence since Bentham:" Sir William Markby in Preface to his Indian Evidence Act.]

1893 A treatise on the Admissibility of Parol Evidence in respect to written instruments, by Irving Browne.

New York, 1893.

1894. The Theory and Practice of the Law of Evidence by William Wills.

London, 1894.

1894 A treatise on Disputed Handwriting and the determination of genuine from forged signatures. The character and composition of inks and their determination by chemical tests The effect of age on documents, by W. E. Hagan, Expert in Handwriting

New York, 1894.

[See also Le Faux—Maquillage, Decalquage Graphotypie par Gustave Hasse, Paris, 1898 Ed.]

1895 Select cases in the Law of Evidence as applied during the examination of witnesses, by Austin Abbott, LL.D.

New York, 1895.

1895 The taking of Evidence on Commission, by W. E. Hume Williams and A. Romer Macklin.

London, 1895.

1896. The Law of Evidence in Civil Cases, by Burr W. Jones, 3 vols.

San Francisco, 1896.

1896. A Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law, Part I, Development of Trial by Jury, by J. B Thayer, LL.D.

Boston, 1896.

1896. A treatise on the Law of Circumstantial Evidence, by Arthur P. Will.

Philadelphia, 1896.

1898 The Law of Evidence in Criminal cases under the Act of 1898, by Ernest Arthur Jelf.

London, 1898.

1898. A Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law, by James Bradley Thayer, LL.D

London 1898.

[This is the full work of which the volumes published in 1896 contained the first four Chapters. Ed.]

1898. Rules of Evidence as prescribed by the Common Law for the trial of actions and proceedings, by George W. Bradner.

Chicago, 1898.

1899. Compendium of Evidence, by D. Augustus Straker.

Detroit, 1899.

1904. Treatise on Evidence. An Encyclopedia of Statutes and cases until March 1904. Canadian Edition in 4 vols., by J. H. Wigmore

(WORKS ON THE LAW OF EVIDENCE IN INDIA.)

1858 The Law of Evidence applicable to the Courts of the Late East India Company explained in a course of lectures delivered by the Hon'ble John Bruce Norton, Barrister-at-Law, Advocate-General of Madras

Madras, 1858.

[2nd Ed., 1859; 3rd quære date; 4th Ed., 1865; 5th Ed., quære date; 6th Ed., 1868; 7th Ed., 1869. This book contains the substance of the lectures the author delivered as Professor of Law in the Madras Presidency College.]

1862 A Manual of the Law of Evidence of the Madras Provinces, by J. R. Kindersley, Madras Civil Service and of Lincoln's Inn

[This is the date of 2nd Edition: 3rd Ed., 1865. Ed.]

1862 The Law of Evidence as administered in England and applied to India, by Joseph Goodeve, Barrister-at-Law, Acting Master of the Supreme Court of Calcutta, and Lecturer on Law and Equity in the Presidency College

Calcutta, 1862.

[In the preface the author says:—"Some progress had been made in the work before he had become aware of the existence of, and more before he had seen, the able treatise of Mr. Norton—'The Law of Evidence applicable to the Courts of the East India Company,'—a treatise, however, which in effect addresses itself still more generally to the Law of Evidence, and, of course, to English as well as Indian Law, and which is justly entitled to a higher and more ambitious designation. Regard being had, however, to the somewhat differing scope and character of the two works, and the wideness of the field open to both, it was felt that there was still abundant room for each; and the author persevered in his original design..... ..... .it is trusted that the practical character to which at the same time it aspires will not make it useless to those of more advanced position." The author subsequently, and in 1872 after the passing of the Evidence Act, published a Supplement to this book. Ed.]

1867. The Law of Evidence in British India, by C. D. Field.

Calcutta, 1867

[2nd Ed., 1873, 3rd Ed., 1878; 4th Ed., 1884; 5th Ed., 1894. The preface of the first edition is dated 1st May 1867. The first edition dealt in Part I with the general outlines of the Law of Evidence. In Part II, the Old Evidence Act (II of 1855) was reprinted and notes were appended to its sections. The sections of two other Acts touching the subject of evidence was also reprinted with annotations, viz., ss. 98, 145—150, 202—205, 366, 145, 154 of Act XXV of 1861: (Cr. Pr. Code); ss. 4, 20 of Act XIV of 1859 (Limitation). In the preface the author as his apology for coming before the public on ground already occupied by the able works of Mr. Norton and Mr. Goodeve says:—"These works have long since taken their appropriate places in the Indian Law Library beyond the reach of competition or criticism. The present publication seeks to fill a place, which the author ventures to think, is as yet unoccupied. It is intended to be a small practical treatise solely for Mofussil use and for the Mofussil Courts." The author in his preface to the 2nd Edition, published after the appearance of this Act (April 1873), which preface is reprinted in the last edition says that "it is rather a new book than a new edition, the contents having increased threefold and the matter of the first edition (so far as it was then relevant) having been recast in a new shape." Ed.]

1872. An Introduction to the Evidence Act. The Principles of Judicial Evidence, by James Fitzjames Stephen, Q.C.

London, 1872.

[Several times reprinted; last reprint, Calcutta, 1902. Ed.]

1872. The Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) being a Supplement to "The Law of Evidence as administered in England and applied to India," by Joseph Goodeve.

Calcutta, 1872.

[See ante, 1868, for author's principal treatise. Ed.]

1872 The Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872). together with an Introduction and Explanatory Notes, Rulings of the Courts and Index, by Sir Henry Stewart Cunningham, K.C.I.E.

Madras, 1872.

[9th Ed. (latest), 1894.]

1873. The Law of Evidence applicable to India adapted to the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872), by John Bruce Norton, late Advocate-General of Madras.

Madras, 1873.

[8th Ed., 1873; 9th Ed., 1877. Edited by W. M. Scharlieb. The 8th and 9th Editions are apparently so styled in continuation of the Editions of the author's previous work first published in 1858.]

1875. The Theory of Relevancy for the purpose of Judicial Evidence, by George Clifford Whitworth, Bombay Civil Service.

Bombay, 1875.

[2nd Ed., 1881. Ed.]

1882. The Indian Evidence Act with speeches delivered by the Law Member with reference to the Indian Evidence Bill, etc., by C. G. Lewis.

Calcutta, 1882.

1890. The Indian Evidence Acts (I and XVIII of 1872), with an Introduction on the Principles of Judicial Evidence and Commentaries, by William Griffith, Barrister-at-Law

London, 1890.

1893. Estoppel by Matter of Record in Civil suits in India, by L. Broughton.

London, 1893.

1893. The Law of Estoppel in British India (Tagore Law Lectures, 1893), by Arthur Cesperez.

Calcutta, 1893.

[A second edition was published in 1896 under the title "Estoppel by representation and Res Judicata." Ed.]

1894. The Indian Evidence Act with notes, illustrative cases and other explanatory remarks and comments, etc., by Kishori Lall Sarkar, M.A., B.L.

Calcutta.

[2nd Ed., 1894. Quære date of 1st Edition. Ed.]

1894. The Case-noted Evidence Act, by Bijay Kesab Mitra and Ashutosh Sirkar, B.L.

Calcutta, 1894.

1894. A treatise on the Law of Res Judicata, by Hukm Chand.

London, 1894.

[Printed at Bombay. Ed.]

1895. The Law of Evidence in British India with Notes, etc., by A. C. Mitra.

Calcutta, 1895.

1896. The Indian Evidence Act (No. I of 1872 as amended by Act XVIII of 1872), together with an Introduction and Explanatory Notes, Rulings of the Courts and Index, by Tarapada Banerji, B.L.

Calcutta, 1896

1897. The Indian Evidence Act with notes, by Sir William Markby, K.C.I.E., late a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Calcutta ; Reader in Indian Law in the University of Oxford.

London, 1897

(B) CLASSIFICATION BY NAMES OF AUTHORS

NOTE.—For the works of the authors, see the entry given in the previous list against the date mentioned in this.

(AUTHORS OF WORK ON THE ENGLISH, SCOTCH, AND AMERICAN LAWS OF EVIDENCE.)

Abbott, 1891, 1895.
Anonymous, 1735, 1761.
Bigelow, 1872.
Bradner, 1898.
Browne, 1893
Burrill, 1868.
Cababé, 1888.
Dickson, 1855.
Espinasse, 1825
Garde, 1830.
Gilbert, 1756.
Glassford, 1820.
Gray, 1885.
Greenleaf, 1842.
Gresley, 1836.
Hagan, 1894.
Hageman, 1889.
Harris, 1892.
Harrison, 1825.
James, 1889.
Jelf, 1898.
Jones, 1896.
Joy, 1842.
Lawson, 1886.
Macklin, 1895.
M'Kinnon, 1812.
MacNally, 1802.
Peake, 1801.
Bentham, 1825, 1827.
Best, 1844, 1849, 1880.
Phillimore, 1850.
Phillips, 1814, 1879.
Phipson, 1892.
Powell, 1856.
Ram, 1861
Rapalje, 1887.
Reynolds, 1883.
Rice, 1892.
Rogers, 1883.
Roscoe, 1827, 1835.
Sichel, 1887.
Starkie, 1824.
Stephen, 1876.
Straker, 1899.
Swift, 1810.
Tait, 1834.
Thayer, 1892, 1896, 1898.
Taylor, 1848.
Warner, 1887.
Wharton, 1877, 1880.
Wigmore, 1904.
Wigram, 1831.
Will, 1896.
Williams, 1895.
Wills, 1838, 1894
Wood, 1886.

(AUTHORS OF WORKS ON THE LAW OF EVIDENCE IN INDIA.)

Banerjee, 1896.
Broughton, 1893.
Caspersz, 1893.
Cunningham, 1872.
Field, 1867.
Goodeve, 1862, 1872.
Griffiths, 1890.
Hukm Chand, 1894
Kindersley, 1862.
Lewis, 1882.
Markby, 1897.
Mitra (A C.), 1895.
Mitra and Sircar, 1894.
Norton, 1858, 1877.
Sirkar, 1894
Stephen, 1872.
Whitworth, 1875.

(C) CLASSIFICATION BY SUBJECTS TREATED OF.

NOTE.—For the works of the authors, see the entry given in the Chronological List against the date mentioned in this.

HISTORY OF THE LAW OF EVIDENCE.

Phillimore. 1850

GENERAL WORKS ON THE LAW OF EVIDENCE.

Anonymous, 1735, 1761.
Bradner, 1898.
Bentham, 1825, 1827.
Best, 1849.
Dickson, 1855
Garde, 1830.
Gilbert, 1756.
Glassford, 1820.
Greenleaf, 1842.
Harrison, 1825.
Jones, 1896.
M'Kinnon, 1812.
Peake, 1801.
Phillips, 1814.
Phipson, 1892.
Powell, 1856
Ram, 1861
Reynolds, 1883.
Rice, 1892
Starkie, 1824.
Straker, 1899.
Swift, 1810
Stephen, 1876.
Tait, 1834
Taylor, 1848.
Thayer, 1892, 1896, 1898.
Wharton, 1877, 1880.
Wigmore, 1904.
Wills, 1894.
Wood, 1886.

EVIDENCE IN COURTS OF EQUITY.

Gresley, 1836.

NISI PRIUS EVIDENCE.

Abbott, 1891, 1895.
Espinasse, 1825.
Peake, 1801.
Roscoe, 1827.

EVIDENCE IN CRIMINAL CASES.

Burrill, 1868.
Jelf, 1898.
MacNally, 1802.
Rice, 1892.
Roscoe, 1835.
Wharton, 1880.

RELEVANCY (See Act I of 1872, ss. 5—16)

Whitworth, 1875.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

Burrill, 1868.
Phillips, 1879.
Will, 1896.
Wills, 1838.

CONFESSIONS AND CHALLENGE OF JURORS (See Act I of 1872, ss. 24—30).

Joy, 1842.

Baddely (religious), 1865.

Note.—See also works on Criminal Evidence.

EXPERT AND OPINION EVIDENCE (See Act I of 1872, ss. 45—51).

Harris, 1892.
James, 1889.
Lawson, 1886.
Rogers, 1883.

EVIDENCE ON COMMISSION.

Hume, Williams & Macklin, 1895

PRESUMPTIONS (See Act I of 1872, ss. 79—90, 101—114).

Best, 1844.
Burrill, 1868.
Lawson, 1886.

Note.—The work "Mathews on Presumptive Evidence" has not come into the editor's hands.

EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE AS AFFECTING DOCUMENTS.

(See Act I of 1872, ss 91—100.)

Wigram. 1831.
Browne, 1893.

BURDEN OF PROOF (See Act I of 1892, ss 101—111)

Best. 1880.
Lawson, 1886.

ESTOPPEL (See Act I of 1872, ss. 115—117)

Bigelow, 1872.
Cababé, 1888.
Caspersz, 1893.
Everest and Strode, 1884.
Hukm Chand, 1894.

WITNESSES (See Act I of 1872, ss. 118—166).

Best, 1849.
Rapalje, 1887.
Ram, 1861.
Reynolds, 1883
Sichel, 1887.

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS (See Act I of 1872, ss. 121—132).

Hageman, 1889

RIGHT TO BEGIN AND REPLY.

Best, 1880.

HANDWRITING.

Hagan, 1894

IDENTIFICATION.

Harris, 1892.

Ram, 1861.

COMMUNICATION BY TELEGRAPH.

Gray, 1885.

EVIDENCE UNDER THE NEW YORK CODE.

Warner, 1887.

TEXT-BOOKS ON INDIAN LAW OF EVIDENCE PRIOR TO ACT I OF 1872

Field, 1867.
Kindersley, 1862.
Goodeve, 1862.
Norton, 1858.

COMMENTARIES ON THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (Act I of 1872).

Banerji, 1896.
Broughton, 1893.
Capersz, 1893.
Cunningham, 1872.
Field, 1873.
Goodeve, 1872.
Griffiths, 1890.
Lewis, 1882.
Markby, 1897.
Mitra (A. C.), 1859.
Mitra (B K.), and Sirkar, 1894.
Norton, 1873.
Sarkar, 1894.
Stephen, 1872.
Whitworth, 1875.

THE

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO

BRITISH INDIA.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

Preliminary.

Evidence branch adjective law

The substantive law of this country defines the rights, duties and liabilities the ascertainment of which is the purpose of every judicial proceeding The Criminal branch of that law is contained in the Indian Penal Code, as also in various special and local laws dealing with the subject. The substantive civil law of India has not as ye various Acts of the Indian ha and in the personal law special provision exists, the Courts are enjoined to act according to justice, equity and good c s s adjective law, logically defined, is the sufficient reason for assenting to a proposition as true.(1) Practically considered, it is the establishment of facts in issue (ascertained in each particular case by the pleadings and settlement of issues) by proper legal means to the satisfaction of the Court.(2) This is done which is to all legal practice it may be concerned about. evidence" are distinguished in this; that proof is the effect or result of evidence, while evidence is the medium of proof.(3) The facts out of which the rights and liabilities arise must be determined correctly. Facts which come in question in Courts of justice are enquired into and determined in precisely the same way as doubtful or disputed facts are enquired into and determined by men in general except so far as positive law has interposed with rules to secure impartiality and accuracy of decision or to exclude collateral mischief likely to result from the investigation.(4) Some portions of the law of Evidence such as those which deal with the relevancy of facts are intimately connected with the whole theory of human

(1) Wharton, Ev., § 1, id., Cr. Ev., § 2.
(2) Best, Ev., § 10.
(3) Ib.
(4) Ib § 2: Whether all these rules are effective for the purpose for which they were enacted or are necessary is of course another question.

IDENTIFICATION.

Harris, 1892.

Ram, 1861

COMMUNICATION BY TELEGRAPH.

Gray, 1885.

EVIDENCE UNDER THE NEW YORK CODE.

Warner, 1887.

TEXT-BOOKS ON INDIAN LAW OF EVIDENCE PRIOR TO ACT I OF 1872

Field, 1867.
Kindersley, 1862.
Goodeve, 1862.
Norton, 1858.

COMMENTARIES ON THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (Act I of 1872).

Banerji, 1896.
Broughton, 1893.
Caperaz, 1893.
Cunningham, 1872.
Field, 1873.
Goodeve, 1872.
Griffiths, 1890.
Lewis, 1882
Markby, 1897.
Mitra (A. C.), 1859.
Mitra (B. K.), and Sirkar, 1894.
Norton, 1873.
Sarkar, 1894.
Stephen, 1872.
Whitworth, 1875.

THE

LAW OF EVIDENCE

APPLICABLE TO

BRITISH INDIA.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

PRELIMINARY.

Evidence branch o adjective law.

The substantive law of this country defines the rights, duties and liabilities the ascertainment of which is the purpose of every judicial proceeding. The Criminal branch of that law is contained in the Indian Penal Code, as also in various special and local laws dealing with the subject. The substantive civil law of India has not as ye various Acts of the Indian ha and in the personal law special provision exists, the Courts are enjoined to act according to justice, equity and good conscience. Adjective law defines the pleading, procedure and proof by which the substantive law is applied in practice. It is the machinery by which that law is set and kept in motion. The rules relating to pleading and procedure are contained in the Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes Proof, the remaining branch of adjective law, logically defined, is the sufficient reason for assenting to a proposition as true (1) Practically considered, it is the establishment of facts in issue (ascertained in each particular case by the pleadings and settlement of issues) by proper legal means to the satisfaction of the Court.(2) This is done which is to all legal practice it may be concerned about.

proof.(3) The facts out of wl determined correctly. Facts which come in question in Courts of justice are enquired into and determined in precisely the same way as doubtful or disputed facts are enquired into and determined by men in general except so far as positive law has interposed with rules to secure impartiality and accuracy of decision or to exclude collateral mischief likely to result from the investigation.(4) Some portions of the law of Evidence such as those which deal with the relevancy of facts are intimately connected with the whole theory of human

(1) Wharton, Ev., § 1, id., Cr. Ev., § 2.
(2) Best, Ev., § 10.
(3) Ib.
(4) Ib § 2 Whether all these rules are effective for the purpose for which they were enacted or are necessary is of course another question.

knowledge and with logic as applied to human conduct (1) Other rules are of a technical character designed to secure the objects mentioned or are based on principles of general policy.

nin g of n "Evi- ce"

The ambiguity of the word "evidence" has given rise to varying definitions. Bentham used it in its broadest sense when he defined it as "any matter of fact the effect, tendency, or design of which is to produce in the mind a persuasion affirmative or disaffirmative of the existence of some other matter of fact."(2) It is, however, clear that the term as used in municipal law must have a very much [illegible] It is manifest that every fact, some having, it may be, but [illegible] t be adduced. Courts are so which may be given in evidence, great bulk, therefore, of the English law of Evidence consists of negative rules declaring what, as the expression runs, "is not evidence"(4) In its legal and most general acceptation, "evidence" has been defined to include all the means, exclusive of mere argument, by which any alleged matter of fact, the truth of which is submitted to investigation, is established or disproved to the satisfaction [illegible] (5) According to the concise definition of the California Code, law, of ascertaining in a judicial "(6)

Judicial evidence is thus a species of the genus "evidence," and is for the [illegible] rules of thing less o the pro- "(8) The ines how the parties are to convince the Court of the existence of that state of facts which, [illegible] would establish the existence of Thus law, in so far as it is con- in the words of Rolfe, B.: (11) edly considered, is calculated to is practicable. Perhaps, if we lived to the age of a thousand years, instead of sixty or seventy, it might throw light on any subject that came into dispute, if all matters which could by possibility affect it were severally gone into; and enquiries carried on from month

(1) Steph. Introd. 1, 2. The same learned author (Dig. xi) stated that Chief Baron Gilbert's work on the Law of Evidence (1756), the first of the recognised English text books on the subject, is founded on Locke's Essay much as his own work is founded on Mill's Logic.

(2) Bentham, Jud. Ev., 17.

(3) Bur. Jones, Ev., § 1.

(4) Steph. Introd.; these rules are closely connected with the institution of trial by jury: see Thayer's cases on Evidence, 4; and Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law: Part I, Development of trial by Jury, and per Lord Mansfield in the Berkely Peerage case, 4 Camp., 414.

(5) 1 Greenleaf, Ev., § 1; Best, Ev., § 11, p. 19; Steph. Introd., 7; as to the definition of the word as used in the Act, see Notes to s. 3, post. See also Steph. Dig., Art. 1; Taylor, Ev., § 1, and the definition given by Prof. Thayer in his cases on Evidence, p. 2.

(6) Cal. Code, s. 1823. See observations on the definitions given in the California Code (which are said to express and typify the judicial sentiment of the American Judiciary) in Rice's General Principles of the Law of Evidence, p. 9.

(7) Best, Ev., §§ 34, 70.

(8) Speech in Council of the Hon. Mr. Stephen, Gazette of India, 18th April 1871, p. 42 (Extra-Supplement).

(9) Other Acts also contain provisions relating to evidence; as to this see s. 2, post.

(10) Steph. Introd., 10.

(11) In The Attorney General v. Hitchcock, 7 Exch., 91, 105.

to month as to the truth of everything connected with it. I do not say how that would be; but such a course is found to be impossible at present."(1)

Rules respecting judicial evidence may be conveniently divided into those relating to the modus probandi, and those relating to the modus probandum. But one general rule of evidence, the best that the nature of the case will admit.(3) This rule does not require the production of the greatest possible quantity of evidence, but is framed to prevent the introduction of any evidence which raises the supposition that there is better evidence behind, in the possession, or under the control, of the party, by which he might prove the same fact. The two chief applications of this principle are as follows: (a) With regard to the quid probandum, the law requires as a condition to the admissibility of evidence (either direct or circumstantial) an open and visible connection between the principal and evidentiary facts (4) If the belief in the principal fact which is to be ascertained is to be, after all, an inference from other facts, those facts must, to all events, be closely connected with the principal fact in some of certain specific modes.(5) This connection must be reasonable and proximate, not conjectural and remote. This, which is the theory of relevancy, is dealt with in the first Part of the Evidence Act.(6) The first question therefore which the law of evidence should decide is what facts are relevant and may be proved. (b) With regard to the modus probandi, the law rejects derivative evidence, such as the so-called "hearsay evidence,"(7) and exacts original evidence prescribing that no evidence shall be received which shows, on its face, that it only derives its force from some other which is withheld.(8) In other words, the best evidence must be given. If a fact is proved by oral evidence, it must be direct, that is to say, things seen must be deposed to by some one who says he saw them with his own eyes things heard by some one who says he heard them with his own ears,(9) and original documents must be produced or accounted for before any other evidence can be given of their contents.(10) In addition to the above-mentioned rules, English text-writers treat as a portion of the law of evidence the rule—that the evidence must correspond with the allegations, but it will be sufficient if the substance of the issues be proved. The rights of parties litigating must be determined secundum allegata et probata (according to what is averred and proved). This rule has not been incorporated in the Act, as it is one, strictly speaking, rather of the law of procedure proper than of evidence.(11)

What the law of evidence determines.

(1) See also R. v Parbhudas, 11 B H C R., 91 (1874), per West, J. "One of the objects of a law of evidence is to restrict the investigations made by Courts within the bounds prescribed by general convenience," as to the utility of the rules, see Best, Ev., §§ 35, et seq., Field, Ev., 13, et seq., sanctions, Best, Ev., §§ 16, et seq., securities for insuring veracity and completeness of evidence, ib., §§ 54, et seq., 100

(2) Best, Ev., § 111. Mr. Stephen said in his above-mentioned speech of the 18th April 1871 — "The main feature of the Bill consists in the distinction drawn by it between the relevancy of facts and the mode of proving relevant facts"

(3) Per Lord Hardwicke, Ch., in Omychund v Barker, 1 Atk., 21, 49 See Ramalakshmi v. Sivanatha, 14 M. I. A., 570, 588 (1872); Baboo Bodhnerain v. Baboo Omrao, 13 M. I. A., 519, 527 (1870); s. c., 15 W. R., 1 P. C.; Baboo Ganga Persad v. Baboo Inderjit, 23 W. R., 390, P. C. (1875), Moheema Chunder v Poorno Chunder, 11 W. R., 165, 167 (1869), Dinomoyi Debi v. Luchmipat, 7 I. A., 8, as to the meaning of the rule, see Norton, Ev., 69, Best, Ev., pp 70—73, 87, 88, 91—93, 36, 215, 216, 89, 431, 434, 416, 275, 489, 231, 252, Steph. Introd., 3, 7.

(4) Best, Ev., §§ 90, 38

(5) Gazette of India, 18th April 1871 supra.

(6) v. post. Introduction to Ch. II.

(7) See Steph. Introd., 4, 6, Best, Ev., §§ 495, 112

(8) Best, Ev., § 9, Doe d. Welsh v. Langfield, 16 M. & W., 497, Doe d. Gilbert v. Ross 7 M. & W., 102, 106; Macdonnell v. Evans, 11 C. B., 930, 942.

(9) v. ss. 59, 60, post.

(10) v. ss. 59, 61, 64 post.

(11) See cases cited in Field, Ev. 357—369.

knowledge and with logic as applied to human conduct.(1) Other rules are of a technical character designed to secure the objects mentioned or are based on principles of general policy.

nin g of n " Evi- ce "

The ambiguity of the word " evidence " has given rise to varying definitions. Bentham used it in its broadest sense when he defined it as " any matter of fact the effect, tendency, or design of which is to produce in the mind a persuasion [illegible] or disaffirmative of the existence of some other matter of fact. "(2) It [illegible] ist have a very much aving, it may be, but ıced. Courts are so be given in evidence, as there must be an end of litigation.(3) The great bulk, therefore, of the English law of Evidence consists of negative rules declaring what, as the expression runs, " is not evidence."(4) In its legal and most general acceptation, " evidence " has been defined to include all the means, exclusive [illegible] matter of fact, the truth of which is d or disproved to the satisfaction se definition of the California Code, by law, of ascertaining in a judicial fact "(6)

Judicial evidence is thus a species of the genus " evidence," and is for the most part nothing more than natural evidence, restrained or modified by rules of [illegible] law.(7) " A law of evidence properly constructed would be nothing less to the pro- t."(8) The mines how that state of facts which, l establish the existence of s law, in so far as it is con- words of Rolfe, B.(11) onsidered, is calculated to throw light on the subject in dispute, and of what is practicable. Perhaps, if we lived to the age of a thousand years, instead of sixty or seventy, it might throw light on any subject that came into dispute, if all matters which could by possibility affect it were severally gone into, and enquiries carried on from month

(1) Steph. Introd 1, 2 The same learned author (Dig. xi) stated that Chief Baron Gilbert's work on the Law of Evidence (1756), the first of the recognised English text books on the subject, is founded on Locke's Essay much as his own work is founded on Mill's Logic.

(2) Benth., Jud Ev., 17

(3) Bar Jones, Ev., § 1.

(4) Steph Introd., these rules are closely connected with the institution of trial by jury: see Thayer's cases on Evidence, 4: and Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law: I art I, Development of trial by Jury, and per Lord Mansfield in the Berkely Peerage case, 4 Camps., 414

(5) 1 Greenl. Ev., § 1; Best, Ev., § 11, p. 19; Steph Introd., 7: as to the definition of the word as used in the def. see Notes to s. 3, post. See also Steph Dig., Art 1· Taylor, Ev., § 1, and the definition given by Prof. Thayer in his cases on Evidence, p 2

(6) Cal Code, s 1823 See observations on the definitions given in the California Code (which are said to express and typify the judicial sentiment of the American Judiciary) in Rice's General Principles of the Law of Evidence, p 9.

(7) Best, Ev., §§ 34, 79.

(8) Speech in Council of the Hon Mr Stephen, Gazette of India, 18th April 1871, p. 42 (Extra-Supplement)

(9) Other Acts also contain provisions relating to evidence, as to this see s. 2, post.

(10) Steph. Introd., 10.

(11) In The Attorney General v. Hitchcock, 7 Exch., 91, 105.

to month as to the truth of everything connected with it. I do not say how that would be; but such a course is found to be impossible at present."(1) evidence, the best that the nature of the case will admit.(3) This rule does not require the production of the greatest possible quantity of evidence, but is framed to prevent the introduction of any evidence which raises the supposition that there is better evidence behind, in the possession, or under the control, of the party, by which he might prove the same fact. The two chief applications of this principle are as follows: (a) With regard to the quid probandum, the law requires as a condition to the admissibility of evidence (either direct or circumstantial) an open and visible connection between the principal and evidentiary facts.(4) If the belief in the principal fact which is to be ascertained is to be, after all, an inference from other facts, those facts must, to all events, be closely connected with the principal fact in some of certain specific modes.(5) This connection must be reasonable and proximate, not conjectural and remote This, which is the theory of relevancy, is dealt with in the first Part of the Evidence Act (6) The first question therefore which the law of evidence should decide is: what facts are relevant and may be proved. (b)With regard to the modus probandi, the law rejects derivative evidence, such as the so-called "hearsay evidence,"(7) and exacts original evidence prescribing that no evidence shall be received which shows, on its face, that it only derives its force from some other which is withheld.(8) In other words, the best evidence must be given. If a fact is proved by oral evidence, it must be direct, that is to say, things seen must be deposed to by some one who says he saw them with his own eyes · things heard by some one who says he heard them with his own ears,(9) and original documents must be produced or accounted for before any other evidence can be given of their contents.(10) In addition to the above-mentioned rules, English text-writers treat as a portion of the law of evidence the rule—that the evidence must the substance of the determined secundum ved). This rule has not , rather of the law of procedure proper than of evidence (11)

(1) See also R. v Parbhudas, 11 B. H C R, 91 (1874), per West, J · "One of the objects of a law of evidence is to restrict the investigations made by Courts within the bounds prescribed by general convenience," as to the utility of the rules, see Best, Ev., §§ 35, et seq. Field, Ev., 13, et seq, sanctions, Best, Ev, §§ 16, et seq, securities for insuring veracity and completeness of evidence, ib, §§ 54, et seq, 100.

(2) Best, Ev, § 111, Mr. Stephen said in his above-mentioned speech of the 18th April 1871 — "The main feature of the Bill consists in the distinction drawn by it between the relevancy of facts and the mode of proving relevant facts"

(3) Per Lord Hardwicke, Ch, in Omychund v. Barker, 1 Atk., 21, 49 See Ramalakshmi v Sivanatha, 14 M I. A, 570, 588 (1872); Baboo Bodhnerain v. Baboo Omrao, 13 M. I. A., 519, 527 (1870); s. c., 15 W. R., 1 P. C., Baboo Ganga Persad v. Baboo Inderjit, 23 W. R, 390, P. C. (1875), Moheema Chunder v Poorno Chunder, 11 W. R, 165, 167 (1869), Dinomoyi Debi v. Luckmiput, 7 I A., 8, as to the meaning of the rule, see Norton, Ev., 69, Best, Ev., pp 70—73, 87, 88, 91—93, 36, 215, 216, 89, 431, 434, 416, 275, 489, 231, 252, Steph. Introd., 3, 7

(4) Best, Ev., §§ 90, 38.

(5) Gazette of India, 18th April 1871 supra.

(6) v post Introduction to Ch II.

(7) See Steph Introd., 4, 6, Best, Ev, §§ 495, 112

(8) Best, Ev., § 9, Doe d Welsh v Langfield, 16 M & W, 497, Doe d. Gilbert v Ross 7 M. & W., 102, 106, Macdonnell v. Evans, 11 C. B., 930, 942

(9) v. ss. 59, 60, post.

(10) v. ss. 59, 61, 64 post.

(11) See cases cited in Field, Ev. 357—369.

knowledge and with logic as applied to human conduct.(1) Other rules are of a technical character designed to secure the objects mentioned or are based on principles of general policy.

anin g of m "Evi- ace"

The ambiguity of the word "evidence" has given rise to varying definitions [illegible] its broadest sense when he defined it as "any matter of fact [illegible] persuasion [illegible]"(2) It [illegible] ery much [illegible] y be, but [illegible] ts are so organized that there must be some limit to the facts which may be given in evidence, as there must be an end of litigation.(3) The great bulk, therefore, of the English law of Evidence consists of negative rules declaring what, as the expression runs, "is not evidence."(4) In its legal and most general acceptation, "evidence" has been defined to include all the means, exclusive of mere argument, by which any alleged matter of fact, the truth of which is submitted to investigation, is established or disproved to the satisfaction [illegible] Court (5) According to the concise definition of the California Code, [illegible] law, of ascertaining in a judicial [illegible]"(6)

Judicial evidence is thus a species of the genus "evidence," and is for the [illegible] rules of [illegible] thing less [illegible] o the pro- [illegible]'(8) The [illegible] ines how the parties are to convince the Court of the existence of that state of facts which, according to the provisions of the substantive law, would establish the existence of the right or liability which they allege to exist (10) This law, in so far as it is concerned with what is receivable or not, is founded in the words of Rolfe, B.: (11) "on a compound consideration of what, abstractedly considered, is calculated to throw light on the subject in dispute, and of what is practicable. Perhaps, if we lived to the age of a thousand years, instead of sixty or seventy, it might throw light on any subject that came into dispute, if all matters which could by possibility affect it were severally gone into; and enquiries carried on from month

(1) Steph. Introd. 1, 2 The same learned author (Dig xi) stated that Chief Baron Gilbert's work on the Law of Evidence (1756), the first of the recognised English text books on the subject, is founded on Locke's Essay much as his own work is founded on Mill's Logic.

(2) Benth., Jud Ev., 17.

(3) Bar Jones, Ev., § 1.

(4) Steph Introd., these rules are closely connected with the institution of trial by jury: see Thayer's cases on Evidence, 4; and Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law: I art I, Development of trial by Jury, and per Lord Mansfield in the Berkely Peerage case, 4 Camp., 414

(5) 1 Greenleaf, Ev., § 1; Best, Ev., § 11, p. 19; Steph. Introd., 7, as to the definition of the word as used in the Act, see Notes to s. 3, post. See also Steph Dig., Art 1 Taylor, Ev., § 1, and the definition given by Prof Thayer in his cases on Evidence, p. 2

(6) Cal. Code, s 1823. See observations on the definitions given in the California Code (which are said to express and typify the judicial sentiment of the American Judiciary) in Rice's General Principles of the Law of Evidence, p. 9

(7) Best, Ev., §§ 31, 79

(8) Speech in Council of the Hon. Mr. Stephen, Gazette of India, 18th April 1871, p. 42 (Extra-Supplement)

(9) Other Acts also contain provisions relating to evidence, as to this see s. 2, post.

(10) Steph. Introd., 10.

(11) In The Attorney-General v. Hitchcock, 7 Exch., 91, 105.

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it: and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, witnesses should be weighed not numbered.(2) More weight should be attached [illegible] which are so easily [illegible]t properly weigh [illegible] character of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre- Judicial discretion [illegible] public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted.(7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date.(8) The English system. Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was material to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary [illegible]s in all where [illegible]natters

(1) The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H. Jenner, in Chambers v The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt., 415, 434; see also Williams v Hall, 1 Curt., 606.

(2) See notes to s 134, post

(3) Meer Usdoollah v Beeby Imaman, 1 M I A, 42, 43 (1836)

(4) R v. Kalu Mal, 7 W R, Cr, 103 (1867) see further, notes to s 165, post

(5) See ss 32, 33, 39, 58, 60, 66, 73, 86—88, 90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—156, 159, 162, 164—166.

(6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wilkie's case, 4 Burrough's Rep, 2539, cited in Harbans Sahai v Bhairo Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1879)

(7) R v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B, 331, 344, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Ev., § 86.

(8) Best, Ev., §§ 109, 110 See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 122, et seq.

(9) Wharton, Ev, § 5.

(10) See remarks of Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v Albion Life Assurance Co, 4 C. P D. 109 (1878) "In any but an English Court and to the mind of any but an English lawyer the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely ridiculous because every one would say that the evidence was most cogent and material to the plaintiff's claim."

(11) Per Wills, J, in Hennessy v Wright, L R, 21 Q B D, 518 (1888)

(12) Per Lord Coleridge, C. J, in Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Co, L R, 4 C P D, 109 (1878), adding —"Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case"

(13) R v Mona Puna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J, citing Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ, and see cases cited, post.

(14) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 26 (1889).

The law of evidence thus determines:—(a) The relevancy of facts,(1) or what sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of the right, duty, or liability defined by substantive law. (b) The proof of facts,(2) that is, what sort of proof is to be given of those facts. (c) The production of proof of relevant facts,(3) that is, who is to give it and how it is to be given; and the effect of improper admission or rejection of evidence(4) (see post) ficiency evidence.

[illegible] is intended that amount of proof which beyond reasonable doubt. The circumproof can never be previously defined; otible is their sufficiency to satisfy the e him that he would venture to act upon t concern and importance to his own interests.(5) view of the weight which should recise rules as the admissibility onsiderations upon the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

The weight of evidence cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be(7) it depends on rules of common-sense,(8) and the weight of the aggregate of many such pieces of evidence taken together is very much greater than the sum of the weight of each such piece of evidence taken separately.(9) The Draft Bill contained the following section, which, though it was not thought necessary to retain it in the Act, must still be borne in mind: "when any fact is hereinafter declared to be relevant, it is not intended to indicate in any way the weight, if any, which the Court shall attach to it, this being a matter solely for the discretion of the Court" So also the La [illegible] of their Draft Bill, said: "[illegible] t is not meant that it is to be [illegible] weight, if any, which the deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it" In this connection a few dicta of general application may be here cited. When one witness deposes to a certain fact having occurred, and another witness, stating that he was present

---

(1) Evidence Act, Part I, v. post, s 3, and Introduction to Chapter II.

(2) Evidence Act, Part II, v. post and Introduction to Part II.

(3) Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to this Part, post.

(4) Steph. Introd., II.

(5) Greenleaf, Ev., § 2.

(6) See Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 501, 509 (1871); Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 792. R v Mathub Giri, 21 W. R., Cr., 13, 19 (1874); Townsend v. Strangroom 6 Ves., 333, 374; O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke, L. R., 2 H. L., 837, Best. Ev., § 81.

(7) Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 504,508 (1871); Best. Ev., § 81.

(8) Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 792, per Lord Blackburn: "For weighcan be no canon Each case presents its own peculiarities, and common-sense and shrewdness must be brought to bear upon the facts elicited in every case, which a Judge of fact in this country, discharging the functions of a jury in England, has to weigh and decide upon" R. v. Mathub Giri, 21 W. R, Cr., 13, 19 (1874) "This inconvenience," says Lord Eldon in Townsend v Strangroom (6 Ves., 333, 374), "belongs to the administration of justice, that the minds of different men will differ upon the result of the evidence, which may lead to different decisions upon the same case." See also remarks of Lord Blackburn in O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke, L. R., 2 H. L., 837.

(9) Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, supra, 792.

(10) Deby Persad v. Doulut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 347, 357 (1844); s. c. 6 W. R. (P. C., 53; Wills' Circ. Ev., 290.

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it: and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, attached so easily ly weigh r of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discretion of the Court.(5) means discre- Judicial discretion public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted (7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date.(8) Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was material to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary The English system.

systems might operate to exclude, are, under the Act, to be taken into consideration only in judging of the value to be allowed to evidence when admitted."(13) Accordingly, where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility.(14) The principle of exclusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should

---

(1) The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H Jenner, in Chambers v The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt, 415, 434, see also Williams v Hall, 1 Curt, 606.

(2) See notes to s 134, post

(3) Meer Usdoollah v Beeby Imaman, 1 M I A, 42, 43 (1836).

(4) R v. Kalu Mal, 7 W R, Cr, 103 (1867) see further, notes to s 165, post

(5) See ss 32, 33, 39, 58, 60, 66, 73, 86—88, 90, 114, 118, 133, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—156, 159, 162, 164—166.

(6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wilkie's case, 4 Burrough's Rep, 2539, cited in Harbans Sahai v. Bhairo Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1879)

(7) R v Chagan Dayaram, 14 B., 331, 341, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Ev, § 86.

(8) Best, Ev., §§ 109, 110 See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 122, et seq.

(9) Wharton, Ev., § 5.

(10) See remarks of Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v Albion Life Assurance Co, 4 C. P. D. 109 (1878) "In any but an English Court and to the mind of any but an English lawyer the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely ridiculous because every one would say that the evidence was most cogent and material to the plaintiff's claim."

(11) Per Wills, J., in Hennessy v Wright, L. R., 21 Q B D., 518 (1888)

(12) Per Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Co, L. R., 4 C P D, 109 (1878), adding —"Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case"

(13) R v Mona Puna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J., citing Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ, and see cases cited, post.

(14) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 26 (1889).

The law of evidence thus determines :—(a) The relevancy of facts,(1) or what sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of the right, duty, or liability defined by substantive law. (b) The proof of facts,(2) that is, what) The production of proof of relevant to be given ; and the effect of impro- post)

Sufficiency of evidence.

that conviction in matters of the highest concern and importance to his own interests (5) The effect of evidence, considered from the point of view of the weight which should be attached to it, cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be (6) For these reasons considerations upon the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

The weight of evidence cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be(7) it depends on rules of common-sense,(8) and the weight of the aggregate of many such pieces of evidence taken together is very much greater than the sum of the weight of each such piece of evidence taken separately.(9) The Draft Bill contained the following section, which, though it was not thought necessary to retain it in the Act, must still be borne in mind: "when any fact is hereinafter declared to be relevant, it is not intended to indicate in any way the weight, if any, which the Court shall attach to it, this being a matter solely for the discretion of the Court" So also the Law Commissioners, in the second paragraph of their Draft Bill, said: "Whenever any evidence is said to be admissible, it is not meant that it is to be regarded as conclusive, but only that the weight, if any, which the deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it." In this connection a few dicta of general application may be here cited When one witness deposes as present her things "Upon deposing

(1) Evidence Act, Part I; v. post, s. 3, and Introduction to Chapter II.

(2) Evidence Act, Part II, v. post and Introduction to Part II.

(3) Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to this Part, post

(4) Steph. Introd., II

(5) Greenleaf, Ev., § 2.

(6) See Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 501, 508 (1871); Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 792, R. v. Madhub Giri, 21 W. R., Cr., 13, 19 (1874); Townsend v. Strangroom 6 Ves., 333, 334, O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke, L. R., 2 H. L., 837, Best. Ev., § 81.

(7) Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 504,508 (1871); Best Ev., § 81.

(8) Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 792, per Lord Blackburn. "For weighing evidence and drawing inferences from it, there can be no canon Each case presents its own peculiarities, and common-sense and shrewdness must be brought to bear upon the facts elicited in every case, which a Judge of fact in this country, discharging the functions of a jury in England, has to weigh and decide upon" R v. Madhub Giri, 21 W. R. Cr., 13, 19 (1874) "This inconvenience," says Lord Eldon in Townsend v. Strangroom (6 Ves., 333, 334), "belongs to the administration of justice, that the minds of different men will differ upon the result of the evidence, which may lead to different decisions upon the same case." See

(10) Deby Persad v. Doulut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 347, 357 (1844); s. c. 6 W. R. (P. C., 55, Wills' Circ. Ev., 290

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it: and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, witnesses should be weighed not numbered.(2) More weight should be attached to the evidence given of men's acts than of their alleged words which are so easily mistaken or misrepresented.(3) A Judge, however, cannot properly weigh evidence, who starts with an assumption of the general bad character of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre- Judicial discretion public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted (7)"

The English system

the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary being itself an application of these principles. "Under the Evidence Act admissibility is the rule and exclusion the exception, and circumstances which under other ity.(14) The principle of exclusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should

---

(1) The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H. Jenner, in Chambers v The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt., 415, 434, see also Williams v Hall, 1 Curt., 606.

(2) See notes to s. 134, post.

(3) Meer Usdoollah v Beeby Imaman, 1 M. I. A., 42, 43 (1836).

(4) R. v. Kalu Mal, 7 W. R., Cr., 103 (1867); see further, notes to s. 165, post.

(5) See ss. 32, 33, 39, 58, 60, 66, 73, 86—88, 90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—156, 159, 162, 164—166.

(6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wilkie's case, 4 Burrough's Rep., 2539, cited in Harbans Sahai v Bhuro Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1879).

(7) R. v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B., 331, 344, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Ev., § 86.

(8) Best, Ev., §§ 109, 110. See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 122, et seq.

(9) Wharton, Ev., § 5.

(10) See remarks of Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v Albion Life Assurance Co., 4 C. P. D. 109 (1878): "In any but an English Court and to the mind of any but an English lawyer the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely ridiculous because every one would say that the evidence was most cogent and material to the plaintiff's claim."

(11) Per Wills, J., in Hennessey v Wright, L. R., 21 Q. B. D., 518 (1888).

(12) Per Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Co., L. R., 4 C. P. D., 109 (1878), adding —"Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case."

(13) R v Mona Puna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J., citing Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ., and see cases cited, post.

(14) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 26 (1889).

The law of evidence thus determines :—(a) The relevancy of facts,(1) or what sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of the right, duty, or liability defined by substantive law. (b) The proof of facts,(2) that is, what sort of proof is to be given of those facts. (c) The production of proof of relevant facts,(3) that is, who is to give it and how it is to be given ; and the effect of improper admission or rejection of evidence(4) (see post).

Sufficiency of evidence

By roved

beyond reasonable doubt The circum-
f proof can never be previously defined ; ptible is their sufficiency to satisfy the mind of an ordinary man, and so to convince him that he would venture to act upon that conviction in matters of the highest concern and importance to his own interests.(5) The effect of evidence, considered from the point of view of the weight which should be attached to it, cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be.(6) For these reasons considerations upon the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

The weight of evidence cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be(7) . it depends on rules of common-sense,(8) and the weight of the aggregate of many such pieces of evidence taken together is very much greater than the sum of the weight of each such piece of evidence (9) The Draft Bill contained the following section, which, it in the Act, must still be borne declared to be relevant, it is not any, which the Court shall attach etion of the Court." So also the Law Commissioners, in the second paragraph of their Draft Bill, said: "Whenever any evidence is said to be admissible it is not meant that it is to be regarded as conclusive, but only that the weight, if any, which the deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it." In this connection a few dicta of general application may be here cited. When one witness deposes

(1) Evidence Act, Part I, v. post, s 3, and Introduction to Chapter II.

(2) Evidence Act, Part II, v post and Introduction to Part II.

(3) Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to that Part, post

(4) Steph. Introd., II.

(5) Greenleaf, Ev., § 2.

(6) See Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 501, 509 (1871); Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 792; R v. Madhub Giri, 21 W. R., Cr., 13, 19 (1874), Townsend v. Strangroom 6 Ves., 333, 334; O'Rorke v Bolingbroke, L. R., 2 H. L., 837; Best, Ev., § 81.

(7) Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 501,509 (1871), Best Ev., § 81

(8) Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App Cas., 792, per Lord Blackburn. "For weighing evidence and drawing inferences from it, there can be no canon Each case presents its own peculiarities, and common sense and shrewdness must be brought to bear upon the facts elicited in every case, which a Judge of fact in this country, discharging the functions of a jury in England, has to weigh and decide upon " R. v. Madhub Giri, 21 W R, Cr., 13, 19 (1874) "This inconvenience," says Lord Eldon in Townsend v. Strangroom (6 Ves., 333, 334), "belongs to the administration of justice, that the minds of different men will differ upon the result of the evidence, which may lead to different decisions upon the same case." See also remarks of Lord Blackburn in O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke, L. R., 2 H L., 837.

(9) Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, supra, 792.

(10) Deby Persad v. Doulut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 347, 357 (1844); s. c. 6 W. R. (P. C., 55, Wills' Circ. Ev., 290.

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it: and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, should be attached , which are so easily ot properly weigh evidence, who starts with an assumption of the general bad character of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discretion of the Court.(5) "Discretion, when applied to a Court of law, means discre- Judicial discretion public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted.(7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date.(8) Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was material to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary valuations which the Courts were required to apply.(9) The progress has, as in all The English system.

ingly, where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility.(14) The principle of exclusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should

---

(1) The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H Jenner, in Chambers v. The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt, 415, 434, see also Williams v Hall, 1 Curt, 606.

(2) See notes to s 134, post.

(3) Meer Usdoollah v. Beeby Imaman, 1 M I A, 42, 43 (1836)

(4) R. v. Kalu Mal, 7 W. R, Cr, 103 (1867) see further, notes to s 165, post

(5) See ss 32, 33, 39, 58, 60, 66, 73, 86—88, 90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—156, 159, 162, 164—166.

(6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wilkie's case, 4 Burrough's Rep, 2539, cited in Harbans Sahai v Bhairo Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1879)

(7) R. v Chagan Dayaram, 14 B, 331, 344, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Ev, § 86.

(8) Best, Ev., §§ 109, 110 See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 122, et seq.

(9) Wharton, Ev., § 5.

(10) See remarks of Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v Albion Life Assurance Co, 4 C P. D. 109 (1878) "In any but an English Court and to the mind of any but an English lawyer the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely ridiculous because every one would say that the evidence was most cogent and material to the plaintiff's claim."

(11) Per Wills, J, in Hennessy v Wright, L. R, 21 Q B D, 518 (1888)

(12) Per Lord Coleridge, C. J, in Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Co, L. R, 4 C P D, 109 (1878), adding —"Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case"

(13) R v Mona Puna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J, citing Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ, and see cases cited, post.

(14) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 26 (1889).

The law of evidence thus determines :—(a) [illegible] sort of facts may be proved in order to establish or liability defined by substantive law. (b) Th[illegible] [illegible] of those facts. (c) The production of proof of relevant [illegible], to be given; and the effect of impro- post).

Sufficiency of evidence.

The sufficiency of evidence must be distinguished from its competency. By [illegible] or, as it is also called, sufficient, evidence is intended that amount of proof which ordinarily satisfies an unprejudiced mind beyond reasonable doubt. The circum- [illegible] is degree of proof can never be previously defined; are susceptible is their sufficiency to satisfy the [illegible] to convince him that he would venture to act upon the highest concern and importance to his own interests (b) The effect of evidence, considered from the point of view of the weight which should be attached to it, cannot be regulated by precise rules as the admissibility of evidence may be (6) For these reasons considerations upon the sufficiency of evidence have no place in the Act.

[illegible] be regulated by precise rules as the admissi- [illegible] pends on rules of common-sense,(8) and the [illegible] h pieces of evidence taken together is very [illegible] he weight of each such piece of evidence taken separately.(9) The Draft Bill contained the following section, which, [illegible] it in the Act, must still be borne declared to be relevant, it is not any, which the Court shall attach [illegible] etion of the Court." So also the Law Commissioners, in the second paragraph of their Draft Bill, said: "Whenever any evidence is said to be admissible, it is not meant that it is to be regarded as conclusive, but only that the weight, if any, which the deciding authority may consider due, shall be allowed to it." In this connection a few dicta of general application may be here cited. When one witness deposes

(1) Evidence Act, Part I; v. post, s 3, and Introduction to Chapter II.

(2) Evidence Act, Part II, v. post and Introduction to Part II.

(3) Evidence Act, Part III; see Introduction to this Part, post

(4) Steph. Introl., II.

(5) Greenleaf, Ev., § 2.

(6) See Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 501, 509 (1871); Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App Cas., 792, R. v. Madhub Giri, 21 W. R., Cr., 13, 19 (1874); Townsend v. Strangroom 6 Ves., 333, 334; O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke, L. R., 2 H. L., 837; Best, Ev., § 81.

(7) Farquharson v. Dwarkanath, 8 B. L. R., 504,508 (1871), Best, Ev., § 81

(8) Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, L. R., 4 App. Cas., 792, per Lord Blackburn: "For weighing evidence and drawing inferences from it, there can be no canon Each case presents its own peculiarities, and common sense and shrewdness must be brought to bear upon the facts elicited in every case, which a Judge of fact in this country, discharging the functions of a jury in England, has to weigh and decide upon." R. v. Madhub Giri, 21 W. R, Cr., 13, 19 (1874) "This inconvenience," says Lord Eldon in Townsend v. Strangroom (6 Ves., 333, 334), "belongs to the administration of justice, that the minds of different men will differ upon the result of the evidence, which may lead to different decisions upon the same case" See also remarks of Lord Blackburn in O'Rorke v. Bolingbroke, L. R., 2 H. L., 837

(9) Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, supra, 792.

(10) Deby Persad v Doulut Singh, 3 M. I. A., 347, 367 (1844); s. c. 6 W. R. (P. C., 55; Wills' Circ. Ev., 290.

to a fact, which he states he saw, must either speak truly, or must have invented his story, or it must be sheer delusion. Not so with respect to negative evidence; a fact may have taken place in the very sight of a person who may not have observed it: and if he did observe may have forgotten it."(1) As a general rule, witnesses should be weighed not numbered.(2) More weight should be attached [illegible] words which are so easily [illegible] cannot properly weigh [illegible] al bad character of the prisoners.(4)

The Act in many of its sections leaves matters dealt with thereby to the discre- Judicial discretion

[illegible]

rules and maxims of the law, such, for example, as those of logic or evidence, or public policy. The right discretion is not scire quid sit justum, but scire per legem, as Coke insisted.(7)"

The English system of Judicial evidence is comparatively of very modern date.(8) The English system. Its progress is marked by the discarding of those restrictions of scholastic jurisprudence which firstly compelled much that was material to be excluded from the issue and then when the issue was thus arbitrarily narrowed shut out much evidence that was relevant and attached to the evidence received certain arbitrary valuations which the Courts were required to apply.(9) The progress has, as in all

[illegible]

ingly, where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility.(14) The principle of exclusion enacted by the fifth section of this Act should

---

(1) The passage in quotation marks is per Sir H. Jenner, in Chambers v. The Queen's Proctor, 2 Curt., 415, 434; see also Williams v. Hall, 1 Curt., 606.

(2) See notes to s. 134, post.

(3) Meer Usdoollah v. Beeby Imaman, 1 M. I. A., 42, 43 (1836).

(4) R. v. Kalu Mal, 7 W. R., Cr., 103 (1867); see further, notes to s. 165, post.

(5) See ss. 32, 33, 39, 58, 60, 66, 73, 86—88, 90, 114, 118, 135, 136, 142, 148, 150, 151, 154—156, 159, 162, 164—166.

(6) Per Lord Mansfield in Wilkes case, 4 Burrough's Rep., 2539, cited in Harbans Sahai v. Bhairo Pershad, 5 C., 259, 265 (1879).

(7) R. v. Chagan Dayaram, 14 B., 331, 344, 352 per Jardine, J. (1890); Best, Ev., § 86.

(8) Best, Ev., §§ 109, 110. See Phillimore's History and Principles of the Law of Evidence (1850), pp. 122, et seq.

(9) Wharton, Ev., § 5.

(10) See remarks of Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Co., 4 C. P. D. 109 (1878): "In any but an English Court and to the mind of any but an English lawyer the controversy whether this evidence is or is not evidence which a Court of Justice should receive would seem I think supremely ridiculous because every one would say that the evidence was most cogent and material to the plaintiff's claim."

(11) Per Wills, J., in Hennessey v. Wright, L. R., 21 Q. B. D., 518 (1888).

(12) Per Lord Coleridge, C. J., in Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Co., L. R., 4 C. P. D., 109 (1878), adding —"Not, of course, matters of mere prejudice nor anything open to real, moral or sensible objection, but all things which fairly throw light on the case."

(13) R v. Mona Puna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892); per Jardine, J., citing Romesh Chunder Mitter and Field, JJ; and see cases cited, post.

(14) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 26 (1889).

not be so applied as to shut out matters which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth.(1) The Privy Council in Ameeroonissa Khatoon v. Abedoonissa Khatoon(2) said: "Objections made with the view of excluding evidence are not received with much favour at this Board." But it must not be assumed either that all technical rules are unnecessary, or that all the rules of evidence are technical. It may be safely asserted that the enforcement of most of such technical rules as are contained in this Act is necessary, and that many other rules possess no element of technicality whatever. Thus as the Judicial Committee have also observed "It is a cardinal rule of evidence, not one of technicality but of substance, which it is dangerous to depart from, that where written documents exist, they shall be produced as being the best evidence of their own contents."(3) And other instances might be adduced than those covered by what is technically known as "the best evidence" rule.

History of the law of evidence in this country.

The English rules of evidence were always followed in the Courts established by Royal Charter in the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. Such of these rules, as were contained in the Common and Statute law which prevailed in England before 1726, were introduced by the Charter of that year. some others were rules to be found in subsequent Statutes expressly extended to India; while others, again, had no greater authority than that of use and custom (4) In the Courts outside the Presidency Towns no complete rules of evidence were ever laid down or introduced by authority.(5) The law on this subject rested in a state of great indefiniteness. In the Full Bench decision of the Calcutta High Court in the case of the Queen v. Khyroolah,(6) decided in 1866, it was held that the English law of evidence was not the law of the mofussil, that at that time the Mahommedan criminal law, including the Mahommedan law of evidence, was no longer the law of the country, and that by the abolition of the Mahommedan law, the law of England was not established in its place. The mofussil Courts were thus not required to follow the English law, although they were not debarred from following it where they regarded it as the most equitable.

The first Act of the Governor-General in Council which dealt with evidence, strictly so-called, was Act X of 1835, which applied to all the Courts in British India and dealt with the proof of Acts of the Governor-General in Council.(7) This was followed by eleven enactments passed [illegible] an Act was passed(9) for the further improvement of the law of evidence, which

(1) R v. Abdullah, 7 A., 40 (1885), see observations of the Hon Mr. Marie in moving the reference of the Evidence Bill to Committee "Anything like a capricious administration of the law of evidence was an evil, but it would be an equal, or perhaps even a greater evil, that such strict rules of evidence should be enforced as practically to leave the Court without the materials for a decision."

(2) 23 W. R., 208, 209; P. C. (1875)

(3) Dinomoyi Debi v. Roy Luchmipat, 7 I. A., 8, 13 (1879)

(4) Field. Ev., 15; Whitley Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, Vol. II, 812 See Report of Law Commissioners, Appendix.

(5) Regulations made between 1793 and 1831 contained a few rules; others were derived from a vague customary law of evidence, partly drawn from the Hedaya and the Mahommedan Law Officers, others from English text-books, Whitley Stokes, II, 812, 813; and see Act XIX of 1853.

(6) B. L. R., Sup. Vol., App 11; s. c., 6 W. R., Cr., 21, Field, Ev., 16—18; Whitley Stokes, supra, and see R. v. Ramsoomi, 6 B. H. C. R., Cr., 49 (1869)

(7) Whitley Stokes, II, 813

(8) Ib, Act XIX of 1837 abolished incompetency by reason of conviction); Act V of 1840 (affirmations), see also Acts XVIII of 1863, s. 9; VI of 1872; X of 1873; Acts IX of 1840, VII of 1844 (incompetency by reason of crime or interest); XV of 1852 (competency of parties and other matters); Act XIX of 1853 extended several of these reforms to the Civil Courts of the East India Company in the Bengal Presidency.

(9) Act II of 1855. As to this Act, see R v. Gopal Dass, 3 M., 271, 282 contained many provisions applicable to all Courts in British India.(1). These provisions were repealed and re-enacted with certain modifications and alterations by the present Act. While, therefore, within the [illegible] of evidence was in force, modified by certain Ac[illegible] which Act II of 1855 was the most important; [illegible] hand, had, down to 1872, hardly any fixed rules of evidence save those contained in Acts XIX of 1853 and II of 1855.(2) Before and even for some time after 1872 the lax character of the evidence in the Mofussil Courts was the subject of frequent judicial comment.(3) To remedy this unsatisfactory (4) state of the law a Draft Bill was drawn up by Her Majesty's Commissioners and introduced by Sir Henry Sumner Maine, then the Legal Member in Council. This first Draft Bill did not, however, meet with approval. A new Bill was therefore prepared by Sir James Fitzjames Stephen which was ultimately passed as Act I of 1872 (The Indian Evidence Act). This Act is based on the English law of evidence modified to suit India.(5) It is in the main in accordance with English law though, as will be seen on a reference to the Commentary, it does in several respects materially diverge from that law.(6) Together with certain Acts saved by, (7) or enacted subsequent to it, this Act contains the law on the subject of evidence now in force in British India.(8)

It has been said that with some few exceptions the Indian Evidence Act was intended to, and did, in fact, consolidate the English law of evidence;(9) that the Act itself is little more than an attempt to reduce the English law of evidence to the form of express propositions arranged in their natural order, with some modifications rendered necessary by the peculiar circumstances of India;(10) and that it was drawn up chiefly from Taylor on Evidence.(11) It is true that,

---

(1) The following Acts were subsequently passed: X of 1855 (attendance of witnesses), VIII of 1859 (Civil Procedure, contained like the present Code provisions as to witnesses), XXV of 1861 (Criminal Procedure, contained provisions as to witnesses, confessions, police-diaries examination of accused, and Civil-Surgeon reports of Chemical officers, and dying declarations, which have been re-enacted in the present Act or in the present Code); XV of 1669 (evidence of prisoners); see Whitley Stokes, 817

(2) Whitley Stokes, 817, Field, Ev, 17, 18, 19 See Report of Law Commissioners

(3) See observations in Unide Rajaha v Pemmasamy, 7 M. I. A, 128, 137 (1859) s c, 4 W R, P C, 121; Hurreehur Mojumdar v Churn Majhee, 22 W. R, 355, 356, 357 (1874); Naraqunty v Vengama, 9 M I A, 90 (1861) s.c, 1 W. R, P. C, 30, Gujju Lall v. Fateh Lall, 6 C, 193 (1880)

Even as late as 1881 Stuart, C J, had cause to complain Phul Kuar v Surjan Pandey, 4 A., 249, 250

(4) See remarks of Privy Council in Bunwaree Lal v. Maharajah Hetnarain, 7 M I. A, 148, 168 (1858), s c, 4 W R., P. C., 148, Unide Rajaha v Pemmasamy, 7 M I. A, 128, 137 (1858) s c, 4 W R., P. C, 121; Ajoodhya Proshad v Bibee Omme, 13 M I. A, 519 (1870), s c., 15 W R., P C., 1

(5) Report of Select Committee, "It is little more than an attempt to reduce the English law of evidence to the form of express propositions arranged in their natural order, with some modifications rendered necessary by the peculiar circumstances of India" Steph. Introd, 2 The differences between the Indian and English law will be found hereafter noted in the Commentary to the sections see also Whitley Stokes, p. 827, Vol II, and Wilson's Comparative Tables of English and Indian Law, 1890, p 14 As however pointed out later, fundamental distinctions exist in the mode of treatment between English and Indian Law

(6) See last note and Ranchoddas Krishnadas v Bapu Narhar, 10 B, 439, 442 (1886), Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakhdari Singh, 12 A, 1, 37 (1889), R v. Abdullah, 7 A, 400, 401

(7) S 2, post

(8) See note to s 2, post

(9) Gujju Lall v Fateh Lall, 6 C, 171, 188 (1880) per Garth, C J,

(10) Smith v Ludha Ghella, 17 B, 129, 141 (1892), per Basley, C J, adopting the words of Sir James F Stephen, Introd., Ev. Act, 2.

(11) Munchershaw Bezonji v New Dharmsey Spinning & Weaving Company, 4 B, 576, 581 (1880), per West J see remarks of Jackson, J, in R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, supra 491, Taylor on Ev, referred to in R v Pyari Lall, 4 C. L. R., 508, 509, Gujju Lall v Fateh Lall, 6 C., 170, R v Rama Reddi, 3 M., 52, R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B, 17 (1878), R v Fakirapa, 15 B., 502 (1890), Frampi v Mohamma, 18 B., 279 (1893), and numerous other cases. Mr. Norton, however, at p. iv of the Preface to his Edition of the Act, says—that in his opinion it is a mere not be so applied as to shut out matters which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth.(1) The Privy Council in Ameeroonissa Khatoon v. Abedoonissa Khatoon(2) said: "Objections made with the view of excluding evidence are not received with much favour at this Board." But it must not be assumed either that all technical rules are unnecessary, or that all the rules of evidence are technical. It may be safely asserted that the enforcement of most of such technical rules as are contained in this Act is necessary, and that many other rules possess no element of technicality whatever. Thus as the Judicial Committee have also observed: "It is a cardinal rule of evidence, not one of technicality but of substance, which it is dangerous to depart from, that where written documents exist, they shall be produced as being the best evidence of their own contents."(3) And other instances might be adduced than those covered by what is technically known as "the best evidence" rule.

History of the law of evidence in this country.

The English rules of evidence were always followed in the Courts established by Royal Charter in the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. Such of these rules, as were contained in the Common and Statute law which prevailed in England before 1726, were introduced by the Charter of that year. some others were rules to be found in subsequent Statutes expressly extended to India; while others, again, had no greater authority than that of use and custom.(4) In the Courts outside the Presidency Towns no complete rules of evidence were ever laid down or introduced by [illegible] (5) [illegible] great indefiniteness.

[illegible] case of the Queen v. [illegible] law of evidence was no[illegible], that at that time the Mahommedan [illegible] follow the English law, although they were not debarred from following it where they regarded it as the most equitable.

The first Act of the Governor-General in Council which dealt with evidence, strictly so-called, was Act X of 1835, which applied to all the Courts in British [illegible] an Act was passed(9) for the further improvement of the law of evidence, which

(1) R v Abdullah, 7 A., 40 (1885), see observations of the Hon Mr Maine in moving the reference of the Evidence Bill to Committee "Anything like a capricious administration of the law of evidence was an evil, but it would be an equal, or perhaps even a greater evil, that such strict rules of evidence should be enforced as practically to leave the Court without the materials for a decision."

(2) 23 W. R., 209, 209, P. C. (1875).

(3) Dinomoyi Debi v. Roy Luchmipat, 7 I. A., 8, 15 (1879).

(4) Field, Ev., 15; Whitley Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, Vol. II, 812. See Report of Law Commissioners, Appendix.

(5) Regulations made between 1793 and 1834 contained a few rules; others were derived from a vague customary law of evidence, partly drawn from the Hedaya and the Mahommedan Law Officers, others from English text books, Whitley Stokes, II, 812, 813; and see Act XIX of 1853.

(6) B. L. R., Sup Vol., App. II; s. c., 6 W. R., Cr., 21, Field, Ev., 16—18; Whitley Stokes, supra, and see R v. Ramsoomi, 6 B. H. C. R., Cr., 49 (1869).

(7) Whitley Stokes, II, 813.

(8) Ib, Act XIX of 1837 abolished incompetency by reason of conviction); Act V of 1840 (affirmations); see also Acts XVIII of 1863, s. 9; VI of 1872; X of 1873; Acts IX of 1840; VII of 1844 (incompetency by reason of crime or interest); XV of 1852 (competency of parties and other matters); Act XIX of 1853 extended several of these reforms to the Civil Courts of the East India Company in the Bengal Presidency.

(9) Act II of 1855. As to this Act, see R. v. Gopal Doss, 3 M., 271, 292.

containing the scheme of the law, the principles and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence, but in respect of matters expressly provided for in the Act we must, so to speak, start from the Act and not deal with it as a mere modification of the law of evidence prevailing in England."

Questions, however, may arise as regards matters not expressly provided for in the Act. It has been held that the second section in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself,(1) and that a person tendering evidence must show that it is admissible under some one or other of the Provisions of this Act (2) It is to be regretted that the Act was not so framed as to admit other rules of evidence on points not specifically dealt with by it as was in effect done by the Commissioners in the second section of their Draft. In that case whenever omissions occur (and some do in fact occur) in the Act, recourse might be had to the present or previous law on the point existing in England or the previous rules, if any, in this country.

---

(1) R. v. Abdullah, 7 A., 385, 399 (1885), Muhammad Allahdad v. Muhammad Ismail, 10 A., 325 (1886); R v. Pitamber Jina, 2 B., 64 (1876) and in next note

(2) Lekhraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 7 I. A., 70 (1879); Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A., 11, 12, 19, 20, 31, 35, 43; (1889) And see last note: Though in R. v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 491 (1878), it was said that where a case arises for which no positive solution can be found in the Act itself recourse may be had to the English rules if any on the point.

although the Code is, in the main, drawn on the lines of the English law of evidence, there is no reason it :(1) and indeed as already law. Moreover these dicta sections (5—16) dealing with the relevancy of facts.

Even where a matter has been expressly provided for by the Act, recourse may be had to English or American decisions if, as is not infrequently the case, the particular provision be of doubtful import owing to the obscurity or incompleteness of the language in which it has been enacted Authority abounds for the use of the extraneous sources to which reference has been made in cases such as these.(3) As was observed by Edge, C. J , in the Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh(4): "No doubt cases frequently occur in India in which considerable assistance is derived from the consideration of the law of England and of other countries. In such cases we have to see how far such law was founded in commonsense and on the principles of justice between man and man and may safely afford guidance to us here."

It must not, however, be forgotten that the Indian Evidence Act is a Code which not only defines and amends but also consolidates the Law of Evidence, repealing all rules other than those saved by the last portion of its second section.(5) The method of construction to be adopted in the case of such a Code has been expounded by Lord Herschell(6) in terms which have been adopted by the Privy Council(7) and cited and applied in other cases in this country.(8)

A similar rule had been previously laid down in this country with reference to the construction of this Act. In the case of the R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty(9) it was said: "Instead of assuming the English Law of Evidence, and then inquiring what changes the Evidence Act has made in it, the Act should be regarded as figure of speech to assert that the 167 sections of the Act contain all that is applicable in India of the two volumes of Taylor on Evidence and that a great mass of the principles and rules which Mr. Taylor's work contains will have to be written back between the lines of the Code.

---

(1) Ranchhoddas Krishnadas v Bapu Narhar, 10 B , 439, 442 (1886), per Sargent, C J : see The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A , 1, 37 (1889); R v. Abdullah, 7 A., 400, 401 (1885).

(2) Re Pyare Lall, 4 C. L. R , 508, 509; R. v. Chulet, 7 A., 41 (1884); English cases irrelevant when Indian Legislature has not followed English law.

(3) See R v. Tapiram, 16 B , 433 (1892), Peershad Singh v. Ram Pertab, 22 C., 8 (1894)] and the cases cited, post.

(4) 12 A., 11, 12 (1889); and see also remarks of Straight, J.; at pp. 19, 20, 2., : Framji v. Mohun Sing, 18 B , 280 (1893) [reference to American Case-law]; R. v Elahi Bux, B. L. R. Sup. Vol, F. B., 429 (1866) [English American and Scotch Law]; 5 W. R., Cr , 59; [Best, Ev.; Gilbert on Ev., Chitty's Criminal Law]; 7 W. R., 338 F. B [Civil law; Austin Jur.; Goodeve, Ev.]; 11 W. R., Cr., 21 [Roscoe, Ev], R v. Hedger, Mutty Lall and Michael (1852), p 132 (Starkie on Ev.), and p 144 (Paley), 1 B , 475 , 11 B. H. C , 93 [Russell on Crimes], 11 B , 335 [Phillp's Ev]; 4 B.; 581 [Gresley on Ev.], B. L R , F. B , Sup Vol , 422 (Norton on Ev.), and other cases too numerous to mention Concerning the weight to be given to American decisions, see remarks of Cockburn, L. C. J , in Scaramanga v. Stamp, 5 C P. D., 295, 303.

(5) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 35 (1889); and see post

(6) In Bank of England v. Vagliano Brothers, L. R., App Cas (1891), 107 (at pp. 144, 145).

(7) In Norendra Nath v. Kamalbasini, 23 I. A , 18, 26 (1896).

(8) Dagdu v. Panchom Singh, 17 B , 382 (1892); Damodara Mudaliar v. The Secretary of State for India, 18 M , 91 (1894); Kondaya Chetti v. Narasimhulu Chetti, 20 M , 103 (1896); Lala Suraj v. Golab Chand, 28 C., 517 (1901) This subject will be found fully discussed in the Author's Civil Procedure Code.

(9) 4 C., 941 (1878); per Jackson, J.

containing the scheme of the law, the principles and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence, but in respect of matters expressly provided for in the Act we must, so to speak, start from the Act and not deal with it as a mere modification of the law of evidence prevailing in England."

Questions, however, may arise as regards matters not expressly provided for in the Act. It has been held that the second section in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself,(1) and that a person tendering evidence must show that it is admissible under some one or other of the Provisions of this Act.(2) It is to be regretted that the Act was not so framed as to admit other rules of evidence on points not specifically dealt with by it as was in effect done by the Commissioners in the second section of their Draft. In that case whenever omissions occur (and some do in fact occur) in the Act, recourse might be had to the present or previous law on the point existing in England or the previous rules, if any, in this country.

---

(1) R. v. Abdullah, 7 A., 385, 390 (1885), Muhammad Allahdad v. Muhammad Ismail, 10 A., 325 (1886); R v. Pitamber Jina, 2 B., 64 (1876) and in next note

(2) Iekhraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 7 I A., 70 (1879); Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A., 11, 12, 19, 20, 34, 35, 43; (1889) And see last note: Though in R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 491 (1878), it was said that where a case arises for which no positive solution can be found in the Act itself recourse may be had to the English rules if any on the point

CHAPTER I.*

General distribution of the subject.

Technical and general elements of law.

Almost every branch of law is composed of rules of which some are grounded upon practical convenience and the experience of actual litigation, whilst others are closely connected with the constitution of human nature and society. Thus the criminal law contains many provisions of no general interest, such as those which relate to the various forms in which dishonest persons tamper with or imitate coin; but it also contains provisions, such as those which relate to the effect of madness on responsibility, which depend on several of the most interesting branches of moral and physical learning. This is perhaps more conspicuously true of the law of evidence than of any other branch of the law. Many of its provisions, however useful and necessary, are technical; and the enactments in which they are contained can claim no other merit than those of completeness and perspicuity. The whole subject of documentary evidence is [2]† of this nature. Other branches of the subject, such as the relevancy of facts, are intimately connected with the whole theory of human knowledge, and with logic, as applied to human conduct. The object of this introduction is to illustrate these parts of the subject, by stating the theory on which they depend and on which the provisions of the Act proceed. As to more technical matters, the Act speaks for itself, and I have nothing to add to its content.

Relation of Evidence Act to English law of evidence

The Indian Evidence Act is little more than an attempt to reduce the English law of Evidence to the form of express propositions arranged in their natural order, with some modifications rendered necessary by the peculiar circumstances of India.

English law of evidence

Like almost every other part of English law, the English law of evidence was formed by degrees No part of the law has been left so entirely to the discretion of 'l very recently interfered ere, it has done so princip related to the disqualification of witnesses by interest, and that which excluded the testimony of the parties; but it has not attempted to deal with the main principles of the subject.

Its want of arrangement

It is natural that a body of law thus formed by degrees and with reference to particular cases, should be destitute of arrangement, and in particular that its leading terms should never have [3] been defined by authority; that general rules should have been laid down with reference rather to particular circumstances than to general principles, and that it should have been found necessary to qualify them by exceptions inconsistent with the principles on which they proceed.

Difficulties of amending it

When this confusion had once been introduced into the subject, it was hardly capable of being remedied either by courts of law, or by writers of text-books.

---

* This and the following chapters down to p 79 are Sir James FitzJames Stephen's introduction to the Evidence Act.

† This and the following numbers indicate the paging of the original book (Ed. 1893) as referred to in this commentary.

The courts of law could only decide the cases which came before them according to the rules in force, The writers of text-books could only collect the results of such decisions. The Legislature might, no doubt, have remedied the evil, but comprehensive legislation upon abstract questions of law has never yet been attempted by Parliament in any one instance, though it has in several well-known cases been attended with signal success in India.

Fundamental rules of English law of evidence

That part of the English law of evidence which professes to be founded upon anything in the nature of a theory on the subject may be reduced to the following rules :—

(1) Evidence must be confined to the matters in issue.

(2) Hearsay evidence is not to be admitted.

(3) In all cases the best evidence must be given.

Each of these rules is very loosely expressed. The word 'evidence,' which is the leading term of each, is undefined and ambiguous.

It sometimes means the words uttered and things exhibited by witnesses before a court of justice

[4] At other times, it means the facts proved to exist by those words or things, and regarded as the groundwork of inferences as to other facts not so proved.

Again, it is sometimes used as meaning to assert that a particular fact is relevant to the matter under inquiry.

The word 'issue' is ambiguous. In many cases it is used with reference to the strict rules of English special pleading, the main object of which is to define, with great accuracy, the precise matter which is affirmed by the one party to a suit, and denied by the other.

In other cases it is used as embracing generally the whole subject under inquiry.

Again, the word 'hearsay' is used in various senses Sometimes it means whatever a person is heard to say, sometimes it means whatever a person declares on information given by some one else; sometimes it is treated as being nearly synonymous with 'irrelevant.'

Ambiguity of rule as to confining evidence to issue

If the rule that evidence must be confined to the matters in issue were construed strictly, it would run thus: 'No witness shall ever depose to any fact, except those facts which by the form of the pleadings are affirmed on the one side and denied on the other' So understood, the rule would obviously put a stop to the whole administration of justice, as it would exclude evidence of decisive facts.

A sues B on a promissory note. B denies that he made the note

A has a letter from B in which he admits that he made the note, and promises to pay it. This admission could [5] not be proved if the rule referred to were construed strictly because the issue is, whether B made the note, and not whether he admitted having made it

This absurd result is avoided by using the word 'evidence' as meaning not testimony but any fact from which any other fact may be inferred. Thus interpreted, the rule that evidence must be confined to matters in issue will run thus: 'No facts may be proved to exist, except facts in issue or facts from which the existence of the facts in issue can be inferred'; but if the rule is thus interpreted, it becomes so vague as to be of little use: for the question naturally arises, from what sort of facts may the existence of other facts be inferred? To this question the law of England gives no explicit answer at all, though partial and confused answers to parts of it may be inferred from some of the exceptions to the rule which excludes hearsay.

For instance, there are cases from which it may be inferred that evidence may sometimes be given of a fact from which another fact may be inferred, although the fact upon which the inference is to be founded is a crime, and although the fact to be inferred is also a crime for which the person against whom the evidence is to be given is on his trial.

The full answer to the question, 'what facts are relevant,' which is the most important of all the questions that can be asked about the law of evidence, has thus to be learnt partly by experience, and partly by collecting together such crooked and narrow illustrations of it as the one just given.

Ambiguity of the rule excluding hearsay

[6]The rule that 'hearsay is no evidence' is vague to the last degree, as each of the meanings of which the word 'hearsay' is susceptible is sometimes treated as the true one. As the rule is nowhere laid down in an authoritative manner, its meaning has to be collected from the exceptions to it, and these exceptions of which there are as many as twelve or thirteen, imply at least three different meanings of the word 'hearsay.'

Thus it is a rule that evidence may be given of statements which accompany and explain relevant actions. As no rule determines what actions are relevant, this is in itself unsatisfactory; but as the rule is treated as an exception to the rule excluding hearsay, it implies that 'hearsay' means that which a man is heard to say. If this is the meaning of hearsay, the rule which excludes it would run thus: 'No witness shall ever be allowed to depose to anything which he has heard said by any one else.' The result of this would be that no verbal contract could ever be proved, and that no one could ever be convicted of using threats with intent to extort money, or of defamation by words spoken, except in virtue of exceptions which stultify the rule

Most of the exceptions indicate that the meaning of the word 'hearsay' is that which a person reports on the information of some one else, and not upon the evidence of his own senses. This, with certain exceptions, is no doubt a valuable rule, but it is not the natural meaning of the words 'hearsay is no evidence,' and it is in [7] practice almost impossible to divest words of their natural meaning.

The rule that documents which support ancient possession may be admitted as between persons who are not parties to them, is treated as an exception to the rule excluding hearsay This implies that the word 'hearsay' is nearly, if not quite, equivalent to the word 'irrelevant.' But the English law contains nothing which approaches to a definition of relevancy.

Rules as to best evidence.

The rule which requires that the best evidence of which a fact is susceptible should be given, is the most distinct of the three rules referred to above, and it is certainly one of the most useful. It is simply an amplification of the obvious maxim, that if a man wishes to know all that he can know about a matter his own senses are to him the highest possible authority. If a hundred witnesses of unimpeachable character were all to swear to the contents of a sealed letter, and if the person who heard them swear opened the letter and found that its contents were different, he would conclude, without the intervention of any conscious process of reasoning at all, that they had sworn what was not true.

Ambiguity of the word 'evidence'

The ambiguity of the word 'evidence' is the cause of a great deal of obscurity apart from that which it gives to the rules above mentioned. In scientific inquiries, and for popular and general purposes, it is no doubt convenient to have one word which includes:—

(1) The testimony on which a given fact is believed,

8 the facts so believed, and

(3) the arguments founded upon them.

For instance, in the title of "Paley's Evidences of Christianity," the word is used in this sense. The nature of the work was not such as to give much importance to the distinction which the word overlooks. So, in scientific inquiries, it is seldom necessary (for reasons to which I shall have occasion to refer hereafter) to lay stress upon the difference between the testimony on which a fact is believed, and the fact itself. In judicial inquiries, however, the distinction is most important, and the neglect to observe it has thrown the whole subject into confusion by causing English lawyers to overlook the leading distinction which ought to form the principle on which the whole law should be classified. I mean the distinction between the relevancy of facts and the mode of proving relevant facts.

Effects of this ambiguity

The use of the one name 'evidence' for the fact to be proved, and the means by which it is to be proved, 'has given a double meaning to every phrase in which the word occurs'. Thus, for instance, the phrase 'primary evidence' sometimes means a relevant fact, and sometimes the original of a document as opposed to a copy. 'Circumstantial evidence' is opposed to 'direct evidence.' But 'circumstantial evidence' usually means a fact, from which some other fact is inferred, whereas 'direct evidence' means testimony given by a man as to what he has himself perceived by his own senses. It would thus be correct to say that circumstantial evidence [9] must be proved by direct evidence—a clumsy mode of expression which is in itself a mark of confusion of thought. The evil, however, goes beyond mere clumsiness of expression. People have naturally enough supposed that circumstantial and direct evidence admit of being contrasted in respect of their cogency, and that different canons can be laid down, as to the conditions which they ought to satisfy before the court is convinced by them. This, I think, confuses the theory of proof, and is an error, due entirely to the ambiguity of the word 'evidence.'

Merits of English law of evidence

It would be a mistake to infer from the unsystematic character and absence of arrangement which belongs to the English law of evidence that the substance of the law itself is bad. On the contrary, it possesses in the highest degree the characteristic merits of English case-law. English case-law, as it is, is to what it ought to be, and might be, if it were properly arranged, what the ordinary conversation of a very clever man on all sorts of subjects written down as he uttered it, and as passing circumstances furnished him with a text, would be to the matured and systematic statement of his deliberate opinions. It is full of the most vigorous sense, and is the result of great sagacity applied to past and varied experience.

Natural distribution of the subject.

The manner in which the law of evidence is related to the general theories only by reference [10] to the natural to be as follows —

upon and arise out of facts

Every judicial proceeding whatever has for its purpose the ascertaining of some right or liability. If the proceeding is criminal, the object is to ascertain the liability to punishment of the person accused. If the proceeding is civil, the object is to ascertain some right of property or of status, or the right of one party, and the liability of the other, to some form of relief.

In order to effect this result, provision must be made by law for the following objects:—First, the legal effect of particular classes of facts in establishing rights and liabilities must be determined. This is the province of what has been called substantive law. Secondly, a course of procedure must be laid down by which persons interested may apply the substantive law to particular cases. The law of procedure includes, amongst others, two main branches: (1) the law of pleading, which determines what in particular cases are the questions in dispute between the parties, and (2) the law of evidence, which determines how the parties are to convince the court of the existence of that state of facts which, according to the provisions of substantive law, would establish the existence of the right or liability which they allege to exist.

Illustration.

The following is a simple illustration. A sues B on a bond for Rs. 1,000. B says that the execution of the bond was procured by coercion.

[11] The substantive law is, that a bond executed under coercion cannot be enforced.

The law of procedure lays down the method according to which A is to establish his right to the payment of the sum secured by the bond. One of its provisions determines the manner in which the question between the parties is to be stated.

The question stated under that provision is, whether the execution of the bond was procured by coercion.

The law of evidence determines—

(1) What sort of facts may be proved in order to establish the existence of that which is defined by the substantive law as coercion

(2) What sort of proof is to be given of those facts.

(3) Who is to give it.

(4) How is it to be given.

Thus, before the law of evidence can be understood or applied to any particular case, it is necessary to know so much of the substantive law as determines what, under given states of facts, would be rights of the parties, and so much of the law of procedure as is sufficient to determine what questions it is open to them to raise in the particular proceeding.

Thus in general terms the law of evidence consists of provisions upon the following subjects:—

(1) The relevancy of facts.

(2) The proof of facts.

(3) The production of proof of relevant facts

The foregoing observations show that this account of [12] the matter is exhaustive. For if we assume that a fact is known to be relevant, and that its existence is duly proved, the Court is in a position to go on to say how it affects the existence, nature, or extent of the right or liability, the ascertainment of which is the ultimate object of the inquiry, and this is all that the Court has to do.

The matter must, however, be carried further. The three general heads may be distributed more particularly as follows:—

Relevancy of facts

I. The Relevancy of facts.—Facts may be related to rights and liabilities in one of two ways,—

1 Facts in issue

(1) They may by themselves, or in connection with other facts, constitute such a state of things that [illegible] would be a legal inference from th [illegible] of B, there arises of necessity the [illegible] by the law of England the heir-at-law of B, and that he has such rights as that status involves From the fact that A caused the death of B under certain circumstances, and with a certain intention or knowledge, there arises of necessity the inference that A murdered B, and is liable to the punishment provided by law for murder. f

Facts thus related to a proceeding may be called facts in issue, unless their existence is undisputed.

2 Relevant facts

(2) Facts which are not themselves in issue in the sense above explained, may affect the [13] probability of the existence of facts in issue, and be used as the foundation of inferences respecting them; such facts are described in the Evidence Act as relevant facts.

All the facts with which it can in any event be necessary for courts of justice to concern themselves, are included in these two classes.

The first great question, therefore, which the law of evidence should decide is, what facts are relevant. The answer to this question is to be learnt from the general theory of judicial evidence explained in the following chapter

What facts are in issue in particular cases is a question to be determined by the substantive law, or in some instances by that branch of the law of procedure which regulates the forms of pleading, civil or criminal.

II. The Proof of Relevant Facts.—Whether an alleged fact is a fact in issue or a relevant fact, the court can draw no inference from its existence till it believes it to exist; and it is obvious that the belief of the court in the existence of a given fact ought to proceed u[illegible] dent of the relation of the fact to the object in which its existence is to be determined. Proof of relevant facts a letter. The letter may have contained the terms of a contract. It may have been a libel. It may have constituted the motive for the commission of a crime by B. It may supply proof of an alibi in favour of A. It may be an admission or a [14] confession of crime, but whatever may be the relation of the fact to the proceeding, the Court cannot act upon it unless it believes that A did write the letter, and that belief must obviously be produced, in each of the cases mentioned, by the same or similar means. If the Court requires the production of the original when the writing of the letter is a crime, there can be no reason why it should be satisfied with a copy when the writing of the letter is a motive for a crime. In short, the way in which a fact should be proved depends on the nature of the fact, and not on the relation of the fact to the proceeding.

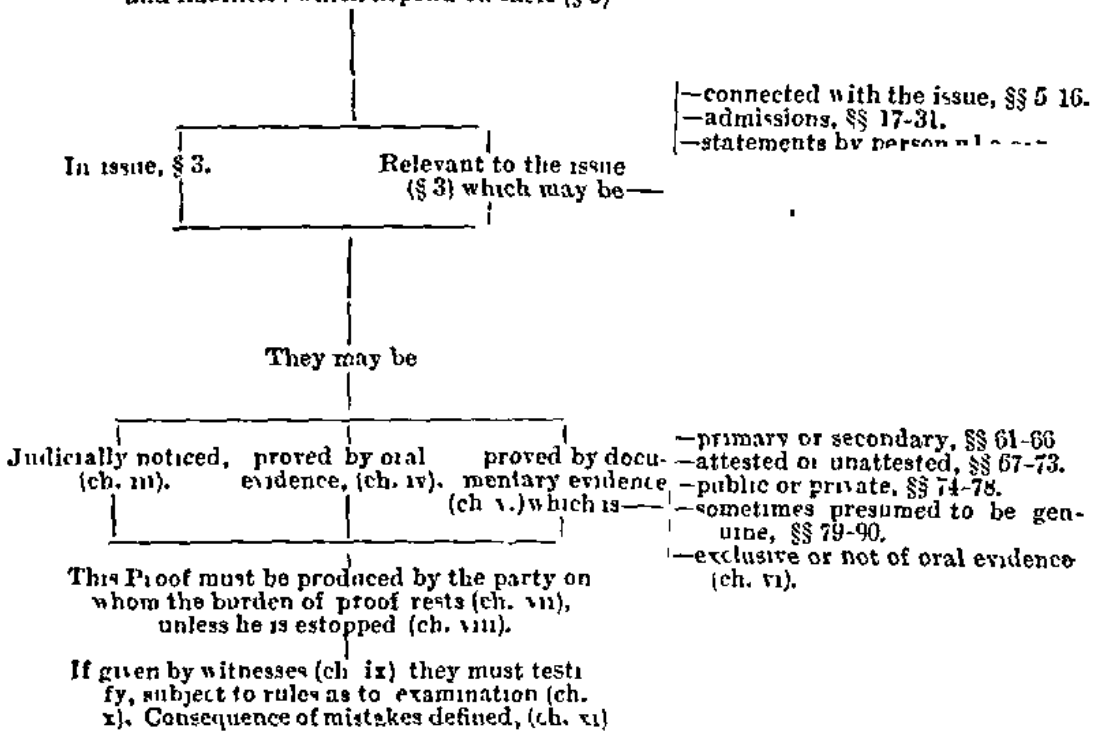
Some facts are too notorious to require any proof at all, and of these the court will take judicial notice; but if a fact does require proof, the instrument by which the court must be convinced of it is evidence; by which I mean the actual words uttered, or documents, or other things actually produced in court, and not the facts which the court considers to be proved by those words and documents. Evidence in this sense of the word must be either (1) oral or (2) documentary. A third class might be formed of things produced [illegible]nts with which a crime was been done, but this division The reason for distinguishing between oral and documentary evidence is that in many cases the existence of the latter excludes the employment of the former, but [15] the condition of material things, other than documents, is usually proved by oral evidence, so that there is no occasion to distinguish between oral and material evidence. 1 Judicial notice 2 Oral evidence 3 Documentary evidence

It may be said that in strictness all evidence is oral, as documents or other material things must be identified by oral evidence before the court can take notice of them. It is unnecessary to discuss the justice of this criticism, as the phrase 'documentary evidence' is not ambiguous, and is convenient and in common use. The only reason for avoiding the use of the word 'evidence' in the general sense in which most writers use it, is that it leads, in practice, to confusion, as has been already pointed out.

III. The Production of Proof.—This includes the subject of the burden of proof: the rules upon which answer the question, by whom is proof to be given? The subject of witnesses the rules upon which answer the question, who is to give evidence and under what conditions? The subject of the examination of witnesses. the rules upon which answer the question, how are the witnesses to be examined, and how is their evidence to be tested? Lastly, the effect upon the subsequent proceedings, of mistakes in the reception and rejection of evidence, may be included under this head. Production of proof.

The following tabular scheme of the subject may be an assistance to the reader. The figures refer to the sections of the Act which treat of the matter referred to:—

[16] The object of legal proceedings is the determination of rights and liabilities which depend on facts (§ 3)



In issue, § 3.
Relevant to the issue (§ 3) which may be——connected with the issue, §§ 5 16.
—admissions, §§ 17-31.
—statements by persons who are
They may be Judicially noticed, (ch. III).
proved by oral evidence, (ch. IV). proved by documentary evidence (ch V.) which is——primary or secondary, §§ 61-66
—attested or unattested, §§ 67-73.
—public or private, §§ 74-78.
—sometimes presumed to be genuine, §§ 79-90.
—exclusive or not of oral evidence (ch. VI).
This Proof must be produced by the party on whom the burden of proof rests (ch. VII), unless he is estopped (ch. VIII).
If given by witnesses (ch IX) they must testify, subject to rules as to examination (ch. X). Consequence of mistakes defined, (ch. XI)

[17] CHAPTER II.

A STATEMENT OF THE PRINCIPLES OF INDUCTION AND DEDUCTION, AND A COMPARISON OF THEIR APPLICATION TO SCIENTIFIC AND JUDICIAL INQUIRIES.

to have some acquaintance with the general theory of judicial evidence. The object of the present chapter is to explain this theory and to compare its application to physical science with its application to judicial inquiries.

Mr. Huxley on physical science and judicial inquiries

Mr. Huxley remarks in one of his latest works—"The vast results obtained by science are won by no mystical faculties, by no mental processes, other than those which are practised by every one of us in the humblest and meanest affairs of life. A detective policeman discovers a burglar from the marks made by his shoe, by a mental process identical with that by which Cuvier restored the extinct animals of Montmartre from fragments of their bones, nor does that process of induction and deduction by which a lady finding [18] a stain of a particular kind upon her dress, concludes that somebody has upset the inkstand thereon, differ in any way from that by which Adams and Leverrier discovered a new planet.* The man of science, in fact, simply uses with scrupulous exactness the methods which we all habitually and at every moment use carelessly."

Application of his remarks to law or evidence

These observations are capable of an inverse application. If we wish to apply the methods in question to the investigation of matters of every-day occurrence, with a greater degree of exactness than is commonly needed, it is necessary to know something of the theory on which they rest. This is specially important when, as in judicial proceedings, it is necessary to impose conditions by positive law upon such investigations. On the other hand, when such conditions have been imposed, it is difficult to understand their importance or their true significance, unless the theory on which they are based is understood. It appears necessary for these reasons to enter to a certain extent upon the general subject of the investigation of the truth as to matters of fact, before attempting to explain and discuss that particular branch of it which relates to judicial proceedings.

General object of science

First, then, what is the general problem of science? It is to discover, collect, and arrange true propositions about facts. Simple as the phrase appears, it is necessary to enter upon some illustration of its terms, namely, (1) facts, (2) propositions, (3) the truth of propositions.

First, then, what are facts?

Facts.

[19] During the whole of our waking life we are in a state of perception. Indeed, consciousness and perception are two names for one thing, according as we regard it from the passive or active point of view. We are conscious of every thing that we perceive, and we perceive whatever we are conscious of. Moreover, our perceptions are distinct from each other, some both in space and time, as is the case with all our perceptions of the external world; others, in time only, as is the case with our perceptions of the thoughts and feelings of our own minds.

---

* Lay Sermons, p. 78.

External facts

Whatever may be the objects of our perceptions, they make up collectively the whole sum of our thoughts and feelings. They constitute, in short, the world with which we are acquainted, for without entering upon the question of the existence of the external world, it may be asserted with confidence that our knowledge of it is composed, first, of our perceptions, and, secondly, of the inferences which we draw from them as to what we should perceive if we were favourably situated for that purpose. The human body supplies an illustration of this. No one doubts that his own body is composed not only of the external organs which he perceives by his senses, but of numerous internal organs, most of which it is highly improbable that either he nor* any one else will ever see or touch, and some of as long as he lives.
or the heart, what he been told by other persons about human bodies, or observed himself in other human bodies, that if his skull and chest were laid open, those organs would be perceived by the senses of persons who might direct their senses towards them.

Internal facts.

There is another class of perceptions, transient in their duration, and not perceived by the five best marked senses, which are nevertheless, distinctly perceptible and of the utmost importance. These are thoughts and feelings, love, hatred, anger, intention, will, wish, knowledge, opinion, are all perceived by the person who feels them. When it is affirmed that a man is angry, that he intends to sell an estate, that he knows the meaning of a word, that he struck a blow voluntarily and not by accident, each proposition relates to a matter capable of being as directly perceived as a noise or a flash of light The only difference between the two classes of propositions is this. When it is affirmed that a man has a given intention, the matter affirmed is one which he and he only can perceive: when it is affirmed that a man is sitting or standing, the matter affirmed is one which may be perceived not only by the man himself, but by any other person able to see, and favourably situated for the purpose. But the circumstance that either event is recorded being, or as having been capable at we mean, and all that we mean, we denote the same thing by call-[21] opposed to theory, sometimes e modes of using it are more or less rhetorical. When it is used with any degree of accuracy it implies something which exists, and it is as difficult to attach any meaning to the assertion that a thing exists which neither is, nor under any conceivable circumstances could be perceived by any sentient being, as to attach any meaning to the assertion that anything which can be so perceived does not, or at the time of perception did not, exist.

Definition of facts in Evidence Act.

It is with reference to this that the word 'fact' is defined in the Evidence Act (§ 3) as meaning and including—

(1) Any thing, state of things, or relation of things capable of being perceived by the senses, and

(2) Any mental condition of which any person is conscious.

It is important to remember with respect to facts, that as all thought and language contains a certain element of generality, it is always possible to describe the same facts with greater or less minuteness, and to decompose every fact with which we are concerned into a number of subordinate facts. Thus we might speak of the presence of several persons in a room at one time as a fact, but if the fact were doubted, or if other circumstances rendered it desirable,

* (Sic) read or their respective positions, their occupations, the position of the furniture, and many other particulars might have to be specified.

Such being the nature of facts, what is the meaning of a proposition? A proposition is a [22] collection of words so related as to raise in the minds of those who understand them a corresponding group of images or thoughts. Propositions

The characteristic by which words are distinguished from other sounds is their power of producing corresponding thought or images. I say thoughts or images, because though most words raise what may be intelligibly called images in the mind, this is true principally of those which relate to visible objects. Such words as 'hard,' 'soft,' 'taste,' 'smell,' call up sufficiently definite thoughts, but they can hardly be described as images, and the same is still more true of words which qualify others, like 'although,' 'whereas', and other adverbs, prepositions and conjunctions.

The statement that a proposition, in order to be entitled to the name, must raise in the mind a distinct group of thoughts or images may be explained by two illustrations. The words 'that horse is niger' form a proposition to everyone who knows that niger means black, but to no one else. The words 'I see a sound' form a proposition to no one unless some signification is attached to the word 'sound' (for instance, an arm of the sea), which would make the words intelligible. Illustrations

Such being a proposition, what is a true proposition? A true proposition is one which excites in the mind, thoughts or images, corresponding to those which would be excited in the mind, of a person so situated as to be able to perceive the facts to which the proposition relates. The words 'a man is riding down the road on a white horse' form a proposition because they raise in the mind [23] a distinct group of images The proposition is true if all persons favourably situated for purposes of observation did actually perceive a corresponding group of facts. True Propositions.

The next question is, How are we to proceed in order to ascertain whether any given proposition about facts is true, and in order to frame true propositions about facts? This, as already observed, is the general problem of science, which is only another name for knowledge so arranged as to be easily understood and remembered. How true propositions are to be framed

The facts, in the first place, must be correctly obs made must, in the next place, be recorded in apt lan operations is one of far greater delicacy and difficulty for it is almost impossible to discriminate between ob tions instead of being a running some kindred points would ex-ls, and I accordingly pass them Assuming then, the existence
r common purposes, how are

An answer to these questions sufficient for the present purpose will be supplied by giving a short account of what is said on the [24] subject by Mr. Mill in his treastise on logic. The substance of that part of it which bears upon the present subject is as follows: The first great lesson learnt from the observation of the world in which we live, is that a fixed order prevails amongst the various facts of which it is composed. Under lead always sinks in water, day always By degrees we are able to learn what other such events happen. We learn, for instance, that the pressence of a certain quantity of air is a condition of combustion; that the presence of the force of gravitation, the absence of any equal or greater force acting in an opposite Mr Mill's theory of logic:—a fixed order prevails in the world direction, and the maintenance by the water of its properties as a fluid, are conditions necessary to the sinking of lead in water; that the maintenance by the heavenly bodies of their respective positions, and the persistency of the various forces by which their paths are determined are the conditions under which day and night succeed each other.

Induction and deduction

The great problem is to find out what particular antecedents and consequents are thus connected together, and what are the conditions of their connection? For this purpose two processes are employed, namely, induction and deduction. Deduction assumes and rests upon previous inductions, and continue to attract every other particle of matter with a force bearing a certain fixed proportion to its mass and its distance, because other particles of matter have hitherto been observed to do so? are questions which lie beyond the limits of the present inquiry. For practical purposes it is enough to assume that such inferences are valid, and will be found by experience to yield true results in the shape of general propositions, from which we can argue downwards to particular cases according to the rules of verbal logic.

Mere observation of facts insufficient

True general propositions, however, cannot be extracted directly from the observation of nature or of human conduct, as every fact which we can observe, however apparently simple, is in reality so intricate that it would give us little or no information unless it were connected with and checked by other facts. What, for instance, can appear more natural and simple than the following facts? A tree is cut down. It falls to the ground Several birds which were perched upon it fly away. Its fall raises a cloud of dust which is dispersed by the wind and splashes up some of the water in a pond Natural and simple as this seems, it raises the following questions at least Why did the tree fall at all? The tree falling, why did not the birds fall too, and how came they to fly away? What became of the dust, and why did it disappear in the air, whereas the water fell [26] back into the pond from which it was splashed? To see in all these facts so many illustrations of the rules by which we can calculate the force of gravity, and the action of fluids on bodies immersed in them is the problem of science in general, and of induction and deduction in particular.

Proceeding of induction than rules for arranging these comparisons. The methods which he enumerates are five,* but the three last are little more than special applications of the other two, the method of agreement and the method of difference. Indeed the method of agreement is inconclusive, unless it is applied upon such a scale as to make it equivalent to the method of difference.

The nature of these methods is as follows —

Methods of agreement and difference

All events may be regarded as effects of antecedent causes.

Every effect is preceded by a group of events one or more of which are its true cause or causes, and all of which are possible causes.

The problem is to discriminate between the possible and the true causes.

[27] If whenever the effect occurs one possible cause occurs, the other possible causes varying, the possible cause which is constant is probably the true cause, and the strength of this probability is measured by the persistency with which the one possible cause recurs, and the extent to which the other possible causes vary. Arguments founded on such a state of things are arguments on the method of agreement.

* 1—The method of agreement. 2—The method of difference. 3—The joint method of agreement and difference. 4—The method of residues. 5—The method of concomitant variations.

If the effect occurs when a particular set of possible causes precedes its occurrence, and does not occur when the same set of possible causes co-exist, one only being absent, the possible cause which was present when the effect was produced, and was absent when it was not produced, is the true cause of the effect. Arguments founded on such a state of things are arguments on the method of difference.

The following illustration makes the matter plain: Various materials are mixed together on several occasions. In each case soap is produced, and in each case oil and alkali are two of the materials so mixed. It is probable from this that oil and alkali are the causes of the soap, and the degree of the probability is measured by the number of the experiments, and the variety of the ingredients other than oil and alkali. This is the method of agreement.

Various materials, of which oil and alkali are two, are mixed, and soap is produced. The same materials, with the exception of the oil and alkali, are mixed and soap is not produced. The mixture of the oil and alkali is the cause of the soap. This is the method of difference. The case [28] would obviously be the same if oil and alkali only were mixed. Soap was unknown, and upon the mixture being made, other things being unchanged, soap came into existence.

These are the most important of the rules of induction; but induction is only one step towards the solution of the problems which nature presents. In the statement of the rules of induction it is assum that all the causes and all the effects under independent facts, and that each cause is conn effect. This, however, is not the case. A give any one of several causes. Various causes may contribute to the production of a single effect. This is peculiarly important in reference to the method of agreement. If that method is applied to a small number of instances, its value is small. For instance, other substances might produce soap by their combination besides oil and alkali, say, for instance, that the combination of A and B, and that of C and D would do so. Then, if there were two experiments as follows:

Difficulties—Several

(1) oil and alkali, A and B, produce soap,

(2) oil and alkali, C and D, produce soap;

soap would be produced in each case, but whether by the combination of oil and alkali, or by the combination of A and B, or by that of C and D, or by the combination of oil, or of alkali, with A, B, C or D, would be altogether uncertain.

[29] A watch is stolen, from a place to which A, B and C only had access. Another watch is stolen from another place to which A, D and E only had access.

In each instance, A is one of three persons, one of whom must have stolen the watch, but this is consistent with it having been stolen by any of the other persons mentioned.

This weakness of the method of agreement can be cured only by so great a multiplication of instances as to make it highly improbable that any other antecedent than the one present in every instance could have caused the effect present in every instance.

Weakness of the method of agreement how cu

For the statement of the theory of chances and its bearing on the probability of events, I must refer those who wish to pursue the subject to the many works which have been written upon it, but its general validity will be inferred by every one from the common observation of life. If it was certain that either A or B, A or C, A or D, and so forth, up to A and Z, had committed one of a large number of successive thefts, of the same kind, no one could doubt that A was the thief.

It is extremely difficult, in practice, to apply such a test as this, and the test when applied is peculiarly liable to error, as each separate alternative requires distinct proof. In the case supposed, for instance, it would be necessary to ascertain separately in each of the cases relied upon, first, that a theft had been committed; then, that one of two persons must have committed it; and [30] lastly, that in each case the evidence bore with equal weight upon each of them.

Intermixture of effects and interference of causes with each other

The intermixture of effects and the interference of causes with each other is a matter of much greater intricacy and difficulty

It may take place in one of two ways, viz

(1) "In the one, which is exemplified by the joint operation of different forces in mechanics, the separate effects of all the causes continue to be produced, but are compounded together, and disappear in one total."

(2) "In the other, illustrated by the case of chemical action, the separate effects cease entirely, and are succeeded by phenomena altogether different, and governed by different laws."

In the second case the inductive methods already stated may be applied, though it has difficulties of its own to which I need not now refer.

In the first case, i.e., where an effect is not the result of any one cause, but the result of several causes modifying each other's operation, the results cease to be separately discernible. Some cancel each other. Others merge in one sum, and in this case there is often an insurmountable difficulty in tracing by observation any fixed relation whatever between the causes and the effects. A body, for instance, is at rest This may be the effect of the action of two opposite forces exactly counteracting each other, but how are such causes to be inferred from such an effect?

A balloon ascends into the air. This appears, if it is [31] treated as an isolated phenomenon, to form an exception to the theory of gravitation. It is in reality an illustration of that theory, though several concomitant facts and independent theories must be understood and combined together before this can be ascertained.

The difficulty of applying the inductive methods to such cases arises from the fact that they assume the absence of the state of things supposed. The subsequent and antecedent phenomena must be assumed to be capable of specific and separate observation before it can be asserted that a given fact invariably follows another given fact, or that two sets of possible causes resemble each other in every particular with a single exception.

Deductive method

It is necessary for this reason to resort to the deductive method, the nature of which is as follows: A general proposition established by induction is used as a premiss from which consequences are drawn according to the rules of logic, as to what must follow under particular circumstances. The inference so drawn is compared with the facts observed, and if the result observed agrees with the deduction from the inductive premiss, the inference is that the phenomenon is explained. The complete method, inductive and deductive, thus involves three steps,—

(1) Establishing the premiss by induction, or what, in practice, comes to the same thing, by a previous deduction resting ultimately upon induction;

(2) Reasoning according to the rules of logic to a conclusion;

[32] (3) Verification of the conclusion by observation.

The whole process is illustrated by the discovery and proof of the identity of the central force of the solar system with the force of gravity as known on the earth's surface. The steps in it were as follows — Illustratio

(1) It was proved by deductions resting ultimately upon inductions that the earth attracts the moon with a force varying inversely as the square of the distance.

This is the first step, the establishment of the premiss by a process resting ultimately upon induction.

(2) The moon's distance from the earth, and the actual amount of her deflexion from the tangent being known, it was ascertained with what rapidity the earth's attraction would cause the moon to fall if she were no further off and no more acted upon by extraneous forces than terrestrial bodies are.

This is the second step the reasoning, regulated by the rules of logic.

(3) Finally, this calculated velocity being compared with the observed velocity with which all heavy bodies fall by mere gravity towards the surface of the earth (sixteen feet in the first second, forty-eight in the second, and so forth in the ratio of the odd numbers), the two quantities are found to agree

This is the verification. The facts observed agree with the facts calculated, therefore the true principle of calculation has been taken

This paraphrase, for it is no more, of Mr Mill—is, I hope [33] sufficient to l the manner in which It would be foreign ough has been said to e" in ion of e the

In some essential points they resemble each other. Inquiries into matters of fact, of whatever kind and with whatever object, are, in all cases whatever, inquiries from the known to the unknown, from our present perceptions or our present recollection (which is in itself a present perception) of past perceptions, to what we might perceive, or might have perceived, if we now were, or formerly had been, or hereafter should be, favourably situated for that purpose. They proceed upon the supposition that there is a general uniformity both in natural events and in human conduct, that all events are connected together as cause and effect, and that the process of applying this principle to particular cases, and of specifying the manner in which it works, though a difficult and delicate operation, can be performed. Judicial an scientific i quiries co pared—re- semblance

There are, however, several great differences between inquiries which are commonly called scientific inquiries, that is, into the order and course of nature, and inquiries into isolated matters of fact, whether [34] for judicial or historical purposes, or for the purposes of every-day life. These differences must be carefully observed before we can undertake with much advantage the task of applying to the one subject, the principles which appear to be true. Differences

First difference as to amount of evidence

The first difference is, that in reference to isolated events, we can never, or very seldom, perform experiments, but are tied down to a fixed number of relevant facts which can never be increased.

In scientific inquiries unlimited

The great object of physical science is to invent general formulas (perhaps unfortunately called laws), which when ascertained, sum up and enable us to understand the present, and predict the future course of nature. These laws are ultimately deduced by the method already described from individual facts; but any one fact of an infinite number will serve the purpose of a scientific inquirer as well as any other, and in many, perhaps in most cases it is possible to arrange facts for the purpose. In order, for instance, to ascertain the force of terrestrial gravity, it was necessary to measure the time occupied by different bodies in falling through given spaces, and every such observation was an isolated fact. If, however, one experiment failed, or was interfered with, if an observation was inaccurate, or if a disturbing cause, as, for instance, the resistance of the atmosphere had not been allowed for, nothing could be easier than to repeat the process; and inferences drawn from any one set of experiments [35] were obviously as much to be trusted as inferences drawn from any other set Thus, with regard to [illegible] be multiplied to a practically [illegible] served that the case with which [illegible] argument that the course of [illegible] under superficial variations. For many centuries before the modern discoveries in astronomy were made, the motions of the heavenly bodies, were carefully observed and inferences as to their future course were founded upon those observations. Such observations would have been useless and unmeaning, but for the tacit assumption that what they had done in times past, they would continue to do for the future.

In judicial inquiries limited

In inquiries into isolated events this great resource is not available. Where the object is to decide what happened on a particular occasion, we can hardly ever draw inferences of any value from what happened on similar occasions, because the groups of events which form the subject of historical or judicial inquiry are so intricate that it can scarcely ever be assumed that they will repeat, or that they have repeated themselves. If we wish to know what happened two thousands years ago, when specific quantities of oxygen and hydrogen were combined, under given circumstances, we can obtain complete certainty by repeating the experiment, but the whole course of human history must recur before we could witness a second assassination of Julius Cæsar.

It cannot be increased

[36] With reference to such events we are tied down inexorably to a certain limited amount of evidence. We know so much of the assassination of Cæsar as has been told us by the historians, who are to us ultimate authorities, and we know no more. Their testimony must be taken subject to all the deductions which experience shows to be necessary in receiving as true, statements made by historical writers on subjects which interest their feelings, and upon the authority of materials which are no longer extant and therefore cannot be weighed or criticized Unless, by some unforeseen accident, new materials on the subject should come to light, a few pages of general history will for ever comprise the whole amount of human knowledge upon this subject, and any doubts about it, whether they rise from inherent improbabilities in the story itself, from differences of detail in the different narratives, or from general considerations as to the untrustworthy character of historians writing on hearsay, and at a considerable distance of time from the events which they relate, are and must remain for ever, unsolved and insoluble.

Object of scientific inquiries

Besides this difference as to the quantity of evidence accessible in scientific and historical inquiries, there is a great difference as to the objects to which the inquiries are directed. The object of inquiries into the course of nature is two-fold [illegible], results of very various kinds. Neither of these ends can be attained unless and until the problems stated by nature have been solved; partially, it may be, but at all events truly, as far as the solution goes. On the other hand, there is no pressing or immediate necessity for their solution. Every scientific question is always open, and the answer to it may be discovered after vain attempts to discover it have been made for thousands of years, or an answer long accepted may be rejected and replaced by a better answer after an equally long period. In short, in scientific inquiries, absolute truth, or as near an approach to it as can be made, is the one thing needful, and is the constant object of pursuit. So long as any part of his proof remains incomplete, so long as any one ascertained fact does not fit into and exemplify his theory, the scientific inquirer neither is, nor ought to be, satisfied. Until he has succeeded in excluding the possibility of error, he is bound, to the extent, at least, of that possibility, to suspend his judgment.

Object of judicial inquiries

In judicial inquiries (I need not here notice historical inquiries) the case is different. It is necessary for urgent practical purposes to arrive at a decision which, after a definite process has been gone through, becomes final and irreversible. It is obvious that, under these circumstances, the patient suspension of judgment, and the high standard of certainty required by scientific inquirers, cannot be expected. Judicial decisions must proceed upon imperfect materials, and must be made at the risk of error

Evidence in scientific inquiries trustworthy.

[38] Finally, inquirers into physical science have an additional advantage over those who conduct judicial inquiries, in the fact that the evidence before them, in so far as they have to depend upon oral evidence, is infinitely more trustworthy than that which is brought forward in courts of justice. The reasons of this are manifold. In the first place, the facts which a scientific observer has to report do not affect his passions In the second place, his evidence about them is not taken at all unless his powers of observations have been more or less trained and can be depended upon. In the third place, he can hardly know what will be the inference from the facts which he observes until his observations have been combined with those of other persons, so that if he were otherwise disposed to mis-state them, he would not know what misstatement would serve his purpose. In the fourth place, he knows that his observations will be confronted with others, so that if he is careless or inaccurate, and, à fortiori, if he should be dishonest, he would be found out In the fifth place, the class of facts which he observes are, generally speaking, simple, and he is usually provided with means specially arranged for the purpose of securing accurate observations, and a careful record of its results.

Evidence in judicial inquiries less trustworthy

The very opposite of all this is true as regards witnesses in a court of justice. The facts to which they testify are, as a rule, facts in which they are more or less interested, and which in many cases excite their strongest passions to the highest degree.[39] The witnesses are very seldom trained to observe any facts or to express themselves with accuracy upon any subject. They know what the point at issue is, and how their evidence bears upon it, so that they can shape it according to the effect which they wish to produce. They are generally so situated that a large part, at least of what they say is secure from contradiction, and the facts which they have to observe being in most instances portions of human conduct are so intricate that even with the best intention on the part of the witness to speak the truth, he will generally be inaccurate, and almost always incomplete, in his account of what occurred.

Advantages of judicial over scienti

So far it appears that our opportunities for investigating and proving the existence of isolated facts are much inferior to our opportunities for investing laws of nature. There ugh the evidence avail- and is always fixed in amount, and though the facts which form the subject of such inquiries are far more intricate than those which attract the inquirer into physical nature; though the judge and the historian can derive no light from experiments; though, in a word, their apparatus for ascertaining the truth is far inferior to that of which physical inquirers dispose, the task which they have to perform is proportionally easier and less ambitious. It is attended, moreover, by some special facilities which are great helps in performing it satisfactorily.

Maxims more easily appreciated

[40] The question whether it is in the nature of things possible that general formulas should ever be devised by the aid of which human conduct can be explained and predicted in the short specific manner in which physical phenomena are explained and predicted, has been the subject of great discussion, and is not yet decided; but no one doubts that approximate rules have been framed which are sufficiently precise to be of great service in estimating the probability of particular events. Whether or not any proposition as to human conduct can ever be enunciated, approaching in generality and accuracy to the proposition that the force of gravity varies inversely as the square of the distance, no one would feel disposed to deny that a recent possessor of stolen property who does not explain his possession is probably either the thief or a receiver; or that if a man refuses to produce a document in his possession, the contents of the document are probably unfavourable to him. In inquiries into isolated facts for practical purposes, such rules as these are nearly as useful as rules of greater generality and exactness, though they are of little service when the object is to interpret a series of facts either for practical or theoretical purposes. If, for instance, the question is whether a particular person committed a crime in the course of which he made use of water, knowledge of the facts that there was a pump in his garden, and that water can be drawn from a well by working the pump handle, is as useful as the most perfect knowledge of hydrostatics. But if the question were as to the means by which water [41] could be supplied for a house and field during the year, considerable knowledge of the theory and practice of hydrostatics and of various other subjects might be necessary, and the more extensive the undertaking might be, the wider would be the knowledge required.

Their limitations more easily perceived.

To this it must be added that the approximate rules which relate to human conduct are warranted principally by each man's own experience of what passes in his own mind, corroborated by his observation of the conduct of other per- pothesis that their men- perience appears to show narrower limits of error than might have been supposed, though the limits are wide enough to leave room for the exercise of a great amount of individual skill and judgment.

This circumstance invests the rules relating to human conduct with a very peculiar character. They are usually expressed with little precision, and stand instead of many exceptions and qualifications which they require. Compare two such rules as but no one would be led to doubt the second by the fact that a shopkeeper doing a large trade had in his till stolen coins shortly after they had been stolen, without having stolen them. Every one would see at once that such a case formed one of the many unstated exceptions to the rule. The reason is, that we know external nature only by observation of a neutral, unsympathetic kind, whereas every man knows more of human nature than any general rule on the subject can ever tell him.

Judicial problems are simpler than scientific problems

To these considerations it must be added that to inquire whether an isolated fact exists, is a far simpler problem than to ascertain and prove the rule according to which facts of a given class happen. The inquiry falls within a smaller compass. The process is generally deductive. The deductions depend upon previous inductions, of which the truth is generally recognised, and which (at least in judicial inquiries) generally share in the advantage just noticed of appealing directly to the personal experience and sympathy of the judge. The deductions, too, are, as a rule, of various kinds and so cross and check each other, and thus supply each other's deficiencies.

Illustrations

For instance, from one series of facts it may be inferred that A had a strong motive to commit a crime, say the murder of B. From an independent set of facts it may be inferred that B died of poison, and from another independent set of facts that A administered the poison of which B died. The question is whether [43] A falls within the small class of murderers by poison. If he does, various propositions about him must be true, no two of which have any neces-this case by poiinistration. Each separate proposition, as it is established, narrows the number of ubject. When it is established that B died of which would explain the fact of his death cone excluded; when it is proved that A administered the poison of which B died, every supposition, consistent with A's innocence, except those of accident, justification, and the like, are excluded; when it is shown that A had a motive for administering the poison, the difficulty of establishing any one of these hypotheses, e.g., accident, is largely increased, and the number of suppositions consistent with innocence is narrowed in a corresponding degree.

In judicial inquiries parties interested have opportunities to be heard

This suggests another remark of the highest importance in estimating real weight of judicial inquiries It is that such inquiries in all civilized countries are, or at least ought to be, conducted in such a manner as to give every person interested in the result the fullest possible opportunity of establishing the conclusion which he wishes to establish In the illustration just given A would have at once the strongest motive to explain the fact that he had administered the poison to [44] B and every opportunity to do so. Hence if he failed to do it, he would either be a murderer or else a member of that infinitesimally small class of persons who, having a motive to commit murder, and having administered poison to the person whom they have a motive to murder, are unable to suggest any probable reason for supposing that they did administer it innocently.

Summary of result

The results of the foregoing inquiry may be shortly summed up as follows:

I. The problem of discovering the truth in relation to matters which are judicially investigated in a part of the general problem of science,—the discovery of true propositions as to matters of fact.

II. The general solution of this problem is contained in the rules of induction and deduction stated by Mr. Mill, and generally employed for the purpose of conducting and testing the results of inquiries into physical nature.

III. By the due application of these rules facts may be exhibited as standing towards each other in the relation of cause and effect, and we are able to argue from the cause to the effect and from the effect to the cause with a degree of certainty and precision proportionate to the completeness with which the relevant facts have been observed or are accessible.

IV. The leading differences between judicial investigations and inquiries into physical nature are as follows :—

1. In physical inquiries the number of relevant facts is generally unlimited, and is capable of indefinite increase by experiments.

[46] In judicial investigations the number of relevant facts is limited by circumstances, and is incapable of being increased.

2. Physical inquiries can be prolonged for any time that may be required in order to obtain full proof of the conclusion reached, and when a conclusion has been reached, it is always liable to review if fresh facts are discovered, or if any objection is made to the process by which it was arrived at.

In judicial investigations it is necessary to arrive at a definite result in a limited time; and when that result is arrived at, it is final and irreversible with exceptions too rare to inquire notice.

3. In physical inquiries the relevant facts are usually established by testimony open to no doubt, because they relate to simple facts which do not affect the passions, which are observed by trained observers who are exposed to detection if they make mistakes, and who could not tell the effect of misrepresentation, if they were disposed to be fraudulent.

In judicial inquiries the relevant facts are generally complex. They affect the passions in the highest degree. They are testified to by untrained observers who are generally not open to contradiction, and are aware of the bearing of the facts which they allege upon the conclusion to be established.

4. On the other hand, approximate generalizations are more useful in judicial than they are in scientific inquiries, because in the case of judicial inquiries every man's [46] individual experience supplies the qualifications and exceptions necessary to adjust general rules to particular facts, which is not the case in regard to scientific inquiries

5. Judicial inquiries being limited in extent, the process of reaching as good a conclusion as is to be got out of the materials is far easier than the process of establishing a scientific conclusion with complete certainty, though the conclusion arrived at is less satisfactory.

Judicial inquiries usually produce only a very high degree of probability.

It follows from what precedes that the utmost result that can in any case be contented with a lower degree of probability than is rightly demanded in scientific investigation. The highest probability at which a court of justice can under ordinary circumstances arrive is the probability that a witness or a set of witnesses affirming the existence of a fact which they say they perceived by their own senses, and upon which they could not be mistaken,

It is difficult to measure the valu the theories of physical inquirers purpose to attempt to do so. It comparatively low degree of probability is shown to exist in the one case is identical in principle with that by which a much higher degree of probability is shown to exist in the other case.

Degrees of probability—moral certainty

The degrees of probability attainable in scientific and in judicial inquiries are infinite, and do not admit of exact measurement or description. Cases [illegible] n either know- inguish between the two. Whether any higher degree of assurance is conceivable than that which may easily be obtained of the facts that the earth revolves round the sun, and that Delhi was besieged and taken by the English in 1857, is a question which does not belong to this inquiry. For all practical purposes such conclusions as these may be described as absolutely certain. From these down to the faintest guess about the inhabitants of the stars, and the faintest suspicion that a particular person has committed a crime, there is a descending scale of probabilities which does not admit of any but a very rough measurement for practical purposes The only point in it worth noticing is what is commonly called moral certainty, and this means simply such a degree of probability as a prudent man would act upon under the circumstances in which he [49] happens to be placed in reference to the matter of which he is said to be morally certain.

Moral certainty is a question of prudence.

What constitutes moral certainty is thus a question of prudence, and not [illegible] in reference to judicial inquiries "beyond all reasonable doubt," be in favour of the side which is most probably right. To the latter part of this rule there is no objection, though it should be added that it cannot be applied absolutely without reserve. For instance, a civil case in which character is at stake partakes more or less of the [illegible] innocent is marked by the use of the expression "no doubt," the necessity of running some degree of risk of doing so in certain cases is intimated by the word "reasonable." The question, what sort of doubt is "reasonable" in criminal cases is a question of prudence. Hardly any case ever occurs in which it is not possible for an ingenious person to suggest hypotheses consistent with the prisoner's innocence. The hypotheses of falsehood on the part of the witnesses can never be said to be more than highly improbable.

Principle of estimating probabilities is that of Mr. Mill's method of difference.

[49] Though it is impossible to invent any rule by which different probabilities can be precisely valued, it is always possibe to say whether or not they fulfil the conditions of what Mr. Mill describes as the method of Difference; and if not, how nearly they approach to fulfilling it. The principle is precisely the same in all cases, however complicated or however simple, and whether the nature of the inquiry is scientific or judicial. In all cases the known facts must be arranged and classified with reference to the different hypotheses, or unknown or suspected facts, by which the existence of the known facts can be accounted for. If every hypothesis except one is inconsistent with one or more of the known facts, that one hypothesis is proved. If more than one hypothesis is consistent with the known facts, but one only is reasonably probable—that is to say, if one only is in accordance with the common course of events, that one in judicial inquiries may be said to be proved "beyond all reasonable doubt." The word "reasonable" in this sentence denotes a fluctuating and uncertain quantity of probability (if the expression may be allowed), and shows that the ultimate question in judicial proceedings is and must be in most cases a question of prudence.

Illustration.

Let the question be whether A did a certain act; the circumstances are such that the act must have been done by somebody, but it can have been done only by A or by B. If A and B are equally likely to have done the act, the matter cannot be carried further, [50] and the question Who did it? must remain undecided. But if the act must have been done by one person, if it required great physical strength, and if A is an exceedingly powerful man and B a child, it may be said to be proved that B did it. If A is stronger than B, but the disproportion between their strength is less, it is probable that A did it, but not impossible than B may have done it, and so on. In such a case as this a nearer approach than usual to a distinct measurement of the probability is possible, but no complete and definite statement on the subject can be made.

Judicial inquiries involve two classes of inferences

Such being the general nature of the object towards which judicial inquiries are directed, and the general nature of the process by which they are carried on, it will be well to examine the chief forms of that process somewhat more particularly.

It will be found upon examination that the inferences employed in judicial inquiries fall under two heads —

(1) Inferences from an assertion, whether oral or documentary, to the truth of the matter asserted.

(2) Inferences from facts which, upon the strength of such assertions, are believed to exist to facts of which the existence has not been so asserted.

For the sake of simplicity, I do not here distinguish various subordinate ons are
: of the
, therefore be classed [51] under the general head of inferences from an assertion to the truth of the matter asserted.

Direct and circumstantial evidence

Thus is the distinction usually expressed by saying that all evidence is either direct or circumstantial. I avoid the use of this expression, partly because as whereas circuminded, and partly sion favours an unfounded notion that the principles on which the two classes of inferences depend are different, and that they have different degrees of cogency, which admit of comparison. The truth is that each inference depends upon precisely the same general theory, though somewhat different considerations apply to the investigation of cases in which the facts testified to are many, and to cases in which the facts testified to are few.

infer, from what he thus sees and hears, the existence of facts which he neither sees nor hears.

Let the question be whether a will was executed. Three witnesses, entirely above suspicion, come, [52] and testify that they witnessed its execution. These assertions are facts which the judge hears for himself. Now there are consider in hey saw the will:—

(1) The witnesses may be speaking the truth.

(2) The witnesses may be mistaken.
(3) The witnesses may be telling a falsehood.

The circumstances may be such as to render suppositions (2) and (3) improbable in the highest degree and generally speaking they would be so. In such a case the first hypothesis, i.e., that the will really was executed as alleged, would be proved. The facts before the judge would be inconsistent with any other reasonable hypothesis except that of the execution of the will. This would be commonly called a case of direct evidence.

Let the question be whether A committed a crime. The facts which the judge actually knows are that certain witnesses made before him a variety of statements which he believes to be true. The result of these statements is to establish certain facts which show that either A or B or C must have committed the crime, and that neither B nor C did commit it. In this case the facts before the judge would be inconsistent with any other reasonable hypothesis except that A committed the crime. This would be commonly called a case of circumstantial evidence; yet it is obvious that the principle on which the [53] investigation proceeds as in the last case is identically the same. The only difference is in the number of inferences, but no new principle is introduced.

Illustration Identity of this process with Mr Mill's theory

It is also clear that each case is identical in principle with the method of difference as explained by Mr. Mill.

Mr. Mill's illustration of the application of that method to the motions of the planets is as follows:—The planets with a central force give areas proportional to the times. The planets without a central force give a different set of motions; but areas proportional to the times are observed. Therefore there is a central force.

Similarly in the cases suggested. The assertions of the witnesses give the execution of a will, i.e., no other cause can account for those assertions having been made. If the will had not been executed those assertions would not have been made. But the assertions were made. Therefore the will was executed.

Though inferences from an assertion to its truth, and inferences from facts taken as true to other facts not asserted to be true, rest upon the same principle, each inference has its peculiarities.

Inference from assertion to matter asserted.

The inference from the assertion to the truth of the matter asserted is usually regarded as an easy matter, calling for little remark.

Though in particular cases it is really easy, and though in a certain sense it is always easy, to deal with, to deal with it rightly is by far the most difficult task which falls to the lot of a judge and miscarriages of justice are almost [54] invariably caused by dealing with it wrongly. This requires full explanation.

To infer from an assertion the truth of the matter asserted is in one sense the easiest thing in the world. The intellectual process consists of only one step, and that is a step which gives no trouble, and is taken in most cases unconscious is a matter
"All men
"This man says so and so, "therefore it is true," would present no difficulty.
T u n particular case.

How is it possible to tell how far the powers of observation and mem a man seen once for a few minutes enable him, and how far the inn motives by any one or more of which he may be actuated dispose exceptions, which are not forced hey were, the judge has often no to what extent they apply to any ifficul-

the truth upon the matter on which he testifies? Cross-examination supplies a test to a certain extent, but those who have seen most of its application will be disposed to trust it least as a proof that a man not shaken by it ought to be believed. A cool, steady liar who happens not to be open to contradiction will baffle the most skilful cross-examiner in the absence of accidents which are not so common in practice as [55] persons who take their notions on the subject from anecdotes or fiction would suppose

Cannot be affected by rules of evidence

No rules of evidence which the legislator can enact can perceptibly affect this difficulty. Judges must deal with it as well as they can by the use of their [illegible] which of our [illegible] experience by which an observant man forms an opinion as to whether a witness is or is not lying, is by far the most important of all a judge's qualifications, infinitely more important than any acquaintance with law or with rules of evidence. No trial ever occurs in which the exercise of this faculty is not required; but it is only in exceptional cases that questions arise which present any legal difficulty or in which it is necessary to exercise any particular ingenuity in putting together the different facts which the evidence tends to establish. This pre-eminently important power for a judge is not to be learnt out of books. In so far as it can be acquired at all, it is to be acquired only by experience, for the acquisition of which the position of a judge is by no means peculiarly favourable. People come before him with their cases ready prepared, and give the evidence which they have determined to give. Unless he knows them in their unrestrained and familiar moments he will have great difficulty in finding any good reason for believing one man rather than another. The [56] rules of evidence may provide tests, the value of which has been proved by long experience, by which judges may be satisfied that the quality of the materials upon which their judgments are to proceed is not open to certain obvious objections; but they do not profess to enable the judges to know whether or not a particular witness tells the truth or what inference is to be drawn from a particular fact. The correctness with which this is done must depend upon the natural sagacity, the logical power and the practical experience of the judge, not upon his acquaintance with the law of evidence.

Grounds for believing and disbelieving a witness. Power

The grounds for believing or disbelieving particular statements made by particular people under particular circumstances may be brought under three heads,—those which affect the power of the witness to speak the truth; those which affect his will to do so; and those which arise from the nature of the statement itself and from surrounding circumstances. A man's power to speak the truth depends upon his knowledge and his power of expression. This knowledge depends partly on his accuracy in observation, partly on his memory, partly on his presence of mind; his power of expression depends upon an infinite number of circumstances, and varies in relation to the subject of which he has to speak.

A man's [illegible] his character, his courage, [illegible] as to which he is to testify, [illegible] other circumstances as to the presence or absence of which in any particular case it is often difficult to form a true opinion.

The third set of reasons are those which depend upon the probability of the statement.

Will Probability of statement

Many discussions have taken place on the effect of the improbability of a statement upon its credibility in cases which can never fall under judicial consideration. It is unnecessary to enter upon that subject here looking at the matter merely in relation to judicial inquiries, it is sufficient to observe that whilst the improbability of a statement is always a reason, and may be, in practice, a conclusive reason for disbelieving it, its probability is a poor reason for believing it if it rests upon uncorroborated testimony. Probable falsehoods are those which an artful liar naturally tells; and the fact that a good opportunity for telling such a falsehood occurs is the commonest of all reasons for its being told.

Experience is the only guide on the subject

Upon the whole it must be admitted that little that is really serviceable can be said upon the inference from an assertion to the truth of the matter asserted. The observations of which the matter admits are either generalities too vague to be of much practical use, or they are so narrow and special that they can be learnt only by personal observation and practical experience. Such observations are seldom, if ever thrown by those who make them into the form of express propositions. Indeed, for obvious reasons, it would be impossible to do so. The most acute observer would never be able [58] to catalogue the tones of voice, the passing shades of expression or the unconscious gestures which he had learnt to associate with falsehood, and if he did, his observations would probably be of little use to others. Every one must learn matters of this sort for himself, and though no sort of knowledge is so important to a judge, no rules can be laid down for its acquisition.(1)

Illustration

If the opinion here advanced appears strange, I would invite attention to the following illustration:—Is there any class of cases in which it is, in practice, [59] so difficult to come to a satisfactory decision as those which depend upon the explicit, direct testimony of a single witness uncorroborated, and, by the nature of the case, incapable of corroboration? For instance, a man and a woman are travelling alone in a railway carriage. The train stops at a station and the woman charges the man with indecent conduct which he denies. Nothing particular is known about the character or previous history of either. The woman is not betrayed on cross-examination into any inconsistency. There are no cases in which the difficulty of arriving at a satisfactory decision is anything like so great. It is easy to decide them as it is easy to make a bet, but it is easier to deal satisfactorily with the most complicated and lengthy chain of inference.

The uncertainty of inferences from an assertion to the truth of the matter asserted may be shown by stating them logically. They may be considered as being the conclusions of syllogisms in this form:—

All men situated in such and such a manner speak the truth or speak falsely (as the case may be).

A B, situated in such and such a manner, says so and so.

---

(1) I may give a few anecdotes which have no particular value in themselves, but which show what I mean. "I always used to look at the witnesses' toes when I was cross-examining them," said a friend of mine who had practised at the bar in Ceylon. "As soon as they began to lie they always fidgeted about with them." I knew a judge who formed the opinion that a letter had been forged because the expression "that woman" which it contained appeared to him to be one which a woman and not a man would use, and the question was whether the letter in question had been forged by a woman. In the life of Lord Keeper Guilford it is said that he always acted on the principle that a man was to be believed in what he said when he was in a passion. The common places about the evidence of police men, children, women, and the natives of particular countries belong to this subject. The only remark I feel inclined to add to what is commonly said on it is that, according to my observation, the power to tell the truth, which implies accurate observation, knowledge of the relative importance of facts, and power of description, properly proportioned to each other, is much less common than people usually suppose it to be. It is extremely difficult for an untrained person not to mix up inference and assertion. It is also difficult for such a person to distinguish between what they themselves saw and heard and what they were told by others, unless their attention is specially directed to the distinction.

Therefore, in saying so and so, he speaks truly or falsely (as the case may be).

This is a deduction resting on a previous induction, and it is obvious that the induction which furnishes the major premiss must always be exceedingly imperfect, and that the truth of the minor premiss which is essential to the deduction is always more or less conjectural.

Inference from facts proved to facts not otherwise proved [60] In many cases the defects of inferences of the first kind may be incidentally remedied by inferences of the second kind, namely, inferences from facts which are asserted, and, on the ground of such assertion, believed by the court to exist, to facts not asserted to exist, and these I now proceed to examine.

Inference from assertion to truth sometimes really easy.

I have observed that the inference from an assertion to the truth of the matter asserted often is as easy as it always appears to be. In very many instances, which it is much easier to recognise when they occur than to reduce to rule, a direct assertion, even by a single witness of whom little is known, is entitled to great weight. Suppose, for instance, that the matter asserted is of a [illegible] which the witness is, or for aught he can [illegible] single assertion of this sort may outweigh [illegible] Suppose, for instance, that a number [illegible] an alibi, and that they allege that on a [illegible] her with the person on behalf of whom the alibi is to be proved at a fair held at a certain place. If the Magistrate of the district, whose duty it was to superintend the fair, were to depose that the fair did not begin to be held till a day subsequent to the one in question, no one would doubt that the witnesses had conspired together to give false evidence by the familiar trick of changing the day. In this case one direct assertion would outweigh many direct assertions. Why? Because the Magistrate of the district would be a man of [61] character and position; because he would (we must assume) be quite indifferent to the particular case in issue; because he would be deposing to a fact of which it would be his official duty to be cognizant and on which he could hardly be mistaken, and lastly, because the fact would be known to a vast number of people, and he would be open to contradiction, detection, and ruin if he spoke falsely. Change these circumstances, and the equally explicit testimony of the very same man might be worthless. Suppose, for instance, that he was asked whether he had committed adultery? His denial would carry hardly any weight in any conceivable case, inasmuch as the charge is one which a guilty man would always deny, and an innocent man could do no more. In other words, since the course of conduct supposed is one which a man would certainly take whether he were innocent or not, the fact of his taking it would afford no criterion as to his guilt or innocence.

Now in almost all judicial proceedings a certain number of facts are established by direct assertions made under such circumstances that no one would seriously doubt their truth. Others are rendered probable in various degrees, and thus the judge is furnished with facts which he may use as a basis for his inferences as to the existence of other facts which are either not asserted to exist or are asserted to exist, by unsatisfactory witnesses.

Such inference comparatively easy

These inferences are generally considered to be more difficult to draw than the inference from an assertion to the matter asserted. In [62] fact, it is far easier to combine materials supposed to be sound, than to ascertain that they are sound. In the one case no rules for the judge's guidance can be laid down. No process is gone through, the correctness of which can afterwards be independently tested. The judge has nothing to trust to but his own natural and acquired sagacity. In the other case all that is required is to go through a process with which, as Mr. Huxley remarks, every one has a general superficial acquaintance tested by every-day practice, and the theory of which it is easy to understand and interesting to follow out and apply.

Facts must fulfil test of method of difference

The facts supposed to be proved must ultimately fulfil the conditions of the method of difference, but they may be combined by any of the recognised logical methods or by a combination of them all. The object indeed, at which they are all directed is the same though they reach it by different roads. A few illustrations will make this plain. The question is whether A has embezzled a small sum of money, say a particular rupee which he received on account of his employer, and did not enter in a book in which he ought to have entered it. His defence is that the omission to make the entry was accidental. The account book is examined, and it is found that in a long series of instances omissions of small sums have been made, each of which omissions is in A's favour. This, in the absence of explanation, would leave no reasonable doubt of A's guilt in each and every case. It would be practically impossible to account for such facts except upon the assumption of [63] systematic fraud. Logically, this is an instance of the Method of Agreement applied to so great a number of instances as to exclude the operation of chance. When, however, this is done, the Method of Agreement becomes a case of the Method of Difference.

Converging probabilities.

The well-known cases in which guilt is inferred from a number of separate independent, and, so to speak, converging probabilities, may be regarded as an illustration of the same principle. Their general type is as follows —

B was murdered by some one.

Whoever murdered B had a motive for his murder.

A had a motive for murdering B.

Whoever murdered B had an opportunity for murdering B.

A had an opportunity for murdering B.

Whoever murdered B made preparations for the murder of B.

A acted in a manner which might amount to a preparation for murdering B.

In each of these instances, which might of course be indefinitely multiplied one item of agreement is established between the ascertained fact that B was murdered and the hypothesis that A murdered him, and it does sometimes happen that these coincidences may be multiplied to such an extent and may be of such a character as to exclude the supposition of chance, and justify the inference that A was guilty.(1) The case, however, is a [64] rare one, and there is always a great risk of injustice unless the facts proved go beyond the mere multiplication of circumstances separately indicating guilt, and amount to a substantial exclusion of every reasonable possibility of innocence.

Illustrations.

The celebrated passage in Lord Macaulay's Essays in which he seeks to prove that Sir Philip Francis was the author of Junius's letters, is an instance, of an argument of this kind. The letters, he says, show that five facts can be predicated of Junius, whoever he may have been. But these five facts may also be predicated of Sir Philip Francis and of no one else. Whether any part of this argument can in fact be sustained, is a question to which it would be impertinent to refer here, but that the method on which it proceeds is legitimate there can be no doubt.

Rule as to corpus delicti

The cases in which it is most probable that injustice will be done by the application of the method of agreement to judicial inquiries are those in which

(1) See Richardson's Case, p. 89 (i.e., 46 of this introduction).

one should be convicted of murder unless the body of the murdered person has been discovered. Neither of these rules is more than a rough and partial application of the general principle stated above. If the circumstances are [65] such as to make it morally certain (within the definition given above) that a crime has been committed, the inference that it was so committed is as safe as any other such inference.

Illustrations

The captain of a ship, a thousand miles from any land, and with no other vessel in sight, is seen to run into his cabin, pursued by several mutinous sailors The noise of a struggle and a splash are heard The sailors soon afterwards come out of the cabin and take the command of the vessel The cabin windows are opened. The cabin is in confusion, and the captain is never seen or heard of again.

A person looks at his watch and returns it to his pocket. Immediately afterwards a man comes past, and makes a snatch at the watch, which disappears. The man being pursued, runs away and swims across a river; he is arrested on the other side. He has no watch in his possession, and the watch is never found.

In these cases it is morally certain that murder and theft respectively were committed, though in the first case the body, and in the second the watch is not producible.

Existence of corpus delicti sometimes wrongly inferred

Cases, however, do undoubtedly occur in which the inference that a crime has been committed at all is a mistake They may often be resolved into a case of begging the question The process is this suspicion that a crime has been committed is excited, and upon inquiry a number of circumstances are discovered which if it is assumed that a crime has been committed are suspicious, but which are not suspicious unless the assumption is made

[66] A ship is cast away under such circumstances that her loss may be accounted for either by fraud or by accident

The captain is tried for making away with her A variety of circumstances exist which would indicate preparation and expectation on his part if the ship really was made away with, but which would justify no suspicion at all if she was not. It is manifestly illogical first to regard the antecedent circumstances as suspicious, because the loss of the ship is assumed to be fraudulent, and next to infer that the ship was fraudulently destroyed from the suspicious character of the antecedent circumstances. This, however, is a fallacy of very common occurrence, both in judicial proceedings and in common life (1)

The modes in which facts may be so combined as to exclude every hypothesis other than the one which it is intended to establish are very numerous, and are, I think, better learnt from specific illustrations and from actual practice than from abstract theories. One of the objects of the illustrations given in the next chapter is to enable students to understand this matter.

The result of the foregoing inquiries may be summed up as follows:—

Summary of conclusions.

1. In judicial inquiries the facts which form the materials for the decision of the court are the facts that certain persons assert certain things under certain circumstances.[67] These facts the judge hears with his own ears He also

(1) An instance of this kind of error occurred in the case of A. v. Stroud and two others, who were committed at Glasgow to take their trial for the murder of A s with his own eyes documents and other things respecting which he hears rtain assertions.

II. His task is to infer-

(1) From what he himself hears and sees the existence of the facts asserted to exist.

(2) From the facts which on the strength of such assertions he believes to exist other facts which are not so asserted to exist.

III. Each of these inferences is an inference from the effect to the cause, d each ought to conform to the Method of Difference, that is to say, the cir- mstances in each case should be such that the effect is inconsistent (subject the limitations contained in the following paragraphs) with the existence of y other cause for it than the cause of which the existence is proposed to be ved.

IV. The highest result of judicial investigation must generally be, for the asons already given, to show that certain conclusions are more or less probable.

V. The question—what degree of probability is it necessary to show, in der to warrant a judici[illegible] prudence and to identi[illegible] n, regard being had to [illegible]

VII. This degree of probability varies in different cases to an extent which annot be strictly defined, but wherever it exists it may be called moral cer- inty.

[68] CHAPTER III.

THE THEORY OF RELEVANCY, WITH ILLUSTRATIONS.

Relevancy means connection of events as cause and effect

An intelligence of sufficient capacity might perhaps be able to conceive of all events as standing to each other in the relation of cause and effect; and though the most powerful of human minds are unequal to efforts which fall infinitely short of this, it is possible not only to trace the connection between cause and effect, both in regard to human conduct and in regard to inanimate matter, to very considerable lengths, but to see that numerous events are connected together, although the precise nature of the links which connect them may not be open to observation. The connection may be traced in either direction, from effect to cause or from cause to effect, and if these two words were taken in their widest acceptation it would be correct to say that when any theory has been formed which alleges the existence of any fact, all facts are relevant which, if that theory was true, would stand to the fact alleged to exist either in the relation of cause or in the relation of effect.

Objections.

It may be said that this theory would extend the limits of relevancy beyond all reasonable bounds, inasmuch as all events whatever are or may be more or [69]less remotely connected by the universal chain of cause and effect, so that the theory of gravitation would upon this principle be relevant wherever one of the facts in issue involved the falling of an object to the ground

Answer

The answer to this objection is, that wide, general causes, which apply to all occurrences, are, in most cases, admitted, and do not require proof; but no doubt if their application to the matter in question were doubtful or were misunderstood, it might be necessary to investigate them For instance, suppose that in an action for infringing a patent, the defence set up was that the patent was invalid, because the invention had been anticipated by some one who preceded the patentee. The issue might be whether an earlier machine was substantially the same as the patentee's machine. All the facts, therefore, which went to make up each machine would be facts in issue. But each machine would be constructed with reference to the general formulæ called laws of nature and thus the existence of an a[illegible] ly relevant, but a fact in issue a patent, and had had to defe sure, according to the height c might have been facts in issue.

Traceable influence of causes on effects narrow

With regard to the remark that all events are connected together more or less remotely as cause and effect, it is to be observed that [illegible] be true, it is equally upon effects can be pe mit a murder, and it is notched and stained with blood in the process. The knife is carefully washed, the water is thrown away, and the notch in the blade is ground out. It is obvious, that, unless each link in this chain of cause and effect could be separately proved, it would be impossible to trace the connection between the knife cleaned and ground and the purpose for which it had been used. On the other hand, if the first step—the fact that the knife was bloody at a given time and place—was proved, there would be no use in inquiring into the further effects produced by that fact, such as the staining of the water in which it was washed, the infinitesimal effects produced on the river into which the water was thrown, and so forth.

importance whether evidence of a particular fact is admitted or not. The extreme intricacy and minuteness of the law of England on this subject is prin- rejection of a single ques- civil case, and would upon of a conviction before the Court for Crown Cases reserved.

The improper admission or rejection of evidence in India has no effect at all unless the court thinks that the evidence improperly dealt with either turned or ought to have turned the scale. A judge, moreover, if he doubts as to the relevancy of a fact suggested, can, if he thinks it will lead to any thing relevant, ask about it himself under s. 165.

Illustration

In order to exhibit fully the meaning of these sections, to show how the Act was intended to be worked and to furnish students with models by which they may be guided in the discharge of the most important of their duties, abstracts are appended of the evidence given at the following remarkable trials :—

[74] 1. R. v Donellan.
2. R. v Belaney.
3. R. v. Richardson
4. R. v. Patch.
5 R. v. Palmer.

To every fact proved in each of these cases, the most intricate that I could discover, a note is attached, showing under what section of the Evidence Act it would be relevant.

I may observe upon these cases that the general principles of evidence are, perhaps, more clearly displayed in trials for murder, than in any others. Murders are usually concealed with as much care as possible; and, on the other hand, they must, from the nature of the case, leave traces behind them which render it possible to apply the argument from effects to causes with greater force in these than in most other cases Moreover as they involve capital punishment and excite peculiar attention, the evidence is generally investigated with special care. There are accordingly few cases which show so distinctly the sort of connection between fact and fact, which makes the existence of one fact a good ground for inferring the existence of another.

I.

[75] Case of R. v. Donellan.(1)

John Donellan, Esq., was tried at Warwick Spring Assizes, 1781, before Mr. Justice Buller, for the murder of Sir Theodosius Broughton, his brother-in- ge,(2) who, up to the moment with the exception of a trifling was the sister of lived with him at

(1) Wills, on "Circumstantial Evidence," pp. 102-6.

(2) Introductory fact (section 9).

(3) State of things under which facts in issue happened (section 7) but subsequently removed them on the peremptory order of the prisoner.(1) On the arrival of the apothecary the prisoner said the deceased had been out the preceding evening fishing, and had taken cold, but he said nothing of the draught which he had taken.(1) The prisoner had a still in his own room which he used for distilling roses;(2) and a few days after the death of Sir Theodosius he brought it full of wet lime to one of the servants to be cleaned.(3) The prisoner made several false and inconsistent statements to the servants as the cause of the young man's death;(4) and on the day of his death he wrote to Sir W. Wheeler, his guardian, to inform him of the event, but made no reference to its suddenness.(4) The coffin was soldered up on the fourth day after the death.(5) Two days afterwards Sir W. Wheeler in consequence of the rumours which had reached him of the manner of Sir Theodosius's death, and that suspicions were entertained that he had died from the effects of poison,(6) wrote a letter to the prisoner requesting [79] that an examination might take place, and mentioning the gentlemen by whom he wished it to be conducted.(7) The prisoner accordingly sent for them, but did not exhibit Sir W. Wheeler's letter alluding to the suspicion that the deceased had been poisoned, nor did he mention to them that they were sent for at his request. Having been induced by the prisoner to suppose the case to be one of ordinary death,(8) and finding the body in an advanced state of putrefaction, the medical gentlemen declined to make the examination on the ground that it might be attended with personal danger. On the following day a medical man who had heard of their refusal to examine the body offered to do so, but the prisoner declined his offer on the ground that he had not been directed to send for him (9) On the same day the prisoner wrote to Sir W. Wheeler a letter in which he stated that the medical men had fully satisfied the family, and endeavoured to account [80] for the event by the [illegible] ot state that [illegible] W. Wheeler

[illegible] wrote to the [illegible] ne,(12) which, however, he prevented by [illegible] and the body was interred without ex-[illegible] circumstances having become known to the coroner, he caused the body to be disinterred and examined on the eleventh day after death. Putrefaction was found to be far advanced, and the head was not opened, nor the bowels examined, and in other respects the

(1) Subsequent conduct and explanatory statements (section 8)

(2) Opportunity to distil laurel water, the poison said to have been used (section 7)

(3) Subsequent conduct (section 8)

(4) Admissions, 17, 18.

(5) Introductory to what follows (section 9).

(6) Introductory to, and explanatory of, what follows (section 9). It should be observed that proof of the rumours and suspicions for the purpose of showing the truth of the matters rumoured and suspected would not be admissible. The fact that there were rumours and suspicions explains Sir W. Wheeler's letter.

(7) Statement to the prisoner and affecting his conduct (section 8, ex. 2)

(8) Subsequent conduct of prisoner (section 8) and Mr. Wills' comment on the conduct

(9) Subsequent conduct (section 8) The fact that the first set of doctors refused explains the prisoner's conduct by showing that it had the effect of preventing examinations (section 7). The ground on which they refused tends to rebut this inference (section 9), but the second doctor's offer, and the prisoner's conduct thereon, tend to confirm it (section 9)

(10) Subsequent conduct (section 11) and admission (section 17).

(11) Introductory (section 9)

(12) Statement to the prisoner affecting his conduct (section 8, ex. 2.)

(13) Each contrivance and each circumstance which showed that it was disingenuous would come under the head of subsequent conduct (section 8).

(14) The burial was part of the transaction (section 6) The absence of examination is explanatory of parts of the medical evidence. The whole is introductory to medical evidence (section 9) examination was incomplete.(1) When Lady Broughton, in giving evidence before the coroner's inquest, related the circumstance of the prisoner having rinsed the bottles, he was observed to take hold of her sleeve and endeavour to check her, and he afterwards told her that she had no occasion to have mentioned that circumstance, but only to answer such questions as were put to her. and in a letter to the coroner and jury he [81] endeavoured to impress them with the belief that the deceased had inadvertently poisoned himself with arsenic, which he had purchased to kill fish.(2) Upon the trial four medical men—three physicians and an apothecary—were examined on the part of the prosecution, and expressed a very decided opinion mainly grounded upon the symptoms, the suddenness of the death, the post-mortem appearances, the smell of the draught as observed by Lady Broughton, and the similar effects produced by experiments upon animals, that the deceased had been poisoned with laurel water,(3) one of them stating that on opening the body he had been affected with a biting acrimonious taste like that which affected him in all the subsequent experiments with laurel water.(4) An eminent(5) surgeon and anatomist stated a positive opinion that the symptoms did not necessarily lead to the conclusion that the deceased had been poisoned, and that the appearances presented upon dissection explained nothing but putrefaction.(3) The prisoner was convicted and executed.

II

[82] Case of R. v. Belaney.(6)

A surgeon named Belaney was tried at the Central Criminal Court, August 1844, before Mr. Baron Gurney, for the murder of his wife. They left their place of residence, at North Sunderland, on a journey of pleasure to London on the 1st of June (having a few days previously made mutual wills in each other's favour),(7) whereon the 4th of that month they went into lodgings.(8) The deceased, journey; but
On the 8th bei rang the bell f
wife were heard conversing in their chamber about seven o'clock. About a quarter before eight the prisoner called the landlady upstairs, saying that his wife was very ill; and she found her lying motionless on the bed, with her eyes shut and her teeth closed, and foaming at the[83] mouth. On being asked if she was subject to fits, the prisoner said she had had fits before, but

(1) Introductory to opinions of experts (sections 9, 45, 46).

(2) Subsequent conduct (section 8) and admissions (section 17).

(3) Opinion of experts (section 45).

(4) This is a case of testing a fact in issue, viz., the laurel water present in the body. See definition of fact, section 3

(5) This was the famous John Hunter.

(6) Wills on "Circumstantial Evidence," pp. 175—178.

(7) Motive (section 8).

(8) Introductory (section 9).

(9) State of things under which fact in issue happened (section 7).

(10) Preparation (section 8).

none like this, and that she would not come out of it. On being pressed to send for a doctor, the prisoner said he was a doctor himself, and should have let blood before, but there was no pulse. On being further pressed to send for a doctor and his friends he assented, adding that she would not come to; that this was an affection of the heart, and that her mother died in the same way nine months of the prisoner's friends,
's feet and hands in warm
A medical man was sent ere was a tumbler close to the head of the bed, about one-third full of something clear, but whiter than water; and there was also an empty tumbler on the other side of the table, and a paper of Epsom salts.(2) In reply to a question from a medical man whether the deceased had taken any medicine that morning, the prisoner stated that she had taken nothing but a little salts (3) On the same morning the prisoner ordered a grave for interment on the following Monday.(4) In the [84] meantime the contents of the stomach were examined and found to contain prussic acid and Epsom salts. It was deposed that the symptoms were similar to those of death by prussic acid, but might be the result of any powerful sedative poison, and that the means resorted to by the prisoner were not likely to promote recovery, but that cold effusion, artificial respiration, and the application of brandy or ammonia (which in the shape of smelling salts is found in every house) and other stimulants were the appropriate remedies, and might probably have been effectual. No smell of prussic acid had been discovered in the room, though it has a very strong odour, but the window was open, and it was stated that the odour is soon dissipated by a current of air (5) The prisoner had purchased prussic acid, as also acetate of morphine, on the preceding day, from a vendor of medicines with whom he was intimate, but he had been in the habit of using these poisons under advice for a complaint [illegible] Two days after the fatal event the prison had been called in and who had assisted in on the morning in question he was about to take some prussic acid that on endeavouring to remove the stopper he had [85] some difficulty, and used some force with the handle of a tooth brush, that in consequence of breaking the neck of the bottle by the force, some of the acid was spilt; that he placed the remainder in the tumbler on the drawers at the end of the bed room, that he went into the front room to fetch a bottle wherein to place the acid, but instead of so doing began to write to his friends in the country, when in a few minutes he heard a scream from his wife's bed-room, calling for cold water, and that the prussic acid was undoubtedly the cause of her death. Upon being asked what he had done with the bottle, the prisoner said he had destroyed it; and on being asked why he had not mentioned the circumstance before, he said he had not done so because he was so distressed and ashamed at the consequence of his negligence. To [illegible]
cious Hotel men sit to
Holland, and intimated his apprehension of a miscarriage For these statements there was no foundation. At that time moreover he had removed from

(1) The death and attendant circumstances are facts in issue and part of the transaction (sections 5, 26) The other facts are conduct (section 8) and admissions (sections 17, 18)

(2) State of things at death, or cause or effect of administration of poison (section 7)

(3) Admissions (sections 17, 18).

(4) Conduct (section 8)

(5) Effect of poisoning (section 7), opinions of experts (sections 45, 46) The absence of the smell of prussic acid and the presence of the drafts are respectively a fact suggesting the absence of prussic acid, and a fact rebutting that inference (secton 9).

(6) Preparation (section 8) and fact rebutting inference from purchase of poison (section 9).

the Euston Hotel into lodgings, and on the same day he had made arrangements for leaving his wife in London, and proceeding himself on his visit to Holland In another letter, dated 8th of June, and posted after his wife's death, though it could not be determined whether it was written before or after, the prisoner stated that [86] he had had his wife removed from the hotel to private lodgings, where she was dangerously ill and attended by two medical men, one of whom had pronounced her heart to be diseased. these representations were equally false. In another letter, dated the 9th of June, but not posted until the 10th, he stated the fact of his wife's death, but without any allusion to the cause; and in a subsequent letter he stated the reason for the suppression to be to conceal the shame and reproach of his negligence. The prisoner's statement to his landlady that his wife's mother had died from disease of the heart was also a falsehood, the prisoner having himself stated in writing to the registrar of burials that brain fever was the cause of death.(1) It was, however, proved that the prisoner was of a kind disposition, that he and his wife had lived upon affectionate terms and that he was extremely careless in his habits;(2) and no motive for so horrible a deed was clearly made out, though it was urged that it was the desire of obtaining her property by means of her testamentary disposition.(3) Upon the whole, though the case was to the last degree suspicious, it was certainly possible that an accident might have taken place in the way suggested, and the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal.

Remarks on cases of

The two cases of Donellan and Belaney are not merely curious in themselves, but [illegible] nected with [illegible] which [illegible] said is a question, not of calculation, but of prudence. The cases in question show that different tribunals at different times do not measure it in precisely the same way. In Donellan's case the jury did not think the possibility that [illegible] great to constitute [illegible] ney's case the jury [illegible] the poison by acci- [illegible] the chances of the [illegible] pressed, they would, I think, be as nearly as possible equal, and it might be said that both or that neither ought to have been convicted if it were not for the all-important principle that every case is independent of every other, and that no decision upon facts forms a precedent for any other decision. If two juries were to try the very same case, upon the same evidence and with the same summing up and the same the old criminal law of Europe, and of [88] England as well as of other countries produced many bad effects, one of which was that it intimidated those who had to put it in force. The saying that it is better that ten criminals should escape than that one innocent man should be convicted expresses this sentiment, which has I think been carried too far, and has done much to enervate the administration of justice.

---

(1) All these are admissions (sections 17, 18), and conduct (section 3).

(2) Character (section 53).

(3) Motive (section 8).

III.

[89] Case of R. v. Richardson.(1)

In the autumn of 1786 a young woman, who lived with her parents in a remote district in the stewartry of Kirkcudbright,(2) was one day left alone in the cotta[illegible]he harvest-field.(4) On their return hc [illegible] their daughter murdered,(5) with her [illegible]

The circumstances in which she was found, the character of the deceased, and the appearance of the wound, all concurred in excluding all supposition of suicide;(7) while the surgeons who examined the wound were satisfied that [90] it had been inflicted by a sharp instrument, and by a person who must have held the weapon in his left hand.(8) Upon opening the body the deceased appeared to have been some months gone with child,(9) and on examining the ground about the cottage there were discovered the footsteps of a person who [illegible]

The prints of the footsteps were accurately measured and an exact impression [illegible] have [illegible] that [illegible] vered also along the track of the footsteps, and at certain intervals drops of blood, and on a stile or small gateway near the cottage, and in the line of the footsteps some marks resembling those of a hand which had been bloody.(12) Not the slightest suspicion at this time [91] attached to any particular person as the murderer, nor was it even suspected who might be the father of the child of which the girl was pregnant.(13) At the funeral a number of persons of both sexes attended,(14) and the steward-depute thought it the fittest opportunity of endeavouring, if possible, to discover the murderer conceiving rightly that, to avoid suspicion, whoever he was he would not on that occasion be absent (12) With this view he called together, after the interment the whole of the men who were present, being about sixty in number.(14) He caused the shoes of each of them to be taken off and measured, and one of the shoes was found to resemble pretty nearly the impression of the footsteps near to the cottage. The wearer of the shoe was the schoolmaster of the parish, which led to a suspicion that he must have been the father of the child, and had been guilty of the murder to save his character. On a closer examination of the shoe it was discovered that it was pointed at the toe, whereas the impression of the footstep was round

---

(1) Wills, pp. 225—229 Mr Wills observes, "This case is also concisely stated in the Memoirs of the Life of Sir Walter Scott, IV, p 52, and it supplied one of the most striking incidents in Guy Mannering"

(2) Introductory (section 9)

(3) Opportunity (section 7).

(4) Explanatory (section 9)

(5) Mr Wills' comment. They found her with the throat cut, and Mr. Wills says, she was murdered, but her murder was to them an inference, not a fact (section 3)

(6) Fact in issue (section 5)

(7) Suicide would be a relevant fact as being inconsistent with murder. The facts which exclude suicide are relevant as inconsistent with a relevant fact (section 11).

(8) Opinions of experts (section 45)

(9) State of things under which death happened (section 7) Motive (section 8)

(10) Effects of facts in issue (section 7)

(11) This is so stated as to mix up inference and fact Stripped of inference, the fact might have been stated thus, —"There were such marks in the bog as would have been produced if a person crossing the stepping-stones had slipped with one foot. The mud was of such a depth that a person so slipping would get wet to the middle of the leg"

(12) Effects of fact in issue (section 7)

(13) Observation.

(14) Introductory (section 9)

at that place.(1) The measurement of the rest went on, and after going through nearly the whole number one at length was discovered which corresponded exactly with the impression in dimensions, shape of the foot, form of the sole, and the number and position of the nails.(2) William Richardson, the young man to [92] whom the shoe belonged on being asked where he was the day deceased was murdered, replied, seemingly without embarassment, that he had been all that day employed at his master's work,(3)—a statement which his master and fellow-servants who were present confirmed.(4) This going so far to remove suspicions a warrant of commitment was not then granted, but some circumstances occurring a few days afterwards having a tendency to excite it anew, the young man [illegible] is examination(6) he acknowledg [illegible] tches being observed on his cheek [illegible] in a wood a few days before.(8) [illegible] his having been on the day of the murder employed constantly in his master's work;(9) but in the course of the inquiry it turned out that he had been absent from his work about half an hour, the time being distinctly ascertained, in the course of the forenoon of that day; that he called at a smith's shop under the pretence of wanting something which it did not appear that he had any occasion for; and that this smith's shop was in the way to the cottage of the deceased.(9)

[illegible]

would intercept him from her view, and which was the very track where the footsteps had been traced.(10)

His fellow-servants now recollected that on the forenoon of that day they were employed with Richardson in driving their master's carts, and that when passing by a wood which they named, he said that he must run to the [94] smith's shop and would be back in a short time. He then left his cart under their charge, and, having waited for him about half an hour, which one of the servants ascertained by having at the time looked at his watch, they remarked on his return that he had been absent a longer time than he said he would be, to which he replied that he had stopped in the wood to gather some nuts. They observed at the same time one of his stockings wet and soiled as if he had stepped

---

(1) Irrelevant.

(2) The making of the footmark was an effect of, or conduct subsequent to and effected by, a fact in issue (section 7) The measurement of the sixty shoes, of which one only corresponded exactly with the mark, was a fact, or rather a set of facts, making highly probable the relevant fact that that shoe made that mark (section 11, The experiment itself is an application of the method of difference. This shoe would make the mark, and no other of a very large number would.

(3) This would be relevant against him, but not in his favour as an admission (sections, 17, 18)

(4) The fact that his master and fellow-servant confirmed his statement is irrelevant If they had testified afterwards to the fact itself, it would have been relevant.

(5) Irrelevant.

(6) By Scotch law, as well as by the Code of Criminal Procedure, a prisoner may be examined.

(7) The fact that he was left-handed would be a cause of a fact in issue, viz, the peculiar way in which the fatal wound was given The admission that he was left-handed would be relevant as proof of the fact by sections 17, 18

(8) If it was suggested that the scratches were made in a struggle with the girl, they would be effects of a fact in issue (section 7), and the statement would be relevant as against the prisoner as an admission (sections 17, 18)

(9) Opportunity (section 7) Admissions (sections 17, 18) The call at the shop was preparation by making evidence (section 8, illustration (e)

(10) There is here a mixture of fact and inference, the girl could not know that a murder was committed at the time when it was committed Probably she mentioned the time, and it corresponded with the time when Richardson was away This would be preparation and opportunity (section 7). The existence of the small eminence explains her not seeing him return (section 9).

... of which he men-have been either path which went was absent with s fellow-servants
rned to them.(1)
.r.(2) They were found concealed in the thatch of the apartment where he slept, and appeared to be much soiled, and to have some drops of blood on them.(3) The first he accounted for by saying, first, that his nose had been bleeding some days before; but it being observed that he wore other stockings on that day, he said he had assisted in bleeding a horse, but it was proved that he had not assisted, [95] and had stood at such a distance that the blood could not have reached him.(4) On examining the mud or sand upon the stockings, it appeared to correspond precisely with that of the mire or puddle adjoining the cottage, and which was of a very particular kind, none other of the same kind being found in that neighbourhood.(5) The shoemaker was then discovered who had mended his shoes a short time before, and he spoke distinctly to the shoes of the prisoner which were exhibitd to him as having been those he had mended.(6) It then came

h

course with her, and, on being taunted with having such connection with one in her situation, he seemed much ashamed and greatly [96] hurt.(7) It was proved further by the person who sat next him when his shoes were measuring, that he trembled much and seemed a good deal agitated, and that, in the interval between that time and his being apprehended, he had been advised to fly, but his answer was, "Where can I fly to?"(8)

On the other hand, evidence was brought to show that about the time of ... boat's crew from Ireland had landed on that part of the coast near ... was said that some of the crew might ... ir motives for doing so it was difficult ... bbery was their purpose, or that any thing was missing from the cottages in the neighbourhood The prisoner was convicted, confessed, and was hanged.

Remarks on Richardson's case

This case illustrates the application of what Mr. Mill calls the method of agreement upon a scale which excludes the supposition of chance, thus:—

(1) The murderer had a motive,—Richardson had a motive.

---

(1) All these facts are either opportunity or preparation or subsequent or previous conduct or admissions (sections 7, 8, 17)

(2) Introductory to next fact (section 91)

(3) The concealment is subsequent conduct (section 8) The state of the stockings is the effect of a fact in issue (section 7)

(4) The falsehoods are subsequent conduct (section 8), or admissions (sections 17 & 18) The prisoner's allegation about the horse is an allegation of a fact explaining the relevant fact, that there was blood on the stockings (section 9); and the fact proved about his distance from the horse is a fact rebutting the inference suggested thereby, that the blood was the horse's (section 9)

(5) Effect of a fact in issue (section 7) The similarity of the sand on the stockings to the sand in the marsh was one of the effects of the slip which was the effect of the murder

(6) That the marks were made by the prisoner's shoe was relevant as an effect of facts in issue That the shoes which made the marks were the prisoner's had been already proved by their being found on his feet. This further proof seems superfluous, unless it was suggested that they belonged to some one else

(7) The opinion about her would be irrelevant The fact that her intellect was weak would be part of the state of things under which the murder happened, and with what follows would show motive (sections 7, 8)

(8) Subsequent conduct (section 10) The weight of this is very slight.

(9) Opportunity for the murder (section 7).

(2) The murderer had an opportunity at a certain hour of a certain day in a certain place,—Richardson had an opportunity on that hour of that day at that place.

[97] (3) The murderer was left-handed,—Richardson was left-handed.

(4) The murderer wore shoes which made certain marks,—Richardson wore shoes which made exactly similar marks.

(5) If Richardson was the murderer and wore stockings, they must have been soiled with a peculiar kind of sand,—he did wear stockings which were soiled with that kind of sand.

(6) If Richardson was the murderer, he would naturally conceal his stockings,—he did conceal his stockings.

(7) The murderer would probably get blood on his clothes,—Richardson got blood on his clothes.

(8) If Richardson was the murderer, he would probably tell lies about the blood,—he did tell lies about the blood.

(9) If Richardson was the murderer, he must have been at the place at the time in question,—a man very like him was seen running towards the place at the time.

(10) If Richardson was the murderer, he will probably tell lies about his proceedings during the time when the murder was committed,—he told such lies.

Here are ten separate marks, five of which must have been found in the murderer, one of which must have been found on the murderer if he wore stockings, whilst others probably would be found in him.

All ten were found in Richardson. Four of them were so distinctive that they could hardly have met in more than one man. It is hardly imaginable that two left-handed men, wearing precisely similar shoes and closely [98] re-sistent with Richardson's innocence.

IV.

[99] Case of R. v. Patch.(1)

aker, ving
d of ar-
It ially

from the business, which the prisoner was to manage, and the former was to have two-thirds of the profits, and the prisoner the remaining third, for which

(1) Will's Circumstantial Evidence (2) Introductory (section 9).

he was to pay £1,250. Of this amount, £250 was paid in cash, and a draft was given for the remainder upon a person named Goom, which would become payable on the 16th of September, the prisoner representing that he had received the purchase-money of an estate and lent it to Goom.(1) On the 16th of September the prisoner represented to Mr. Blight's bankers that Goom could not take [100] up the bill, and withdrew it, substituting his own draft, upon Goom to fall due on the 20th September (2) On the 19th of September the deceased went to visit his wife at Margate, and the prisoner accompanied him as far as Deptford,(3) and then went to London and represented to his bankers that Goom would not be able to face his draft, but that he had obtained from him a note which satisfied him, and therefore they were not to present it.(4) The prisoner boarded in Mr. Blight's house, and the only other inmate was a female servant, whom the prisoner about eight o'clock the same evening (the 19th) sent out to procure some oysters for his supper.(5) During her absence a gun or pistol ball was fired through the shutter of a parlour fronting the Thames, where the family, when at home, usually spent their evenings. It was low water, and the mud was so deep that any person attempting to escape in that direction must have been suffocated, and a man who was standing near the gate of the wharf, which was the only other mode of escape, heard the report, but saw no person (6) From the manner in which [101] the ball entered the shutter it was clear that it had been discharged by some person who was close to the shutter, and the river was so much below the level of the house, that the ball, if it had been fired from thence, must have reached a much higher part than that which it struck. The prisoner declined the offer of the neighbours to remain in the house with him that night.(7) On the following day he wrote to inform the deceased of the transaction, stating his hope that the shot had been accidental, that he knew of no person who had any animosity against him, that he wished to know for whom it was intended, and that he should be happy to hear from him, but much more so to see him.(8) Mr. Blight returned home on the 23rd September, having previously been to London to see his bankers on the subject of the £1,000 draft (9) Upon getting home, the draft became the subject of conversation, and the deceased desired the prisoner to go to London, and not to return without the money.(10) Upon his return the prisoner and the deceased spent the evening in the back parlour, a different one from that in which the family usually sat (11) About eight o'clock the prisoner went from the parlour into the kitchen, and asked [102] the servant for a candle,(12) complaining that he was disordered.(13) The prisoner's way from the kitchen was through an outer door which fastened by a spring lock, and across a paved court in front of the house which was enclosed by palisades, and through a gate over a wharf in front of that court, on which there was the kind of soil peculiar

---

(1) Motive (section 8).

(2) Preparation (section 8)

(3) Introductory (section 9), but unimportant

(4) Preparation (section 8)

(5) Explains what follows (section 9) Preparation (section 8).

(6) The suggestion was that Patch fired the shot himself in order to make evidence in his own favour. This would be preparation (section 8) Hence his firing the shot would be a relevant fact The facts in the text are facts which, taken together, make it highly probable that he did so, as they show that he and no one else had the opportunity and that it was done by some one (section 11)

The last fact illustrates the remarks made at pages 40, 41 The inference from the facts stated, assuming them to be true, is necessary, but, suppose that the "man standing near the gate" saw some one running, and for reasons of his own denied it, how could he be contradicted?

(7) Conduct (section 8).

(8) Preparation (section 8)

(9) Hardly relevant, except as introductory to what follows (section 9)

(10) Motive (section 8)

(11) State of things under which facts in issue happened (section 7)

(12) Preparation (section 8)

(13) Preparation (section 8).

to premises for breaking up ships, and then through a counting-house. All of these doors, as well as the door of the parlour, the prisoner left open, notwithstanding the state of alarm excited by the former shot. The servant heard the privy door slam, and almost at the same moment saw the flash of a pistol at the door of the parlour where the deceased was sitting, upon which she ran and shut the outer door and gate. The prisoner immediately afterwards rapped loudly at the door for admittance with his clothes in disorder. He evinced great apparent concern for Mr. Blight, who was mortally wounded, and died on the following day From the state of the tide and from the testimony of various persons who were on the outside of the premises, no person could have escaped from them.(1)

In consequence of this event Mrs. Blight returned home,(2) and the prisoner in answer to an inquiry about the draft [103] which had made her husband so uneasy told her that it was paid, and claimed the whole of the property as his own (3) Suspicion soon fixed upon the prisoner,(4) and in his sleeping room was found a pair of stockings rolled up like clean stockings, but with the feet plastered over with the sort of soil found on the wharf, and a ramrod was found in the privy.(5) The prisoner usually wore boots; but on the evening of the murder he wore shoes and stockings.(6) It was supposed that to prevent alarm to the deceased or the female servant, the murderer must have approached without his shoes, and afterwards gone on the wharf to throw away the pistol into the river.(7) All the prisoner's statements as to his pecuniary transactions with Goom and his right to draw upon him, and the payment of the bill, turned out to be false.(8) He attempted to tamper with the servant girl as to her evidence before the coroner, and urged her to keep to one account,(9) and before that officer he made several inconsistent statements as to his pecuniary transactions with the deceased and equivocated much as to whether he wore [104] boots or shoes on the evening of the murder, as well as to the ownership of the soiled stockings,(10) which, however, were clearly proved to be his, and for the soiled state of which he made no attempt to account.(10) The prisoner suggested the existence of malicious feelings in two persons with whom the deceased had been on ill-terms,(11) but they had no motive(12) for doing him any injury; and it was clearly proved that upon both occasions of attack they were at a distance.(13)

Remarks on Patch's case.

Patch's case illustrates the method of difference(14) and the whole of it may be regarded as a very complete illustration of section 11. The general effect of the evidence is, that Patch had motive and opportunity for the murder, and that no one else, except himself, could have fired either the shot which caused the murdered man's death, or the shot which was intended to show that the

(1) These facts collectively are inconsistent with the firing of the shot by anyone except Patch (section 11) They would also be relevant as being either facts in issue, or the state of things under which facts in issue happened (section 7), or as preparation or opportunity (sections 7 & 8, illustration A)

(2) Introductory (section 9)

(3) Subsequent conduct influenced by a fact in issue (section 8)

(4) Irrelevant

(5) Effect of fact in issue (section 7)

(6) State of things under which facts in issue happened (section 7).

(7) Fact and inference are mixed up in this statement; the facts are (1) that the state of things was such that the deceased and his servant would have heard the steps of a man with shoes on under the window; and (2) that a person who wished to throw anything into the Thames would have to go on to the wharf.

(8) Preparation (section 8).

(9) Subsequent conduct (section 8), and admissions (sections 17 & 18)

(10) Effect of fact in issue (section 7)

(11) Motive (section 8)

(12) i.e., no special motive beyond general ill-will.

(13) Facts inconsistent with relevant fact (section 11).

(14) P. 34.

murdered man had enemies who wished to murder him. The relevancy of the first shot arose from the suggestion that it was an act of preparation The proof that it was fired by Patch consisted of independent facts, showing that it was fired, and that he and no one else could have fired it. The firing of the second shot by which the murder was committed was a fact in issue. The proof of it by a strange[105] combination of circumstances was precisely similar in principle to the proof as to the first shot

The case is also very remarkable as showing the way in which the chain of cause and effect links together facts of the most dis-similar kind; and this proves that it is impossible to draw a line between relevant and irrelevant facts, otherwise than by enumerating as completely as possible the more common forms in which the relation of cause and effects displays itself. In Patch's case the firing of the first shot was an act of preparation by way of what is called "making evidence," but the fact that Patch fired it appeared from a combination of circumstances which showed that he might, and that no one else could, have done so It is easy to conceive that some one of the facts necessary to complete this proof might have had to be proved in the same way. For instance, part of the proof that Patch fired the shot consisted in the fact that no one left certain premises by a certain gate which was one of the suppositions necessary to be negatived in order to show that no one but Patch could have fired the shot The proof given of this was the evidence of a man standing near, who said that at the time in question no one did pass through the gate in his presence, or could have done so unnoticed by him. Suppose that the proof had been that the gate had not been used for a long time, that spiders' webs had been spun all over the opening of the gate, that they were unbroken at night and remained unbroken in the morning after the shot, and that it was impossible that they should have been spun after the shot was fired and [106] before the gate was examined. In that case the proof would have stood thus — Patch's preparations for the murder were relevant to the question whether he committed it Patch's firing the first shot was one of his preparations for the murder The facts inconsistent with his not having fired the shot were relevant to the question whether he fired it. The fact that a certain door was not opened between certain hours was one of the facts which, taken together, were inconsistent with his not having fired the shot The fact that a spider's web was whole overnight and also in the morning was inconsistent with the door having been opened.

Inversely the integrity of the spider's web was relevant to the opening of the door; the opening of the door was relevant to the firing of the first shot; the firing of the first shot was relevant to the firing of the second shot; and the firing of the second shot was a fact in issue; therefore the integrity of the spider's web was relevant to a fact in issue.

V.

[107] Case of R. v. Palmer.(1)

On the 14th of May, 1856, William Palmer was tried at the Old Bailey, under powers conferred on the Court of Queen's Bench by 19 Vic., c. 16, for the murder of John Parsons Cook at Rugeley, in Staffordshire. The trial lasted twelve days, and ended on the 27th May, when the prisoner was convicted, and received sentence of death, on which he was afterwards executed at Stafford.

(1) Reprinted from my "General View of the Criminal Law of England," p. 337.

Palmer was a general medical practitioner at Rugeley, much engaged in sporting transactions. Cook, his intimate friend, was also a sporting man, and after attending Shrewsbury races with him on the 13th November, 1855, returned in his company to Rugeley and died at the Talbot Arms Hotel at that place, soon after midnight, on the 21st November, 1855, under circumstances which raised a suspicion that he had been poisoned by Palmer. The case against Palmer was that he had a strong motive to murder his friend, and that his conduct before, at the time of, and after his death, coupled with the circumstances of the death itself, left no reasonable doubt [108] that he did murder him by poisoning him with antimony and strychnine, administered on various occasions—the antimony probably being used as a preparation for the strychnine.

The evidence stood as follows:—At the time of Cook's death, Palmer was involved in bill transactions which appeared to have begun in the year 1853 His wife died in September, 1851, and on her death he received £13,000 on policies on her life, nearly the whole of which was applied to the discharge of his liabilities.(1) In the course of the year 1855 he raised other large sums, amounting in all to £13,500, on what purported to be acceptances of his mother's. The bills were renewed from time to time at enormous interest (usually sixty per cent. per annum) by a money-lender named Pratt, who, at the time of Cook's death, held eight bills—four on his own account and four on account of his client; two already overdue and six others falling due—some in November and others in January. About £1,000 had been paid off in the course of the year, so that the total amount then due or shortly to fall due to Pratt, was £12,500. The only means which Palmer had by which these bills could be provided for was a policy on the life of his brother, Walter Palmer, for £13,000. Walter Palmer died in August, 1855,(2) and William Palmer had instructed Pratt to recover the amount from the insurance office, but the office refused to pay. In consequence of this difficulty, Pratt earnestly [109] pressed Palmer to pay something in order to keep down the interest or diminish the principal due on the bills. He issued writs against him and his mother on the 6th [illegible] would be served at once, [illegible] before the Shrewsbury ra[illegible] in all to £800, of which £600 went in reduction of the principal, and £200 was deducted for interest. It was understood that more money was to be raised as early as possible.

Besides the money due to Pratt, Mr. Wright of Birmingham held bills for £10,400. Part of these, amounting to £6,500, purported to be accepted by Mrs. Palmer, were collaterally secured by a bill of sale of the whole of William Palmer's property. These bills would fall due on the first or second week of November. [illegible] bill of the same kind for £2,000, on which £1,000 remai[illegible] erdue on the 16th of October, 185[illegible] Espin a cheque antedated on the [illegible] Mrs. Sarah Palmer's acceptance was on nearly all these bills, and in every instance was forged.

The result is, that about the time of the Shrewsbury races, Palmer was being pressed for payment on forged acceptances to the amount of nearly £20,000 and that his only resources were a certain amount of personal property, over which Wright held a bill of sale, and a policy for £13,000, the payment of which was refused by the [110] office. Should he succeed in obtaining payment, he might no doubt struggle through his difficulties, but there still remained the £1,000 antedated cheque given to Espin, which it was necessary to provide for at once by some means or other. That he had no funds of his own was proved by the fact that his balance at the bank on the 19th November was £9 6s., and that he had to borrow £25 of a farmer named Wallbank, to go to Shrewsbury races. It follows that he was under the most pressing necessity to obtain a considerable sum of money, as even a short delay in obtaining it might involve him not only in insolvency, but in a prosecution for uttering forged acceptances.

(1) A bill was found against him for her murder.

(2) A bill was found against Palmer for his murder.

Besides the embarrassment arising from the bills in the hands of Pratt, Wright and Padwick, Palmer was involved in a transaction with Cook, which had a bearing on the rest of the case. Cook and he were parties to a bill for £500 which Pratt had discounted, giving £365 in cash, and a wine warrant for £65, and charging £60 for discount and expenses. He also required an assignment of two race-horses of Cook's—Pole-star and Sirius—as a collateral security. By Palmer's request the £365 in the shape of a cheque payable to Cook's order and the wine warrant were sent by post to Palmer at Doncaster. Palmer wrote Cook's endorsement on the cheque, and paid the amount to his own credit at the Bank at Rugeley. On the part of the prosecution it was said that this transaction afforded a reason why Palmer should desire to be rid of Cook, inasmuch as it amounted to a forgery by which [111] Cook was defrauded of £375. It appeared, however, on the other side, that there were £300 worth of notes relating to some other transaction, in the letter which enclosed the cheque, and as it did not appear that Cook has complained of getting no consideration for his acceptance, it was suggested that he had authorized Palmer to write his name on the back of the cheque, and had taken the notes himself. This arrangement seems not improbable, as it would otherwise be hard to explain why Cook acquiesced in receiving nothing for his acceptance, and there was evidence that he meant to provide for the bill when it became due. It also appeared late in the case that there was another bill for £500, in which Cook and Palmer were jointly interested.(1)

Such was Palmer's position when he went to Shrewsbury races, on Monday, the 12th November, 1855. Cook was there also; and on Tuesday, the 13th, his mare Pole-star won the Shrewsbury Handicap, by which he became entitled to the stakes, worth about £380, and bets to a considerable amount, which he had laid against his own horse, and which altogether amounted to £2,000. Of this sum he received £1,000 in notes, and £700 in bills. The rest was to be paid on the following November.(1)

After the race Cook invited some of his friends to dinner at the Raven Hotel, and on that occasion and on the following day he was both sober and well.(2) On the Wednesday night a man named Ishmael Fisher came into the sitting room, which Palmer shared with Cook, and [112] found them in company with some other men drinking brandy and water. Cook complained that the brandy "burned his throat dreadfully," and put down his glass with a small quantity remaining in it. Palmer drank up what was left, and, handing the glass to Read, said, "What's the matter with Cook?" Cook went to bed, and afterwards was sick, and, as he thought, vomited a quantity of blood. He also handed over to Fisher £700 or £800 in notes to keep for him.(3) He then became sick again, and was ill all night, and had to be attended by a doctor. He told the doctor, Mr. Gibson, that he thought he had been poisoned, and he was treated on that

(1) All these facts go to show motive (section 8).

(2) State of things under which the following facts occurred (section 7).

(3) Conduct of person against whom offence was committed, and statement explanatory of such conduct (section 8, exp. 1).

[illegible] at Cook had said that he [illegible] He added that he did not [illegible] drunk the night before—which appeared not to be the case.(2) Fisher did not expressly say that he returned the money [113] to Cook, but from the course of the evidence it seems that he did,(3) for Cook asked him to pay Pratt £200 at once, and to repay himself on the following Monday out of the bets which he would receive on Cook's account at the settling at Tattersall's.

About half-past ten on the Wednesday, and apparently shortly before Cook drank the brandy and water which he complained of, Palmer was seen by a Mrs. Brooks in the passage looking at a glass lamp, through a tumbler which contained some clear fluid like water, and which he was shaking and turning in his hand. There appears, however, to have been no secrecy in this, as he spoke to Mrs. Brooks, and continued to hold and shake the tumbler as he did so.(4) George Myatt was called to contradict this for the prisoner He said that he was in the room when Palmer and Cook came in, that Cook made a remark about the brandy, though he gave a different version of it from Fisher and Read; that he did not see anything put in it, and that if anything had been put in it he should have seen. He also swore that Palmer never left the room from the time he came in till Cook went to bed. He also put the time later than Fisher and Read.(5) All this, however, came to very little. It was the sort of difference which always arises in the details of evidence As Myatt was a friend of Palmer's, he probably remembered the matter (perhaps honestly enough) in a way more favourable to him than the other witnesses.

[114] It appeared from the evidence of Mrs. Brooks, and also from that of a man named Herring, that other persons besides Cook were taken ill at Shrewsbury, on the evening in question, with similar symptoms. Mrs Brooks said, "We made an observation we thought the water might have been poisoned in Shrewsbury." Palmer himself vomited on his way back to Rugeley according to Myatt.(6)

The evidence as to what passed at Shrewsbury clearly proves that Palmer being then in great want of money, Cook was to his knowledge in possession of £700 or £800 in bank-notes, and was also entitled to receive on the following Monday about £1,400 more. It also shows that Palmer may have given him a dose of antimony, though the weight of the evidence to this effect is weakened by the proof that diarrhœa and vomiting were prevalent in Shrewsbury at the time. It is, however, important in connection with subsequent events.

On Thursday, November 15th, Palmer and Cook returned together to Rugeley, which they reached about ten at night. Cook went to the Talbot Arms, and Palmer to his own house immediately opposite Cook still complained of being unwell. On the Friday he dined with Palmer in company with an attorney, Mr. Jeremiah Smith, and returned perfectly sober about ten in the evi[illegible] [illegible] November 1741.) Palmer came ove[illegible] Cook by [illegible] his

(1) The administration of antimony by Palmer would be a fact in issue, as being one of a set of acts of poisoning which finally caused Cook's death Cook's feelings were relevant as the effect of his being poisoned (section 7); and his statement as to them was relevant under section 14 as a statement showing the existence of a relevant bodily feeling.

(2) Admission (sections 17, 18).

(3) Motive (section 8).

(4) Preparation (section 8)

(5) Evidence against last fact (section 5)

(6) Facts rebutting inference suggested by preceding fact (section 9).

(7) Introductory to what follows (section 9), and shows state of things under which following facts occurred (section 7) room, an hour or two afterwards, it had been vomited.(1) In the course of the day, and apparently about the middle of the day, Palmer sent a charwoman, named Rowley, to get some broth for Cook at an inn called the Albion. She brought it to Palmer's house, put it by the fire to warm, and left the room. The chambermaid poured it into a cup and sent it to the room. The broth came from Mr Jeremiah Smith. The broth was given to Cook, who at first refused to take it. Palmer, however, came in, and said he must have it. The chambermaid brought back the broth which she had taken downstairs, and left it in the room. It also was thrown up.(1) In the course of the afternoon Palmer called in Mr Bamford, a surgeon eighty years of age, to see Cook, and told him that when Cook dined at his (Palmer's) house he had taken too much champagne (2) Mr Bamford, however, found no bilious symptoms about him, and he said he had only drunk two glasses.(3) On the Saturday night Mr Jeremiah Smith slept in Cook's room, as he was still ill. On the Sunday, between twelve and one, Palmer sent over his gardener, [116] Hawley with some more broth for Cook.(4) Elizabeth Mills, the servant at the Talbot Arms, tasted it, taking two or three spoonfuls. She became exceedingly sick about half an hour afterwards, and was sick all the afternoon. She was so ill that she had to be assisted upstairs. The broth was taken to Cook, and the cup afterwards was observed to have been taken and vomited, though the fact on that point (5) By the Sunday's post Palmer wrote to Mr Jones, an apothecary and Cook's most intimate friend, to come and see him. He said that Cook was "confined to his bed with a severe bilious attack, combined with diarrhœa." The servant Mills said there was no diarrhœa (6) It was observed on the part of the defence that this letter was strong proof of innocence. The prosecution suggested that it was "part of a deep design, and was meant to make evidence in the prisoner's favour." The fair conclusion seems to be that it was an ambiguous act which ought to weigh neither way, though the falsehood about Cook's symptoms is suspicious as far as it goes.

On the night between Sunday and Monday Cook had some sort of attack. When the servant Mills went into his room on the Monday he said, "I was just mad for two minutes." She said, "Why did you not ring the bell?" He said, "I thought that you would be all fast asleep, [117] and not hear it." He also said he was disturbed by a quarrel in the street. It might have waked and disturbed him, but he was not sure. This incident was not mentioned at first by Barnes and Mills, but was brought out on their being re-called at the request of the prisoner's counsel. It was considered important for the defence, as proving that Cook had had an attack of some kind before it was suggested that any strychnine was administered; and the principal medical witness for the defence, Mr. Nunneley, referred to it, with this view.(7)

On the Monday, about a quarter-past or half-past seven, Palmer again visited Cook; but as he was in London about half-past two, he must have gone to town by an early train. During the whole of the Monday Cook was

---

(1) Fact in issue and its effect, as this was an act of poisoning (section 5)

(2) Conduct and statements explaining conduct (section 8)

(3) Rebuts inference in Palmer's favour, suggested by preceding fact and explains the object of his conduct by showing that his statement was false (section 9). Cook's statement relates to his state of body (section 14).

(4) Fact in issue—administration of poisons (section 5).

(5) Effects of facts in issue (section (7).

(6) Conduct (section 8), and explanation of it (section 9)

(7) Fact tending to rebut inference from previous fact (section 9)

much better. He dressed himself, saw a jockey and his trainer, and the sickness ceased.(1)

In the meantime Palmer was in London. He met by appointment a man named Herring, who was connected with the turf. Palmer told him he wished to settle Cook's account and read to him from a list, which Herring copied as Palmer read it, the particulars of the bets which he was to receive. They amounted to £981 clear. Of this sum Palmer instructed Herring to pay £150 to Pratt and £350 to Padwick. The nature of the debt to Padwick was not proved in evidence, as Padwick himself was not called Palmer told Herring [118] the £450 was to settle the bill for which Cook had assigned his horses. He wrote Pratt on the same day a letter in these words.—"Dear Sir,—you will place the £50 I have just paid you, and the £150 you will receive from Mr. Herring, together £500, and the £200 you received on Saturday" (from Fisher) "towards payment of my mother's acceptance for £2,000, due 25th October."(2)

Herring received upwards of £800, and paid part of it away according to Palmer's dir[illegible]50, but the £350 was not paid to [illegible] part was retained by Mr. Herring [illegible] Herring received less than he expected. In his reply the Attorney-General said that the £350 intended to be paid t[illegible] motive was to keep [illegible] to Espin on Padwick [illegible] of much importance. It was clearly intended to be paid to Padwick on account, not of Cook (except possibly as to a small part), but of Palmer. Palmer thus disposed, or attempted to dispose, in the course of Monday, Nov. 19th, of the whole of Cook's winnings for his own advantage.(3)

This is a convenient place to mention the final result of the transaction relating to the bill for £500, in which Cook and Palmer were jointly interested On the Friday [119] when Cook and Palmer dined together (Nov. 16), Cook wrote to Fisher (his agent) in these words:—"It is of very great importance to both Palmer and myself that a sum of £500 should be paid to a Mr. Pratt of 5, Queen Street, Mayfair; 300*l* has been sent up to-night, and if you would be kind enough to pay the other £200 to-morrow, on the receipt of this, you will greatly oblige me. I will settle it on Monday at Tattersall's." Fisher did pay the £200, expecting, as he said to settle Cook's account on the Monday, and repay himself. On the Saturday, Nov. 17th (the day after the date of the letter), "a person," said Pratt, "whose name I did not know, called on me with a cheque, and paid me 300*l*. on account of the prisoner; that" (apparently the cheque, not the 300*l*) "was a cheque of Mr. Fisher's." When Pratt heard of Cook's death he wrote to Palmer, saying, "The death of Mr. Cook will now compel you to look about as to the payment of the bill for £500 due the 2nd of December."(4)

Great use was made of these letters by the defence. It was argued that they proved that Cook was helping Palmer, and was eager to relieve him from the pressure put on him by Pratt; that in consequence of this he not only took up the £500 bill, but authorized Palmer to apply the £800 to similar purposes, and to get the amount settled by Herring, instead of Fisher, so that Fisher might not stop out of it the £200 which he had advanced to Pratt, it was asked how it could be [120] Palmer's interest, on this supposition, that Cook

---

(1) Supports the inference suggested by the previous fact that Palmer's doses caused Cook's illness (section 9).

(2) Conduct and statement explanatory thereof (section 8, ex. 2)

(3) All this is Palmer's conduct, and is explanatory of it (sections 7, 9)

(4) Motive for not poisoning Cook (section 8).

should die, especially as the first consequence of his death was Pratt's application for the money due on the £500 bill.

These arguments were, no doubt, plausible, and the fact that Cook's death compelled Pratt to look to Palmer for the payment of the £500 lends them weight; but it may be asked, on the other hand, why should Cook give away the whole of his winnings to Palmer? Why should Cook allow Palmer to appropriate to the diminution of his own habilities the £200 which Fisher had advanced to the credit of the bill on which both were liable? Why should he join with Palmer in a plan for defrauding Fisher of his security for this advance? No answer to any of these questions was suggested. As to the £300, Cook's letter to Fisher says, "£300 has been sent up this evening." There was evidence that Pratt never received it for he applied to Palmer for the money on Cook's death Moreover Pratt said that on the Saturday he did receive £300 on account of Palmer, which he placed to the account of the forged acceptance for £2,000 Where did Palmer get the money? The suggestion of the prosecution was that Cook gave it him to pay to Pratt on account of their joint bill, and that he paid it on his own account. This was probably the true view of the case. The observation that Pratt, on hearing of Cook's death, applied to Palmer to pay the £500 bill, is met by the reflection that that bill was genuine, and collaterally secured by the assignment of the race-horses, and that the other bill bore a forged acceptance, and must be satisfied at all hazards. [121] The result is that on the Monday evening Palmer had the most imperious interest in Cook's death, for he had robbed him of all he had in the world, except the equity of redemption in his two horses.

On Monday evening (Nov. 19th) Palmer returned to Rugeley, and went uest.

and with him for having given Palmer anything. No doubt the concealment was improper, but nothing appeared on cross-examination to suggest that the witness was wilfully perjured.

Cook had been much better throughout Monday, and on Monday evening Mr. Bamford, who was attending him, brought some pills for him, which he left at the hotel. They contained neither antimony nor strychnine. They were taken up in the box in which they came to Cook's room by the chambermaid, and were left there on the dressing-table about eight o'clock. Palmer came (according to Barnes the waitress), between eight and nine, and Mills said she saw him sitting by the fire between nine and ten (2)

[122] If this evidence were believed, he would have had an opportunity of substituting poisoned pills for those sent by Mr. Bamford just after he had, according to Newton, procured strychnine. The evidence, however, was contradicted by a witness called for the prisoner, Jeremiah Smith the attorney. He said that on the Monday evening, about ten minutes past ten, he saw Palmer coming in a car from the direction of Stafford; that they went up to Cook's room together, stayed two or three minutes and of old Mrs. Palmer, his mother. Cook said he had taken them, and Palmer was late, taken them if he had thought Palmer wou

(1) Preparation (section 8) (sections 7, 9).
(2) Opportunity. The rest is introductory evidence were believed it would of course have proved that Cook took the pills which Bamford sent as he sent them.(1) Smith, however, was cross-examined by the Attorney-General at great length. He admitted with the greatest reluctance that he had witnessed the assignment of a policy for £13,000 by Walter to William Palmer; that he wrote to an office to effect an insurance for £10,000 on the life of Bates, who was Palmer's groom, at £1 a week; that he tried, after Walter Palmer's death, to get his widow to give up her claim on the policy; that he was applied to to attest other proposals for insurances on Walter Palmer's life for similar amounts; and that he had got a cheque for £5 for attesting the assignment.(2)

[123] Lord Campbell said of this witness in summing up, "Can you believe a man who so disgraces himself in the witness-box? It is for you to say what faith you can place in a witness, who, by his own admission, engaged in such fraudulent proceedings"

It is curious that though the credit of this witness was so much shaken in cross-examination, and though he was contradicted both by Mills and Newton, he [illegible] as to the time when Palmer came down to [illegible] the inspector of police at the Euston sta[illegible] which Palmer could have left London after half-past two (when he met Herring) started at five, and reached Stafford [illegible] It is about ten miles from Stafford [illegible]ss by the road in much less than [illegible]bout nine," and Mills saw him "between nine and ten." Nothing, however is more difficult than to speak accurately to time; on the other hand, if Smith spoke the truth, Newton could not have seen him at all that night, and Mills, if at all, must have seen him for a moment only in Smith's company. Mills never mentioned Smith, and Smith would not venture to swear that she or any one else saw him at the Talbot Arms. It was a suspicious circumstance that Serjeant Shee did not open Smith's [illegible] erjury was afforded by [124] the [illegible] which the defence were able to [illegible] If Smith were disposed to tell [illegible] ould enable him to do so with an

Whatever view is taken as to the effect of this evidence it was clearly proved that about the middle of the night between Monday and Tuesday Cook had a violent attack of some sort. About twelve or a little before, his bell rang; he screamed violently. When Mills, the servant, came in, he was sitting up in bed, and asked that Palmer might be fetched at once. He was beating the bed clothes; he said he should suffocate if he lay down His head and neck and his whole body jumped and jerked. He had great difficulty in breathing, and his eyes protruded. His hand was stiff, and he asked to have it rubbed. Palmer came in, and gave him a draught and some pills. He snapped at the glass, and got both it and the spoon between his teeth. He had also great difficulty in swallowing the pills After this he got more easy, and Palmer stayed by him some time, sleeping in an easy chair.(4)

[illegible] in cross-examination to shake the evidence of Mills

(1) Evidence against the existence of the fact last mentioned (section 5).

(2) This cross-examination tended to test the veracity of the witness and to test his credit (section 146)

(3) Facts inconsistent with a relevant fact (section 11), and fixing the time of the occurrence of a relevant fact (section 9)

(4) Effect of fact in issue, viz., the administration of poison (section 7).

strychnine, and also by showing that she had been drilled as to the evidence which she was to give by [125] persons connected with the prosecution. She denied most of the suggestions conveyed by the questions asked her, and explained others.(1) As to the differences between her evidence before the coroner and at the trial, a witness (Mr. Gardner an attorney) was called to show that the depositions were not properly taken at the inquest.(2)

wards thrown up.(3)

A little before or after this, the exact hour is not important, Palmer went to the shop of Hawkins, a druggist at Rugeley, and was there served by his apprentice Roberts with two drachms of prussic acid, six grains of strychnine, and two drachms of Batley's Sedative (4) Whilst he was making the purchase, Newton from whom he had obtained the other strychnine the night before, came in; Palmer took him to the door, saying he wished to speak to him; [126] and when he was there asked him a question about the farm of a Mr. Edwin Salt—a matter with which he had nothing at all to do. Whilst they were there a third person came up and spoke to Newton, on which Palmer went back into Hawkins' shop and took away the things, Newton not seeing what he took. wanted to prevent Newton from was made to shake, or in any

At about four P.M. Mr. Jones, the friend to whom Palmer had written, arrived from Lutterworth.(6) He examined Cook in Palmer's presence, and remarked that he had not the tongue of a bilious patient, to which Palmer replied, "You should have seen it before." Cook appeared to be better during the Tuesday, and was in good spirits (7) At about seven P.M Mr. Bamford came in, and Cook told him in Palmer's presence that he objected to the pills, as they had made him ill the night before The three medical men then had a private consultation. Palmer proposed that Bamford should make up the pills as on the night before, and that Jones should not tell Cook what they were made of, as he objected to the morphine which they contained. Bamford agreed, and Palmer went up to his house with him and got the pills, and was present whilst they were made up, put into a pill-box, [127] and directed. He took them away with him between seven and eight.(8) Cook was well and comfortable all the evening, he had no bilious symptoms, no vomiting, and no diarrhœa.(7)

Towards eleven Palmer came with a box of pills directed in Bamford's hand. He called Jones' attention to the goodness of the handwriting for a man of eighty.(9) It was suggested by the prosecution that the reason for this was to impress Jones with the fact that the pills had been made up by Bamford. With reference to Smith's evidence it is remarkable that Bamford on the second night sent the pills, not "between nine and ten," but at eleven. Palmer

(1) Former statements inconsistent with evidence (section 155).

(2) The depositions before the coroner would be a proper mode of proof as being a record of a relevant fact made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty (section 35), and any document purporting to be such a deposition would on production be presumed to be genuine and the evidence would be presumed to be duly taken (sections 79 and 80), but this might be rebutted (section 8), definition of 'shall presume.'

(3) Part of the transaction of poisoning (section 8)

(4) Preparation (section 8)

(5) Conduct (section 8)

(6) Introductory (section 9)

(7) State of things under which Cook was poisoned (section 7).

(8) Preparation (section 8)

(9) Conduct and statement (section 8, ex 2)

pressed Cook to take the pills, which at first he refused to do, as they had made him so ill the night before. At last he did so, and immediately afterwards vomited. Jones and Palmer both examined to see whether the pills had been thrown up, and they found that they had not. This was about eleven. Jones then had his supper, and went to bed in Cook's room about twelve. When he had been in bed a short time, perhaps ten minutes, Cook started up and called out, "Doctor, get up; I am going to be ill; ring the bell for Mr. Palmer." He also said, "Rub my neck." The back of his neck was stiff and hard. Mills ran across the road to Palmer's and rang the bell. Palmer immediately came to the bed-room window and said he would come at once. Two minutes afterwards he was in Cook's room, and [128] said he had never dressed so quick in his life. He was dressed as usual. The suggestion upon this was that he had been sitting up expecting to be called.(1)

By the time of Palmer's arrival Cook was very ill. Jones, Elizabeth Mills, and Palmer were in the room, and Barnes stood at the door. The muscles of his neck were stiff; he screamed loudly. Palmer gave him what he said were two ammonia pills. Immediately afterwards—too soon for the pills to have any effect—he was dreadfully convulsed. He said, when he began to be convulsed, "Raise me up, or I shall be suffocated." Palmer and Jones tried to do so, but could not, as the limbs were rigid. He then asked to be turned over, which was done. His heart began to beat weakly. Jones asked Palmer to get some ammonia to try to stimulate it. He fetched a bottle, and was absent about a minute for that purpose When he came back, Cook was almost dead, and he died in a few minutes, quite quietly. The whole attack lasted about ten minutes. The body was twisted back into the shape of a bow, and would have rested on the head and heels, had it been laid on its back. When the body was laid out, it was very stiff The arms could not be kept down by the sides till they were tied behind the back with tape The feet also had to be tied, and the fingers of one hand were very stiff, the hand being clenched. This was about one A.M., half or three quarters of an hour after the death.(2)

[129] As soon as Cook was dead, Jones went out to speak to the housekeeper, leaving Palmer alone with the body. When Jones left the room he sent the servant Mills in, and she saw Palmer searching the pockets of Cook's coat and searching also under the pillow and bolster Jones shortly afterwards returned, and Palmer told him that as Cook's nearest friend, he (Jones) ought to take possession of his property. He accordingly took possession of his watch and purse, containing five sovereigns and five shillings. He found no other money. Palmer said, "Mr. Cook's death is a bad thing for me, as I am responsible for £3,000 or £4,000, and I hope Mr Cook's friends will not let me lose it. If they do not assist me, all my horses will be seized." The betting-book was mentioned Palmer said, "It will be no use to any one," and added that it would probably be found (3)

On Wednesday, the 21st instant, Mr. Wetherby, the London racing agent, who kept a sort of bank for sporting men, received from Palmer a letter enclosing a cheque for £350 against the amount of the Shrewsbury stakes (£381) which Wetherby was to receive for him This cheque had been drawn on the Tuesday, about seven o'clock in the evening, under peculiar circumstances. Palmer s[illegible] telling him to bring a receipt s[illegible] copy which he proc[illegible] for money which
Cook owed him, and that he was going to take it [130] over for Cook

(1) Fact in issue (section 15). Conduct (section 8)

(2) Cook's death, in all its detail, was a fact in issue (section 5).

(3) Conduct (section 8).

to sign. Cheshire wrote out the body of the cheque, and Palmer took it away. When Mr. Wetherby received the cheque, the stakes had not been paid to Cook's credit. He accordingly returned the cheque to Palmer, to whom the prosecution gave notice to produce it at the trial.(1) It was called for, but strong presumption arising from Palmer's appropriation of the bets to his own purposes. In fact it would have greatly weakened and almost upset the case as to the motive. On the other hand, the non-production of the cheque amounted to an admission that it was a forgery; and if that were so, Palmer was forging his friend's name for the purpose of stealing his stakes at the time when to all outward appearance there was every prospect of his speedy recovery which must result in the detection of the fraud. If he knew that Cook would die that night, this was natural. On any other supposition it was inconceivable rashness.(3)

Either on Thursday, 22nd, or Friday, 23rd, Palmer sent for Cheshire again, and produced a paper which he [131] said Cook had given to him some days before. The paper purported to be an acknowledgment that certain bills—the particulars of which were stated—were all for Cook's benefit and not for Palmer's. The amount was considerable as at least one item was for £1,000, and another for £500. This document purported to be signed by Cook, and Palmer wished Cheshire to attest Cook's execution of it, which he refused to do. This document was called for at the trial, and not produced. The same observations apply to it as to the cheque.(4)

Evidence was further given to show that Palmer, who, shortly before, had but £9, 6s. at the bank, and had borrowed £25 to go to Shrewsbury paid away large sums of money soon after Cook's death. He paid Pratt £100 on the 24th; he paid a farmer named Spilsbury £46, 2s. with a bank of England note for £50 on the 22nd, and Bown, a draper, a sum of £60 or thereabouts in two £50 actions is, that to appropriate s in possession of between £100 and £600, of which he paid Pratt £400, though very shortly before he was being pressed for money.

On Wednesday, November 21st, Mr Jones went up to London, and informed Mr. Stephens, Cook's step-father, of his step-son's death. Mr. Stephens went to Lutterworth, found a will by which Cook appointed him his executor, [132] and then went on to Rugeley, where he arrived about the middle of the day on Thursday.(6) He asked Palmer for information about Cook's affairs, and he replied, "There are £4,000 worth of bills out of his, and I am sorry to say my name is to them, but I have got a paper drawn up by a lawyer and signed by Mr. Cook to show that I never had any benefit from them." Mr. Stephens said that at all events he must be buried. Palmer offered to do so himself and said that the body ought to be fastened up as soon as possible. The conversation then ended for the time. Palmer went

---

(1) Conduct (section 8)

(2) See section 66 as to notice to produce.

(3) As to these inferences see section 114, illust. (g).

(4) Conduct (section 8). See section 66 as to notice to produce. As to these inferences see section 114, illust (g)

(5) Conduct (section 8)

(6) Introductory and explanatory (section 9).

out and without authority from Mr. Stephens ordered a shell and a strong oak coffin.(1)

In the afternoon Mr. Stephens, Palmer, Jones, and a Mr. Gradford, Cook's brother-in-law, dined together, and after dinner Mr. Stephens desired Mr. Jones to fetch Cook's betting-book. Jones went to look for it, but was unable to find it. The betting-book had last been seen by the chambermaid, Mills, who gave it to Cook in bed on the Monday night, when he took a stamp from a pocket at the end of it. On hearing that the book could not be found, Palmer said it was of no manner of use. Mr. Stephens said he understood Cook had won a great deal of money at Shrewsbury, to which Palmer replied, "It's no use, I assure you; when a man dies, his bets are done with." He did not mention the fact that Cook's bets had been paid to Herring on the Monday. Mr. Stephens then said that the book must be found, and [133] Palmer answered that no doubt it would be.(2) Before leaving the inn Mr. Stephens went to look at the body, before the coffin [illegible] hands were clenched. He returned at once [illegible] He returned to Rugeley on Saturday, the [illegible] intention to have a post-mortem examination, which took place on Monday, 26th.(3)

The post-mortem examination was conducted in the presence of Palmer by Dr. Harland, Mr. Devonshire, a medical student, assisting Mr Monkton, and Mr. Newton. The heart was contracted and empty There were numerous small yellowish white spots, about the size of mustard-seed, at the larger end of the stomach. The upper part of the spinal cord was in its natural state; the lower part was not examined till the 25th January, when certain granules were found. There were many follicles on the tongue, apparently of long standing. The lungs appeared healthy to Dr. Harland, but Mr Devonshire thought that there was some congestion.(4) Some points in Palmer's behaviour both before and after the post-mortem examination, attracted notice Newton said that on the Sunday night he sent for him, and asked what dose of strychnine would kill a dog. Newton said a grain. He asked whether it would be found in the [134] stomach, and what would be the appearance of the stomach after death. Newton said there would be no inflammation, and he did not think it would be found. Newton thought he replied, "It's all right," as if speaking to himself, and added that he snapped his fingers. Whilst Devonshire was opening the stomach Palmer pushed against him, and part of the contents of the stomach was spilt Nothing particular being found in the stomach, Palmer observed to Bamford, "They will not hang us yet" As they were all crowding together to see what passed, the push might have been an accident, and as Mr. Stephens' suspicions were well known, the remark was natural, though coarse. After the examination was completed, the intestines, etc., were put into a jar, over the top of which were tied two bladders. Palmer removed the jar from the table to a place near the door, and when it was missed said he thought it would be more convenient. When replaced it was found that a slit had been cut through both the bladders (5)

After the examination Mr Stephens and an attorney's clerk took the jars containing the viscera, etc., in a fly to Stafford (6) Palmer asked the postboy if he was going to drive them to Stafford? The postboy said, "I believe I am." Palmer said, "Is it Mr. Stephens you are going to take?" He said,

---

(1) Admission and conduct (sections 17, 18, section 8).

(2) These facts and statements together make it highly probable that Palmer stole the betting-book which would be relevant as conduct (sections 8, 11).

(3) Introductory to what follows (section 9).

(4) Facts supporting opinions of experts (section 46).

(5) Conduct (section 8).

(6) Introductory (section 9).

"I believe it is." Palmer said, "I suppose you are going to take the jars?" He said, "I am," Palmer asked if he would upset them? He said, "I shall [135] not," Palmer said if he would, there was a £10 note for him He also said something about its being "a humbugging concern."(1) Some confusion was introduced into this evidence by the cross-examination, which tended to show that Palmer's object was to upst Mr. Stephens and not the jars, but at last the postboy (J. Myatt) repeated it as given above Indeed, it makes little difference whether Palmer wished to upset Stephens or the jars, as they were all in one fly, and must be upset together if at all.

Shortly after the post-mortem examination an inquest was held before Mr. Ward, the coroner. It began on the 29th November and ended on the 5th December. On Sunday, 3rd December, Palmer asked Cheshire, the postmaster, "if he had anything fresh." Cheshire replied that he could not open a letter. Afterwards, however, he did open a letter from Dr. Alfred Taylor, who had analyzed the content of the stomach, etc., to Mr. Gardner, the attorney for the prosecution, and informed Palmer that Dr. Taylor said in that letter that no traces of strychnine were found. Palmer said he knew they would not, and he was quite innocent. Soon afterwards Palmer wrote to Mr Ward, suggesting various questions to be put to witnesses at the inquest, and saying that he knew Dr. Taylor had told Mr. Gardiner there were no traces of strychnia, prussic acid, or opium. A few days before this, on the 1st December, Palmer had sent Mr. Ward, as a present, a codfish, a barrel of oysters, a brace of [136] pheasants, and a turkey (2) These circumstances certainly prove improper and even criminal conduct. Cheshire was imprisoned for his offence, and Lord Campbell spoke in severe terms of the conduct of the coroner, but a bad and unscrupulous man, as Palmer evidently was, might act in the manner described, even though he was innocent of the particular offence charged.

A medical book found in Palmer's possession had in it some MS. notes on the subject of strychnine, one of which was, "It kills by causing tetanic contraction of the respiratory muscles." It was not suggested that this memorandum was made for any particular purpose. It was used merely to show that Palmer was acquainted with the properties and effects of strychnine.(3)

This completes the evidence as to Palmer's behaviour before, at, and after the death of Cook It proves beyond all question that, having the strongest possible motive to obtain at once a considerable sum of money, he robbed his friend of the whole of the bets paid to Herring on the Monday by a series of ongwas his person, and had received at Shrewsbury, it proves that he forged his name the night before he died, and that he tried to procure a fraudulent attestation to [137] another forged document relating to his affairs the day after he died. It also proves that he had every opportunity of administering poison to Cook, that he told repeated lies about his state of health, and that he purchased deadly poison, for which he had no lawful use, on two separate occasions shortly before two paroxysms of a similar character to each other, the second of which deprived him of his life.

The rest of the evidence was directed to prove that the symptoms of which Cook died were those of poisoning by strychnine, and that antimony, which was never prescribed for him, was found in his body. Evidence was also given in the course of the trial as to the state of Cook's health.

---

(1) Conduct (section 8)

(2) Conduct and facts introductory thereto (sections 8, 9).

(3) Fact showing knowledge (section 14).

At the time of his death Cook was about twenty-eight years of age. Both his father and mother died young, and his sister and half-brother were not robust. He inherited from his father about £12,000 and was articled to a solicitor. Instead of following up that profession he betook himself to sporting pursuits, and appears to have led a rather dissipated life. He suffered from syphilis, and was in the habit of occasionally consulting Dr. Savage on the state of his health Dr. Savage saw him in November 1854, in May, in June, towards the end of October, and again early in November 1855, about a fortnight before his death, so that he had ample means of giving satisfactory evidence on the subject, especially as he examined him carefully whenever he came Dr. Savage said that he had two shallow ulcers on the tongue corresponding to bad teeth; that he had also a sore throat, one of his tonsils [138] being very large, red, and tender, and the other very small. Cook himself was afraid that these symptoms were syphilitic, but Dr. Savage thought decidedly that they were not He also noticed "an indication of pulmonary affection under the left lung" Wishing to get him away from his turf associates Dr. Savage recommended him to go abroad for the winter His general health Dr. Savage considered good for a man who was not robust. Mr Stephens said that when he last saw him alive he was looking better than he had looked for some time, and on his remarking, "You do not look anything of an invalid now," Cook struck himself on the breast, and said he was quite well His friend, Mr. Jones, also said that his health was generally good, though he was not very robust, and that he both hunted and played at cricket.(1)

On the other hand, witnesses were called for the prisoner who gave a different account of his health A Mr. Sargent said he was with him at Liverpool a week before the Shrewsbury races, that he called his attention to the state of his mouth and throat, and the back part of his tongue was in a complete state of ulcer. "I said," added the witness, "I was surprised he could eat and drink in the state his mouth was in He said he had been in that state for weeks and months, and now he did not take notice of it." This was certainly not consistent with Dr. Savage's evidence (2)

Such being the state of health of Cook at the time of his [139] death, the next question was as to its cause. The prosecution contended that the symptoms which attended it proved that he was poisoned by strychnia Several eminent physicians and surgeons—Mr. Curling, Dr Todd, Sir Benjamin Brodie, Mr. Daniel, and Mr Solly—gave an account of the general character and causes of the disease of tetanus Mr. Curling said that tetanus consists of spasmodic affection of the voluntary muscles of the body which at last ends in death, produced either by suffocation caused by the closing of the windpipe or by the wearing effect of the severe and painful struggles which the muscular spasms produce. Of this disease there are three forms,—idiopathic tetanus, which is produced without any assignable external cause, traumatic tetanus, which results from wounds; and the tetanus which is produced by the administration of strychnia, bruschia, and nux vomica, all of which are different forms of the same poison. Idiopathic tetanus is a very rare disease in England. Sir Benjamin Brodie had seen only one doubtful case of it Mr. Daniel, who for twenty-eight years was surgeon to the Bristol Hospital, saw only two Mr. Nunneley, professor of surgery at Leeds, had seen four In India, however, it is comparatively common Mr Jackson, in twenty-five years' practice there, saw about forty cases. It was agreed on all hands, that though the exciting cause of the two diseases is different, their symptoms are the same. They were described in similar terms by several of the witnesses. Dr. Todd said the disease begins with stiffness about the jaw,

(1) Conduct and facts introductory thereto (sections 8, 9).

(2) State of things under which crime was committed (section 7)

"I believe it is." Palmer said, "I suppose you are going to take the jars?" He said, "I am," Palmer asked if he would upset them? He said, "I shall [135] not," Palmer said if he would, there was a £10 note for him. He also said something about its being "a humbugging concern."(1) Some confusion was introduced into this evidence by the cross-examination, which tended to show that Palmer's object was to upst Mr. Stephens and not the jars, but at last the postboy (J. Myatt) repeated it as given above Indeed, it makes little difference whether Palmer wished to upset Stephens or the jars, as they were all in one fly, and must be upset together if at all.

Shortly after the post-mortem examination an inquest was held before Mr. Ward, the coroner. It began on the 29th November and ended on the 5th December. On Sunday, 3rd December, Palmer asked Cheshire, the postmaster, "if he had anything fresh." Cheshire replied that he could not open a letter. Afterwards, however, he did open a letter from Dr. Alfred Taylor, who had analyzed the content of the stomach, etc., to Mr. Gardiner, the attorney for the prosecution, and informed Palmer that Dr. Taylor said in that letter that no traces of strychnine were found. Palmer said he knew they would not, and he was quite innocent. Soon afterwards Palmer wrote to Mr. Ward, suggesting various questions to be put to witnesses at the inquest, and saying that he knew Dr. Taylor had told Mr. Gardiner there were no traces of strychnia, prussic acid, or opium. A few days before this, on the 1st December, Palmer had sent Mr. Ward, as a present, a codfish, a barrel of oysters, a brace of [136] pheasants, and a turkey.(2) These circumstances certainly prove improper and even criminal conduct. Cheshire was imprisoned for his offence, and Lord Campbell spoke in severe terms of the conduct of the coroner; but a bad and unscrupulous man, as Palmer evidently was, might act in the manner described, even though he was innocent of the particular offence charged.

A medical book found in Palmer's possession had in it some MS notes on the subject of strychnine, one of which was, "It kills by causing tetanic contraction of the respiratory muscles." It was not suggested that this memorandum was made for any particular purpose It was used merely to show that Palmer was acquainted with the properties and effects of strychnine.(3)

This completes the evidence as to Palmer's behaviour before, at, and after the death of Cook It proves beyond all question that, having the strongest possible motive to obtain at once a considerable sum of money, he robbed his friend of the whole of the bets paid to Herring on the Monday by a series of ingenious devices, and that he tried to rob him of the stakes . . . it raises the strongest presumption that he robbed Cc . . . s sent up to Pratt on the 16th, and . . . s person, and had received at Shre . . . e
. . . . . a fraudulent attestation affairs the day after he
. . . . . of administering poison to
Cook, that he told repeated lies about his state of health, and that he purchased deadly poison, for which he had no lawful use, on two separate occasions shortly before two paroxysms of a similar character to each other, the second of which deprived him of his life.

The rest of the evidence was directed to prove that the symptoms of which Cook died were those of poisoning by strychnine, and that antimony, which was never prescribed for him, was found in his body. Evidence was also given in the course of the trial as to the state of Cook's health.

---

(1) Conduct (section 8).
(2) Conduct and facts introductory thereto (sections 8, 9).
(3) Fact showing knowledge (section 14).

At the time of his death Cook was about twenty-eight years of age. Both his father and mother died young, and his sister and half-brother were not robust. He inherited from his father about £12,000 and was articled to a solicitor. Instead of following up that profession he betook himself to sporting pursuits, and appears to have led a rather dissipated life. He suffered from syphilis, and was in the habit of occasionally consulting Dr. Savage on the state of his health Dr. Savage saw him in November 1854, in May, in June, towards the end of October, and again early in November 1855, about a fortnight before his death, so that he had ample means of giving satisfactory evidence on the subject, especially as he examined him carefully whenever he came Dr. Savage said that he had two shallow ulcers on the tongue corresponding to bad teeth, that he had also a sore throat, one of his tonsils [138] being very large, red, and tender, and the other very small Cook himself was afraid that these symptoms were syphilitic, but Dr. Savage thought decidedly that they were not. He also noticed "an indication of pulmonary affection under the left lung" Wishing to get him away from his turf associates Dr Savage recommended him to go abroad for the winter His general health Dr Savage considered good for a man who was not robust. Mr Stephens said that when he last saw him [illegible] looked for some time, and on his an invalid now," Cook struck himself His friend, Mr Jones, also said that his health was generally good, though he was not very robust, and that he both hunted and played at cricket (1)

On the other hand, witnesses were called for the prisoner who gave a different account of his health A Mr. Sargent said he was with him at Liverpool a week before the Shrewsbury races, that he called his attention to the state of his mouth and throat, and the back part of his tongue was in a complete state of ulcer. "I said," added the witness, "I was surprised he could eat and drink in the state his mouth was in He said he had been in that state for weeks and months, and now he did not take notice of it" This was certainly not consistent with Dr. Savage's evidence (2)

Such being the state of health of Cook at the time of his [139] death, the next question was as to its cause. The prosecution contended that the symptoms which attended it proved that he was poisoned by strychnia Several eminent physicians and surgeons—Mr Curling, Dr Todd, Sir Benjamin Brodie, Mr. Daniel, and Mr Solly—gave an account of the general character and causes of the disease of tetanus. Mr. Curling said that tetanus consists of spasmodic affection of the voluntary muscles of the body which at last ends in death, produced either by suffocation caused by the closing of the windpipe or by the wearing effect of the severe and painful struggles which the muscular spasms produce. Of this disease there are three forms,—idiopathic tetanus, which is produced without any assignable external cause, traumatic tetanus, which results from wounds, and the tetanus which is produced by the administration of strychnia, bruschia, and nux vomica, all of which are different forms of the same poison. Idiopathic tetanus is a very rare disease in England. Sir Benjamin Brodie had seen only one doubtful case of it Mr. Daniel, who for twenty-eight years was surgeon to the Bristol Hospital, saw only two. Mr. Nunneley, professor of surgery at Leeds, had seen four. In India, however, it is comparatively common Mr Jackson, in twenty-five years' practice there, saw about forty cases It was agreed on all hands, that though the exciting cause of the two diseases is different, their symptoms are the same They were described in similar terms by several of the witnesses. Dr. Todd said the disease begins with stiffness about the jaw,

(1) Conduct and facts introductory thereto (sections 8, 9).

(2) State of things under which crime was committed (section 7)

the symptoms [140] then extend themselves to the other muscles of the trunk and body. They gradually develop themselves. When once the disease has begun there are remissions of severity, but not complete intermission of the symptoms. In acute cases the disease terminates in three or four days. In chronic cases it will go on for as much as three weeks. There was some question as to what was the shortest case upon record. In a case mentioned by one of the prisoner's witnesses, Mr. Ross, the patient was said to have been attacked in the morning, either at eleven or some hours earlier, it did not clearly appear which, and to have died at half-past seven in the evening. This was the shortest case specified on either side, though its duration was not accurately determined. As a rule, however, tetanus, whether traumatic or idiopathic, was said to be a matter not of minutes, or even of hours, but of days.(1)

Such being the nature of tetanus, traumatic and idiopathic four questions arose Did Cook die of tetanus? Did he die of traumatic tetanus? Did he die of idiopathic tetanus? Did he die of the tetanus produced by strychnia? The case for prosecution upon these questions was, first, that he did die of tetanus Mr. Curling said no doubt there was spasmodic action of the muscles (which was his definition of tetanus) in Cook's case, and even Mr. Nunneley, the principal witness for the prisoner who contended that the death of Cook was [141] caused neither by tetanus in its ordinary forms nor by the tetanus of strychnia, admitted that the paroxysm described by Mr Jones was "very like" the paroxysm of tetanus The close general resemblance of the symptoms to those of tetanus was indeed assumed by all the witnesses on both sides, as was proved by the various distinctions which were stated on the side of the Crown between Cook's symptoms and those of traumatic and idiopathic tetanus, and on the side of the prisoner between Cook's symptoms and the symptoms of the tetanus of strychnia It might, therefore be considered to be established that he died of tetanus in some form or other

The next point asserted by the prosecution was, that he did not die of traumatic or idiopathic tetanus, because there was no wound on his body, and also because the course of the symptoms was different They further asserted that the symptoms were those of poison by strychnia

Upon these points the evidence was as follows —Mr. Curling was asked, Q. "Were the symptoms consistent with any form of traumatic tetanus which has ever come under your knowledge or observation?" He answered, "No." Q. "What distinguished them from the cases of traumatic tetanus which you have described?" A. "There was the sudden onset of the fatal symptoms. In all cases that have fallen under my notice the disease has been preceded by the milder symptoms of tetanus" Q "Gradually progressing to their complete development, and completion, and death?" A. "Yes." He also [142] mentioned "the sudden onset and rapid subsidence of the spasms" as inconsistent with the theory of either traumatic or idiopathic tetanus; and he said he had never known a case of tetanus which ran its course in less than eight or ten hours. In the one case which occupied so short a time, the true period could not be ascertained. In general, the time required was from one to several days. Sir Benjamin Brodie was asked, "In your opinion, are the symptoms those of traumatic tetanus or not?" He replied, "As far as the spasmodic contraction of the muscles goes, the symptoms resemble those of traumatic tetanus; as to the course which the symptoms took, that was entirely different. He added, "The symptoms of traumatic tetanus always begin, as far as I have seen, very gradually, the stiffness of the lower jaw being, I believe, the symptom first complained of—at least, so it has been in my experience; then the contraction of the muscles of the back is always a later symptom, generally much later;

(1) Opinions of experts, and facts on which they were founded (sections 45, 46) The rest of the evidence falls under this head.

the muscles of the extremities are affected in a much less degree than those of the neck and trunk, except in some cases, where the injury has been in a limb, and an early symptom has been a contraction of the muscles of that limb. I do not myself recollect a case in which in ordinary tetanus there was that contraction of the muscles of the hand which I understand was stated to have existed in this instance. The ordinary tetanus rarely runs its course in less than two or three days, and often is protracted to a much longer period; I know one case only in which the disease was [143] said to have terminated in twelve hours." He said, in conclusion, "I never saw a case in which the symptoms described arose from any disease; when I say that, of course I refer not to the particular symptoms, but to the general course which the symptoms took" Mr. Daniel being asked whether the symptoms of Cook could be referred to idiopathic or traumatic tetanus, said, "In my judgment they could not." He also said that he should repeat Sir Benjamin Brodie's words if he were to enumerate the distinctions. Mr. Solly said that the symptoms were not referable to any disease he ever witnessed, and Dr. Todd said, "I think the symptoms were those of strychnia" The same opinion was expressed with equal confidence by Dr. Alfred Taylor, Dr. Rees, and Mr. Christison

In order to support this general evidence witnesses were called who gave account of three fatal cases of poisoning by strychnia, and of one case in which the patient recovered. The first of the fatal cases was that of Agnes French, or Senet, who was accidentally poisoned at Glasgow Infirmary, in 1845, by some pills which she took, and which were intended for a paralytic patient. According to the nurse, the girl was taken ill three-quarters of an hour, according to one of the physicians (who, however, was not present) twenty minutes after she swallowed the pills. She fell suddenly back on the floor, when her clothes were cut off she was stiff, "just like a poker," her arms were stretched out, her hands clenched, she vomited slightly, she had no lockjaw, [144] there was a retraction of the mouth and face, the head was bent back, the spine curved. She went into severe paroxysms every few seconds, and died about an hour after the symptoms began She was perfectly conscious The heart was found empty on examination

The second case described was that of Mrs Serjeantson Smyth, who was accidentally poisoned at Romsey in 1848, by strychnine put into a dose of ordinary medicine instead of saline. She took the dose about five or ten minutes after seven, in five or ten minutes more the servant was alarmed by a violent ringing of the bell She found her mistress leaning on a chair, went out to send for a doctor, and on her return found her on the floor She screamed loudly. She asked to have her legs pulled straight and to have water thrown over her. A few minutes before she died she said, "Turn me over," she was turned over, and died very quietly almost immediately The fit lasted about an hour. The hands were clenched, the feet contracted, and on a post-mortem examination the heart was found empty

The third case was that of Mrs. Dove, who was poisoned at Leeds by her husband (for [illegible] 1856. She had five attacks on [illegible] and Saturday of the week beginning [illegible] legs and twitchings in the hands She asked her husband to rub her arms and legs before the spasms came on, but when they were strong she could not bear her legs to be touched. The fatal attack in her case lasted two [145] hours and-a-half. The hands were semi-bent, feet strongly arched. The lungs were congested, the spinal cord was also much congested. The head being opened first, a good deal of blood flowed out, part of which might flow from the heart.

The case in which the patient recovered was that of a paralytic patient of Mr. Moore's He took an overdose of strychnia, and in about three-quarters of an hour Mr. Moore found him stiffened in every limb. His head was drawn back; he was screaming and "frequently requesting that we should turn him, move him, rub him." His spine was drawn back. He snapped at a spoon with which an attempt was made to administer medicine, and was perfectly conscious during the whole time.

Dr. Taylor and Dr. Owen Rees examined Cook's body They found no strychnia, but they found antimony in the liver, the left kidney, the spleen and also in the blood.

The case for the prosecution upon this evidence was, that the symptoms were those of tetanus, and of tetanus produced by strychnia The case for the prisoner was, first, that several of the symptoms observed were inconsistent with strychnia, and secondly, that all of them might be explained on other hypotheses. Their evidence was given in part by their own witnesses, and in part by the witnesses for the Crown in cross-examination The replies suggested by the Crown were founded partly on the evidence of their own witnesses given by way of anticipation, and partly by the evidence obtained from the witnesses for the prisoner on cross-examination [146] The first and most conspicuous argument on behalf of the prisoner was, that the fact that no strychnia was discovered by Dr Taylor and Dr. Rees was inconsistent with the theory that any had been administered. The material part of Dr. Taylor's evidence upon this point was that he had examined the stomach and intestines of Cook for a variety of poisons, strychnia among others, without success The contents of the stomach were gone, though the contents of the intestines remained, and the stomach itself had been cut open from end to end, and turned inside out, and the mucous surface on which poison, if present, would have been found was rubbing against the surface of the intestines This Dr. Taylor considered a most unfavourable condition for the discovery of poison and Mr. Christison agreed with him Several of the prisoner's witnesses on the contrary—Mr. Nunneley, Dr Letheby and Mr Rogers,—thought that it would only increase the difficulty of the operation, and not destroy its chance of success.

Apart from this, Dr. Taylor expressed his opinion that from the way in which strychnia acts, it might be impossible to discover it even if the circumstances were favourable. The mode of testing its presence in the stomach is to treat the stomach in various ways, until at last a residue is obtained which, upon the application of certain chemical ingredients changes its colour if strychnia is present. All the witnesses agreed that strychnia acts by absorption—that is, it is taken up from the stomach by the absorbents, thence it passes into the blood, thence into the solid [147] part of the body, and at some stage of its progress causes death by its action on the nerves and muscles Its noxious effects do not begin till it has left the stomach From this Dr Taylor argued that if a minimum dose were administered, none would be left in the stomach at the time of death, and therefore none could be discovered there He also said that if the strychnia got into the blood before examination, it would be diffused over the whole mass, and so no more than an extremely minute portion would be present in any given quantity. If the dose were half a gram, and there were twenty-five pounds of blood in the body, each pound of blood would contain only one-fiftieth of a grain. He was also of opinion that the "strychnia undergoes some chemical change by reason of which its presence in small quantities in the tissues cannot be detected." In short, the result of his evidence was, that if a minimum dose were administered, it was uncertain whether strychnia would be present in the stomach after death, and that if it was not in the stomach, there was no certainty that it could be found at all. He added that he considered the colour tests fallacious, because the colours might be produced by other substances.

Dr. Taylor further detailed some experiments which he had tried upon animals jointly with Dr. Rees, for the purpose of ascertaining whether strychnia could always be detected. He poisoned four rabbits with strychnia, and applied the tests for strychnia to their bodies. In one case, where two grains had been administered at intervals, he obtained proof of the presence of strychnia both by a bitter [148] taste and by the colour. In a case where one grain was administered he obtained the taste but not the colour. In the other two cases, where he administered one grain and half a grain respectively, he obtained no indication at all of the presence of strychnia. These experiments proved to demonstration that the fact that he did not discover strychnia did not prove that no strychnia was present in Cook's body.

Mr. Nunneley, Mr. Herapath, Mr. Rogers, Dr. Letheby and Mr. Wrightson contradicted Dr. Taylor and Dr. Rees upon this part of their evidence. They denied the theory that strychnine undergoes any change in the blood and they professed their own ability to discover its presence even in most minute quantities in any body into which it had been introduced, and their belief that the colour tests were satisfactory. Mr. Herapath said that he had found strychnine in the blood and in a small part of the liver of a dog poisoned by it; and he also said that he could detect the fifty-thousandth part of a grain if it were unmixed with organic matter. Mr Wrightson (who was highly complimented by Lord Campbell for the way in which he gave his evidence) also said that he should expect to find strychnia if it were present, and that he had found it in the tissues of an animal poisoned by it Here, no doubt, there was a considerable conflict of evidence upon a point on which it was very difficult for unscientific persons to pretend to have any opinion. The evidence given for the prisoner, however, tended to prove not so much that there was no strychnia in Cook's body, [149] as that Dr. Taylor ought to have found it if there was. In other words, it has less to do with the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, than with the question whether Mr Nunneley and Mr. Herapath were or were not better analytical chemists than Dr Taylor. The evidence could not even be considered to shake Dr. Taylor's credit, for no part of the case rested on his evidence except the discovery of the antimony, as to which he was corroborated by Mr. Brande, and was not contradicted by the prisoner's witnesses. His opinion as to the nature of Cook's symptoms was shared by many other medical witnesses of the highest eminence, whose credit was altogether unimpeached. The prisoner's counsel were placed in a curious difficulty by this state of the question. They had to attack, and did attack, Dr. Taylor's credit vigorously for the purpose of rebutting his conclusion that Cook might have been poisoned by strychnine, yet they had also to [illegible] skilful analytical chemist for if they destroyed it, the [illegible] This dilemma was fatal. [illegible] To deny it was to destroy [illegible] y possible course was to [illegible] was useless for the reason just mentioned.

Another argument used on behalf of the prisoner was that some of the symptoms of Cook's death were inconsistent with poisoning by strychnine. Mr Nunneley and Dr. Letheby thought that the facts that Cook sat up in [150] bed when the attack came on, that he moved his hands, and swallowed, and asked to be rubbed and moved, showed more power of voluntary motion than was consistent with poisoning by strychnia But Mrs. Serjeantson Smyth got out of bed and rang the bell, and both she, Mrs. Dove, and Mrs. Moore's patient begged to be rubbed and moved before the spasms came on. Cook's movements were before the paroxysm set in, and the first paroxysms ended his life.

Mr. Nunneley referred to the fact that the heart was empty, and said that, in his experiments, he always found that the right side of the heart of the poisoned animals was full

Both in Mrs. Smyth's case, however, and in that of the girl Senet, the heart was found empty; and in Mrs. Smyth's case the chest and abdomen were opened first, so that the heart was not emptied by the opening of the head. Mr. Christison said that if a man died of spasms of the heart, the heart would be emptied by them, and would be found empty after death, so that the presence or absence of the blood proved nothing.

Mr. Nunneley and Dr. Letheby also referred to the length of time before the symptoms appeared, as inconsistent with poisoning by strychnine. The time between the administration of the pills and the paroxysm was not accurately measured. It might have been an hour, or a little less, or more; but the poison, if present at all, was administered in pills, which would not begin to operate till they were broken up, and the rapidity with which they [151] would be broken up, would depend upon the materials of which they were made. Mr. Christison said that if the pills were made up with resinous materials, such as are within the knowledge of every medical man, their operation would be delayed. He added "I do not think we can fix, with our present knowledge, the precise time for the "poison beginning to operate." According to the account of one witness in Agnes French's case, the poison did not operate for three-quarters of an hour, though probably her recollection of the time was not very accurate after ten years. Dr. Taylor also referred (in cross-examination) to cases in which an hour and-a-half, or even two hours elapsed, before the symptoms showed themselves

These were the principal points in Cook's symptoms said to be inconsistent with the administration of strychnia. All of them appear to have been satisfactorily answered. Indeed, the inconsistency of the symptoms with strychnia was faintly maintained. The defence turned rather on the possibility of showing that they were consistent with some other disease

In order to make out this point various suggestions were made In the cross-examination of the different witnesses for the Crown, it was frequently suggested that the case was one of traumatic tetanus, caused by syphilitic sores; but to this there were three fatal objections. In the first place, there were no syphilitic sores; in the second place, no witness for the prisoner said that he thought that it was a case of traumatic tetanus, and in the third place, several doctors of great experience in respect of syphilis—specially [152] Dr. Lee, the physician to the Lock Hospital—declared that they never heard of syphilitic sores producing tetanus. Two witnesses for the prisoner were called to show that a man died of tetanus who had sores on his elbow and elsewhere, which were possibly syphilitic; but it did not appear whether he had rubbed or hurt them, and Cook had no symptoms of the sort

Another theory was that the death was caused by general convulsions. This was advanced by Mr. Nunneley; but he was unable to mention any case in ne
Dr
be one of "epileptic convulsions with tetanic complications." But he also failed to mention an instance in which epilepsy did not destroy consciousness This witness assigned the most extraordinary reasons for supposing that it was a case of this form of epilepsy. He said that the fit might have been caused by sexual excitement, though the man was ill at Rugeley for nearly a week before his death; and that it was within the range of possibility that sexual intercourse might produce a convulsion fit after an interval of a fortnight.

Both Mr. Nunneley and Dr. McDonald were cross-examined with great closeness. Each of them was taken separately through all the various symptoms of the case, and asked to point out how they differed from those of poisoning by strychnia, and what were the reasons why they should be supposed to arise from anything else. After [153] a great deal of trouble Mr. Nunneley was forced to admit that the symptoms of the paroxysm were "very like" those of strychnia, and that the various predisposing causes which is mentioned as likely to produce convulsions could not be shown to have existed. He said, for instance, that excitement and depression of spirits might predispose to convulsions; but the only excitement under which Cook had laboured was on winning the race a week before, and as for depression of spirits, he was laughing and joking with Mr. Jones a few hours before his death Dr. McDonald was equally unable to give a satisfactory explanation of these difficulties. It is impossible by any abridgment to convey the full effect which these cross-examinations produced. They deserve to be carefully studied by any one who cares to understand the full effect of this great instrument for the manifestation not merely of truth, but of accuracy and fairness.

Of the other witnesses for the prisoner, Mr. Herapath admitted that he had said that he thought that there was strychnine in the body, but that Dr. Taylor did not know how to find it. He added that he got his impression from newspaper reports, but it did not appear that they differed from the evidence given at the trial. Dr. Letheby said that the symptoms of Cook were irreconcilable with everything that he was acquainted with—strychnia poison included. He admitted, however, that they were not inconsistent with what he had heard of the symptoms of Mrs. Serjeantson Smyth who was undoubtedly poisoned by strychnine. Mr. Partridge was called to [154] show that the case might be one of arachnitis, or inflammation of one of the membranes of the spinal cord caused by two granules discovered there In cross-examination he instantly admitted with perfect frankness, that he did not think the case was one of arachnitis, as the symptoms were not the same. Moreover, on [illegible] Jones were consistent with [illegible] concluded by saying that in [illegible] had never seen such a death proceed from natural causes. Dr Robinson, from Newcastle, was called to show that tetanic convulsions preceded by epilepsy were the cause of death. He, however, expressly admitted in cross-examination that the symptoms were consistent with strychnia, and that some of them were inconsistent with epilepsy He said that in the absence of any other cause, if he "put aside the hypothesis of strychnia," he would ascribe it to epilepsy, and that he thought the granules in the spinal cord might have produced epilepsy The degree of importance attached to these granules by different witnesses varied. Several of the witnesses for the Crown considered them unimportant. The last of the prisoner's witnesses was Dr. Richardson, who said the disease might have been angina pectoris He said, however, that the symptoms of angina pectoris were so like those of strychnine that he should have great difficulty in distinguishing them from each other

The fact that antimony was found was never seriously disputed, nor could it be denied that its administration [155] would account for all the symptoms of sickness, etc., which occurred during the week before Cook's death No one but the prisoner could have administered it

The general result of the whole evidence on both sides appears to be to prove beyond all reasonable doubt that the symptoms of Cook's death were perfectly consistent with those of poisoning by strychnine, and that there was strong reason to believe that they were inconsistent with any other cause. Coupling this with the proof that Palmer bought strychnia just before each of the two attacks, and that he robbed Cook of all his property, it is impossible to doubt the propriety of the verdict.

Palmer's case is remarkable on account of the extraordinary minuteness and labour with which it was tried, and on account of the extreme ability with which the trial was conducted on both sides.

The intricate set of facts which show that Palmer had a strong motive to commit the crime; his behaviour before it; at the time when it was being committed, and after it had been committed, the various considerations which showed that Cook must have died by tetanus produced by strychnine; that Palmer had the means of administering strychnine to him, that he did actually administer what in all probability was strychnine, that he also administered antimony on many occasions; and that all the different theories by which Cook's death otherwise than by strychnine could be accounted for were open to fatal objections, form a collection of eight or ten different sets of facts, all connected [156] together immediately or remotely either as being, or as being shown not to be, the causes or the effects of Cook's murder, or as forming part of the actual murder itself

The scientific evidence is remarkable on various grounds, but particularly because it supplies a singularly perfect illustration of the identity between the ordinary processes of scientific research, and the principles explained above, as being those on which Judicial Evidence proceeds Take, for instance, the question, did Cook die of tetanus, either traumatic or idiopathic? The symptoms of those diseases are in the first place ascertained inductively, and their nature was proved by the testimony of Sir Benjamin Brodie and others. The course of the symptoms being compared with those of Cook, they did not correspond. The inference by deduction was that Cook's death was not caused by those diseases. Logically the matter might be stated thus —

All persons who die either of traumatic or of idiopathic tetanus exhibit a certain course of symptoms.

Cook did not exhibit that course of symptoms, therefore Cook did not die of traumatic or of idiopathic tetanus.

Everyone of the arguments and theories stated in the case may easily be shown by a little attention to be so many illustrations of the rules of evidence on the one hand, and of the rules of induction and deduction on the other.

On the other hand, a flood of irrelevant matter apparently connected with the trial pressed, so to speak, for admittance and if it had been admitted, would have swollen the trial to unmanageable proportions, and thrown no real [157] light upon the main question. Palmer was actually indicted for the murder of his wife, Ann Palmer, and for the murder of his brother, Walter Palmer. Every sort of story was in circulation as to what he had done. It was said that twelve or fourteen persons had at different times been buried from his house under suspicious circumstances It was said that he had poisoned Lord George Bentinck who died very suddenly some years before. He had certainly forged his mother's acceptance to bills of exchange, and had carried on a series of gross frauds on insurance offices There was the strongest reason to suspect that the evidence of Jeremiah Smith, referred to in the case, was plotted and artful perjury. If Palmer had been tried in France, every one of these and innumerable other topics would have been introduced, and the real matter in dispute would not have been nearly so fully discussed.

No case sets in a clearer light either the theory or the practical working of the principles on which the Evidence Act is based.

One special matter on which Palmer's trial throws great light is the nature of the evidence of experts The provisions relating to this subject are contained in sections 45 and 46 of the Evidence Act. The only point of much importance in connection with them is that it should be borne in mind that their evidence is given on the assumption that certain facts occurred, but that it does not in common cases show whether or not the facts on which the expert gives his opinion did really occur. For instance, [158] Sir Benjamin Brodie and other witnesses in Palmer's case said that the symptoms they had heard described were the symptoms of poisoning by strychnine, but whether the maid-servants and others who witnessed and described Cook's death were or were not speaking the truth was not a question for them, but for the jury. Strictly speaking, an expert ought not to be asked, "Do you think that the deceased man died of poison?" He ought to be asked to what cause he would attribute the death of the deceased man, assuming the symptoms attending his death to have been correctly described? or whether any cause except poison would account for such and such specified symptoms? This, however, is a matter of form. The substance of the rules as to experts is that they are only witnesses, not judges; that their evidence, however important, is intended to be used only as materials upon which others are to form their decision; and that the fact which they have to prove is the fact that they entertain certain opinions on certain grounds, and not the fact that grounds for their opinions do really exist.

---

[159] Irrelevant Facts

Having thus described and illustrated the theory of relevancy, it will be desirable to say something of irrelevant facts which might at first sight be supposed to be relevant.

From the explanations given in the earlier part of the chapter it follows that facts are irrelevant unless they can be shown to stand in the relation on cause or in the relation of effect to facts in issue, every step in the connection being either proved or of such a nature that it may be presumed without proof.

What facts are irrelevant

The vast majority of ordinary facts simply co-exist without being in any assignable manner connected together. For instance, at the moment of the commission of a crime in a great city numberless other transactions are going on in the immediate neighbourhood, but no one would think of giving evidence of them unless they were in some way connected with the crime. Facts obviously irrelevant therefore present little difficulty. The only difficulty arises in dealing with facts which are apparently relevant but are not really so. The most important of these are three —

Facts apparently relevant

1. Statements as to facts made by persons not called as witnesses [160] 2. Transactions similar to but unconnected with the facts in issue.
3. Opinions formed by persons as to the facts in issue or relevant facts.

None of these are relevant within the definition of relevancy given in sections 6—11, both inclusive. It may possibly be argued that the effect of the second paragraph of section 11* would be to admit proof of such facts as these.

---

* Section 11 is as follows —

Facts not otherwise relevant are relevant

(1) If they are inconsistent with any fact in issue or relevant fact.

(2) If by themselves, or in connection with other facts, they make the existence or non-existence of any fact in issue or relevant fact highly probable or improbable.

It may, for instance, be said: A (not called as a witness) was heard to declare that he had seen B commit a crime. This makes it highly probable that B did commit that crime. Therefore A's declaration is a relevant fact under section 11. This was not the intention of the section, as is shown by the elaborate provisions contained in the following part of the Chapter II (sections 32—39) as to particular classes of statements, which are regarded as relevant facts either because the circumstances under which they are made invest them with importance, or because no better evidence can be got. The sort of facts which the section was intended to include are facts which either exclude or imply more or less distinctly the existence of the facts sought to be proved. Some degree of latitude was designedly left in the wording of the section (in compliance with a suggestion from the Madras Government) [161] on account of the variety of matters to which it might apply. The meaning of the section would have been more fully expressed if words to the following effect had been added to it —

"No statement shall be regarded as rendering the matter stated highly probable within the meaning of this section unless it is declared to be a relevant fact under some other section of this Act"

Reason for exclusion of hearsay.

The reasons why statements as to facts made by persons not called as witnesses are excluded, except in certain specified cases (see sections 17—39), are various In the first place it is matter of common experience that statements in common conversation are made so lightly, and are so liable to be misunderstood or misrepresented, that they cannot be depended upon for any important purpose unless they are made under special circumstances

Objection

It may be said that this is an objection to the weight of such statements and not to their relevancy, and there is some degree of truth in this remark. No doubt, when a man has to inquire into facts of which he receives in the first instance very confused accounts, it may and often will be extremely important for him to trace the most cursory and apparently futile report. And facts relevant in the highest degree to facts in issue may often be discovered in this manner. A policeman or a lawyer engaged in getting up a case, criminal or civil, would neglect his duty altogether if he shut his ears to everything which was not relevant within the meaning of [162] the Evidence Act A Judge or Magistrate in India frequently has to perform duties which in England would be performed by police-officers or attorneys He has to sift out the truth for himself as well as he can and with little assistance of a professional kind. Section 165 is intended to arm the Judge with the most extensive power possible for the purpose of getting at the truth The effect of this section,* is that in order to get to the bottom of the matter before it the Court will be able to look at and inquire into every fact whatever. It will not, however, be able to found its judgment upon the class of statements in question, for the following reasons:

Effect of section 165

If this were permitted, it would present a great temptation to indolent Judges to be satisfied with second-hand reports

It would open a wide door to fraud. People would make statements for which they would be in no way responsible, and the fact that these statements were made would be proved by witnesses who knew nothing of the matter stated. Every one would thus be at the mercy of people who might choose to tell a lie, and loose evidence could neither be tested nor contradicted.

---

* Section 165 is as follows:—

"The Judge may, in order to discover or obtain proper proof of relevant facts, ask any question he pleases in any form, at any time, of any witness, or of the parties about any fact relevant or irrelevant, and may order the production of any document or thing"

Suppose that A, B, C, and D give to E, F, and G a minute detailed account of a crime which they say was [163] committed by Z, E, F, and G repeat what they have heard correctly. A, B, C, and D disappear or are not forthcoming. It is evident that Z would be altogether unable to defend himself in this case, and that the Court would be unable to test the statements of A, B, C, and D. The only way to avoid this is to exclude such evidence altogether, and so to put upon both Judges and Magistrates as strong a pressure as possible to get to the bottom of the matter before them

It would waste an incalculable amount of time. To try to trace unauthorized and irresponsible gossip, and to discover the grains of truth which may lurk in it is like trying to trace a fish in the water.

Unconnected transactions

The exclusion of evidence as to transactions similar to, but not specifically connected with, the facts in issue, rests upon the ground that if it were not enforced every trial, whether civil or criminal, might run into an inquiry into the whole life and character of the parties concerned Litigants have frequently many matters in difference besides the precise point legally at issue between them, and it often requires a good deal of vigour to prevent them from turning Courts of Justice into theatres in which all their affairs may be discussed. A very slight acquaintance with French procedure is enough to show the evils of not keeping people close to the point in judicial proceedings

Exclusion of Evidence of opinion

As to evidence of opinion, it is excluded because its admission would in nearly all cases be mere waste of time

Exceptions to rules to irrelevancy as witnesses, and statements made under circumstances which in themselves afford a guarantee for their truth, are an exception to the exclusion of statements as proof of the matter stated

Judgments in Courts of Justice on other occasions form an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue, and the provisions as to the admission of evidence of opinions in certain cases are contained in sections 45—55. I will notice very shortly the principle on which these provisions proceed

Admissi

1. The general rule with regard to admissions, which are defined to mean all that the parties or their representatives in certain degrees say about the matter in dispute, or facts relevant thereto, is that they may be proved as against those who made them, but not in their favour The reason of the rule is obvious. If A says, "B owes me money," the mere fact that he says so does not even tend to prove the debt If the statement has any value at all, it must be derived from some fact which lies beyond it; for instance, A's recollection of his having lent B the money To that fact, of course, A can testify, but his subsequent assertions add nothing to what he has to say If, on the other hand, A had said, "B does [165] not owe me anything," this is a fact of which B might make use, and which might be decisive of the case

Confessi

Admissions in reference to crimes are usually called confessions I may observe upon the provisions relating to them that sections 25, 26, and 27 were transferred to the Evidence verbatim from the Code of Criminal Procedure, Act XXV of 1861. They differ widely from the law of England, and were inserted in the Act of 1861 in order to prevent the practice of torture by the police for the purpose of extracting confessions from persons in their custody.

Statemei by witne es who cannot b called Statements made by persons who are dead or otherwise incapacitated from being called as witnesses are admitted in the cases mentioned in sections 32 and 33. The reason is that in the cases in question no better evidence is to be had.

Statements under special circumstances.

In certain cases statements are made under circumstances which in them- [illegible] them to be true, and in these cases there [illegible] erson by whom the statement was made [illegible] e 34—38

It may be well to point out here the manner in which the Evidence Act affects the proof of evidence given by a witness in a Court of Justice. The relevancy of the fact that such evidence was given, depends partly on the [illegible] principles of relevancy. For instance if a witness were accused of [illegible] t he gave the testimony alleged to be [illegible] But the Act also provides for cases in which the fact that evidence was given on a different occasion is to be admissible, either to prove the matter stated (section 33), or in order to contradict (sections 155, 3) or in order to corroborate (section 157) the witness. By reference to these sections it must be ascertained whether the fact that the evidence was given is relevant. If it is relevant section 35 enacts that an entry of it in a record made by any public servant in the discharge of his duty shall be relevant as a mode of proving it The Codes of Civil and Criminal Procedure direct all judicial officers to make records of the evidence given before them; and section 80 of the Evidence Act provides that a document purporting to be a record of evidence shall be presumed to be genuine, that statements made as to the circumstances under which it was taken shall be presumed to be true, and the evidence to have been duly taken The result of these sections taken together is that when proof of evidence given on previous occasions is admissible it may be proved by the production of the record or a certified copy (see section 76).

Judgments in other cases

The sections as to judgments (40, 41) designedly omit to deal with the question of the effect of judgments in preventing further proceedings in regard of the same matter. The law upon this subject is to be found in section 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure and in section 460 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The cases which the Evidence Act provides [167] for are cases in which the judgment of a Court is in the nature of a law, and creates the right which it affirms to exist.

Opinions

The opinions of any person, other than the Judge by whom the fact is to be decided, as to the existence of facts in issue or relevant facts are, as a rule, irrelevant to the decision of the cases to which they relate for the most obvious reasons. To show that such and such a person thought that a crime had been committed or a contract made would either be to show nothing at all, or would invest the person whose opinion was proved with the character of a Judge. In some few cases, the reasons for which are self-evident, it is otherwise. They are specified in sections 45—51.

Character, when important

The sections as to character require little remark Evidence of character is, generally speaking, only a makeweight, though there are two classes of cases in which it is highly important:—

(1) Where conduct is equivocal, or even presumably criminal. In this case evidence of character may explain conduct and rebut the presumptions which it might raise in the absence of such evidence. A man is found in possession of stolen goods He says he found them and took charge of them to give them to the owner. If he is a man of very high character this may be believed.

(2) When a charge rests on the direct testimony of a single witness and on the bare denial of it by the person charged. A man is accused of an indecent assault by a [168] woman with whom he was accidentally left alone. He denies it. Here a high character for morality on the part of the accused person would be of great importance.

[169] CHAPTER IV.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS ON THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT.

No reference to English cases

In the preceding pages I have stated and illustrated the theory of judicial evidence on which the Evidence Act is based. I have but little to add to that explanation. The Act speaks for itself. No labour was spared to make its provisions complete and distinct. As the first section repeals all unwritten rules of evidence, and as the Act itself supplies a distinct body of law upon the subjects, its object would be defeated by elaborate references to English cases. In so far as it is obscure or incomplete, the Judges and the Legislature are its proper critics. If it is turned into an abridgment of the law which it was meant to replace, it will be injurious instead of being useful to those for whom it was intended. I shall accordingly content myself with a very short description of the contents of the remainder of the Act, referring for a full explanation of the matter to the Act itself.

Scheme of Part II

The general scheme of Part II, which relates to Proof and consists of four chapters, containing forty-five sections, may be expressed in the following propositions

Judicial notice

[170] 1. Certain facts are so notorious in themselves, or are stated in so authentic a manner in well-known and accessible publications, that they require no proof The Court, if it does not know them, can inform itself upon them without formally taking evidence These facts are said to be judicially noticed.

Oral evidence

2. All facts except the contents of documents may be proved by oral evidence, which must in all cases be direct That is, it must consist of a declaration by the witness that he perceived by his own senses the fact to which he testifies

Documents

3. The contents of documents must be proved either by the production of the document, which is called primary evidence, or by copies or oral accounts of the contents, which are called secondary evidence Primary evidence is required as a rule, but this is subject to seven important exceptions in which secondary evidence may be given. The most important of these are (1) cases in which the document is in the possession of the adverse party, in which case the adverse party must in general (though there are several exceptions) have notice to produce the document before secondary evidence of it can be given

And (2) cases in which certified copies of public documents are admissible in place of the documents themselves.

4. Many classes of documents which are defined in the Act, are presumed to be what they purport to be, but this presumption is liable to be rebutted Two sets of presumptions will sometimes apply to the same document. For [171] instance what purports to be a certified copy of a record of evidence is produced. It must by section 76 be presumed to be an accurate copy of the record of evidence. By section 80 the facts stated in the record itself as to the circumstances under which it was taken, e.g., that it was read over to the witness in a language which he understood, must be presumed to be true.

Writings when exclusive evidence

5. When a contract, grant, or other disposition of property is reduced to writing, the writing itself (or secondary evidence of its contents) is not only the best, but is the only admissible evidence of the matter which it contains It cannot be varied by oral evidence, except in certain specified cases.

It is necessary in applying these general doctrines (the expediency of which is obvious) to practice to go into considerable detail, and to introduce provisos, exceptions, and qualifications which appear more intricate and difficult than they really are If, however, the propositions just stated are once distinctly understood and borne in mind, the details will be easily mastered when the occasion for applying them arises. The provisions in the Act are all made in order to meet real difficulties which arose in practice in England, and which must of necessity arise over and over again, and give occasion to litigation unless they were specifically provided for beforehand

Principle of provisions in documentary evidence

One single principle runs through all the propositions relating to documentary evidence. It is that the very object for which writing is used is to perpetuate the memory of what is written down,[172] and so to furnish permanent proof of it In order that full effect may be given to this, two things are necessary, namely, that the document itself should, whenever it is possible, be put before the Judge for his inspection, and that if it purports to be a final settlement of a previous negotiation, as in the case of a written contract, it shall be treated as final, and shall not be varied by word of mouth. If the first of these rules were not observed the benefit of writing would be lost. There is no use in writing a thing down unless the writing is read. If the second rule were not observed people would never know when a question was settled, as they would be able to play fast and loose with their writings.

By bearing these leading principles in mind the details and exceptions will become simple. Their practical importance is indeed as nothing in comparison to the importance of the rules which they qualify

The third part of the Act, which contains three chapters (Chapters VII, VIII and IX) and sixty-seven sections relates to the production and effect of evidence.

Chapter VII, which relates to the burden of proof, deals with a subject which requires a little explanation. This is the subject of presumptions. Like most other words introduced into the law of evidence, it has various meanings, and it has besides a history to which I shall refer very shortly.

In times when the true theory of proof was very imperfectly understood, inasmuch as physical science, by the progress of which that theory was gradually discovered, [173] was in its infancy, numerous attempts were made to construct theories as to the weight of evidence which should supply the want of one founded on observation In some cases this was effected by requiring the testimony of a certain number of witnesses in particular cases, such a fact must be proved by two witnesses, such another by four, and so on. In other cases particular items of evidence were regarded as full proof, half full proof, proof less than half full, and proof more than half full.

The doctrine of presumptions was closely connected with this theory. Presumptions were inferences which the Judges were directed to draw from certain states of facts in certain cases, and these presumptions were allowed a certain amount of weight in the scale of proof; such a presumption and such evidence amounted to full proof, such another to half full, and so on. The very irregular manner in which the English law of evidence grew up has had, amongst other effects, that of making it an uncertain and difficult question how far the theory of presumptions, and the other theories of which they formed a part, affect English law, but substantially the result is somewhat as follows :—

Presumptions are of four kinds according to English law:

1. Conclusive presumptions. These are rare, but when they occur they provide that certain modes of proof shall not be liable to contradiction.

2. Presumptions which affect the ordinary rule as to the burden of proof that he who affirms must prove. He [174] who affirms that a man is dead must usually prove it, but if he shows that the man has not been heard of for seven years, he shifts the burden of proof on his adversary.

3. There are certain presumptions which, though liable to be rebutted, are regarded by English law as being something more than mere maxims, though it is by no means easy to say how much more. An instance of such a presumption is to be found in the rule that recent possession of stolen goods unexplained raises a presumption that the possessor is either the thief or a receiver.

4. Bare presumptions of facts, which are nothing but arguments to which the Court attaches whatever value it pleases.

Presumptions

Chapter VII of the Evidence Act deals with this subject as follows :— First it lays down the general principles which regulate the burden of proof (sections 101—106). It then enumerates the cases in which the burden of proof is determined in particular cases, not by the relation of the parties to the cause but by presumptions (sections 107—111) It notices two cases of conclusive presumptions, the presumption of legitimacy from birth during marriage (section 112), and the presumption of a valid cession of territory from the publication of a notification to that effect in the Gazette of India (section 113). This is one of several conclusive statutory presumptions which will be found in different parts of the Statutes and Acts Finally, it declares in section 114, that the Court may in all cases whatever draw from the facts before it whatever inferences it thinks just. The terms of this section are such [175] as to reduce to their proper position of mere maxims which are to be applied to facts by the Courts in their discretion, a large number of presumptions to which English law gives to a greater or less extent, an artificial value. Nine of the most important of them are given by way of illustration.

All notice of certain general legal principles which are sometimes called presumptions, but which in reality belong rather to the substantive law than the law of evidence, was designedly omitted, not because the truth of those principles was denied, but because it was not considered that the Evidence Act was the proper place for them. The most important of these is the presumption, as it is sometimes called, that every one knows the law. The principle is far more correctly stated in the maxim that ignorance of the law does not excuse a breach of it, which is one of the fundamental principles of criminal law.

The subject of estoppels (Chapter VIII) differs from that of presumption in the circumstance that an estoppel is a personal disqualification laid upon a person peculiarly circumstanced from proving peculiar facts. A presumption is a rule that particular inferences shall be drawn from particular facts whoever proves them. Much of the English learning connected with estoppels is extremely intricate and technical, but this arises principally from two causes, the peculiarities of English special pleading, and the fact that the effect of prior judgments is usually treated by the English text writers as a branch of the law of evidence, and not as a branch of the law of Civil Procedure.

[176] The remainder of the Act consists of a reduction to express propositions of rules as to the examination of witnesses, which are well established and understood. They call for no commentary or introduction, as they sufficiently explain their own meaning, and do not materially vary the existing law and practice.

Some Criticisms on the Act.

It has been said that in its main features the arrangement of Sir James Fitzjames Stephen is not capable of being improved upon (1), and it will generally be conceded that, except as regards sections 5—16 of Ch. II, a great advantage has undoubtedly been given to the legal practitioner by the codification of the law of evidence which the Act has effected. The criticism, perhaps more discriminating, of others may be divided into two classes Some there are who approve of the general principle upon which the Act proceeds (viz., that it is both possible and advisable positively to determine what is evidence), but criticise the actual terms in which such determination is made. Others disapprove, preferring the more practical and historical method of English law which confines itself mainly to the negative task of declaring not what is but what is not evidence.

Of the first class Mr Whitworth in his able pamphlet on the theory of relevancy(2) while of opinion that probably no enactment in such few words as section 6—16 brought so much assistance to the administration of justice, says that the question yet suggests itself whether even these rules give the theory of relevancy in its simplest form, and states that they certainly do not show in themselves upon what principle it is that they have been founded. Differing from the author of the Act in regard to the adequacy of his definition of relevancy as the connection of events as cause and effect, he works out from the rules propounded under the Act what he conceives to be a fuller and more satisfactory statement He arrives by this process of exposition at exactly the same result as Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, but claims for the new rules which he suggests that although different in form they are identical with those of the Act in their effect (3)

Mr. Whitworth uses the word relevant as Sir James Fitzjames Stephen uses it in the third chapter of his Introduction, and not as it is sometimes used as co-extensive with admissible. What is thus meant by a relevant fact is a fact that has a certain degree of probative force All such facts are not admissible They may be excluded under rules of evidence other than those which treat of relevancy. For example, as he points out, a fact may be relevant, but it may be one of a kind so easy to fabricate, or so difficult to test, or of so suspicious an origin, that it is more convenient to declare that it shall not be taken into consideration at all. With such questions he is not concerned, but only with the simpler and narrower question as to what facts are relevant in the strict sense of the term.

He points out that the word is used in both senses in the Evidence Act, as will appear from a reference to the Table of Contents Part I treats of "Relevancy of Facts," and, in this Part, Chapter II has several divisional headings one of which is "of the Relevancy of Facts." Part I deals with relevancy in its wide sense; Chapter II of Part I with relevancy in its strict sense The ambiguity is unfortunate. Sir Fitzjames Stephen has said that relevancy is fully defined in sections 6—11 of the Act, and until the double meaning of the word is observed, it seems as Mr. Whitworth points out inconsistent with

---

(1) Peynolds' Theory of the Law of Evidence, 3rd Ed., 1877. Preface, vi. See also observations in Preface to Rice's General Principles of the Law of Evidence

(2) The theory of relevancy for the purpose of Judicial Evidence by George Clifford Whitworth, 2nd Ed., 1881. "Mr George Clifford Whitworth of the Bombay Civil Service has lately criticised this theory in an ingenious and able pamphlet and the frank acceptance of his criticism by Mr Stephen enables us to enjoy the contemplation as gratifying as it is rare, of a controversy which was ended in a real advancement of knowledge, and in a manner perfectly satisfying and honourable to both parties."—Fortnightly Review, 1876.

(3) See Law Magazine and Review, 1875-6 certain things to be relevant sections as these have to de-relevant or irrelevant (using ided by sections 6—16), that those things are not to be excluded or admitted under rules relating to subjects other than relevancy, which would, without the provision made, exclude or admit them.

The theory of relevancy is concerned with the question —Why is one thing relevant and another thing irrelevant? There must, Mr. Whitworth says, be some principle applicable to all cases by which it may be determined whether a particular fact is or is not relevant to another fact, without reference to a number of rules framed to meet different classes of cases The purpose of judicial enquiries is not a purpose peculiar to them All men upon occasion endeavour to ascertain, as quickly and as satisfactorily as they can, whether facts unknown to them personally have or have not happened. And what is calculated to aid the human mind in such inquiries must be something capable of being defined by the enunciation of its essential difference, as well as by an enumeration of its details. Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, in the third Chapter of his Introduction to this Act, has briefly considered this question, and has said that relevancy means the connection of events as cause and effect "If these two words were taken in their widest acceptation, it would be correct to say that when any theory has been formed which alleges the existence of any fact, all facts are relevant which, if that theory was true, would stand to the fact alleged to exist either in the relation of cause or in the relation of effect." Mr. Whitworth criticises this definition as follows —"But the proviso that the words 'cause' and 'effect' must be taken in their widest acceptation does seem to be sufficient. It seems necessary rather to take them in a transcendent sense Suppose a man is charged with stabbing another, and it is alleged that at the moment of striking he uttered a certain expression. What he said is by the rules of evidence relevant (not merely upon the issue as to his intention, but also) upon the issue whether he stabbed the man or not. But in what acceptation of the words is his expression a cause or effect of the act of stabbing? Or consider the case of the Whitechapel murder now under investigation in London. Upon the issue, Did Wainwright murder Harriet Lane? It is offered in evidence that the body before the Court is that of a woman who never bore children How is this a cause or effect of the fact in issue? The widest acceptation of the words 'cause' and 'effect' will not include such facts as these. And if we give them the meaning necessary to make true the statement that relevancy means the connection of events as cause and effect, then the statement itself becomes of no use, because every fact will be relevant. No doubt to a being of such capacity of intelligence as to see the whole cause of every effect and the whole effect of every cause, everything that ever happened becomes one rigid fact and nothing is irrelevant. But for human purposes there is no question that relevancy and irrelevancy are realities; the difference between the two is recognizable by an ordinarily human capacity, and must be something expressible in ordinary language.

The definition that relevancy means the connection of events as cause and effect, leaves us, then, in this difficulty that if we take the words in any, even the widest, comprehensible sense, the definition does not include all facts which we know from our experience to be really relevant, and if we give them a transcendent meaning based upon our knowledge that all things precedent have gone together to make up the state of things existing at any time, and that no fact could ever have existed without the co-existence of every other fact that did exist at the same time, then the definition includes everything, and so ceases to be a definition.

Thus the statement that relevancy means the connection of events as cause and effect, requires some addition, if the words are used in any ordinary sense, and some limitation, if they are given a transcendent sense.

Mr. Stephen, using the words in the latter sense, imposes one limitation and declares the practical existence of another. He says, (a) the rule is to be subject to the caution that every step in the connection must be made out, and (b) that wide, general causes, which apply to all occurrences, are, in most cases, admitted, and do not require proof. The first of these limitations goes far to get rid of the objection that everything is relevant The connection must be discernible, and every step in the connection proved or presumable. But if it is meant that each step must be recognizable as a proceeding from cause to effect, then, as shown above, things really relevant will be excluded. And if any other kind of connection will suffice, then it may be said of both the limitations, that they are of little service, that the help they give in deducing practical rules from the general principle is small For those rules are least likely to be appealed to in the case of wide general causes, or occurrences, the connection of which with the fact in issue is not traceable The object of the rules is to keep out irrelevant matter that is brought forward. As a fact, such matter is submitted as evidence every day Such matter does not usually consist of wide general causes that are admitted nor of occurrences that have no connection with the facts in issue, and therefore these limitations do not exclude it. Therefore these limitations are not sufficient

Now as the theory propounded falls short of defining what relevancy is, so we may expect to find in the rules themselves things that cannot be explained by the theory. Again, as the rules are not deduced from first principles but possible that in some unusual with accuracy the true limit reason, it is possible that the confined to the subject of relevancy.

Thus it is not immediately apparent, from the theory set forth, why one part of a transaction throws light upon another part which is so distinct from the first as to form in itself a fact in issue. When Mr. Hall shot three or four Gaekwari sowars, and it was a fact in issue whether he shot a particular one, no doubt the fact that he shot the others increased the probability of his having shot the one is question. But the theory does not afford a ready explanation of this.

By section 7 those facts are relevant to facts in issue 'which constitute the state of things under which they happened' A Magistrate lately convicted some persons of rioting, and, the object of the riot having been to offend some Hindu religious reformers, he commenced his judgment with a general history of religion and religious reformation down to the present time The Judge, before whom the case came on appeal, remarked upon the irrelevancy of this, and of course it was utterly useless; but the rule quoted does not seem to exclude evidence of it. By the same section, facts which afford an 'opportunity' for the occurrence of a fact in issue, or relevant facts, are relevant. The theory does not explain why. When Mr. Hall shot the sowars, the fact that he had a rifle, gave him an opportunity of shooting the man he shot; but it gave him equal opportunity of shooting other persons whom he did not shoot. Its particular bearing upon the fact in issue to make it relevant is not explained.

Section 8 is partly concerned with the admissibility of evidence of statements. It includes the substance of the English rule that declarations which are part of the res gestæ may be proved. But this has nothing to do with relevancy strictly so called. (v. post, remarks upon Ill. (j) of this section)

Section 9 declares facts necessary to explain or introduce a fact in issue to be relevant, but prescribes no test of the necessity. Is there no danger of useless matter being brought upon the record under this rule on the ground that it explains or introduces something to follow? It is true there is a provision, under the law for the examination of witnesses, that when either party proposes to give evidence of any fact, the Judge may ask in what manner the fact would be relevant, and need not admit it unless he thinks it would be relevant (section 136, Evidence Act); but still whether or not the fact is necessary to explain or introduce may be a disputable matter. The first illustration says that when the question is whether a given document is the will of A, the state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts. Now, it is obvious that some particulars about the property would be useful to be known, and some would be useless. So the rule seems partly to fail of its object, in that it does not define what class of particulars is relevant.

Section 10 is a rule relating to one particular kind of transaction, conspiracy; and section 12 refers only to the question of damages. But the mind sets to work to ascertain such facts as these in just the same way as any other facts, and it does not appear why special rules are requisite. When any person is charged with conspiracy, one of the facts in issue is the existence of the conspiracy, its absolute existence without reference to the accused person: and from the nature of the thing itself, requiring as it does the action of more than one mind, it is to be expected that causes of it and effects of it will be found existing outside the mind, and without the knowledge, of a particular person. Therefore no rule is required to make such causes or effects or other connected facts relevant to the fact in issue.

But the rule goes on to declare that such facts are relevant also for the purpose of showing that the accused person was a party to the conspiracy. Well, if such facts will show that, clearly they are in very truth relevant. But it is obvious that very many such facts will have no bearing whatever upon the question of the accused person's complicity. And it seems an error in the rule to declare all such facts relevant for that purpose, instead of showing which are and which are not. Consider some such conspiracy as that which went by the name of Fenianism. Suppose a man is being tried in Ireland for so conspiring. Suppose he had been in prison for a month before trial. Suppose the Court had received abundant evidence of the existence, nature and objects of the conspiracy. Still, under this rule the Court could not refuse to listen to witnesses just arrived from America stating that a party of Fenians had burnt a farm there a fortnight before the day of trial—thus to prove the accused person's complicity in the conspiracy.

Section 14 declares that facts which show the existence of any state of mind are relevant when the existence of such 'state of mind' is in issue or relevant. Looking at the illustration, it seems doubtful whether the expression 'state of mind' is wide enough. One of the states of mind mentioned is 'knowledge' Illustration (c) is an example of this. There the question is whether a man knew that his dog was ferocious; and the facts that the dog had bitten several persons and that they had complained to the owner are relevant These facts are really connected with the fact in issue through the owner's knowledge. But Illus. (a) also purports to be an example of a fact being relevant as tending to show knowledge The question there is whether a person found in possession of a stolen article knew that it was stolen, and it is said that the fact that, at the same time, he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles to be stolen. No doubt the fact is relevant, but it is not through the receiver's knowledge that it is connected with the fact in issue. What it proves is not a state of mind, but a habit, a habit which makes the receiving with a guilty knowledge a more likely fact than it would be without proof of the habit."

Mr. Whitworth then proceeds to propound his theory of relevancy with the new rules which he deduces from it —

"Every fact in issue may be affirmed or denied; and that not merely in the bare form in which it may be stated as a fact in issue, but in every detail of the meaning of that statement. The whole includes the part. If any fact is affirmed as a whole, any part of it may be affirmed or denied. anything implied by an affirmation is really part of that affirmation and may be expressly affirmed or denied. It may be in issue merely, Did A murder B? But if, as the affirmation is inquired into, it is found to mean that A murdered B at a particular hour and a particular place, then, that A was in that place at that hour, may be affirmed or denied The issue may be merely, Did Wainwright murder Harriet Lane? But if those affirming it produce a body saying it is Harriet Lane's, then anything showing that it is or is not may be put forward. Or the issue may be, did the accused person attempt to poison Colonel Phayre? But if it is found that the charge means that the accused person put arsenic into a glass of sherbet which, from his knowledge of Colonel Phayre's habits, he knew Colonel Phayre would drink then Colonel Phayre's habit of drinking sherbet at a particular time and the prisoner's knowledge of this are parts of the fact in issue

But besides the matters expressly or virtually in issue some surrounding matters may aid in determining an unknown fact Knowing that the progress of events is from cause to effect, any fact that seems likely to have caused the fact to be determined, or any fact that suggests the fact to be determined as a cause of it, may be of use

Again, one cause may have many effects and the cause may be ascertainable from one effect as well as from another. If then in endeavouring to ascertain whether a particular event has happened we see some other event that suggests as its cause something that would probably have caused the thing we want to ascertain, then that event will be of use. For example, we want to ascertain whether A stabbed B, and we hear that on the occasion on which he is said to have done so, A said to B, "then die" Now this seems to imply just such volition employing the tongue as would employing an armed hand stab B. The words and the fact in issue are effects of the same volition. Similarly were A charged with poisoning B, the fact that before the death of B he procured poison of the kind that was administered to B would be relevant. The procuring the poison is an effect of a cause which might be the cause of the fact in issue.

Thus there are four classes of fact which aid in determining a fact in issue:

(1) Any part of the fact alleged or any fact implied by the fact alleged,

(2) Any cause of the fact;

(3) Any effect of the fact;

(4) Any fact having a common cause with the fact in issue.

But it is not the whole of these facts that are of use Some facts connected with the fact in issue in one of the four ways mentioned may be of a general nature, existing whether or not the fact in issue happened and therefore indicating nothing as to whether it happened or not. For example: A is charged with the murder of B by pushing him over a precipice. Here the fall of B to the ground after he was pushed over is as much a cause of his death as the pushing over, and as much an effect of the push as his death is. But gravitation is a general fact and exists all the same whether B went over the precipice or not, and proof of it is therefore needless.

Besides such general facts there may be facts connected with the fact in issue in one of the four ways but with such a very slight bearing upon it that their probative force is quite insignificant as, for instance, if a boyish quarrel of fifty years ago were brought forward to prove ill-feeling between two men who had joined in partnership twenty years before.

To meet both these classes of cases one proviso only is requisite namely, that no fact is relevant to another unless it makes the existence of that other more likely. It is not necessary to say anything of the degree of probability the fact must raise. The test is obvious. The Judge who has eventually to decide whether the fact in issue is proved or not, must decide whether the fact offered in evidence will, if proved, aid him in that decision.

The theory, then, so far as we have gone, is this. Those facts are relevant to a fact in issue, the existence of which makes the existence of the fact in issue more probable, and they are found to be connected with the fact in issue in one of these ways, as being, (a) part of the fact in issue, (b) cause of it, (c) effect of it, or (d) an effect of a cause of it.

But as, relying upon the principle that effects follow causes, we take from the surrounding circumstances facts that appear to be probable causes or probable effects of a fact unknown, as a means of proving it; so, upon the same principle we may first consider what would be probable causes or effects of the fact unknown and look upon their absence as a means of disproving it.

Therefore in addition to the four classes of facts above mentioned, which may be said to be positively relevant, we have the following four classes which may be called negatively relevant: (a) facts showing the absence of what might be expected as part of a fact in issue or of what seems to be implied by a fact in issue; (b) facts showing the absence of cause of the fact in issue; (c) facts showing the absence of effect of the fact in issue; (d) facts showing the absence of effects (other than the fact in issue) of the probable cause of the fact in issue. And as it is essential to facts positively relevant that they make the fact in issue more likely, so those facts only are negatively relevant which make the existence of the fact in issue less likely.

Again, as facts are relevant only by reason of their being connected with the fact in issue, it follows that to disprove the connection of an alleged relevant fact with the fact in issue is as efficacious as to disprove the existence of the fact. To show, for instance, that an alleged cause of a fact in issue would not really have as effect the fact in issue; or to show that an alleged effect of a fact in issue is really the effect of some other cause, does as well as to show that the alleged facts never existed. And as the connection of an alleged relevant fact may be disputed, so it may be affirmed in anticipation of dispute. That is to say, all facts which tend to prove or disprove the connection in the way of relevancy between facts in issue and alleged relevant facts are themselves relevant.

As relevant facts may be proved and as the mode of proof of any fact is (beyond the affirmation of witnesses of the fact) by means of facts relevant to it, it follows that "facts relevant to relevant facts are themselves relevant."

These considerations suggested to Mr. Whitworth the following rules, which he considered sufficient to decide, and the simplest test by which to decide, whether any fact offered in evidence is relevant:—

RULE I.—No fact is relevant which does not make the existence of a fact in issue more likely or unlikely, and that to such a degree as the Judge considers will aid him in deciding the issue.

RULE II.—Subject to Rule I, the following facts are relevant:

(1) Facts which are part of, or which are implied by, a fact in issue; or which show the absence of what might be expected as a part of, or would seem to be implied by, a fact in issue;

(2) Facts which are a cause, or which show the absence of what might be expected as a cause, of a fact in issue,

(3) Facts which are an effect or which show the absence of what might be expected as an effect of a fact in issue,

(4) Facts which are an effect of a cause, or which show the absence of what might be expected as an effect of a cause, of a fact in issue.

RULE III.—Facts which affirm or deny the relevancy of facts alleged to be relevant under Rule II are relevant

RULE IV.—Facts relevant to relevant facts are relevant

Mr. Whitworth gives a single example of each kind of relevancy according to his classification, taking all examples from a simple case, that of Muller, who was tried for the murder of an old gentleman, a banker, named Briggs, by beating him with a life-preserver, as they were travelling together by rail, and then throwing him out of the train. Muller tried to make his escape to America, but was pursued and arrested on his arrival there. One point urged in the prisoner's defence was that he was not physically strong enough to commit the murder as alleged His object appeared to be robbery

The kinds of relevancy according to Rule II are four, but, as the first clause contains two classes with an apparent difference. they may, Mr. Whitworth says, be taken for the purpose of illustration as five, and as each kind may be either positive or negative, the number becomes ten. And as by Rule III the connection of a fact with the fact in issue may be disputed as well as its existence, the number of illustrations required is twenty

These he gives in order as cited in the footnote(1):—

---

(1) (a) Part of fact in issue.—It would be relevant to prove that, at the time the offence was said to be committed, a witness by the roadside got a glimpse, as the train passed, of the prisoner standing up in the carriage with his hand raised above his head.

(b) Disputing the connection—It would be relevant to show that at the time in question, the prisoner had occasion to close a ventilator in the top of the carriage

(c) Absence of what might be expected as part of the fact in issue—It would be relevant to show that no noise was heard by the occupants of the next compartment.

(d) Disputing the connection.—It would be relevant to show that the occupants of the next compartment were fast asleep

(e) Fact implied by a fact in issue.—It would be relevant to show that Muller was armed with a weapon.

(f) Disputing the connection.—It would be relevant to show that such a weapon could not have caused the marks found on the body.

(g) Absence of fact implied by fact in issue—It would be relevant to show that Muller was physically a very weak man.

(h) Disputing the connection—It would be relevant to show that under the circumstance but little strength was required.

(i) Cause.—It would be relevant to show that Mr. Briggs had done Muller some great injury

(j) Disputing the connection—It would be relevant to show that Muller was not aware that it was Mr Briggs who had done him the injury.

(k) Absence of cause.—It would be relevant to show that Mr. Briggs had nothing valuable about him to tempt a robber

(l) Disputing the connection—It would be relevant to show that Muller had reason to believe that Mr. Briggs had valuables in his possession.

(m) Effect.—It would be relevant to show that immediately after the occurrence Muller took passage for America

(n) Disputing the connection—It would be relevant to show that Muller had sudden and urgent business that called him to America

(o) Absence of effect—It would be relevant to show that the railway carriage bore no marks of a struggle.

(p) Disputing the connection.—It would be relevant to show that Mr. Briggs was too old and feeble to offer any considerable resistance

(q) Effect of a cause of a fact in issue.—It would

After giving this single example of each kind of relevancy according to his classification, Mr. Whitworth proceeds to decide by reference to the above rules all the cases quoted in illustration of the rules set forth in this Act and shows that his rules are identical in effect with the law by reference to them of the illustrations in the Act as follows —

SECTION 6 Illustration, (a),(1)—For upon examination every part of a transaction will be found to be connected with every other part as cause or effect or as effects of one cause

Illustration (b), (2).—That war was waged is one of the facts in issue. These occurrences are part of that fact.

Illustration (c) (3).—Besides the fact of the publication there may be in issue the question of B's good faith or malice, of the sense in which the words were used, whether the occasion was privileged or not. Other parts of the correspondence may be causes or effects of the publication, or effects of B's good faith or malice, or effects of the words having been used in a particular sense, or effects of a relationship between the parties showing that the occasion was or was not privileged Illustration (d), (4).—Each delivery is a relevant fact as being part of the fact in issue, Did the goods pass from B to A ?

SECTION 7 Illustration (a), (5).—The first fact is relevant as a fact implied by the fact in issue, and the second is relevant as a cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (b), (6).—The marks are relevant facts as effects of part of the fact in issue.

Illustration (c), (7).—That B was ill before the symptoms ascribed to poison, is relevant as denying the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue (the poisoning) and the relevant fact (the death) : that B was well is relevant as asserting this connection. The habits of B are, if it is alleged that the

---

be relevant to show that Muller had just before provided himself with a life-preserver

(r) Disputing the connection.—It would be relevant to show that Muller anticipated violence to himself on the day in question.

(s) Absence of effect of cause of fact in issue.—It would be relevant to show that Muller and Mr. Briggs had travelled together for a long distance before the fatal occurrence, and that through all that time Muller had equal opportunity to attack Mr. Briggs and had not done so.

(t) Disputing the connection.—It would be relevant to show that Muller had ascertained how far Mr. Briggs was going to travel, and that he (Muller) could best effect his escape by getting out at some place the train came to after the occurrence.

(1) A is accused of the murder of B by beating him Whatever was said or done by A or B or the bystanders at the beating or so shortly before or after it as to form part of the transaction, is a relevant fact.

(2) A is accused of waging war against the Queen by taking part in armed insurrection in which property is destroyed, troops are attacked and gaols are broken open. The occurrence of these facts is relevant as forming part of the general transaction though A may not have been present at all of them.

(3) A sues B for a libel contained in a letter forming part of a correspondence Letters between the parties relating to the object out of which the libel arose and forming part of the correspondence in which it is contained are relevant facts though they do not contain the libel itself.

(4) The question is whether certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to several intermediate parties successively. Each delivery is a relevant fact

(5) The question is whether A robbed B The facts that shortly before the robbery B went to a fair with money in his possession and that he showed it, or mentioned the fact that he had it, to a third person are relevant.

(6) The question is whether A murdered B. Marks on the ground produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed, are relevant facts.

(7) The question is whether A poisoned B. The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison and habits of B known to A which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison are relevant facts.

opportunity was availed of, relevant as part of the fact in issue. (If the opportunity was not availed of, the habits are not relevant.)

SECTION 8: Illustration (a), (1).—The facts are relevant as causes of the fact in issue.

Illustration (b), (2).—The fact is relevant as a cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (c), (3).—The fact is relevant as an effect of a cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (d), (4).—The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (e), (5).—The facts are relevant, for they are all effects of the immediate cause (namely, A's resolution to commit the offence) of the fact in issue.

Illustration (f), (6).—The latter fact is relevant as an effect of the fact in issue, and the former as a cause of the latter. As to the sense in which C's statement is relevant, see remarks below, illustration (j), post.

Illustration (g), (7).—For A's going away without making any answer is an effect of the fact in issue, and the other two facts are causes of that effect.

Illustration (h), (8).—The first fact is relevant as an effect of the fact in issue, and the second as a cause of that effect.

Illustration (i), (9).—The facts are relevant as effects of a fact in issue.

Illustration (j), (10).—The facts are relevant as effects of the fact in issue. The illustration goes on to say that the fact that without making a complaint she said that she had been ravished, is not relevant as conduct under section 8, though it may be relevant as a dying declaration or as corroborative evidence. Now here, as Mr. Whitworth points out, the strict use of the term 'relevant'

---

(1) A is tried for the murder of B. That A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A, by threatening to make his knowledge public are relevant.

(2) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money. B denies the making of the bond. The fact that at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose is relevant.

(3) A is tried for the murder of B by poison. The fact that before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B, is relevant.

(4) The question is whether a certain document is the will of A. The facts that not long before the date of the alleged will, A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate, that he consulted vakils in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared of which he did not approve, are relevant.

(5) A is accused of a crime. The acts that either before or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence, or prevented the presence, or procured the absence of persons who might have been witnesses, or suborned persons to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant.

(6) The question is whether A robbed B. The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A's presence: "The police are coming to look for the man who robbed B," and that immediately afterwards A ran away, are relevant.

(7) The question is whether A owes B 10,000 rupees. The facts that A asked C to lend him money, and that B said to C in A's presence and hearing, "I advise you not to trust A, for he owes B 10,000 rupees," and that A went away without making any answer, are relevant facts.

(8) The question is whether A committed a crime. The fact that A absconded after receiving a letter warning him that inquiry was being made for the criminal, and the contents of the letter are relevant.

(9) A is accused of a crime. The facts that after the commission of the alleged crime he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of property acquired by the crime, or attempted to conceal things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.

(10) The question is whether I was ravished. The facts that shortly after the alleged rape she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which the complaint was made are relevant.

has been departed from That the woman said she had been ravished is relevant, though it does not follow that it is admissible. The fact declares when statements of fact in issue or relevant facts may be proved. When the statement is a dying declaration is one instance, that such statements may under certain circumstances be proved as corroborative evidence is another, and another is to this effect that when the conduct of any person is a relevant fact, his statements accompanying or explaining that conduct, or statements made to him or in his hearing affecting that conduct, may be proved. This has nothing to do with relevancy and the rule seems out of place in section 8. It is because the woman's statement without complaint is not admissible under this rule, that the Act says that statement is "not relevant as conduct under this section" So above in Illustrations (f), (g), (h), some of the relevant facts are statements They are also admissible as being connected with conduct They are simply pronounced relevant. It is plain that it is meant that they may be proved But that the statements are relevant in the strict sense is sufficient for the present purpose.

Illustration (i) (1) —The facts in the first sentence of the illustration are relevant as effects of the fact in issue. The fact that he said he had been robbed, without making any complaint, is relevant, though whether it is admissible or not depends upon the law relating to the question what statements may be proved.

SECTION 9 Illustration (a), (2).—The Act says the state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts. But it may be stated absolutely that so much of the state of A's property or of his family as shows probable cause for his making such a will as the alleged one, or as shows the absence of such probable cause, is relevant.

Illustration (b), (3) —Upon this issue so much of the position and relations of the parties at the time when the libel was published as shows cause for B's publishing a true libel or a false one, or the absence of such causes and so much as bears upon the matter asserted in the libel as cause of its truth or otherwise, is relevant.

The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are, the illustration says, irrelevant, because they do not make any fact in issue more or less likely to have happened. But the fact that there was a dispute is relevant if it affected any part of the position and relations of the parties defined above.

Illustration (c), (4).—The absconding is relevant as an effect of the fact in issue

The fact of the sudden call is relevant as denying the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue and the alleged relevant fact.

The details further than as stated in the illustration do not make the fact in issue more likely or unlikely to have happened.

---

(1) The question is whether A was robbed The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which and the terms in which the complaint was made, are relevant

(2) The question is whether a given document is the will of A

(3) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A; B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true.

(4) A is accused of a crime The fact that soon after the commission of the crime A absconded from his house, is relevant under s 8 as conduct subsequent to, and affected by facts in issue. The fact that at the time he left home, he had sudden and urgent business at the place to which he went, is relevant as tending to explain the fact that he left home suddenly. The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden or urgent.

Illustration (d), (1).—This statement is relevant as affirming the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue (B's persuasion) and the relevant fact (C's leaving A's service).

Illustration (e), (2).—B's statement is relevant as an effect of a fact in issue.

Illustration (f), (3).—That the riot occurred is a fact in issue, and the cries of the mob are relevant as parts or as effects of the fact.

SECTION 10: Illustration, (4).—And any of these facts that are so connected with the other fact in issue, A's complicity, as to make it more or less likely, are relevant for that purpose also SECTION 11 Illustration (a), (5).—Presence at Lahore is relevant as denying a part of the fact in issue. The other fact is relevant as making a part of the fact in issue unlikely.

Illustration (b), (6).—That the crime was committed is adduced as an effect of the fact in issue that A committed it To show that some other person committed it is relevant as denying the connection of cause and effect between the fact in issue and relevant fact; and to show that no other person committed it is relevant as affirming that connection.

SECTION 12: (7).—For the amount of damages is a fact in issue, and any fact which will enable the Court to determine it will be found to be connected with the fact in issue in one of the ways specified

SECTION 13: Illustration, (8).—The deed is relevant as a cause of the fact in issue. The mortgage is relevant as an effect of the father's right, which is relevant as a cause of A's right. The subsequent grant of A's is relevant as denying a fact implied by that relevant fact. Particular instances of exercise of the right are relevant facts as effects of the father's right. And instances in

---

(1) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him with A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A, "I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer" This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct which is relev[illegible]

[illegible] stolen pr[illegible] wife B says, as he delivers it, A says 'you are to hide this' B's statement is relevant as explanatory of a fact which is part of the transaction

(3) A is tried for a riot and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob The cries of the mob are relevant, as explanatory of the nature of the transaction

(4) Reasonable ground exists for believing that A has joined in a conspiracy to wage war against the Queen.

The fact that B procured arms in Europe for the purpose of the conspiracy, C collected money in Calcutta for a like object, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay, E published writings advocating the object in view in Agra, and F transmitted fr[illegible] mon[illegible] cont[illegible] of [illegible] exis[illegible] bee[illegible] persons by whom they were done were strangers to him, and although they may have taken place before he joined the conspiracy or after he left it.

(5) The question is whether A committed a crime at Calcutta on the certain day. The fact that, on that day, A was at Lahore is relevant The fact that near the time when the crime was committed A was at a distance from the place where it was committed, which would render it highly improbable, though not impossible, that he committed it, is relevant

(6) The question is whether A committed a crime The circumstances are such that the crime must have been committed by A, B, C or D Every fact which shows that the crime could have been committed by no one else and that it was not committed by either B, C or D, is relevant

(7) In suits in which damages are claimed, any fact which will enable the Court to determine the amount of damages which ought to be awarded is relevant

(8) The question is whether A has a right to a fishery. A deed conferring the fishery on A's ancestor's a mortgage of the fishery by A's father, a subsequent grant of the fishery by A's father, irreconcileable with the mortgage, particular instances in which A's father exercised the right, or in which the exercise of the right was stopped by A's neighbours, are relevant facts which the exercise of the right were stopped are relevant as contradicting those relevant facts

SECTION 14 : Illustration (a), (1).—The fact that, at the same time, he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant as an effect of a habit of receiving stolen goods, the habit being relevant as a cause of his receiving the particular article with a knowledge that it was stolen.

Illustration (b), (2).—The fact is relevant as effects of a habit, which habit is a cause of his delivering the particular piece with a knowledge that it was counterfeit.

Illustration (c), (3).—The facts are relevant as the causes of a fact in issue, B's knowledge that the dog was ferocious.

Illustration (d), (4).— For A's knowledge on the previous occasions are a cause of his knowledge on the occasion in question, and that there was not time for the previous bills to be transmitted to him by the payee if the payee had been a real person is a cause of his knowledge on previous occasions, and the fact that A accepted the bills is an affirmation of the connection of cause and effect between the fact concerning time and the fact of A's knowledge.

Illustration (e), (5).—The fact of previous publications is relevant as an effect of the same cause as that of which the fact in issue is an effect.

The fact that there was no previous quarrel between A and B, is relevant as alleging absence of fact in issue The fact that A reported the matter as he heard it is relevant as denying the connection of cause and effect between the two facts, the malicious intention and the publication.

Illustration (f), (6).—For A's good faith is in issue, i.e., did A, when he represented C as solvent, think him solvent ? is an issue. As C's insolvency may be put forward on one side as a cause of A's thinking him not solvent, so, that his neighbours and persons dealing with him supposed him to be solvent, may be put forward as effects of causes which are causes also of A's thinking him solvent. Thus the neighbour's suppositions are effects of causes of a fact in issue.

---

(1) A is accused of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen It is proved that he was in possession of a particular stolen article The fact that at the same time he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant, as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles of which he was in possession to be stolen.

(2) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to another person a piece of counterfeit coin which at the time when he delivered it, he knew to be counterfeit. The fact that at the time of its delivery A was possessed of a number of other pieces of counterfeit coin is relevant (The rest of the illustration was added after Mr. Whitworth's pamphlet by Act III of 1891)

(3) A sues B for damage done by a dog of B's which B knew to be ferocious. The fact that the dog had previously bitten X, Y, and Z and that they had made complaints to B, are relevant

(4) The question is whether A, the acceptor of a bill of exchange, knew that the name of the payee was fictitious.

The fact that A had accepted other bills drawn in the same manner before they could have been transmitted to him by the payee if the payee had been a real person, is relevant, as showing that A knew that the payee was a fictitious person

(5) A is accused of defaming B by publishing an imputation intended to harm the reputation of B The fact of previous publications by A respecting B, showing ill-will, on the part of A towards B is relevant as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question. The facts that there was no previous quarrel between A and B, and that B repeated the matter complained of as he heard it, are relevant as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B.

(6) A is sued by B for fraudulently representing to B that C was solvent, whereby B, being induced to trust C, who was insolvent, suffered loss The fact that, at the time when A represented C to be solvent, C was supposed to be solvent by his neighbours and by persons dealing with him, is relevant, as showing that A made the representation in good faith

Illustration (g), (1).—The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant. For it is in issue,—was B's contract with A? Therefore that A contracted for the same piece of work with C is relevant as showing absence of cause to contract with B, and that he paid C is relevant as an effect of the relevant fact that he contracted with C.

Illustration (h), (2).—The fact of notice is relevant as a cause of his knowledge that the real owner could be found.

The other fact is relevant as showing that the alleged cause of the fact in issue had not the effect of causing the fact in issue.

Illustration (i), (3).—For A's intention is a fact in issue. The fact is one which may continue through a space of time, and the previous shooting is an effect of it.

Illustration (j), (4).—For the intention to cause fear is a fact in issue. It is a fact capable of prolonged existence, and the previous letters may be effects of it.

Should it, however, be objected that the fact in issue is intention at a particular moment and not intention through a space of time, Mr. Whitworth's reply is, that previous intention is a cause of subsequent intention, or both are effects of the same cause.

Illustration (k), (5).—The expressions are relevant as effects of the cause of the fact in issue or as showing absence of cause of the fact in issue

Illustration (l), (6).—The statements are relevant as effects of effects of the fact in issue.

Illustration (m), (7).—The statements are relevant as effects of the fact in issue.

Illustration (n), (8).—The drawing of B's attention is relevant as a cause of B's knowledge, which is a fact in issue

The fact that B was habitually negligent is irrelevant, for it is not connected with the fact in issue.

---

(1) A is sued by B for the price of work done by B upon a house of which A is owner, by the order of C, a contractor A's defence is that B's contract was with C The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant, as proving that A did, in good faith, make over to C the management of the work in question, so that C was in a position to contract with B on C's account and not as agent for A

(2) A is accused of the dishonest misappropriation of property which he had found, and the question is whether, when he appropriated it, he believed in good faith that the real owner could not be found The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was is relevant, as showing that A did not in good faith believe that the real owner of the property could not be found. The fact that A knew, or had reason to believe, that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property and wished to set up a false claim to it, is relevant, as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove A's good faith.

(3) A is charged with shooting at B with intent to kill him The fact of A's having previously shot at B may be proved

(4) A is charged with sending threatening letters to B Threatening letters previously sent by A to B may be proved at showing the intention of the letters.

(5) The question is whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife Expressions of their feeling towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty are relevant facts.

(6) The question is whether A's death was caused by poison Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms, are relevant fact

(7) The question is, what was the state of his health at the time when an assurance on his life was effected Statements made by A as to the state of his health at, or near, the time in question are relevant facts

(8) A sues B for negligence in providing him with a carriage for hire not reasonably fit for use whereby A was injured. The fact that B's attention was drawn on other occasions to the defect of that particular carriage is relevant The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he let to hire is irrelevant

Illustration (a), (1).—The fact is relevant as an effect of a fact in issue, B's intention

The fact that A was in the habit of shooting at people is irrelevant, for it is not connected with a fact in issue

Mr. Whitworth adds that this case, in which a habit is declared irrelevant, has some resemblance to that of Illustration (a), where a habit is relevant, but that there is a real difference between the two. He says "The man who habitually shoots at people with intent to murder them has in each case a definite intention of killing the particular person shot at. There is not, as far as the facts are stated, any ulterior common object to connect together the fact of the previous shooting and the fact in issue But in the case of receiving stolen property the ulterior common object of making dishonest gain by receiving supplies the connection"

Illustration (p), (2) —The first fact is relevant as an effect of the cause of his committing the crime

The second fact is irrelevant, as it is not connected with the fact in issue, namely, whether he committed the particular crime.

SECTION 15 Illustration (a), (3) —The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of the fact in issue.

Illustration (b), (4).—The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of A's making the particular false entry intentionally

Illustration (c), (5).—The facts are relevant as effects of the cause of the intentional delivery of the rupee in question.

SECTION 16 Illustration (a), (6).—The facts are relevant as causes of the fact in issue.

Illustration (b), (7) —The facts are relevant, the first as a cause of the fact in issue, and the second as affirming the connection of cause and effect between the first and the fact in issue.

Mr. Whitworth was unfortunately prevented by want of leisure from dealing generally with the criticisms which his essay provoked One of these

---

(1) A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him dead. The fact that A on other occasions shot at B is relevant as showing his intention to shoot B The fact that he was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant

(2) A is tried for a crime The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime is relevant The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class, is irrelevant

(3) A is accused of burning down his house in order to obtain money for which it is insured The facts that A lived in several houses successively, each of which he insured, in each of which a fire occurred, and after each of which fires A received payment from a different insurance office, are relevant, as tending to show that the fires were not accidental

(4) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B It is his duty to make entries in a book, showing the amount received by him He makes an entry showing that on a particular occasion he received less than he really did receive The question is whether this false entry was accidental or intentional The facts that other entries made by A in the same book are false and that the false entry is in each case in favour of A are relevant

(5) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to B a counterfeit rupee The question is whether the delivery of the rupee was accidental The facts that soon before or soon after the delivery to B, A delivered counterfeit rupees to C, D and E are relevant, as showing that the delivery to B was not accidental

(6) The question is whether a particular letter was despatched The facts that it was the ordinary course of business for all letters put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that that particular letter was put into that place are relevant.

(7) The question is whether a particular letter reached A. The fact that it was posted in due course, and was not returned through the Dead Letter Office are relevant.

was that his first rule was a practical abandonment of the scientific form of the others. Mr. Whitworth's answer to this in his Preface to the Second Edition of his Pamphlet was that an examination of the connection of the first with the other rules would show that their scientific form was of independent value. The second, third and fourth rules supplied, he contended, a definition of relevancy and would be complete if the subject were the theory of relevancy absolutely. The qualification applied by the first rule was required, because the subject is the theory of relevancy for the purpose of judicial evidence. The theory is on purpose is another. He added :—"I express at once both the principle and propounded one rule (an unscientific one) as to the limitation and three others (scientific in form) as to the principle. But the importance or unimportance of the failure is to be measured by considering whether questions of difficulty in actual practice usually relate to the limitation of the principle or to the principle itself; in other words, whether, for the solution of such questions unscientific or scientific rules are provided Now the first rule relates chiefly to what Sir James Stephen speaks of as "wide general causes which apply to all occurrences, are, in most cases, admitted and do not require proof. and the test in cases of disputed relevancy will, I think, usually be found to be one of the other, the scientific rules."

The theory contained in Mr Whitworth's essay was subsequently adopted by Sir James Stephen himself in the earlier editions of his Digest of the Law of Evidence.(1) In the present edition Sir J. F. Stephen substituted another definition of relevancy in place of that contained in the earlier editions and taken from Mr. Whitworth's essay, not as Sir J. F. Stephen observes, because he thought the former definition wrong, but because it gave rather the principle on which the rule depends than a convenient practical rule.(2)

Dr. Wharton(3) while defining relevancy as that which conduces to the proof of a pertinent hypothesis, a pertinent hypothesis being one which, if sustained, would logically influence the issue, and adopting several of Sir J. F. Stephen's positions, offers two criticisms as explaining why he cannot accept his scheme as affording a complete solution of the difficulties which beset this branch of evidence. In the first place, the words "cause" and "effect" are open, when used in this connection, to an objection which, though subtle, is in some cases fatal. The "cause" [illegible] yet whether such a cause produced such [illegible] instituted to try; and it is a petitio principii [illegible] vant because it is the "cause" and that it is shown to be the cause because it is relevant. In the second place., the distinction between "facts in issue" and "facts relevant to facts in issue" cannot be sustained. An issue is never raised as to an evidential fact; the only issues the law knows are those which affirm or deny conclusions from one or more evidential facts Thus, Sir J. F. Stephen when explaining the supposed distinction says "A is indicted for the murder of B and pleads guilty. The following facts may be in issue: the fact that A killed B, etc." But if the group of facts classified as facts in issue be scrutinized, it will be found that, as they are facts which could not be put in evidence, they are not relevant facts, though they might be relevant hypotheses to be sustained by relevant fact. If Counsel should ask a witness whether "A killed B" the question would, if excepted to, be ruled out, on the ground that

---

(1) Steph Dig., pp 156, 157

(2) Ib. p 158 The substituted definition is given, p. 25 post, in the Introduction to Ch. II

(3) A Commentary on the Law of Evidence in Civil Issues by F. Wharton, LL D., 3rd Ed., 1888, Philadelphia, §§ 20, 26

it called not for "facts," but for a conclusion from facts, and to such conclusions witnesses are not permitted to testify.(1) The only way of proving "facts in issue," as they are called by Sir J. F. Stephen, is by means of what he calls "facts relevant to the issue." Did A kill B? We cannot say that it would be relevant to the issue for a witness to say "A killed B," for a witness would not be permitted so to testify. No facts are relevant which are inadmissible; and the fact that A killed B, being in this shape inadmissible, is irrelevant. It is, however, admissible, adopting Sir J. F. Stephen's illustration of facts relevant to the issue to prove that "A had a motive for murdering B; the fact that A admitted that he had murdered B" and the like From such facts, taken in connection with facts which lead to the conclusion that A struck the blow from which B died, the hypothesis that A murdered B is to be verified or discarded. We must, therefore, it is said, strike out from the category of relevant facts what Sir J. F. Stephen calls "facts in issue," or what may be more properly called pertinent hypotheses and limit ourselves to the position that all facts relevant to "facts in issue" (or to pertinent hypotheses) are, as a rule, admissible. If we discard as ambiguous the word "fact" and substitute for it the word "condition," then the position we may accept is that all conditions of a pertinent hypothesis are relevant to the issue; and that such conditions may be either proved or disproved.(2)

The other class of criticism to which we have referred is altogether adverse to the system on which the Act proceeds, namely, its departure from the principle of English law which consists of negative rules declaring what (as the expression runs), is not evidence and its attempt instead to positively define evidence by placing its rules wholly into terms of relevancy. As pointed out by Professor Thayer(3), it is here that Sir James Stephen's treatment of the Law of Evidence is perplexing and has the aspect of a tour de force Helpful as his writings on this subject have been, they are injured by the small consideration that he shows for the historical aspect of the matter and by the over-ingenious attempt to put the rules of evidence wholly into terms of relevancy.(4) The difficulty of dealing with the subject of evidence is increased by the confused way in which in several respects the subject is treated in the Act, particularly the obscurity which is thrown over the rules of evidence by the false assumption that rules of exclusion are based solely upon irrelevancy. (5) Ss. 5-16 are, even when intelligible, for the most part difficult to practically apply, and as the practising lawyer knows, many of them are scarcely ever referred to, and then only for the most part to support a case for the reception of "evidence" which, bears on its face so little the aspect of relevance that for an attempt to receive its admission, some section or other must be pressed into service. The Legislature has entertained the idea of instructing Judges and juries as to what constitutes relevancy giving as Mr. Markby says(6) in s. 7 a statement in quasi-scientific language of the meaning of relevancy; in s. 11 a statement in popular language of what in s. 7 is attempted to be stated in scientific language, and lastly an enumeration of a few facts which are declared to be relevant, though the catalogue of such relevant facts is inexhaustible. The truth is that everybody is assumed (and rightly assumed) to know what evidence is in the sense that the law takes it for granted that people know

---

(1) See Wharton, Ev., § 507

(2) Wharton, Ev., § 26

(3) Who during, at any rate, the last century was, as Mr. Markby justly says, the only writer who added much to our knowledge of the principles of evidence since Bentham Markby's Evidence Act, Introd.

(4) Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on Evidence at the Common Law, p. 266*n*. The whole of Vol. VI in which this passage occurs is worthy, indeed the rest of the work, of the closest study.

(5) See Markby's Evidence Act, Introd.

(6) Id. 17.

how to find out what is and what is not probative as a matter of reason and general experience (1) The rules which govern here are the general rules which govern everywhere; the ordinary rules of human thought and human experience to be sought in the ordinary sources and not in law books. There is a principle—not so much a rule of evidence as a pre-supposition involved in the very conception of a rational system of evidence as contrasted with the old formal and mechanical systems, which forbids receiving anything irrelevant that is not logically probative.(2) How, asks Professor Thayer(3), are we to know what these forbidden things are? Not by any rule of law. The English law furnishes no test of relevancy. For this it tacitly refers to logic and general experience—assuming that the principles of reasoning are known to its Judges and Ministers just as a vast multitude of other things are assumed as already sufficiently known to them. Unless excluded by some rule or principle of law all that is logically probative is admissible The Judge simply has to ask himself —Does testimony of this fact help me to determine the issue I have to decide? Whether it does or not his reason and experience will tell him. If it does not, then the rule of reason excludes it If it does, then since there are tests of admissibility other than logical relevancy, inquiry must be made whether there is any rule of law which excludes it It is this excluding function which is the characteristic one in the English law of Evidence, which is, as Professor Thayer calls it, the child of the jury system. It seems, he says(4), "that our Law of Evidence, while it is emphatically a rational system, as contrasted with the old formal methods, is yet a peculiar one In the shape it has taken, it is not at all a necessary development of the rational method of proof; so that where people did not have the jury or having once had it, did not keep it, as on the continent of Europe, although they no less than we, worked out as on the continent of Europe although they, no less than we worked out a rational system, they developed under the head of evidence no separate and systematized branch of the law"

The main object of the law is to determine not so much what is admissible in proof as what is inadmissible Assuming in general that what is evidential is receivable, it is occupied in pointing out what part of this mass of matter is excluded, and it denies to this excluded part not the name of evidence but the name of admissible evidence Some things are rejected as being of too slight a significance, or as having too conjectural and remote a connection; others as being dangerous in their effect on the jury and likely to be misused or overestimated by that body, others as being unpolitic or unsafe on public grounds; others on the bare ground of precedent It is in fact this sort of thing:—the rejection on one or [illegible] at is really probative, which is characteristic o[illegible] stamping it as the child of the jury system.(5) [illegible]mined, first by relevancy—an affair of logic and experience and not at all of law; secondly,

(1) Thayer op cit, 268*n*

(2) Id 275, 264

(3) Id 265

(4) Id 270

(5) Id 264-269 It is thus the creature of experience rather than of logic Founded as being a rational system upon the laws of thought, it yet recognizes another influence (the jury) that must at every moment be taken into account, for it is this which brought it into being, as it is the absence of this which alone accounts for the non-existence of it in all other than English-speaking countries, whether ancient or modern, Id 267-268 In fact it may be added that the English rules of evidence are never very scrupulously attended to by tribunals, which, like the Court of Chancery, adjudicate both on law as on fact through the same organs and the same procedure Maine's Village Communities, 3rd Ed, 302 but only indirectly, by the law of evidence which declares whether any given matter which is logically probative is excluded.

A practical experience of many years in the working of the Act shows it to be a matter of regret that the English system which has its basis in the historical reasons to which we have referred, was rejected in favour of the attempt at a constructive treatment adopted in sections 5-16 of the Act. As Mr. Markby very justly puts it (1) "What then, it will be asked, is a Judge to do when he has to consider whether a fact is relevant? In the first place I answer that this is a question which he has very rarely to consider. Parties to a litigation or their advocates very rarely attempt to offer irrelevant evidence. Their only object in doing so would be to waste time. They hope to influence the opinion of the Judge—and this they cannot expect to do by evidence which is really irrelevant. But if a Judge thinks that he is being asked to listen to what is really irrelevant he would certainly not resort to any abstruse consideration, about cause and effect, he would simply consult his own experience." The real discussions which take place before a Judge upon evidence are, as he points out, not as to its relevancy but as to its admissibility. And this Act would have been far more intelligible if the language of it had corresponded with a collection of rules not upon relevancy but upon admissibility. In that case whilst their own reason and common-sense would have told the Judge and parties what was relevant, it would only have been necessary on an objection to look into the provisions of the Act to see whether there was any rule prohibiting the reception of the particular evidence in question. Whether or no certain kinds of evidence shall be admissible depends on a variety of considerations besides relevancy: and the putting forward of relevancy in the Act as if it were the only test is not only erroneous but unfortunate, as it makes the Act difficult to explain and adds to the mystery by which this branch of the law is usually supposed to be surrounded. There is, however, no mystery about the matter if it be remembered that the ordinary processes of reasoning or argument are not left at the door of the Court House and that within it the law does not properly undertake to regulate these processes except as helping by certain rules which may be presented in a readily intelligible manner to discriminate and select the material of fact upon which these are to operate. Legal reasoning, at bottom, is like all other reasoning though practical considerations come in to shape it. Rules, principles and methods of legal reasoning have, however, figured as rules of evidence to the perplexity and confusion of those who sought for a strong grasp of the subject. The notion may be dismissed that legal reasoning is some natural process by which the human mind is required to infer what does not logically follow. What is called the "legal mind" is still the human mind and must reason according to the laws of its constitution. But to understand properly the law of evidence one must detach and hold apart from it all that belongs to that other untechnical and far wider subject.(2) The position may be summed up by saying that the laws of reasoning indicate what facts are relevant. The law of evidence declares which of those facts are inadmissible. These latter should be concisely stated and codified. But just as other organic processes are ordinarily and in most cases are the better carried on unconsciously, so little of use is attained and the risk of confusion is involved in an attempted analysis of that of the reason. The common sense and experience of both the parties and the Judge will tell them what they have to prove and what should be proved, and what is relevant for that purpose. And if these do not, abstract considerations of causality will not help them, interesting though these may be in inquiries less practical than those which come before a Court of Justice.(1)

(1) Evidence Act, pp 17, 18. According to the learned author notwithstanding that this is an Act which professes to contain the whole law of evidence, two at least of the general rules of exclusion (including that against hearsay) are not treated in it. The language of s. 60, he contends does not, as is generally supposed, exclude hearsay.

(2) Thayer op cit, Ch VI, and the same Author's select cases on Evidence, 1-4.

---

(1) As matters now stand on an objection to evidence the party tendering it has to search the Act for the section which justifies its reception This is not always an easy matter, and it is probably owing to this and a not unnatural reluctance to enter into the mazes of the law of causality that there is such popular resort to s 11. In a Code which aimed merely at embodying the rules of exclusion, all evidence would be primâ facie admissible unless the objecting party could show some positive rule in the Code excluding it.

ACT No. I OF 1872.

PASSED BY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

(Received the assent of the Governor General on the 15th March 1872.

THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872.

The Title of an Act may be resorted to, to explain an enacting clause when doubtful.(1) As to the title of an Act giving colour to, and controlling its provisions, vide note.(2)

The law of evidence applicable in every case is that of the lex fori which "governs the Courts whether a witness is competent or not, whether a certain matter requires to be proved by writing or not, whether certain evidence proves a certain fact or not, these and the like questions must be determined, not lega loci contractus but by the law of the country where the question arises, where the remedy is sought to be enforced and where the Court sits to enforce it "(3) As to the law applicable in this country (vide post). Lex fori

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate, define and amend the Law of Evidence; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

COMMENTARY.

The Preamble shows that this Act is not merely a fragmentary enactment, but a consolidatory enactment repealing all rules of evidence other than those saved by the last part of the second section.(4) The Preamble

The Law of Evidence applicable to British India is contained in this Act and in certain Statutes, Acts, and Regulations relating to the subject of evidence saved by the proviso of the second section, or enacted subsequent to this Act. This Act does not therefore contain the whole of the law of evidence. It has repealed all rules of evidence not contained in any Statute, Act, or Regulation in force in any part of British India. A person tendering evidence must therefore show that such evidence is admissible under some provision either of this Act or of the Acts abovementioned, for there are no other rules of evidence in force in British India except such as are contained in these Acts. So where certain administration-papers were tendered on behalf of the plaintiff, the Privy Council observed and held "The Indian Evidence Act has repealed all rules of evidence not contained in any Statute or Regulation, and the plaintiff must therefore show that these papers are admissible

(1) Hurro Chunder v. Shooro Dhonee, 9 W. R., 402, 404, 405 (F. B.), (1868), see Salkeld v. Johnson, 2 Exch., 256, 282, 283

(2) Uda Begam v. Imam-ud-din, 2 A., 90 (1878), and see Alangamonjori v. Sonamoni, 8 C., 637, 639, 643 (1882), Crawford v. Spooner, 4 M. I. A., 179, 187 (1846)

(3) Bain v. Whitehaven Railway Co, 3 H. L. Cas., 1, 19, per Lord Brougham.

(4) Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A., 35 (1889). As to construction of consolidating Acts, see Introduction.

under some provision of the Indian Evidence Act."(1) "Instead of assuming the English Law of Evidence, and then inquiring what changes the Evidence Act has made in it, the Act should be regarded as containing the scheme of the law, the principles, and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence."(2) The Evidence Act is, as it was intended to be, a complete Code of the Law of Evidence for British India.(3)

ings

The Headings prefixed to sections or set of sections are regarded as preambles to those sections.(4) The headings are not to be treated as if they were marginal notes, or were introduced into the Act merely for the purpose of classifying the enactments. They constitute an important part of the Act itself, and may be read not only as explaining the sections which immediately follow them, as a preamble to a Statute may be looked to, to explain its enactments, but as affording a better way to the construction of the sections which follow than might be afforded by a mere preamble.(5)

tion es

Legislative definitions or interpretations, being necessarily of a very general nature, not only do not control, but are controlled by, subsequent and express provisions on the subject-matter of the same definition, they are by no means to be strictly construed, they must yield to enactments of a special and precise nature, and, like words in Schedules, they are received rather as general examples than as overruling provisions (6) The effect of an interpretation-clause is to give the meaning assigned by it to the word interpreted in all places of the Act in which that word occurs wherever that word appears, it must, unless the contrary plainly appear be understood in accordance with the meaning put upon it by the interpretation-clause But it is by no means the effect of an interpretation-clause that the thing defined shall have annexed to it every incident which may seem to be attached to it by any other Act of the Legislature.(7) Where a definition "includes" certain persons or things, it does not, therefore, necessarily exclude other persons and things not so included; for when a definition is intended to be exclusive, it would seem the form of words (as in the definition of "fact") is "means and includes."(8) Where a particular expression has for a long time previously acquired a special technical signification, that special sense, in the absence of a defining clause in the Act, may be attached to that expression.(9)

tra-
s

The words of the section are not limited to the Illustrations given Illustrations ought never to be allowed to control the plain meaning of the section itself, and certainly they ought not to do so, where the effect would be to curtail a right which the section in its ordinary sense would confer (10) Illustrations, although attached to, do not in legal strictness form part of the Acts,

---

(1) See Lekhraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 7 I A, 70 (1879); 5 C., 754 · 6 C. L. R, 593; also Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A, 11, 12, 19, 20, 34, 35, 43 (1889) This section in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself. R v. Abdullah, 7 A., 309 (1885) (but see also ib, p 401). Muhammad Allahdad v Muhammad Ismail, 10 A, 235 (1888); R v. Pitamber Jena, 2 B., 64 (1877)

(2) R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 491 (1878). per Jackson, J.

(3) R. v. Kartick Chunder, 14 C, 721, 728, F. B. (1887).

(4) Maxwell on Statutes, 65.

(5) Eastern Counties, etc, Companies v. Marriage, 9 H L C, 41

(6) Uda Begam v Imam-ud din, 2 A, 74, 86 (1878); Dwarris on Statutes, 2nd Ed. (1848), 509; R. v Justices of Cambridgeshire, 7 A & E, 480, 491.

(7) Uma Churn v. Ajadanissa Bibee, 12 C, 430, 432, 433 (1885), see also R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 492 (1878)

(8) R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 493 (1878)

(9) Ruckmaboye v. Lulloobhoy Motichund, 5 M. I A, 234 (1852); Futteshangji Jasvantsangji v. Dessai Kullianraiji, 21 W. R, 178 (1874).

(10) Koylash Chunder v. Sonatun Chun, 7 C., 132, 135 (1881), s c, 8 C. L. R, 283 "Exempla illustrant non restringunt legem," Co. Litt., 24 (a).

and are not absolutely binding on the Courts. They merely go to show the intention of the framers of the Acts, and in that and other respects they may be useful, provided they are correct.(1) The practice of looking more at the Illustrations than at the words of the section of the Act is a mistake. The Illustrations are only intended to assist in construing the language of the Act.(2)

Margin Notes.

It has been held in England that marginal notes are no part of sections so as to throw light upon questions of construction, and that they are merely abstracts of the clauses intended to catch the eye and to make the task of reference easier and more expeditious.(3) As regards Indian Acts, there appears to have been some difference of opinion. In the undermentioned case(4) the Court was disposed to think that such notes might be used for the purpose of interpreting Indian Acts, the State Publication of such Acts being framed with marginal notes. In a subsequent case(5) Petheram, C. J., referred to the marginal notes to s. 5, Act XXI of 1870, and s. 149, Act V of 1881, and said that although the marginal notes were not any part of the Act, they did indicate the object of the sections ; and in a still more recent decision,(6) it was said with reference to s. 147 of the Criminal Procedure Code :—" The only reference to easements is in the marginal note which is no part of the enactment , but even the marginal note does not restrict the application of the section in the manner suggested." In both of these cases the Court, while holding that marginal notes formed no part of an enactment, appear to have referred to the same on the question of construction. In, however, the latest reported decisions the Court held that marginal notes did not form part of the section and could not be referred to for the purpose of construing it (7)

General Construction of the Act.

General observations on this matter are contained in the Introduction to which the reader is referred The modern general rule is that Statutes must be construed according to their plain meaning, neither adding to, nor subtracting from, them.(8) The Court will put a reasonable construction upon an Act, and will not allow the strict language of a section to prevent their giving it such a construction.(9) In considering the rules of evidence it is necessary to look to the reason of the matter.(10) A construction effecting a most

(1) Nanak Ram v Mehin Lal, 1 A , 487, 495, 496 (1877), see also Dubey Sahai v Ganesh Lal, 1 A., 34, 36 (1875)

(2) Shaikh Omed v Nidhee Ram, 22 W. R , 367 (1874), see also R v. Rahimat, 1 B , 147, 155 (1876); Soorjo Narain v. Bissambhur Singh, 23 W. R , 311 (1875); Gujju Lall v Futteh Lall, 6 C , 171, 185, 187 (1880) [illustration referred to to show meaning of word in s 13, post]; R v Chidda Khan, 3 A , 573, 575 (1881) (id)

(3) Wilberforce, 293, 214, Maxwell, 52; Hard castle, 3rd Ed., 205, Claydon v Green, 3 C P , 511, Sutton v Sutton, 22 Ch D , 511 (1882), correcting dictum in In re Vesour's Settled Estates, 2 Ch D , 522, 525

(4) Kameshar Prasad v Bhikan Narain, 20 C , 609 (1893), per Pigot, J , at p 628.

(5) Administrator-General, Bengal v Prem Lall, 21 C., 758 (1894)

(6) Dukhi Mullah v Halway, 23 C , 55, 59 (1895)

(7) Punardeo Narain v Ram Sarup, 25 C., 858 (1898); Thakurain Balraj v. Rai Jagatpal, 8 C. W. N , 699 (1904), s c , 26 A., 393.

(8) Maxwell, 2, Gureebulah Sirkar v Mohun Lall, 7 C , 127 (1881), when the terms of an Act are clear and plain, it is the duty of the Court to give effect to it as it stands Philpott v St George's Hospital, 6 H. L. Cas., 338, Buzloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 8 W R , P C , 3, 12 (1867), s c , 11 M. I A., 551, 604, R. v. Bal Krishna, 17 B , 577, 578 (1893), but many cases may be quoted, in which, in order to avoid injustice or absurdity, words of general import have been restricted to particular meanings, ib, 578, Bamasoonderee v Verner, 13 B L. R., 193 (1874); Wells v. L T & S Ry Co, 5 Ch D., 126, 130; Eastern Counties, etc , Companies v Marriage, 9 H L C , 32, 36

(9) Gureebullah Sirkar v. Mohun Lal, supra, 130, as to " latent propositions of law , " see Leman v. Damodaraya, 1 M , 158 (1876).

(10) Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall, 6 C , 171, 182 (1880) " All rules must be construed with reference to their object " per Erle, J., in Phelps v. Prew, 3 E & B., 441. So also Couch, C J , in Beharee Lall v. Kaminee Soondaree. 14 W. R , 319, 320 (1870), in dealing with the subject-matter of s 92, post said, " in applying the rule we must always consider what is the reason of it."

under some provision of the Indian Evidence Act."(1) "Instead of assuming the English Law of Evidence, and then inquiring what changes the Evidence Act has made in it, the Act should be regarded as containing the scheme of the law, the principles, and the application of these principles to the cases of most frequent occurrence."(2) The Evidence Act is, as it was intended to be, a complete Code of the Law of Evidence for British India.(3)

adings

The Headings prefixed to sections or set of sections are regarded as preambles to those sections.(4) The headings are not to be treated as if they were marginal notes, or were introduced into the Act merely for the purpose of classifying the enactments. They constitute an important part of the Act itself, and may be read not only as explaining the sections which immediately follow them, as a preamble to a Statute may be looked to, to explain its enactments, but as affording a better way to the construction of the sections which follow than might be afforded by a mere preamble.(5) eretation uses

Legislative definitions or interpretations, being necessarily of a very general nature, not only do not control, but are controlled by, subsequent and express provisions on the subject-matter of the same definition; they are by no means to be strictly construed, they must yield to enactments of a special and precise nature, and, like words in Schedules, they are received rather as general examples than as overruling provisions (6) The effect of an interpretation-clause is to give the meaning assigned by it to the word interpreted in all places of the Act in which that word occurs, wherever that word appears it must, unless the contrary plainly appear, be understood in accordance with the meaning put upon it by the interpretation-clause. But it is by no means the effect of an interpretation-clause that the thing defined shall have annexed to it every incident which may seem to be attached to it by any other Act of the Legislature.(7) Where a definition "includes" certain persons or things it does not, therefore, necessarily exclude other persons and things not so included, for when a definition is intended to be exclusive, it would seem that form of words (as in the definition of "fact") is "means and includes."(8) acquired a special of a defining clau lustraons

The words of the section are not limited to the Illustrations given. Illustrations ought never to be allowed to control the plain meaning of the section [illegible] contrary they ought not to do so, where the effect would be to cut sense would confer.(10) Illus-strictness form part of the Act.

---

(1) See Lekhraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 7 I A, 70 (1879), 5 C., 754; 6 C. L. R, 593; also Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A., 11, 12, 19, 20, 34, 35, 43 (1889). This section in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself. R. v. Abdullah, 7 A, 309 (1885) (but see also ib, p. 401) Muhammad Allahdad v Muhammad Ismail, 10 A, 235 (1888); R v Pitamber Jena, 2 B., 61 (1877)

(2) R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 491 (1878), per Jackson, J.

(3) R. v. Kartick Chunder, 14 C., 721, 723, F. B. (1887).

(4) Maxwell on Statutes, 65.

(5) Eastern Counties, etc., Companies v. Marriage, 9 H. L C., 41

(6) Uda Begam v. Imam-ud-din, 2 A, 74, 80 (1878), Dwarris on Statutes, 2nd Ed. (1848), 509, R v Justices of Cambridgeshire, 7 A & E, 480, 491.

(7) Uma Churn v Ajadanissa Bibee, 12 C, 430, 432, 433 (1885), see also R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 492 (1878)

(8) R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 493 (1878)

(9) Ruckmaboye v Lulloobhoy Motichund, 5 M I. A, 234 (1852), Futteshangji Jasvantsangji v. Desai Kulhanraji, 21 W. R, 178 (1874).

(10) Koylash Chunder v Sonatun Chun, 7 C., 132, 135 (1881), s c, 8 C L R, 283 "Exempla illustrant non restringunt legem," Co Litt., 24 (a).

and are not absolutely binding on the Courts. They merely go to show the intention of the framers of the Acts, and in that and other respects they may be useful, provided they are correct.(1) The practice of looking more at the Illustrations than at the words of the section of the Act is a mistake. The Illustrations are only intended to assist in construing the language of the Act.(2)

Marginal Notes.

It has been held in England that marginal notes are no part of sections so as to throw light upon questions of construction, and that they are merely abstracts of the clauses intended to catch the eye and to make the task of reference easier and more expeditious.(3) As regards Indian Acts, there appears to have been some difference of opinion. In the undermentioned case(4) the Court was disposed to think that such notes might be used for the purpose of interpreting Indian Acts, the State Publication of such Acts being framed with marginal notes. In a subsequent case(5) Petheram, C. J., referred to the marginal notes to s. 5, Act XXI of 1870, and s. 149, Act V of 1881, and said that although the marginal notes were not any part of the Act, they did indicate the object of the sections; and in a still more recent decision,(6) it was said with reference to s. 147 of the Criminal Procedure Code —"The only reference to easements is in the marginal note which is no part of the enactment, but even the marginal note does not restrict the application of the section in the manner suggested." In both of these cases the Court, while holding that marginal notes formed no part of an enactment, appear to have referred to the same on the question of construction. In, however, the latest reported decisions the Court held that marginal notes did not form part of the section and could not be referred to for the purpose of construing it (7)

General Construction of the Act.

General observations on this matter are contained in the Introduction to which the reader is referred. The modern general rule is that Statutes must be construed according to their plain meaning, neither adding to, nor subtracting from, them.(8) The Court will put a reasonable construction upon an Act, and will not allow the strict language of a section to prevent their giving it such a construction.(9) In considering the rules of evidence it is necessary to look to the reason of the matter.(10) A construction effecting a most

(1) Nanak Ram v. Mehin Lal, 1 A., 487, 495, 496 (1877), see also Dubey Sahai v. Ganeshi Lal, 1 A., 34, 36 (1875)

(2) Shaikh Omed v. Nidher Ram, 22 W. R., 367 (1874); see also R. v. Rahimat, 1 B., 147, 155 (1876); Soorjo Narain v. Bissambhur Singh, 23 W. R., 311 (1875), Gujju Lall v. Fulteh Lall, 6 C., 171, 185, 187 (1880) (illustration referred to to show meaning of word in s. 13, post), R. v. Chidda Khan, 3 A., 573, 575 (1881) (id.)

(3) Wilberforce, 293, 214, Maxwell, 52, Hardcastle, 3rd Ed., 205, Claydon v. Green, 3 C. P., 511, Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D., 511 (1882), correcting dictum in In re Venour's Settled Estates, 2 Ch. D., 522, 525

(4) Kameshar Prasad v. Bhikan Narain, 20 C., 609 (1893); per Pigot, J., at p. 628.

(5) Administrator-General, Bengal v. Prem Lall, 21 C., 758 (1894)

(6) Dukhi Mullah v. Halway, 23 C., 55, 59 (1895)

(7) Punardeo Narain v. Ram Sarup, 25 C., 858 (1898); Thakurain Balraj v. Rai Jagatpal, 8 C. W. N., 699 (1904); s. c., 26 A., 393.

(8) Maxwell, 2, Gureebulah Sirkar v. Mohun Lall, 7 C., 127 (1881); when the terms of an Act are clear and plain, it is the duty of the Court to give effect to it as it stands Philpott v. St George's Hospital, 6 H. L. Cas., 338, Buzloor Ruheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, 8 W. R., P. C., 3, 12 (1867), s. c., 11 M. I. A., 551, 604, R. v. Bal Krishna, 17 B., 577, 578 (1893), but many cases may be quoted, in which, in order to avoid injustice or absurdity, words of general import have been restricted to particular meanings, ib., 578; Bamasoonderee v. Verner, 13 B. L. R., 193 (1874); Wells v. L. T. & S. Ry. Co., 5 Ch. D., 126, 130, Eastern Counties, etc., Companies v. Marriage, 9 H. L. C., 32, 36

(9) Gureebullah Sirkar v. Mohun Lal, supra, 130, as to "latent propositions of law," see Leman v. Damodaraya, 1 M., 158 (1876).

(10) Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C., 171, 182 (1880) "All rules must be construed with reference to their object" per Erle, J., in Phelps v. Prew, 3 E. & B., 441. So also Couch, C. J., in Beharee Lall v. Kaminee Soondaree 14 W. R., 319, 320 (1870), in dealing with the subject-matter of s. 92 post said, "in applying the rule we must always consider what is the reason of it."

important departure from the English rule of evidence was considered in the under-mentioned case.(1) Whatever be the meaning of a word in one portion of a section, the meaning of the same word in another portion must, according to the principles of construction, be the same.(2) The meaning of a word may be ascertained by reference to the words with which it is associated, and its use in a particular sense in subsequent parts of the Act ;(3) and to its allocation in a section with other conditions of a certain character.(4) A construction making surplusage should be avoided (5) "In order to a conclusion on a question of construction, it is relevant that the Indian Evidence Act was passed by the Legislature under the direction of a skilled lawyer: that the construction of the Act is marked by careful and methodical arrangement, and that many of the more important expressions used in it are plainly interpreted. It would be wholly inconsistent with the plan of such an enactment that a specific rule contained in one part of it should at the same time be contained in, or deducible from, one or more other rules relating apparently to topics quite distinct, which rules should be at the same time so expressed as to include not merely the specific rule in question, but also matters which that rule taken by itself would specifically exclude."(6) A construction may be adopted by reference to the entirety of a section and also to other sections (7) The word "may" in a Statute is sometimes, for the purpose of giving effect to the intention of the Legislature, interpreted as equivalent to "must" or "shall," but in the absence of proof of such intention, it is construed in its natural, and therefore in a permissive, and not in an obligatory sense (8) It is not for a Civil Court to speculate upon what was in the mind of the Legislature in passing a law: but the Court must be bound by the words of the law judicially construed.(9) The intention of the Legislature must be ascertained from the words of a Statute, and not from any general inferences to be drawn from the nature of the objects dealt with by the Statute.(10) The Court knows nothing of the intention of an Act, except from the words in which it is expressed applied to the facts existing at the time.(11) In case of doubt or difficulty over the interpretation of any of the sections of the Evidence Act, reference for help should be made both to the case-law of the land which existed before the passing of the Act, and also to juristic principles, which only represent the common consensus

---

(1) Ranchoddas Krishnadas v Bapu Narhar, 10 B, 439, 442 (1886), Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lal, supra, 189 (intention to depart entirely from English rule); Probhakarbhat v. Vishambhar Pandit, 8 B, 313, 321 (1884), R. v Gopal Dose, 3 M, 271, 279, 283 (1881); [construction from consideration of alteration called for in English Law of Evidence, sb, 279]. See remarks of Lord Herschell as to the interpretation of codes in Bank of England v. Vagliano Brothers, L. R, App Cas (1891), 107 at pp 144, 145; cited ante, in Introduction.

(2) Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh supra, 14; so with reference to ss 26 and 80 of this Act the Court in R v. Nagla Kola, 22 B, 235, 238 (1896), observed that it would be unreasonable to hold that the Legislature used the same word in different senses in the same Act.

(3) Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, supra, 166, 187.

(4) In re Pyari Lall, 4. C. L. R, 504, 506 (1879)

(5) Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, supra, 183; In re Pyari Lall, supra, 506—508; Mangamonjori Dabee v. Sonamoni Dabee, 8 C, 637; 640, 642 (1882), [no clause, sentence or word shall be superfluous, void, or insignificant], Moher Sheikh v. R, 21 C, 399, 400 (1893).

(6) Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall, supra, 183, 184.

(7) In re Asgur Hossein, 8 C L. R, 125 (1880)

(8) Delhi and London Bank v Orchard, 3 C, 47 (1877), see also R v Aloo Paroo, 3 M I. A, 488, 492, 493 (1847), Anund Chunder v. Punchoo Lall, 14 W. R., F. B, 33, 36 (1870), s. c., 5 B L. R, 691, 699; Julius v Bishop of Oxford, L. R., 5 App Cas, 214, Ram Dayal v Madan Mohan, 21 A, 432 (1899).

(9) Mohesh Chunder v Mahdhub Chunder, 13 W. R, 85 (1870), Crawford v. Spooner, supra, 187; Buzlur Raheem v. Shumsoonnissa Begum, supra, 12, Eastern Counties, etc., Companies v. Marriage, supra, 40 [judicature trespassing on province of Legislature].

(10) Nanak Ram v. Mehin Lall, 1 A, 496, supra; Fordyce v. Bridges, 1 H L. Cas, 1, 4

(11) Ib, Logan v. Courtown, 13 Beav 22; and see Crawford v. Spooner, supra, 187, 188 per Lord Brougham as to cases dealing with the intention of juristic reasoning.(1) When the rules of exclusion and the exception to them are definitely laid down, the exception is not to be extended to cases not properly falling within it (2) Where a clause in an Act which has received a judicial interpretation is re-enacted in the same terms, the Legislature is to be deemed to have adopted that interpretation.(3) It is an elementary rule of construction that a thing, which is within the letter of a Statute, is not within the Statute, unless it be also within the meaning of the Legislature.(4) A saving clause cannot properly be looked at for the purpose of extending an enactment, nor can it give a new or different effect to the previous sections of the enactment.(5) Upon a question of construction arising upon a subsequent Statute on the same branch of the law, it is perfectly legitimate to use the former Act though repealed.(6) In the under-mentioned case(7) Lord Esher, M. R., said, "To my mind, however, it is perfectly clear that in an Act of Parliament there are no such things as brackets any more than there are such things as stops."

---

under this Act: see e. g. Gujju Lall v Fattick Lall, supra, 181; In re Pyari Lall, supra, 508; Framji v. Mohanstay, 18 B., 263, 278, 279 (1893) [identity of language used in section with that employed in Taylor on Ev.], R. v. Gopal Dass, supra.

(1) Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhari Singh, supra, 37, 38.

(2) R. v. Jora Hanji, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 242 (1874).

(3) Re Campbell, 5 Ch. App., 703. cf. following sections of this Act with those of Act II of 1855:—18, 32, 37, 57, 81, 83, 84, 118, 120, 123, 124, 126, 129, 131, 162, 167, and 25, 26, 27, with ss. 149—150, Act XXV of 1861

(4) R. v. Bal Krishna, 17 B., 577 (1893)

(5) R v. Sitaram Vithal, 11 B., 638 (1887)

(6) Collector of Sea Customs v. P. Chithambaram, 1 M., 114 (1876)

(7) Duke of Devonshire v O'Connor, L. R., 24 Q. B. D., 478

PART I

RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

CHAPTER I

PRELIMINARY.

Short Title Commencement of Act Extent of Act

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Evidence Act, 1872." It extends to the whole of British India, and applies to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court.(1) including Court Martial, but not to affidavits presented to any Court or Officer, nor to proceedings before an Arbitrator; and it shall come into force on the first day of September, 1872.

COMMENTARY

Extent of Act.

The Act extends to the whole of "British India," which means the territories vested in Her Majesty by the first section of 21 & 22 Vic., Cap. 106. with the exception of the Straits Settlements, which, under the provisions of 29 & 30 Vic., Cap., 115, ceased to form portion of British India (2) The Act, therefore, applies to the Scheduled Districts,(3) and has been declared to be in force by notification under the Scheduled Districts Act in the districts of Hazaribagh, Lohardaga, Manbhoom and Pargana Dhalbhoom and the Kolhan in the district of Singhbhoom,(4) and the North-Western Provinces Tarai.(5) The Act has also been declared to be in for [illegible] States,(6) in the Hill District of [illegible] Baluchistan Agency Territories;([illegible] been applied to certain Native States in India or places therein. The Act has been made applicable by Her Majesty in Council in certain places beyond the limits of India for the purposes of cases in which Her Majesty has jurisdiction; and has been adopted by certain Native States of India as their law.

---

(1) Defined in s 3, post. As to the meaning of "judicial enquiry" and "judicial proceeding," see R. v. Tulja, 12 B, 36, 41, 42 (1887); Atchayya v. Gangayyar, 15 M, 138, 143 (1891); Cr Pr. Code, s 4 (m), Mayne's Criminal Law of India, 1896, pp 518—520, R. v. Price, L. R., 6 Q B, 418, R v. Gholam Ismail, 1 A., 1, 13 (1875).

(2) See Act X of 1897.

(3) v. Acts XIV and XV of 1874.

(4) Gazette of India, Oct 22, 1881, Pt. I, p 504.

(5) Ib, Sept. 23, 1876, Pt. I., p. 505

(6) Act XIII of 1898, s 4 [Burma Code, Ed., 1898, p. 364].

(7) Reg IX of 1874, s 3 [ib, p. 354]

(8) Reg I of 1890, s. 3, Baluchistan Code, Ed. 1890, p. 69

(9) Baluchistan Agency Laws Law, 1890, s. 4 [ib, p. 137].

(10) Reg. III of 1872, as amended by Reg. III of 1899, s 3

In the Appendix will be found a complete list revised by the Legislative Department of the Native States in India or places therein to which the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) has been applied by the Governor-General in Council.

Courts-Martial and Ma Courts.

The Act only applies to Native Courts-Martial.(1) In the case of European Courts-Martial, a Court-Martial is not, as respects the conduct of its proceedings or the reception or rejection of evidence, or as respects any other matter or thing whatsoever, subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act. The rules of evidence to be adopted in proceedings before such Courts-Martial shall be the same as those which are followed in Civil Courts in England.(2) This is therefore an exception to the general rule that the lex fori determines the law of evidence (vide post). The Act is (subject to such modification as the Governor-General in Council may direct) applicable to all proceedings before Indian Marine Courts.(3)

Affidavi

The Civil Procedure Code regulates the matters to which affidavits must be confined. These are such facts as the deponent is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications on which a statement of his belief may be admitted, provided that reasonable grounds thereof be set forth.(4) The exception here mentioned does not apply to any proceeding which, though interlocutory in form, finally decides the rights of the parties.(5) I ... iation a ... So, t ... affidavit because it would defeat the object of the whole proceedings which is despatch.(7) The costs of every affidavit unnecessarily setting forth matters of hearsay or argumentative matter or copies of or extracts from documents, are (unless the Court otherwise directs) payable by the party filing the same.(8) The safeguards for truth in affidavits are the provisions for the production of the witness for cross-examination,(9) and the provisions of the Penal Law relating to the giving of false evidence.(10)

Arbitrat

Proceedings before arbitrators are regulated by the Civil Procedure Code.(11) As an arbitrator is not in procedure bound by technical rules of Court and is appointed to give an equitable award,(12) so also he is unfettered by technical rules of evidence, and it is not a valid objection to an award that the arbitrator has not acted in strict conformity to the rules of evidence.(13) The word "Court" in this Act does not include an arbitrator.(14) Though the Act does not apply to proceedings before an arbitrator, yet the latter must not receive and act upon evidence or decide upon grounds which render his award utterly unfair or worthless. He must not import his own knowledge into a case or base his decision upon information obtained otherwise than from the evidence submitted to him by the parties to the cause. Where on the face

(1) Under Act V of 1869

(2) 44 and 45 Vic., cap 58, ss. 127 & 128, r also ss 163—165 (Army Discipline and Regulation Act, 1881)

(3) Act XIV of 1887, s. 68

(4) Civ. Pr Code, O XIX, r 3(1), p 824, see Whitley Stokes, 33, Cr Pr Code, s 539 In the matter of the petition of Isuar Chundra, 14 C 653; On evidence by affidavit, v Powell Ev., 659, Best, Ev., §§ 101, 118, 121 et seq., Taylor, Ev., § 1394, et seq

(5) Gilbert v. Endean, L. R., 9 Ch. Div., 259. Taylor, Ev., § 1396 B.

(6) Gilbert v. Endean, L. R., 9 Ch. Div., 259, at p 266, per Jessel, M. R see also Chard v. Jervis, 9 Q B D, 178, 180 Bonnard v Perryman (1891), 2 Ch 269, re J L Young Manufacturing Co (1900), 2 Ch., 753, and Lumley v Osborne (1901), 1 K B, 532

(7) Civ. Pr Code, supra.

(8) Civ Pr Code, O XIX, r. 1, 2, p 823

(9) O XIX.

(10) Penal Code, Ch XI

(11) Civ Pr Code, The Second Schedule, pp. 1422—1430

(12) Reedoy Kristo v. Puddo Lochun, 1 W. R., 12 (1864) But as to stamp, see now Act II of 1899, ss. 33, 34.

(13) Suppu v Govinda Charyar, 11 M., 87 (1887)

(14) S 3, post.

PART I

RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short Title Commencement of Act Extent of Act

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Evidence Act, 1872." It extends to the whole of British India, and applies to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court,(1) including Court Martial, but not to affidavits presented to any Court or Officer, nor to proceedings before an Arbitrator; and it shall come into force on the first day of September, 1872.

COMMENTARY

Extent of Act

The Act extends to the whole of "British India," which means the territories vested in Her Majesty by the first section of 21 & 22 Vic., Cap. 106. with the exception of the Straits Settlements, which, under the provisions of 29 & 30 Vic., Cap., 115, ceased to form portion of British India.(2) The Act, therefore, applies to the Scheduled Districts,(3) and has been declared to be in force by notification under the Scheduled Districts Act in the districts of Hazaribagh, Lohardaga, Manbhoom and Pargana Dhalbhoom and the Kolhan in the district of Singhbhoom,(4) and the North-Western Provinces Tarai.(5) The Act has also been declared to be in for [illegible] States,(6) in the Hill District of Baluchistan Agency Territories,(7) [illegible] been applied to certain Native States in India or places therein. The Act has been made applicable by Her Majesty in Council in certain places beyond the limits of India for the purposes of cases in which Her Majesty has jurisdiction; and has been adopted by certain Native States of India as their law.

---

(1) Defined in s 3, post As to the meaning of "judicial enquiry" and "judicial proceeding," see R. v. Tulja, 12 B., 36, 41, 42 (1887); Atchayya v. Gangayyar, 15 M., 138, 143 (1891), Cr. Pr Code, s 4 (m), Mayne's Criminal Law of India, 1896, pp 518—520; R. v. Price, L. R., 6 Q B., 418, R v. Gholam Ismail, 1 A., 1, 13 (1875).

(2) See Act X of 1897.

(3) v Acts XIV and XV of 1874.

(4) Gazette of India, Oct 22, 1881, Pt. I, p 504.

(5) Ib, Sept. 23, 1876, Pt. I, p. 505.

(6) Act XIII of 1898, s 4 [Burma Code, Ed., 1898, p. 364].

(7) Reg IX of 1874, s 3 [ib, p. 354].

(8) Reg I of 1890, s. 3, Baluchistan Code, Ed 1890, p 69

(9) Baluchistan Agency Laws Law, 1890, s. 4 [ib, p. 137].

(10) Reg. III of 1872, as amended by Reg. III of 1899, s 3.

In the Appendix will be found a complete list revised by the Legislative Department of the Native States in India or places therein to which the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) has been applied by the Governor-General in Council.

Courts-Martial and Marine Courts.

The Act only applies to Native Courts-Martial.(1) In the case of European Courts-Martial, a Court-Martial is not, as respects the conduct of its proceedings or the reception or rejection of evidence, or as respects any other matter or thing whatsoever, subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act. The rules of evidence to be adopted in proceedings before such Courts-Martial shall be the same as those which are followed in Civil Courts in England.(2) This is therefore an exception to the general rule that the lex fori determines the law of evidence (vide post). The Act is (subject to such modification as the Governor-General in Council may direct) applicable to all proceedings before Indian Marine Courts.(3)

Affidavits.

The Civil Procedure Code regulates the matters to which affidavits must be confined. These are such facts as the deponent is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications on which a statement of his belief may be admitted, provided that reasonable grounds thereof be set forth.(4) The exception here mentioned does not apply to any proceeding which, though interlocutory in form, finally decides the rights of the parties.(5) In interlocutory applications the Court acts on evidence given on information and belief because no other evidence is obtainable at so short a notice.(6) So, too, in interlocutory proceedings cross-examination will not be allowed on affidavit because it would defeat the object of the whole proceedings which is despatch.(7) The costs of every affidavit unnecessarily setting forth matters of hearsay or argumentative matter or copies of or extracts from documents, are (unless the Court otherwise directs) payable by the party filing the same (8) The safeguards for truth in affidavits are the provisions for the production of the witness for cross-examination,(9) and the provisions of the Penal Law relating to the giving of false evidence.(10)

Arbitration.

Proceedings before arbitrators are regulated by the Civil Procedure Code (11) As an arbitrator is not in procedure bound by technical rules of Court and is appointed to give an equitable award,(12) so also he is unfettered by technical rules of evidence, and it is not a valid objection to an award that the arbitrator has not acted in strict conformity to the rules of evidence (13) The word "Court" in this Act does not include an arbitrator.(14) Though the Act does not apply to proceedings before an arbitrator, yet the latter must not receive and act upon evidence or decide upon grounds which render his award utterly unfair or worthless He must not import his own knowledge into a case or base his decision upon information obtained otherwise than from the evidence submitted to him by the parties to the cause. Where on the face

(1) Under Act V of 1869

(2) 44 and 45 Vic, cap 58, ss. 127 & 128, see also ss 163—165 (Army Discipline and Regulation Act, 1881)

(3) Act XIV of 1887, s. 68

(4) Civ. Pr Code, O XIX, r 3(1), p 824, see Whitley Stokes, 33, Cr Pr Code, s 539 In the matter of the petition of Iswar Chundra, 14 C 653, On evidence by affidavit, v Powell Ev, 659, Best, Ev., §§ 101, 118, 121 et seq, Taylor, Ev, § 1394, et seq

(5) Gilbert v. Endean, L. R., 9 Ch Div., 259, Taylor, Ev., § 1396 B.

(6) Gilbert v. Endean, L. R., 9 Ch. Div., 259, at p 266, per Jessel, M. R. see also Chard v. Jervis. 9 Q B D, 178, 180 Bonnard v Perryman (1891), 2 Ch 269, re J L Young Manufacturing Co (1900), 2 Ch, 753, and Lumley v Osborne (1901), 1 K B, 532

(7) Civ Pr Code, supra

(8) Civ Pr Code, O XIX, r 1, 2, p 823

(9) O XIX

(10) Penal Code, Ch XI

(11) Civ Pr Code, The Second Schedule, pp 1422—1430

(12) Reedoy Kristo v. Puddo Lochun, 1 W. R., 12 (1864) But as to stamp, see now Act II of 1899, ss. 33, 34

(13) Suppu v. Govinda Charyar, 11 M., 87 (1887)

(14) S 3, post

of an award it appeared that the arbitrator principally relied on an admission(1) which he alleged was made to him by the defendant when a former suit between the plaintiff's mortgagee and the defendant was depending, and the arbitrator further stated that he relied on enquiries made by him [illegible] reference [illegible] not stating [illegible] having taken [illegible] and examined witnesses in the ordinary way, it was held that he acted improperly in importing the previous enquiry alleged to have been made by him, and was quite wrong in relying on what he called admissions, made to him by the defendant in the former proceedings, and that an award based upon such a foundation was utterly unfair and useless.(2) An arbitrator must not receive affidavits instead of viva voce evidence when he is directed to examine the witnesses on oath. He must not make his award without having heard all the evidence, or having allowed the party reasonable opportunity of proving his whole case He must not, contrary to the principles of natural justice, examine a witness or a party privately, or in the absence of his opponent, unless the irregularity be waived by the parties. If the arbitrator proceed, ex-parte, without sufficient cause, or without giving the party absenting himself clear notice of his intention so to proceed, the award will be avoided. So likewise if he refuse to hear the evidence on a claim within the scope of a reference on a mistaken supposition that it is not within it; but not if he erroneously reject admissible, or receive inadmissible, evidence. His refusing to hear additional evidence tendered when the whole case is referred back to him by a Court is fatal, but not so when the award is sent back with a view to a particular amendment only being made.(3) The rule of law which excludes communications made "without prejudice" is as binding upon arbitrators as upon Courts of Justice, notwithstanding the first section of the Evidence Act, and an arbitrator is wrong in receiving and acting upon such a communication.(4) As much as possible the arbitrator should decline to receive private communications from either litigant respecting the subject-matter of the reference Except in the few cases where exceptions are unavoidable, as where the arbitrator is justified in proceeding ex-parte, both sides must be heard and each in the presence of the other.(5) Refusal by an arbitrator to call witnesses produced by either party amounts to judicial misconduct.(6) Lastly, arbitrators ought only to take such evidence as is required by the terms of the agreement referring the question in dispute to arbitration.(7)

Repeal of Enactments.

2. On and from that day the following laws shall be repealed:—

1. All rules of Evidence not contained in any Statute, Act or Regulation in force in any part of British India;

---

(1) As to the use of evidence in a subsequent suit of admissions by parties in a former arbitration, see Huronath Sircar v Premnath Sircar, 7 W. R., 249 (1867), and notes to ss 17, 18, 33, post.

(2) Kanhye Chand v. Ram Chander, 24 W. R., 81 (1875).

(3) Russell on The Power and Duty of an Arbitrator, 4th Ed., p. 646, cited and adopted in Gunga Sahai v. Lekhraj Singh, 9 A., 264, 265 (1886), Cursetji Khambatta v. Crowder, 18 B., 299 (1894) (arbitrator ought not to receive evidence from one side in the absence of the other)

(4) Howard v. Wilson, 4 C., p 231 (1878) See s. 23, post

(5) Russell, op cit, pp 181 and 182, cited and adopted in Gunga Sahai v Lekhraj Singh, 9 A., 565 (1886).

(6) Rughoobur Doyal v Mainu Koer, 12 C L.R., 564 (1883)

(7) Krishna Kanta v. Bidya Sundaree, 2 B L. R., App., 25 (1869)

2. All such rules, laws and regulations as have acquired the force of law under the 25th Section of the "Indian Councils Act, 1861,"(1) in so far as they relate to any matter herein provided for; and

3. The enactments mentioned in schedule hereto, to the extent specified in the third column of the schedule.

But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect any provision of any Statute, Act or Regulation in force in any part of British India and not hereby expressly repealed. Repeal.

See Introduction and notes on Preamble.

3. In this Act the following words and expressions are used in the following senses, unless a contrary intention appears from the context :— Interpretation Clau "Court" includes all Judges(2) and Magistrates,(3) and all persons except, arbitrators, legally authorized to take evidence. Court.

s. 1 (Proceedings before Arbitrators.) s. 3 ("Evidence.")

COMMENTARY

See notes to Preamble

The definition of "Court" is framed only for the purposes of the Act itself and should not be extended beyond its legitimate scope. Special laws must be confined in their operation to their special object.(4) The definition is not meant to be exhaustive.(5) The word means not only the Judge in a trial by a Judge with a jury but includes both Judge and jury (6) A Commissioner is a person legally authorized to take evidence, and therefore the provisions of the Act will apply to Commissions to take evidence under the Civil or Criminal Procedure Codes.(7) "Court.

"Fact" means and includes :— Fact.

1. Any thing, state of things, or relation of things, capable of being perceived by the senses.

2. Any mental condition of which any person is conscious.

---

(1) 24 & 25 Vic, cap 67 Clause (2) repeals rules relating to evidence enacted in 'Non-Regulated Provinces" prior to this Statute and which acquired the force of Law under the 25th section thereof

(2) Penal Code, s 19, General Clauses Act

(3) Cf General Clauses Act, Cr. Pr. Code, s 3

(4) R v Tulja, 12 B, 43 (1887), Attorney-General v Moore, L. R., 3 Ex. Div, 276, R v Ram Lall, 15 A., 141 (1893), but see Atchayya v Gangayya, 15 M, 138, 144, 147, 148 (1891), and In re Sardhari Lall, 13 B L. R, App, 40 (1874), s c, 22 W R, Cr, 10

(5) R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 488, 493 (1878)

(6) Ib, 490

(7) Civ. Pr. Code, O. XXVI, r. 1—10, pp. 1052—1061; Cr. Pr Code, ss 503—508 see also Atchayya v. Gangayya, supra, at p. 147.

Illustrations.

(a) That there are certain objects arranged in a certain order in a certain place, is a fact.

(b) That a man heard or saw something, is a fact.

(c) That a man said certain words, is a fact.

(d) That a man holds a certain opinion, has a certain intention, acts in good faith, or fraudulently, or uses a particular word in a particular sense, or is or was at a specified time conscious of a particular sensation, is a fact.

(e) That a man has a certain reputation, is a fact

s. 3 (Relevant fact.) s. 3 (Fact in issue.)

COMMENTARY

"Fact" The first clause refers to external facts the subject of perception by the five "best-marked" senses, and the second to internal facts the subject of consciousness,(1) (a), (b) and (c) are illustrations of the first clause; (d) and (e) of the second. Facts are thus (adopting the classification of Bentham)(2) either physical, e g, the existence of visible objects, or psychological, e g., the intention or animus of a particular individual in doing a particular act. The latter class of facts are incapable of direct proof by the testimony of witnesses; their existence can only be ascertained either by the confession of the party whose mind is their seat or by presumptive inference from physical facts.(3) This constitutes their only difference "When it is affirmed that a man has a given intention, the matter affirmed is one which he and only he can perceive, when it is affirmed that a man is sitting or standing, the matter affirmed is one which may be perceived not only by the man himself, but by any other person able to see and favourably situated for the purpose But the circumstance that either event is regarded as being, or as having been, capable of being perceived by some one or other, is what we mean, and all that we mean, when we say that it exists or existed, or when we denote the same thing by calling it a fact The word 'fact' is sometimes opposed to theory, sometimes to opinion, sometimes to feeling, but all these modes of using it are more or less rhetorical,"(4) Facts may also be either events or states of things. By an "event" is meant "some motion or change considered as having come about either in the course of nature or through the agency of human will," in which latter case it is called an "act" or "action." The fall of a tree is an "event;" the existence of the tree is a "state of things:" both are alike facts (5) The remaining division of facts is into po [illegible] The existence of a certain state of things is a non-existence of it is a negative fact. "Th [illegible] rmer, does not belong to the nature of facts themselves, but to that of the discourse which we employ in speaking of them."(6) "Matter of fact" has been defined to be anything which is the subject of testimony, "matter of law" is the general law of the land of which Courts will take judicial cognisance.(7) The fact sought to be proved or factum probandum is termed the "principal fact;" the means of proof or the facts which tend to establish it "evidentiary facts."(8)

---

(1) Steph. Introd, 19—21, Norton, Ev, 93, Steph. Dig, Art 1. Fact is anything that is the subject of testimony: Ram on facts, 3.

(2) 1 Benth Jud. Ev., 45.

(3) Best, Ev, 6, 7.

(4) Steph. Introd., 20, 21.

(5) Best, Ev, 7, 1 Benth Jud Ev, 47, 48.

(6) 1 Benth. Jud Ev, 49; Best, Ev, 7.

(7) Best, Ev, 19

(8) 1 Benth. Jud Ev, 18, cf. Steph Dig, Art, 1; Steph Introd, 19—21; Best, Ev., 6, 7, 19; Norton, Ev, 93; Goodeve, Ev., 4—16

One fact is said to be relevant to another when the one is connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.(1) "Relev

The expression "facts in issue" means and includes— "Facts issue any fact from which, either by itself or in connection with other facts, the existence, non-existence, nature or exent of any right, liability or disability, asserted or denied in any suit or proceeding, necessarily follows.

Explanation.—Whenever, under the provisions of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure, any Court records an issue of fact, the fact to be asserted or denied in the answer to such issue is a fact in issue.(2)

Illustrations.

A is accused of the murder of B. At his trial the following facts may be in issue:—

That A caused B's death;

That A intended to cause B's death;

That A had received grave and sudden provocation from B;

That A, at the time of doing the act which caused B's death, was by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing its nature.

s. 3 ("Fact.")

COMMENTARY.

"Relevant" in this Act means, it has been said, admissible.(3) Facts may be related to rights and liabilities in one of two ways.—(a) "They may by themselves or in connection with other facts, constitute such a state of things that the existence of the disputed right or liability would be a legal inference from them. From the fact that A is the eldest son of B, there arises of necessity the inference that A is by the law of England the heir-at-law of B, and that he has such rights as that status involves. From the fact that A caused the death of B under certain circumstances, and with a certain intention or knowledge, there arises of necessity the inference that A murdered B, and is liable to the punishment provided by law for murder. Facts thus related to a proceeding may be called facts in issue, unless their existence is undisputed —(b) Facts which are not themselves in issue in the sense above explained, may affect the probability of the existence of facts in issue and be used as the foundation of inferences respecting them, such facts are described in the Evidence Act as relevant facts.(4) All the facts with which it can in any event be necessary for Courts of Justice to concern themselves, are included in these two classes. What facts are in issue in particular cases is a question to be determined by the substantive law, or in some instances by that branch of the law of procedure which regulates the forms of Relation facts to rights a liabiliti

(1) See ss. 5—55, post, Steph. Dig., p. 2; "Relevant" cognate expressions occur in ss 8, 132, 32, cl (8), 155, 147, 148, 153; the expression "irrelevant" occurs in ss. 24, 29, 43, 52, 54, 165; Whitley Stokes, 851.

(2) Civ. Pr. Code, O. XIV, r, 1—7, pp 787—795 The expression "facts (or 'fact') in issue," occurs in ss. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 17, 21, ill (d), 33, 36, 43; "questions in issue," s 33, "matter in issue," s 132, Whitley Stokes, 852

(3) Lala Lakhmi v Sayed Haider, 3 C. W. N., celxvii (1899), per Lord Hobhouse.

(4) For example of a fact in issue and a relevant fact see Kaung Hla Pru v. San Paw 3. L. B. R., 90.

pleading, civil or criminal."(1) A judgment must be based upon facts declared by this Act to be relevant and duly proved.(2)

"Document"

"Document" means any matter expressed or described upon any substance by means of letters, figures or marks, or by more than one of those means, intended to be used, or which may be used, for the purpose of recording that matter.(3)

s. 3 (Document produced for inspection of Court.)

Illustrations

A writing is a document;
Words printed, lithographed, or photographed are documents.
A map or plan is a document,
An inscription on a metal plate or stone is a document;
A caricature is a document

"Evidence"

"Evidence" means and includes —

1. All statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under enquiry: such statements are called oral evidence:
2. All documents produced for the inspection of the Court; such documents are called documentary evidence.(4)

Ch. IV (Oral evidence.) ss. 62, 64, 165 (Primary Evidence.)
Ch. V (Documentary Evidence.) ss. 63, 65, 66 (Secondary Evidence.)
s. 60 (Direct Evidence.)

COMMENTARY

"Evidence"

The word "evidence" as generally employed is ambiguous. (a) It sometimes means the words uttered and things exhibited by witnesses before a Court of Justice; (b) at other times it means the facts proved to exist by those word or things, and regarded as the groundwork of inferences as to other facts not so proved, (c) again it is sometimes used as meaning to assert that a particular fact is relevant to the matter under enquiry.(5) The word in this Act is used in the sense of the first clause As thus used it signifies only the instruments by means of which relevant facts are brought before the Court (viz., witnesses and documents), and by means of which the Court is convinced of these facts.(6)

Instruments of evidence or the media through which the evidence of facts, either disputed or required to be proved, is conveyed to the mind of a judicial tribunal have been divided into—(a) witnesses;(b) documents,(c) real evidence; including evidence furnished by things as distinguished from persons, as well

---

(1) Steph Introd., 12, 13, cf Goodeve, Ev., 316, et seq, Best, Ev., 20, Steph Dig., 2.

(2) S 165, post

(3) Cf. Penal Code, s 29

(4) Steph Introd., 3, sb, Dig., Art 1 The expression "Documentary Evidence" occurs only in the headings to Chapters V and VI; Whitley Stokes, 852, as to oral evidence v post, ss 59, 60, 91 Expl (3), 119, 44 Expl. The meaning of the term is not confined to proof before a judicial tribunal; Srinivasa v. R., 4 M., 395 (1881)

(5) Steph. Introd., 3, 4

(6) Norton, Ev., 95; Field, Ev., 26; as to instruments of evidence, see Best, Ev., § 123

as evidence furnished by persons considered as things, i.e., in respect of such properties as belong to them in common with things (1)

This real evidence may be (a) reported, or (b) immediate (2) Cl. (a) properly falls under the first class of instruments (witnesses). Cl. (b) describes that limited portion of real evidence of which the tribunal is the original percipient witness; e.g., where an offence or contempt is committed in presence of a tribunal, it has direct real evidence of the fact.(3) The demeanour of witnesses,(4) the demeanour, conduct and statements of parties (5) local investigation by the Judge,(6) a view by jury or assessors,(7) are all instances of real evidence. Cl. (b) thus also includes material things other than documents produced for the inspection of the Court (called in the Draft Bill "material evidence") e.g., the property stolen, models, weapons or other things to be produced in evidence and which are required to be transmitted to the Court of Sessions or High Court.(8) This "real evidence" does not form part of the definition of "evidence" given in the Act, inasmuch as the Court is in all cases the original percipient witness; and further in the case of "material evidence" in so far as it is spoken to by witnesses,(9) it falls properly under the first class of instruments. The things so produced are relevant facts to be proved by "evidence," i.e., by oral testimony of those who know of them.(10) The Court may require the production of such material things for its inspection.(11) The definition has been objected to(12) for incompleteness, in so far as by its terms it does not include the whole material on which the decision of the Judge may rest Thus, in so far as a statement by a witness only is "evidence," the verbal statements of parties and accused in Court by way of admission or confession or in answer to questions by the Judge,(13) a confession by an accused person affecting himself and his co-accused,(14) the real evidence abovementioned, and the presumptions to be drawn from the absence of producible witnesses or evidence,(15) are not "evidence" according to the definition given. The answer to this objection, however, is that this clause is an interpretation-clause, and the Legislature only explains by it what it intended to denote whenever the word "evidence" is used in the Act (16) This definition must be considered together with the following definition of "proved."(17) "It

---

(1) Best, Ev., pp 109, 196, Goodeve, Ev., 11 "Personal Evidence" is that which is reported by witnesses; another division of evidence is that into "original" or immediate, and "hearsay" or mediate The former is that which a witness reports himself to have seen or heard through the medium of his own senses, the latter that which is not arrived at by the personal knowledge of the witness, see Norton Ev., 28, 29, Best, Ev., §§ 27 31 and text, post

(2) Best, Ev., pp 183, 184, Goodeve, Ev., 11, 12, 14, 16

(3) Best, Ev., p 182

(4) v Civil Pr Code, O XVIII, r 12, p 819, Cr Pr Code, s. 363 As to the importance of observation of demeanour, see R v Madhub Chunder, 21 W. R., Cr., 13, 14 (1874); Starkie, Ev., 818, Best, Ev., § 21, Field, Ev., 50, R v Bertrand, L. R., 1 P C, 535 In all cases in which the evidence is conflicting it is the duty of a Court of Appeal to have great regard to the opinion formed by the Judge in whose presence the witnesses gave their evidence as to the degree of credit to be given to it; Woomesh Chunder v. Rashmohini Dassi, 21 C, 279 1893)

(5) v Whitley Stokes, 852

(6) Civ Pr Code, O XXVI, r, 9, p 1037; Joy Coomar v Bundhoolall, 9 C., 363 (1882), Oomut Fatima v Bhujo Gopal, 13 W R., 51 (1870), Harikishore Mitra v Abdul Baki, 21 C., 920 (1894).

(7) Cr Pr Code, s 293 See R v Chutterdharee Singh, 5 W R., Cr., 59 (1866), Oudh Behari, 1 C L. R., 143 (1877), Kailash Chunder v Ram Lall, 26 C., 869 (1899)

(8) Cr Pr Code, s. 218, see Whitley Stokes, 834, ss 60, prov (2), 65 (d), post

(9) Steph Introd., 15

(10) v Norton, Ev., 95

(11) v s 60, post

(12) v Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on Evidence (1898), 263, Whitley Stokes, 852

(13) v s 165, post

(14) v s 30, post

(15) v s 114, ill. (g), post.

(16) R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 492 (F B)

(17) Joy Coomar Bundhoolall, 9 C., 366; and see R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 492, supra seems to follow therefore that if a relevant fact is proved and the law expressly authorises its being taken into consideration, that is, considered for a certain purpose or against persons, in a certain situation, the fact in question is "evidence" for that purpose, or against such persons, although the result has not been expressed in these words by the Legislature: and being evidence it must be used in the same way as everything else that is "evidence."(1) Thus an oral admission in Court and the result of a local enquiry instituted by a Munsiff is matter before the Court which may be taken into consideration,(2) and the confession of a prisoner affecting himself and another person charged with the same offence is, when duly proved, admissible as evidence against both. (See next section.)(3)

Evidence has been further divided into direct evidence and circumstantial evidence.(4) Direct(5) evidence is the testimony of a witness to the existence or non-existence of the fact or facts in issue: by circumstantial evidence is meant the testimony of a witness to other facts (relevant facts) from which the fact in issue may be inferred.(6) As regards admissibility, direct and circumstantial evidence stand, generally speaking, on the same footing,(7) and the testimony whether to the factum probandum or the facta probantia is equally as original and direct. As to the several values and cogency of direct and circumstantial evidence much has been both written and said, but both forms admit of every degree of probability. Abstractedly considered, however, the former is of superior cogency, in so far as it contains only one source of error, fallibility of testimony, while the latter has, in addition, fallibility of inference (8)

---

(1) Per Jackson, J., in R. v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 492, supra

(2) Joy Coomar v. Bundhoolall, 9 C., 366, supra

(3) R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 483 supra, referred to in R v. Krishna Bhat, 10 B., 326 (1885); R v Dada Ana, 15 B., 459 (1889) s. 30, post, see also generally as to 'evidence" following sections —Ss 5 (evidence of facts in issue and relevant facts), 59, 60 (oral), 60 (must be direct), 61—100 (documentary), 91—100 (exclusion of oral by documentary), 114 (g), (producible but not produced), ss 101—166 (production and effect of), 118—166 (witnesses), 167 (improper admission and rejection of evidence), as to the meaning of "evidence to go to the jury," see Pratt v. Blunt Cornfoot, 2 Cox C C., 242, Jewell v Parr, 13 C. B., 909, 916, Ryder v Wombwell, L. R., 4 Ex., 32, 38, Steward v Young, L R., 5 C. P., 122, 128, R v Vajiram, 16 B., 414 (1892), as to verdict against evidence, R v Dada Ana, supra and v post

(4) See William Will's Essay on Circumstantial Evidence, 4th Ed. (1862); A M. Burrill's Treatise on Circumstantial Evidence, 1868, Phillips' Famous Cases of Circumstantial Evidence, 4th Ed. (1879); also a treatise on Circumstantial Evidence by Arthur P Will (1896)

(5) This meaning of the word "direct" must not be confounded with that in which it is used in s. 60, post, which does not exclude circumstantial evidence. Neel Kanto v Juggobund hoo Ghose, 12 B L. R., App., 18 (1874). In the latter sense circumstantial evidence must always be "direct", i e, the facts from which the existence of the fact in issue is to be inferred must be proved by direct evidence See Steph Introd., 8, 51, Best, Ev., §§ 293—295, Wills' Circumstantial Ev., 16 The term 'presumptive' is frequently used as synonymous with circumstantial" evidence But they differ as genus and species Wills' Circ. Ev., 18

(6) v post, Introduction to Ch II, e g— 'A is indicted for the murder of B, the apparent cause of death being a wound given with a sword If C saw A kill B with a sword, his evidence of the fact would be direct If, on the other hand, a short time before the murder, D saw A walking with a drawn sword towards the spot where the body was found, and after the lapse of a time long enough to allow the murder to be committed, saw him returning with the sword bloody, these circumstances are wholly independent of the evidence of C (they derive no force whatever from it) and, coupled with others of a like nature, might generate quite as strong a persuasion of guilt." Best, Ev., § 294 Nibaran Chandra Roy v. R, (1907), 11 C W. N., 1085

(7) Best, Ev., § 294

(8) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 2, Norton, Ev., pp 14, 18, et seq., 71, Phillips' Famous Cases of Circumstantial Evidence, 4th Edition, Introduction Best, Ev., § 295, Taylor, Ev., §§ 65—69, Wills' Circ Ev., 34, see remarks of Alderson, B., in R v Hodges, 2 Lewin, C. C., 227. "Probatio per evidentiam rei omnibus est potentior et inter omnes ejus generis major est illa, quae fit per testes de visu" (Mascardus De probationibus, v. I, q 3, n 8) So also Menochius who displays a partiality for

But "when circumstances connect themselves closely with each other, when they form a large and strong body, so as to carry conviction to the minds of a jury, it may be proof of a more satisfactory sort than that which is direct. When the proof arises from the irresistible force of a number of circumstances, which we cannot conceive to be fraudulently brought together to bear upon one point, that is less fallible than, under some circumstances, direct evidence may be."(1) It has been said that "facts cannot lie"(2) but men can. And as we only know facts through the medium of witnesses, the truth of the fact depends upon the truths of the witness.(3) Primary evidence is that which its own production shows to admit of no higher or superior source of evidence. Secondary evidence is that which from its production implies the existence of evidence superior to itself.(4)

"Proved."

A fact is said to be proved(5) when, after considering the matters before it, the Court either believes it to exist, or considers its existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it exists.

"Disproved."

A fact is said to be disproved(6) when, after considering the matters before it, the Court either believes that it does not exist, or considers its non-existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it does not exist.

"Not proved"

A fact is said not to be proved when it is neither proved nor disproved.

Part II (On Proof.) Part III (Production and Effect of Evidence.)
Ch. VII (Of the Burden of Proof)

COMMENTARY

Proof.

[illegible] fact [illegible] fact in issue or a relevant fact the Court can [illegible] obvious [illegible] proceed upon grounds altogether independent of the relation of the fact, to the object and nature of the proceeding in which its existence is to be determined. Evidence of a fact and proof of a fact are not synonymous terms Proof in strictness that circumstantial proof, which is the subject of his treatise, yet says "probatio seu fides quae testibus fit, ceteris excellet" (De præsumptionibus, L. 1, q 1); Phillips, op. cit, Burrill, op cit.

(1) Per Lord Chief Baron Macdonald in R v Patch and R v. Smith, cited in Wills' Circ Ev, 32; v. ib, 28—36 and passim, Norton. Ev, 18, et seq, Cunningham, Ev., 16 See also charge of Bullen, J, in the trial of Captain Donnellan, cited and criticised in Phillips' Circ Ev, xv, but evidence of a circumstantial nature can never be justifiably resorted to, except where evidence of a direct and therefore of a superior nature is unattainable; Wills' Circ. Ev, 32, 33, 187, "if men have been convicted erroneously on circumstantial evidence, so have they on direct testimony, but is that a reason for refusing to act on such testimony?" Greenleaf Ev, I, c, 4, as to the disregard of circumstantial evidence by mofussil juries, see remarks in R v Elahi Bux, B L. R, Sup Vol., 481, 482 (1866)

(2) Per Baron Legge in the trial of Mary Blandy, State Trials (1752)

(3) Phillips' Circ Ev., xiv, xvii.

(4) Best, Ev, pp 70, 416.

(5) Cognate expressions occur in the following sections.—68, 104—111, 22, 50, 101, 101—4, 101, 102, 165, 77, 91, 82, Whitley Stokes, 853; Balmakand Ram v. Ghansam Ram, 22 C., 407 (1894).

(6) The expression "disproved" occurs only in ss. 3 and 4 the expression "not to be proved," or "not proved," does not occur at all; Whitley Stokes, 853.

marks merely the effect of evidence.(1) Proof considered as the establishment of material facts in issue in each particular case by proper and legal means to the satisfaction of the Court is effected by :—(a) evidence or statements of witnesses, admissions or confessions of parties, and production of documents;(2) (b) presumption;(3) (c) judicial notice,(4) (d) inspection,—which has been defined as the substitution of the eye for the ear in the reception of evidence;(5) as in the case of observation of the demeanour of witnesses,(6) local investigation,(7) or the inspection of the instruments used for the commission of a crime.(8) The extent to which any individual material of evidence aids in the establishment of the general truth is called its probative force. This force must be sufficient to induce the Court either (a) to believe in the existence of the fact sought to be proved, or (b) to consider its existence so probable that a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that it exists. So if after examining a fair number of samples taken from different portions of a bulk, it is found that the samples are all of inferior quality, the probability that the bulk is of the same quality is so great that every prudent man would act upon the supposition that it is of such quality ; and if that is so, the Court ought to hold that the fact that the goods are of inferior quality is proved in such a case.(9) "The true question in trials of fact, is not, whether it is possible that the testimony may be false, but whether there is sufficient probability of its truth ; that is, whether the facts are shown by competent and satisfactory evidence."(10) When there is sufficient evidence of a fact, it is no objection to the proof of it that more evidence might have been adduced (11)

'Matters before the Court"

The expression "matters before it" includes matters which do not fall within the definition of "evidence" in the third section. Therefore, in determining what is evidence other than "evidence" in the phraseology of the Act, the definition of "evidence" must be read with that of "proved." "It would appear, therefore, that the Legislature intentionally refrained from using the word 'evidence' in this definition, but used instead the words 'matters before it.' For instance, a fact may be orally admitted in Courts. The admission would not come within the definition of the word 'evidence' as given in this Act, but still it is a matter which the Court before whom the admission was made would have to take into consideration in order to determine whether the particular fact was proved or not."(12) So the result of a local investiga-

---

(1) Steph. Introd., 13 id Dig., 67, Art 58 Goodeve, Ev., 3, 4; judgment is to be based on facts duly proved, v s. 165, post, burden of proof, v. ss. 101—114.

(2) See ss 3, 5—55, 58, 59, 60 (oral proof) 61—100 (documentary proof) 157 (former statement); 158 (statements under ss 32, 33), R. v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 492 (1878) v ante, "Evidence."

(3) Ss 4, 79—90, 112—114, post

(4) Ss 56, 57, post

(5) Wharton, Ev., s 345, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 3, Best Ev., 5 v. ante, v s. 60, post

(6) v Civ. Pr. Code, O. XVIII, r 12, p. 819, Cr Pr. Code, s 363 (v ante) as to demeanour of witnesses and discrepancies, see remarks of Lord Langdale in Johnston v. Todd, 5 Beav, 601

(7) v. Civ. Pr Code, O XXVI, r 9, p. 1057; Joy Coomar v Bundhoolall, 9 C, 363, supra, see remarks in Leech v Schweder, 43 L. J, Ch, 232; Cr. Pr. Code, s 293 (v. ante)

(8) v. s 60, post, Cr Pr. Code, s 218

(9) Bolsogomoff v. Nahapiet Jute Co, 6 C. W. N, 495, at p. 505 (1902)

(10) Greenleaf on Ev, 5th Ed, p. 4, cited in Goodeve, Ev, 6. Probability, in the words of Locke, is likeliness to be true—see Ram on Facts, Ch VIII As to the probabilities of a case, v. Bunwaree Lal v Maharajah Hetnarain, 7 M I. A., 155, s c, 4 W R, 128, Sri Rajkumadha v. Sri Brojo, 3 I A, 176, Mudhoo Soodun v Suroop Chunder, 4 M I A, 441 s c, 7 W R, 37, Lala Jha v Bibee Tulchmatool, 21 W R, 436; Meer Usdoolah v Beeby Imaman, 1 M I A,, 44, 45, s. c, 5 W R, 29, Mussamut Edun v Mussamut Bechun, 11 W R, 345, Uman Pershad v Gaudharp Singh, 15 C, 20, 23, Best, Ev, §§ 24, 25, 100. see also Wills' Circ Ev, 5, Steph Introd, 46; Glassford's Essay on the Principles of Evidence, 105.

(11) Ramalinga Pillai v. Sadasiva Pillai, 9 M I A, 506; s c, 1 W R. (P. C), 25 (1864). see Field, Ev, p 41.

(12) Per Mitter, J. Joy Coomar v Bundhoolall, 9 C, 366 (1882); and see R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 492, supra.

tion under the Civil Procedure Code, must be taken into consideration by the Court though not "evidence" within the definition given by the Act.(1) The judgment must be based on facts before the Court relevant and duly proved(2) upon a consideration of the whole of the evidence and the probabilities of the case.(3) The Judge may not, without giving evidence as a witness, import into a case his own knowledge of particular facts,(4) and should decide the rights of the parties litigating secundum allegata et probata (according to what is averred and proved).(5) The Court should abstain from looking at what is not strictly evidence. In this connection may be noted the dicta of two English Judges. "In this case I have found myself upon two different occasions where it has come before me in that difficulty into which a Judge will always bring himself when his curiosity or some better motive disposes him to know more of a cause than judicially he ought."(6) Again, "I shall decline to look at what is not regularly in evidence before the Court. The proceedings before the Commissioners are, in my opinion, no evidence of an act of bankruptcy. I purposely abstain in all these cases from looking at the proceedings, for my mind is so constituted that I cannot in forming my judgment on any matter before me separate the regular from the irregular evidence."(7)

Proof in Civil and Criminal Cases

Certain provisions of the law of evidence are peculiar to criminal trials, e. g., the provisions relating to confessions,(8) character,(9) and the incompetency of parties as witnesses,(10) but apart from these, the rules of evidence are the same in Civil and Criminal cases.(11) But there is a strong and marked difference as to the effect of evidence in Civil and Criminal proceedings.(12) "The circumstances of the particular case" must determine whether a prudent man ought to act upon the supposition that the facts exist from which liability is to be inferred. What circumstances will amount to proof can never be matter of general definition (13) But with regard to the proof required in Civil and Criminal proceedings there is this difference that in the former a mere preponderance of probability is sufficient,(14) but in the latter (owing to the serious consequences of an erroneous condemnation both to the accused and society) the persuasion of guilt must amount to "such a moral certainty as convinces the minds of the tribunal, as reasonable men,

(1) Ib.

(2) S 165, post.

(3) See remarks of Mitter, J, in Leelanund Singh v. Basheeroonissa, 16 W. R., 102 (1871), v. Field, Ev, p 68, et seq. (v. ante), see notes to s. 16, post.

(4) Haroprosad v Sheo Dyal, 3 I A, 286, Mitham Bibi v Bashir Khan, 11 M. I A, 213, s c, 7 W R, 27, Sooraj Kant v Khodee Narain, 22 W R, 9, Kanhai Chand v Ram Chandra, 24 W R, 81 (arbitrator), R v Ram Charan, 24 W R, Cr., 28 (assessor), v s 294, Cr Pr Code Rousseau v. Pinto, 7 W. R, 190, see notes to s. 21, post.

(5) Eshan Chandra v Shama Charan, 11 M I A, 20, 6 W. R, P. C., 57, see Ramdoyal Khan v Apodhia Khan, 2 C, 15, Joytara Dassee v Mohamed Mobaruck, 8 C, 975, Ranga Charia v Yegna Dikshatur, 1 M., 526; Choon Kara v Isabin Khalifa 1 B, 213; Mukhoda Soondury v Ram Churn, 8 C, 875; Ashgar Reza v. Hydar Reza, 16 C, 291; Thirthasami v Gopala, 13 M, 33, Best, Ev., §§ 78, et seq, notes to s 165, post.

(6) Per The Lord Chancellor in Rich v Jackson, note to 6 Ves., 334

(7) Per Sir John Cross, Ex parte Foster, 3 Deacon, 178

(8) Ss 24—30, post

(9) Ss 53, 54, post

(10) S. 120, post and note

(11) R v Murphy, 8 & P, 297, 306, R v Burdett, 4 B & A, 95, 112, per Best, J Leach v Simson, 5 M. & W, 309, 312, per Park, B Trial of William Stone 25 How St Tr, 1314, Trial of Lord Melville, 29 id, 764, Best, Ev § 94

(12) Best, Ev, § 95

(13) Starkie, Ev, 865, difference in the proof required of the same fact in difference cases very often arise out of the circumstances of the case; R v Mahdub Chunder, 21 W R, Cr, 13, 17 (1874). See Arthur P Wills' Treatise on the Law of Circumstantial Evidence (1896), Ch IV (quantity of evidence necessary to convict)

(14) Cooper v Slade, 6 H L. Cas, 77, per Willes, J, Starkie, Ev., 818 and see remarks of Sir Lawrence Peel in R v Hedger, Mutty Lall v. Michael (1852), pp. 132, 133, R v. Madhub Chunder, post.

beyond all reasonable doubt."(1) "It is the business of the prosecution to bring home guilt to the accused to the satisfaction of the minds of the jury, but the doubt to the benefit of which the accused is entitled must be such as rational thinking, sensible men may fairly and reasonably entertain: not the doubts of a vacillating mind that has not the moral courage to decide but shelters itself in a vain and idle scepticism. They must be doubts which men may honestly and conscientiously entertain."(2) The same principle which requires a greater degree of proof demands a strict adherence to the formalities prescribed by the law of procedure. For "in a criminal proceeding the question is not alone whether substantial justice has been done, but whether justice has been done according to law. All proceedings in pœnam are, it need scarcely be observed, strictissimi juris."(3) Criminal proceedings are bad unless they are conducted in the manner prescribed by law, and if they are substantially bad, the defect will not be cured by any waiver or consent of the prisoner.(4) Sir Elijah Impey in his charge to the jury in Nuncomar's case said: "You will consider on which side the weight of evidence lies, always remembering that, in criminal, and more especially in capital, cases you must not weigh the evidence in golden scales, there ought to be a great difference of weight in the opposite scale before you find the prisoner guilty. In cases of property the stake on each side is equal and the least preponderance of evidence ought to turn the scale; but in a capital case, as there can be nothing of equal value to life, you should be thoroughly convinced that there does not remain a possibility of innocence before you give a verdict against the prisoner."(5) Even as between criminal cases a distinction has been declared to exist. Thus "the fouler the crime is the clearer and plainer ought the proof of it to be."(6) "As the crime is enormous, and dreadfully enormous, indeed it is, so the proof ought to be clear"(7) "But the more atrocious, the more flagrant the crime is, the more clearly and satisfactorily you will expect that it should be made out to you."(8) "The greater the crime, the stronger is the proof required for the purpose of conviction."(9) These and the like dicta, however, in so far as they may be said to imply that the rules of evidence may be modified according to the enormity of the crime, or the

---

(1) Per Parke, B., in R v Sterne, cited in Best. Ev., p 76, v Starkie, Ev., 817, 865, Taylor, Ev., § 112, R v White, 4 Fost & Fin., 383, see same principle laid down in R. v Madhub Chunder, 21 W R., Cr., 13, 19, 20 (1874), R v Hedger, supra, 132, 133, 135, per Sir Lawrence Peel, C J quoting and adopting Starkie, Ev., 817, 818 R v. Sorob Roy, 5 W R., Cr., 28, 31 (1866) R v Beharee, 3 W R., 23, 25 (1865) [prisoner not to be convicted on surmise] "It is a maxim of English law that it is better that ten guilty men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer," per Holroyd, J., in Sarah Hobson's case, 1 Lewin, C C., 261; see also Best. Ev., §§ 49, 440

(2) R. v. Castor, Vol II, 816, per Cockburn, C. J.: "If," said L. C. Baron Pollock to the jury in R v Manning and Wife (cited in Wills' Circ Ev., 194 195). "the conclusion to which you are conducted be that there is that degree of certainty in the case that you would act upon it in your own grave and important concerns, that is the degree of certainty which the law requires, and which will justify you in returning a verdict of guilty." See also the other cases cited in Wills, ib, and the R. v Madhub Chunder, supra, 20 R v Gokoo Kahar, 25 W R., Cr., 36 (1876)

(3) Per Cockburn, C J., in Martin v Mackonochie, L R 3 Q B D., 730 775, see R v. Kola Lalang, 8 C., 214 (1891), R v Bhicla Bin, 1 B., 308 (1876), Jetha Parkha v Ram Chandra, 16 B., 693, 694 (1892), R v Bholanath, 2 C., 23—27 (1876), 25 W R., Cr., 57, but see also ss 529—538, Cr Pr Code

(4) R v Bholanath, 2 C., 23 (1876), R. v Allen, 6 C., 83 (1880), Hossein Buksh v R, 6 C., 96, 99, see also notes to ss. 5, 121, post

(5) The story of Nuncomar and the impeachment of Sir Elijah Impey, by Sir James Fitzjames Stephen, Vol. I, p 168 See also Lord Cowper's speech on the Bishop of Rochester's Trial, Phillips' Circ Ev., xxvii

(6) Trial of Lord Cornwallis, 7 State Trials, 149.

(7) Trial of R T Crossfield, 26 State Trials, 218.

(8) Trial of Mary Blandy, 18 State Trials, 1186.

(9) Sarah Hobson's case, per Holroyd, J., 1 Lewin's Crown cases, 261. See also R v Ings, 33 St. Tr., 1135, and Madeleine Smith's case cited in Wills' Circ Ev., 196

weightiness of the consequences which attach to conviction (for if they may be made more stringent in one direction, it is said they may be relaxed in another) have been severely criticised.(1) To quote the language of L. C. J. Dallas in the earlier portion of a passage of which the latter part is to the effect of the dicta, already cited —"Nothing will depend upon the comparative magnitude of the offence: for be it great or small every man is entitled to have the charge against him clearly and satisfactorily proved."(2)

Every criminal charge involves two things: first, that a crime has been committed; and secondly, that the accused is the author of it. If a criminal fact is ascertained—an actual corpus delicti established—presumptive proof is admissible to fix the criminal.(3) A restriction has been said to exist against the use of circumstantial evidence in the case of the well-known rule that the corpus delicti (that is, the fact that a crime has been committed) should not in general be inferred from other facts, but should be proved independently. But it is not necessary (and indeed in the case of some crimes it would be impossible) to prove the corpus delicti by direct and positive evidence. If the circumstances are such as to make it morally certain that a crime has been committed, the inference that it was committed, is as safe as any other inference. More accurately stated the rule is that no person shall be required to answer, or be involved in the consequences of guilt without satisfactory proof of the corpus delicti either by direct evidence or by cogent and irresistible grounds of presumption.(4)

General rules with regard to proof in Criminal Cases.

(a) The onus of proving everything essential to the establishment of the charge against the accused lies upon the prosecutor. Every man is to be regarded as legally innocent until the contrary be proved Criminality is therefore never to be presumed.(5) (b) The evidence must be such as to exclude, to a moral certainty, every reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused.(6) If there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted.(7) The above hold universally, but there are two

---

(1) Wills' Circ Ev, 196.

(2) R v Inge, 33 St. Tr, 1135

(3) R. v Ahmed Ally, 11 W. R, Cr., 25, 29 (1869); R v Ram Ruchea, 4 W R, Cr, 22 (1865).

(4) Steph Introd, 66—66, Wills' Circ Ev, 190—272, Arthur Wills' Circ Ev. (1896), Part V (Proof of the corpus delicti) and cases there cited, Norton Ev, 74, Cunningham, Ev, 17, Best, Ev, § 441, et seq, Powell, Ev, 72 See Evans v. Evans, 1 Hagg, C R, 35, 105, the Courts may act upon presumptions as well in criminal as in civil cases Burdett's case, 4 B & Ald, 95. So in cases of adultery it is not necessary to prove the fact by direct evidence, Loredon v Loredon, 2 Hagg, C R., 1, Williams v. Williams, 1 ib, 299, followed in Allen v Allen, L R P D (1894), 248, 252, even in a criminal case, R v. Madhub Chunder, 21 W R, Cr., 13, 16, 17 (1874) See provision, of Cr Pr Code, s 174, and also Bengal Reg. XX of 1817, s 14, and generally as to the corpus delicti, R v Pelta Gazi, 4 W R., Cr, 19 (1865), R v. Ram Ruchea, ib, 29 (1865), R v Poorooosullah Sikhdar, 7 W. R, Cr, 14 (1867), R. v. Budderud-deen, 11 W. R, Cr, 20 (1869); R v. Ahmed Ally, supra, R v. Dredge, 1 Cox, C. C, 235, Adu Shikdar v R, 11 C., 642 (1885), R. v Behari Singh, 7 W. R, Cr, 3, 4 (1867), in which case the alleged "dead" man reappeared upon the scene at the cutcherry.

(5) Lawson's Presumptive Ev, 93, 432, Wharton, Cr, Ev, §§ 319, 717, Best, Ev., § 440, Greenleaf, Ev I, 34, Wills' Circ. Ev., 183; Powell, Ev, 75, Best, Treatise on Presumptions of law and fact (1844), see ss 101, 102, 103, 105, 106, 114, post. As to the meaning of the presumption of innocence in criminal cases, see Thayer's Preliminary Treatise on evidence (1898), 551 See also R. v Ahmed Ally, 11 W R, Cr, 25, 27 (1869), where facts are as consistent with a prisoner's innocence as with his guilt, innocence must be presumed, and criminal intent or knowledge is not necessarily imputable to every man who acts contrary to the provisions of the law, R v. Nobokisto Ghose, 8 W. R, Cr, 87 (1867), R v. Madhub Chunder, 21 W R, Cr, 13, 20 (1874) [the accused is entitled to the benefit of the legal presumption in favour of innocence, the burden of proof is undoubtedly upon the prosecutor] The Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna Boistobi, 22 C, 174 (1894) Panchu Das v R (1907), 34 C, 698, 11 C. W. N, 666.

(6) Best, Ev, ib, and v ante

(7) Wills' Circ Ev., 192, Best, Ev, § 440; and v ante, Lolit Mohun v. R, 22 C., 323 (1894), R. v Madhub Chunder, supra, 20; R. v. Punchanun, 5 W. R., Cr, 97 (1866)

others peculiarly applicable when the proof is presumptive (v. ante). (c) There must be clear and unequivocal proof of the corpus delicti (v. ante).(1) (d) In order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpating facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused, and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt.(2) While the concurrence of several separate facts, all of which point to the same conclusion may, though the probative force of each be slight, be quite sufficient in their cumulative effect to produce conviction, a mere aggregation of separate facts, all of which are inconclusive in the sense that they are quite as consistent with the innocence as with the guilt of an accused person cannot have any probative force The principle is a fundamental one and of universal application in cases dependent on circumstantial evidence that in order to justify the inference of guilt the incriminating facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt.(3) It is not, however, correct to say that before circumstantial evidence can be made the basis of a safe inference of guilt it must exclude every possible hypothesis except that of the guilt of the accused.(4)

Appeals, Civil and Criminal

"Even where the appeal turns on a question of fact, the Court of Appeal has to bear in mind that its duty is to re-hear the case, and the Court must re-consider the materials before the Judge with such other materials as it may have decided to admit (5) The Court must then make up its own mind, not disregarding the judgment appealed from, but carefully weighing and considering it, but not shrinking from overruling it, if on full consideration, the Court comes to the conclusion that the judgment is wrong. When, as often happens, much turns on the relative credibility of witnesses, who have been examined and cross-examined before the Judge, the Court is sensible of the great advantage he has had in seeing and hearing them. It is often very difficult to estimate correctly the relative credibility of witnesses from written depositions, and when the question arises which witness is to be believed rather than another, and that question turns on manner and demeanour, the Court of Appeal always is and must be guided by the impression made on the Judge who saw the witnesses. But there may obviously be other circumstances, quite apart from manner and demeanour, which may show whether a statement is credible or not, and these circumstances may warrant the Court in differing from the Judge even on question of fact turning on the credibility of witnesses whom the Court has not seen "(6)

"The sound rule to apply in trying a Criminal appeal where questions of fact are in issue is to consider whether the conviction is right, and in this respect a Criminal appeal differs from a Civil one In the latter case the Court must be convinced before reversing a finding of fact by a lower Court that the finding is wrong.(7) 'It seems to us that the Judge treated the appeal before him

---

(1) Best, Ev, § 440, 441, Wills Circ. Ev, 190—272.

(2) Wills' Circ Ev, 188, Best, Ev., §§ 451, rule approved in Balmakund v. Ghansam, 22 C., 409 (1894); R. v. Ishri (1907), 29 A, 46

(3) Hurjee Mull v. Imam Ali Sircar, 8 C W. N., 278 (1904), 1 All. L. J., 28.

(4) Balmakund v. Ghansam, supra; "the hypothesis of the prisoner's guilt should flow naturally from the facts proved, and be consistent with them all." R. v. Beharee, 3 W. R., Cr, 23, 26 (1865).

(5) As to the admissibility of additional evidence in appeal, see Kessoorji Issur v. Great Indian Peninsular Railway Co., P. C. (1907), 31 B, 381, L R, 34 I A, 115 Krishnama Chariar v. Narasimha Chariar (1908) 31 M., 114; Secretary of State for India v. Manjeshwar Krishnaya (1908), 31 M, 415, and cases cited, p 801, post, and Civ Pr Code, O. XLI, r. 27, p, 1267.

(6) Per Barnes, J, in Coglan v. Cumberland, 13th May 1898, cited in 2 C W N, Short Notes ccxxxi as to demeanour v. ante, p 111, note 4 more as if it was a special appeal than a regular appeal; and because he did not find sufficient on the record to convince him that the Magistrate was entirely wrong, he therefore affirmed his decision. But the Judge was in the situation of an Appellate Court, in which the matter came before him on regular appeal, and he ought to have judged, as best he could, from the materials put before him in the Magistrate's written judgment, whether or not as a matter of fact the prisoners had committed the offence of which they had been convicted. If the evidence which came before him—whatever its shape—was not sufficient to reasonably satisfy him that the prisoners had been rightly convicted, he ought to have acquitted them."(1) An Appellate Court is bound precisely in the same way as the Court of first instance to test evidence extrinsically as well as intrinsically.(2)

(7) Protap Chunder v. R, 11 C L. R, 25 (1882), per White, J, referred to in Rohimuddi v. R, 20 C, 353, 357 (1892), but see R v. Ramlochun, 18 W. R, Cr, 15 (1872) The case of Protap Chunder v R., 11 C L. R, 25 (1882), was follow-

"May presume."

4. Whenever it is provided by this Act that the Court may presume(3) a fact, it may either regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved,(4) or may call for proof of it:

"Shall presume."

Whenever it is directed by this Act that the Court shall presume a fact it shall regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved:

"Conclusive proof."

When one fact is declared by this Act to be conclusive proof of another, the Court shall, on proof of the one fact, regard the other as proved, and shall not allow evidence to be given for the purpose of disproving it.

ss. 86, 87, 88, 90, 114 ("May presume.") ss. 112, 113 ("Conclusive proof.") ss. 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 89, 105 ("Shall presume.") s. 41 (Judgment when conclusive proof.)(5)

COMMENTARY.

Presumptions.

Inferences or presumptions are always necessarily drawn wherever the testimony is circumstantial, but presumptions, specially so-called, are based upon that wide experience of a connection existing between the facta probantia and the factum probandum which warrants a presumption from the one to the other wherever the two are brought into contiguity (6) Presumptions according to English text-writers are either (a) of law, or (b) of fact

Of law

Presumptions of law or artificial presumptions, are arbitrary inferences which the law expressly directs the Judge to draw from particular facts and may be either conclusive or rebuttable. They are founded either on the connection usually found by experience to exist between certain things, or on natural law, or on the principles of justice, or on motives of public policy. Conclusive presumptions of law are "rules determining the quantity of evidence

---

ed in Mulan Khan v. Sagai Bepari, 23 C, 347, 349 (1895) The Court is bound in forming its conclusions as to the credibility of the witnesses to attach great weight to the opinion which the judge who heard them has expressed upon that matter. R. v Madhub Chunder, 21 W R, Cr, 13 (1874)

(1) Khera Mullah v. Janab Mullah, 20 W R, Cr, 13 (1873), per Phear, J, referred to in Rohimuddi v R., supra see also remarks of Mitter, J, in the petition of Goomanee, 17 W R, Cr, 59 (1872), Shivappa v Shidlingappa, 15 B, 11 (1891)

(2) In re Goomanee, 17 W R, Cr, 59 (1872)

(3) Shafiq-un-nissa v Shaban Ali, 26 A, 581, 586 (1904)

(4) That which rebuts, or tends to rebut, a presumption which is not declared to be conclusive, is relevant and may be proved, s 9 post

(5) See also ss 13, 42

(6) Norton, Ev, 97, see Best, Ev, §§ 299, 42, 43, 296, et seq, pp 58, 281, and Wills' Circ. Ev., 18; Powell, Ev, 70. See s. 114, post.

requisite for the support of any particular averment, which is not permitted to be overcome, by any proof that the fact is otherwise. They consist chiefly of those cases in which the long experienced connection just alluded to has been found so general and uniform as to render it expedient for the common good that this connection should be taken to be inseparable and universal. They have been adopted by common consent, from motives of public policy, for the sake of greater certainty, and the promotion of peace and quiet in the community; and therefore it is that all corroborating evidence is dispensed with, and all opposing evidence is forbidden."(1) Rebuttable presumptions of law are, as well as the former, "the result of the general experience of a connection between certain facts or things, the one being usually found to be the companion or the effect of the other. The connection, however, in this class is not so intimate or so uniform as to be conclusively presumed to exist in every case; yet it is so general that the law itself, without the aid of a jury, infers the one fact from the proved existence of the other in the absence of all opposing evidence. In this mode the law defines the nature and the amount of the evidence which is sufficient to establish a primâ facie case, and to throw the burden of proof upon the other party, and if no opposing evidence is offered, the jury are bound to find in favour of the presumption.(2) A contrary verdict might be set aside as being against evidence. The rules in this class of presumptions, as in the former, have been adopted by common consent from motives of public policy and for the promotion of the general good; yet not, as in the former class, forbidding all further evidence, but only dispensing with it till some proof is given on the other side to rebut the presumption raised. Thus, as men do not generally violate the Penal Code, the law presumes every man innocent; but some men do transgress it, and therefore evidence is received to repel this presumption"(3)

Of fact

Presumptions of fact or natural presumptions are inferences which the mind naturally and logically draws from given facts without the help of legal direction.(4) They are always rebuttable. They can hardly be said with propriety to belong to that branch of the law which treats of presumptive evidence(5) "They are in truth but mere arguments of which the major premiss is not a rule of law, they belong equally to any and every subject-matter, and are to be judged by the common and received tests of the truth of

---

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 71, Best, Ev., p. 58, § 304, the Evidence Act notices two cases of conclusive presumptions (ss. 112, 113). It is a question, however, whether the presumption mentioned in s. 112 is not after all a rebuttable presumption, for the section permits of evidence being offered of non-access (Norton, Ev., 97) and s. 113, is ultra vires (Whitley Stokes, 835). See also Field, Ev., 520, Steph. Introd., 174, and notes to ss. 112-3, post, and Proceedings of the Legislative Council, 12th March 1872, pp. 234, 235 of the Supplement to the Gazette of India, 20th March 1872.

(2) Ch. VII of the Act deals with this subject (of presumptions) as follows:—First it lays down the general principles which regulate the burden of proof (ss. 101—106). It then enumerates the cases in which the burden of proof is determined in particular cases not by the relation of the parties to the cause but by presumptions (ss. 107—111). Such presumptions affect the ordinary rule as to the burden of proof that he who affirms must prove. He who affirms that a man is dead must usually prove it, but if he shows that the man has not been heard of for seven years, he shifts the burden of proof upon his adversary, who must displace the presumption which has arisen. Steph. Introd. 173, 174, see Norton, Ev., 97, and Proceedings of the Legislative Council, cited ante.

(3) Taylor, Ev., §§ 109, 110, Best, Ev., § 314. See observations as to the treatment of rebuttable presumptions by this Act in Whitley Stokes, 835.

(4) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 3. "Such inferences are formed not by virtue of any law, but by the spontaneous operation of the reasoning faculty: all that the law does for them is to recognise the propriety of their being so drawn if the Judge think fit." Cunningham, Ev., 84, Wills' Circ. Ev., 22.

(5) Taylor, Ev. § 214.

propositions and the validity of arguments.(1) They depend upon their own natural efficacy in generating belief, as derived from those connections, which are shown by experience, irrespective of any legal relations. They differ from presumptions of law in this essential respect, that while those are reduced to fixed rules, and constitute a branch of the system of jurisprudence, these merely natural presumptions are derived wholly and directly from the circumstances of the particular case by means of the common experience of mankind, without the aid or control of any rules of law. Such, for example, is the inference of guilt drawn from the discovery of a broken knife in the pocket of the prisoner, the other part of the blade being found sticking in the window of a house, which, by means of such an instrument, had been burglariously entered. These presumptions remain the same under whatever law the legal effect of the facts, when found, is to be decided."(2) Presumptions of law are based, like presumptions of fact, on the uniformity of deduction which experience proves to be justifiable; they differ in being invested by the law with the quality of a rule, which directs that they must be drawn, they are not permissive, like natural presumptions, which may or may not be drawn.(3)

Scope of the section

The abovementioned section appears to point at these two classes of presumptions, those of fact and those of law. The first clause points at presumptions of fact, the second at rebuttable presumptions of law, and the third, at conclusive presumptions of law.(4) As has been already mentioned, presumptions of fact are really in the nature of mere arguments or maxims. The sections which deal with such presumptions have been noted above.(5) Of these sections, s. 114 is perhaps the most important. "The terms of this section are such as to reduce of their proper position of mere maxims which are to be applied to facts by the Co sumptions, to which English law g value. Nine of the most important
Of course others besides those specified may be, and are in fact frequently, drawn.(7) In respect of such presumptions Courts of Justice are enjoined to use common sense and experience in judging of the effect of particular facts and are subject to no technical rules whatever This section renders it a judicial discretion to decide in each case whether the fact which under section 114 may be presumed has been proved by virtue of that presumption. Circumstances may, however, induce the Court to call for confirmatory evidence.(8) Sections 79-85, 89 and 105 of this Act create presumptions corresponding to those described by English text-writers as rebuttable presumptions of law, and there are others to be found in the Indian Statute Book (9) The third clause of this section embraces those presumptions described by these text-writers

(1) Sir James Fitzjames Stephen divides presumptions of fact in English law into two classes —(1) Bare presumptions of fact which are nothing but arguments to which the Court attaches whatever value it pleases, (2) certain presumptions which, though liable to be rebutted, are regarded as being something more than mere maxims, though it is by no means easy to say how much more. An instance of such a presumption is to be found in the rule that recent possession of stolen goods unexplained raises a presumption that the possessor is either the thief or a receiver Steph Introd, 174 In this Act presumptions of fact partake of the character of class(1), v post, see Taylor, Ev, § 111

(2) Taylor, Ev, § 214, see Wills' Circ Ev passim, see also other instances of this class of presumptions in s 114, post and Best, Ev, § 315 English text-writers also deal with mixed presumptions or presumptions of mixed law and fact see Norton, Ev, 97, Best Ev § 324

(3) Norton, Ev, 97

(4) Norton, Ev, 96, Field, Ev, 89, 520, 521

(5) Ss 86, 87, 88, 90, in fact all the sections from ss 79 to 90 inclusive are illustrations of, and founded upon, the maxim, Omnia esse rite acta Norton, Ev, 260, Powell, Ev, 83

(6) Steph Introd, 174, 175 Proceedings of the Legislative Council, cited in n 1, p 38, see s 114, post

(7) See notes to s 114, post

(8) Raghunath v Hola Lal, 1 All L J, 14 (1904.)

(9) Field, Ev, 521

as conclusive presumptions of law. The Evidence Act appears to create two such presumptions by ss. 112 and 113;(1) and there are some others to be found in the Indian Statute Book.(2)

English text-writers have, it has been said, in treating of the subject of presumptions, engrafted upon the law of evidence many subjects which in no way belong to it, and numerous so-called presumptions are merely portions of the substantive law under another form (3) "All notice of certain general legal principles which are sometimes called presumptions, but which in reality, belong rather to the substantive law than to the law of evidence, was designedly omitted" (from this Act) "not because the truth of those principles was denied, but because it was not considered that the Evidence Act was the proper place for them. The most important of these is the presumption, as it is sometimes called, that every one knows the law. The principle is far more correctly stated in the maxim that ignorance of the law does not excuse a breach of it, which is one of the fundamental principles of criminal law." Of such a kind also is the presumption that every one must be held to intend the natural consequences of his own acts (4) The like presumptions and others of a similar character belong to the province of substantive law, and have been dealt with by Statute,(5) or have gradually come to be recognised as binding rules through the course of judicial decision (6) In this sense the subject of presumptions is co-extensive with the entire field of law, and each particular presumption must in each case be sought under the particular head of law to which it refers (7)

Inference.

This Chapter, as originally drafted contains the following section:— "Courts shall form their opinions on matters of fact by drawing inferences: (a) from the evidence produced to the existence of the facts alleged, (b) from facts proved or disproved to facts not proved, (c) from the absence of witnesses who, or of evidence which, might have been produced (8) (d) from the admissions, statements, conduct and demeanour of the parties and witnesses, and generally from the circumstances of the cases" "The Select Committee decided to omit this section 'as being suitable rather for a treatise than an Act.' The object of its introduction was originally stated to be to point out and put distinctly upon record the fact that to infer and not merely to accept or register evidence is in all cases the duty of the Court."(9) Further, as has been already observed, a distinction must be drawn between the general act of inferring facts in issue from relevant facts, and those inferences which, for the reasons above given, are specifically known as presumptions (10) (v. ante).

---

(1) But see p 119, ante

(2) See for example, Act XXI of 1879, s 5 (Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition), Cr Pr Code, s 87 (Proclamation for person absconding), Act I of 1894, s 6 (Land Acquisition), s 8, Act I (B C) of 1895 (Recovery of Public Demands), see Bal Mokoond v Jirjudhun, 9 C, 271 (1882), Act II (B C) of 1869, s 26 (Chota Nagpore Tenures), see s. 35, post, Act XXVII of 1871, s. 6 (Criminal Tribes), Act XIV of 1874, s 4, 8 (Scheduled Districts); Act IX of 1856, s 3 (Bills of Lading), see B. Nicol & Co v Castle, 9 Bom H C R, 321 (1872); see notes to s 35, post.

(3) Sir J Fitzjames Stephen, Proceedings of the Legislative Council, ante.

(4) Steph Introd, 175; Powell, Ev., 82

(5) See for example Act V of 1869, Art 114 (Indian Articles of War, Presumptive Evidence of Desertion), Act XXI of 1866, s 21 (Native Converts' Marriages; Presumptive Evidence of Marriage), Act IV of 1872, ss 10, 11(Punjab Laws Presumption as to existence of right of pre-emption) Act I of 1877, s 12 (Specific Relief; Presumption that breach of contract to transfer immoveable property cannot be adequately relieved by compensation in money) For an instance, of the conversion of presumptions of the substantive law into statutory rules, see s 38, Act X of 1865 (Succession Act) In England the rules as to substitutional or cumulative gifts are treated as rules of presumption, the abovementioned section deals with these rules without any reference to a presumption, see G S Henderson The Law of Wills in India, p 192

(6) See notes to s 114, post

(7) See Cunningham, Ev, 301—303

(8) See s 114 ill (g), post

(9) Cited in Field, Ev, 89

(10) As to the ambiguity attending the use of the term "presumption," see Best, Ev., p 306, ib, § 299

CHAPTER II.

Of the Relevancy of Facts.

As with many other questions connected with the law of evidence, the theory of relevancy has been the subject of varying opinions Relevancy has been said by the framer of the Act to mean the connection of events as cause and effect (1) But this theory, as was admitted afterwards, "was expressed too widely in certain parts, and not widely enough in others."(2) For the former definition the following was substituted "The word 'relevant' means that any two facts to which it is applied are so related to each other that, according to the common course of events, one either taken by itself or in connection with other facts proves or renders probable the past, present, or future existence or non-existence of the other,"(3) But this is "relevancy" in a logical sense. Legal relevancy which is essential to admissible evidence, requires a higher standard of evidentiary force. It includes logical relevancy, and for reasons of particular convenience, demands a close connection between the fact to be proved and the fact offered to prove it. All evidence must be logically relevant—that is absolutely essential. The fact, however, that it is logically relevant does not insure admissibility, it must also be legally relevant, a fact which 'in connection with other facts renders probable the existence of a fact in issue,' may still be rejected, if in the opinion of the Judge and under the circumstances of the case it be considered essentially misleading or remote "(4) The tendency, however, of modern jurisprudence is to admit most evidence logically relevant. Logical relevancy may not thus be assumed to be the sole test of admissibility, relevancy and admissibility are not co-extensive and interchangeable terms "Public policy, considerations of fairness, the particular necessity for reaching speedy decisions,—these and similar reasons cause constantly the necessary rejection of much evidence entirely relevant. All admissible evidence is relevant, but all relevant evidence is not admissible."(5) The question of relevancy strictly so called presents as a rule, little difficulty. Any educated person, whether lay or legal, can say whether a circumstance, has probative forced which is the meaning of relevancy. This is an affair of logic and not of law It is, otherwise, with the question of admissibility which must be determined according to rules of law. A fact may be relevant, but it may be excluded on grounds of policy as already noted. A communication to a legal adviser may be in the highest degree relevant, but other considerations exclude its reception as a privileged communication. Again a fact may be relevant, but the proof of it may be such as is not allowed as in the case of the "hearsay" rule (6) In this Chapter the word "relevancy" seems to mean the having some probative force. In the title to

---

(1) Steph Introd, 65 see generally as to Relevancy, Introduction

(2) Steph Dig, p 158, see Whitley Stokes 820, 851, note

(3) Steph Dig, Art 1 'I have substituted the present definition for it, not because I think it (the former definition) wrong, but because I think it gives rather the principle on which the rule depends than a convenient practical rule, ib., p. 158

(4) Best, Ev., p. 231

(5) Ib 252, thus a communication to a legal adviser, or a criminal confession improperly obtained, may, undoubtedly, be relevant in a high degree They are none the less inadmissible; ib See also Taylor, Ev, §§ 298—316, Powell, Ev, 527 528, Steph Introd, Steph Dig, Arts 1 and 2 and Appendix Note 1, The Theory of Relevancy by G C Whitworth, Bombay, 1881

(6) As to the meaning of the expression "hearsay is no evidence', see Steph Dig, p 180, Arts 14 and 62, and notes to s 60, post

this Part it appears to denote admissibility.(1) However, the considetrations mentioned go merely to the theory of relevancy and to the construction of, or definitions given in, the Act as based on that theory. For practical purposes one fact is relevant to another and admissible (2) when the one is connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.(3) Relevancy, in the sense in which it is used by the framer of the Act, is fully defined in ss. 6-11, both inclusive: "These sections enumerate specifically the different instances of the connection between cause and effect which occur most frequently in judicial proceedings. They are designedly worded very widely, and in such a way as to overlap each other. Thus a motive for a fact in issue (s. 8), is part of its cause (s. 7); subsequent conduct influenced by it (s. 8) is part of its effect (s. 7.). Facts relevant under s. 11 would, in most cases, be relevant under other sections."(4) Not only may the acts and words of a party himself, if relevant, be given in evidence, but when the party is, by the substantive law, rendered liable, civilly or criminally, for the acts, contracts, or representations of third persons, and such facts are material, they may generally be given in evidence for or against him as if they were his own.(5) The chief instances of such relationships (which must in the first instance, be proved aliunde to the satisfaction of the Courts) are agency,(6) partnership,(7) the liability of companies for the acts and representations of their directors or other agents(8) and conspiracy in tort or crime.(9)

The following sections have been considered by the author and others to be the most important, as all will admit they are the most original part of the

(1) Whitley Stokes, 849

(2) Lala Lakmi v Sayed Haider, 3 C W N, ccl-viii (1899), ["Relevant" in this Act means admissible]

(3) S 3, ante, v. ss 5—55, post.

(4) Steph Introd, 72, see criticism of these sections in Whitley Stokes, p 819, "two of these sections are so drawn (ss 7, 11), as to permit evidence of matter wholly irrelevant," ib, and see notes to s 11, post, but see also Steph Introd 160, and Best, Ev, 522 In the sections mentioned in the text the subject of circumstantial evidence is distributed into its elements First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871

(5) See Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 69

(6) In civil cases the acts and representations of the agent will bind the principal if made within the scope of the authority conferred upon him, or subsequently ratified by the principal (Act IX of 1872, ss. 182—189, 196, 226); as to implied authority, see In re Cunningham, 36 Ch D, 532, Maclean v Fenwick (1893), 1 Q. B, 316, and generally as to agency, Contract Act, ss. 182—238, as to responsibility in a tort and the doctrine of respondet at superior, see remarks of Jessel, M R, in Smith v. Keal, 9 Q B. D, 340, 351, and judgment of Willes, J., in Barwick v English Joint Stock Bank, L. R, 2 Ex 259, 265, 266, Thorne v Heard (1894), 1 Ch., 599; Malcolm Brunker & Co v. Waterhouse & Sons (1908), Times, L. R, v 24, p. 855; a party is not in general criminally responsible for the acts of his agents and servants unless such acts have been directed or assented to by him, Cooper v Slade, 6 H. L C, 746, 793, 794, per Lord Wensleydale, Lord Melville's case, 29 How. St T R, 764, The Queen's case, 2 B. & B, 306, 367; Cheshire v Bailey (1905), 1 K. B., 237. See generally, Taylor, Ev, 115, 602—605, 905—906; Best, Ev, § 531, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 69; Powell, Ev, 290, Evans, Principal and Agent, 123—200, and passim, 2nd Ed, Beven on Negligence, 271—312, Roscoe, Cr Ev, 12th Ed, 46, Roscoe, N. P. Ev 69—71, T A Pearson, 'The Law of Agency in British India," 1890 Bowstead, Dig of Agency Arts 79—82, 103, 104 Norton, Ev., 144; as to admissions by agents, see ss 17, 18, post, and as to notice given to agents, s 14, post

(7) The liability of co-partners for the act of their partner is established on the ground of agency each partner being the agent for the others for all purposes within the scope of the joint business; Re Cunningham, supra Lindley on Partnership, 5th Ed., 80—90, 124—263, Pollock on Partnership, Taylor, Ev, §§ 743—752, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 71, Act IX of 1872 (Contract Act), ss 239—266, as to admissions by partners, see ss. 17, 18, post.

(8) As to the general principles of agency as applied to Companies in the course of, or after formation, see Lindley on Company Law, 5th Ed., 143—181. Companies can only be bound by the acts of their real or ostensible agents. ib, 182, liability for torts, ib, 208, see also Act VI of 1882, Act VI of 1887 (Indian Companies), Commentaries on the same by L P. Russell (1888). a Company is not liable for acts done ultra vires, Russell, 12, Brice on ultra vires, as to admissions by the officers of a Company, see ss 17, 18, post.

(9) See s 10, post, and notes thereto.

Act, as they affirm positively what facts may be proved, whereas the English law assumes this to be known, and merely declares negatively that certain facts shall not be proved. In the opinion of many others the English law proceeds upon sounder and more practical grounds. While importance is claimed for these sections in that they are said to make the whole body of law to which they belong easily intelligible, yet such importance cannot, owing to the provisions of ss. 165 and 167, cause an undue weight to be attached to their strict applications when a failure to so strictly apply them has not been the cause of an improper decision of the case. For the improper admission or rejection of evidence in Indian Courts has no effect at all unless the Court thinks that the evidence improperly dealt with either turned or ought to have turned the scale.(1) A Judge, moreover, if he doubts as to the relevancy of a fact suggested, can, if he thinks it will lead to anything relevant, ask about it himself (2)

Evidence may be given of facts in issue and relevant facts

5. Evidence may be given in any suit or proceeding of the existence or non-existence of every fact in issue, and of such other facts as are hereinafter declared to be relevant, and of no others.

Explanation.—This section shall not enable any person to give evidence of a fact which he is disentitled to prove by any provision of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure.

Illustrations.

(a) A is tried for the murder of B by beating him with a club with the intention of causing his death.

At A's trial the following facts are in issue :—

A's beating B with the club ;

A's causing B's death by such beating ;

A's intention to cause B's death.

(b) A suitor does not bring with him, and have in readiness for production at the first hearing of the case, a bond on which he relies This section does not enable him to produce the bond or prove its contents at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, otherwise than in accordance with the conditions prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure

Principles.—The reception in evidence of facts other than those mentioned in the section tends to distract the attention of the tribunal and to waste its time. Frustra probatur quod probatum non relevat The laws of evidence are framed with a view to a trial at Nisi Prius, and a proceeding at Nisi Prius ought to be restrained within practical limits.(3)

s. 3 (" Evidence.")
s. 3 (" Fact in issue.")
s. 3 (" Fact.")
s. 3 (" Relevant ")
ss. 5-55 (" Of the Relevancy of facts ")
s 60 (Oral Evidence must be direct.)

(1) Steph Introd , 72, 73, aliter in England

(2) Ib , 72, 73, 162 , s 165, post Best, Ev , 86 , as to " indicative " evidence, ib , § 93

(3) Best, Ev , § 251 , R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H. C R , 90, 91 (1874), ante , Taylor, Ev , § 316 , Managers of the Metropolitan Asylum District v Hill, 47 L. T. (H. L.), 29, 34, per Lord O'Hagan ; see also judgment of Lord Watson as to the distinction between evidence having a direct relation to the principal question in dispute and evidence relating to collateral facts which will, if established, tend to elucidate that question , and ante, Introduction. " Facts, which are not themselves in issue, may affect the probability of the existence of facts in issue, and these may be called collateral facts " First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871.

this Part it appears to denote admissibility.(1) However, the considetrations mentioned go merely to the theory of relevancy and to the construction of, or definitions given in, the Act as based on that theory. For practical purposes one fact is relevant to another and admissible (2) when the one is connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.(3) Relevancy, in the sense in which it is used by the framer of the Act, is fully defined in ss. 6-11, both inclusive: "These sections enumeiate specifically the different instances of the connection between cause and effect which occur most frequently in judicial proceedings. They are designedly worded very widely, and in such a way as to overlap each other. Thus a motive for a fact in issue (s. 8), is part of its cause (s. 7); subsequent conduct influenced by it (s 8) is part of its effect (s. 7.). Facts relevant under s 11 would, in most cases, be relevant under other sections."(4) Not only may the acts and words of a party himself, if relevant, be given in evidence, but when the party is, by the substantive law, rendered liable, civilly or criminally, for the acts, contracts, or representations of third persons, and such facts are material, they may generally be given in evidence for or against him as if they were his own (5) The chief instances of such relationships (which must in the first instance be proved aliunde to the satisfaction of the Courts) are agency,(6) partnership,(7) the liability of companies for the acts and representations of their directors or other agents(8) and conspiracy in tort or crime (9)

The following sections have been considered by the author and others to be the most important, as all will admit, they are the most original part of the

---

(1) Whitley Stokes, 849

(2) Lala Lakmi v. Sayed Haider, 3 C W N ccl xvm (1899), ["Relevant" in this Act means admissible]

(3) S 3, ante, v ss 5—55, post

(4) Steph Introd, 72, see criticism of these sections in Whitley Stokes, p 819, "two of these sections are so drawn (ss 7, 11), as to permit evidence of matter wholly irrelevant," ib, and see notes to s 11, post, but see also Steph Introd, 160, and Best, Ev, 522 In the sections mentioned in the text the subject of circumstantial evidence is distributed into its elements First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871

(5) See Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 69

(6) In civil cases the acts and representations of the agent will bind the principal if made within the scope of the authority conferred upon him, or subsequently ratified by the principal (Act IX of 1872, ss 182—189, 196, 226), as to implied authority, see In re Cunningham, 36 Ch D., 532, Walteau v. Fenwick (1893), 1 Q. B, 346, and generally as to agency, Contract Act, ss. 182—238, as to responsibility in a tort and the doctrine of respondet at superior, see remarks of Jessel, M. R, in Smith v Keal, 9 Q. B D, 340, 351, and judgment of Willes, J., in Barwick v English Joint Stock Bank, L. R, 2 Ex 259, 265, 266, Thorne v Heard (1894), 1 Ch, 599; Malcolm Brunker & Co v. Waterhouse & Sons (1908); Times, L. R, v 24, p 855; a party is not in general criminally responsible for the acts of his agents and servants unless such acts have been directed or assented to by him, Cooper v. Slade, 6 H. L. C, 746, 793, 794, per Lord Wensleydale, Lord Melville's case, 29 How. St T R 764, The Queen's case, 2 B & B, 306, 367; Cheshire v Bailey (1905), 1 K. B, 237. See generally, Taylor, Ev, 115, 602—605, 905—906; Best, Ev, § 531, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 69, Powell, Ev, 290 Evans, Principal and Agent, 123—200, and passim, 2nd Ed, Beven on Negligence, 271—312, Roscoe, Cr Ev, 12th Ed, 46, Roscoe, N P. Ev, 69—71, T A Pearson, The Law of Agency in British India," 1890 Bowstead, Dig of Agency Arts 79—82 103, 104 Norton, Ev, 144; as to admissions by agents, see ss 17, 18, post, and as to notice given to agents, s 14, post.

(7) The liability of co partners for the act of their partner is established on the ground of agency each partner being the agent for the others for all purposes within the scope of the joint business, Re Cunningham supra Lindley on Partnership, 5th Ed., 80—90, 124—263, Pollock on Partnership, Taylor, Ev, §§ 743—752, Roscoe, N P. Ev, 71, Act IX of 1872 (Contract Act), ss. 239—266, as to admissions by partners, see ss 17, 18, post

(8) As to the general principles of agency as applied to Companies in the course of, or after formation, see Lindley on Company Law, 5th Ed., 143—181, Companies can only be bound by the acts of their real or ostensible agents, ib, 182, liability for torts, ib, 208, see also Act VI of 1882, Act VI of 1887 (Indian Companies); Commentaries on the same by L. P. Russell (1888); a Company is not liable for acts done ultra vires, Russell, 12; Brice on ultra vires, as to admissions by the officers of a Company, see ss 17, 18, post.

(9) See s. 10, post, and notes thereto.

Act, as they affirm positively what facts may be proved, whereas the English law assumes this to be known, and merely declares negatively that certain facts shall not be proved. In the opinion of many others the English law proceeds upon sounder and more practical grounds. While importance is claimed for these sections in that they are said to make the whole body of law to which they belong easily intelligible, yet such importance cannot, owing to the provisions of ss. 165 and 167, cause an undue weight to be attached to their strict applications when a failure to so strictly apply them has not been the cause of an improper decision of the case. For the improper admission or rejection of evidence in Indian Courts has no effect at all unless the Court thinks that the evidence improperly dealt with either turned or ought to have turned the scale.(1) A Judge, moreover, if he doubts as to the relevancy of a fact suggested, can, if he thinks it will lead to anything relevant, ask about it himself.(2)

Evidence may be given of facts in issue and relevant facts

5. Evidence may be given in any suit or proceeding of the existence or non-existence of every fact in issue, and of such other facts as are hereinafter declared to be relevant, and of no others.

Explanation.—This section shall not enable any person to give evidence of a fact which he is disentitled to prove by any provision of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure.

Illustrations

(a) A is tried for the murder of B by beating him with a club with the intention of causing his death.

At A's trial the following facts are in issue:—

A's beating B with the club,

A's causing B's death by such beating,

A's intention to cause B's death.

(b) A suitor does not bring with him, and have in readiness for production at the first hearing of the case, a bond on which he relies. This section does not enable him to produce the bond or prove its contents at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, otherwise than in accordance with the conditions prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Principles.—The reception in evidence of facts other than those mentioned in the section tends to distract the attention of the tribunal and to waste its time. Frustra probatur quod probatum non relevat. The laws of evidence and a proceeding at Nisi Prius are framed with a view to a trial at Nisi Prius, ought to be restrained within practical limits (3)

s. 3 ("Evidence.")
s. 3 ("Fact in issue.")
s. 3 ("Fact.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
ss. 5-55 ("Of the Relevancy of facts.")
s. 60 (Oral Evidence must be direct.)

(1) Steph. Introd., 72, 73, aliter in England.
(2) Ib., 72, 73, 162, s. 165, post. Best, Ev., 86, as to "indicative" evidence, ib., § 93.
(3) Best, Ev., § 251, R. v. Parbhudas, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 90, 91 (1874), ante, Taylor, Ev., § 316, Managers of the Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, 47 L. T. (H. L.), 29, 34, per Lord O'Hagan; see also judgment of Lord Watson as to the distinction between evidence having a direct relation to the principal question in dispute and evidence relating to collateral facts which will, if established, tend to elucidate that question, and ante, Introduction. "Facts, which are not themselves in issue, may affect the probability of the existence of facts in issue, and these may be called collateral facts." First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871.

ss. 64, 165, PROV. 2. (Proof of document by primary evidence.) ss. 136, 162 (Judge to decide as to admissibility.)
ss. 145, 146, 148, 153, 155, 158 (Relevancy of questions to witnesses.)
s. 165 (Judge's power to put questions.)
s. 167 (Improper admission or rejection of evidence.)

Civil Procedure Code, O. XIII, p, 780-786. Criminal Procedure Code, s. 298. Civil Procedure Code, O. XVIII, pp., 813-824, Criminal Procedure Code, s. 339; Steph. Introd., 12; Chs. II, III, Steph. Dig, Art 2, Best, Ev, § 231, p. 251; Taylor, Ev., § 316; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 9-21.

COMMENTARY.

"And of no others"

This section therefore excludes everything which is not covered by the purview of some other section which follows in the Statute.(1) All evidence tendered must therefore be shown to be admissible under this or some one or other of the following sections,(2) or the provisions of some other Statute saved by,(3) or enacted subsequent to this Act These words in conjunction with the language of other portions of the Act further tend to show that the Court should of itself and irrespective of the parties take objection to evidence tendered before it which is not admissible under the provisions of this Act.(4) This section must be read as subject to the restrictions of Part II as to proof, and Part III as to the production of evidence. Thus the terms of a contract between the parties might be relevant, but oral evidence of it will be excluded if those terms have been reduced to writing (5) Though a document may not be legal evidence of a fact within the provisions of this Act it may yet be a document which the parties by their contract have made proof of that fact.(6)

Admissibility

All questions as to the admissibility of evidence are for the Judge.(7) Where a Judge is in doubt as to the admissibility of a particular piece of evidence, he should declare in favour of admissibility rather than of non-admissibility.(8) "Under the Evidence Act admissibility is the rule and exclusion, the exception, and circumstances which under other systems might operate to ex-

---

(1) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A (1899) at p. 43, "but the principle of exclusion should not be so applied as to exclude matter which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth." R. v Abdullah, 7 A, 40 (1885), and see observations on the modern rule as to admissibility in Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Society, L. R., 4 C. P. D, 109

(2) Lekhraj Kuar v Mohpal Singh, 7 I A, 70, ante, Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C W N, 402, 406 (1904)

(3) S 2, ante

(4) Field, Ev, 668; Whitley Stokes, 854 See following paragraphs

(5) S. 91, post, and cf. ss 92, 115—117, 121—127.

(6) Oriental Government Security Life Assurance Company, Ld v. Sarat Chandra, 20 B, 103 (1895).

(7) S 136, post

(8) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, supra, at p. 26. and Moriarty v. London C. & D Ry. Co., L. R, 5 Q B, 314, 323, per Lush J.: "I also think on further consideration the evidence was receivable I had formed no definite opinion on the subject at the trial It was a new point and I adopted what I considered to be the usual and the safer course, where evidence is pressed by one party, and objected to by the other, of receiving the evidence at the peril of the party presenting it" But see also R v Parbhudas, "the tendency to stray from the issues is so strong in this country, that any indulgence of it beyond the clear provisions of the law is certain to lead to future embarrassment," per West, J, 11 Bom H. C. R, 90, 95 (1874); and in criminal proceedings, it has been observed, that the necessity of confining the evidence to the issue is stronger if possible, than in civil cases, for when a prisoner is charged with an offence it is of the utmost importance that the facts proved should be such as he can be expected to come prepared to answer, 3 Russ Cr, 368, 5th Ed, cited in R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C. R, 93 (1874), Roscoe, Cr Ev, 85, 12th Ed, 78 79. "It is of high importance that no security for truth, especially in criminal cases, should be weakened On our rules of evidence, said Lord Abinger clude are, under the Act, to be taken into consideration only in judging of the value to be allowed to evidence when admitted."(1) "The object of a trial in every case is to ascertain the truth in respect of the charge made. For this purpose it is necessary that the Court should be in a position to estimate, at its true worth, the evidence given by each witness, and nothing that is calculated to assist it in doing so ought to be excluded, unless, for reasons of public policy, the law expressly requires its exclusion."(2) The Judges' apprehension of possible danger in admitting certain evidence cannot create a rule for excluding it."(3) "Whether the Court does or does not consider evidence given on another occasion and between other parties appropriate and valuable, for the decision of the case which is before it, is not of itself a reason for the admission or rejection of such evidence. The Court is bound to try the matter between the parties who are before it upon such evidence as those parties in their discretion produce for the purpose and at the time when the evidence is tendered to decide whether or not it is legally admissible."(4) The value of evidence cannot affect its admissibility.(5) Questions as to the admissibility of evidence should be decided as they arise and should not be reserved until judgment in the case is given.(6) Where the question was as to the admissibility of certain documents, it was remarked —"What, if all such documents are excluded, shall we have left but oral evidence? That this is not a desirable result probably no one will deny; and in all discussions on the law of evidence, it seems to me very desirable to cosider how that result can be avoided"(7) No argument in favour of the exclusion of evidence can be founded on the inability of Judicial Officers to perform the task of attributing to it its proper influence in the decision to exclude evidence because in some cases Judges might found upon it a wrong conclusion, would be utterly inconsistent with the assumption on which all rules of law are founded that the constituted tribunals are fairly competent to carry them out (8) "To admit documents, not strictly evidence at all, to prop up oral evidence too weak to be relied upon, is not a course which their Lordships would be inclined to approve, and none of the chittahs which have been laid aside by the High Court are shown to have been admissible in evidence according to the laws of evidence regulating the decisions of those Courts. It would expose purchasers to much danger if their possession could be disturbed by inferences from, or statements in, documents not legally admissible in proof against them."(9) Where a Judge is influenced in his estimate of parol testimony by the result of his consideration of documents which he ought not to have dealt with as evidence, there is no proper trial of the case.(10) Where certain decisions of the Privy Council were referred the property, the liberty and the lives of men depend," per Jardine, J, in R v Ramchundra Govind, 19 B, 755 (1895) For subordinate Courts whose judgment is subject to appeal the safest couse in cases of doubtful relevancy of evidence is to contemplate the possibility of the evidence being admissible and to deal with the case on such a supposition—Madhavrao v Deonak, 21 B, 698 (1896)

---

(1) R v Monapuna, 16 B., 661, 668 (1892)

(2) R v Uttamchand, 11 Bom H C R, 121 (1874)

(3) Per Lord Deman in Wright v Berkett, 1 Moo & R, 414

(4) Gorachand Sircar v. Ram Narain, 9 W R., 587 (1868)

(5) R. v Roden, 12 Cox, 630

(6) Jadu Rai v. Bhubutaran Nundy, 17 C, 173 (1887), Ramjiban Serowgy v Oghur Nath, 2 C W N, 188 (1898), Rama Karansing v Mangal Sing, 1 A L J Diary, 224 (1904) See Wigmore Ev, § 19

(7) Gopeenath Singh v Anundmoyee, 8 W R, at p 169 (1867), per Markby, J, for the procedure with regard to the admission of documentary evidence, see Manson v Golam Kebria, 15 W R, 490 (1871), Issur Chunder v Russeek Lall, W R, 576 (1868)

(8) Ib (and as to standard of value as applied to evidence, ib at p 169)

(9) Eckowrie Sing v Heeralall Seal, 11 W R. (P C), 2 (1868), s c, 12 Moo I A, 136 ("Each relaxation is apt to become a precedent for another," ib at p 4), see notes to s. 36, post.

(10) Boidonath Parooye v. Russeck Lall, 9 W. R. 274 (1868) to, in which it was said that with regard to the admissibility of evidence in the native Courts in India no strict rule can be prescribed, it was remarked as follows :—"But these cases, it must be borne in mind, occurred many years ago, at the time when the practice in the Mofussil in this respect was very lax and before the Evidence Act was passed, and the observations of the Privy Council(1) were made, as I humbly conceive, not as approving of this laxity of practice, but rather as excusing it, upon the ground that the Mofussil Courts were not at the time so sufficiently acquainted with our English rules of evidence as to be able to observe them with anything like accuracy. I conceive that one great object of the Evidence Act was to prevent this laxity, and to introduce a more correct and uniform rule of practice than had previously prevailed."(2) "In deciding the question whether certain evidence be admissible or not, it is necessary to look at the object for which it is produced, and the point it is intended to establish, for it may be admissible for one purpose and not another."(3) "In civil and criminal cases there is no difference in the rules as to the admissibility of evidence though there may be a difference in their application, and it may be that a piece of evidence admissible in either class of cases may not be sufficient in a criminal case, that is, without further evidence."(4) In cases tried by jury it is the duty of the Judge to decide all questions of admissibility; and in his discretion to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties.(5) It is the duty of the Appellate Court to see that this judicial discretion is exercised in a proper manner.(6) "The moment a witness commences giving evidence which is inadmissible, he should be stopped by the Court. It is not safe to rely on a subsequent exhortation to the jury to reject the hearsay evidence and to decide on the legal evidence alone."(7) The duty of a Judge in civil cases is nowhere laid down so distinctly as this and it has been said that there may be some doubt as to whether, and if at all, to what extent, a Judge ought to interfere where no objection is raised by the parties. But if the Courts themselves be passive in this respect, the utility of the Code of evidence may be seriously impaired. Further, having regard to the imperative language of 5th, 60th, 64th, 136th, and 165th sections(8) and of other portions of the Act, it would appear that it was the intention of the Legislature that a

(1) Unide Rajaha v. Pemmasamy Venkatadry, 7 M I A., 128 at p 137 (1858) s c, 4 W R (P C) 121, Naragunty Lutchmeedatamah v Venganna Naidoo, 9 M I A, 66 at p 90 (1861), s c, 1 W R (P C), 30, Boodhnarain Singh v Omrao Singh 13 M I. A., 529 (1870), s c, 15 W R, P C, 1

(2) Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C at p 193 (1880), per Garth, C J, and as to the reception of loose evidence, v ib Hareehur Majoomdar v. Churn Majhee, 22 W. R, 355, 356, 357 (1874)

(3) Taylor v Willans, 2 B & Ad, 845, 855, per Lord Tenterden, C J

(4) R v Mallory, 15 Cox, 456, 460, per Grove, J, v. ante, notes to s 3, and cases there cited, and see also R. v Francis, 12 Cox, C. C, 612, 616, Lord Melville's Trial, 29 How St Tr, 746, 764 [a fact must be established by the same evidence whether it is to be followed by a criminal or civil consequence, but it is a totally different question in the consideration of criminal as distinguished from civil justice, how the accused may be affected by the fact when so established, per Lord Erskine, L. C.], Best, Ev, § 94

(5) Cr. Pr Code, s 294 See Best, Ev, § 97, cited post in note 1, p 10

(6) R v Amrita Govinda 10 Bom H. C. R, 498 (1873)

(7) R v Pattambar Sirdar, 7 W R., Cr, 25 (1867) Where hearsay is not admissible as evidence it should not be taken down: Pitumber Doss v Ruttun Bullub, W R, 1864, 213; an à priori consent to abide by the testimony of a certain witness cannot bind the consenting party to hearsay testimony, but only to such evidence as is legally admissible Luckeemonee v Shunkuree, 2 W R, 252, R v Sheik Magon, 5 W. R, Cr; R v Ramgopal, 10 W R, Cr, 75 (1868), R. v Kally Churn, 7 W R, Cr., 2 [hearsay evidence prohibited] Re Kedar Nath, 18 W R, Cr, 16 (1872), R v Chunder Koomar, 24 W R, Cr, 77 (1875)

(8) s 5 "and of no others," s 60, "oral evidence must be direct", s 64, "Documents must be proved by primary evidence except, &c." s. 165," nor shall he dispense with primary evidence, &c;" s 136, "shall admit evidence if relevant and not otherwise"

Civil Court should, irrespective of objections made by parties, compel observance of the provisions of the law.(1) Procedure as to admission and rejection of documents is dealt with in the undermentioned order of the Code.(2) The Judge is to decide as to the admissibility of evidence, and may ask in what manner any evidence which is tendered is relevant. He is bound to try a collateral issue when the reception of evidence depends on a preliminary question of fact.(3) The rules of evidence cannot be departed from because there may be a strong moral conviction of guilt. The moral weight of evidence is not the test.(4)

Objections by parties.

The proper time to make an objection is in the Court of first instance. For, if it is made at the time when the evidence is tendered, it may be in the power of the party tendering the evidence to obviate the objection if a valid one.(5) It has been held that where a valid objection is taken to the admissibility of evidence, it is discretionary with the Judge whether he will allow the objection to be withdrawn.(6) Some latitude should be allowed to a member of the Bar, insisting in the conduct of his case upon his question being taken down or his objections noted where the Court thinks the question inadmissible or the objections untenable. There ought to be a spirit of give and take between the Bench and Bar in such matters, and every little persistence on the part of a pleader should not be turned into the occasion of a criminal trial unless the pleader's conduct is so clearly vexatious as to lead to the inference that his intention is to insult or to interrupt the Court.(7)

An objection may be waived, but waiver cannot operate to confer on evidence the character of relevancy (v. post). If the objection is primâ facie sustainable, then the opponent must show the Court that the evidence satisfies the law.(8) If, however, the evidence appears to the Court to be primâ facie admissible it is for the objector to make out the grounds of his objection. The objection should be specific. It should declare that the evidence violates a named principle or rule of evidence. The cardinal principle is that a general objection if overruled, cannot avail. The only modification of this broad rule

---

(1) Field, Ev., 668, see pp. 667, 668, 671—673, 637, where the question is discussed and see Whitley Stokes, 854. On the other hand, it has been said that, subject to certain well-recognised exceptions, the general principle, Omnis consensus tollit errorem, applies to evidence in civil cases, a maxim which is in one sense of doubtful application under this Act as to criminal cases v post, p. 131. Much inadmissible evidence is constantly received in practice, because the opposing counsel either deems it not worthwhile to object, or thinks its reception will be beneficial to his client. Best, Ev., § 97. In Sheetul Pershad v Junmejoy Mullick, 12 W. R., 244 (1869), the Court said: "It is somewhat difficult to ascertain exactly how matters stood before the Judge, but it rather appears that the objection now taken as to there being no evidence to bring the case within cl. 1, s. 17, Act X of 1859, was not taken before the Judge. There is no doubt that even if the evidence on the record were in itself insufficient, the Judge might properly have decided the case upon the evidence such as it was if the defendant had waived his objection to its insufficiency and consented to its being taken as sufficient." In this case it seems the party dispensed with proof, and the case was not one in which evidence was wrongly admitted. As to objections by parties, and admissibility of evidence on appeal, see next paragraph.

(2) Civ. Pr. Code, O. XVIII, pp. 780—786.

(3) S. 136, post and see s. 162, post, Cleave v Jones, 7 Ex., 421, Phillips v Cole, 10 A. & E., 106.

(4) R v Baijoo Choudhree, 25 W. R., Cr., 43 (1876), when it was objected that the moral weight of certain evidence not legally admissible was almost irresistible, Lord Campbell, C. J., said: "The moral weight of evidence is not the test. Many facts are excluded by law, which might be important on account of the inconvenience of admitting them." R v Oddy, 5 Cox C. C., 210, 213, "convictions must be based on substantial and sufficient evidence not merely moral convictions," R v Sorab Roy, 5 W. R., Cr., 28 (1866), as to judicial disbelief, see dictum in Re Nobodoorga, 7 C. L. R., 391 (1880).

(5) Kissen Kaminee v Ram Chunder, 12 W. R., 13 (1869), Sheetul Pershad v Junmejoy Mullick, 12 W. R., 244 (1869), Wigmore, Ev., § 18.

(6) Barbat v Allen, 7 Exch., 609.

(7) Per Cur. in In re Dattatraya, 6 Bom. L. R., 541 (1904).

(8) See Wigmore, Ev., § 18.

being that if on the face of the evidence in its relation to the rest of the case there appears no purpose whatever for which it could have been admissible, then a general objection, though overruled, will be deemed to have been sufficient. The opposing counsel can make no reply to a general objection except to throw the whole responsibility upon the Judge at once or else begin systematically and argue that under any possible objection the testimony should come in. Many trials under such a system would practically never end.(1)

When dealing in appeal with the admissibility of evidence admitted by the lower Court, a distinction has been drawn between the cases (a) in which evidence wholly irrelevant has been erroneously admitted by the lower Court; and (b) those cases in which a relevant fact has been erroneously allowed to be proved in a manner different from that which the law requires;(2) e.g., where secondary evidence of the contents of a document has been admitted without the absence of the original having been accounted for.(3) In the first case it is obvious that the decree can be supported upon relevant evidence only (cf. s. 165, Prov. 2, post). An erroneous omission to object to the admission of irrelevant testimony does not make it available as a ground of judgment.(4) Nor can evidence be given which the law excludes as that a person who is liable on a note of hand signed it as surety only.(5) The Act (s. 165) also enacts that the judgment must be based upon facts duly proved, that is, proved in accordance with the provisions relating to proof contained in the Act. Where no proof has been offered, as where a document has been admitted in the lower Court without being proved, the Court of appeal may reject the document notwithstanding want of objection by the other party.(6) Where proof has been given of a document but the proof is primâ facie improper, an apparent exception exists in civil suits based on principles akin to estoppel; as where no objection is taken to secondary evidence of documents being given.(7) In this case want of objection may mislead the party tendering the evidence and prevent him from producing primary evidence, or from showing that the secondary evidence offered is admissible.(8) So it has been held that if no objection is taken in the Court of first instance to the reception of a document in evidence (e.g., as being the copy of a copy) it is not within the province

---

(1) See Wigmore, Ev., § 18, and see per Lord Brougham in Bain v Whitehaven F R Co, H L C, 1, 16

(2) Field, Ev, 668; and note to s. 167, post

(3) As to parol evidence of written contract admitted without objection, see Article in 14 Mad L J., 189.

(4) A. B. Miller v Babu Madho Das, 19 A, 76; s c., L. R., 23 I A, 106 (1896), the decision in Luchmeedhur v Rughoobur, 24 W. R, 285 (1875), appears therefore to be incorrect. In Pudmavate v Doolar Singh, 4 M. I. A, at pp 285, 286 (1847), s c., 7 W. R, P C., 41, the Privy Council observed that the evidence "was, however, received below, and therefore we do not apprehend that we can treat it as not being evidence in the cause." These observations appear, however, to have referred to the weight and not to the admissibility of the evidence. See also Ningawa v Bharmappa, 23 B, 69 (1897) It has been said that a party who has filed an exhibit cannot plead its inadmissibility if the other party seeks to use the document against him. Raman v. Secretary of State, Mad. L. J. Dig., 65. But apart from any question of estoppel as where the objection is to the proof, or where the reception of the evidence has affected the position of the other party, the question of admissibility must be determined by the provisions of the Act.

(5) Harak Chand v. Bishun Chandra, 8 C. W N, 101, 102 (1903) [Inadmissibility of oral evidence, question not raised in either of lower Courts, but taken and allowed in appeal.]

(6) Kanto Prashad v Jagat Chandra, 23 C., 335, 338 (1895); in this case the contention that a map was admissible in evidence was held to be open to the appellant on special appeal, although he had not appealed against an order of remand made by the lower Appellate Court rejecting the map as not being admissible; but see Girindra Chandra v Rajendra Nath, 1 C. W. N., 630 (1897)

(7) See Robinson v Davies, 5 Q. B D, 26 (1879), where secondary evidence of the contents of written documents was received under a commission to take evidence abroad without objection

(8) Kissen Kaminee v. Ram Chander, supra of the Appellate Court to raise or recognise it in appeal.(1) Where also the Court of first instance admitted in evidence the depositions of certain witnesses in a previous litigation and no objection was taken, but in appeal it was objected that the witnesses who were alive ought to have been called and examined, and the Court excluded the evidence, it was held in second appeal that, as in consequence of the want of objection the party tendering the evidence had cancelled his application to have his witnesses summoned, the lower Appellate Court ought either to have accepted the evidence or if it required the sses before it for examination, ng so, and that in no case was and deciding the case on the al was remanded.(2) But of course the Appeal Court has a perfect right to attach such weight to the documents as it thinks proper, or to say whether they ought to be treated as evidence as against particular parties to the suit.(3)

Objections to the admissibility of documents attached to the return of a commission if not previously made cannot be taken at the hearing of the suit.(4) If when evidence is taken before Commissioners a document is tendered and objected to on any ground, the opposite party is not precluded from objecting to the document at the trial on any other ground. It is not necessary to state all the objections to the admissibility of a document when it is first tendered, but the party objecting is at liberty to take any fresh objection whenever the party producing the document tenders it in evidence.(5)

In the undermentioned case,(6) the Privy Council held that the examination of a material witness of the plaintiff in the absence of the defendant, his vakil having been removed and no other vakil then acting for him, was such an irregularity that if objected to at the proper time would have been fatal to the reception of such evidence; but that no objection having been urged during the time or until an appeal was interposed, the objection came too late and could not be sustained as, notwithstanding such irregularity that fact did not taint the whole proceedings so as to prevent the plaintiff recovering upon the other evidence which was sufficient to establish his case.

It has been held that the ground of waiver cannot be allowed to prevail in a criminal case,(7) and that a prisoner on his trial can consent to nothing.(8)

---

(1) Chimnaji Govind v. Dhunlar Dhondei, 11 B., 320 (1886) followed in Lakshman v. Amrit, 24 B., 596 (1900), in this the copy from which the copy was taken had been filed in a suit between the predecessors in title of the parties. Akbar Ali v. Bhyea Lal, 6 C. (1880) at pp. 669, 670; Kasem Kamnee v. Ram Chunder, 12 W. R., 13 (1869), in which suit the case was remanded with liberty to supply the necessary proof, see Ningawa v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 65 (1897); see note to s. 165, post. No objection should be allowed to be taken in the Appellate Court as to the admissibility of a copy of a document which was admitted in evidence in the Court below without any objection Kishori Lal v. Rakhal Das, 31 C., 155 (1903), dissenting from Kameshar Pershad v. Amanutulla, 26 C., 53 (1898), Shahzadi Begam v. Secretary of State for India, P. C. (1907), 34 Cal., 1059, L. R., 34 I. A., 194; Thet She v. Maung Ba, 3 L. B. R., 49.

(2) Lakshman v. Amrit, 24 B., 56 (1900).

(3) Akbar Ali v. Bhyea Lal, supra.

(4) Struthers v. Wheeler, 6 C. L. R., 109 (1880).

(5) Ralli v. Gau Kim, 9 C., 939 (1883).

(6) Bommarauze Bahadur v. Rangasamy Mudaly, 6 M. I. A., 232 (1855).

(7) R. v. Amrita Govinda, 10 Bom. H. C. R., 497, 498 (1873). On the question how far the rule of evidence may be relaxed by consent, Mr. Best remarks —"In criminal cases, at least in treason and felony, it is the duty of the judge to see that the accused is condemned according to law, and, the rules of evidence forming part of that law, no admissions from him or his counsel will be received." § 97 see also s. 58, post.

(8) R. v. Bishonath, 12 W. R., Cr., 3 (1869); Attorney-General of New South Wales v. Bertrand, 36 L. J., P. C., 51, s. c., L. R., 1 P. C., 535, see also R. v. Nanroji Dadabhai, 9 Bom. H. C. R., 358, 383 (1872), R. v. Bholanath, 2 C., 23 (1876), R. v. Allen, 6 C., 83 (1880), Hossein Buksh v. R., 6 C., 96, 99, as to objections see observation of Trevelyan, J., in Girish Chunder v. R., 20 C., 861 (1893); Best, Ev., § 97; as to admissions of fact by legal practitioners, see ss. 17, 18, 58, post.

As to objections to the reception of evidence by the Court itself, see the preceding paragraph; and as to the procedure when a question is objected to and allowed by the Court, see the Civil Procedure Code.(1) A Court is bound to decide upon the evidence without reference to any previous arrangement between the parties as to the mode in which the evidence is to be dealt with.(2) Upon the question of placing a favourable construction on doubtful evidence so as to entitle the Court to treat it as substantive evidence in the case and not to exclude it as inadmissible;(3) and as to the case where both parties have put indifferent portions of inadmissible proceedings and rested arguments thereon,(4) see the cases noted below.

Relevancy of facts forming part of same transaction.

6. Facts which, though not in issue, are so connected with a fact in issue as to form part of the same transaction, are relevant, whether they occurred at the same time and place or at different(5) times and places.

Illustrations.

(a) A is accused of the murder of B by beating him. Whatever was said or done by A or B, or the by-standers at the beating, or so shortly before or after it as to form part of the transaction, is a relevant fact.(6).

(b) A is accused of waging war against the Queen by taking part in an armed insurrection in which property is destroyed, troops are attacked and gaols are broken open. The occurrence of these facts is relevant, as forming part of the general transaction, though A may not have been present at all of them.(7)

(c) A sues B for libel contained in a letter forming part of a correspondence. Letters between the parties relating to the subject out of which the libel arose, and forming part of the correspondence in which it is contained, are relevant facts, though they do not contain the libel itself.

(d) The question is whether the certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to several intermediate persons successively. Each delivery is a relevant fact.(8)

Principle.—If facts form part of the transaction which is the subject of enquiry, manifestly evidence of them ought not to be excluded (9) Moreover, such facts, forming part of the res gestæ in most cases could not be excluded without rendering the evidence unintelligible,(10) for every part of a transaction is connected with every other part as cause or effect. The point for

(1) Civ. Pr. Code, O. XVIII, r. 11, p. 819. cf. also s. 359, Cr. Pr. Code of Act XIV of 1882.

(2) Gooroo Pershad v. Bykunta Chander, 6 W. R., 82 (1866).

(3) Dwarka Das v. Sant Baksh, 18 A., 92 (1895).

(4) Bir Chander v. Bhanu Dhar, 3 B. L. R., A. C., 217 (1869).

(5) Thus where a man committed three burglaries in one night, and stole a shirt at one place and left it in another, and they were all so connected that the Court heard the history of all three burglaries. Lord Ellenborough remarked that "if crimes do so intermix the Court must go through the detail." Case cited without name in R. v. Whiley; 2 Lea, 985; which is also reported as R. v. Wylie, 1 B. & P. (N. R.), 92.

(6) See In re Surat Dhobni, 10 C., 302 (1884); R v. Fakirapa, 15 B., 491, 496 (1890), as to exclamations of mere by standers see R v. Foukes, cited Steph. Dig., Art. 3, illust. (a), Milne v. Liester, 7 H. & N., 786, Bennison v. Cartwright, 5 B. & S. 1, The Schwalbe Swab., 521. Wharton, Ev., § 260.

(7) v. s. 10, post. That war was waged is one of the facts in issue. These occurrences are part of that fact.

(8) As being part of the fact in issue, did the goods pass to A.

(9) See Norton, Ev., 101.

(10) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 79, 12th Ed., Acts, declarations and circumstances which constitute or accompany, and explain, the fact or transaction in issue, are admissible as forming part of the res gestæ. The term res gestæ, though generally ap-decision will always be whether they do form part, or are too remote to be considered really part of the transaction before the Court.(1)

s. 3 ("Fact.") s. 3 ("Fact in issue.")

s. 3 ("Relevant.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 3; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 86, 12th Ed., 79; Steph. Introd., Ch. III; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 46; Norton, Ev., 111; Cunningham, Ev., 87; Whitley Stokes, 854; Taylor, Ev., §§ 320, 326—328; Wharton, Ev., § 258; Thayer's Cases on Evidence, 629; Rice on Evidence, 369-392.

COMMENTARY.

Facts forming part of same transaction

A transaction is a group of facts so connected together as to be referred to by a single legal name, e.g., a contract, tort or crime. Whether any particular fact is, or is not, part of the same transaction as the fact in issue is a question of law upon which no principle has been stated by authority and on which single Judges have given different decisions.(2) The area of events covered by the term res gestæ depends upon the circumstances of each particular case. The res gestæ may be defined as those circumstances which are the automatic and undesigned incidents of a particular litigated act and which are admissible when illustrative of such act. These incidents may be separated from the act by a lapse of time more or less appreciable. A transaction may last for weeks. The incidents may consist of sayings and doings of any one absorbed in the event whether participant or by-stander; they may comprise things left undone as well as things done. They must be necessary incidents of the litigated act in the sense that they are part of the immediate preparations for or emanations of such act and are not produced by the calculated policy of the actors. They are the act talking for itself, not what people say when talking about the act. In other words, they must stand on an immediate causal relation to the act—a relation not broken by the interposition of voluntary individual weariness, seeking to manufacture evidence for itself. Incidents that are thus immediately and unconsciously associated with an act, whether such incidents are doings or declarations, become in this way evidence of the character of the act. They are admissible though hearsay, because in such cases it is the act that creates the hearsay, not the hearsay the act. It is the power of perception unmodified by recollection that is appealed to, not of recollection modifying perception. Whenever recollection comes in—whenever there is opportunity for reflection and explanations—then statements cease to be part of the res gestæ. Declarations to be admissible must be made during the transaction. If made after its completion they are too late(3) but it is no objection that they are self-serving.(4) Whenever a fact is a link in a chain of facts necessary to establish another fact, it is, of course, admissible. In some cases an offence consists of a series of transactions; in such cases evidence is admissible of any act which plied to a fact or transaction in issue, may be used in the above connection of any material fact. Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 46.

---

The earlier term was res gestæ, see as to the history of this "catch all" phrase, Thayer's Cases on Evidence, 629, same in American Law Review, XV, 5, 81; Wigmore, Ev., § 1795.

(1) Norton, Ev., 101.

(2) Steph. Dig., Art. 3, R. v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodeliar, 6 C., 655, 662 (1881), cf. use of word in ss. 235, 239, Cr. Pr. Code, and see R. v. Fakirappa, 15 B., 496, 502, supra; R. v. Tajuram, 16 B., 414, 424 (1892), R. v. Dwarkanath, 7 W. R., Cr., 15 (1867), R. v. Sami, 13 M., 426 (1890). The term "transaction" occurs in s. 13, post, and as used in that section was defined in Gujju Lall v. Fateh Lall, 6 C. at p. 186 (1880).

(3) Chain Mahto v. R. (1907), 11 C. W. N., 266.

(4) Wharton, Ev., §§ 258-262. See definitions of Supreme Court of Georgia cited in Rice, Ev., 375, "the circumstances, facts and declaration which grew out of the main fact, are contemporaneous with and serve to illustrate its character as part of the res gestæ."

goes to make up the offence.(1) A fact besides being relevant under this section, by virtue merely of its being so connected with a fact in issue as to form part of the same transaction, may also be relevant on the grounds mentioned in one or other of the succeeding sections. So where several offences are connected together and form part of one entire transaction, then the one is evidence to show the character of the other.(2) And where the only evidence against a prisoner charged with having voluntarily caused grievous hurt was a statement made in the presence of the prisoner by the person injured to a third person immediately after the commission of the offence and the prisoner did not, when the statement was made, deny that she had done the act complained of, it was held that the evidence was admissible under this section and s. 8, illust. (g) of this Act.(3) But where it did not appear how long an interval had elapsed between a murder and the statement of an alleged bystander, whose condition of mind did not seem to have been such as to exclude the supposition that his evidence was fabricated, it was held that his statement was inadmissible under this section (4) The doctrine of election (in criminal trials) is closely connected with that about the admissibility of collateral facts, which, though not in issue, may be relevant under this section if they form part of the same transaction (5) The cases cited below may be further consulted in connection with this section.(6) Certain persons were convicted of robbing and murder, and on its appearing that the two offences constituted parts of the same transaction; held that recent and unexplained possession of the stolen property which would be presumptive evidence against the prisoners on the charge of robbing was similarly evidence against them on the charge of murder.(7)

Facts which are the occasion, cause or effect of facts in issue

7 Facts which are the occasion, cause or effect, immediate or otherwise, of relevant facts, or facts in issue, or which constitute the state of things under which they happened, or which afforded an opportunity for their occurrence or transaction, are relevant.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A robbed B

The facts that, shortly before the robbery, B went to a fair with money in his possession, and that he showed it, or mentioned the fact that he had it, to third persons, are relevant (8)

(b) The question is whether A murdered B.

Marks on the ground, produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed, are relevant facts (9)

(c) The question is, whether A poisoned B.

---

(1) Roscoe, Cr Ev, 79, 12th Ed; Norton, Ev, 102

(2) R. v Ellis, 6 B & C, 145, cited in R. v. Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C. R, 94 (1874); v. s 14, post. See also Introductions, ante.

(3) In re Surat Dhobni, 10 C., 302 (1884), supra.

(4) Chain Mahto v. R. (1907), 11 C W. N, 266,

(5) R v. Fakirapa, 15 B, 496, 502, supra, see also ss 235, 239, Cr. Pr. Code; Taylor, Ev, § 329

(6) R. v Birdseye, 4 C. & P., 386; R. v. Rearden, 4 Fost & Fin, 76, R. v. Ellis, supra; R v. Cobden, 3 Fost & Fin, 833; R. v Young, R. & R, C. C. R., 280, note; R. v. Westwood, 4 C. & P. 547, R v. Williams, Dears, C C, 188, R v Rooney, 7 C & P., 517; R. v Whiley, 2 Lea, 985; R. v Long, 6 C. &. P, 179, R. v Firth, L R, 1 C C R., 172; R. v Salisbury, 5 C. & P., 155, 157; see cases cited in Steph Dig, Art 3, 2 East P C, 934

(7) R v Sami, 13 M, 426 (1890).

(8) As giving occasion or opportunity or being the cause, see Norton, Ev, 103; Cunningham, Ev, 90; Whitley Stokes, 855

(9) As effects of the fact in issue, this is an instance of real evidence. see Norton, Ev, 103; Best, Ev., § 92, as to proof from foot-mark; see Wills' Circ Ev, 641, 126, 291, 305

The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison and habits of B, known to A, which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison, are relevant facts.(1)

Principle.—The reason for the admission of facts of this nature is that, if it is desired to decide whether a fact occurred or not, almost the first natural step is to ascertain whether there were facts at hand calculated to produce or afford opportunity for its occurrence, or facts which its occurrence was calculated to produce. Further, in order to the proper appreciation of a fact, it is necessary to know the state of things under which it occurred.(2)

s. 3 ("Fact.") s. 3 ("Relevant.")

s. 3 ("Fact in issue.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 9, and note; Steph. Introd., Ch. III; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 46, 109; Norton, Ev., 103; Cunningham, Ev., 90; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 131—134; Best, Ev., § 453; Wills' Circ. Ev., passim.

COMMENTARY.

Causation

Leaving the transaction itself the present section embraces a larger area and provides for the admission of several classes of facts, which though not possibly forming part of the transaction, are yet connected with it in particular modes (viz., as occasion, cause, effect; as giving opportunity for its occurrence or as constituting the state of things under which it happened), and so are relevant when the transaction itself is under enquiry. These modes—occasion, cause, effect, opportunity, are readily different aspects of causation. When . . . . to have done it (not through s physical presence, within a proper range of time and place forms one step on the way to the belief that he did it. If it be asked whether the mere possibility involved in opportunity is not too slender and whether something more than mere opportunity, for example, exclusive opportunity, should not first be shown, the answer is that by the very showing of an opportunity countless hypotheses are negatived; and the person charged who might otherwise have been one of innumerable other persons at the time, is shown to have been one of the limited number who were in a position to do this particular act. In short, opportunity alone, and not exclusive opportunity, is a sufficient showing for admissibility.(3) On the other hand no circumstance can be more infirmative of a charge than that the accused had no opportunity of committing the crime. On the strength of this rests the force of a defence founded on an alibi.(4) But care must be taken against a hasty inference from opportunity for, to commission of, a crime. There can be no crime without the opportunity, but there is a wide gulf to be bridged over by evidence between opportunity and commission.(5)

Similar unconnected facts

Generally speaking, it is not admissible to prove the fact in issue by showing that fact similar to it, but not part of the same transaction, have occurred on other occasions.(6) The meaning of the rule excluding transactions similar to but unconnected with the facts in issue, is that inferences are not to be drawn

(1) As constituting the state of things under which the alleged fact happened, and as affording opportunity

(2) Cunningham, Ev, 90, 91, Steph Introd., Ch. III; knowledge of circumstances enabling a person to do the act is thus also relevant [illust. (c).]

(3) Wigmore, Ev, § 131.

(4) See s 11, post.

(5) Norton, Ev., 104, Best, Ev, § 453; see case cited in Starkie, Ev., 4th Ed, 864, note; Wills' Circ Ev, 53.

(6) Steph Dig, Art 10, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed., 134, Best, Ev, §§ 506—510; Taylor, Ev., §§ 317—326, Broom's Legal Maxims, 908; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 84—86; Powell, Ev, 523—535, and v. post.

from one transaction to another which is not specifically connected with it merely because the two resemble one another. They must be linked together by the chain of cause and effect in some assignable way before an inference may be drawn.(1) They are not facts in issue and are therefore excluded by the fifth section. They are not parts of the same transaction so as to be admissible under the sixth section, and there is no principle of causation which would render them relevant under this section. The maxim res inter alias actæ is frequently supposed to express the principle of exclusion in such cases: but this is incorrect for similar transaction inter partes would be equally inadmissible in this relation. The maxim has its principal utility in the domain of substantive law.(2) And so when, as in a well-known case, the question was whether A, a brewer, sold good beer to B, a publican, the fact that A sold good beer to C, D and E, other publicans, was held to be irrelevant.(3) Nor, when an act has been proved to show that a given party did the act, may evidence be tendered of similar acts done either by himself, with the object of showing a disposition, habit or propensity to commit, and a consequent probability of his having committed, the act in question, or by others, though similarly circumstanced to himself to show that he would be likely to act as they.(4) And so when the question is, whether A committed a crime, the fact that he formerly committed another crime of the same sort and had a tendency to commit such crimes, is irrelevant.(5) The so-called exceptions (though they are, not strictly speaking, such) to this rule consist in the admissibility of evidence of acts showing intention, good faith, and the like,(6) and of facts showing accident or system (7) Judgment also in Court of Justice on other occasions have been said to form an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue (8) On the other hand and on the same principle, in cases where causation is well-known and regular, as in the case of physical and mechanical agencies, the conditions of mental disease, the propensities of animals and the like, evidence of similar but unconnected acts is often admissible.(9) Where in an action brought in respect of a nuisance

---

(1) Steph. Dig., p 163

(2) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed.; 135, Steph Dig., Art 10, and n vi, p 162; Best, Ev., § 112, 506—510, Taylor, Ev., 317—326, Brown's Legal Maxims, 954—968.

(3) Holcombe v Hewson, 2 Camp., 391, aliter if it had been shown that the beer sold to all was of the same brewing Steph Dig., Art 10, illust (b); so (unless a general custom) be proved, the terms on which A left land to B, are no evidence of the terms on which A left lands to other tenants Carter v. Pryke, Peake, 130, see Hollingham v. Head, 4 C B N. S., 388, Spencely v DeWillott, 7 East., 108, Smith v Wilkins, 6 C. & P., 180; Taylor, Ev., §§ 317—326

(4) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 109, and text-books cited ante, and notes to s 14, post; as to the converse cases of character and course of business v post, ss. 52—55, 16

(5) Steph Dig., Art 10, illust.(a), R. v. Cole, 1 Phillips, Ev., 508, Steph Dig., pp. 162—164, see s 14, post, illusts (n), (o), (p)

(6) See s. 14, post; cf Steph Dig., Art 11, and pp. 162—164, ib., Phipson, 3rd Ed., 135 As to evidence of intention, see Narsingh Dyal v Ram Narain, 30 C., 883, 896 (1903) R. v. Bond, C. C. R., (1906). 21 Cox., p 252; post, p 196

(7) See s 15, post, cf Steph Dig., Art 12; Lawson s Presumptive Evidence, 182, Steph Dig., 162—164, see also Taylor, Ev., §§ 327—348; Roscoe, Cr Ev., 87, 12th Ed., 81, et seq; Best, Ev., p 463, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 85, R. v. Wyat, 1 K B., 188 (1904), 1 All L J., 42, Hales v. Kerr (1908), 2 K B., 601, Times L. R. v 24; p 779

(8) Steph Introd., 164, see ss 40—44, post.

(9) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 126—129; Best, Ev., pp 463, 464; Taylor, Ev., 319, so in an American case it being in dispute whether a horse was or was not frightened by a certain pile of lumber evidence that other horses were frightened by the same pile, under a variety of circumstances, was held admissible Best, Ev., p 464; for a similar case, see Brown v E. C R Co., 22 Q. B D., 391, "so where the question was whether A's dog killed a sheep belonging to B; the fact that the same dog had killed other sheep on different occasions belonging to other people was held ada railway engine, proof that (1) the same engine, and (2) other engines of similar construction belonging to the same Company had previously caused alleged to be caused by the construction and maintenance of a hospital for infectious diseases, the plaintiff proposed to call evidence as to the effect of other similar hospitals on the surrounding neighbourhoods, it was held that evidence of facts by which the effect (or absence of effect) of such hospitals could be either positively or approximately ascertained was admissible and material.(1) Where the discharge of gaseous matter from the chimney of a chemical works was complained of as a nuisance by the proprietor of land in its vicinity, it was held that the effect of the discharge upon other properties in the neighbourhood was legitimate matter of enquiry, (2) on the same principle evidence of the effect of similar discharges from other chimneys would have been admissible (3) When the doings of animals are in question, it is admissible to prove the general character of the species, or of the particular animals, as well as the doings of the same, or similar animals on other occasions.(4) Further, similar facts may become admissible in confirmation of testimony as to the main fact which would be inadmissible as direct proof. So an admission of liability on one bill accepted by the same agent is no evidence of a general authority to accept, though it is admissible to confirm independent proof of such authority (5) And proof of particular instances are admissible to confirm a general course of business. And under this Act (though not,(6) generally speaking, in England) even previous similar statements made by a witness are admissible to corroborate him by showing that he is consistent with himself.(7) Similar facts may be admissible in proof of agency. Where the question is whether one person acted as agent for another on a particular occasion, the fact that he so acted on other occasions, is relevant.(8) In a suit for dissolution of marriage, evidence of acts of adultery, subsequent to the date of the latest act charged in the petition, are admissible, for the purpose of shewing the character of previous acts of improper familiarity.(9)

---

fires along the same line, is admissible, Aldridge v G. W. R. Co, 3 M & Gr, 522, Piggott v E. C R. Co., 3 C. B., 229, the question being whether A was insane at a certain time, evidence that he exhibited symptoms of insanity prior and subsequent to such time, and that his ancestors and collaterals had been insane, is admissible; Pope on Lunacy, 392" Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 129—134; as to the presumption of regularity in the case of scientific instruments, see Taylor, Ev., § 183. As to Manorial and Trade Customs, see Taylor, Ev., §§ 320—322; Roscoe, N. P Ev., 85, 86; Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 127; s 13, post, acts showing title, see s. 11, post

(1) The Managers of the Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, 47 L T. (H. L.), 29; per Lord Selborne, L. C. "Evidence relating to collateral facts is only admissible when such facts will, if established, establish reasonable presumption as to the matter in dispute, and when such evidence is reasonably conclusive," per Lord Watson; see also Foulkes v. Chadd, 3 Doug, 157.

(2) Hamilton v. Tennant & Co., 1 Rob, 821, 7 C. & F., 122; R v. Neville, 1 Pea. N. P. C., 125; but see as to this last case, R v. Fairie, 8 E. & B, 486.

(3) Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, supra, 35, per Lord Watson

(4) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 148, 128, Osborne v. Chacquell, 2 Q B. (1896), 109, Williams v. Richards (1907); 2 K. B., 88

(5) Llewellyn v Winckworth, 13 M. & W., 598; Hollingham v. Head, 4 C. B N. S, 388, Morris v. Bethel, L. R, 4 C. P., 765; Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 78.

(6) Bourne v. Gatliff, 11 C. & F, 45; see as to similar facts admissible in corroboration of the main fact R. v. Pearce, Peake, N Pr R, 106; R v. Egerton, R. & R, 375, cited in R. v. Ellis, 6 B & C, 148; Cole v. Manning, 2 Q B D, 611, and cases in preceding note.

(7) S. 157, post

(8) Steph. Dig, Art 13; Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Society, L R, 4 C. P. D, 94; see also Courteen v. Touse, 1 Camp, 42*n*; Neal v. Erving, 1 Esp, 60; Watkins v. Vince, 2 Starkie, 368

(9) Boddy v. Boddy, 30 L. J. P. & M., 23; Taylor, Ev, § 340, see remarks on this case in Phipson, Ev., 80, 1st Ed. omitted in 2nd Ed It has been held that ante-nuptial incontinence is relevant to prove post-nuptial misconduct charged between the same parties Cantello v. Cantello, Times, March 2, 1896, cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 127.

Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct

8. Any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive(1) or preparation(2) for any fact in issue or relevant fact.

The conduct of any party, or of any agent to any party, to any suit or proceeding, in reference to such suit or proceeding(3) or in reference to any fact in issue therein or relevant thereto,(4) and the conduct of any person an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding,(5) is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous(6) or subsequent(7) thereto.

Explanation 1.—The word "conduct" in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements;(8) but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act.(9)

Explanation 2.—When the conduct of any person is relevant, any statement made to him or in his presence and(10) hearing, which affects such conduct, is relevant.(11)

Illustrations.

(a) A is tried for murder of B.

The facts that A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A by threatening to make his knowledge public, are relevant.(12)

(b) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money B denies the making of the bond.

The fact that, at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose, is relevant (c) A is tried for the murder of B by poison.

The fact that, before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B, is relevant.(13)

(d) The question is, whether a certain document is the will of A.

The facts that, not long before the date of the alleged will, A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate, that he consulted

---

(1) Illusts (a), (b), and v post. R v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodeliar, 6 C., 655, 662; as to the admissibility of similar facts to prove motive for a crime, see for its admission, R v. Heeson, 14 Cox, 40; R v. Stephens, 16 Cox, 387; R v. Clewes, 4 C. & P., 22, contra; R v. Flanagan, 15 Cox, 403

(2) Illusts (c), (d), and v. post.

(3) Illust. (e).

(4) Illusts (d), (e), (i), R v. Abdulla, 7 A, 40 (1885)

(5) Illusts. (i), (k).

(6) Illusts. (d), (e)

(7) Illusts. (e), (i). Dalip Singh v. Nawal Kunwar, P C. (1908), 30 All., 258.

(8) Illusts (j), (k), and v. post.

(9) See ss 10, 14, illusts (k), (l), (m), 17—39, 155, 157.

(10) Not "or" but for English rule, see Neile v. Jakle, 2 C. & K., 709.

(11) Illusts. (f), (g), (h), R v. Edmunds, 6 C. & P., 164

(12) See also R v. Buckley, 13 Cox, 293; R. v. Shippey, 12 Cox, 161; R. v. Clewes, 4 C. & P., 221; 5 Cox, C. C., 214; Best, Ev., § 92.

(13) See R. v. Palmer; Steph.Introd., 107—158, Steph. Dig., Art. 7, illust (b).

vakils in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared, of which he did not approve, are relevant.(1)

(e) A is accused of a crime.

The facts, that, either before, or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence, or prevented the presence or procured the absence of persons, who might have been witnesses or suborned person to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant.(2)

(f) The question is, whether A robbed B.

The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A's presence—'the police are coming to look for the man who robbed B'—and that immediately afterwards A ran away, are relevant.(3)

(g) The question is, whether A owes B rupees 10,000.

The facts that A asked C to lend him money, and that D said to C in A's presence and hearing,—'I advise you not to trust A, for he owes B 10,000 rupees,'—and that A went away without making any answer, are relevant facts.(4)

(h) The question is, whether A committed a crime.

The fact that A absconded after receiving a letter warning him that inquiry was being made for the criminal, and the contents of the letter are relevant.(5)

(i) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, after the commission of the alleged crime, he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of porperty acquired by the crime,

---

(1) Where the factum of a will is in dispute the question whether the testator had made a will before is relevant to show that he had disposing mind. In the goods of Bhuggobutty (deceased), Cal. H. C., 9th February 1900

(2) "A party who gives or produces false evidence may by so doing give rise to a general presumption against the truth of his case;" Grish Chunder v. Iswar Chandra, 3 B. L. R., A. C. J., 341 (1869) See also R. v. Patch, in Steph Introd., 99—106, and Wills' Circ. Ev., 239; R. v. Palmer, supra; Steph Dig., Art. 7, illust. (e); see s. 114, illust. (g) post. Where the question was whether A suffered damage in a railway accident; the fact that A conspired with B, C and D to suborn false witnesses in support of his case was held to be relevant, as conduct subsequent to a fact in issue tending to show that it had not happened. Moriarty v L. C. & D Ry Co, L. R., 5 Q. B., 314. "The conduct of a party to a cause may be of the highest importance in determining whether the cause of action in which he is plaintiff or the ground of defence, if he is defendant, is honest and just: just as it is evidence against a prisoner that he has said one thing at one time and another at another, as showing that the recourse to falsehood leads fairly to an inference of guilt. So, if you can show that a plaintiff has been suborning false testimony, and has endeavoured to have recourse to perjury, it is strong evidence that he knew perfectly well that his case was an unrighteous one I do not say that it is conclusive; it does not always follow, because a man, not sure he shall be able to succeed by righteous means has recourse to means of a different character, that that which he desires, namely, the gaining of the victory, is not his due, or that he has not good ground for believing that justice entitles him to it It does not necessarily follow that he has not a good cause of action any more than a prisoner making a false statement to increase his appearance of innocence is necessarily a proof of his guilt: but it is always evidence which ought to be submitted to the consideration of the tribunal which has to judge of the facts: and therefore, I think, that the evidence was admissable inasmuch as it went to show that the plaintiff thought he had a bad case." Ib, per Cockburn, C. J., see Taylor, Ev., § 804; as to conduct of a party in a case for malicious prosecution, see Taylor v. Williams, 2 B. & Ad., 857; as to admission inferred from the conduct of parties, see s. 58, post; see also Taylor, Ev., § 804; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62; Melhuish v Collier, 15 Q B., 878; Best, Ev., § 524

(3) R. v. Abdullah, 7 A., 400 (1883); v. post, notes.

(4) See In the petition of Surat Dhobni, 10 C., 302 (1884); v. post, notes; Bessela v. Stern, 2 C P. C., 265.

(5) As to the inferences to be drawn from absconding, see R. v. Sorob Roy, 5 W. R., Cr., 23, 30 (1866).

or attempted to conceal things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.(1)

(j) The question is whether A was ravished.

The facts that, shortly after the alleged rape, she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which and the terms in which, the complaint was made, are relevant.(2)

The fact that, without making a complaint, she said that she had been ravished is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant—as a dying declaration under section thirty-two, clause (one), or as corroborative evidence under section one hundred and fifty-seven.

(k) The question is, whether A was robbed

The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, the complaint was made are relevant (3)

The fact that, he said he had been robbed, without making any complaint, is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant—as a dying declaration under section thirty two, clause (one), or as corroborative evidence under section one hundred and fifty-seven.

Principle—This section is an amplification of the preceding one. A motive is, strictly what its etymology indicates, that which moves or influences the mind. It has been said that an action without a motive would be an effect without a cause, and as, to take for example criminal cases, the particulars of external situation and conduct will in general correctly denote the motive for criminal action, the absence of all evidence of an inducing cause is reasonably regarded, where the fact is doubtful, as affording a strong presumption of innocence.(4) Preparation is also relevant, it being obviously important in the consideration of the question whether a man did a particular act or not to know whether he took any measures calculated to bring it about. Premeditated action must necessarily be preceded not only by impelling motives but by appropriate preparations.(5) The existence of a design or plan is usually employed evidentially to indicate the subsequent doing of the act planned or designed.(6) Preparation is an instance of previous conduct of the party influencing the fact in issue or relevant fact, but other conduct also whether of a party or of an agent to a party, whether previous or subsequent, and whether influencing or influenced by a fact in issue or relevant fact, is also admissible,

---

(1) Steph. Dig., Art. 7, illust (d), see s 9, illust (c), post

(2) See R v. Lillyman, 2 Q B (1896), 167 C. C. R., R v. Osborne, 1 K B. (1905), 551

(3) R. v. MacDonald, 10 B L R., App 2 (1872), the absence of the accused at the time when a complaint is made against him, in cases coming within this Illustration, does not affect the relevancy of such complaint and therefore does not exclude it, Ib In England evidence of complaint is now admissible only in cases of rape and kindred offences against females; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 93 This Illustration shows that the rule is otherwise in this country. See R v Wink, 6 C. & P., 397; R v. Ridedale, Starkie, Ev., 469, note; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 22, 23, Steph. Dig., Art. 8; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 93; wife's complaint in Ecclesiastical Courts, see Lockwood v. Lockwood, 2 Curt., 281, and complaints as evidence of mental and bodily feeling, see R. v. Vincent, 9 C & P., 91; R v Conde, 10 Cox, 547, cf. s 14, post.

(4) See p. 17, note (9).

(5) Wills' Circ. Ev., 52; Norton, Ev., 109; Cunningham, Ev., 93, 94, Best, Ev., §§ 454—457; the case of Patch cited, ib, and in Steph. Introd., 99—106, Burrill, Circ Ev., 343, also ib, 546, where informative considerations are discussed

(6) See Wigmore, Ev., § 237. Design or plan should be distinguished from intent The latter in the substantive law is a proposition in issue. Design or plan is evidence of intent, ib. Design should also be distinguished from emotion or motive, though the same facts may be evidence of either, ib.

the conduct of a party being always extremely relevant for reason some of which appear in the Commentary to the section.(1) See Introduction, ante, and Notes, post.

s. 3 ("Fact.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 ("Fact in issue")
ss. 10 14, 17 39, 155, 157

(Statements relevant under other sections.)
ss. 17—31 (Oral and Documentary admission.)
s. 50 (Opinion on relationship expressed by conduct.)

Motive, Preparation and Conduct.—Steph. Dig., Art. 7; Wills' Circumstantial Evidence, passim, Best. Ev., §§ 91, 92, 452—467; Burrill on Circumstantial Evidence, Arthur Wills on Circumstantial Evidence, Phillip's Famous Cases on Circumstantial Evidence, passim, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 100; Norton Ev., 107; Cunningham, Ev., 93; Taylor, Ev., §§ 104, 1204, 1205; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 28, 67; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 6, 12—21, 85; Wills, Ev., 59 Wigmore, Ev., § 117, 237, et seq. Statements accompanying Acts—Steph. Dig., Arts. 7, 8, ib, Note, V; Best, Ev., § 495; Greenleaf, Ev., § 108, Wharton, Ev., §§ 258, 259; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 48; Starkie, Ev., 51—53, 87—89, 166—171; Taylor, Ev., §§ 583—589; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 51—53; Powell, Ev., 157; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 22. Statements affecting Conduct—Steph. Dig., Art. 8; Taylor, Ev., §§ 809—816; Best, Ev., §§ 574, 575; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 220; Norton, Ev., 106, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 64—66; Powell, Ev., 277; Wharton, Ev., §§ 1136, 1155.

COMMENTARY.

Motive preparation conduct

Motive in the correct sense is the emotion supposed to have led to the act. The external fact which is sometimes styled the motive, is merely the possible existing cause of this "motive" and not identical with the motive itself; and the evidentiary question is not whether that external fact is admissible as a motive, but whether it is admissible to show the probable existence of the emotion or motive.(2) Generally the voluntary acts of sane persons have an [illegible] already been observed that [illegible] reasonably regarded, where [illegible] of innocence (4) If there [illegible] of that motive is not in all cases necessary. Atrocious crimes have been committed from very slight motives.(5) The mere fact, however, of a party being so situated that an advantage would accrue to him from the commission of a crime, amounts to

---

(1) v. ante, pp. 117, 118

(2) Wigmore, Ev., § 117.

(3) See Wigmore, Ev., § 118 Norton, Ev., 107 In Palmer's case (see Steph. Introd., 107—158 Rolfe, B., in addressing the jury, said.—"Had the prisoner the opportunity of administering poison, that was one thing. Had he any motive to do so; that is another." Wills' Circ Ev., 220

(4) Wills' Circumstantial Evidence, 156, 4th Ed.; Burrill's Circ. Ev., 281, et seq.; Best, Ev., § 453; see illusts (a), (b) The absence of all motive for a crime, when corroborated by independent evidence of the prisoner's previous insanity, is not without weight: R. v. Sheikh Mustafa, 1 W. R., Cr., 19 (1864), R. v. Sorob Roy, 5 W. R., Cr., 28, 31 (1866); R v. Bakar Ali, 15 W R., Cr., 46 (1871); Dil Gan v. R. (1907) 34 C., 686 [absence of motive] R. v. Jauhand Mundle, 7 W. R., Cr., 60 (1867), proof of motive not necessary, "In estimating probabilities, motives cannot in a general sense, be safely left out of the account, Where the motive is a pecuniary one, the wealth of the offender is no unimportant consideration." Per Sir Lawrence Peel, C. J., in R. v. Hedger, 131 (1853) Evidence as to the motives with which a prisoner commits an offence should be direct evidence of the strictest character: R. v Zahir, 10 W. R., Cr., 11 (1868). The motives of parties can only be ascertained by inference drawn from facts. Taylor v. Willans, 2 B. and Ad., 845, 857.

(5) Per Lord Campbell, C. J., in R. v. Palmer, cited in Wills' Circ. Ev., 44, R. v. Hedger, supra. 131.

nothing, or next to nothing, as a proof of his having committed it.(1) A letter written by the solicitors of a Company to the plaintiff stating that the Company declined to continue the negotiations for a contract because of the defendant's threats, was held admissible (though not necessarily conclusive) evidence that the negotiations were in fact discontinued because of the defendant's threats.(2) Further, the existence of motives invisible to all except the person who is influenced by them must not be overlooked.(3) "It is the act (we may assume): the accused must have been present (assuming it was done by manual action) but there may be no evidence of preparation; or there may be no evidence of presence, yet the remaining facts may furnish ample proof. The failure to produce evidence of some appropriate motive may be a great weakness in the whole body of proof, but it is not a fatal one as a matter of law. In other words there is no more necessity in the law of evidence to disc some possible one, than to . An emotion may impel a dant's strong feelings of affection for a deceased person would work against the doing of violence upon him and would thus be relevant to show the not-doing.(5)

The reasons which exist for the relevancy of evidence of preparation or design have been already given. Design may be proved by an utterance in which it is asserted, by conduct indicating the inward existence of design; by evidence of prior or subsequent existence of the design as indicating its existence at the time in question (6) Previous attempts to commit an offence are closely allied to preparations for the commission of it, and only differ in being carried one step further and nearer to the criminal act, of which, however, like the former they fall short (7) Preparation and previous attempts(8) are instances of previous conduct of the party influencing the fact in issue or relevant fact; but other conduct also whether of a party or of an agent to a party, whether previous(9)or subsequent,(10)and whether influencing or influenced by a fact in issue or relevant fact is also made admissible under this section.

The second clause applies to the party's agents as well as the party himself. "Party" includes not only the plaintiff and defendant in a civil suit, but parties in a criminal prosecution, as for instance, a prisoner charged

---

(1) Best, Ev., § 453.

(2) Skinner & Co. v. Shew & Co., L. R., 2 Ch D. (1894), 581.

(3) As to acts apparently motiveless, see R v Haynes, 1 F. & F., 666, 667; R. v. Michael Stokes, 3 C & K., 185, 188, and next note.

(4) Wigmore, Ev., § 118, citing Pointer v U S., 151 U. S., 396 (Amer.) [the absence of evidence suggesting a motive is a circumstance in favour of the accused: but proof of motive is never indispensable to conviction] · State v. Rathbun, 74 Conn., 524 (Amer.) [the other evidence may be such as to justify a conviction without any motive being shown].

(5) Wigmore, Ev., § 118

(6) id., § 237, et seq., e.g., possession of tools, materials, preparations, journeys, experiments, enquiries, and the like

(7) Best, Ev., § 455; s. 14, post, illusts. (i), (j), (o); as to the probative force of, and infirmative circumstances connected with, preparation and previous attempt, see Best, Ev., §§ 456, 457.

(8) See illusts (c), (d), & s. 14, illusts. (i), (j), (o).

(9) See illusts. (d), (e); as to previous and subsequent conduct, see Best, Ev., § 452

(10) See illusts. (e), (i).

with murder.(1) The conduct need not, to be relevant, be contemporaneous. Though concurrence of time must always be considered as material to show the connection, it is by no means essential.(2) "If such conduct influences or is influenced" means "if such conduct directly and immediately influences or is influenced."(3) The conduct of a party is extremely relevant.(4) The illustrations given are so many instances of natural presumptions which the Court or jury may draw. From preparations prior, or flight subsequent to a crime, may be inferred or presumed the guilt of the party against whom such conduct is proved.(5) Other presumptions from conduct arise in the case of flight,(6) silence,(7) evasive or false responsion(8) (v. post), possession of documents, or property connected with the offence,(9) change of demeanour in, or in the circumstances of, the accused(10) as his becoming suddenly rich, his squandering unusual sums of money and the like, attempts to stifle or evade justice or mislead enquiry(11) (as flight, keeping concealed, concealing things, obliteration of marks, subornation of evidence, bribery, collusion with officers and the like) and fear indicated by passive deportment,(12) as by trembling, stammering, starting, etc., or by a desire for secrecy,(13) e.g., as by disguising the person or choosing a spot supposed to be out of the view of others. The conduct or demeanour of a prisoner on being charged with the crime, or upon which such evidence is admitted, is contained in the maxim optimus interpres

---

(1) R. v. Abdullah, 7 A., 385, 399 (1885) (F. B), in which the terms of this section are discussed; see R. v Arnall, 8 Cox, C C, 439, 3 Russ. Cr. 489.

(2) Field, Ev, 94; Whitley Stokes, 856, Taylor, Ev., §§ 588, 589; Rouch v. G. W. R., 1 Q B, 60; but see also R. v. Bedingfield, 14 Cox, 341, Agassiz v. London Tram Co, 21 W. R. (Eng), 199; R v. Goddard, 15 Cox, 7; Lees v. Marton, 1 M & R, 210; Thompson v. Trevanion, Skin, 402, v. post

(3) R. v. Abdullah, supra, 395, 396; contra, per Mamood, J., ib, 400

(4) Ib, 394; Balmakand v. Ghansam, 22 C., 391, 404, 406 (1894); R. v. Ishri (1907); 29 A., 46; Dalip Singh v. Naval Kunwar, P. C (1908), 30 A, 258 [intention inferred from subsequent conduct of accused]; R v. Heramun, 5 W. R, Cr., 5 (1866). See as to conduct R. v. Jora Hasji, 11 Bom H. C. R., 245 (1874), and Wigmore, Ev., sub voc.

(5) Norton, Ev, 107.

(6) Illust (i), ante; absconding is usually but slight evidence of guilt; R v. Sorab Roy, 5 W. R, Cr, 28 (1866); R. v. Gobardhan, 9 A., 528, 568 (1887); as to the obsolete maxim "fatetur facinus qui judicium fugit" (he who flies judgment, confesses his guilt), see Best, Ev., §§ 460—465; Norton, Ev., 110; see s 9, illust (c), post

(7) v. post

(8) Norton, Ev, 106,107, and post; Best, Ev, 574; see Moriarty v. L. C. & D Ry, ante; for an example of inferences from conduct of the character abovementioned, see R. v. Sami, 13 M., 426, 432 (1890).

(9) Illust.(i), ante; see R. v. Courvoiser, Norton, Ev, 111; Taylor, Ev, § 595; R. v. Cooper, 1 Q B. D., 15. Letters, etc, found in a man's house after his arrest are admissible in evidence if their previous existence has been proved: R. v. Amir Khan, 9 B. L. R., 36, 70, 71 (1871)

(10) Best, Ev, § 459

(11) Arthur P. Will, Circ. Ev., 138; Best, Ev, § 460; Norton, Ev., 110, 111, Illust.(c), (i), ante. R. v. Donellan, in Steph. Introd., 75—81 and Wills' Circ Ev., 237, 241; destruction of marks, see R v. Cook and R v. Greenacre, cited in Wills' Circ Ev, 88, 89, and Norton, Ev., 111.

(12) Best, Ev., § 466. Trial of Eugene Aram cited in Wills' Circ Ev, 78, and Norton, Ev. 111, 112, R v. Peter Ram, 3 W. R., Cr, 11 (1865) [conduct of accused before and after crime]; R. v. Beharee, 3 W. R, Cr., 23, 24 (1865) [conduct of prisoner since arrest, feigning insanity; general demeanour]

(13) Best, Ev, § 467; Norton, Ev, 113.

(14) R. v Smithers, 5 C. & P., 332; R. v. Bartlett, 7 C. & P., 832; R. v. Mallory, 13 Q. B. D., 33; R. v. Tattershall, 2 Leach, 984; R. v. Phillips, 1 Law. C. C., 105; R. v Tate, C. C. A. (1908), 2 K. B, 680, at p 915; R. v. Cramp, 14 Cox., 390.

(15) 1 Phillips and Arnold, 10th Ed., 405; Roscoe, Cr. Ev, 53, 12th Ed., 48.

rerumusus.(1) And so in the case of the Attorney-General v. Drummond,(2) Lord Chancellor Sugden said:—"Tell me what you have done under such a deed, and I will tell you what that deed means." As to the admissibility of judgments under this section, see case noted below(3): and as to the admissibilty of opinion on relationship, expressed by conduct, see section 50, post. Instances of admission by the conduct or acts of a party to civil suits are of frequent occurrence. A party's admission by conduct as to the existence or non-existence of any material fact may always be proved against him,(4) and evidence on his part to explain or rebut such admissions is also receivable.(5) The plaintiff's title to sue, or the character in which the plaintiff sues, or in which the defendant is sued, is frequently admitted by the acts and conduct of the opposite party; and in some cases, the admission, though not strictly an estoppel, is practically conclusive Thus, if B has dealt with A as farmer of the post-horse duties, it is evidence in an action by A against B to prove that he is such farmer. and payment of money is an admission against the payer, that the receiver is the proper person to receive it.(6) So also suppression of documents is an admission that their contents are unfavourable to the party suppressing them (v. ante) When A brings an action against B to recover possession of land, he thereby admits B's possession of the land (7) Mere subscription of a paper, as witness, is not in itself proof of his knowledge of its contents.(8) When a landlord quietly suffers a tenant to expend money in

---

(1) Robert Watson & Co v Mohesh Narain 24 W. R., 17 (1875), in which the question was whether a pottah conveyed an estate for life only or an estate of inheritance, their Lordships of the Privy Council said —"In order to determine this question, their Lordships must arrive as well as they can at the real intention of the parties, to be collected chiefly, no doubt from the term of the instrument itself, but to a certain extent also from the circumstances existing at the time of its execution, and further by the conduct of the parties since its execution" In this case the pottah was less than 20 years old at the time of the institution of the suit, from which it appears that in India the maxim is not restricted to ancient documents, i e, documents at least 30 years old (See Field, Ev, 94. Taylor, Ev, §§ 1204, 1205; Roscoe, N P, Ev. 28) See also Girdhar Nagjishet v. Ganpat Moroba, 11 Bom H C R, 129 (1874); Nidhikrisna v. Nistarini, 13 Bom L R, 416, 420 (1874) s c, 21 W R, 386, Cheetun Lall v Chutterdharee Lall, 19 W R, 432 (1873), Ranee Radha Lall v. Gireedharee Sahoo, 20 W R, 243 (1873) [boundary dispute] Narsingh Dyal v. Ram Narain, 30 C., 883, 896 (1903), as to usage affecting contracts, see s 92, Prov 5, post and note, with respect to the course of dealing between the parties, when the meaning of a document is doubtful Bourne v Gatliff, 11 C & F, 45, [evidence of former transactions], Harrison v Barton, 30 L J., Ch, 213; Forbes v. Watt, L R, 2 H L Sc & D, 214; Royal Exchange Ass. Corp v. Tod, 8 T. L R, 669, Taylor, Ev., § 1198, but not when it is clear (Marshall v. Berridge, 19 Ch D, 233, 241; Iggulden v May, 9 Ves, 233), the sense in which both, but not one only of the parties have acted on it, as admissible in explanation, Phipson, Ev. 3rd Ed, 553 Evidence of previous dealings is admissible only for the purpose of explaining the terms used in a contract and not to impose on a party an obligation as to which the contract is silent Haji Mahomed v E. Spinner & Co, 2 B L R, 691 (1900) See generally as to the admissibility of extrinsic evidence to affect documents, the introduction to Chapter VI, post

(2) Dru & War, 368

(3) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A 1, 12, 45 (1889), and notes to s 13, post

(4) Taylor, Ev, §§ 804, 806 and cases there cited The original draft of the Evidence Act contained the following section "A conduct of any party to any proceeding upon the occasion of anything being done or said in his presence in relation to matters in question, and the things so said or done, are relevant facts when they render probable or improbable any relevant fact alleged or denied in respect of the person so conducting himself" The provisions of this proposed section are, however, incorporated in other parts of the present Act, see present section, s 11, post, s 114, illusts (g), (h), Field, Ev, 165, 166; to conduct of family showing recognition of family arrangement, see Bhubanesuari Dasi v. Harisaran Surma, 6 C, 724 (1881)

(5) Melhuish v. Collier, 15 Q B, 878; and s. 9, post, Powell, Ev, 277

(6) Roscoe, N P Ev, 67, Radford v. M'Intosh, 3 T R, 632, Peacock v Harris, 10 East, 104; James v Bion, 2 Sim & St., 606; Taylor, Ev., p 567 note; Norton, Ev, p. 114; as to estoppel arising from the acts of a party, see s 115, post.

(7) Stanford v. Hurlstone, L R, 9 Ch., 116.

(8) Harding v. Crethorn, 1 Esp, 58.

making alterations and improvements in the premises, it is evidence of his consent to the alterations (1) And when a party is himself a defendant (whether in a civil or criminal proceeding), and is charged as bearing some particular character, the fact of his having acted in that character will, in all cases, be sufficient evidence, as an admission that he bears that character, without reference to his appointment being in writing Thus upon an indictment against a letter-carrier for embezzlement, proof that he acted as such was held to be sufficient, without showing his appointment.(2) Delay in suing to enforce alleged rights may be construed as an admission of their non-existence.(3) Conversations that explain a man's conduct are admissible in evidence.(4) As to written and oral admissions, see s 17, post, and for further instances of admissions by conduct, see the next paragraph but one

Statements accompanying and explaining acts

In English law such statements are said sometimes to be admissible as forming part of the vague and unsatisfactory term res gestæ. The first Explanation declares that mere statements as distinguished from acts do not constitute conduct. "It points to a case in which a person whose conduct is in dispute mixes up together actions and statements, and in such case those actions and statements may be proved as a whole. For instance, a person is seen running down a street in a wounded condition, and calling out the name of his assailant, and the circumstances under which the injuries were inflicted Here what the person says and what he does may be taken together and proved as a whole."(5) A statement may be admissible, not as standing alone, but as explaining conduct in reference to relevant facts. So it was held that the answers to his superior officer given by an accused person in explanation of an official irregularity could be proved against him if subsequently ascertained to be false.(6) Conduct may be equivocal without statements explanatory and elucidatory of it. Statements accompanying acts are in fact part of the res gestæ just as much as the acts themselves. They are often absolutely necessary to show the animus of the actor. They have been styled verbal acts.(7) Thus a payment by a debtor may be explained by his request to apply it to a certain debt. [illegible] tors may be shown by wha [illegible] admissible simply because [illegible] in issue or relevant: the admissibility of such a statement depends upon the light it throws upon an act which is itself relevant.(9) The Evidence Act makes "those statements admissible, and those only, which are the essential complements of acts done or refused to be done, so that the act itself or the omission

---

(1) Doe v. Allen, 3 Taunt., 78, 80; Doe v. Pye, 1 Esp, 366; Neale v. Parkin, 1 Esp., 229, Stanley v. White, 14 East, 332

(2) Roscoe, Cr Ev, 7, R. v. Borrett, 6 C. & P, 124; see s. 91, exception (1), post, and notes thereto See Taylor, Ev., § 173

(3) Juggurnath v Syud Shah Mahomed, 14 B L. R., 386 (1874); Rajendro Nath v. Joyendro Nath, 14 M. I. A, 67 (1871), s c, 15 W. R (P. C.). 41

(4) R v. Gandfield, 2 Co. C. C, 43.

(5) R. v Abdullah, supra, 395, 396, per Petheram, C. J., "But the case would be very different if some passer-by stopped him and suggested some name, or asked some question regarding the transaction. If a person were found making such statements without any question first being asked, then his statements might be regarded as a part of his conduct. But when the statement is made merely in response to some question or objection it shows a state of things introduced, not by the fact in issue, but by the interposition of something else" Ib, but see ib, 400, per Mahmood, J., and ante

(6) R. v. Ganesh, 4 Bom. L. R., 284 (1902).

(7) Norton, Ev, 106, Bateman v Bailey, 5 T. R., 512, Hyde v. Palmer, 3 B & S., 657, 32 L. J, Q. B, 126; Bennison v Cartwright, 5 B P & S., 1

(8) Bateman v Bailey, supra; Roscoe, N. P. Ev, 52

(9) Right v. Doe d Tatham, 7 A. & E., 313, 361; R v. Bliss, ib, 550; Hyde v. Palmer, supra; Roscoe, N. P. Ev, 53. "when any facts are proper evidence upon an issue all oral or written declarations which can explain such facts, may be received in evidence;" Wright v. Tatham, supra, per Baron Park See Steph. Dig, p. 161.

to act requires a special significance as a ground for inference with respect to the issues in the case under trial.''(1) It is not every declaration that accompanies and purports to explain a fact that will be received, e.g., a declaration that is equivocal,(2) or is a mere expression of opinion,(3) or is obviously concocted to serve a purpose;(4) in other words, the statements must really explain the acts,(5) and the declaration must relate to, and can only be used to explain, the fact it accompanies and not previous or subsequent facts(6) unless the transaction be of a continuous nature.(7) ''It is sometimes said that the declaration and act must be by the same person.(8) But though such declarations are often the only ones material, the rule is by no means so strictly confined. It is an every-day practice in criminal cases to receive the declarations of the victim, as well as those of the assailant. So, in cases of conspiracy, riot, and the like, the declarations of all concerned in the common object although not defendants, are admissible (9) It has, indeed, been held that unless some such common object be proved, the declarations of participants, if neither parties nor agents, are inadmissible;(10) but this limitation cannot be taken as invariable for the exclamations of mere by-standers may sometimes be both material and admissible evidence.(11) The declarations are no proof of the fact they accompany, the existence of the latter must be established independently.''(12) As to the admissibility of declarations as evidence of mental and physical conditions, see the fourteenth section, post. Illustrations (j) and (k) are illustrations of statements accompanying and explaining the conduct of a person an offence against whom is being enquired into. Under these illustrations, the terms in which the complaint was made is relevant.(13) ''A distinction is to be marked here between a bare statement of the fact of rape or roberry, and a complaint. The latter evidences conduct, the former has no such tendency. There may be sometimes a difficulty in discriminating between a statement and a complaint. It is conceived that the essential difference between the two is that the latter is made with a view to redress or punishment, and must be made to some one in authority—the police, for instance, or a parent, or someother person to whom the complaint was justly entitled to look for assistance and protection The distinction is of importance; because while a complaint is always relevant, a statement not amounting to a complaint will only be relevant under particular circumstances, e.g., if it amounts to a dying declaration, or can be used as corroborative evidence.(14) The present section, so far as it admits a statement as included in the word ''conduct,'' must be read in connection with the 25th and 26th sections, post,

---

(1) R v Rama Birapa, 3 B, 12, 17 (1878), per West, J

(2) R. v. Bliss, supra; R v Wainwright, 13 Cox, 171, Roscoe, N. P. Ev, 53

(3) Wright v. Tatham, supra

(4) Thompson v. Trevanion, supra, R v Abrahams, 2 C & K., 550; Brodie v Brodie, 44 L. T N S, 307; Starkie, Ev, 89, and see American cases, and authorities in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 48

(5) See remarks in R. v. Rama Birapa, supra

(6) Hyde v Palmer, supra

(7) Bennison v. Cartwright, supra, Rawson v Haig, 2 Bing, 99

(8) Howe v. Malkin, 27 W. R (Eng), 340; 40 L. T., 196

(9) R. v. Gordon, 21 How. St Tr., 520; R v. Hunt, 3 B. & Ald., 574; R v. O'Connell, Arm & Tr. R, 275, the present section deals only with statements by parties; the declarations mentioned in the text would be admissible under s. 10, post

(10) R v Petcherini, 7 Cox, 79; Bruce v. Nicolopulo, 11 Ex., 129

(11) See note (9), supra, ante; such evidence may be admissible under s 6, ante, see s 6, illust (a) and note, ante

(12) Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 48 et seq

(13) As to the English rule on this point, see Steph Dig, p 162, Taylor, Ev, § 581; Roscoe, Cr Ev, 25; see R v Macdonald, supra; Norton, Ev, 114, Whitley Stokes, 827, R. v. Lillyman, 31 L. J., 383 (June 20th, 1896), 2 Q. B (1896), 167; R v. Osborne (1905), 1 K. B., 551.

(14) Norton, Ev, 114. See Wills' Ev., 11, for meaning of "complaint" with Crim. Pr. Code, s 196, see Apurba Krishna Bose v. R. (1907), 35 C., 141; R. v. Sham Lall (1889), 14 C. 707 and cannot admit a statement as evidence which would be shut out by those sections.(1)

In England it is now held that in prosecutions for rape and offences of a similar character, a statement in the nature of a complaint made by the prosecutrix to a third person not in the presence of the accused may be given in evidence provided such statement is shewn to have been made at the first opportunity which reasonably offered itself after the commission of the offence (2) It was formerly doubted whether the particulars of the complaint could be disclosed by the witnesses for the Crown, either as original or as conformatory evidence, but it is now settled that they may be so given in evidence in this class of cases, but only in this class, not as being evidence of the truth of the charge against the accused, but as evidence of the consistency of conduct of the prosecutrix with the story told by her in the witness box and as negativing consent on her part.(3) It was at one time thought that this evidence was only admissible in cases where non-consent was a material element.(4) This however is not now the law.(5)

In the second Explanation "statement" includes documents addressed to a person and shown to have come to his actual knowledge.(6) The statements whether oral or written must affect the conduct; if they cannot be shown to have done so they are inadmissible under this section. "Statements made in the presence of a party are admissible as the groundwork of his conduct. Thus, if a man, accused of a crime is silent, or flies, or is guilty of false or evasive responsion, his conduct is, coupled with the statements, in the nature of an admission, and therefore evidence against himself. His flight or false responsion would be equivocal per se, and might be unintelligible without our

Statements affecting conduct

[illegible]

the statements themselves are only material as leading up to and explaining that (7) The mere fact that statements have been made in a party's presence or documents found in his possession, though it may render them admissible against him as original evidence—e.g., as showing knowledge or complicity—will afford no proof per se of the truth of their contents; the ground of reception for the latter purpose is that the party has, by his conduct or silence, admitted the accuracy of the assertions made."(8) In the case of statements made to, or in a party's presence, he may either reply to them or keep silent,(9) or his conduct may be otherwise affected by them.(10) When the statement in reply accompanies and explains an act other than the statement, it may be relevant under this section or the section relating to oral or documentary admissions; when it is unaccompanied by any act, it may be relevant under the latter sections. Such statements made in a party's presence and replied to, will be evidence against him of the facts stated to the extent that his answer

---

(1) R. v. Nana, 14 B., 260 (1889).

(2) R. v. Osborne (1905), 1 K. B., 551

(3) R. v. Osborne (1905), 1 K. B., 551; R. v. Lillyman (1896), 2 Q. B., 167; R v. Rouland (1898), 62 J. P., 459

(4) R v. Kingham (1902), 66 J. P., 393

(5) Taylor, 581.

(6) Illust (h), ante, Right v. Tatham, supra.

(7) Norton, Ev., 106, 107. "It is a general rule that a statement made in the presence of the prisoner, and which he might have contradicted if untrue, is evidence against him," per Field, J., in R v. Mallory, 15 Cox, 456, 458

(8) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 220, and authorities cited at head of commentary. A party may, on similar grounds, be affected by the acquiescence of his agents or others for whose admissions he is responsible, ib.; Haller v. Worman, 3 L. T. N. S., 741; Price v. Woodhouse, 3 Ex., 616; and see section, supra.

(9) Illust. (g), ante, Neale v. Jalle, 2 C. & K., 709, supra.

(10) Illusts (f), (h), ante.

directly or indirectly admits their truth.(1) But a party's silence will render statements made in his presence evidence against him of their truth(2) only when, he is reasonably called on to reply to such statements. Care must be taken in the application of the maxim qui tacet consentire videtur (silence gives consent) : for in many cases, but little reliance can be placed on this circumstance.(3) Admissions from silence or acquiescence frequently occur with reference to unanswered letters or failure to object to an account. Here the question will also be whether there was any duty or necessity to answer or object. The rule has been stated by Bowen, L. J., to be that, "silence is not evidence of an admission, unless there are circumstances which render it more reasonably probable that a man would answer the charge made against him than that he would not."(4) A man is not bound to answer every officious letter written to him. Though unanswered a letter may be evidence of a demand.(5) The mere failure to answer or object will not generally imply an admission (6)

---

(1) v. post, s 17 et seq , Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 220 ; Taylor, Ev., § 815 , Jones v Morrell, 1 C & K., 266, R v. John, 7 C. & P., 324, Child v Grace, 2 C & P., 193 , R v Welsh, 3 F. & F , 275, and note to this case in 3 Russ Cr., 488

(2) Neale v. Jalle, supra Hayslep v Gymer, 1 A & E , 165 , Price v Burva, 6 W R (Eng), 40 , R. v. Cox, 1 F. & F , 90 , R v Mallory 15 Cox, 458.

(3) See Child v. Grace, 2 C & P., 193 , per Taddy Serjt · " The not making an answer may under some circumstances be quite as strong as the making one : " per Best, C J., " Really it is most dangerous evidence A man may say this is impertinent in you and I will not answer your question " See also Moore v Smith, 14 Serg. & R , 393 ; Lucy v Mouflet, 5 H. & N , 229 , Wiedemann v Walpole (1891), 2 Q B , 534 , Norton, Ev , 113. " So statements made in party s presence during a trial are not generally receivable against him merely on the ground that he did not deny them, for the regularity of judicial proceedings prevents the free interposition allowed in ordinary conversation Melen v Andrews, 1 M. & M , 336 , R v Appleby, 2 Starkie, N P C , 33 ; R v. Turner, 1 Moo C C , 347 , Child v Grace, supra. Even here, however, cases may occur in which the refusal of a party to repel a charge made in a Court of Justice : Simpson v Robinson, 12 Q B , 512 , or to cross-examine or contradict a witness , R v. Coyle, 7 Cox, 74 , or to reply to an affidavit Morgan v. Evans, 3 C & F., 159, 203 , Freeman v Cox, 8 Ch. D , 148 , Hampden v. Wallis, 27 Ch D., 251, may afford a strong presumption that the imputations made against him are correct." In Sookram Misser v. W. Crowdy, 19 W R , 283—285 (1873), Phear, J , said · " It is true that silence on the part of defendant during the trial of a case in regard to any matter brought against him in the course of the case might possibly be of some value afterwards irrespective of the decree, as amounting to an admission on his part that that which was alleged and with regard to which he had kept silence was true." See Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 220, and see American cases there cited : and Cunningham s Ev , 95 and 96 So when a judge at a trial made a proposal as to the course of proceedings in the presence of counsel who raised no objection, it was held not open to counsel subsequently to question the propriety of the course to which he had impliedly given his assent ; Morrish v Murrey, 13 M & W , 52, and " if a client be present in Court and stand by and see his solicitor enter into terms of an agreement he is not at liberty afterwards to repudiate it." Swinfen v Swinfen, 24 Beav , 549 , 559, Asiatic Steam Navigation Co v Bengal Coal Co. (1908), 35 C , 751

(4) Wiedemann v Walpole, supra at p. 539 , and see per Willes, J , in Richards v Gellatly, L R 7 C P at p 131 , the relation between the parties must be such that a reply might be reasonably expected Norton Ev , 113 , Edwards v Toulls, 5 M & G , 624 ' The only fair way of stating the rule of law is that in every case you must look at all the circumstances under which the letter was written, and you must determine for yourself whether the circumstances are such that the refusal to reply alone amounts to an admission ' per Kay, L J , in Wiedemann v. Walpole, 2 Q B (1891), 541 , and see per Jenkins, C J , in R v Bal Gangadhar 28 B at p. 491 (1904)

(5) Norton Ev , ib See also Roscoe, N. P. Ev , 53

(6) See Fairlie v Denton, 3 C & P., 103 , ' what is said to a man's face he is in some degree called on to contradict, if he does not acquiesce in it, but it is too much to say that a man by omitting to answer a letter admit the truth of the statements it contains," per Lord Tenderden , or " that every paper a man holds purporting to charge him with a debt or liability is evidence against him " Doe v. Franks, 11 A. & E , 792 per Lord Denman, and see Richards v. Gellatly, L. R , 7 C. P., 127 ; Wiedemann v. Walpole, supra.

But it is otherwise if the writer is entitled to an answer, so, in the case of a letter written by A to B, to which the position of the parties justifies A in expecting an answer,—as when the subject of it is a contract or negotiation before pending between them,—the silence of B may be important evidence against him.(1) Among merchants it has been held in certain old cases that an account rendered will be regarded as allowed if it is not objected to within a second or third post, or at least if it is kept for any length of time by the addressee without his making an objection, it becomes a stated account. It is said however in Taylor on Evidence to be doubtful how far these cases would be followed at the present day, and whether (apart from any special circumstances under which the account is sent in) any valid distinction can be drawn between accounts rendered between merchants and those between other persons, and that with regard to these latter it now appears to be clear that the mere fact that they have been kept by the addressee without remark is no evidence that he has acquiesced in their contents.(2) Letters and other papers found in a party's possession will occasionally in a civil suit be evidence against him, as raising an inference that he knows their contents and has acted upon them; and they are frequently received in criminal prosecutions. So, also, the opportunity of constant access to documents may sometimes, by raising a presumption that their contents are known, and of non-objection, afford ground for affecting parties with an implied admission of the truth or correctness of such contents (3) Thus the rules of a club or the proceedings of a society recorded by the proper officer and accessible to the members(4) or an account-book kept openly in a club-room(5) are evidence against the members. On similar grounds, books of account which have been kept between master and servant, tradesman and shopman, banker and customer or co-partners,(6) will occasionally be admitted as evidence even in favour of the party by whom they have been written, provided that the opposite party has had ample opportunities for testing from time to time the accuracy of the entries.(7)

Facts relevant when right or custom is in question.

9. Facts necessary to explain or introduce a fact in issue or relevant fact, or which support or rebut an inference suggested by a fact in issue or relevant fact, or which establish the identity(8) of any thing or person whose identity is relevant, or fix the time or place at which any fact in issue or relevant fact happened, or which show the relation of parties by whom any such fact was transacted, are relevant in so far as they are necessary for that purpose.

---

(1) Lucy v Mouflet, 5 H. & N., 229; Edwards v Toulls, supra, Richardson v Dunn, 2 Q B., 218, Gaskill v Skene, 14 Q B., 664, Fairlie v. Denton, supra; Freeman v Cox, supra, Hampden v Wallis, supra

(2) Taylor, Ev, § 810, and cases there cited

(3) Taylor, Ev, § 812 See notes to s. 14, post

(4) Taggett v. Musgrave, 2 C. & P., 556, Alderson v. Clay, 1 Starkie, 405; Aspitel v. Sercombe, 5 Ex, 147.

(5) Wilkie v. Adamson, 1 Phillipps, Ev, 339

(6) See Lindley, Partnership, 536, 5th Ed, and cases there cited; and note to s. 18, post.

(7) Taylor, Ev., § 812, and cases there cited, as to books of a Company see Lindley, Company Law, 312; Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed., 222, 223, 328, and books of Corporations, Taylor, Ev, §§ 1781—1783; Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 222, 223, 328; Roscoe, N. P Ev., 123, 214—215; Grant on Corporations, 317—319; and note to s 35, post

(8) See as to identity, Introduction to ss 45—51, post (opinion evidence). Wigmore, Ev, § 410 et seq Witnesses may state their belief as to the identity of persons present in Court or not and may also identify absent persons by photographs produced and proved to be theirs [Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed., 353; Frith v. Frith, L. R. P. D. (1896), p. 74, note to s. 35, post. Introduction to ss. 45—50, post; Rogers Expert Testimony, § 140] The same rule applies to identification of things (ib) It is well settled that for certain purposes photographs may be received in evidence Thus whenever it is important that the locus in quo

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether a given document is the will of A.

The state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts (1)

(b) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A; B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true.

The position and relation of the parties at the time when the libel was published may be relevant facts as introductory to the facts in issue.

The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are irrelevant though the fact that there was a dispute may be relevant if it affected the relations between A and B.(2)

(c) A is accused of a crime

The fact that, soon after the commission of the crime, A absconded from his house, is relevant, under section 8, as conduct subsequent to, and affected by, facts in issue.

The fact that at the time when he left home, he had sudden and urgent business at the place to which he went, is relevant, as tending to explain the fact that he left home suddenly.

The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden and urgent.(3)

(d) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him with A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A 'I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer.' This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct which is relevant as a fact in issue (4)

---

should be described to the jury, it is competent to introduce in evidence a photographic view of it So also in an action to recover damages for assault committed with a raw hide a plaintiff was allowed to introduce a ferrotype of his back taken three days after the injury, the person taking the same having testified that it was a correct representation Rogers' op cit Harris' Law of Identification, §§ 12, 157—178, 352, 590, 642 As to photographic copies of writings for purpose of comparison, see s 73, post

(1) As explanatory or introductory Also when the question is will or no will, such facts may contradict or support the terms of the alleged will whence forgery might be presumed or negatived. Such facts would then "rebut or support an inference suggested by a fact in issue" (Norton, Ev., 116) It is to be observed that the factum and not the construction of the will is here the matter in issue As to evidence of surrounding circumstances in aid of construction, see Introduction to Chap VI, post

(2) The object with which what would otherwise be collateral matter is receivable here, is to show the malice or animus of the libeller, though to go into the full details of a quarrel would be too remote and would waste too much time It is sufficient to show that there was a quarrel, Norton, Ev., 117. Simpson v. Robinson, 12 Q. B., 511; see s. 14, illust. (c), post

(3) The presumption or 'inference' arising from the act of absconding is thus 'rebutted' The fact of absconding is in itself equivocal It may be the result of guilty knowledge or conscience, or it may be perfectly innocent Anything, therefore, that the party says at the time of the act is receivable as explanatory of a relevant fact It would also be receivable as part of the res gestæ and as a declaration accompanying an act The question frequently arises in bankruptcy, when it is necessary to decide whether leaving the house is an act of bankruptcy or not In order to prove the intent with which the bankrupt departed from his dwelling-house evidence of what he said is admissible as forming part of the res gestæ Norton, Ev, 118; Roscoe, N. P Ev, 52, Bateman v Bailey, 5 T. R, 512; Ambrose v Clendon, Ca t, Hardw., 267; Rouch v. G. W Ry Co, 1 Q B, 51, Smith v Cramer, 1 N C, 585 The details just as in illust (b) are not admissible generally except as corroborating the allegation of the suddenness and urgency of the emergency which caused the departure Declarations made or letters written during absence from home, are admissible as original evidence, since the departure and absence are regarded as one continuing act Taylor, Ev, §§ 588, 589

(4) v. post; Hadley v. Carter, 8 New Hamp R., 40. Brukowsky v Thacker, Spink and others, 6 B L R, 107.

(e) A, accused of theft, is seen to give the stolen property to B, who is seen to give it to A's wife. B says, as he delivers it, 'A says you are to hide this.' B's statement is relevant as explanatory of a fact which is part of the transaction.(1)

(f) A is tried for a riot, and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob. The cries of the mob are relevant, as explanatory of the nature of the transaction.(2)

Explanatory facts.

Principle.—As the 7th and 8th sections provide generally for the admission of facts causative of a fact relevant or in issue, the present section may be said generally to provide for facts explanatory of any such fact.(3) There are many incidents which, though they may not strictly constitute a fact in issue, may yet be regarded as forming a part of it, in the sense that they accompany and tend to explain the main fact, such as identity,(4) names, dates, places, the description, circumstances and relations of the parties and other explanatory and introductory facts of a like nature.(5) The particulars receivable will necessarily vary with each individual case; it is not all the incidents of a transaction that may be proved; for the narrative might be run down into purely irrelevant and unnecessary detail.(6) By the answers to some of such questions, if sufficiently particular for the purpose the fact is individualized.(7) See also Commentary, post

s. 3 ("Fact.") s. 11 (Rebuttal of inference etc.)
s. 3 ("Fact in issue.") s. 3 ("Relevant.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 9; Steph. Introd.; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 48; Cunningham, Ev., 98; Norton, Ev., 115; Wills' Ev., 47; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 410—416.

COMMENTARY.

The seventh section, ante, provides for evidence of the state of things under which relevant facts or facts in issue happened, and the 14th and 15th sections, post, for evidence of similar facts, closely connected with the main fact, and explanatory of it. Evidence in support, and particularly in rebuttal, of inferences is of a similar explanatory character.(8) The eleventh section is very like the present one as to rebutting an inference and forms an instance of sections overtopping one another (9) All the abovementioned facts qualify, explain, or complete the main fact in some material particular. A statement which can be shown to be explanatory under this section may be admissible irrespective of whether the person against whom it is given, heard it, or was present when it was made.(10) But it is necessary to distinguish the purpose for which it is admissible. "It is presumed that the statements made by C

---

(1) v. post.

(2) This illustration is founded on the case of R v Lord George Gordon, 21 How St. Tr, 514, 529 "In the case put, the cries would be made in the presence of the leader, though they were the cries of third parties, not of himself; his silence would be equivalent to an admission that he accepted and acquiesced in those cries as explanatory of the common objects of himself as well as of those he led Under the effect of the next section such cries would be evidence against the accused, even if he was not present, upon proof of a conspiracy between himself and the rioters, joint and common, for the preparation of a wrongful act" Norton, Ev, 119 In R. v. Hunt, 3 B. & Ald, 566, 576, evidence given of banners and inscriptions was held to be properly admissible to show the general character and intention of an assembly

(3) Cunningham, Ev, 98

(4) See Norton, Ev, 119; R. v. Rickman, 2 East, P. C., 1035; R. v. Rooney, 7 C & P., 517; R v. Fursey, 6 C. & P., 81; Wills' Ev, 47

(5) See R. v. Amir Khan, 9 B L. R., 36, 50, 51 (1871)

(6) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 48; the facts are relevant, "in so far as they are necessary for that purpose," s. 9, supra.

(7) Bentham cited in Norton, Ev., 44

(8) Illust (e)

(9) Norton, Ev., 115, and Introduction ante.

(10) See illusts. (a), (c).

in the one case, and B in the other [illusts. (d), (e), ante] are only to be receivable as evidence that such statements were made, as declarations accompanying and explaining an act, not of the truth of them as affecting B or A respectively. Without some proof of authority given by the parties to be affected, to those making the statements, it is clear that a very dangerous innovation is introduced, whereby persons may suffer in life, person, or property by statements put into their mouths behind their backs; a principle which the law of evidence has hitherto entirely eschewed."(1) Identity may be thought of as a quality of a person or thing The essential assumption is that two persons or things are thought of as existing and that the one is alleged because of common features to be the same as the other. The process of inference operates by comparing common marks found to exist in the two supposed separate objects of thought with reference to the possibility of their being the same. It follows that its force depends on the necessariness of the association between the mark, and a single object Where a circumstance, feature or mark may commonly be found associated with a large number of objects, the presence of the feature or mark in two supposed objects is little indication of their identity because on the general principle of relevancy the other conceivable hypotheses are so numerous, i.e., the objects that possess that mark are numerous, and therefore two of them possessing it may well be different. But where the objects possessing the mark are only one or a few, and the mark is found in two supposed instances the chances of the two being different are nil or are comparatively small For, simplicity's sake the evidential circumstances may thus be spoken of as a mark. But in practice it rarely occurs that the evidential mark is a single circumstance. It is by adding circumstance to circumstance that we obtain a composite feature or mark which, as a whole, cannot be supposed to be associated with more than a single object (2) In the undermentioned case(3) one of the questions in issue as to the pedigree of a one MS belonging to of a rubkar (or Magishe suit, was tendered of BS. It was held that the rubkar was admissible in evidence under the provisions of this section. Where one of the main questions for determination in a case was whether a document impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by one NS, a comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of NS, was held to be admissible under this section if the similarity of those impressions could establish the identity of that person with NS (4) It often happens that a place or a time is marked significantly by an utterance there or then occurring, so that the identification of it may alone be made, or not be made, by permitting the various witnesses to mention the utterance as an identifying mark. This utterance not being used as an assertion to prove any fact asserted therein is not obnoxious to the hearsay rule and may therefore be proved like any other identifying mark. The utterance cannot, however, be used as having any assertive value From this use of identifying utterances the following superficially similar uses should be distinguished (a) mentioning a third person's utterance as a reason for observing a particular fact, (b) mentioning it as a reason for recollecting a particular fact; (c) using

(1) Norton, Ev., 118, 119, per contra, Cunningham, Ev., 98-99; it will be seen from the illustrations themselves that the statement in illust. (d) is relevant as explanatory of C's conduct; and in (e) of "a fact which is part of the transaction."

(2) Wigmore's Evidence, § 411 Circumstances identifying persons are corporeal marks, voice, mental peculiarities, clothing, weapons, name, residence and other circumstances of personal history, ib., § 413

(3) Radhan Singh v Kanaya Dichit, 18 A., 98 (1895).

(4) R v Fakir Mahomed, 1 C. W. N., 33, 34 (1896), see as to identity, and post, s. 11, and Introductions to ss 45—51.

one's own prior utterances of a fact to corroborate one's present testimony and repel the suggestion of recent contrivance.(1)

Things said or done by conspirator in reference to common design

10. Where there is reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons have conspired together to commit an offence or an actionable wrong, anything said, done, or written by any one of such persons in reference to their common intention, after the time when such intention was first entertained by any one of them, is a relevant fact as against each of the persons believed to be so conspiring, as well for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy as for the purpose of showing that any such person was a party to it.

Illustration.

Reasonable ground exists for believing that A has joined in a conspiracy to wage war against the Queen.

The facts that B procured arms in Europe for the purpose of the conspiracy, C collected money in Calcutta for a like object, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay, E published writings advocating the object in view at Agra, and F transmitted from Delhi to G, at Kabul, the money which C had collected at Calcutta, and the contents of a letter written by H, giving an account of the conspiracy, are each relevant, both to prove the existence of the conspiracy, and to prove A's complicity in it, although he may have been ignorant of all of them, and although the persons by whom they were done were strangers to him, and although they may have taken place before he joined the conspiracy or after he left it.

Principle.—[illegible] and declarations o

A conspiracy mak[illegible] the acts of every other conspirator done in pursuance(3) of the conspiracy. Consequently the admissions of a co-conspirator may be used to affect the proof against the others on the same conditions as his acts when used to create their legal liability The inclusion of tort-feasors enacts the same rule in its application to civil liability for torts.(4) The tests therefore are the same whether that which is offered is the act or the admission of the co-conspirator or joint tort-feasor : in other words the question is one of substantive law and its solution is not to be sought in any principle of evidence.(5) The principle is substantially the same as that which regulates the relation of agent and principal. When various persons conspire to commit an offence or actionable wrong (e.g., co-trespassers or other tort-feasors) each makes the rest his agents to carry the plan into execution. The acts done by any one in reference to the common intention (v. post) is considered to be the act of all. These acts are themselves evidence of the corpus delicti, the conspiracy to be established ; they are relevant " for the purpose of proving the conspiracy," as well as the part which each conspirator took in it.(6)

---

(1) Wigmore, Ev , § 416

(2) Prof Thayer in American Law Review, XV, 80

(3) See, however, as to this, notes, post.

(4) See R. v Hardwicke, 11 East., 578, 585.

(5) Wigmore, Ev , § 1079.

(6) Steph. Dig , Note III. p. 160; Norton. Ev , 121; Taylor, Ev., § 590, 3 Russ. Cr , 143, 144; Best, Ev., § 508; R. v. Amir Khan, 9 B L. R., 36 (1871), s c., 17 W. R. Cr., 15; R. v. Amiruddin, 9 B. L. R., 36 (1871); s. c., 15 W. R. Cr , 25, and cases there and in the text-books (supra) cited.

in the one case, and B in the other [illusts. (d), (e), ante] are only to be receivable as evidence that such statements were made, as declarations accompanying and explaining an act, not of the truth of them as affecting B or A respectively. Without some proof of authority given by the parties to be affected, to those making the statements, it is clear that a very dangerous innovation is introduced, whereby persons may suffer in life, person, or property by statements put into their mouths behind their backs, a principle which the law of evidence has hitherto entirely eschewed."(1) Identity may be thought of as a quality of a person or thing. The essential assumption is that two persons or things are thought of as existing and that the one is alleged because of common features to be the same as the other The process of inference operates by comparing common marks found to exist in the two supposed separate objects of thought with reference to the possibility of their being the same. It follows that its force depends on the necessariness of the association between the mark, and a single object Where a circumstance, feature or mark may commonly be found associated with a large number of objects, the presence of the feature or mark in two supposed objects is little indication of their identity because on the general principle of relevancy the other conceivable hypotheses are so numerous i.e., the objects that possess that mark are numerous, and therefore two of them possessing it may well be different. But where the objects possessing the mark are only one or a few, and the mark is found in two supposed instances the chances of the two being different are nil or are comparatively small For, simplicity's sake the evidential circumstances may thus be spoken of as a mark But in practice it rarely occurs that the evidential mark is a single circumstance It is by adding circumstance to circumstance that we obtain a composite feature or mark which, as a whole, cannot be supposed to be associated with more than a single object.(2) In the undermentioned case(3) one of the questions in issue as to the pedigree of a certain family being whether one GS was son of BS or of one MS belonging to a totally different family from that of BS, an attested copy of a rubkar (or Magistrate's judgment) in some proceedings long anterior to the suit, was tendered in evidence in which rubkar GS was described as the son of BS. It was held that the rubkar was admissible in evidence under the provisions of this section. Where one of the main questions for determination in a case was whether a document impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by one NS, a comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of NS, was held to be admissible under this section if the similarity of those impressions could establish the identity of that person with NS.(4) It often happens that a place or a time is marked significantly by an utterance there or then occurring, so that the identification of it may alone be made, or not be made, by permitting the various witnesses to mention the utterance as an identifying mark. This utterance not being used as an assertion to prove any fact asserted therein is not obnoxious to the hearsay rule and may therefore be proved like any other identifying mark. The utterance cannot, however, be used as having any assertive value From this use of identifying utterances the following superficially similar uses should be distinguished (a) mentioning a third person's utterance as a reason for observing a particular fact, (b) mentioning it as a reason for recollecting a particular fact; (c) using

---

(1) Norton, Ev., 118, 119; per contra, Cunningham, Ev., 98-99, it will be seen from the illustrations themselves that the statement in illust. (d) is relevant as explanatory of C's conduct and in (e) of "a fact which is part of the transaction."

(2) Wigmore's Evidence, § 411 Circumstances identifying persons are corporeal marks, voice, mental peculiarities, clothing, weapons, name, residence and other circumstances of personal history, ib., § 413

(3) Radhan Singh v. Kanayi Dichit, 18 A., 98 (1895)

(4) R v. Fakir Mahomed, 1 C. W. N., 33, 34 (1896); see as to identity, and post, s 11, and Introductions to ss 45—51 conspired together to commit an offence or actionable wrong. There must have been some pre-concert A conspiracy within the terms of this section contemplates something more than the joint action of two or more persons to commit an offence If that were not so, the section would be applicable to any offence committed by two or more persons jointly with deliberation, and this would import into a trial a mass of hearsay evidence, which the accused persons would find it impossible to meet (1) (b) After the existence of a conspiracy has been established, the particular defendant must be proved to have been parties to it (2) (c) After these two facts have been proved the acts and declarations of other conspirators in reference to their common intention may in all cases be given in evidence against the defendants; and under the present section letters written and declarations made by any of the conspirators which are not part of the res gestæ of the conspiracy and are in the nature of mere admissions are admissible as against the rest.(3) "It is necessary to prove the existence of a conspiracy, and to connect the prisoner with it in the first instance, when you seek to give in evidence against him the declaration of a conspirator, and having done so, you are then at liberty to give in evidence against the prisoner acts done by any of the parties, whom you have connected with the conspiracy; but when a party's own declarations are to be given in evidence, such preliminary proof is not requisite, and you may, as in any other offence, prove the whole case against him by his own admission."(4) A conspiracy need not be established by proof which actually brings the parties together but may be shown, like any other fact, by circumstantial evidence.(5)

When facts not otherwise relevant become relevant.

11. Facts not otherwise relevant are relevant—

(1) If they are inconsistent with any fact in issue or relevant fact.

(2) If by themselves or in connection with other facts they make the existence or non-existence of any fact in issue or relevant fact highly probable or improbable.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A committed a crime at Calcutta on a certain day. The fact that, on that day, A was at Lahore, is relevant.(6) be inadmissible; and although the person making the assertion confessed that he was party to it, this on principle fully established would not make the assertion evidence of the fact against strangers." Ib., see also 3 Russ. Cr., 144.

---

(1) Nogendrolala Dalse v R., 4 C. W. N., 528, 530 (1900). As to evidence of conspiracy, see Subrahmania Aiyyar v. R., 29 C., 797 (1901); R. v. Tirumal Reddi, 24 M., 547 (1901); Templeton v. Laurie, 25 B., 230 (1900), [conspiracy to obtain conviction of accused person; and as to what amounts to evidence of abetment of conspiracy, see Kali Munda v R., 28 C., 797 (1901).

(2) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed, 374.

(3) v. supra, and Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 369; and as to proof, generally, ib., 404—408; 12th Ed., 371—375; The Queen's Case, 2 B. & B., 310; Norton, Ev., 120; 3 Russ. Cr., 144, and cases there cited; but see also s. 136, post.

(4) Per Pennefather, C. J., in R. v. McKenna, Ir. Circ. Rep., 461, cited in Taylor, Ev., p. 525.

(5) Taylor, Ev., § 591; 3 Russ. Cr., 148; the evidence may be entirely circumstantial and the existence of the conspiracy collected from collateral circumstances; R. v. Parsons, 1 W. Bl., 392; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 373—374. "It is perfectly true that the dark covertness of crime cannot often be laid open, that conspiracies like other crimes must be generally supported by circumstantial proof." per Sir Lawrence Peel, C. J., in R. v. Hedger, p 120 (1852)

(6) An alibi the relevancy of which is its entire inconsistency with the hypothesis that the accused committed the crime. Norton, Ev., 124, see R. v. Sakharam Mukundji, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 166 (1874); and s. 103, illust. (c), post; see observations on an alibi as a defence in R. v. Parbhudas, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 97 (1897); Wills, Circ. Ev., 167.

The fact that, near the time when the crime was committed, A was at a distance from the place where it was committed, which would render it highly improbable, though not impossible, that he committed it, is relevant.(1)

(b) The question is, whether A committed a crime.

The circumstances are such that the crime must have been committed either by A, B, C or D. Every fact which shows that the crime could have been committed by no one else, and that it was not committed by either B, C or D, is relevant.(2)

Principle.—The object of a trial being the establishment or disproof by evidence of a particular claim or charge, it is obvious that any fact which either disproves or tends to disprove or tends to prove that claim or charge is relevant

s 3 ("Fact")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s 13 (Transaction inconsistent with existence of right or custom)
s. 3 ("Fact in issue.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 3, Steph. Introd., 160, 161, Norton, Ev. 124, Whitley Stokes, II, 819; Cunningham, Ev., 102; Taylor, Ev., §§ 322—325, Wills' Circ., Ev., passim; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 85, 86, 931, 934; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 135—144.

COMMENTARY.

Inconsistency probability

While the seventh section defines the meaning of the term 'relevancy' in quasi-scientific language, the present section contains a statement in popular language of what in the former section is attempted to be stated in scientific language. The practical effect of these two sections is to make every relevant fact admissible as evidence (3) It has been said that the terms of this section, which are very extensive,(4) must be read subject to the restrictive operation of other sections in the Act (5) that it may possibly be argued that the effect of the second paragraph of this section would be to admit proof of facts of the irrelevant character mentioned in the Introduction (ante) but that this was not the intention of the section, is shown by the special provisions in the following part of this Chapter as to the particular exceptions which exist to the general rules which exclude as irrelevant the four classes of evidence already mentioned in the introduction, and is also shown by indications in other portions of the Act (6) The sort of facts which the section was intended to

(1) This example is of a fact rendering the hypothetical fact on the other side not positively impossible, but highly improbable as often happens, when the question is, whether there was time for the accused to have gone from the place where he says he was to the scene of the crime and returned again

(2) This is a disjunctive hypothetical syllogism —X is either A or B or C, but it is not B or C; therefore it is A, see Whitley Stokes, 861, note (3); Cunningham, Ev., 103, Norton, Ev., 124

(3) Markby, Ev., 17, 18

(4) "Some degree of latitude was designedly left in the wording of the section (in compliance with a suggestion from the Madras Government on account of the variety of matters to which it might apply:" Steph. Introd., 160, 161

(5) "The meaning of the section would have been more fully expressed, if words to the following effect had been added to it —'No statement shall be regarded as rendering the matter stated highly probable within the meaning of this section unless it is declared to be a relevant fact under some other section of this Act' Ib, 161, see observations on this section in Whitley Stokes, 819 It is to be observed, however, that the section says "Facts" not otherwise relevant (i.e., under ss. 6-10, 12, and subsequent sections) are relevant, etc.

(6) Steph. Introd., 160 "It may, for instance, be said: A (not called as a witness) was heard to declare that he had seen B commit a crime. This makes it highly probable that B did commit that crime. Therefore A's declaration is a relevant fact under s. 11, cl. (3). This was not the intention of the section, as is shown by the elaborate provisions contained in the following include, are facts which either exclude or imply, more or less distinctly, the existence of the facts sought to be proved.(1) In the word of West, J., this section "is, no doubt, expressed in terms so extensive that any fact which can, by a chain of ratiocination be brought into connexion with another, so as to have a bearing upon a point in issue may possibly be held to be relevant within its meaning. But the connexions of human affairs are so infinitely various, and so far-reaching, that thus to take the section in its widest admissible sense, would be to complicate every trial with a mass of collateral inquiries limited only by the patience and the means of th parties. One of the objects of a law of evidence, is to restrict the investigations made by Courts within the bounds prescribed by general convenience, and this object would be completely frustrated by the admission on all occasions, of every circumstance on either side, having some remote and conjectural probative force, the precise amount of which might itself be ascertainable only by a long trial and a determination of fresh collateral issues, growing up in endless succession, as the enquiry proceeded. That such an extensive meaning was not in the mind of the Legislature, seems to be shown by several indications in the Act itself. The illustrations to the eleventh section do not go beyond familiar cases in the English law of evidence."(2) All evidence which would be held to be admissible by English law would be properly admitted under this section.(3) There must always be room for the exercise of discretion when the relevancy of testimony rests upon its effect towards making the affirmative or negative of a proposition "highly probable," and with any reasonable use of the discretion, the Court ought not to interfere.(4) In order that a collateral fact may be admissible as relevant under the eleventh section, the requirements of the law are(a) that the collateral fact must itself be established by normally conclusive evidence and (b) that it must, when established, afford a reasonable presumption or inference as to the matter in dispute.(5)

Any fact material to the issue which has been proved by the one side may be disproved by the other, whether the contradiction is complete, i.e., inconsistent with a relevant fact under the first clause of this section, or such as only to render the existence of the alleged fact highly improbable under the second clause.(6) There are five common cases of the argument of inconsistency (a) the absence of the person charged in another place (alibi) ; (b) the absence of a husband (non-access), a variety of the preceding ; (c) the survival of any alleged deceased person after the supposed time of death, and (d) the self-infliction of the harm alleged. Thus the theory of an alibi is that the fact of presence elsewhere is essentially inconsistent with presence at the place and time alleged and therefore with personal participation in the act.(7) So to disprove a rape, evidence is admissible that the prisoner had for many years been afflicted with a rupture which rendered sexual intercourse impossible.(8) When the question was whether a deed was forged or not, it was held admis-

---

part of the Chapter II (ss. 12—39) as to particular classes of statements, which are regarded as relevant facts, either because the circumstances under which they are made invest them with importance, or because no better evidence can be got." Ib

(1) Ib "the words 'highly probable' point out that the connection between the facts in issue and the collateral facts sought to be proved must be so mediate as to render the co-existence of the two highly probable," per Mitter, J., R. v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodeliar, 6 C., 655, 662 (1881). "If an improperly wide scope be given to the section, the latter might seem to contain in itself and to supersede all the other provisions of the Act as to relevancy" Cunningham, Ev., 103

(2) R. v. Parbhudas, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 90, 91 (1874), R. v. Vajiram, 16 B., 414, 425 (1892), see note to s 14, post

(3) R. v. Vajiram, supra, 430, per Telang, J

(4) R. v. Parbhudas, supra, 94, per West, J

(5) Bibi Khaver v. Bibi Rukha, 6 Bom. L. R. 983 (1904).

(6) S. 9 is very similar to the present s[illegible], as to rebutting an inference; Norton, Ev., 11 v. ante.

(7) Wigmore, Ev., §§ 135 et seq.

(8) 1 Hale, P. C., 635; Best, Ev., § [illegible]

sible to prove that the titles recited in the deed as those of the then reigning sovereign were not in fact then used by that sovereign.(1) The question being whether A lent money to B, evidence of the poverty of A about the time of the alleged loan is admissible as tending to disprove it.(2) Again, under this latter clause of the section, facts may be put in evidence in corroboration of other relevant facts, if they render them highly probable.(3) So where two or more persons have perished by a common calamity such as shipwreck, and the question is whether A survived B, the law of England raises no presumption either of survivorship or contemporaneous death: but if any circumstances connected with the death of either party can be proved, the whole question of survivorship may be dealt with as one of fact, and the comparative strength, or skill, or energy of the two sufferers may be taken into account in estimating the probabilities of the case.(4) The question being, whether A is the child of B, evidence of the resemblance, or want of resemblance, of A to B is admissible (5) So also circumstances may be proved which render the fact of payment of a debt probable, as, for instance, the settlement of accounts subsequent to the accruing of the debt, in which no mention is made of it (6) Where defendants Nos 2 and 4 sold a pote to defendant No. 1, which they obtained under a partition, and subsequently colluded with the plaintiff and denied the said partition, as well as the sale, the statements previously made by them, which went to show that there had been a partition and they had changed their attitude were held to be admissible as against them under the third clause of twenty-first section and the second clause of the eleventh section of the Evidence Act (7) In a case in which the question was as to the permanency of certain leases in suit, instances of alleged recognition of the successors of the grantees were adduced relating to other leases. It was argued that, as all the leases were granted at or about the same time under similar circumstances and on similar terms, acts and conduct of the parties indicative of an intention that any one of these leases was perpetual should be evidence of a similar intention with regard to all the other leases. The Court, however, held that it was unable to accept this argument as correct in its broad generality. If it had been shown that in the case of a fairly large number of these leases, there was recognition of the successors of the original grantees, and such recognition was not explained by the other side as being the result of anything peculiar to the leases to which the recognition related, the fact that the intention indicated by the acts and conduct of the parties was to make these leases perpetual would make it highly probable that the same was the intention with regard to the leases in dispute, and the facts relating to these leases would, therefore, have been relevant facts under the second clause of this section. But then such a fairly large number of instances were not proved and the instances so far as they were proved had been explained as being either insufficient or as being the result of peculiarities in the circumstances of the leases to which they belonged.(8) When the question was whether a deceased person had married a lady, and a draft of a will not written by the testator himself and containing no mention of the lady was tendered

---

(1) Lady Ivy's case, 10 St. Tr., 615; Steph. Dig., Art. 9, illust. (d); see also Field, Ev., p 65, note.

(2) Dowling v. Dowling, 13 Ir. C. L., 241, cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 95

(3) Norton, Ev., 124.

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 203; Best, Ev., § 410; Underwood v. Wing, 4 D. M. & G., 633; Wing v. Angrave, 8 H. L. C., 183.

(5) Burnaby v. Baillie, 42 Ch. D., 282, 290.

(6) Ordell v. Budd, 1 Camp., 27; as also that the party claiming to have paid the debt was afterwards in possession of the document creating it. Brembridge v Osborne, 1 Starkie, 374; see for similar cases, Taylor, Ev., §§ 178, 138, Best, Ev., § 406, and other cases dealt with by these authors under the head of presumptive evidence.

(7) Bibi Gyanneesa v. Mussamat Mobaruknessa, 2 C. W. N., 91 (1897).

(8) Narsingh Dyal v Ram Narain, 30 C., 893, 896, 897 (1903).

in evidence under this section it was held to be inadmissible inasmuch as it was not a written statement made by the deceased testator.(1) Where in a suit for rent of land from defendant, plaintiff alleged that he bought the land from the defendant and thereafter leased it to him year by year, and the defendant totally denied the sale and the lease; it was held that the fact in issue was the lease alone, but that evidence might be given of the fact of the sale also, as a relevant fact, corroborative of the fact of the lease.(2) As to the question of admissibility of judgments under this section, see notes to the thirteenth section post.(3)

On questions of title, repeated acts of ownership with respect to the same property are, under the thirteenth section, post, receivable, and even acts done with respect to other places connected with the locus in quo by "such a common character of locality as to give rise to the inference that the owner of one is likely to be the owner of the other"(4) are sometimes under the present section receivable. In Jones v. Williams,(5) Parke, B., said that "evidence of acts in another part of one continuous hedge adjoining the plaintiff's land was admissible in evidence on the ground that they are such acts as might reasonably lead to the inference that the entire hedge belonged to the plaintiff." "In other words, they are facts which, by the eleventh section of the Evidence Act, are relevant, because they make the existence of a fact in issue highly probable."(6) When a question as to the ownership of land depends on the application to it of a particular presumption, capable of being rebutted, the fact that it does not apply to other neighbouring pieces of land similarly situated is deemed to be relevant.(7) So when the question is, whether A, the owner of one side of a river, owns the entire bed of it, or only half the bed at a particular spot, the fact that he owns the entire bed a little lower down than the spot in question is deemed to be relevant (8) In like manner it has been held that when the question is, whether a piece of land by the roadside belongs to the lord of the manor, or to the owner of the adjacent land, the fact that the lord of the manor owned other parts of the slip of land by the side of the same road is relevant (9) And in a suit brought by the plaintiff against several defendants to prevent encroachments by the defendants, it was held that the admission of one of the defendants, in a previous suit to which the other defendants were not parties, as to the common character of the portion of the land between his house and the plaintiff's, and also a similar statement in a deed put in by another of the defendants to prove his title to his own house, were admissible in evidence to establish the common character of the entire lane as alleged by the plaintiff. The fact of common ownership of other parts of the lane should be treated as relevant to the issue as to the common character of the entire lane on the principle laid down in this section.(10) Where one of the main question for determination in a case was whether a document then impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by one NS a

---

(1) Haji Saboo v. Ayeshabai, 7 C. W. N., 665 (1903), s. c., 27 B., 485

(2) Kaung Hla Pru v. San Paw, 3 L. B. R., 90

(3) And Tepu Khan v. Rajani Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 501 (1898), Lakshman v. Amrit, 24 B., 598, 599 (1900)

(4) Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326, Bristow v. Cormican, 3 App. Cas., 641, 670, Neill v. Devonshire, 8 App. Cas., 135; Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, 4 App. Cas., 791, Taylor, Ev., §§ 322—325, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 85, 86, 931, 934, Steph. Dig., Art. 3, see note to s. 13, post. The rule in Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326, and Lord Advocate v. Lord Blantyre, 4 App. Cas., 791, was observed upon in Mohini Mohan v. Promoda Nath, 24 C., 259 (1896)

(5) Supra at p. 331.

(6) Naro Vinayak v. Narhari 16 B., 125, 128 (1891), per Sargent, C. J., referred to in Bibi Gyannessa v. Mussamat Mobarakunnessa 2 C. W. N., 91, 94 (1897)

(7) Steph. Dig., Art. 3

(8) Ib., Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326, see note to s. 13, post), followed in Naro Vinayak v. Narhari, ante

(9) Ib., Doe v. Kemp, 7 Bing., 332; 2 Bing., N. C., 102, Taylor, Ev., §§ 320—325.

(10) Naro Vinyak v. Narhari, supra.

comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of NS was held to be admissible under the second clause of this section if dissimilarity of the impressions made the identity of that person with NS improbable.(1)

In suits for damages, facts tending to enable court to determine amount are relevant

12. In suits in which damages are claimed, any fact which will enable the Court to determine the amount of damages which ought to be awarded, is relevant.

Principle.—In suits in which damages are claimed, the amount of the damages is a fact in issue.(2) See Note post

s 3 ("Fact") s. 3 ("Relevant")

s. 55 ("Character as affecting damages.")

Roscoe, N. P. Ev., passim, sub voc. "damages", Norton, Ev., 124, Mayne on Damages, 4th Ed. (1884), Alexander's "Indian Case-Law on Torts," 3rd Ed., 1891; Pollock on Torts, 2nd Ed, 1890; Act IX of 1872 (Contract Act), ss. 73—75, 117, 118, 125, 150—152, 154, 180, 181, 205, 206, 211, 212, 225, 235, 259; Cunningham and Shephard's Indian Contract Act, 6th Ed, 1892

COMMENTARY

Damages

Damages which are the pecuniary satisfaction which a plaintiff may obtain by success in an action, are, unless expressly admitted, deemed to be fact in issue,(3) damages may be claimed either in actions or contracts (4) or tort.(5) The question as to when damages may be recovered and the amount of damages recoverable in particular suits, as well the defences pleadable in such suits, is a portion of the particular branch of the substantive law under the provisions of which these suits are brought, (6) and therefore the present section does not specify how the facts made relevant by it are to be related with the injured property, person or reputation but lays down generally, that evidence tending to "determine," i.e., to increase or diminish the damages is admissible (7) Thus in an action for libel, other libellous expressions by the defendant, whether used before or after the commencement of the suit, are sometimes admissible for the plaintiff, to show the malevolence of the defendant, and so to enhance damages. On the other hand, evidence of circumstances, which, according to the law of libel have the effect of mitigating damages, are admissible in evidence for the defendant (8) In an action for breach of promise of marriage, the plaintiff may give evidence of the defendant's fortune, for it obviously tends to prove the loss sustained by the

(1) R v. Fakir Mahomed, 1 C W N., pp 33, 34 (1896), v. ante, s 119, n 1

(2) See Whitley Stokes, 861, n (5)

(3) See Roscoe, N P Ev., 86, and Rules, 1883 O xxi, R 4; evidence in mitigation, ib, 878.

(4) See Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss 73—75, 117, 118, 125, 150—152, 154, 180, 181, 205, 206, 211, 212, 225, 235, 259.

(5) See Alexander's "Indian Case Law on Torts," 3rd Ed, 1891, pp. 3-11, 193, 201, 215, 217, 217, 244, 261, 271, 277 and passim, Pollock on Torts, 2nd Ed (1890); Draft Indian Civil Wrongs Bill, ib, p. 517.

(6) See Mayne on Damages, 4th Ed. (1884); Roscoe, N. P. Ev., sub voc. "Damages."

(7) Norton, Ev., 124, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 86

(8) Roscoe, N. P. Ev, 861, 878; evidence in mitigation and aggravation of damages may be further illustrated by the decided cases on action for seduction, assault, false imprisonment, trespass, trover, etc Thus where the defendant had given the plaintiff in charge of a constable for felony, he was allowed to show reasonable ground of suspicion in mitigation of damages Chinn v Morris, Ry & M, 424, v Roscoe, N P. Ev., passim, sub voc "damages" Norton, Ev, 126 So also in actions for assault, the provocation offered by the plaintiff would be relevant under this section, in the case actions against Railway Companies for injuries received, the position, and circumstances and earnings of the plaintiff, the precautions taken by the Company, and the contributory negligence, if any, of the plaintiff, See Cunningham, Ev., 103 plaintiff; but not in an action for adultery;(1) nor for seduction,(2) nor for malicious prosecution, for it is nothing to the purpose in an action on tort "whether the damages come out of a deep pocket or not"(3) Injury to the feelings is irrelevant in an action on contract as an element of damage; but in actions on tort heavy damages may be given on this score. In Hamlin v. Great Northern Railway Company (4) it was said: "The case of a contract to marry has always been considered as a sort of exception, in which not merely the loss of an establishment in life, but, to a certain extent, the injury to a person's feelings in respect to that particular species of contract, may be taken into account; but, generally speaking, the rule is this in the case of a wrong, the damages are entirely with the jury, and they are at liberty to take into consideration the injury to the party's feelings and the pain he has experienced, as, for instance, the extent of violence in an action of assault; and many topics, and many elements of damage, find place in an action for tort, or wrong of any kind, which certainly have no place whatever in an ordinary action of contract."(5) The leading case on the subject of damages in the case of breach of contract—Hadley v. Baxendale(6)—is the foundation of the rule contained in section 73 of the Indian Contract Act: according to which rule the damages which the plaintiff ought to receive should be such as naturally arose in the usual course of things from the breach, or such as the parties knew, when they made the contract, to be likely to result from the breach of it. All facts showing the amount of such damage are relevant under this section; but no damages can be ordinarily recovered by an action of contract that are not capable of being specifi ither evi- will s in aggravation or mitiga- nless the damage or aggravating or mitigating facts are of the kind and character which the substantive law recognises. The question when, and under what circumstances, evidence of character may be given in civil actions with a view to damages, is dealt with by section 55, post, and in the notes thereto.

13. Where the question is as to the existence of any right or custom, the following facts are relevant:— Facts relevant when right or custom is in question.

(a) any transaction by which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognised, asserted

---

(1) James v Biddington, 6 C & P, 589, Roscoe, N P Ev, 86, Hodsol v Taylor, post, 81

(2) Hodsoll v Taylor, L R, 9 Q B, 79, Roscoe, N P Ev, 86, and p 911 as to evidence in aggravation

(3) Per Blackburn, J, in Hodsoll v Taylor, supra, quoting Lord Mansfield

(4) 26 L J, Ex., 20, 1 H & N, 408, per Pollock, C B (this was an action for damages for breach of contract)

(5) See Williams v Curtis, 1 C. B, 841, Sears v Lyons, 2 Starkie, 317, this principle is well illustrated in actions for libel where the injury to the feelings is always an element of consideration Norton, Ev, 126, the circumstances of time and place, when and where the insult was given, require different damages, thus it is a greater insult to be beaten upon the Royal Exchange than in a private room, per Bathurst, J, Tullidge v. Wade, 3 Wills, 19, Roscoe, N P Ev, 913, and in trespass the jury may consider not only the pecuniary damage sustained but also the intention with which the act has been done, whether for insult or injury, per Abbott, J, Sears v Lyons, 2 Starkie, 318, Roscoe, N P Ev., 937

(6) 23 L J, Ex, 179, 182, 9 Ex, 341, see Act IX of 1872 (Contract), s 73, Cunningham and Shephard's Indian Contract Act, 6th Ed. (1892), p 215

(7) Per Pollock, C. B, in Hamlin v G N. Ry. Co, supra at p 23

(8) Act IX of 1872, s 73; Alexander, op. cit, 9 or denied, or which was inconsistent with its existence :

(b) particular instances in which the right or custom was claimed, recognised or exercised, or in which exercise was disputed, asserted or departed from.

Illustration

The question is whether A has a right to a fishery. A deed conferring the fishery on A's ancestors, a mortgage of the fishery by A's father, a subsequent grant of the fishery by A's father irreconcilable with the mortgage, particular instances in which A's father exercised the right, or in which the exercise of the right was stopped by A's neighbours, are relevant facts.

Principle.—In such cases every act of enjoyment or possession is a relevant fact, since the right claimed is constituted by an indefinite number of acts of user exercised animo domini (1) Ownership may be proved by proof of possession, and that can be shown by particular acts of enjoyment,(2) these acts being fractions of that sum total of enjoyment which characterises dominium.(3) This also is the best evidence, with the exception of that afforded by judicial recognition, which is only admissible in proof of matters of a public nature, that is public or general rights and customs.(4) Opinion also is admissible in proof of such rights and customs (5) But the most cogent evidence of right and customs is not that which is afforded by the expression of opinion as to their existence, but by the examination of actual instances and transactions in which the alleged custom or right has been acted upon, or not acted upon, or of acts done, or not done, involving a recognition or denial of their existence.(6) "In the absence of direct title-deeds, acts of ownership are the best proofs of title."(7) Acts of ownership, when submitted to, are analogous to admissions or declarations by the party submitting to them that the party exercising them has a right to do so, and that he is therefore the owner of the property upon which they are exercised But such acts are also admissible of themselves proprio vigore, for they tend to prove that he who does them is the owner of the soil (8)

s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 32, Cl. (4). (Public right or custom, opinion of person not called as witness)
s. 32, Illust. (i). (Illustration of "public right.")
s. 32, Cl. (7) (Statements in Document relating to "transaction.")
s. 48 and Illust. (General Custom or rights, opinion of witnesses on.)
s. 48, Explanation. (Meaning of "general custom or right.")
s. 48, Illust. (Illustration of "general custom or right.")
s. 49 (Opinions as to usage, etc.)
s. 51 (Grounds of opinion.)

---

(1) Wills' Ev., 41.

(2) Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326

(3) Wills' Ev., 41.

(4) V. s. 42, post see remarks of Edge, C. J., and Tyrrell, J., in Gurdyal Mal v. Jhandu Mal, 10 A., 586 (1888).

(5) V. ss. 32, cl. (4), 48.

(6) See remarks of Turner, J., in Lachman Rai v. Akbar Khan, 1 A., 440 (1877), and Gopalayyan v. Raghupatiayyan, 7 Mad. H. C. Rep., 250, 354 post. and remarks of Westropp, C. J., in Bhagwandas Teymal v. Rajmal, 10 Bom. H. C. R., 261 (1873); Steph. Dig., Arts 5 and 6, and cases there cited, Taylor, Ev., § 1683, v. Ranchhodas Khishnadas v. Bapu Narhar, 10 B., 439, post v. Commentary, post, and note to ss. 32, cl. (4), (7), and 42, 48, as to long usage being the best exponent of right, see Nilakandhen Nambudirapad v. Padmanabha Rera Varma, 18 M., 1 (1895).

(7) Per Jackson, J., in Collector of Rajshahy v. Doorga Soondurei, 2 W. R., 212 (1865).

(8) Starkie, Ev., 470, note F.: Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326; v. post.

s. 42 and ILLUST. (Judgments relating to matters of a public nature.)

s. 92, PROV. 5. (Usage and Custom imported into contract.)

The following Acts refer to custom :—Acts XXI of 1850, s. 1 (Non-forfeiture of rights by loss of caste); XV of 1856 (Re-marriage of Hindu widows); IV of 1872, ss. 5 (a), 7 (Punjab Laws); IX of 1872, ss. 1, 110 (Contract); III of 1873, s. 16 (b) (Civil Courts, Madras); III of 1901; (N.-W. P. Land Revenue); XX of 1875, s. 5 (Central Provinces Laws); XVII of 1876, s. 31 (Land Revenue, Oudh) XVIII of 1876, ss. 3 (b) (1), 4, 8 (Oudh Laws); IX of 1908, Art. 10 (Limitation); II of 1901 (N.-W. P. Rent); XVIII of 1881, s. 67 (Land Revenue Central Provinces); II of 1882, s. 1 (Indian Trusts), V of 1882, ss. 18, 20 (Easements); VIII of 1884, s. 40 (Punjab Courts); VIII of 1885, s. 183 (Bengal Tenancy); XVII of 1887, s. 125 (Punjab Land Revenue); Steph. Dig., Art. 5; Taylor, Ev., §§ 1683, 600, 320; Starkie, Ev., §§ 123-139; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 24, 25, 53, 54, 934; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 90, 91; Best, Ev., §§ 366—390, 499; Wills' Ev., 40.

COMMENTARY.

The right mentioned in this section is not a public right only the Illustration shows this is not so, the right there mentioned being a private one.(1) Three kinds of rights are thus included in the Act.—(a) private, e.g., a private right of way: (b) general, [illegible] onsiderable class of persons [illegible] to use the water of a partic[illegible] of right is nowhere defined in the Act. Every public right in the sense of the previous definition is a general one, though (if the distinction made in English law between the terms "general" and "public" be accepted) every general right is not a public one. Right.

There was at one time a conflict of decision as to whether the term is to be understood as comprehending all legal rights (including a right of ownership) or only incorporeal rights. In Guppu Lall v. Fatteh Lall, Jackson, J., and Garth, C. J., were of opinion that the rights referred to, in the section, were incorporeal rights "What is referred to in the section cited is evidently a right which attaches either to some property or to status; in short, incorporeal rights, which though transmissible, are not tangible or objects of the bodily senses."(4) "It may be difficult perhaps to define precisely the scope of the word 'right,' but I think it was here intended to include those properties only of an incorporeal nature, which in legal phraseology are generally called 'rights,' more especially as it is used in conjunction with the word 'custom.' It is certainly used in that sense in subsequent parts of the Act (v. the forty-eighth section, and the fourth sub-section of the thirty-third section) which deal with matters of public or general 'right or custom'."(5) On the contrary it has been held by Mitter, J., that the contention that the section in question refers only to incorporeal rights, whether of a public or private nature, is not warranted by any general principle, it being difficult to suggest

(1) Surja Narain v. Bissambhar, 23 W. R., 311 (1875) see Guppu Lall v. Fatteh Lall (F. B.), 6 C., 187 (1880), per Garth, C. J.

(2) S. 48, and illust.

(3) S. 32, cl. (4), illust. (i), and illust. to s 42 which last section also deals with the subject of public rights.

(4) Per Jackson, J., in Guppu Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C., supra, 184; Mitter, J., dissenting

(5) Per Garth, C. J., 186, ib., Mitter, J., dissenting: and see Kalidhun v. Shibo Nath, 8 C., 505 (1882). The undermentioned cases decided prior to Guppu Lall v. Fatteh Lall (1880), may be consulted on this point Koondo Nath v. Dheer Chunder, 20 W. R., 345 (1873) (right of succession to office) Neamut Ali v. Gooroo Dass, 22 W. R., 365 (1874), (imamee right to lands): Guttee Koiburto v. Bhukut Koiburto, 22 W. R., 457, Dattrai Mohanti v. Jugo Bundhoo, 23 W. R., 293 (1875); Hunsa Kooer v. Sheo Gobind, 24 W. R., 431 (suit for lands), Mohesh Chunder v. Dino Bundhu, 24 W. R., 265, Lachmeedhur v. Rughoobur, 24 W. R., 284, Omer Dutt v. Burn, 24 W. R., 470 (suits for rent); Narangi Bhikabhai v. Dipa Umed, 3 B., 3 (1878) (suit for chirda allowance).

a reason which would justify the existence of a distinction between the rules applicable to the proof of (d) corporeal and incorporeal rights, respectively, whether of (a) public or private nature.(1) Quite recently also Banerjee, J., observed as follows: (2)—"It has been said that the right spoken of in this section is an incorporeal right. I do not think that there is any sufficient reason for putting this limitation on the meaning of the term as used by the section." So also in Bombay, it has been held that the words "rights and customs" should be understood as comprehending all rights and customs recognised by law, and therefore as including a right of ownership :(3) and in Allahabad that the word "right" in both clauses (a) and (b) includes a right of ownership, and is not confined, as held by the majority (sed qu. majority) in Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall, to incorporeal rights.(4) It would seem now to be generally held that the term "right" includes all rights and is not limited to incorporeal rights. As to antiquity in the case of a right no less than of a custom, usage for a number of years, certainly raises a presumption that such right or custom has existed beyond the time of legal memory.(5)

Custom or usage

"Custom" as used in the sense of a rule which in a particular district, class, or family has from long usage obtained the force of law,(6) must be (a) ancient ,(7) (b) continued, unaltered, uninterrupted, uniform, constant ;(8) (c) peaceable and acquiesced in ,(9) (d) reasonable ,(10) (e) certain and definite :(11)

---

(1) Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall, 6 C , 180, v supra, Pontifex, J , expressed no opinion upon this particular point and Morris, J., merely agreed with Garth, C J , in holding that the former judgment was inadmissible

(2) In Tepu Khan v Rajoni Mohan, 2 C W N , 501, 504 (1898)

(3) Ranchhoddas Krishnadas v Bapu Narhar 10 B , 439 (1886), per Sargent, C J

(4) Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhari Sing 12 A , 13, 24 (P B), and see Ramasami v Appavu, 12 M , 9 (1887) (suit for money claimed under alleged right), Venkatasami v Venkatreddi, 15 M., 12 (1891), suit for declaration of title to land Vythilinga v Venkatacha, 16 M , 194 (1892) suit for possession of land

(5) Ramasami v Appavu, 12 M , 14 (1887)

(6) Hurpurshad v Sheo Dyal, 3 I A , 259 (1876) ; s c , 26 W R , 55, Sivananaya Perumal v. Meenakshi Ammal, 3 Mad H C R , 77 (1866)

(7) Hurpurshad v. Sheo Dayal, 3 I A , 259 (1876), Lala v. Hira Singh, 2 A , 51 (1878), Doe d Jogomohan v Nimu Dasi, Montriou's Cases of Hindu Law, 506 (length of time necessary), Joy Kishan v. Durga Narain, 11 W. R , 348 (1869) (sd); Juggomohan Ghose v. Manickchund, 7 M I. A . 282 (1859) ; s c . 4 W. R. (P. C.), 8 ; Amrit Nath v. Gouri Nath, 6 B. L R , 238 (1870); Rajah Nugendur v Rughoonath Narain, W R. (1864), 20; Ramalakhmi Ammal v. Sivanasantha Perumal, 17 W R , 553 (1872); Perumal Sethurayar v. M Ramalinga Sethurayar, 3 Mad H. C. R., 77 (1868); Gopalayyan v Raghupatiayyan 7 Mad. H C. R., 254 (1873) (usage must also be public) See Ramasami v. Appavu, 12 M , 14, ante, and Dhau Nanuji v Sundrabai, 11 Bom H. C R., 271, post

(8) Lala v Hira Singh, 2 A , 49, supra, Jameela Khatun v Pugul Ram, 1 W. R , 250 (1864) Beni Madhub v Jai Krishna, 7 B. L. R , 154 155 (1869), Juggomohun Ghose v. Manikchund 7 M I A , 282 s c , 4 W R (P C), 8, supra Amrit Nath v Gouri Nath, 6 B. L R , 238, supra, Raja Nugendur v Rughoonath Narain W R , (1864), 20, supra, Ramalakhmi Ammal v Sivananathana Perumal, 17 W. R , 553, supra, Patel Vandravan v Patel Maninal, 16 B , 470 (1891), Perumal Sethurayar v M. Ramalinga Sethurayar, 3 Mad H C R , 77, supra, Sooren. dronath Roy v Mussamut Heeramonee, 12 M I A , 81 (1868), s c , 10 W R (P C.), 35, Tara Chand v Reeb Ram, 3 Mad H. C R , 67 (1866), (acts must also be plural), Rajkishen Singh v. Ramjoy Surma, 1 C , 195 (1872) (discontinuance), Jugmohandas Mangaldas v Sir Mangaldas, 10 B , 543 (1886) (the consensus utentium, which is the basis of all legal customs must be uniform and constant

(9) Lala v Hira Singh, 2 A , 49, supra

(10) Hurpurshad v Sheo Dyal, 3 I A , 285, supra, Lala v Hira Sing, 2 A., 49, supra, Luchmeepat Singh v Sadaulla Nushyo, 9 C , 699 (1882), Ransordas Bhogilall v Kewrising Mohun, 1 Bom H C R , 229 (1863), Arlapa Nayak v Narsi Keshavji, 8 Bom H C R (A C), 19 (1871); C R DeSouza v Pestanji Dhanjibhai, 8 B , 408 (1884), Rajah Vurma v Ravi Vurmah, 1 M , 235 (1877), Nyamutullah Ostagur v. Gobind Churn, 6 W R , Act X, 40, (1866)

(11) Hurpurshad v. Sheo Dyal, 3 I A , 285, supra, Rajkishen Singh v Ramjoy Surma, 1 C 195, 196, supra, Lala v Hira Singh, 2 A , 48, supra, Lachman Rai v Akbar Khan, 1 A , 440 (1877); Bhagwan Das v Balgobind Singh, 1

(f) compulsory and not optional to every person to follow or not.(1) The acts required for the establishment of customary law must have been performed with the consciousness that they spring from a legal necessity ;(2) and (g) must not be immoral.(3)

The right mentioned in the section being a public or private right (v. ante), the 'custom' must also, on proper principles of construction, include a private custom.(4) The word custom as used in this section is not, however, limited to ancient custom, but includes all customs and usages. So it has been held under section 48, which deals with general customs and rights, that evidence of usage was admissible.(5) The word 'usage' would include what the people are, now or recently, in the habit of doing in a particular place. It may be that this particular habit is only of a very recent origin, or it may be one which has existed for a very long time If it be one which is regularly and ordinarily practised there is usage.(6) So a business-usage as distinguished from a common law custom need not be long established or strictly uniform,(7) nor need an agricultural custom have existed from time immemorial.(8) The word used in this and other sections of the Act in its widest sense, including all customs ancient or otherwise and all usages. Three classes of custom or usage are thus dealt with in the Act, (a) private , (b) general ,(9) (c) public (10)

Instances of the first class are family customs and usages termed kulachar, or in Upper India, Rasm wa riwaj-i-khandan (v. post).(11)

The expression "general custom" is defined to include customs common to any considerable class of persons.(12) These are (a) local, termed desachar ; e g , in the Broach and other Gujarat districts waki property, which is inalienable by Mahommedan law, may be by custom of the district alienated (13) In the same district, and more especially in parts of Eastern Bengal, the right of pre-emption which is based on Mahommedan law, is allowed and enforced by custom as between Hindus also ,(14) (b) caste or class , of which the Khojah and Memon cases,(15) and the right of divorce marital by usage of particular castes, the customs of religious brotherhoods attached to Hindu temples and the like,(16) afford examples English Municipal law owing to historical development limits custom to a particular locality only Sir Erskine Perry in the Khojah's case has remarked that this peculiar municipal rule of English law can have no application to India, where customs are seldom local and are mostly personal or caste customs ; (c) Trade customs or usages (v. post).

B L R , S N , x (1868), Tekaet Doorga v Tekaet Doorga, 20 W R , 157 (1873), Ramalakhmi Ammal v Sivananantha Perumal, 17 W R 553, ante

(1) Eshan Chandra Samanta v Nilmoni Singh (1908), 35 C , 851 (riparian owner's right to irrigate)

Mussamut Parbati Kuar v Rani Chandrapal Kuar, 8 O C , 94

(2) Tara Chand v Reeb Ram, 3 Mad H C R , 57, supra Gopalayyan v Raghupatayyan, 7 Mad H C R , 254 (1873)

(3) Chinna Ummayi v Tegaraj Chetti, 1 M , 168 (1876) See also Sankaralingam Chetti v Subban Chetti 17 M , 479 (1894) Ghasity v Umrao Jan, 20 I A , 193 (1893), 21 C , 149

(4) Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhari, 12 A 16 (1889)

(5) Dalglish v Yusufjer Hossain, 23 C , 427 (1896), Sariatulla Sarkar v. Pran Nath, 26 C , 184 (1898)

(6) Ib

(7) Juggamohun Ghose v Manikchund, 7 M. I A , 263, 282

(8) Tucker v Linger 8 App Cas 508, in which case the local custom had grown up within the last 30 or 40 years

(9) e s 48, post

(10) v s 32, cl (4), post

(11) v Norton, Ev , 190

(12) e s 48, and illust post

(13) Abas Ali v Ghulam Muhammad 1 Bom H C R , 36 (1863)

(14) Shaikh Koodru v Mohinee Mohun, 13 W. R (F B) 21 (1870) Inder Narain v Mahomed Nazirudeen, 1 W R 235 (1864), and the cases cited in Field's Ev , 115

(15) Perry's Or Ca , 110 Karim Khatae v Pardhan Manji, 2 Bom. H C. R , 276 (1886)

(16) See Field, Ev , 109, 110, where a large number of cases of family, local, caste, and class custom are collected.

Public custom is nowhere defined in the Act. It is not clear, if any, and if so what, meaning is to be attached to the word "public" as distinguished from the word "general" in the Act. In speaking of matters of public and general interest the terms "public" and "general" are sometimes used as synonyms, meaning merely what concerns a multitude of persons.(1) But [illegible] ony, a distinction has (in [illegible] iblic" being strictly ap- and the term "general" portion of the community. In matters strictly public, reputation from anyone appears to be receivable If, however, the right in dispute be simply general: that is, if those only who live in a particular district, or adventure in a particular enterprise, are interested in its hearsay from persons wholly unconnected with the place or business would be not only valueless but probably altogether inadmissible.(2) But as the Indian Evidence Act(3) makes no such distinction as to admissibility, merely requiring in all cases a probability of knowledge on the part of the declarant, the distinction ceases to be of importance in India (4) Again the expression "general custom or right" is explained to include (not "mean and include")(5) customs or rights common to any considerable class of persons, in fact such matters as would according to the English rule, fall within the expression "matter of general interest."(6) The expression therefore would appear to have a more extended meaning and to be applicable also to those which are cases spoken of in English law as "matters of public interest"

Custom or usage occupies a prominent place in Hindu law (of which it forms a branch), and wherever it obtains supersedes its general maxims. "Immemorial custom" says Manu "is transcendent law"(7) Clear proof of usage will outweigh the written text of the law.(8) The Digest subordinates in more than one place the language of text to custom and approved usage (9) Where a custom is proved to exist, it supersedes the general law; which, however, still regulates all beyond the custom.(10) A custom is some established practice at variance with the general law. There cannot therefore be a custom to do that which the general law permits any one to do or abstain from at his own will.(11)

"Facts."

The third section contains the general definition of the term "fact" as used in this Act The particular facts which are relevant under this section are "transaction" and "instances" as to the meaning of which (v. post). See also note on the admissibility of judgments (post).(12)

"Transactions" "Instances"

The facts made relevant are (a) transaction, (b) instances. Neither of these terms is defined by the Act. (a) A "transaction" is the doing or performing of any business; management of any affair, performance; that which

---

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 609; Greeley, Ev., 305; see notes to s. 32, cl. (4), post.

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 609

(3) v. s. 32, cl. (4)

(4) See Norton, Ev., p. 186

(5) It does not therefore (accepting the distinction between "public" and "general") exclude public custom: "when a definition is intended to be exclusive it would seem the form of words is "means and includes," per Jackson, J., R. v. Ashutosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 493 (1878)

(6) v. Field, Ev., 349

(7) See the authorities set out in judgment of West, J., in Bhau Nanaji v. Sandrabai, 11 Bom H. C. R., 282 (1874), and Tara Chand v. Reb Ram, 3 Mad. H. C. R., 50 (1866).

(8) Collector of Madura v. Mutu Ramalinga, 1 B. L. R., 12 (1868), cited and applied in Bhagwan Singh v. Bhagwan Singh, 17 A., 339 (1895), but held to have been misapplied by the Privy Council, s. c., 21 A., 412 (1899)

(9) Bhyah Ram v. Bhyah Ugur, 13 M. I. A., 390 (1870), s. c., 14 W. R. (P. C.), 1

(10) Neelkisto Deb v. Beer Chunder, 12 M. I. A., 542 (1869); s. c., 12 W. R. (P. C.), 21

(11) Sri Braja Kusora v. Kundasa Devi, 3 C. W. N., 378, 380 (1899), P. C.

(12) v. also ss. 3, 11, ante is done; an affair as the transactions on the exchange. A transaction is something already done and completed; a "proceeding" is either something which is now going on, or, if ended, is still contemplated with reference to its progress or successive stages.(1) "We use the word 'proceeding' in application to an affray in the street, and the word 'transaction' to some commercial negotiations that has been carried on between certain persons. The 'proceeding' marks the manner of proceeding, as when we speak of proceedings in a Court of law. The "transaction marks the business transacted; as the transactions on the exchange"(2) "A 'transaction' as the derivation denotes is something which has been concluded between persons by a cross or reciprocal action as it were."(3) A "transaction" in the ordinary sense of the word, is some business or dealing which is carried on or transacted between two or more persons."(4) The qualifying characters of the transaction spoken of in the section are (a) creation, (b) claim, (c) modification, (d) recognition, (e) assertion, (f) denial, (g) inconsistency. Of these (b) and (d) are also qualifying characters of "instances." (b) An "instance" is that which offers itself or is offered as an illustrative case, something cited in proof or exemplification, a case occurring; an example.(5) The qualifying characters of the "instances" spoken of by the section are (a) claim, (b) recognition (common both to "instances" and "transactions"), and (c) exercise (which is peculiar to "instances" only), and instances in which the exercise of the right or custom was disputed, asserted or departed from. It will have been observed that the section distinguishes between a claim and an assertion. Under the second clause, however, instances are admissible in which the exercise of a right or custom was asserted. The word "assertion" includes both a statement and enforcement by act. Ordinarily the evidence tendered under this section will be evidence of acts done, but a verbal statement not amounting to, and not accompanied by, any act would also be admissible if it amounted to a "claim."

Road-cess papers and deeds of sale were held to be evidence quantum valeant as transactions and instances in which rights were asserted and recognised.(6) Documents showing recognition of alleged right by Government were admitted (7) A map prepared by an officer of Government while in charge of a khas mehal, Government being at the time in possession of the mehal merely as a private proprietor, is not a map purporting to have been made under the authority of Government within the meaning of section 83, the accuracy of which is to be presumed; but such a map may be evidence of possession or of assertion of right under the thirteenth section (8) In a suit for possession of land, the plaintiffs claimed title under a lease from the shrotiemdars of the village where the land was situated. The defendants, who had obstructed the plaintiffs from taking possession of part of the land, claimed to have permanent occupancy-rights, and asserted that the shrotiemdars were entitled not to the land itself but to melvaram only To meet this allegation the plaintiffs tendered in evidence documents executed by other tenants

(1) Webster's Dictionary, sub nom, 'Transaction."

(2) Crabb's Synonyms

(3) Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall, 6 C, 185 (1880), per Jackson, J, transaction in its largest sense, means that which is done, ib, 175, per Mittter, J

(4) Ib at p 186, per Garth, C J, who added "If the parties to a suit were to adjust their differences inter se the adjustment would be a transaction; and by a somewhat strained use of the word the proceedings, in a suit, might also be called transactions, but to say that the decision of a Court of Justice is a transaction appears to me a misapplication of the term" See also Ranchhoddas v Bapu Narhar, 10 B, 442 (1886), but see as to judgments, post

(5) Webster's Dictionary, sub nom, 'instance"

(6) Dattari Mohanti v Jugo Bandho, 23 W R, 293 (1875)

(7) Surpo Narain v Bissambhur Singh, 23 W. R, 311 (1875)

(8) Junmajoy Mullick v Duarkanath Myttee, 5 C, 287 (1879)

in the same village showing that they were pura kudis merely:—Held that these documents were admissible: that the defendants were not of course concluded by them, but that the documents were relevant evidence under the thirteenth section as showing the tenure on which the village was held.(1) Decisions are conflicting as to whether previous judgments and decrees, not inter partes, are,(2) or are not,(3) included in the term "transaction," or are,(4) or are not,(5) included in the words "particular instances" (v. post). In some cases it has been held that judgments and decrees are not themselves "transactions" or "instances," but the suit in which they were passed and made is a "transaction," or "instance" So in the undermentioned case Banerji, J., observed as follows —"If the existence of the judgment is not a transaction within the meaning of clause (a) of the thirteenth section it proves that a litigation terminating in the judgment took place, and the litigation comes well within the meaning of the clause as being a transaction by which the right now claimed by the defendants was asserted. So again the litigation which is evidenced by the existence of the judgment was a particular instance within the meaning of clause (b) of the thirteenth section in which the right of possession now claimed by the defendants was claimed "(6) In a case where a dispute existed between the proprietors of two estates, A and B, as to the right to water flowing through an artificial watercourse on estate B, belonging to the defendants, proceedings were taken in the Criminal Courts by the owners of estate A against some ryots of estate B in consequence of their having closed the watercourse. These proceedings led to a razinamah, or deed of compromise, which was relied on as evidence before the Privy Council Their Lordships said "This agreement is a clear acknowledgment of right to this overflow. It was objected that this razinamah does not bind the proprietors of B; but although it was apparently made between tenants, it seems to have been subsequently acted upon, and may be properly used to explain the character of the enjoyment of the water."(7) Their Lordships also referred to certain proceedings under section 320 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of 1861 corresponding to section 147 of the Codes of 1882 and 1898), in which a claim was made as to the right to use the water collected in the tal, observing that the proprietors of B do not seem to have challenged the decision of the Magistrate,

---

(1) Vythilinga v. Venkatachala, 16 M., 194 (1892)

(2) Neamut Ali v. Goora Dass, 22 W. R., 365 (1874); Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C., 175 (1880), per Mitter, J., cur dissent, Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A., 43 (1889), per Mahmood, J., cur dissent

(3) Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall (F. B.), 6 C., 187, 185, 187, per curiam, Mitter, J., dissent, Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A., 14, 27, 28, per curiam, see remarks of Sargent, C. J., in Ranchhoddas Krishnadas v. Bapu Narhar, 10 B., 442 (1886) "former judgments are not themselves transactions," but the suit in which they were made is a "transaction;" per Straight, J., 12 A., 25, supra. It was said by Ranade, J., that the interpretation placed upon the words 'right,' and 'transaction' in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall seems not to have been accepted by the Privy Council and its correctness is questioned in the Full Bench judgment of the Allahabad High Court in the Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari in so far as the exclusion of such judgments from being received as evidence under any section is concerned," Lakshman v. Amrit, 24 B., 599 (1900)

(4) Koondo Nath v. Dheer Chunder, 20 W. R., 346 (1873), Jinanatulla Sirdar v. Ramani Kant, 15 C., 233 (1887), Ramasami v. Appavu, 12 M., 9 (1887), and see Byathamma v. Avulla, 15 M., 19 (1891)

(5) "Record and not the judgment alone admissible as an instance," Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A., 14, 28, supra, per Edge, C. J., and Tyrrell, J., "former judgment not itself an instance, but the suit in which it was made is an instance" ib., 25, per Straight, J., and see Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C., 171, supra

(6) Tepu Khan v. Rogoni Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 501, 504 (1898), Srimati Atiyan v. Hara Chandra, S. A., 106 of 1902; Cal. H. C., 1st July, 1904; and see Mahomed Amin v. Hasan (1907), 31 B., 143

(7) Rameesur Pershad v. Koonj Behari, 4 C., 640 (1878)

in these proceedings, in the Civil Court.(1) In a suit to establish the existence of a family-custom, the plaintiffs offered in evidence a deed containing a recital that the custom of the family was as alleged in the plaint, and a covenant to do nothing contrary to it. The deed was executed before action brought by the present plaintiffs, and also by a plaintiff who had died since the institution of the suit, and, as the plaint alleged, by a "considerable majority" of the family; but the defendant was not a party to it. The deed was held to be admissible as evidence on behalf of the plaintiffs.(2) In an English case the Crown claimed the salmon fishing above the falls of a certain river against A, who in proof of his right to the fishery gave evidence, inter alia, of (a) occasionally fishing there, (b) having watchers during the spawning season, and (c) of binding his tenants in their leases to protect the fishing, and prevent all others from fishing.(3) In a case decided prior to the Act, measurement chittas were admitted as primâ facie evidence that long before the case originated and the suit was thought of, the plaintiff put forward his rights to certain lands as mal lands.(4) The question is whether A has a right of fishery in a river. licenses to fish granted by his ancestors and the fact that the licensees fished under them are relevant (5) The question is whether A owns land the fact that A's ancestors granted leases of it is relevant.(6) The question is whether there is a public right of way over A's land. The facts that persons were in the habit of using the way, that they were turned back, that the road was stopped up, that the road was repaired at the public expense, and A's title-deeds showing that for a length of time, reaching beyond the time when the road was said to have been used, no one had power to dedicate it to the public are all relevant.(7) A petition to the Collector in which the right of primogeniture is stated has been held to be an instance of the recognition of such a custom.(8) Where it was alleged that land was debutter and it was contended that there was no legal evidence from which the Court was justified in inferring that it was, held that a Rubakar by which the Collector released the land in dispute as being debuttur property was a "transaction" and a relevant fact from which the Lower Court was entitled to infer that there had been a previous grant though the release of itself did not constitute such a grant.(9) Where it was shewn that it was the practice in old times for the Lower Courts in Bengal to set out the pleadings in their judgments and that this practice was recognized by circulars issued by the Sudder Dewany Adalut, these judgments were held admissible under this section as instances in which the right

---

(1) As to this case Edge, C J, observed apparently this razinamah was admissible under s 9, the record of the proceedings in the Criminal Court, which the Judicial Committee admitted in evidence might be admissible under s 9 or under s 13 (b)," 12 A., 16 "In Raja Run v Mussamat Lucho (11 C, 310), the Judicial Committee would possibly have held that the record in the rent suit, of which the judgment referred to former part, was admissible under s 13 (b)," and see Hira Lal v A Hall 11 C L R, 530 (1882) See also Venkatasami v Venkatreddi, 15 M, 12 (1891) post, and note on "Admissibility of judgments," post

(2) Hurronath Mullick v Nultanund 10 B L R., 203 (1873), see s 32, cl (7)

(3) Lord Advocate v Lord Lovat, L R., 5 App Cas., 273, in this case ancient document was tendered to prove ancient possession and held to be admissible, the rule being that such documents coming out of the proper custody and purporting on the face of them to exercise ownership, such as a lease or license, may be given in evidence as being in themselves acts of ownership and evidence of possession see notes to s 90 post See also Malcolmson v O Dea 10 H L Cas 593, and note to s 90, post

(4) Debee Pershad v Ram Coomar, 10 W R, 443 (1868) see note to s 32 cl (7) post

(5) Rogers v Allen 1 Camp 309 See also Neill v Duke of Devonshire L R, 8 App Cas., 135

(6) Doe v Pulman 3 Q B, 622, 623, 626

(7) Steph Dig, Art 5, illust (c), as to proof of custom by instances see Vishnu v Krishnan, 7 M, 3 (1883)

(8) Shyamanand Das v Rama Kanta, 32 C, 617 (1904)

(9) Lalki Chandra v Kali Kumar, 10 C W N, xxix (1905)

in question was claimed and disputed and disallowed.(1) And generally speaking, title to property, corporeal or incorporeal, may be proved under profits, the discharge of the burdens or repairs of the property, the granting of licenses and leases and the like; while in rebuttal, proof is admissible that these acts were disputed, or done in the absence of persons interested in disputing them (2) As to wajib-ul-araiz, see note to section 35.

Admissibility of judgments and decrees as transactions or instances

Judgments qua judgments or adjudications upon questions in issue and proofs of the particular points they decide are only admissible either as (a) res judicata,(3) or (b) as being "in rem,"(4) or (c) as relating to matters of a public nature (5) In (a) they are between the same parties in (b) they are declared by law to be conclusive proof against all persons of certain (6) matters only: in (c) though not conclusive, they are relevant as adjudications against persons not parties to them, the reason being that in matters of public right the new party to the second proceeding as one of the public has been virtually a party to the former proceeding.(7) But judgments, orders and decrees, other than those admissible by sections 40, 41, 42 may be relevant under section 43, if their existence is a fact in issue or is relevant under some other provision of the Act.(8) In the sections relating to judgments the judgment is admissible as the opinion of the Court on the questions which came before it for adjudication. Ordinarily judgments are not admissible as between persons who were not parties and do not claim under the parties to the previous litigation But there are exceptions to this general rule (9) The cases contemplated by section 43 are those where a judgment is used not as res judicata or as evidence more or less binding upon an opponent by reason of the adjudication it contains (because judgments of that kind are already dealt with under one or other of the immediate preceding sections), but the cases referred to in section 43 are such as the section itself illustrates, viz, when the fact of any particular judgment having been given is a matter to be proved in the case.(10) Section 43 is one of the group of sections relating to judgments and contains the provision applicable to cases relating to the relevancy of judgments as evidence against strangers.(11) Under that section a judgment may be admissible as relevant under some other provision of the Act So a previous judgment has been admitted not in order to prove an adjudication but in order to prove an admission made by a predecessor in title of the party against whom the document was sought to be used.(12) This being so, the question arises whether, and if so, how previous judgments and decrees, and the litigation in which they were pronounced not being between the same parties, are admissible in evidence in proof of "right" and "custom"(13) (not being of a public nature) under this section, either as "transaction" under clause (a)

---

(1) Bhaya Durgaj Deo v. Pande Fateh Bahadoor Ram, 3 C. L. J., 521.

(2) Wills, Ev., 40; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 90, 91; Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326. As to repairs constituting an act of ownership, see 4 C. W. N., ccu

(3) Under s. 40, post

(4) Under s. 41, post.

(5) Under s. 42, post.

(6) See Kanhaya Lall v. Radha Churn, 7 W. R., 341 (1867)

(7) Per Pontifex, J., in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C., 187 (1880).

(8) S. 43, post.

(9) Hira Lall v. A Hills (11 C. L. R., 530); per Field, J. (1882).

(10) Per Garth, C. J., in Gujju Lall v. Fateh Lall, 6 C., 192

(11) Tepu Khan v Rajani Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 501, 505 (1898).

(12) Krishnasami Ayyangar v Rajagopala, 18 M., 73, 78 (1895)

(13) Other than public or general rights and customs in regard to which (being matter of a public nature, adjudication inter alia have always been admissible and are now so under s 42 of the Act: 1 Taylor, Ev., § 1683, Madhub Chunder v Tomee Bewah, 7 W. R., 210 (1867), or under clause (6), as "particular instances." This question has been the subject of many conflicting decisions.

Calcutta decisions

In the Calcutta High Court such judgments were up to 1880 frequently admitted,(1) the word "transaction" being, it was said,(2) large enough to allow the proceedings in former suits to be admitted, not as conclusive, but of such weight as the Court may think they ought to have. Upon this principle previous judgments and proceedings in suits were admitted as relevant in the undermentioned cases.(3) In 1880, the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall (4) considered the question. This was a suit to recover possession of certain property. The Lower Courts allowed the plaintiff to put in evidence against the defendant a judgment in a former suit between the defendant and others and to which the plaintiff was no party. It was contended by the defendant that the judgment in this former suit could not be used as evidence in this suit, because the plaintiff was no party to the former proceedings; while the plaintiff, on the other hand, contended that the former judgment was admissible in evidence under this section as being a transaction by which a right claimed in this suit by the plaintiff was asserted and denied. Both the Lower Courts considered the judgment admissible in evidence, and apparently upon the strength of it decided in the plaintiff's favour The question referred to the Full Bench was whether under the thirteenth section or any other section of the Evidence Act, the judgment in the former suit, which was admitted and acted upon as evidence in this suit, was admissible. It was held (Mitter J., dissenting) —that the former judgment was not admissible as evidence in the subsequent suit, either as a "transaction" under the thirteenth section or as a "fact" under the eleventh section or under any other section of the Evidence Act. The case was accordingly sent back to the Lower Court to be decided upon the other evidence It was further held by the Full Bench (Mitter, J., dissenting) that a former judgment which is not a judgment "in rem" under section 41, nor one relating to matters of a public nature under section 42, is not admissible in evidence in a subsequent suit either as a res judicata, or as proof of the particular point which it decides, unless between the same parties of those claiming under them.(5) It has been said that this judgment practically decided that except in the case of judgments in rem, and judgments relating to matters of a public nature, a judgment in order to be evidence

---

Nallathamby Battar v. Nellakumara Pillai, 7 Mad H. C R, 306 (1873), Ramasami v. Appavu, 12 M, 9 and s 42, post

(1) See Lala Ranglal v. Deonarayan Tewary 6 B L. R, 69 (1870), Doorga Das v. Nuredndro Coomar, 6 W R, 232 (1866), Koondon Nath v. Dheer Chander, 20 W R, 345 (1873), and remarks of Couch, C J, in Neamut Ali v. Gooroo Doss, 2 W R, 365 (1874), and of Mitter, J, in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C, 179 (1880), (and see R v. Keshub Mohanjan, 8 C, 993 (1882), remarks of Garth, C J

(2) Per Couch, C. J, in Neamut Ali v. Gooroo Doss, 22 W R, 366

(3) Guttee Koiburto v. Bhukal Koiburto, 22 W R, 457 (1874), [the judgments appear to be inter partes] Roopchand v. Hur Kishen, 23 W R, 162 (1875), Dattari Mohanti v. Jugo Bundhoo, 23 W. R, 293 (1775), Mohesh Chunder v. Jugo Bundhoo, 24 W. R,, 265 (1875); Luchmeedhur Pattack v. Rughoobur Singh, ib, 284; Hunsa Kooer v. Sheo Gobind, ib, 431 Omer Dutt v. Burn, ib, 470 (1875), [ex-parte decree]

(4) 6 C, 171

(5) See the following cases in which the principle laid down in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall was concurred in and followed Hira Lall v. A Hills, 11 C L R, 530 (1882), Ram Narain v. Ramcoomar Chunder, 11 C, 562 (1885), Mohendra Lall v. Rosomoyi Dassi, 12 C., 207 (1885), and affirmed in Surendra Nath v. Brojo Nath, 13 C (F B), 352 (1886), [see Gobind Chunder v. Sri Gobind, 24 C, 330 (1896)] "In the conclusion of that judgment we fully concur," per Tyrrell, J, Duthoit, J, Shadal Khan v. Amin-ul-lah Khan 4 A, 96 (1881) post, R v. Keshab Mohajan R v. Udit Pershad, 8 C, 993 (1882), see remarks of Edge, C J, Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A, 13 (post), (1886); and see as to the effect of this decision the remarks of Parker, J, and Handley, J, in Byathamma v. Arulla, 15 M, 23 (1891), post.

must be such as would operate by way of estoppel or res judicata.(1) This interpretation however of the judgment is, it is submitted, incorrect. What the Full Bench held was that a judgment or decree was not admissible under this section, but it might be evidence under others by virtue of the operation of section 43; and that in any case a judgment not inter partes was not admissible in proof of the particular point it decided, that is it was not admissible in its character of a judicial opinion and as having the effect more or less of res judicata

In a subsequent suit, however, which was one for rent, the amount of the land held by the defendant was questioned, and it was contended that the land must be measured with a hath of 21⅝ inches and not one of 18 inches, as claimed by the plaintiff (zemindar), and certain decree obtained by the zemindar against other tenants in the same pergunnah, in suits in which 18 inches had been taken as the hath were tendered in evidence in support of the plaintiff's contention that the customary hath in the pergunnah was one of 18 inches, the Subordinate Judge at first ruled the decrees to be inadmissible on the authority of Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, but it was held that they afforded some evidence in corroboration of the plaintiff's case, and that they furnished evidence of particular instances in which a custom was claimed (2) It may, however, be said that the judgments in this case were admissible as referring to a matter of a public nature, viz, the customary hath in the pergunnah So also where the issue was whether certain land was lakhiraj or rent-paying, previous decrees were admitted to show the character of the land, and to show that in respect of the land which was alleged to be lakhiraj, a claim for rent was successfully made on a former occasion.(3) It was said "We do not use them as evidence in the way in which judgments and decrees are often used between the same parties, that is to show that there has been a previous adjudication on a question of title. We take it that these decrees are not evidence of any decision of a Court of Justice, that the land is mal or lakhiraj We do not consider that in so deciding we are in any way violating the principle laid down in the Full Bench decision in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall On the contrary, and in order to prevent there being any misapprehension, we desire to say that we entirely concur in the principle of that decision so far as it was concerned with the facts which were then before the Court "(4) Though this case recognised the principle laid down in Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall it would seem to be excluded by it, in that the previous litigations were used not merely to show that claims for rent had been made but that such claims were successful The claims could only take on this character by reference to the judgments as adjudications so asserting it. In a suit for possession of land the defendant offered in evidence a judgment obtained by him in a suit to which the plaintiff or his predecessors in title were not parties Objection wa inter partes and was therefor inadmis f Davies v. Lowndes(5) and Ramessur ttul,(6) that this judgment was admissible in evidence to show the character of the defendant's 7) The case of) recover lands. persons uncon- be let into pos- session of the estate as his own property, was held admissible on behalf of the

(1) Surendra Nath v. Benga Nath, 13 C., 332, 333 (1886).

(2) Jairamdalla v. Ramani Kant, 15 C., 237 (1887).

(3) Hira Lall v. Hills, 11 C. L. R., 528 (1882).

(4) Per Field, J., ib., 530, Ramessur Persad v. Koonj Behari, 4 C., 833 (1878), referred to.

(5) 1 Bing. N. C., 607.

(6) 4 C., 673, v. ante

(7) Peary Mohun v. Brohomoyi, 11 C., 745 (1885); in this case the judgment was properly admissible under s. 43.

defendant not as proof of any of the facts therein stated, but for the purpose of explaining in what character the father, through whom the defendant claimed, had afterwards taken actual possession of the estate.(1) Evidence of this kind is clearly admissible. The matter again became the subject of a Full Bench decision in the case of Surendra Nath Pal Chowdhry v. Brojo Nath Pal Chowdhry (2) The referring Judges in that case observed that the authority of Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall(3) appeared to have been shaken by the subsequent Privy Council decision in the case of Ram Bahadur Singh v. Lucho Koer(4) (in which the Privy Council held that a previous judgment, though not res judicata, was evidence in the case) and by the decision of the Calcutta Court in the case of Pearı Mohun Mukerji v Drobo Moyi Dabia(5), and in the case of Hira Lal Pal v. Hills (6) already mentioned. The Court further observed that it did not understand why, if the judgments which were dealt with in the two last-mentioned cases could be properly used as evidence for one purpose or another, the judgment adduced in this case could not be used as evidence. The Full Bench, however, upon the authority of Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall,(7) considered the judgment to be inadmissible In a subsequent case,(8) these two Full Bench decisions were distinguished, it being held that a decree for possession made by a Court under the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act in a suit beyond the pecuniary limits of that Court's jurisdiction, although not res judicata, was some evidence of dispossession by the defendants in a subsequent suit against the same defendants to recover mesne profits. In this case the fact of the judgment having been given was admissible. A Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court(9) more recently expressed the opinion that the decisions in the case of Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall,(10) and Surendra Nath Pal Chowdhry v. Brojo Nath Pal Chowdhry,(11) must be regarded as materially qualified owing to the decisions of the Privy Council they referred to,(12) because these decisions establish that under certain circumstances and in certain cases the judgment in a previous suit to which one of the parties in the subsequent suit was not a party may be admissible in evidence for certain purposes and with certain objects in the subsequent suit This expression of opinion, which was obiter, has been dissented from by Geidt, J , in a subsequent case(13) to which reference will be made (14) In the last-mentioned case the question was whether one A was a partner with J. An award made by an arbitrator in a previous suit brought by A against J was tendered to show the alleged partnership. Geidt, J , held that the award was not admissible ; Ghose, J., that it was agreeing in the view that the Privy Council decisions referred to had qualified the rule laid down by the Full Bench and stating that he was disposed to think that the Privy Council had in these cases adopted the dissentient opinion of Mitter, J , in the Full Bench.

Bombay decisions.

The Bombay High Court has concurred(15) in the judgment given in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall. In the case cited the plaintiff sued to recover arrears of rent for a certain shop alleging the annual rent to be Rs 250 The defendant contended it was only Rs. 60. In support of his allegation, the

---

(1) 1 Bing N C , 607 , s c , 6 M & Gr , 471, 520 , Taylor, Ev , § 1668 , see note to s 43, post

(2) 13 C , 352 (1886)

(3) 6 C , 171 (1880)

(4) 11 C , 301 (1884)

(5) 11 C , 745 (1885)

(6) 11 C. L. R , 528 (1882)

(7) 6 C., 171 (1880)

(8) Jainullah Sheikh v. Inu Khan, 23 C., 69 (1896)

(9) Tepu Khan v. Roponi Mohun, 25 C., 522 , s c , 2 C W N , 501 (1898)

(10) 6 C , 171 (1880)

(11) 13 C , 352 (1886)

(12) Ram Ranjan v Ram Narain, 22 C , 53 (1895) Bhitto Kunwar v Kesho Pershad, 24 I A , 10 (1897)

(13) Abinash Chunder v Poresh Nath, 9 C. W. N , 402 (1904)

(14) v post, p 178

(15) In Ranchhoddas v. Bapu Narhar, 10 B , 439 (1886)

plaintiff relied upon the evidence of his brother and two entries in his handwriting in the book of the firm of which the plaintiff's brother and the defendant were partners. To prove the bonâ fides of these entries the plaintiff offered in evidence a judgment given in favour of the plaintiff's brother in a suit brought by the defendant, charging him (the plaintiff's brother) with improperly debiting their firm with Rs. 250 as the rent of the shop. It was held that the judgment was not admissible, Sargent, C. J., remarking: "As to the term 'transaction,' it is doubtless one of large import, and might, although by a strained use of it, be held to be applicable to proceedings in a suit: but as the result of holding it to be so applicable in the thirteenth section would be to effect a most important departure from the English rule of evidence which would make judgments, decrees and verdicts of juries only admissible in matters of public interest it may well be doubted if such was the intention of the framer of the Code"(1) More recently it has been said: "It is not easy to reconcile this conflict of views in particular instances, but apparently the cases, which decide that judgments, not inter partes, are not admissible in evidence, proceed chiefly on the ground that those judgments are sought to be used as having the effect, more or less, of res judicata. For that purpose a judgment inter partes alone can be admitted in evidence, but for other purposes where judgments are sought to be used to show the conduct of the parties, or show particular instances of the exercise of a right or admissions made by ancestors, or how the property was dealt with previously they may be used under the eleventh or thirteenth section as exceptions recognised under section 43 as relevant evidence."(2) This decision was followed in the undermentioned case. The judgments rejected by the lower Appellate Court were not inter partes but were in suits brought by other creditors against the same defendants, in which the existence of the partnership denied in the suit was asserted with success It was held that the judgments were admissible in evidence and must be treated as relevant but not as conclusive as to the existence of the partnership (3) Sed quære. And in a recent case a house had been passed to the plaintiff by a registered sale-deed by his deceased father, and subsequent to the sale certain mortgagees of the father had brought a suit on the mortgage against the plaintiff and his father and mother, on which suit the sale had been held to be a sham transaction On the plaintiff bringing a suit against his brother, his brother's wife and the widow of a deceased brother, to recover possession of the house on the strength of the sale-deed, the defendants relied on the judgment in the mortgage suit. It was held by Russell (actg. C. J.,) on second appeal that this case could not be distinguished from the two last-mentioned cases, and that the proceedings plaintiff in the suit on the mortgage were admissible as relevant evidence because the plaintiff and the defendants, either by themselves or their predecessors, were parties to that suit, and that the said proceedings came within the words "particular instances in which the right was claimed," and it was held by Beaman, J., that the judgment in the suit on the mortgage was admissible to prove that the genuineness of the sale-deed was then questioned but could not be used for any ulterior purpose.(4)

Madras decisions.

The Madras High Court has also concurred(5) in the judgment given in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall. In a suit brought by the trustees of a temple to recover from the owners of certain lands in certain villages money claimed

---

(1) Ib., 442: Naranji Bhikhabhai v. Dipa Umed, 3 B., 3, referred to and distinguished.

(2) Per Ranade, J., in Lakshman v. Amrit, 24 B., 598, 599 (1900).

(3) Govindji Jhaver v. Chhotalal Velji, 2 Bom. L. R., 651 (1900)

(4) Mahamad Amin v. Hasan (1906), 31 B., 143; and see Dharnidar v. Dhundiraj (1903), 5 Bom L. R., 230

(5) In Subramanya v. Paramaswaran, 11 M., 123(1887), Ramasami v. Appavu, 12 M ,13 (1887).

under an alleged right as due to the temple, judgments in other suits against other persons in which claims under the same right had been decreed in favour of the trustees of the temple were admitted.(1) It was said: "We concur with the majority of the learned Judges who decided, in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, that a judgment of the character there under consideration, viz., as to whether a certain person was or was not the heir to another, is neither a transaction nor a fact in the sense in which the words are used in the thirteenth section of the Evidence Act, and that the judgment referred to in that case could not be given in evidence; but the judgments filed in this case are not of the character under consideration in that case; the question for determination in the previous suits was whether the payments then claimed, and which are in contest in the present suits, were claimable as of right, and in one case whether they were so claimable from a particular class of persons, viz., Christians; and it appears to us that, when a right of the character now in question is at issue, such judgments are admissible in evidence as evidence of 'particular instances in which the right or custom was claimed,' and 'in which its exercise was disputed, asserted or departed from,' and was further adjudicated upon, and that the right was a right of the character dealt with under the thirteenth section of the Evidence Act. The case for the appellants is—and there is evidence in support of it in the case before us as to at least six of such villages—that, from those who hold lands in a large number of villages in the vicinity of the temple, the payment claimed is demanded as of right, and that such payments have been made after suits from time to time brought and determined in reference to the liability of persons occupying lands in these villages; and this being so, we are further of opinion that the decisions in the former suits are decisions which relate to 'matters of a public nature' within the meaning of section 42 of the same Act. The question for determination before us is not dissimilar in principle from that reported in Naranji Bhikhabhai v. Dipa Umed.(2) The right now claimed appears to us to be as much a right of the character indicated in the thirteenth section of the Evidence Act as the right

[illegible] the District

[illegible]"(3) In this

[illegible] he case came

[illegible] admissible to explain the nature of the payments made, viz., that they had been made after

[illegible]

to his father's vendor, (c) an order made in certain execution-proceedings in which was recited a petition by his father asserting his title; (d) a judgment obtained by his father in which his title was recognized. Neither the defendants nor their predecessors were parties to any of these instruments or proceedings: held that none of these documents were conclusive, since the defendants were not parties to them, but that they were relevant evidence as tending to show that the plaintiff's ancestors had dealt with the site as their own for a long term of years.(4) In this case documents A and B were clearly admissible as documents of title. D was an assertion of right, C the judgment set out the pleas of the parties and from these it appeared that the defendant's predecessors had parted with the property to the plaintiff's father, though the admission was attempted to be avoided by an allegation of an agreement to return the property. But as to this it may doubtless be said that the pleadings

(1) Ramasami v. Appavu, 12 M., 9 (1887).

(2) 3 B., 3, supra.

(3) Ramasami v. Appavu, 12 M., 13 (1887). referred to in Byathamma v. Arula, 15 M., 24 (1891) (v. post); and Vythialinga v. Venkatachala, 16 M., 196 (1892).

(4) Venkatasami v. Venkatreddi, 15 M., 12 (1890).

would have been equally effectual for the purpose as the judgment. In Byathamma v. Avulla it was pointed out "that in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall the sole object for which it was sought to prove the former judgment was to show that in another suit against another defendant, the plaintiff had obtained an adjudication in his favour on the same right claimed, and it was held that the opinion expressed in the former judgment was not a relevant fact within the meaning of the Evidence Act In the case before us it is not the adjudication which it is sought to prove, for the point was never adjudicated upon, but the judgment is tendered in evidence as proof that in a particular instance the plaintiff's predecessor acted in the capacity of karnavan of a marumakatayom tarwad, wholly irrespective of the particular decision arrived at in the suit. This, we think, is a relevant fact."(1) In this case the document referred to as a judgment was an entry in the Court-diary of the District Munsif and was held to be admissible under section 35, post

Allahabad decisions

The question has been considered by a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court in the case of The Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhari Singh.(2) In this case the plaintiff, Palakdhari Singh, had sued a Hindu widow, to establish his right of inheritance in certain villages which had belonged to the widow's husband, to have it declared that he had died childless and that she had falsely put forward a child of unknown parentage as her husband's son. The widow was the only defendant, and she maintained that the child in question was her son by her deceased husband The suit was dismissed on the merits by the Court of first instance and by the High Court on appeal After the widow's death the plaintiff brought a suit against one Dalip Narain Singh, whom the Collector as Manager of the Court of Wards had accepted as the minor son of the defendant in the first suit, and against the Collector as such Manager for possession of the same villages upon the same grounds as those put forward in the former suit —Held by the Full Bench that the judgments of the Court of first instance and the High Court in the former suit did not operate as res judicata in the present suit, but (Brodhurst J, dissenting on this point)(3) that they were admissible in evidence in the present suit Held, per Edge, C. J., and Tyrrell J, that the judgments were not admissible under the eighth section or the ninth section, nor was either of them a "transaction," or a "fact," within the meaning of the thirteenth section But the record and not the judgments alone in the former suit was admissible under the clause (b) of the thirteenth section, independently of section 43, as evidence of a particular instance in which the alleged right of the plaintiff to the property now in suit was at the time claimed and disputed, the word "right," in both clauses (a) and (b) of the thirteenth section, including a right of ownership, and not being confined, as held by the majority in Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall, to incorporeal rights. But the reasons given in the judgments in the former suit for the decree could not be considered in the present suit Held per Straight, J., that under section 43 of the Evidence Act the question was whether the existence of the former judgments was a fact in issue or relevant under some other provisions of the Act. Here the question was not as to the existence of the former judgments and decrees as a fact in issue or relevant fact; but though section 43 declared judgments, orders and decrees, other than those mentioned in section 40, 41, and 42, irrelevant qua

(1) 15 M. at pp. 23, 24 (1891). Krishnasami v. Rajagopala Ayyangar, 18 M., 73, 77 (1895)

(2) 12 A., 1 (F. B.) (1889) [as to the effect of this decision see Lakshman v. Amrit, 24 B., 599 (1900); a case prior to this will be found in 4 A., Shadal Khan v. Amin ul-lah Khan, where at p. 98, Tyrrell, J., and Duthoit, J., say "In the conclusions of that judgment (Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall), we fully concur"

(3) Per Brodhurst, J My opinions on the points that have been referred are in accordance with the judgment of the Court in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall." ib. at p. 27.

judgments, orders and decrees, it did not make them absolutely inadmissible when they were the best evidence of something that might be proved aliunde. The former judgments and decrees were not themselves "transactions" or "instances" within the meaning of the thirteenth section; but the suit in which they were made was a transaction or an instance in which the defendant's right as the living son of the widow's husband to obtain proprietary possession of his father's estate was claimed and recognized,(1) and, to establish that such a transaction or instance took place, they were the best evidence. Per Brodhurst, J.: That for the reasons given by Garth, C. J., and Jackson and Pontifex, JJ., in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, the judgments in the former suit were not admissible in evidence. Per Mahmood, J.: That for the reasons given in the dissentient judgment of Mitter, J., in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, the former judgment of the High Court was admissible in evidence.

Privy Council decisions.

The Privy Council have in three reported instances admitted in evidence judgments and orders not between the same parties (2)

Where to actions of ejectment by a zemindar, the defendants pleaded a ghatwali tenure of the mouzahs in dispute under permanent mokurruri and dur-mokurruri rights at fixed rents from before the decennial settlement, it was held that certain decrees in 1817 and 1845 relating thereto, to which the zemindar's predecessors in title were not parties, but which sustained the defendant's claim to hold at fixed rents, were admissible in evidence, as shewing ancient possession and assertion of title many years ago, and that taken with other evidence, they established the defendant's possession at a uniform rent for so long a period as to raise the presumption that the tenure was and is of permanent nature.(3) The judgments and decrees had also been admitted by the Lower Courts. The first Court was of opinion that they might [illegible] id that the title on which the [illegible] as 1788, and at subsequent [illegible] e decrees, that the orders passed in those decrees would not be evidence against the plaintiff's title, nor could they be considered as proving the defendants' title; but that they might be accepted to show ancient possession and to show that the title was asserted rightly or wrongly many years ago. The High Court observed that the Lower Court had only used those judgments as evidence, that there was litigation between the parties thereto at the dates to which they relate; and that in former suits the parties asserted the same rights which they were then asserting; and that to this extent the judgments were admissible even though the plaintiff was no party to them. The Privy Council made no reference to this section. It is true that it cited the findings of the Lower Courts without disapproval, but it does not appear whether it approved of them. These findings appear to have been referred to on the contrary for the purpose of answering the appellant's contention that the Lower Courts had used certain of the statements of the parties as recorded in

(1) Sed qu whether the judgment could be used as a recognition of right The defendant's right was only recognised in the sense that in the opinion of the Court it was found to exist that is adjudicated upon. By "recognition" in this section was meant, it is submitted, admitted' not "adjudicated" upon, v. post, but see also Abinash Chandra v. Poresh Nath, 9 C W. N., 402 at p 415; per Ghose, J., "or it is a transaction recognising the right of Abinash in that property within the meaning of s. 13 of the Evidence Act and Gujju Lall v Fatteh Lall at p 181, per Mitter, J, where he held that the judgment was relevant because it recognised the right of the plaintiff and made therefore the existence of the fact in issue in the subsequent suit highly probable

(2) See Tepu Khan v Rojoni Mohun, 25 C., 522; s c, 2 C W N., 501, 503 (1898).

(3) Ram Ranjan v. Ram Narain, 22 Ind. App., 60 (1894), s c., 22 C., 533.

the judgments as evidence against him. The Privy Council by reference to the findings show that they did not. But the ground on which the Privy Council itself admitted the evidence was that inasmuch as by the earlier judgment a decree for rent was given at a certain rate at which rate the land had all along been held, it was competent to use the judgment as evidence showing the rent paid for the possession at and prior to that date then nearly 80 years ago It was not the correctness of the decision, but the fact that there had been a decision that was established by the production of the judgment, and the existence of the judgment was admissible as a fact in issue under section 43, post.(1) The result of this decision appears to be that the judgments were admitted under section 43 as facts in issue and also (if the Privy Council be taken to have affirmed the decision of the High Court on this point) as evidence of assertions of right under this section. But neither Court treated the judgments as adjudications having the effect of a kind of qualified and inconclusive res judicata (2)

In Bhitto Kunwar v Kesho Pershad Misser,(3) their Lordships of the Privy Council, speaking of a judgment in a former suit against one of the defendants, Bacha Tewari, observed: "this decision is not conclusive against Bacha Tewari, as the suit was not between the same parties as the present suit, but their Lordships agree with the Subordinate Judge that it was admissible as evidence against him" In this case a decree obtained against the defendant that a will was revoked was held not to be res judicata in a suit against him brought by other plaintiffs, but admissible as evidence against him. There is no mention of this section in the judgment and the grounds upon which the previous decisions were admitted are not stated in the report. An opinion, however, has been expressed that as the matters in controversy in the suit in which the decree was passed related to public charitable purposes the prior decision was brought within the terms of section 42 which treats of judgments relating to matters of a public nature.(4) Whether the judgment might or might not have been admissible on this ground, the Authors have ascertained from the records of the Allahabad High Court(5) that this was not the ground on which the Privy Council)
perty in suit as the h and Ramkishen had been in possession as trustee, then plaintiff had no title to it; otherwise if there were no trust and both Ramkishen and Bacha Tewari had beneficial possession. The fifth issue, therefore, was whether there was a trust, and this involved the question whether Bhawani had revoked the will creating the trust. The second and fourth issues were as to the time since when possession had been held and what was the nature of the possession of Ramkishen, the plaintiff's alleged predecessor, and of the defendant Bacha Tewari. These were all facts in issue. As showing that they did not hold as trustees, evidence was given of an agreement of the 4th January 1850, under which Ramkishen and Bacha Tewari held the property in moieties as proprietors, an agreement which was subversive of the provisions of the will had it been he fact that they got possession under the a he defendant as proprietor on the 4th
Septe
(which is that referred to by the Privy

(1) Per Geidt, J., in Abinash Chandra v. Poresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402, 408 (1904). The judgment, however, was not treated as proof that the amount decreed was the correct amount payable, but that that particular amount was by the decree made payable, ib., at p. 410.

(2) Which appear to have been the view entertained by Ghose, J., in the last-mentioned suit.

(3) 24 I. A., 10 (1897), 1 C. W. N., 265

(4) Abinash Chandra v Poresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402 (1904), at p. 409, per Geidt, J., this was doubted by Ghose, J., in the same case; see p. 414.

(5) See Appendix.

Council), by which certain outsides sought to have it declared that the estate was in the possession of Bacha Tewari (who was as well as his mortgagee, a party to that suit), as a trustee under the will. It was, however, held in that suit that the will was revoked and therefore the property was not subject to a trust At the date of that suit Bacha Tewari was in possession of his moiety. He continued to hold after the suit and held under a title which negatived the trust, namely, the title declared by the judgment in question. "This decision (the Subordinate Judge said and, as the Privy Council held, correctly) in the opinion of the Court is admissible as evidence against Bacha Tewari, although the plaintiff was not a party to it—as showing the character of the possession of Ramkishen and Bacha Tewari over the estate in respect of which the agreement of 1850 was made." He could not after this decree have held as trustee when the trust was negatived by it. The judgment was therefore relevant and admitted not under this section, but its existence was either a fact in issue under the forty-third and fifth sections or relevant as explaining a fact in issue under the forty-third and ninth sections.

Neither of these decisions appear to affect the Full Bench decision in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall.

In the later case of Dinomoni Chowdhrani v. Brojomohini Chowdhrani(1) in which, however, this section was expressly referred to, the facts were as follows:—The suit was instituted by B. M. C. as the widow and executrix of H. N. C. against J. C. to recover possession of certain land on the allegation that it was partly a reformation on the original site of, and partly an accretion to, certain of her villages. In 1866, J. C. commenced to raise disputes as to the possession of H. N. C. whereupon proceedings took place in the Criminal Court under section 318 of the Criminal Procedure Code, XXV of 1861, in the course of which H. N. C. was found to be in possession of the land, and an order was passed by the Magistrate confirming his possession. Some time after, a third party, a neighbouring proprietor, commenced a dispute which also terminated by an order of the Criminal Court under section 530 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act X of 1872), dated 19th June 1876, in favour of H. N. C. In 1888, further possessory proceedings took place in the Criminal Court under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code of 1882, as the result of which the defendant J C was found to be in possession, and by an order of 31st December, 1888, she was confirmed in possession of the land in dispute. The Subordinate Judge dismissed the suit and rejected the Criminal Proceedings of 1876 as being inadmissible in evidence against the defendant, she not having been a party to them The High Court in appeal admitted these proceedings as being relevant for the purpose of showing the identity of the land claimed in the suit with that which was claimed in 1876 and as showing that it was in existence at that time. On appeal to the Privy Council their Lordships observed. "These orders (made in 1867, 1876 and 1888) are merely police-orders made to prevent breaches of the [illegible] of the Criminal [illegible] le property) the [illegible] possession of the [illegible] is in possession, the Magistrate is to make an order declaring such party to be entitled to retain possession until evicted in due course of law and forbidding all disturbance of such possession until such eviction. The Criminal Procedure Acts in force in1866 and 1876 were to the same effect These police-orders are, in their Lordships' opinion, admissible in evidence on general principles as well as under the thirteenth section of the Indian Evidence Act to show the facts that such orders were made. This necessarily makes them evidence of

(1) Dinomoni Chowdhrani v. Brojomohini Chowdhrani, 29 C., 187 (1901), s. c., 29 I. A., 24.

the following facts, all of which appear from the orders themselves, viz., who the parties to the dispute were; what the land in dispute was; and who was declared entitled to retain possession For this purpose and to this extent such orders are admissible in evidence for and against every one when the fact of possession at the date of the order has to be ascertained. If the lands referred to in such an order are described by metes and bounds, or by reference to objects or marks physically existing, these must necessarily be ascertained by extrinsic evidence, i.e. the testimony of persons who know the locality. If the orders refer to a map, that map is admissible in evidence to render the order intelligible, and the actual situation of the objects drawn or otherwise indicated on the map must, as in all cases of this sort, be ascertained by extrinsic evidence. So far there appears to be no difficulty. Reports accompanying the orders or maps and not referred to in the orders may be admissible as hearsay evidence of reputed possession (Taylor on Evidence, § 517). But they are not otherwise admissible, unless they are made so by the thirteenth section of the Indian Evidence Act. To bring a report within that section the report must be 'a transaction in which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognised, asserted or denied or which was inconsistent with its existence.' These words are very wide and are wide enough to let in the reports forming [illegible] 1876 and 1888 Their Lordships are of [illegible] it err in receiving the report made in the [illegible] of which Mr Cohen objected."

nary It is true that the Privy Council refer to this section but their judgment shows that the "police-orders" as they are called but which were apparently the judgments or orders of Magistrates in Proceedings, under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code, were also admissible on "general principles." What these are is not stated. But as the Judicial Committee has also held that before a document can be admitted it must be shown to be admissible under the Evidence Act it must have here referred to some other section than the present one. This being so the expression of opinion as regards this section was obiter In fact the judgments or orders were admissible as facts in issue under the fifth section. The suit was to recover possession, and it was obviously admissible to show on the question whether a party had possession at a particular time that an order had been passed retaining him in possession. It might, of course, have been shown that notwithstanding such order he had not or did not get possession, but in the absence of such evidence the presumption would be that was ordered to be done was carried out. It is, however, clear that neither as facts in issue nor as "transactions" nor "instances" under this section were these orders treated as a kind of inconclusive res adjudicata; that is, it was not the correctness but the fact of the decision which was relevant. Were it not that the judgment of the Privy Council refers to this section it would create no difficulty at all. With all respect, however, it may be questioned how the order of the Magistrate could be a "transaction" or "instance" of the character mentioned in this section, except on the ground that it "recognised" the right to possession of a particular party or was "inconsistent" with the possession of the opposite party as to which, see post. What the reports were which were admitted is not stated in the decision, but this matter does not immediately touch that under discussion. It does not appear that the section was originally intended to refer to judgments, but to the acts and statements of persons which may be submitted for the consideration and determination of a Court and not to the judgments, decrees and orders of the Court itself. The section itself which is intelligible enough seems to have been intended to refer to matters such as those given in illustration of it. Considerable difficulties, however, arise last(1) expressly nder this section or " instance "

to be otherwise,

the further question is as to the use which may be made of judgments so admitted. It is not possible with certainty to say anything as to the last decision of the Privy Council as the particular grounds on which the judgment of 1876 was held to be admissible under this section were not stated. Possibly it was admitted as a recognition of right, or as being inconsistent with the right claimed by the defendant, or as evidence of an assertion of right on the part of the plaintiff. It is the last mentioned ground that the argument for the admissibility of judgments has commonly been founded Acts of ownership in respect of the subject-matter of a litigation may be shown by proof of particular transactions or instances of the character mentioned in the section. These may be transfers of property such as gifts, sales, leases, mortgages or acts of enjoyment, such as the actual exercise of a right and the like. A claim, however, may be asserted or denied in a litigation as well as in or by any other of the modes mentioned. It has therefore been said that such a litigation and not merely the judgment or decree only(2) is a transaction(3) or instance(4) within the meaning of this section and that the judgment and decree are admissible as evidence of the litigation in which they were rendered and pronounced (5) In this view of the case the relevant fact is the litigation, and the judgment is only the proof of it. There may be cases in which a judgment is the only proof of the assertions of the parties. But it may be objected that a claim is asserted or denied in the pleadings in the issues or in the evidence given in support or denial of those issues If these are available, are not they the proper evidence of the claim made ' The judgment is the judicial opinion rendered on the claims of the parties It is not their claim though it may in common with other parts of the proceedings record it Whether judgments can be said to recognise or be inconsistent with rights has already been dealt with In short great difficulties ensue in the application of this section to judgments. But whether admissible under this section or not, it is clear that the reasons(6) given for a former judgment or decree cannot be relied on to show that in subsequent litigation either of the parties were right or wrong in their assertion or denial of the claim litigated and adjudicated upon. If in a suit by A against B, the former asserts a claim which is declared to be well founded by the judgment in that suit, such assertion may be evidence in a subsequent litigation between A and C, tending to show that in the last mentioned litigation A is also entitled to a decree But the opinion given in favour of A in the first suit is not relevant to prove that the judgment should also be in his favour in the subsequent suit So to use a judgment is to use it in respect of the judicial opinion which it contains. Such an opinion may have been given on a different state of facts and was moreover rendered in the absence of the parties sought to be affected by it. Judgments considered as judicial opinions are only relevant under ss. 40-42. In this respect and to this extent the law appears to be the same now as it was before the Privy Council decisions which have been said to materially qualify it.

---

(1) Dinomoni Choudhrani v. Beejoymohun Chundhurani, 20 C., 187 (1891)

(2) Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 14, 25, 28 (1889); Tepu Khan v. Rajoni Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 501, 504 (1898); s. c., 25 C., 522.

(3) Ib., v. ante, pp. 168—170. It seems, however a somewhat forced use of language to call a litigation a transaction.

(4) Ib., v. ante, pp. 169—170. Jamatullah v. Romani Kant, 15 C., 233 (1887). Ramasami v. Appaiu, 12 M., 9 (1887)

(5) Tepu Khan v. Rajoni Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 501, 504 (1898). s. c., 25 C., 522. S. M. Alipan v. Hara Chandra, S. A., 166 of 1902, Cal. H. C., 1 July 1904.

(6) The Collector of Gorakhpur v. Palakdhari, 12 A., 1 (1889). Alipan v. Hara Chandra, supra

The decision of the Full Bench holds that a judgment not in rem or of a public nature and not inter partes is not relevant under this section "as proof of the particular point it decides" in the sense indicated. The sole object for which it was sought in this case to prove the former judgment was to show that in another suit against another defendant the plaintiff had obtained an adjudication in his favour on the same right claimed. The plaintiff in short said "another Court has decided the same point in my favour so the decision should be in my favour again." The dissentient Judge thought that because the paintiff produced this prior favourable decision it therefore rendered the case of the plaintiff in the subsequent suit more probable. No decision of the Privy Council has ever sanctioned such a use of a judgment. But the existence of a judgment may be a fact in issue(1) or otherwise relevant.(2) Thus, if A has obtained a decree for the possession of land against B, and C, B's son, murders A in consequence, the existence of the judgment is relevant as showing motive for a crime.(3) So again in a suit for malicious prosecution the judgment in the criminal proceeding is evidence to establish the fact of acquittal, the fact, namely, that the criminal proceedings terminated in favour of the plaintiff in the civil action.(4) Again a reference to the finding of a judgment may explain the character of a party's possession and the nature of the enjoyment had in the property in suit.(5) And so the finding of a judgment may be referred to in all other cases where the record is matter of inducement or merely introductory to other evidence.(6) And judgments are admissible where sought to be used to show the conduct of the parties, or to show particular instances of the exercise of a right, or admission made by ancestors or how the property was dealt with previously.(7) Other instances are afforded by the Privy Council decision cited.

Judgments, orders and decrees relating to matters of a public nature relevant to the enquiry, that is, public or general rights and customs, are relevant and admissible, but are not conclusive proof of that which they state (8)

Proof of custom and right

The existence of any custom or right may be proved under this section by evidence of "transactions" or "instances."(9) A statement contained in any deed, will or other document which relates to any such "transaction" as is mentioned in clause (a) is relevant, if the person by whom such statement is made is dead or cannot be found, or if he is incapable of giving evidence, or his attendance cannot be procured without an unreasonable amount of delay or expense.(10) The statement, written or verbal, giving the opinion of a person not called as a witness for similar reasons, as to the existence of any public right or custom, or matter of public or general interest as to the existence of which he would have been likely to have been aware, is relevant, provided it were made before any controversy as to such right, custom or matter had

---

(1) Ram Ranjan v Ram Narain, 22 C, 533 (1894), Dinomoni Choudhrani v Brojomohini Chowdhrani, 29 C, 187 (1901)

(2) Apparently (amongst others) under this section Dinomoni v Brojomohini Chowdhrani, supra, though it should be noted as already stated that in one sense the opinion was obiter as the judgment in question was held also to be admissible on general principles, v ante, Ram Ranjan v. Ram Narain, supra, if that decision admitted the decrees also on the grounds stated by High Court In so far as it may be held that these decisions admit judgments under this section they appear to have allowed the law laid down in Gajju Lall v Futteh Lall, according to which the section did not apply to judgments at all

(3) S 43, illust (d)

(4) v s 43, post

(5) Peary Mohan v Drobomoyi Dabia, 11 C, 749 (1885), v ante

(6) See Commentary to s 43, post

(7) Lakshman v Amrit, 24 B, 598, 599 (1900)

(8) v s 42, post, and note

(9) See in Jugmohandas Mongaldass v. Mangaldas Nathubhoy, 10 B, 543, observations on proof by instances

(10) S. 32, cl. (7), post, and Hurronath Mullick v Nittanund, 10 B. L. R, 263, ante arisen.(1) When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any general custom or right (this includes customs or rights common to any considerable class of persons), the opinion as to the existence of such customs or rights of persons who would be likely to know of its existence, if it existed, are relevant,(2) and the grounds upon which such opinions are based are also relevant,(3) Judgments, orders and decrees are relevant if they relate to matters, that is, rights and customs, of a public nature, but they are not conclusive proof of that which they state.(4) "The most satisfactory evidence," it has been said, "of an enforcement of a custom is a final decree based on the custom"(5) Customs being in derogation of the general rules of law, must be construed and proved strictly (6) In Ramalakhmi Ammal v. Shivanantha Perumal Sethurayer the Privy Council said —"Their Lordships are fully sensible of the importance and justice of giving effect to long-established usages existing in particular districts and families in India, but it is of the essence of special usages, modifying the ordinary law of succession, that they should be ancient and invariable, and it is further essential that they should be established to be so by clear and unambiguous evidence"(7) The course of practices upon which the custom rests must not be left in doubt but be proved with certainty.(8) "The most cogent evidence of custom is not that which is afforded by the expression of opinion as to its existence, but the examination of instances in which the alleged custom has been acted upon, and by the proof afforded by judicial or revenue records or private records or receipts that the custom has been enforced."(9) "The acts required for the establishment of customary law ought to be plural, uniform and constant. They may be judicial decisions, but these are not indispensable for its establishment, although some have thought otherwise."(10) The evidence should be such as to prove the uniformity and continuity of the usage and the conviction of those following it, that they were acting in accordance with law, and this conviction must be inferred from the evidence Evidence of acts of the kind, acquiescence in those acts, their publicity, decisions of Courts, or even of panchayats upholding such acts, the statements of experienced and competent persons of their belief that such acts were legal and valid will all be admissible, but it is obvious that, although admissible, evidence of this latter kind will be of little weight if unsupported by actual examples of the usage asserted.(11) A customary right to impose a charge is not proved when all the evidence of such custom is the testimony of a single witness who says that he paid it, and accounts extending back to twenty-five years, which show that demands for the charge were made on certain tenants, but which do not show that it was ever paid.(12) What the law requires before an alleged custom can receive the recognition of the Court and so acquire legal force is satisfactory proof of usage so long and invariably acted upon in practice as to show that it has, by common consent, been sub-

(1) S 32, cl. (4), post

(2) S 49, post

(3) S 51, post

(4) S 42, post, and notes

(5) Gurdeyal Mal v. Jhanda Mal, 10 A., 588 P. C 42, post

(6) Hurpurshad v. Shiu Dyal, 3 I. A., 285; Beni Madhub v. Jai Krishna, 7 B L. R., 154.

(7) Ramalakhmi Ammal v. Sivananantha Perumal, 17 W. R., 553, ante, Mussamat Parbati Kuar v. Rani Chandrapal Kuar, 8 C., 94.

(8) Sivananaja Perumal v Mutu Ramlinga, 3 Mad. H C. R., 77, ante.

(9) Lachman Rai v. Ithar Khan, I. A., 440; per Turner, J.: as to proof of instances see Pahamathai v Hirbai, 3 B., 34 (1877).

(10) Tara Chand v. Reeb Ram, 3 Mad. H. C R., 57, ante. As to the plurality of acts and the onus probandi in the case of an allegation of custom, see Desai Ranchoddas v Rawal Nathubhai, 21 B., 116, 117 (1895), and see further as to onus, the case of Rahimabai v. Hirbai, 3 B., 34 (1877)

(11) Gopalayyan v. Raghupatiayyan, 7 Mad. H C R., 254 (1873); but see Eranpoli Illath v. Eranpoli Illath, 7 M., 3 (1883)

(12) Kumaru Reddi v. Nagayasami Thambichi Naicker (1907), 31 M., 17; and see Peary Mohan Mukerjee v Jote Kumar Mukerjee (1906), 11 C. W. N., 83

mitted to as the established governing rule of the particular family, class or district or country.(1)

Local usage (desachar), if it really exists, being a custom prevalent over a whole district and not confined to one particular estate must, from its universality, be more easily susceptible of proof than family custom or usage. To prove a local custom the evidence must be precise and conclusive.(2) See the undermentioned case observations on the usage of books of history to prove in local custom (3)

A caste-custom prohibiting widows from adopting, is one which before the Court can give judicial effect to it, ought to be established by very clear proof that the conscience of the members of the caste had come to regard it as forbidden. It must be shown that a uniform and persistent usage has moulded the life of the caste.(4)

In order to establish a family-custom at variance with the ordinary law of inheritance, it is necessary that it should be established by clear and positive proof.(5) (v. ante). To establish a kulachar or family-custom of descent one at least of two things must be shown—either a clear, distinct and positive tradition in the family that the kulachar exists; or a long series of instances of anomalous inheritance from which the kulachar may be inferred (6) It is said in the case of Sumrun Singh v. Khedun Singh(7) that "to legalise any deviation from the strict letter of the law, it is necessary that the usage should have been prevalent during a long succession of ancestors, when it becomes known by the name of kulachar." By a distinct tradition in the family supplies the place of ancient examples of the application of the usage.(8) It has been doubted whether evidence of the acts of a single family, repugnant or antagonistic to the general law, can establish a valid custom or usage. There is, however, nothing to prevent proof of such a family usage.(9) The Courts will, from modern uniform usage, presume an indefinitely ancient usage of the like kind, in the absence of circumstances leading to a contrary inference, but no such presumption can be made where the practice is traced to a recent agreement.(10) Well established discontinuance must be held to destroy family custom and usage.(11) As to "Usage of Trade," v. post.

It must be proved that the right or custom shown to have been exercised on some particular occasion is the same with the right or custom which has to be proved. In England the customs of one manor are not admissible to prove

---

(1) Sivananaya Perumal v. Muttu Ramalinga, 3 Mad H. C. R., 77, ante

(2) Tekait Doorga v. Tekaitnee Doorga, 20 W. R., 157, ante

(3) Vallabha v. Mudusudanan, 12 M., 495 (1889).

(4) Patel Vandravan v. Patel Manilal, 16 B., 470 (1891); see Jugmohandas Mangaldas v Mangaldas Nathubhai, 10 B., 528, ante.

(5) Raja Nugender v. Rughoonath Narain, W R., 1864, 20, ante For recent Privy Council decisions on family custom, see Nitra Pal v Jai Pal, 19 A., 1 (1896); Mohesh Chunder v. Satrughan Dhal, 29 C., 343 (1902); in which decrees not inter partes were admitted as evidence of custom, Chandika Baksh v Numa Kunwar, 24 A., 273 (1901); see also Mailathi Amni v. Subbaraya Mudaliar, 24 M., 650 (1901). [Migration of Hindu subject of French India—custom]

(6) Maharani Hiranath v Ram Narayan, 9 B L. R., 274, 294 (1872)

(7) 2 Sel Rep., 116; New Ed., 147

(8) Maharani Hiranath v. Baboo Ram, supra, 295, as to kulachar determining succession to an impartible estate, see Subramanya Pandya v. Sivn Subramanya, 17 M., 316 (1894); Mohesh Chunder v Satrughan Dhal, 29 C., 343 (1902)

(9) Tara Chand v Reeb Ram, 3 Mad H. C. R., 57, 58 (1886); Madhavrav Raghavendra v. Balkrishna, 4 Bom. H C. R. (A C.), 113 (1886), distinguished in Bhau Nanaji v. Sundrabai, 11 B. H. C. R., 271 (1874); Musamat Parbati Kunr v Rani Chandrapad Kuar, 8 C. C., 94. See also Mayne's Hindu Law, § 51, 5th Ed (1892).

(10) Bhau Nanaji v Sundrabai, 11 Bom H. C. R., 271, ante, following Shepherd v Payne, 31 L. J. C P., 297; and Lord Waterpark v Fennel, 7 H. L., 650, see also Ramasami v Apparu, 12 M., 14, ante, and Joy Kishen v. Doorga Narain, 11 W. R., 38, ante.

(11) Soorendranath v. Mussamut Heeromonee, 10 W R (P. C.), 35 (1868); 1 C., 195, ante.

the instance of another unless some connection can be shown between them, as, for instance, that the custom in question is a particular incident of the general tenure which is proved to be common to the two manors.(1) So also where evidence of a right exercised in a particular locality was given, it was said: "Ownership may be proved by proof of possession, and that can be shown by acts of enjoyment of the land itself, but it is impossible in the nature of things to confine the evidence to the very precise spot on which the alleged trespass may have been committed evidence may be given of acts done on other parts, provided there is such a common character of locality between those parts and the spot in question as would raise a reasonable inference that the place in dispute belonged to the plaintiff if the other parts did. It has been said in the course of argument that the defendant had no interest to dispute the acts of ownership not opposite his own land but the ground on which such acts are admissible is not the acquiescence of any party, they are admissible of themselves proprio vigore, for they tend to prove that he who does them is owner of the soil, though if they are done in the absence of all persons interested to dispute them, they are of less weight—that observation applies only to the effect of the evidence."(2) See notes to s. 42, post

Usage of trade

It has been said "that these words are to be understood as referring to a particular usage to be established by evidence and perfectly distinct from that general custom of merchants, which is the universal established law of the land, which is to be collected from decisions legal principles and analogies, not from evidence in pais"(3) Thus evidence of general custom is not admitted to contradict the law merchant. A custom or usage of trade must in all cases be consistent with law.(4) That law has however been gradually developed by judicial decisions, ratifying the usage of merchants in the different departments of trade, where a general usage has been judicially ascertained and established, it becomes part of the law merchant which Courts of Justice are bound to know and recognise; but it is not easy to define the period at which a usage so becomes incorporated into the law merchant (5) Mercantile usage should be proved by evidence of particular instances and transactions in which it has been acted upon, and not by evidence of opinion only (6) Usage of trade may be proved by multiplying instances of usage of different merchants if it appears to be the same as that of other merchants (7) With reference to the evidence necessary to support an alleged usage the Privy Council said that "there needs not either the antiquity, the uniformity or the notoriety of custom, which in respect of all these, becomes a local law The usage may be still in course of growth; it may require evidence for its support in each case, but in the result it is enough, if it appears to be so well-known and acquiesced in, that it may reasonably be presumed to have been an ingredient tacitly imported by the parties into their contract."(8) The usage must be shown to be certain,(9) and reasonable,(10) and so universally acquiesced in(11) that everybody in the

(1) Marquis of Anglesey v Lord Hatherton, 10 M & W., 235, and Taylor, Ev., §320; Roscoe, N P Ev., 45, as to manorial rights, see note to s 42, post

(2) Jones v. Williams, 2 M. & W., 326. per Parke, B.: Taylor, Ev., 309, 310; see s 11, ante

(3) 1 Smith, L. Cas., 9th Ed., 581, 582

(4) Meyer v. Dresser, 16 C. B. N. S., 660; Indian Contract Act, s 1.

(5) Roscoe, N P. v., 24, 25, and cases there cited

(6) Mackenzie v Dunlop, 3 Macq. H. L. Cas., 22; Cunningham v. Faublanque, 6 L. & P., 44, but see 49, post

(7) Vellayi Bros. v Vetteveln Nadan, 11 M., 465 (1887)

(8) Juggomohun Ghose v Manickchand, 7 Moo. Ind App., 282 (1859), s c 4 W R. (P C), 8; per Sir J Coleridge cited and applied in Palakdhari Rai v. Manners, 23 C., 179 183 (1895) [usage in landholder's estate]

(9) Vellayi Bros. v Vetteveln Nadan, 11 M., 462, 466, ante

(10) Arapa Nagal v. Narai Kesharyi & Co, 8 Bom. H. C. R. (A C.), 19 (1871), Ranseedas Bhoglal v. Keersing Mohanlal, 1 Bom H. C. R., 231 (1863); Vellayi Bros. v Vetteveln Nadan 11 M., 462, 466, ante

(11) See Mackenzie Lyall v Chamroo Singh, 16 C., 702 (1889), Vellayi Bros. v. Vetteveln Nadan, 11 M., 462, 466, ante

particular trade knows it, or might know it, if he took the pains to enquire.(1). If effect is to be given it, it must not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Contract Act(2) or repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms of the contract made between the parties (3)

Facts showing existence of state of mind or of body, or bodily feeling

14. Facts showing the existence of any state of mind—such as intention, knowledge, good faith, negligence, rashness, ill-will or good-will towards any particular person, or showing the existence of any state of body or bodily feeling—are relevant, when the existence of any such state of mind, or body, or bodily feeling, is in issue or relevant.

Explanation 1.—A fact relevant as showing the existence of a relevant state of mind must show that the state of mind exists, not generally, but in reference to the particular matter in question.

Explanation 2.—But where, upon the trial of a person accused of an offence, the previous commission by the accused of an offence is relevant within the meaning of this section, the previous conviction of such person shall also be a relevant fact.(4)

Illustrations

(a) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen It is proved that he was in possession of a particular stolen article

The fact that, at the same time, (5) he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant, as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles, of which he was in possession, to be stolen (6)

(b) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to another person a counterfeit coin which, at the time when he delivered it, he knew to be counterfeit

---

(1) Vallabhdas Bros. v. Vetterelu Nadan, 11 M., 461, 462; Playce v. Allcock, 4 F. & F., (1074), per Willes, J.; Foral v. International Land Credit Co., 16 L. J. N. S., 637.

(2) Act IX of 1872, s. 1 see Madhab Chander v. Bajcoomar Das, 14 B. L. R., 76 (1874).

(3) Vallabhdas Bros. v. Vetterelu Nadan, 11 M., 461; J. G. Smith v. Ludha Ghella, 17 B., 129 (1892), see note to s 29, proviso 5, post

(4) These Explanations were substituted for the original explanation to s 14, by Act III of 1891, s 1 (1); see also Cr. Pr. Code, s 310 (Act V of 1898); and R v. Naba Kumar, 1 C. W. N., 146 (1897), in which the alteration effected in this section and in s 54 are discussed.

(5) See 34 & 35 Vic., c 112, s 19; R v. Drage, 14 Cox, 85; R. v. Carter, 12 Q. B. D., 522

(6) According to English law such evidence of intention in the case of indictments for receiving stolen goods is admissible only subject to certain limitations: see Steph. Dig., Art 11, 34 & 35 Vic., c 112, s 19. Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 84, 778, 788, and cases there cited This illustration makes no reservation as to ownership or time, so that though the stolen property belonged to other person than the prosecutor and without reference to the lapse of time since it was stolen, evidence of its possession may, under the Act, be given against the accused, its weight in each case being left to the discretion of the Court Norton, Ev., 132, see Penal Code, s 411, and s 21, illust (d), and s. 114, illust (a) post R v. Cassy Mul. 3 W. R., Cr., 10 (1865), R. v. Narain Bagdee, 5 W. R., Cr., 3 (1866), R v. Motee Jolaha, 5 W. R., Cr., 66 (1866), the test of a correct presumption of guilt in a prisoner not being able to account for the property on his premises, is dependent on the fact whether the surrounding circumstances of the case really and properly raise such a presumption: Re Meer Yar Ali, 13 W. R., Cr., 70, 71 (1870); R. v. Samiruddin, 18 W. R., Cr., 23 (1872), see Wigmore, Ev., § 324.

The fact that, at the time of its delivery, A was possessed of a number of other pieces of counterfeit coin, is relevant.(1)

The fact that A had been previously convicted of delivering to another person as genuine a counterfeit coin, knowing it to be counterfeit, is relevant.(2)

(c) A sues B for damage done by a dog of B's, which B knew to be ferocious.

The facts that the dog had previously bitten X, Y and Z, and that they had made complaints to B, are relevant.(3) (d) The question is, whether A, the acceptor of a bill of exchange, knew that the name of the payee was fictitious.

The fact that A had accepted other bills drawn in the same manner before they could have been transmitted to him by the payee, if the payee had been a real person, is relevant as showing that A knew that the payee was a fictitious person (4)

(e) A is accused of defaming B by publishing an imputation intended to harm the reputation of B.

The fact of previous publications by A respecting B showing ill-will on the part of A towards B, is relevant, as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question

The facts that there was no previous quarrel between A and B, and that A repeated the matter complained of as he heard it, are relevant, as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B.(5)

---

(1) See R v. Nur Mahomed 8 B., 223 (1883) R v. Vajiram, 16 B., 414 (1892) This illustration speaks only of possession, but it is only a single illustration of the knowledge spoken of in the section Evidence of other utterings would be equally receivable under the section to establish guilty knowledge Norton, Ev., 134, R v. Whitey 2 Leach, 986, cited in R v. Vajiram, Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Society, 4 C. P. D., 102, R v. Green, 3 C. & K., 204. In England it is now well settled that evidence of uttering counterfeit coin on other occasions than that charged is evidence to show guilty knowledge, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 83, 84, and that utterings after that for which the indictment is laid may be given in evidence for this purpose as well as those which take place before R v. Foster, 24 L. J., M. C., 134, see s. 15, illust (c), proof of the prisoner's conduct (as for example, that he passed by different names) is clearly admissible, R v. Tattersall, 2 Leach, 984, R v. Phillips, 1 Leach C. C. 105, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 82, 83, v. s. 8, ante. In the case of forged instruments similar evidence of possession and uttering has been constantly admitted in England (v. post). But whether evidence is admissible of uttering other forged instruments, where these are uttered subsequently to that with which the prisoner is charged, seems to some extent doubtful. Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 82-84 (v. post) See Penal Code, ss. 239-241, 471, 463-477, passim; and see s. 21, illust (c), post R v. Kesso Saunder 2 W. R., Cr., 5 (1865) [counterfeit seals and forged documents], Wigmore, Ev., § 309

(2) This Illustration was substituted for the original Illustration (b) to s. 14, by Act III of 1891, s. 1 (2)

(3) See Thomas v. Morgan, 2 C. M. & R., 496, Judge v. Cox, 1 Starkie, 285, Hudson v. Roberts, 6 Ex., 697, Cox v. Burbidge, 13 C. B. N. S., 430, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 748 In the case of wild and naturally ferocious animals such as lions, tigers, monkeys, etc., it is not necessary to prove 'scienter,' etc., that the defendant knew and was well aware that the animals were ferocious, dangerous or mischievous as the case may be knowledge will be presumed (May v. Burdett, 9 Q. B., 112). But in the case of dogs, horses and other domestic animals, scienter,' must be proved in order to entitle the plaintiff to damages The law relating to Dogs by F. Lupton, 1888, pp. 4, 7, cf. also Penal Code, s. 289, Norton, Ev., 134.

(4) This is the case of Gibson v. Hunter, 2 H. Bl., 288; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 85, Taylor, Ev., § 338

(5) Not only is the publication of other libels evidence, but the mode of their publication, to show quo animo they were published (see Bond v. Douglas, 7 C. & P., 626, where libellous hand bills were carried backwards and forwards before the plaintiff's door) As the existence of previous ill-feeling throws light upon the animus with which the libel was published, so does the absence

The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was, (1) is relevant, as showing that A did not, in good faith, believe that the real owner of the property could not be found.

The fact that A knew, or had reason to believe, that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property, and wished to set up a false claim to it, is relevant, as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove A's good faith.(2)

(i) A is charged with shooting at B with intent to kill him. In order to show A's intent, the fact of A's having previously shot at B may be proved (3)

(j) A is charged with sending threatening letters to B. Threatening letters previously sent by A to B may be proved, as showing the intention of the letters (4)

(k) The question is whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife.

Expressions of their feeling towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty, are relevant facts (5)

(l) The question is, whether A's death was caused by poison

Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms, are relevant facts.(6)

(m) The question is, what was the state of A's health at the time when an assurance on his life was effected

Statements made by A as to the state of his health at or near the time in question, are relevant facts (7)

(n) A sues B for negligence in providing him with a carriage for hire not reasonably fit for use, whereby A was injured.

The fact that B's attention was drawn on other occasions to the defect of that particular carriage, is relevant.

---

(1) "And in such a manner that A knew or probably might have known of it" Steph Dig., Art. 11, illust (j) See also Norton, Ev., 137; some evidence should be given that the notice was within his knowledge

(2) In the instances given in the illustration the first is to negative good faith, the second to rebut the presumption of mala fides raised by the first; see Penal Code, s 403, Expl (2), Norton, Ev., 136, 137, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 579; R v. Thurburn, 1 Den., C. C. R., 387; 18 L. J, M. C. 140; in which, and in the judgment of Parke, B., the whole law with reference to larceny of goods found, is considered.

(3) This illustration, which is taken from the case of R. v. Voke, R & R., 531, is in principle like illust. (o), post, the difference between the two illustrations is that this illustration is a case of shooting with intent to kill, while illust. (o) is of murder outright In R. v. Voke, the prisoner was indicted for maliciously shooting at the prosecutor. Evidence was given that the prisoner fired at the prosecutor twice during the day. In the course of the trial it was objected that the prosecutor ought not to give evidence of two distinct felonies, but Burrough, J., held, that it was admissible, on the ground that the counsel for the prisoner, by his cross-examination of the prosecutor, had endeavoured to show that the gun might have gone off by accident that the second firing was evidence to show that the first was wilful, and to remove the doubt if any existed in the minds of the jury, see Roscoe, Cr Ev, 12th Ed, 85, Norton, Ev., 137

(4) See R v Robinson, East, P. C., 1110, in which previous letters, sent by the prisoner were read in evidence as they served to explain the letter on which he was indicted

(5) See Taylor, Ev, § 582 This and the two following illustrations relate to feelings, the first to mental feelings of "ill-will" or "good will," the two last to "bodily feelings" (v. text post).

(6) See R. v. Gloster, 16 Cox, 471; R v. Johnson, 2 C & K, 354.

(7) See Aveson v. Kennaird, 6 East, 188; R. v. Nicholas, 2 C. & K., 246, 2 Cox, C. C., 136; R. v. Gultridge, 9 C. & P., 471.

The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he left to hire, is irrelevant (1)

(c) A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him dead

The fact that A on other occasions shot at B is relevant, as showing his intention to shoot B

The fact that A was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant

(p) A is tried for a crime

The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime, is relevant

The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class, is relevant.

Principle.—If the existence of a mental or bodily state or bodily feeling is, as is assumed by the section, in issue or relevant, it is clear that facts from which the existence of such mental or bodily state or bodily feeling may be inferred are also relevant. The second Explanation is merely a particular application of the general rule contained in the body of the section. The rejection of the general fact by the first Explanation rests on the ground that the collateral matter is too remote, if indeed there is any connection with the factum probandum.

s. 3 ("Fact.") s. 21, cl. (2) ("Admission consisting of statements of existence of state of mind or body.")
s. 3 ("Relevant") ss. 102, 106, 111 (Burden of proof.)

Steph. Dig., Art. 11 and Note VI, Taylor, Ev., §§ 580—586, 150, 160, 812, 1665, 1666, 340—347, 188; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 50, 65, 114—124; Lindley, Partnership, 536; Chitty's Equity Index, 4th Ed., "Notice;" Brett's Leading Cases in Equity, 2nd Ed., 260; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 633—635, 847—855, 736 et seq.; Norton, Ev., 131—140; Swift, Ev., 111; Cunningham, Ev., 117, 119; Pollock's Law of Fraud in India (1894), 44, 45, 61, 65, 66, 76, 77; First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 87—94, Lindley's Company Law, 5th Ed., 312; Bevan's Principles of the Law of Negligence (1889); Cr. Pr. Code, s. 310; Contract Act, s. 17; Best, Ev., p. 86, §§ 255, 433; Wills, Ev., 50, 52; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 309—370, 581, 658—661, 1962, 1963.

COMMENTARY.

States of mind or of body or bodily feeling

Facts, it has been seen, are either physical or psychological; the former being the subject of perception by the senses, and the latter the subject of consciousness.(2) A person may testify to his own intent. But if his acts and conduct are shown to be at variance and inconsistent with the intent he swears to, his own testimony in his own favour would ordinarily obtain very little credit.(3) Of facts which cannot be perceived by the senses, intention, fraud, good faith and knowledge are examples.(4) But a man's intention is a matter of fact capable of proof. "The state of a man's mind is as much a fact as the state of his digestion. It is true that it is very difficult to prove what the state of a man's mind at a particular time is: but if it can be ascertained it is as

(1) This and the two following illustrations refer to the Explanation, illust. (a) illustrates "negligence" as well, illust. (c) should be read in conjunction with illust. (i), ante, v. text, post.

(2) v. ante, s. 3, illust. (d).

(3) Wigmore, Ev., § 581

(4) See First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871.

much a fact as anything else."(1) The latter class of facts, however, are incapable of direct proof by the testimony of witnesses, their existence can only be ascertained either by the confession of the party whose mind is their seat, or by presumptive inference from physical facts.(2) It has been debated whether the "opinion rule" excludes testimony to another person's state of mind (3) But it may be safely and in general said that a witness must speak to facts and let the inference from those facts be drawn by the Court or jury.(4) This section is in accordance with the principle laid down in numerous cases(5) that, to explain states of mind, evidence is admissible, though it does not otherwise bear upon the issue to be tried As regards this principle there is no difference between civil and criminal cases.(6) The present section makes general provision for the subject, and the next section is a special application of the rule contained in the present one The subject of the existence of states of mind is one of the most important topics with which judicial enquiries are concerned, in criminal cases they are the main consideration, and in civil cases they are often highly material, as for instance, where there is a question of fraud, malicious intention, or negligence. The present section is framed to avoid all technicalities as to the class of cases or the time within which the fact given as evidence of mental or bodily condition, must have occurred. The only point for the Court to consider, in deciding upon the admissibility of evidence under this section, is whether the fact can be said to show the existence of the state of mind or body under investigation (7) The same considerations will, it is apprehended, determine the question of the admissibility of facts subsequent to the fact in issue to prove intent and other like questions (8) So also, though the collateral facts sought to be proved should not be so remote in

---

(1) Edgington v Fitzmaurice, 29 Ch D, App 483 (1885), per Bowen, L J see Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, p. 61.

(2) See Balmakund Ram v. Ghansam Ram, 22 C 391, 406 (1894), [proof of intention need not be direct, it will be enough if it is proved like any other fact (and the existence of intention is a fact) by the evidence of conduct and surrounding circumstances] The Deputy Remembrancer v Karuna Baistobi, 22 C, 164, 174 (1894), R v Khutten Ram, 2 W R, Cr, 63 (1865) R v Be'aree, 3 W R, Cr, 23 24, 27 (1865) [exclamations as evidence of guilty intention conduct of prisoner]. Re Meer Yar Ali, 13 W R, Cr, 71 (1870); [ib]; R v Rookni Kant, 3 W R, Cr., 58 (1865) [province of jury to judge of intention], R. v. Gookool Bouree, 5 W. R, Cr, 33 38 (1866) [to some degree, of course, the intentions of parties, to a wrongful act must be judged of by the event], R. v Gora Chand, 5 W. R, Cr, 45, 46 (1866), [presumption of intention must depend upon the facts of each particular case], R v. Shurufooddeen, 13 W. R, Cr, 26 (1870); [a guilty knowledge is not necessarily a thing on which direct evidence can be afforded. It is a matter of conscience and connected with the secret motives of a man's conduct: it must be inferred from facts]: R. v. Bleesdale, 2 C. & K., 765 (felonious intent): R v. Mogg, 4 C. & P, 364 (b), R. v. Lloyd, 7 C. & P, 318 (lustful intent): R v. Bhola, 23 A., 124 (1900), cited in notes to s. 108 [Assembling for the purpose of committing dacoity evidence of intention] R v Papa Sani, 23 M, 159 (1899), Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karuna Baistobi, supra [obtaining girls for prostitution, evidence of intent], and as to declarations as proof of intention, see R. v Petcherini 7 Cox, C C, 79 As to burden of proof see ss 102 105, 106, post

(3) Wigmore, Ev, §§ 1962, 1963 The answer to the objection in § 661 seems to be that in such case the witness is submitting his inference to the jury Because the jury have themselves to draw the inference that is no reason why the witness should be allowed to do so As to the different meanings of "belief" or "impression" as signifying the degree of positiveness of original observation or recollection (in which case there is no legal objection) or lack of actual persona observation (in which case the evidence is excluded), see ib, § 658

(4) Swift, Ev, 111 A witness must swear to facts within his knowledge and recollection and cannot swear to mere matters of belief"

(5) See judgment of Williams, J, in R v Richardson, 2 F & F, 348

(6) Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Society, 4 C. P. D, 102

(7) Cunningham, Ev., 117

(8) Thus, according to English law, on charges for uttering counterfeit coin, utterings after that for which the indictment is laid may be given in evidence; but the point is doubtful in the case of forged instruments; and in the case of false pretences it is still doubtful whether pretences made subsequently to the one charged are admis-

The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he left to hire, is irrelevant (1)

(o) A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him dead.

The fact that A on other occasions, shot at B is relevant, as showing his intention to shoot B.

The fact that A was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant.

(p) A is tried for a crime.

The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime, is relevant.

The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class, is relevant.

Principle.—If the existence of a mental or bodily state or bodily feeling is, as is assumed by the section, in issue or relevant, it is clear that facts from which the existence of such mental or bodily state or bodily feeling may be inferred are also relevant. The second Explanation is merely a particular application of the general rule contained in the body of the section. The rejection of the general fact by the first Explanation rests on the ground that the collateral matter is too remote if indeed there is any connection with the factum probandum.

s. 3 ("Fact.")
s. 3 ("Relevant")
s. 21, cl. (2) ("Admission consisting of statements of existence of state of mind or body.")
ss. 102, 106, 111 (Burden of proof.)

Steph. Dig. Art. 11 and Note VI, Taylor, Ev., §§ 580—586, 150, 160, 812, 1665, 1666, 340—347, 188, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 50, 65, 114—124; Lindley, Partnership, 536, Chitty's Equity Index, 4th Ed., "Notice;" Brett's Leading Cases in Equity, 2nd Ed., 260; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 633—635, 847—855, 736 et seq.; Norton, Ev., 131—140; Swift, Ev., 111; Cunningham, Ev., 117, 119; Pollock's Law of Fraud in India (1894), 44, 45, 61, 65, 66, 76, 77; First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 87—94; Lindley's Company Law, 5th Ed., 312; Bevan's Principles of the Law of Negligence (1889); Cr. Pr. Code, s. 310; Contract Act, s. 17; Best, Ev., p. 86, §§ 255, 433; Wills, Ev., 50, 52; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 309—370, 581, 658—661, 1962, 1963.

COMMENTARY.

States of mind or body or bodily feeling

Facts, it has been seen, are either physical or psychological; the former being the subject of perception by the senses, and the latter the subject of consciousness.(2) A person may testify to his own intent. But if his acts and conduct are shown to be at variance and inconsistent with the intent he swears to, his own testimony in his own favour would ordinarily obtain very little credit.(3) Of facts which cannot be perceived by the senses, intention, fraud, good faith and knowledge are examples.(4) But a man's intention is a matter of fact capable of proof.
state of his digestion.
of a man's mind at a p

(1) This and the two following illustrations refer to the Explanation; illust. (a) illustrates "negligence" as well; illust. (o) should be read in conjunction with illust. (i), ante, v. text, post.

(2) v. ante, s. 3, illust. (d).

(3) Wigmore, Ev., § 581

(4) See First Report of the Select Committee, 31st March 1871.

much a fact as anything else."(1) The latter class of facts, however, are incapable of direct proof by the testimony of witnesses, their existence can only be ascertained either by the confession of the party whose mind is their seat, or by presumptive inference from physical facts.(2) It has been debated whether the "opinion rule" excludes testimony to another person's state of mind.(3) But it may be safely and in general said that a witness must speak to facts and let the inference from those facts be drawn by the Court or jury.(4) This section is in accordance with the principle laid down in numerous cases(5) that, otherwise i is no differe makes general provision for the subject, and the next section is a special application of the rule contained in the present one. The subject of the existence of states of mind is one of the most important topics with which judicial enquiries are concerned; in criminal cases they are the main consideration; and in civil cases they are often highly material, as for instance, where there is a question of fraud, malicious intention, or negligence. The present section is framed to avoid all technicalities as to the class of cases or the time within which the fact given as evidence of mental or bodily condition, must have occurred. The only point for the Court to consider, in deciding upon the admissibility of evidence under this section, is whether the fact can be said to show the existence of the state of mind or body under investigation.(7) The same considerations will, it is apprehended, determine the question of the admissibility of facts subsequent to the fact in issue to prove intent and other like questions (8) So also, though the collateral facts sought to be proved should not be so remote in

---

(1) Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 Ch D, App, 483 (1885), per Bowen, L J · see Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, p 61

(2) See Balmakund Ram v. Ghausam Ram, 22 C, 391, 406 (1894), [proof of intention need not be direct; it will be enough if it is proved like any other fact (and the existence of intention is a fact) by the evidence of conduct and surrounding circumstances] The Deputy Remembrancer v Karuna Baistobi, 22 C, 164, 174 (1894); R v Khatten Ram, 2 W. R, Cr, 63 (1865); R v. Belaree, 3 W R, Cr, 23, 24, 27 (1865) [exclamations as evidence of guilty intention conduct of prisoner]: Re Meer Yar Ali, 13 W. R., Cr., 71 (1870) · [ib]; R. v. Rookni Kant, 3 W. R., Cr., 08 (1865) [province of jury to judge of intention], R. v. Gookool Bowree, 5 W. R, Cr., 33, 38 (1866) [to some degree, of course, the intentions of parties, to a wrongful act must be judged of by the event], R v Gora Chand, 5 W. R, Cr, 45, 46 (1866), [presumption of intention must depend upon the facts of each particular case]; R. v. Shurufoodeen, 13 W. R, Cr., 26 (1870), [a guilty knowledge is not necessarily a thing on which direct evidence can be afforded. It is a matter of conscience and connected with the secret motives of a man's conduct: it must be inferred from facts] · R. v. Bleesdale, 2 C. & K., 765 (felonious intent), R v. Mogg, 4 C. & P, 364 (ib), R. v Lloyd, 7 C. & P., 318 (lustful intent), R v. Bhalu, 23 A, 124 (1900), cited in notes to s. 100. [Assembling for the purpose of committing dacoity: evidence of intention.] R v Papa Sani, 23 M, 159 (1899); Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna Baistobi, supra [obtaining girls for prostitution; evidence of intent], and as to declarations as proof of intention, see R v. Petcherini, 7 Cox, C C, 79. As to burden of proof, see ss 102, 105 106, post.

(3) Wigmore, Ev, §§ 1962, 1963 The answer to the objection in § 661 seems to be that in such case the witness is submitting his inference to the jury Because the jury have themselves to draw the inference that is no reason why the witness should be allowed to do so As to the different meanings of "belief" or "impression" as signifying the degree of positiveness of original observation or recollection (in which case there is no legal objection) or lack of actual personal observation (in which case the evidence is excluded), see ib, § 658.

(4) Swift, Ev, 111 A witness must swear to facts within his knowledge and recollection and cannot swear to mere matters of belief"

(5) See judgment of Williams, J, in R. v Richardson, 2 F. & F, 346

(6) Blake v Albion Life Assurance Society, 4 C. P. D, 102.

(7) Cunningham, Ev, 117

(8) Thus, according to English law, on charges for uttering counterfeit coin, utterings after that for which the indictment is laid may be given in evidence, but the point is doubtful in the case of forged instruments; and in the case of false pretences it is still doubtful whether pretences made subsequently to the one charged are admis-

neous manifestations of the given condition, whether by conduct, conversation, or correspondence, may be given in evidence as part of the res gestæ, it being for the Court or jury to consider whether they are real or feigned. Thus, the answers of patients to enquiries by medical men and others are evidence of their state of health, provided they are confined to contemporaneous symptoms, and are not in the nature of a narrative as to how, by whom, such symptoms were caused.(1) And if the condition of the patient before or after the time in issue be material, his declarations at such times as to his then present condition are equally receivable (2) Not only may a party's own statements but those made to him by third persons (3) be proved for the purpose of showing his state of mind at a given time (4) Thus where the question was whether a person knew that he was insolvent at a certain time, his own statements implying consciousness of the fact, as well as letters from third persons refusing to advance him money, were held to be admissible after the fact of his insolvency had been proved independently.(5) In addition to evidence of contemporaneous manifestations of the given condition, collateral facts are admitted to show the existence of a particular state of mind. Acts unconnected with the act in question are frequently receivable to prove psychological facts, such as intent (6) In order to show this, similar acts done by the party are relevant: but similar acts are not relevant to prove the existence of the particular fact in issue, being inadmissible for this purpose under the rule by which similar but unconnected acts are excluded.(7) Thus when a man is on his trial for a specific crime, such as uttering a forged note or coin, or receiving an article of stolen property, the issue is whether he is guilty of that specific act. To admit therefore as evidence against him other instances of a similar nature clearly is to introduce collateral matter. This cannot be with the object of inducing the Court to infer, that because the accused has committed a crime of a similar description on other occasions, he is guilty on the present; but to establish the criminal intent and to anticipate the defence that he acted innocently and without any guilty knowledge, or that he had no intention or motive to commit the act; and generally to interpret acts, which, without the admission of such collateral evidence, are ambiguous (8) In other words, the existence of the fact in issue must be always independently established, and for this purpose evidence of similar and unconnected acts is inadmissible: but when once the fact in issue is so established, such similar acts may be given in evidence to prove the state of mind of the party by whom it was done;(9) again,

---

(1) Aveson v Kinnaid, 6 East, 188, R v Nicholls, 2 C. & K., 246; R v Gloster, 16 Cox, 471, illust (l), (m)

(2) R v. Johnson, 2 C & K., 354

(3) Vacher v. Cocks, 1 M & M, 353; Lewis v. Rogers, 1 C M. & R, 48; Whart, § 254.

(4) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 50; see Taylor, Ev, §§ 580—586.

(5) Ib. 39; Thomas v. Connell, 4 M. & W., 267, Vacher v. Cocks, 1 M. & M, 353, Cotton v. James, ib., 273

(6) Best, Ev., 255

(7) See notes to s 8, ante "When there is a question whether a person said or did some thing, the fact that he said or did something of the same sort on a different occasion may be proved if it shows the existence on the occasion in question of any intention, knowledge, good or bad faith, malice or other state of mind or any state of body or bodily feeling, the existence of which is in issue or is deemed to be relevant to the issue, but such acts or words may not be proved merely in order to show that the person so acting or speaking was likely on the occasion in question to act in a similar manner" Steph. Dig, Art 11, and see note VI, ib

(8) Roscoe, Cr Ev, 87, Norton, Ev, 131, R. v. Cole, 1 Phillips, Ev, 508, R. v. Richardson, 2 F & F, 343, Blake v Albion Life Assurance Society, 4 C P D, 106 (fraud), R v. Balls, L. R, 1 C. C, 328, and cases cited, post. "There is no principle of law which prevents that being put in evidence which might otherwise be so, merely because it discloses other indictable offences," per Williams, J, in R v. Richardson, supra, 346, Roscoe, Cr Ev., 85; Makin v Attorney-General for New South Wales, L. R, 1894, App Cas, 65

(9) R v. Parbhudas, post, R v Vajiram, post; R. v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodeliar, post

when several offences are so connected that proof of one can be arrived at through evidence going to prove the others, the evidence is not on that account excluded.(1)

Scope of the Sections.

In R. v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodeliar(2) Garth, C. J., said: "Section 14 seems to me to apply to that class of cases which is discussed in Taylor on Evidence, 6th Edition, sections 318—322;—that is to say, cases where a particular act is more or less criminal or culpable, according to the state of mind or feeling of the person who does it; as, for instance, in actions of slander or false imprisonment, or malicious prosecution, where malice is one of the main ingredient in the wrong which is charged, evidence is admissible to show that the defendant was actuated by spite or enmity against the plaintiff; or, again, on a charge of uttering coin, evidence is admissible to show that the prisoner knew the coin to be counterfeit, because he had other similar coin in his possession, or had passed such coin before or after the particular occasion which formed the subject of the charge. The Illustrations to section 14 as well as the authorities cited in Taylor, show with sufficient clearness the sort of cases in which this evidence is receivable. But I think we must be very careful not to extend the operation of the section to other cases, where the question of guilt or innocence depends upon actual facts, and not upon the state of a Man's Mind or feeling. We have no right to prove that a man committed theft or any other crime on one occasion, by showing that he committed similar crimes on other occasions. Thus the possession, by an accused person, of a number of documents suspected to be forged, was held to be no evidence to prove that he had forged the particular documents with the forgery of which he was charged.(3) In R. v. Parbhudas,(4) West, J., said: "The possession by an accused of several other articles deposed to have been stolen, would, no doubt, have some probative force on the issue of whether he had received the particular articles which he was charged with having dishonestly received, and the receipt or possession of which he denied altogether, yet in the first illustration to section 14, it is set forth as a preliminary to the admission of testimony as to the other articles that 'it is proved that he was in possession of (the) particular stolen article.' The receipt and possession are not allowed to be proved by other apparently similar instances, only the guilty knowledge. ....Illustration (o) to the same section makes a previous attempt by the accused to shoot the person murdered, evidence of the accused's intention, but not of the act that caused the death; yet it is certain that in the issue of whether A actually shot B or not, the fact that he had previously shot at him, would have some probative force, so, too, would proof of a general malignity of disposition by evidence that 'A was in the habit of shooting at people, with intent to murder them,' yet this evidence is excluded, even as proof of A's intention either as too remotely connected with the particular intention in issue, or as raising collateral questions, which could not properly be resolved in the case."(5) In the same case Melville, J., said (6) "It appears to me that the Indian Evidence Act does not go beyond the English law" As to the latter Lord Herschell said(7): "The mere fact that the evidence adduced tends to show the

---

(1) R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C R, 90, 93 (1894), and R v Ellis, 6 B & C, 145, cited in R. v Parbhudas, supra, and R v Tajuram, 16 B, 430 (1892).

(2) 6 C., 655, 659 (1881)

(3) R. v. Parbhudas, supra, R v Nur Mahomed, 8 B, 223, 225 (1883), in which the former case was distinguished and in which it was held that evidence of the possession and attempted disposal of coins of an unusual kind is relevant on a charge of uttering such coins soon afterwards, when the factum of uttering is denied.

(4) 11 Bom H C. R, 90, 91 (1874) "A fully argued case where Mr Justice West gives a full and lucid exposition of s 14 of the Indian Evidence Act," per Jardine, J, in R v. Fakirappa, 15 B, 502 (1890)

(5) R v Parbhudas, supra

(6) Ib at p 97

(7) Makin v Attorney-General, New South Wales (1894), A C., 57, cited in R v. Wyatt (1904) A. C., 57

neous manifestations of the given condition, whether by conduct, conversation, or correspondence, may be given in evidence as part of the res gestæ, it being for the Court or jury to consider whether they are real or feigned. Thus, the answers of patients to enquiries by medical men and others are evidence of their state of health, provided they are confined to contemporaneous symptoms, and are not in the nature of a narrative as to how, by whom, such symptoms were caused.(1) And if the condition of the patient before or after the time in issue be material, his declarations at such times as to his then present condition are equally receivable.(2) Not only may a party's own statements but those made to him by third persons (3) be proved for the purpose of showing his state of mind at a given time.(4) Thus where the question was whether a person knew that he was insolvent at a certain time, his own statements implying consciousness of the fact, as well as letters from third persons refusing to advance him money, were held to be admissible after the fact of his insolvency had been proved independently.(5) In addition to evidence of contemporaneous manifestations of the given condition, collateral facts are admitted to show the existence of a particular state of mind Acts unconnected with the act in question are frequently receivable to prove psychological facts, such as intent.(6) In order to show this, similar acts done by the party are relevant: but similar acts are not relevant to prove the existence of the particular fact in issue, being inadmissible for this purpose under the rule by which similar but unconnected acts are excluded.(7) Thus when a man is on his trial for a specific crime, such as uttering a forged note or coin, or receiving an article of stolen property, the issue is whether he is guilty of that specific act. To admit therefore as evidence against him other instances of a similar nature clearly is to introduce collateral matter. This cannot be with the object of inducing the Court to infer, that because the accused has committed a crime of a similar description on other occasions, he is guilty on the present; but to establish the criminal intent and to anticipate the defence that he acted innocently and without any guilty knowledge, or that he had no intention or motive to commit the act, and generally to interpret acts, which, without the admission of such collateral evidence, are ambiguous.(8) In other words, the existence of the fact in issue must be always independently established, and for this purpose evidence of similar and unconnected acts is inadmissible: but when once the fact in issue is so established, such similar acts may be given in evidence to prove the state of mind of the party by whom it was done;(9) again,

---

(1) Aveson v Kinnaid, 6 East, 188, R v Nicholas, 2 C. & K., 246, R v Gloster, 16 Cox, 471, illust (l), (m)

(2) R v. Johnson, 2 C. & K., 354

(3) Vacher v. Cocks, 1 M & M, 353, Lewis v. Rogers, 1 C. M. & R, 48, Whart, § 254

(4) Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 50; see Taylor, Ev., §§ 580—586

(5) Ib 39, Thomas v. Connell, 4 M. & W, 267; Vacher v. Cocks, 1 M. & M., 353; Cotton v. James, ib. 273

(6) Best, Ev, 255

(7) See notes to s. 8, ante "When there is a question whether a person said or did something, the fact that he said or did something of the same sort on a different occasion may be proved if it shows the existence on the occasion in question of any intention, knowledge, good or bad faith, malice or other state of mind or any state of body or bodily feeling, the existence of which is in issue or is deemed to be relevant to the issue, but such acts or words may not be proved merely in order to show that the person so acting or speaking was likely on the occasion in question to act in a similar manner" Steph. Dig, Art 11, and see note VI, ib.

(8) Roscoe, Cr Ev, 87, Norton, Ev., 131; R. v. Cole, 1 Phillips, Ev, 508; R. v. Richardson, 2 F. & F, 343, Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Society, 4 C P. D, 106 (fraud); R v. Balls, L. R, 1 C. C, 328, and cases cited, post. "There is no principle of law which prevents that being put in evidence which might otherwise be so, merely because it discloses other indictable offences," per Williams, J, in R v. Richardson, supra, 346; Roscoe, Cr Ev., 85, Makin v. Attorney-General for New South Wales, L. R, 1894, App. Cas, 65

(9) R v. Parbhudas, post, R v Vajiram, post, R v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodeliar, post.

when several offences are so connected that proof of one can be arrived at through evidence going to prove the others, the evidence is not on that account excluded.(1)

Scope of the Sections.

In R. v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodeliar(2) Garth, C. J., said: "Section 14 seems to me to apply to that class of cases which is discussed in Taylor on Evidence, 6th Edition, sections 318—322,—that is to say, cases where a particular act is more or less criminal or culpable, according to the state of mind or feeling of the person who does it, as, for instance, in actions of slander or false imprisonment, or malicious prosecution, where malice is one of the main ingredient in the wrong which is charged, evidence is admissible to show that the defendant was actuated by spite or enmity against the plaintiff; or, again, on a charge of uttering coin, evidence is admissible to show that the prisoner knew the coin to be counterfeit, because he had other similar coin in his possession, or had passed such coin before or after the particular occasion which formed the subject of the charge. The Illustrations to section 14 as well as the authorities cited in Taylor, show with sufficient clearness the sort of cases in which this evidence is receivable. But I think we must be very careful not to extend the operation of the section to other cases, where the question of guilt or innocence depends upon actual facts, and not upon the state of a Man's Mind or feeling. We have no right to prove that a man committed theft or any other crime on one occasion, by showing that he committed similar crimes on other occasions. Thus the possession, by an accused person, of a number of documents suspected to be forged, was held to be no evidence to prove that he had forged the particular documents with the forgery of which he was charged.(3) In R. v. Parbhudas,(4) West, J., said: "The possession by an accused of several other articles deposed to have been stolen, would, no doubt, have some probative force on the issue of whether he had received the particular articles which he was charged with having dishonestly received, and the receipt or possession of which he denied altogether, yet in the first illustration to section 14, it is set forth as a preliminary to the admission of testimony as to the other articles that it is proved that he was in possession of (the) particular stolen article.' The receipt and possession are not allowed to be proved by other apparently similar instances, only the guilty knowledge. . . . . Illustration (o) to the same section makes a previous attempt by the accused to shoot the person murdered, evidence of the accused's intention, but not of the act that caused the death, yet it is certain that in the issue of whether A actually shot B or not, the fact that he had previously shot at him, would have some probative force, so, too, would proof of a general malignity of disposition by evidence that 'A was in the habit of shooting at people, with intent to murder them,' yet this evidence is excluded, even as proof of A's intention either as too remotely connected with the particular intention in issue, or as raising collateral questions, which could not properly be resolved in the case"(5) In the same case Melville, J., said (6) "It appears to me that the Indian Evidence Act does not go beyond the English law." As to the latter Lord Herschell said(7) "The mere fact that the evidence adduced tends to show the

(1) R v Parbhudas, 11 Bom H C R, 90, 93 (1894), and R v Ellis, 6 B & C, 145, cited in R v Parbhudas, supra, and R v Vajiram, 16 B, 430 (1892)

(2) 6 C, 655, 659 (1881)

(3) R v Parbhudas, supra, R v Nur Mahomed, 8 B, 223, 225 (1883), in which the former case was distinguished and in which it was held that evidence of the possession and attempted disposal of coins of an unusual kind is relevant on a charge of uttering such coins soon afterwards, when the factum of uttering is denied.

(4) 11 Bom H C R, 90, 91 (1874). "A fully argued case where Mr Justice West gives a full and lucid exposition of s 14 of the Indian Evidence Act," per Jardine, J, in R v. Fakirappa, 15 B, 502 (1890).

(5) R v Parbhudas, supra

(6) Ib at p 97.

(7) Makin v. Attorney-General, New South Wales (1894), A C., 57, cited in R. v. Wyatt (1904). A. C, 57.

commission of other crimes does not render it inadmissible if it be relevant to an issue before the jury, and it may be so relevant if it bears upon the question whether the acts alleged to constitute the crime charged in the indictment were designed or accidental or to rebut a defence which would otherwise be open to the accused." In R. v. Bond it was held that where the defence to a criminal charge is that the acts alleged to constitute the crime were done by the accused for an innocent purpose, evidence that the accused did the same acts for an improper purpose on another occasion, is admissible as evidence negativing the defence, although it is evidence which proves the commission of another offence by the accused. In this case a person who was qualified to be and had acted as a surgeon was indicted for procuring a miscarriage The evidence was that he had used certain instruments and the defence was that he was performing a lawful operation. It was proved that he had ceased to practise as a surgeon, and evidence was tendered by the prosecution that he had on a previous occasion used the same instruments in the same manner on another person with the avowed intention of procuring a miscarriage This evidence was held admissible by the Court of Crown cases Reserved,—Lord Alverstone, C J, and Redley, J, dissenting on the grounds that primâ facie there was no necessary connection between the act charged on the indictment and the other act alleged in the evidence, and that evidence of prior acts of a similar kind is not admissible when the only question is the purpose for which an act was done.(1) point of intention,(2) (a), (b), (c) and ( faith, (n) of negligence and knowledge feeling (n), (o) and (p) illustrate the explanation (3)

The question of intention is sufficiently illustrated by the Illustrations (e) (i), and (j) to the present section, by the cases illustrating guilty knowledge, and by the next section; and is further considered in the notes to the last-mentioned section and in the preceding and succeeding paragraphs (4)" A man is not excused from crimes by reason of his drunkenness, but although you cannot take drunkenness as any excuse for crime, yet when the crime is such that the intention of the party committing it is one of its constituent elements, you may look at the fact that a man was in drink in considering whether he formed the intention necessary to constitute the crime "(5) In the recent case of R. v. Meade the rule on this point was stated by the English Court of Criminal Appeal as follows: 'A man is taken to intend the natural consequences of his acts. This presumption may be rebutted in the case of a sober man in many ways. It may be rebutted in the case of a man who is drunk by showing his mind to have been so affected by the drink he had taken that he was incapable of knowing that what he was doing was dangerous, i e., likely to inflict serious injury. If this be proved the presumption that he intended to do grievous bodily harm is rebutted.(6)" When a person does an act with some intention other than that which the character and circumstances of the act suggest, the burden of proving that intention is upon him.(7) The question of intention is to be inferred from legal evidence of facts, and not from antecedent declarations by the accused himself, upon occasions distant from an antecedent to the transaction.(8)

---

(1) R. v. Bond, C. C. R. (1906), 21 Cox., p. 232

(2) As to whether an act was accidental or intentional, v. s 15, post

(3) See Norton. Ev, 131.

(4) See cases cited in first paragraph of Commentary, ante.

(5) R v Doherty, 16 Cox, 306 per Stephen J.: R v. Ram Sahay, W. R, Gap No, Cr., 24 (1864).

(6) R v. Meade, C C A. (1909), 1 K B, 895.

(7) S 106, post, Illust. (a)

(8) R v. Fetcherini, 7 Cox, C. C., 79, 83, per Greene, B., as to declarations accompanying an act, v. ib, and s 8, ante, and notes thereto.

Knowledge and notice

Facts which go to prove guilty knowledge may be proved. In R. v. Whiley,(1) Lord Ellenborough, in deciding that to prove the guilty knowledge of an utterer of a forged bank-note, evidence may be given of his having previously uttered other forged notes knowing them to be forged, observed that "without the reception of other evidence than that which the mere circumstances of the transaction itself could furnish, it would be impossible to ascertain whether they uttered it with a guilty knowledge of its having been forged or whether it was uttered under circumstances which showed their minds to be free from guilt." In the case of R. v. Tattersall mentioned by Lord Ellenborough in R. v. Whiley, the question reserved by Chambre, J., was "whether the prisoner had not furnished pregnant evidence, and whether the jury, from his conduct on one occasion, might not infer his knowledge in another?" The opinion of the Judges was that the jury were at liberty to make such an inference. "The cases in which this has been acted on are mostly common cases of uttering forged documents or base coins, but they are not confined to those cases."(2) Passing from the case of guilty knowledge, knowledge may be inferred from the fact that a party had reasonable means of knowledge, i.e., possession of documents containing the information, especially if he has answered, or otherwise acted upon, them, or from the fact that such documents, properly addressed, have been delivered at, or posted to, his residence.(3) So execution of a document, e.g., of a deed or a will, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, implies knowledge of its contents;(4) though mere attestation necessarily does not.(5) Access to documents may also sometimes raise a presumption of knowledge (6) But there is no presumption of law that a director knows the contents of the books of a company.(7) And shareholders are not, as between themselves and their directors, supposed to know all that is in the company's books.(1) The publication of a fact in a Gazette or newspaper is receivable to fix a party with notice, though (unless the case is governed by Statute) it is always advisable, and sometimes necessary, to furnish evidence that the party to be affected has probably read the paper.(2) The notoriety of a fact in a party's calling or vicinity may also in some cases support an inference of knowledge (3) When the existence of a state of mind is in question, all facts from which it may be properly inferred are relevant. And so when the question was whether A, at the time of making a contract with B, knew that the latter was insane it was held that the conduct of B, both before and after the transaction, was admissible in evidence to show that his malady was of such a character as would make itself apparent to A at the time he was dealing with him.(4) See also Illustrations (a) (b), (c) and (d) to the section. "Notice" has also been made the subject of substantive law and of statutory definition in the Transfer of Property and Indian Trusts Acts (5) This definition codifies the law as to notice which existed before these Acts were passed.(6) Notice to an agent is notice to the principal.(7) And notice to one of several trustees is notice to all.(8) Constructive notice is of two kinds: there is the notice through an agent, which Lord Chelmsford has called "imputed notice;" the other is that which he thought should more properly be called "constructive notice," and means that kind of notice which the Courts have raised against a person from his wilfully abstaining from making enquiries, or inspecting documents.(9) In such cases the Courts are said to raise a presumption of knowledge which is not allowed to be rebutted, and whatever is sufficient to put a person of ordinary prudence on enquiry is constructive notice of all to which that enquiry would lead.(10) So notice of a deed or a trust, is notice of its terms.(11) And the acceptance of a contract in a common form without objection is constructive notice of its contents.(12) So when title-deeds

---

(1) Lindley, Company Law, 5th Ed., 312, and cases there cited

(2) See notes to s 67, post, Taylor, Ev, §§ 1665, 1666, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 116, Steph Dig, Art 11, illust (n), where the question was whether A, the captain of a ship, knew that a port was blockaded it was held that the fact that the blockade was notified in the Gazette was relevant; Harratt v Wise, 9 B & C, 712

(3) See illust (f), ante and note, though mere rumour or reputation is inadmissible, R. v Gunnel, 16 Cox, 154, Greenslade v. Dare, 20 Beav., 284 (Evidence of the general reputation of the insanity of a person, in the neighbourhood in which he resided, is admissible to prove that a person was cognisant of that fact]

(4) Beaman v. McDonnell, 10 Ex., 184, Lunat v. Tribe, 3 F. & F., 9; but see also Greenslade v. Dare, ante

(5) S. 3, Act IV of 1882, amended by Act III of 1885 (Transfer of Property); s 3, Act II of 1882 (Indian Trusts) See cases collected in Shephard and Brown's Commentaries on the Transfer of Property Act, p 14, 2nd Ed

(6) Cheesman v. Bolli, 9 A., 509

(7) Act IX of 1872 (Contract), s. 229, cf the English Conveyancing Act, 1882; 45 & 46 Vic, c. 39; as to notice of dishonour of negotiable instruments, see Act XXVI of 1881 (Negotiable Instruments), Ch VIII See Pearson's Law of Agency in British India, 430

(8) Godefroi on Trusts, 677

(9) Kettlewell v. Watson, L R, 21 Ch D, 685, 724 per Fry J a person refusing a registered letter sent by post cannot afterwards plead ignorance of its contents Looff Ali v Peary Mohun, 18 W R, 223 (1871)

(10) See Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 117, Jones v Smith 1 Hare, 43, Shephard and Brown, supra, 14 as to whether registration operates as constructive notice, ib, 21, and Shau Mull v Madras Building Co, 16 M, 268, 277 (1891); Balmakundas v Moti Narayan, 8 B, 444 (1891), Joshua v Alliance Bank, 22 C, 185 (1894), Brett's L C in Eq, 2nd Ed., 260, Chitty, Eq, Index, 4th Ed, "Notice," and as to notice to agent, trustee, counsel, partner, solicitor, v. sh, and ante For a purchaser to be affected with constructive notice through his solicitor, the latter himself must have actual notice. Greender Chunder v. Mackintosh, 4 C, 807 (1879), and notice acquired only before the employment as solicitor began is not sufficient Chalildas Lallu Bhai v Dayal Mucji P. P C (1907), 31 B, 566

(11) Patman v Harland, 17 Ch D, 353, Brett's L C in Eq, 260, and cases there cited, Rajaram v Krishnasami, 16 M., 301 (1892)

(12) Watkins v Rymill, 10 Q B D, 179 were deposited by way of equitable mortgage with a Bank which omitted to investigate the title; the Bank was held to have constructive notice of a charge which they might have discovered (1) And when a share of a trust-fund was assigned and the trustees did not enquire into the title of the alleged assignee they were held to have constructive notice of it.(2) But a Company to whom a vessel is transferred cannot be fixed with constructive notice of the possible liability of the vendors for the unpaid costs of their solicitors even though actual vendor and the promoter of the company were one and the same person (3) Where the sellers at an auction-sale so conducted themselves with reference to the sale that bidders were induced to leave and the purchaser was present and had notice of these circumstances, it was held that he was affected with notice of the impropriety of the sale (4)

Good and bad faith: fraud: malice.

"It is a truth confirmed by all experience that in the great majority of cases fraud is not capable of being established by positive and express proofs. It is by its very nature secret in its movements; and if those whose duty it is to investigate questions of fraud are to insist upon direct proof in every case the ends of justice would be constantly, if not invariably, defeated We do not mean to say that fraud can be established, by any less proof, or by any different kind of proof, from what is required to establish any other disputed question of fact, or that circumstances of mere suspicion which lead to no certain result should be taken as sufficient proof of fraud, or that fraud should be presumed against any body in any case, but what we mean to say is that, in the generality of cases, circumstantial evidence is our only resource in dealing with questions of fraud, and if this evidence is sufficient to overcome the natural presumption of honesty and fair dealing and to satisfy a reasonable mind of the existence of fraud by raising a counter-presumption, there is no reason whatever why we should not act upon it."(5) A party's good faith in doing an act may generally be inferred from any facts which would justify its doing.(6) In such cases the information (whether true or false) on which he acted will often be material. Although the opinions and acts of other parties are not generally admissible, yet when opinions and acts lead to the formation of a belief in another man, and that belief is the fact in issue, those opinions and acts acquire a legal evidentiary relation and become admissible. So to show the bonâ fides of a party's belief as to any matter, it is admissible to show the state of his knowledge and that he had reasonable grounds for such belief.(7) For though it is now settled that in order, apart from Statute, to maintain an action for deceit, there must be proof of fraud, a false statement made in the honest belief that it is true being not sufficient, and there being no such thing as legal fraud in the absence of moral fraud, yet a false statement made through carelessness, and without

---

(1) Bank of Bombay v Suleman Somji, P C (1908), 33 B, 1, following In re Queale's Estate (1886), Ir L R, 17 Ch D, 361

(2) Davis v Hutchings (1907), 1 Ch, 356, following Jones v Smith (1841), 1 Hare, 43 (1843), 1 Ph, 244

(3) The Birnam Wood, C A (1907), R 1

(4) Chabildas Lallubhai v Dayal Mowji, P C (1907), 31 B., 566

(5) Per Dwarkanath Mitter, J, in Mothoora Pandey v. Ram Ruchya, 11 W R, 482, 483 (1869), s c, 3 B L R (A. C), 108, but fraud and dishonesty are not to be assumed upon conjecture, however probable. Sheikh Imdad Ali v. Mussummat Koolby, 6 W. R (P C.), 24 (1842), s c, 3 Moo. I A, 1, as to secrecy as evidence of fraud, see Joshua v Alliance Bank of Simla, 22 C, 185 (1894), see cases cited in notes to ss 102, 111, post

(6) Whart, § 35, cited in Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 118

(7) Derry v Peek, 14 App Cas, 337 "A man's own assertion of what he believed, or recollection of what he thinks he believed at a certain time, is worth very little without some kind of confirmation from the external conditions Obviously the best and most natural corroboration would be found in circumstances showing that the alleged belief was such as, with the means of knowledge then at hand, a reasonable man might have entertained at the time." Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, 44 45.

reasonable belief that it is true, though not amounting to fraud, may be evidence of it; and fraud is proved where it is shown that a false representation has been made (a) knowingly, or (b) without belief in its truth; or (c) recklessly, careless whether it be true or false, and if fraud be proved, the defendant's motive is immaterial—it matters not that there was no intention to injure the person to whom the statement was made.(1) To show the bonâ fides of a party's belief he may show that it was shared by the community, or even by individuals similarly situated to himself.(2) "The relative positions and circumstances of the parties are often material in determining their good or bad faith in a transaction; a higher standard of probity being demanded from either when the other is, e.g., of weak intellect, intoxicated, illiterate, or acting under duress or fear, or occupies the position of child, ward, client, or patient of the other "(3) As to the burden of proof in such cases, see section 111, post, and the notes thereto Where the accused was charged under section 206 of the Indian Penal Code with fraudulently transferring three properties to three different persons on a certain day, in order to prevent their being seized in execution of a decree, and the prosecution tendered evidence of five other fraudulent transfers of property effected by the accused on the same day, and apparently with the same object, held that this evidence was admissible under this and the next section, to prove either that all those transfers were parts of one entire transaction, or that the particular transfers which were specified in the charge were made with a fraudulent intent (4) Evidence of similar frauds, committed on other persons, by the same agent of the defendant company in the same manner, with the knowledge and for the benefit of the company, is admissible to prove fraud (5) In like manner, in actions for false representation, where the question turns on fraudulent intent, other misstatements besides those laid in the statement of claim will be admissible in evidence, for the purpose of showing that the defendant was actuated by dishonest motives.(6) And the defendants may show representations made by him to others, with the view of proving his own bonâ fides (7) Where A and B were charged with conspiring to defraud C by representing that A owned certain property, and B's defence was that he honestly believed the representation, being himself the dupe of A, it was held that letters between A and B (not communicated to C) prior to the completion of the transaction, regarding it, were

---

(1) Derry v. Peek, supra, 316, 336, 369 374, in which the distinction is made between facts which constitute fraud, and those that are only evidence of it. Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 848, and cases there cited, Indian Contract Act, s 17, Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, 42—56, as to concealment of material facts, see Smith v. Hughes, L. R., 6 Q. B., 597; Ward v. Hobbs, 4 App. Cas., 13, inadequacy of price as evidence of fraud see Indian Contract Act, s 25, Specific Relief Act, s 28; see generally as to fraud, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 633—635, 847—855; it must be properly pleaded: a case of fraud cannot be started in middle of cross-examination for the first time, Lever v. Goodwin, W. N. (C. A.), 1887, p 107.

(2) Illust (f), ante, Shrew v. Bumpstead, 2 H. & C., 193; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 853; see note ante to Illust. (f) In Penny v. Hanson, 18 Q B D., 478, the question was whether A intended to deceive B by pretending to tell his fortune by the boná fide believed in his ability to tell such fortunes was inadmissible, Denman, J remarking: 'We do not live in times when any sane man believes in such a power,' and see Lewis v. Fermor, ib., 532, 536, per Willes, J

(3) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 118, Pollock's Law of Fraud in India, 65, 66, 76, 77; see notes to s. 111, post.

(4) R v. Vajiram, 16 B., 414 (1892).

(5) Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Society, 4 C. P. D., 94 See also R v. Wyatt (1904), 1 K B., 188, in which the question was whether upon an indictment for obtaining credit by means of fraud evidence could be given of similar acts committed by the accused at a period immediately preceding the offence for which the accused was being tried, and the answer given by the Judges was in the affirmative.

(6) Huntingford v. Massey, 1 F. & F., 690; Taylor, Ev., § 340.

(7) Shrewsbury v. Blount, 2 M. & Gr., 475.

particular occasion or matter. Illustrations (a) and (b) make this clear. A man is accused of receiving stolen goods with guilty knowledge; if he is merely shown to be generally dishonest, the probability of his having been dishonest in this particular transaction is perhaps increased, but only in a vague and indefinite way; but if, at the time, he is found in possession of a number of other stolen articles, this fact throws a distinct light on his knowledge and intentions as to the articles of which he is found in possession. It would be dangerous to infer that because a man was generally dishonest, he was dishonest in any single case; but it is not dangerous to infer that a man, who is found in possession of [illegible] which are shown to have been stolen all in a dishonest manner."(1) The [illegible] provisions as to the procedure to be adopted in the case of previous conviction These provisions have been made with the view of preventing the jury or assessors from being biased against the accused by the knowledge that he is an old offender. But notwithstanding anything in the Code, evidence of the previous conviction may be given at the trial for the subsequent offence, if the fact of the previous conviction is relevant under this Act.(3) According to this section previous convictions become relevant when the existence of any state of mind or body or bodily feeling is in issue or relevant (4) Under the present section the previous conviction will not be relevant unless the commission of the offence for which the conviction was had is relevant within the meaning of the preceding portion of the section The second Explanation therefore does not extend the [illegible] ly an application of the rule contained in [illegible] in which the acts sought to be given in e[illegible] of intention have been themselves adjudicated upon in a criminal proceeding previously taken (5) Having regard to the character of the offence under section 400 of the Indian Penal Code, previous commissions of dacoity are relevant under this section Convictions previous to the time specified in the charge or to the framing of the charge are relevant under the second Explanation to this section but convictions subse[illegible] he charge and to the framing of the charge or an offence of keeping a common gaming Prevention of Gambling Act (IV of 1887, [illegible], evidence that the accused had been previously convicted of the same offence is admissible to show guilty knowledge or intention (7) Where certain speeches formed the subject-matter of a charge for sedition, and where such speeches formed part of a series of speeches or lectures on one topic delivered within a short period of time, it was held that any of such speeches or lectures were admissible under this section as evidence to prove the intention of the speaker in respect of the speeches which formed the subject of the charge,(8) and that seditious articles published in the same newspaper not forming the subject of the charges were admissible to show the intention of the person who printed or published the others (9)

(1) Cunningham, Ev., 118, 119

(2) S. 310, as amended by Act III of 1891, s. 9

(3) Act III of 1891, s. 9; e.g., under the present section or ss. 43 & 54, post

(4) R. v. Allamuya Hassan, 5 Bom. L. R., 803 (1903), s. c., 28 B., 129

(5) See illust. (b), ante

(6) R. v. Nobo Kumar, 1 C. W. N., 146 (1897), referred to in Maniura Pan v. R., 27 C., 139, 143 (1899), s. c., 4 C. W. N., 97.

(7) R. v. Allamuya Hassan, 5 Bom. L. R., 803 (1903), Jacob, J., dissent, s. c., 28 B., 129 (1903)

(8) Chidambaram Pillai v. R. (1908), 32 M., 3, and see R. v. Jogendra Chundra Bose (1892), 19 C., 35; R. v. Phanindra Nath Mitter (1908), 35 C., 945; R. v. Bal Gangadhar Tilak (1898), 22 B., 112, R. v. Amba Prasad (1898), 20 A., 55, R. v. Bonl (1906), 2 K. B., 389

(9) R. v. Phanindra Nath Mitter (1908), 35 C., 945.

Facts bearing on question whether act was accidental or intentional

15. Where there is a question whether an act was accidental or intentional [or done with a particular knowledge or intention],(1) the fact that such act formed part of a series of similar occurrences in each of which the person doing the act was concerned, is relevant.

Illustrations.

(a) A is accused of burning down his house in order to obtain money for which it is insured.

The facts that A lived in several houses successively each of which he insured, in each of which a fire occurred, and after each of which fires A received payment from a different Insurance Office, are relevant, as tending to show that the fires were not accidental.(2)

(b) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B. It is A's duty to make entries in a book showing the amounts received by him. He makes an entry showing that on a particular occasion he received less than he really did receive. The question is, whether this false entry was accidental or intentional

The facts that other entries made by A in the same book are false, and that the false entry in each case was in favour of A, are relevant.(3)

(c) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to B a counterfeit rupee. The question is whether delivery of the rupee was accidental.

The facts that, soon before or soon after the delivery to B, A delivered counterfeit rupees to C, D and E, are relevant, as showing that the delivery to B was not accidental.(4)

Principle.—The facts are admitted as tending to show system and therefore intention, this section is therefore an application of the rule laid down in the preceding one.(5) It will always be a matter of discretion, whether there is a sufficient and reasonable connection between the fact to be proved and the evidentiary fact. If there is no common link they cannot form a series, and this is the gist of the section (6)

s. 14 (Facts relevant to show knowledge or intention.) s. 3 ("Relevant.")

Steph Dig., Art. 12; Norton, Ev., 140; Cunningham, Ev., 120, Taylor, Ev., § 328; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 135; Wills, Ev., 52.

---

(1) The words in brackets were added by s 2, Act III of 1891, and appear to have been overlooked in R v Alloomiya Hassan, 5 Bom L R, 805 (1903), s c, 28 B, 129, where Jacob, J, states that this section invites consideration of the question of intention only as opposed to accident

(2) This illustration is founded on the case of R. v. Cray, 4 F, & F., 1102, the authority of which is doubted in Steph Dig, Art. 12, note, and see Norton, Ev., 140, 141, but see contra R v Vajiram, 16 B, 433.

(3) Founded on R v Richardson, 2 F & F, 343, Steph Dig, Art 12, illust (b)

(4) This illustration is very like illust (b) to s 14 The one speaks of possessing, the other of passing, other false coins The presumption is the same; Norton, Ev, 140

(5) See Steph Dig, Art 12, and Cunningham, Ev., 120.

(6) Norton, Ev, 140.

COMMENTARY

Accident or system.

So where the question was whether Z murdered A (her husband) by poison in September 1848, the facts that B, C and D (Z's three sons) had the same poison administered to them in December 1848, March 1849, and April 1849, and that the meals of all four were prepared by Z, were held to be relevant, to show that such administration was intentional and not accidental, though Z was indicted separately for murdering A, B and C, and attempting to murder D.(1) This case and the case of R v Garner (infra) were discussed in R. v. Neil Cream(2) when Hawkins, J., admitted evidence of subsequent administrations of strychnine by the prisoner to persons other than and unconnected with the woman of whose murder the prisoner was then convicted. Where A promised to lend money to B on the security of a policy of insurance, which B agreed to effect in an Insurance Company of his (A's) choosing, and B paid the first premium to the company, but A refused to lend the money except upon terms which he intended B to reject, and which B rejected accordingly, it was held that the fact that A and the Insurance Company had been engaged in similar transactions was relevant to the question whether the receipt of the money by the company was fraudulent (3) Where a prisoner was charged with the murder of her child by poison, and the defence was that its death resulted from an accidental taking of such poison, evidence to prove that two other children of hers and a lodger in her house had died previous to the present charge from the same poison was held to be admissible (4) Upon the trial of a prisoner for the murder of her infant by suffocation in bed, held that evidence tendered to prove the previous death of her other children at early ages was admissible, although such evidence did not show the causes from which these children died.(5) Upon the trial of an indictment for using a certain instrument with intent to procure a marriage, it is relevant, in order to prove the intent, to show that at other times, both before and after the offence charged, the prisoner had caused miscarriages by similar means (6) Under an indictment for arson, where the prisoner was charged with wilfully setting fire to her master's house —Held that two previous and abortive attempts to set fire to different portions of the same premises were admissible, though there was no evidence to connect the prisoner with either of them.(7) Where the plaintiff in an action of negligence alleged that he had contracted an infectious disease through the negligence of the defendant, a barber, in using razors and other appliances in a dirty and insanitary condition, and in support of his case he tendered the evidence of two witnesses who deposed that they had contracted a similar disease in the defendant's shop. Held that as the negligence alleged was not an

---

(1) R v. Geering, 18 L. J. M. C., 215, cited in R v. Richardson, 2 F. & F., 346, R v Francis, 12 Cox, C. C., 615, Blake v Albion Life Assurance Society, 4 C. P. D., 101, 102; see R v. Garner, 3 F. & F., 681 R. v Cotton, 12 Cox, 400; R. v Heesan, 14 Cox, 40; R v. Bolen, 12 Cox, 630; see Taylor, Ev., § 328 and note, and Steph. Dig., Art. 12, illust. (C) and note.

(2) Cited in Steph. Dig., p. 20, note, 116 C. C. C., Sess. Pa., 1451.

(3) Blake v. Albion Life Assurance Society, L. R., 4 C. P. D., 94; Steph. Dig., Art. 12, illust. (d) See R. v. Wyatt, 1904, 1 K. B., 188, cited in notes to last section.

(4) R. v. Cotton, 12 Cox, 400; R v. Geering, supra, followed

(5) R v. Bolen, 12 Cox, 630, following R. v. Cotton, supra, it was objected by the counsel for the prisoner, that the evidence admitted in R. v Cotton, pointed directly to prior acts of poisoning, but in this case it was not proposed to prove that the four children died from other than natural causes per Lush, J. The value of the evidence cannot affect its admissibility. "The principle of R v. Cotton, applies"

(6) R. v. Dale, 16 Cox, 703, R v. Bond, C. C. R., 1906, 21 Cox, 256, in which Lord Alverstone, C. J., said: "If R v. Dale is to be construed to authorize the admissibility of evidence of prior acts of a similar kind where the act is admitted and the only question is the purpose for which it was done, it goes too far."

(7) R. v. Bailey, 2 Cox, C. C. 311.

isolated act or omission, but was a dangerous practice carried on by the defendant, the evidence of those witnesses was admissible.(1)

Existence of course of business when relevant.

16. When there is a question whether a particular act was done, the existence of any course of business, according to which it naturally would have been done, is a relevant fact.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether a particular letter was despatched.

The facts that it was the ordinary course of business for all letters put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that that particular letter was put in that place, are relevant.(2)

(b) The question is, whether a particular letter reached A.

The facts that it was posted in due course, and was not returned through the Dead-letter Office, are relevant.(3)

Principle.—Evidence of the existence of the course of business is relevant as laying a foundation for the presumption which the Court may raise from the course of business when proved. The Court may then presume that the common course of business has been followed in the particular case,(4) and this presumption is but an application of the general maxim omnia præsumuntur rite esse acta, and proceeds on the well-recognised fact that the conduct of men in official and commercial matters is to a very great extent uniform. In such cases there is a strong presumption that the general regularity will not, in any particular instance, be departed from. Customs may like any other facts or circumstances be shown when their existence will increase or diminish the probabilities of an act having been done or not done, which act is the subject of contest.(5) It would seem to be axiomatic that a man is likely to do, or not to do a thing, or to do it, or not to do it, in a particular way, according as he is in the habit of doing or not doing it.(6) But the course of business must be clearly made out in order to establish that connection between the facts proved and sought to be proved which is the foundation of the presumption.(7)

s. 114, illust. (f) (Presumption as to course of business.)	s. 3 ("Relevant")
	s. 3 ("Fact.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 13, Powel, Ev., 92—94, Norton, Ev., 141, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 43, 374, 213; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 84, Taylor, Ev., §§ 176—182, Field, Ev., 122, Best, Ev., § 403; Cunningham, Ev., 121, Wigmore, Ev., § 92

---

(1) Hales v. Kerr (1908), 2 K. B., 601, Times L. R. v. 24, p. 779.

(2) Hetherington v. Kemp, 4 Camp., 193, Ningawa v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 65, 66 (1897), and see Silbeck v. Garbett, 7 Q. B., 846, Trotter v. Maclean, L. R., 13 Ch. D., 574, Ward v. Lord Londesborough, 12 C. B., 252, Steph. Dig., Art. 13, illust. (b), but the course of business may be contradicted, Stocken v. Collin, 7 M. & W., 515, see also ss. 50 and 51 of the repealed Act II of 1855.

(3) Warren v. Warren, 1 C. M. & R., 250, 3 Esp., 54; 3 C. & P., 250; and see Saunderson v. Judge, 2 H. L., 500, Woodcock v. Houldsworth, 16 M. & W., 124; Abbey v. Hill, 5 Bing., 299; Plume's case, R. & R., 264; Kent v. Lowen, 1 Camp., 178; Steph. Dig., Art. 13, illust. (c); see Jogendra Chunder v. Dwarka Nath, 15 C., 681, 683 (1888).

(4) S. 114, illust. (f), post, the matter dealt with by this section is treated by English text-writers under the subject of presumptions.—The ordinary course of business is proved and the Court is asked to presume that, on the particular occasion in question, there was no departure from the ordinary and general rule, see authorities cited, supra, and Field, Ev., 122, Dwarka Doss v. Baboo Jankee, 6 M. I. A., 90 ["It is reasonable to presume that that which was the ordinary course was pursued in this case"].

(5) Walker v. Barron, 6 Minn., 508, 512 (Amer.), per Flandrau, J.

(6) State v. Railroad, 52 N. H., 528, 532 (Amer.), per Sargent, C. J. See Wigmore, Ev., § 92.

(7) See Cunningham, Ev., 121.

COMMENTARY.

Course of business.

As to the meaning of the words "course of business," see notes to the second clause of thirty-second section, post. The section relates to private as well as public offices. Illustration (a) relates to the former; Illustration (b) to the latter, namely, the post office itself.(1) Where it was sought to prove that a certain indorsement had been made on a (lost) license entered at the Custom House, it was held to be relevant to show that the course of office was not to permit the entry without such indorsements.(2) And where the question was whether A paid B his [illegible] "s practice was to pay all his workmen regula[illegible] was seen with the rest waiting to be paid anc[illegible] to complain.(3) So also where the demand was for the proceeds of milk sold daily to customers by the defendant as agent to the plaintiff, and it appeared that the course of dealing was for the defendant to pay the plaintiff every day the money which she had received without any written voucher passing, it was ruled that it was to be presumed that the defendant had in fact accounted, and that the onus of proving the contrary lay on the plaintiff.(4) Where evidence was admitted of a book-keeper's custom of handing over collateral notes to the teller as indicating that it was done in this instance, Sherwood, J., said "It is really immaterial whether he was able to do more than to verify his entries and prove his invariable custom. These things being proven, the presumption arises therefrom that the usual course of business was pursued in this particular instance. Every one is presumed to govern himself by the rules of right reason and consequently that he acquits himself of his engagement and duty. Whenever it is established that one act is the usual concomitant of another, the latter being proved, the former will be presumed, for this is in accord with the experience of common life. It is simply the process of ascertaining one act from the existence of another."(5)

The fixed methods and systematic operation of the postal and telegraph service is evidence of due delivery of matter placed for that purpose in the custody of the proper authority. "If a letter properly directed (6) is proved to have been either put into the post office or delivered to the postman,(7) it is presumed, from the known course of business in that department of the public service, that it reached its destination at the regular time, and was received by the person to whom it was addressed."(8) "Again, if letters or notices properly directed to a gentleman be left with his servant, it is only reasonable to presume, primâ facie, that they reached his hands.(9) The fact, too, of sending a letter to the post office will in general be regarded by a jury as presumptively proved, if the letter be shown to have been handed to, or left with, the clerk, whose duty it was in the ordinary course of business to carry it to the post,

---

(1) Norton, Ev., 141.

(2) Butler v. Allnut, 1 Starkie, 222; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 96, Taylor, Ev., § 180.A, see also Van Omeeron v. Dowick, 2 Camp., 44; Waddington v. Roberts, L. R., 3 Q. B., 579; Mason v. Wood, 1 C. P. D., 63.

(3) Lucas v. Norositeski, 1 Esp., 296, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 97; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 37; and see Sellen v. Norman, 4 C. & P., 80.

(4) Evans v. Birch, 3 Camp., 10, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 37.

(5) Mathias v. O'Neill, 94 Mo., 527; 6 S. W., 233 (Amer.).

(6) See Walter v. Haynes, Ray. & M., 149; Burmester v. Barron, 17 Q. B., 828; Taylor, Ev., s. 179, no inference should be drawn from the posting of a letter that it was properly addressed; Ram Das v. The Official Liquidator, Cotton Ginning Co., Ld., Cawnpore, 9 A., 366, 384 (1887).

(7) Silbeck v. Garbett, 7 Q. B., 846.

(8) Best, Ev., § 403, Taylor, Ev., § 179, and cases there cited, Saunderson v. Judge, supra; Woodcock v. Houldsworth, supra; Warren v. Warren, supra. "If a letter is sent by the post it is primâ facie proof, until the contrary be proved, that the party to whom it is addressed received it in due course," per Parke, B., in Warren v. Warren, supra. Lee & Ah v. Pearce Mohun, 16 W. R., 223 (1871) [If a letter is forwarded to a person by post duly registered it must be presumed that it was tendered to him.] See also s. 14, ante. see presumption as to post letters summarised in Powell, Ev., 94.

(9) Macgregor v. Keily, 3 W. H. & G., 794, Taylor, Ev., § 182; Powell, Ev., 97.

and if he can declare that, although he has no recollection of the particular letter, he invariably took to the post office all letters that either were delivered to him, or were deposited in a certain place for that purpose."(1) Upon the settlement of the list of contributories to the assets of a company in course of liquidation, one of the persons named in the list denied that he had agreed to become a member of the company or was liable as a contributory. The District Court admitted as evidence on behalf of the official liquidator, a press-copy of a letter addressed to the objector, for the purpose of proving that a notice of allotment of share was duly communicated. No notice to the objector to produce the original letter appeared on the record; but, at the hearing of the appeal, it was alleged by the official liquidator and denied by the objector, that such notice had been in fact given. There was no evidence as to the posting of the original letter, or of the address which it bore; but the press-copy was contained in the press-copy letter-book of the company, and was proved to be in the handwriting of a deceased Secretary of the company, whose duty it was to despatch letters after they had been copied in the letter-book. The objector denied having received the letter or any notice of allotment, held that the Court should not draw the inference that the original letter was properly addressed or posted; that the press-copy letter was inadmissible in evidence; and that there was no proof of the communication of any notice of allotment.(2) Where a notice to quit was sent by registered letter the posting of which was proved, and which was produced in Court in the cover in which it was despatched, that cover containing the notice with an indorsement upon it purporting to be by an officer of the post office stating the refusal of the addressee to receive the letter, held that this was sufficient service of notice.(3) Postmarks on letters,—when capable of being deciphered,—are primâ facie evidence that the letters were in the post at the time and place therein specified (4) the postmark on a letter has been admitted as evidence of the date of its being sent,(5) but a postmark may be contradicted by oral evidence of the real date of posting (6) The presumption, in the case of the post office, that a letter properly directed and posted will be delivered in due course,(7) will be extended to postal telegrams now that the inland telegraphs form part of the Government postal system.(8)

In certain cases special provision has been made by Statute with respect to matters with which this section is concerned. Thus in the case of documents served by post on companies, in proving service of such documents, it is sufficient to prove that it was properly directed, and that it was put as a registered letter into the post office.(9)

(1) Taylor, Ev, § 182, and cases cited there and ante, Silbeck v Garbett, Hetherington v Kemp, Trotter v Maclean, Ward v. Lord Londesborough To prove the sending of a notice by post, the plaintiff's clerk was called, who stated that a letter containing the notice was sent by post on a Tuesday morning, but he had no recollection whether it was put in by himself or another clerk. it was held that not sufficient evidence of putting into the post, Haukes v Salter, 4 Bing, see Roscoe, N. P Ev, 374, and Toosey v Williams, 1 M. & M, 129

(2) Ramdas v The Official Liquidator, Cotton Ginning Co, Ld, Caunpore, 9 A, 366 (1887)

(3) Jogendra Chunder v. Ducrka Nath, 15 C, 681 (1888)

(4) Fletcher v Braddyll, 3 Stark, R, 64, Stocken v. Collin, 7 M. & W., 515, R. v. Johnson, 7 East, 65, Taylor, Ev, s. 179, and cases there cited; Powell, Ev, 94, Wigmore, Ev, § 95

(5) Abbey v Hill, 5 Bing, 299, R v Plumer, R & Ry, 264, Kent v Lowen, 1 Camp, 177, Roscoe, N P. Ev, 213, & 214, Steph Dig, Art. 13, illust (a) a letter is presumed to have arrived at its destination at the time at which it would be delivered in the ordinary course of postal business, Stocken v Collin, ante, Powell, Ev, 95

(6) Stocken v Collin, supra, Burr Jones, Ev., § 46

(7) British and American Telegraph Co v Colson, L. R, 6 Ex, 122, per Bramwell, B.

(8) Roscoe, N P Ev, 4 3, see also as to the telegraphic messages, s 88, post.

(9) Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), s. 90 If a notice given under the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881, s. 94) is duly directed and sent by post, and miscarries, such miscarriage does not render the notice invalid

ADMISSIONS

THE following sections (i.e., ss. 17—31), deal with the subject of admissions and confessions which have been generally said to form exceptions to the rule which excludes hearsay This is not entirely correct. Admissions are sometimes used as merely discrediting a party's statement by showing that he has on other occasions made statements inconsistent with the case afterwards set up Their effect in such a case is merely destructive. It is their inconsistency with the party's present claim that gives them logical force and not their testimonial credit. For in such cases the truth of the admission is not relied on, and therefore they are not obnoxious to the hearsay rule.(1) In effect and broadly it may be stated that anything said by a party may be used against him as an admission, provided it exhibits the quality of inconsistency with the facts now asserted by him in pleadings or testimony. It follows that the subject of an admission is not limited to facts against the party's interest at the time; for though the weight of credit to be given to such statements is increased where the fact stated is against the person's interest at the time that circumstance has no bearing upon their admissibility (2) An admission in the legal is not always an admission in the popular sense i e a statement which at the time it was made was against the real or apparent interest of the party (3) But an admission may also state facts against interest as where it admits a claim or a fact relied on by the adversary In such case the admission is used as evidence of the truth of its contents and as possessing an evidentiary force per se. It is then equivalent to affirmative testimony for the party offering it Admissions in such cases have a testimonial value independent of the contradiction and being the statements of persons not witnesses form exceptions to the hearsay rule. In this sense it has been said that —"The general rule is, that every material fact must be proved by testimony on oath There is an exception to that rule, namely, that the declarations of a party to the record, or of one identified in interest with him, are as against such party, admissible in evidence."(4) The statements which are the subject of these sections are admitted firstly, as infirmative of the case made; and secondly, when amounting to proof for the adversary because in respect of the persons making them there is some security for their accuracy which countervails the general objections to hearsay testimony. An admission is only relevant against the person who makes it or his representative in interest,(5) this rule being only a branch of the general one that a man shall not be allowed to make evidence for himself.(6) But as universal experience testifies that, as men consult their own interest, and seek their own advantage, whatever they say or admit against their interest or advantage may, with tolerable safety, be taken to be true as against them, at least until the contrary appears.(7)

Admissions

An admission has been defined to be a statement which suggests any inference as to any fact in issue or relevant fact, and which is made by any of the

---

(1) Wigmore, Ev., § 1048, et seq

(2) Ib

(3) Thipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 192

(4) Sparge v. Brown, 9 B. & C., 935, 938 per Bayley, J.

(5) S 21 and note thereto, post, the exceptions to this rule are contained in s. 21, cls (1), (2). The admissibility of books of account under s. 34 is also an instance of statements made by a person being offered on his own behalf An admission may further be proved on behalf of a party if it is relevant otherwise than as an admission, s 21, cl. (3)

(6) Best, Ev., § 519

(7) Best, Ev., § 519; Taylor, Ev., § 723

persons and under the circumstances in the following sections mentioned.(1) In English law, the term admission is usually applied to civil transactions, and to those statements of fact in criminal cases which do not amount to acknowledgments of guilt or which do not suggest the inference of guilt; the term 'confession' being generally restricted to acknowledgments of guilt or statements which suggest the inference of guilt.(2)

Besides admissions written and oral, a party may make admissions by his conduct. These are not mentioned in the seventeenth section, as they have already been dealt with in the eighth section, ante. Admissions by assumed character, conduct, silence, and the like, are not exceptions to the hearsay rule; they are usually original circumstantial evidence of the facts to which they relate.(3) Analogous to admissions by conduct is the rule which treats as admissions by a party statements made in his presence and not denied by him; provided the circumstances were such as to make a denial necessary or appropriate (4)

Confessio

A confession is, "an admission made at any time by a person charged with a crime, stating or suggesting the inference that he committed that crime."(5) There is a distinction between admissions and confessions in the Act(6) which, however, as it does not contain a definition of the word "confession," does not itself declare in what that distinction exists. The nature of this distinction has, however, been the subject of judicial consideration in the Bombay and Allahabad High Courts. In the first place, as sections 17—31 deal with admissions generally, and include sections 24—30 which treat of confessions as distinguished from admissions, it would appear that confessions are a species of which an admission is the genus. All admissions are not confessions but all confessions are admissions. Thus a statement amounting under sections 24—30 to a confession, in a criminal proceeding, may be an admission under the twenty-first section, in a civil proceeding So statements made to the police by accused persons as to the ownership of property which is the subject-matter of the proceedings against them, although inadmissible as evidence against them at the trial for the offence with which they are charged, are admissible as evidence with regard to the ownership of the property in an enquiry under section 523 of the Criminal Procedure Code (7) The present portion of the Act adopts the term "Admission" as the generic term for both civil and criminal proceedings, and uses the particular term "confession" for admissions(a) in criminal proceedings ,(b) made by a particular person, viz, an accused person ,(8) (c) of the particular character denoted in the following definition "A confession is an admission made at any time by a person charged with a crime

---

(1) S. 17, post, see Wills, Ev., 101

(2) Taylor, Ev, 724

(3) Best, Ev, American Notes, p 488, Norton, Ev., 142 As to admissions by conduct, see Powell, Ev, 277, Taylor, Ev, § 804, s 8, ante. Confessions, like admissions in civil cases, may be inferred from the conduct of the prisoner and from his silent acquiescence in the statements of others made in his presence, respecting himself; Taylor, Ev, § 907.

(4) Best, Ev., ib, see notes to s 8, ante.

(5) Steph Dig, Art. 21, the Act contains no definition of a "confession."

(6) R. v. Macdonald, 10 B L R, App, 2 (1872), per Phear, J., R v Dabee Pershad, 6 C., 530 (1881), R. v Meher Ali, 15 C, 389, 593 (1888) R v. Nilmadhub, 15 C, 595 (1888), per Petheram, C J. —"If the contents of the document did not amount to a confession, the document itself would be relevant as an admission under s 21," ib, 607. None, however, of the above cases indicate the difference between "admissions' and' confessions" See as to this R v Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 539 (1884); R v Jagrup, 7 A, 646 (1885), R. v. Pandharinath, 6 B, 34 (1881), R v Nana 14 B, 260, 263 (1884)

(7) R v. Tribhowan Manekchand, 9 B., 131, 134 (1884).

(8) R. v. Tribhowan Manekchand, 9 B, 131, 134, R. v. Jagrup, 7 A., 646, 648 (1885).

(a) stating or (b) suggesting the inference that he committed that crime."(1) Therefore not only statements which amount to a direct acknowledgment of guilt [illegible] h, although they fall short of guilt. All inculpatory such as fall short of being guilt follows (2) A statement which is intended by the maker to be self-exculpatory may be nevertheless an admission of an incriminating circumstance ;(3) the factor determining whether a statement amounts to a confession or not being not the motive of the party making it, but the fact that it leads to an inference of guilt. A "confession" is a statement which it is proposed to prove against a person accused of an offence to establish that offence ,(4) while under the term "admission" are comprised all other statements amounting to admissions within the meaning of the seventeenth and eighteenth sections, ante. Statements by way of confession which are excluded by sections 14—30 are inadmissible under the eighth section, ante This latter section, therefore, in so far as it admits a statement as included in the word "conduct," must be read in connection with the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections, and cannot admit a statement as evidence which would be shut out by these sections.(5) As in the case of admissions in civil suits, the principle upon which the reception of confessions depends is the presump- [illegible] terest and In such If prisoners really voluntarily confess, their confessions are the best possible evidence against them ; and a verdict based on voluntary confessions is just as good as a verdict based in the testimony of credible witnesses.(8)

But self-harming evidence is not always receivable in criminal cases as it is in civil. There is this condition precedent to its admissibility that the party against whom it is adduced must have supplied it voluntarily or at least freely.(9)

A prisoner may be convicted on his own uncorroborated confession.(10) But in order to support a conviction the admission by the prisoner must be an

---

(1) Steph Dig, Art. 21, adopted and followed in R v Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 539 (1884), R v. Nana, 14 B, 260, 263, F B. (1889), R v Kangal Mali, Cr Ref., 30 of 1905 Cal. H C, 18 Sept., 1905, R. v. Jagrup, 7 A, 646 (1885) [In this last case Straight, J, was of opinion that the word "confession" cannot be construed as including a mere inculpatory admission which falls short of being an admission of guilt, but he also added that he did not find anything in Mr. Stephen's definition at variance with the view he took. It may, however, be pointed out that the rule contended for is not that every inculpatory statement is a confession, but only such as fall short of being an admission of guilt and from which an inference of guilt follows. As to "plenary" and "not plenary" statements, see Best, Ev, § 524]: see also R v. Pandharinath, 6 B, 34 (1881)

(2) Haliman v. R., 31 P. L. R., 1905; 2 Cr. L. J., 230, and see notes to s. 25, post.

(3) R v. Pandharinath, 6 B., 34, 37 (1881)

(4) R. v. Tribhovan Manekchand, 9 B, 131, 134 (1884), it is "an admission of a criminating circumstance, on which the prosecution mainly relies." R. v. Pandharinath, 6 B., 34, 37 (1881); R v Nana, 14 B, 260, 263 (1889).

(5) R v Nana, 14 B, 260 (1889), see also R. v Jora Hasji, 11 Bom. H C R., 24 (1874); R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B, 12 (1878); and s. 82, post

(6) Taylor, Ev, § 865, Best, Ev, § 524; Phillips & Arnold, Ev, 401, R v. Yellaraddi, 6 Bom. L. R, 773, in which also the question of the importance to be attached to variations in confessional statements is discussed"

(7) "In criminal cases a deliberate confession carries with it a greater probability of truth than an admission in civil cases, the consequences being more serious and penal" Phillips & Arnold, Ev, 402. In R v Baddry, 2 Den at p 446, Erle, J, said, "I am of opinion that when a confession is well proved it is the best evidence that can be procured"

(8) R v. Wuzir Mundul, 25 W. R, Cr., 25, 26 (1876)

(9) Best, Ev, § 551.

(10) R v. Ranjeet Bonial, 6 W. R, Cr., 73 (1866); R v. Hyder Jolaha, ib, 83 (1866); or on his own admission coupled with the evidence, R v. Kallychurn, 7 W. R, Cr., 59 (1867); as to the effect of extra-judicial confession, v. post admission of guilt. So where some prisoners during a preliminary investigation stated that the crime was committed by other persons and that any share they had in it was under compulsion, it was pointed out that, though such a statement contained an important admission, it was not an admission of guilt, and that upon such a statement alone no person ought to be convicted.(1) Confessions have been divided by English text-writers into two classes, namely, judicial and extra-judicial. Judicial confessions are those which are made before the Magistrate, or in Court, in the due course of legal proceedings. Either of these is sufficient to support a conviction, though followed by a sentence of death,—they both being deliberately and solemnly made under the protecting caution and oversight of the Judge.(2) Extra-judicial confessions are those which are made by the party elsewhere than before a Magistrate, or in Court; this term embracing not only express confessions of crime, but all those admissions and acts of the accused, from which guilt may be implied. All voluntary confessions of this kind are receivable in evidence on being proved like other facts.(3) Whether, however, extra-judicial confessions, if uncorroborated, are under English law of themselves sufficient for conviction, has been doubted. In each of the English cases usually cited in favour of the sufficiency of this evidence, some corroborating circumstance will be found.(4) On this point, as on others concerning the weight to be assigned to evidence this Act leaves the discretion of the Courts unfettered ,(5) but the Court will, it is apprehended, adopt, as a matter of practice and prudence, at any rate in all but exceptional cases, that view which regards such confessions, when uncorroborated, as insufficient, an opinion which "certainly best accords with the humanity of the criminal law," and with the great degree of caution applied in receiving and weighing the evidence of confessions in other cases. Moreover, it seems countenanced by approved writers on this branch of the law.(6) Further, the words actually used by an accused, who is said to have confessed, ought to be ascertained. The Court should not accept merely the conclusions at which the witnesses, deposing to a confession, themselves arrived, from the answers which the accused gave to questions put by them.(7) As to retracted confessions, see note to s. 24, post.

Persons by whom admissions may be made.

to the proceeding.(8) And a party admissions of the following persons ; ;(9) (c) a person who has a proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter of the suit (10) (d) a predecessor in title or a person from whom the party to the suit has derived his interest ; (11) (e) a person whose position it is necessary to prove in a suit when the statement would be relevant in a suit brought by or against himself ,(12) (f) a referee, or a person to whom a party to the suit has expressly referred for information.(13) Generally with respect to the person whose admissions may be received, the doctrine is, that the declarations of a party to the record or of one identified in interest with him are as against such party receivable in evidence.(14)

---

(1) R v Kristo Mundul, 7 W R , Cr , 8 (1867)

(2) Taylor, Ev , § 866 , v ante , R v Bhuttun Rajwar, 12 W R , Cr , 49 (1869); as to the effect of judicial confessions and as to retracted confessions, v. s 24, post

(3) Taylor, Ev , § 867 , R v. Gopeenath, 13 W R , 69 (1870), [a confession made to a private individual may be evidence against the prisoner if proved by the person before whom the confession was made], R. v Mohan Lal, 4 A , 46, 94 (1881); R. v. Bysago Noshyo, 8 W R , Cr , 28 (1877)

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 868

(5) Field, Ev , 151 , The report of the case there cited in this connection [R. v Jhurree, 7 W. R.,Cr , 41 (1867), (a voluntary and genuine confession is legal and sufficient proof of guilt) does not state the nature of the confession

(6) Taylor, Ev , § 868

(7) R v Soobjan, 10 B L R , 332, 335 (1873), R v Mohan Lal, 4 A , 46, 49 (1881)

(8) S 18, post

(9) Id

(10) Id

(11) Id

(12) S 19, post

(13) S 20, post see notes to ss 18—20, post.

(14) Taylor, Ev , § 740, Spargo v. Brown, 9 B. & C , 938

But if they proceed from a stranger they are in general inadmissible.(1) The act has rendered such admissions receivable in the two cases mentioned in the nineteenth and twentieth sections, post.(2)

Subject to the provisions of the thirtieth section relating to confessions by persons who are being tried jointly for the same offence, the general rule is that an accused person can only be affected by the admissions or confessions of himself, and not by those of agents, accomplices or strangers;(3) unless made in his presence and assented to by him.(4) Nor, of course, can such confessions be used in his favour. As to admissions by prosecutors, v. post, notes to ss. 17—20.

Time when, and persons to whom, admissions may be made

When a party sues, or is sued, personally, any admission made by him on any former occasion may be given in evidence against him. Such admissions may have been made by him while a minor For though a minor, as he cannot appoint an agent,(5) cannot be bound by the admissions of an agent purporting to act for him, yet admissions made by the minor himself may be proved in an action brought against him after obtaining his majority.(6) When a party sues or is sued, personally, an admission made by him on a former occasion, while sustaining a representative character, may also be given in evidence against him. Thus where a person, when defending a suit as guardian for a minor, made an affidavit of certain facts, this affidavit was held to be evidence against that person of the facts sworn to in a subsequent action against him personally.(7) But admissions made by person sued or suing in a representative character are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character;(8) such persons therefore cannot affect the party represented by their admissions made before sustaining, or after they have ceased to sustain their representative character (9) Further statements by a party interested in the subject-matter, or by a person from whom interest is derived, must have been made during the continuance of the interest.(10) and statements by the persons mentioned in the nineteenth section must have been made whilst the person making them occupied the position or was subject to the liability, in the section mentioned.(11)

So far as its admissibility in evidence is concerned, it is in general immaterial to whom an admission is made.(12) Thus an admission made to a stranger is as receivable as one made to an opponent. "It has indeed been held that, in order to render an account stated binding on a party, the admission of liability must be made to the opposite party or his agent,(13) but this only refers to

---

(1) Id; Eurough v. White, 4 B & C., 328

(2) As to when admissions proceeding from strangers are admissible, see Taylor, Ev., §§ 750—765, 740, v. post, the admissibility, however, of the evidence in the case of referees may be said to be grounded on the principle of agency, the party referring to another makes that other his agent for the purpose of making the particular admission. Wills, Ev., 112.

(3) Taylor, Ev., §§ 904—906; 3 Russ. Cr., 485—491, Roscoe, Cr., Ev., 49—51; see as to admissions by agents, post; and as to admissions by co-proprietors, v. s. 10, ante.

(4) R v. Moulton Cox, 1 F. & F., 90; R. v. Mallory, 15 Cox, 456, 458; Taylor, Ev., § 907

(5) Act IX of 1872 (Contract), s. 183; and see s. 11, id; v. post.

(6) O'Neill v. Read, 7 Ir. L. R., 434, cited in Field, Ev., 161. "such admissions might relate to the receipt of goods or to other matters, but would not of course, affect the question of liability in cases in which a minor would not be liable on a contract unless such contract were ratified by him after attaining his majority" Field, Ev., 163; see Dharmaji Vaman v Gurrar Shrinivas, 10 Bom. H. C R., 311 (1873)

(7) Beasley v Magrath, 2 Sch. & Lef., 31, 34; Taylor, Ev., § 755; Stanton v Percival, 5 H. L. C., 257.

(8) S. 18, post, Wills, Ev., 119

(9) See Steph Dig., Art 16, and post.

(10) S. 18, post.

(11) S 19, post.

(12) Best, Ev., § 528.

(13) Breckon v. Smith, 1 A & E., 489; Hughes v Thorpe, 5 M. & W., 667, Bates v. Townley, 2 Exch., 156; Taylor, Ev., § 799.

the effect of the admission, not to its admissibility."(1) Even an admission made in confidence to a legal adviser or a wife is receivable, if proved by a third person.(2) So private memoranda never communicated to the opposite side or to third persons are evidence against a party ,(3) as are admissions made to himself in mere soliloquy.(4) But what a person has been heard to say while talking in his sleep seems not to be legal evidence against him, however valuable it may be as indicative evidence; for here the suspension of the faculty of judgment may fairly be presumed complete.(5)

So with regard to voluntary confessions, subject to the provisions of the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections post (relating to confessions made to, and whilst in the custody of a police officer) it is in general immaterial to whom they have been made. So what the accused has been overheard muttering to himself, or saying to his wife or any other person in confidence will be receivable in evidence provided that, in the latter case, it is proved by some person other than the wife, counsel, or solicitor.(6) An admission of crime, when fairly made after due warning, is not inadmissible simply because,at the time it was made, no formal accusation had been made against the party making it (7)

Nature and form of admission

In respect of the nature of admissions no difference exists, in regard to their inadmissibility, between direct admissions and those which are incidental, or made in some other connection, or involved in the admission of some other fact.(8) So far, at least, as its admissibility is concerned, the form of an admission is in general immaterial.(9) Thus admissions are receivable which are made parol, or are contained in books of account or letters ,(10) documents (e.g., a map) filed as correct in a former proceeding ,(11) rough draft of a plaint previously filed,(12) depositions,(13) verified plaints,(14) or verified petitions,(15) or written statements or answers to interrogatories, affidavits, and the like, in former suits ,(16) for a statement made by a party in another suit may clearly be used as an admission within the meaning of the eighteenth section (17) Entries in books of account, though proved not to have been regularly kept, may

---

(1) Best, Ev., § 528

(2) Taylor, Ev , § 881 [see ss 122, 126—129, post].

(3) Bruce v. Garden, 17 W R (Engl), 990 , Whart., Ev , § 1123

(4) R v. Simons, 6 C & P , 540 , Best, Ev , § 521.

(5) Best, Ev , § 529 , R v Elizabeth Sippets, Kent, Summ Ass , 1839, cited, ib , Gore v Gibson, 13 M & W , 623, 627.

(6) See Taylor, Ev , § 881, and cases cited ante , see ss 25, 26, post , see also R v Sageena, 7 W R , Cr , 56 (1867)

(7) R. v. Ram Churn, 4 W R , Cr , 10 (1865)

(8) Taylor, Ev , § 800

(9) Wills, Ev , 102, Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 197 , Best Ev., § 521 , as to admissions "without prejudice," see s 23, post.

(10) Rai Sri Kishen v Rai Hari Kishen, 5 M I A., 432, 443 (1853) , R v Hanmanta, 1 B , 610, 617 (1877) , v post , a letter containing an admission does not require a stamp before it can be admitted in evidence , Situl Pershad v Monohur Das, 23 W. R , 325 (1875) , see also Narain Coomary v Ram Krishna, 5 C , 864, where an entry, showing the extent of the holding and the amount of the rent, made in a book belonging to the lessor, and signed by the lessee, was held relevant as an admission, though neither stamped nor registered

(11) Huronath Sircar v Preonath Sircar, 7 W. R , 249 (1867)

(12) Byathamma v Arulla, 15 M , 19 (1891).

(13) Obhoy Gobind v Beejoy Govind, 9 W R , 162 (1869) , Soojan Bibee v Achmut Ali, 14 B. L. R , App , 3 (1874) , s c 21 W R , 414 (v post); and see cases cited post, passim

(14) Girish Chunder v Shama Churn, 15 W R , 437 (1871)

(15) Ib , Gour Lall v Mohesh Narain, 14 W. R , 484 (1871) , and see post Mohun Sahoo v Chutto Mouar, 21 W. R , 34 (1874), as to statement s filed in Court in name of pardanashin, see Asmutoonissa Bibee v Alla Hafiz, 8 W R , 468 (1867).

(16) Field, Ev , 124 , Hurish Chunder v Prosunno Coomar, 22 W R , 303 (1874) , Bhugmunt Narain v Lall Jha, Marshall, 49 (1862)

(17) Hurish Chunder v Prosunno Coomar, 22 W R , 303 (1874) , as to pleadings in the same proceedings, v post As to the admissibility in England of pleadings in other actions, see Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 216

yet be relevant as admissions.(1) Admissions may be also contained in recitals and descriptions in deeds;(2) horoscopes;(3) receipts, or mere acknowledgment given for goods or money, whether on separate papers, or indorsed on deeds, or on negotiable securities, banker's pass-books; accounts rendered, such as a solicitor's bill; sworn inventories and declarations by executors which operate as an admission of assets,(4) and survey maps (5) The omission of a claim by an insolvent in a schedule of the debts due to him given on oath is an admission that it is not due (6) A statement in a bill of sale is evidence against those who are parties to it, the seller and the purchaser and the person who purchased from such last-mentioned purchaser (7) Statem[illegible] a rent-suit under Act X of 1859, which do[illegible] the sixtieth section, cannot be relied on as a [illegible] instrument may operate as an admi[illegible] but not one which is not [illegible]turn made to a collector [illegible] is an admission as to the [illegible] upon the occupant and all who claim under him.(12) As to admissions in dowl fehrists, or in notices to enhance rent, see cases noted below.(13) Though a judgment is generally irrelevant, as between strangers, it may be relevant as between strangers if it is an admission.(14) Thus where A sued B, a carrier, for goods delivered by A to B, a judgment recovered by B against a person to whom he had delivered the goods, was held to be relevant as an admission by B that he had them (15) "It is true that a record is sometimes admitted in evidence, in favour of a stranger against one of the parties, as containing a solemn admission by such party in a judicial proceeding with respect to a certain fact But this is no real exception to the rule requiring mutuality, because the record is admitted in this case not as a judgment conclusively establishing the fact, but as the deliberate declaration [illegible] of the party himself that the fact was [illegible] ing to t[illegible]

[illegible] grandfather [illegible] the latter's brother A, and that he, the [illegible] was consequently entitled to a moiety of the family property as representative of A, the other moiety going to [illegible] senting K's branch, a judgment and other docum[illegible] by K, in which suit the adm[illegible] evidence ag[illegible] third partie[illegible] of the [illegible] Thoug[illegible]

(1) R [illegible] (1871), post.

(2) Taylor, Ev., 91—100; 839, Roscoe, N. P., Ev., 76; Powell, Ev., 249—252, v. post; Konwar Doorganath v. Ram Chunder, 4 I. A., 52 (1876)

(3) Raja Goundan v. Raja Goundan, 17 M., 134 (1893)

(4) Taylor, Ev., §§ 859, 860

(5) See notes to s. 36, post, and cases there cited

(6) Taylor, Ev., § 804; Nicholls v. Downes, M. & Rob., 13; Hart v. Neuman, 3 Camp., 13

(7) Sooyan Bibee v. Achmut Ali, supra.

(8) Pogla Mahtoon v. Goorie Baboo, 24 W. R., 114 (1875)

(9) Whart., § 1124, cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 193—194.

(10) Act II of 1899 (Stamp), s. 31

(11) Ib. cl. (2), other than proceedings under Ch. XII (Disputes as to immovable property), Ch. XXXVI (Maintenance of wives and children) of Act V of 1898 (Criminal Procedure)

(12) Atudh Beharee v. Ram Rai, 18 W. R., 105 (1872)

(13) Gunga Pershad v. Gogun Sing, 3 C., 322 (1877), see also Narain Coomary v. Ram Krishna, 5 C., 864 (1880), Judoonath v. Rajah Baroda, 22 W. R., 220 (1874)

(14) Steph. Dig., Art. 41

(15) Tiley v. Cowling, 1 Ld. Ry., 744, s. c., 3 N. P., 243; Steph. Dig., Art. 44, illust. (e); Taylor, Ev., § 1891

(16) Taylor, Ev., § 1891

(17) Krishnasami v. Rajagopala, 18 M., 73, 77, 78 (1893) considered in evidence in a civil case,(1) a plea of guilty in the Criminal Court may be so considered as evidence of an admission.(2) As to admissions made in pleadings, see notes to the fifty-eighth section, post.

Hearsay and opinion.

Personal knowledge is not required. "An admission is receivable although its weight may be slight, which is founded on hearsay,(3) or consists merely of the declarant's opinion or belief (4) but where the admission is an inference from facts, not personally [illegible] inference and look to the [illegible] ed,' without the addition [illegible] admission."(6) The ground appears to be that even if a party has not personal knowledge, the admissions would ordinarily not be made except on evidence which satisfies the party who is making them that they are true.(7)

Effect and circumstances of admissions.

An admission, merely as an admission, is not conclusive against the person who makes it.(8) The latter may show that he was mistaken, or was not telling the truth; he may diminish the importance to be attached to it in any way he can; he is not precluded from contradicting it. so far as the admission is merely an admission, he may induce the Court to disbelieve or disregard it if he can.(9) The circumstances under which an admission was made may always, therefore, be proved to impeach, or (since the weight of an admission depends on these circumstances) to enhance its credibility.(10) An admission, however, may operate as an estoppel in which case the person who made it is not permitted to deny it.(11) As to the effect of admissions as dispensing with proof, see the fifty-eighth section, post. There may be a withdrawal of any gratuitous admission unless there should be some obligation not to withdraw it (12) According to English law admissions obtained under compulsion are evidence against a party if the compulsion was legal (e.g., evidence in the action, answers to interrogatories, and the like), but not if it was illegal (13) Under this Act the fact of compulsion would affect the weight of the evidence only. As to admissions made "without prejudice," see the tweny-third section, post. With regard to the effect of confessions both judicial and extra-judicial, v. ante, p. 210. Confessions are irrelevant in criminal proceedings if made under the circumstances mentioned in the twenty-fourth section, post, unless they come within the provisions of the twenty-eighth section But if no inducement (within the meaning of the twenty-fourth section) has been held out relating to the charge it matters not, as far as admissibility is concerned, in what way a confession has been

(1) i.e., to establish the truth of the facts upon which it was rendered, see notes to s. 43, post

(2) Sumbo Chunder v Modhoo Kyburt, 10 W. R., 56 (1868), Field, Ev., 338

(3) Wigmore, Ev., § 1053, Re Perton, 53 L. T., 707 (1885) (statement of a person as to his illegitimacy, see also R v Walker, Cox, 99, in Taylor, Ev., § 737 (1885), the point is treated as doubtful, as to statements by an agent containing hearsay or opinions, see The Actaeon, 1 Spinks, E. & A., 176, The Solway, 10 P. D., 137

(4) Doe v Steel, 3 Camp., 115

(5) Bulley v Bulley, L. R., 9 Ch., 739, 747

(6) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 196, Wills, Ev., 108, 1 Daniel's Ch. Pr., 6th Ed., 575, Taylor, Ev., § 737; Trimblestown v Kemmis, 9 C. & F., 780, 784—786; Roe v Ferrars, 2 B. & P., 542, in which case it was held that if the defendant give in evidence an answer in Chancery of the plaintiff, it will not entitle the plaintiff to avail himself of any matters contained in such answer which are only stated as hearsay, but see Taylor, Ev., § 737 as to admissions, which operate by way of estoppel, see s. 115, post

(7) Kitchen v Robbins, 29 Ga., 713, 716 (Amer.), cited in Wigmore, Ev., § 1053

(8) S. 31, post

(9) See Cunningham, Ev., 23, 24

(10) See notes to s. 31, post, "Admissions depend much upon the circumstances under which they are made," R v Simmonsto, 1 C. & K., 164, 166, per Wightman, J.

(11) Ss. 31, 115—117, post

(12) Mahommad Imam v Husain Khan, 26 C., 81 (1898)

(13) Taylor, Ev., §§ 798—799, Roscoe, N. P., Ev., 63 obtained, though of course the manner in which it has been procured may affect its weight.(1)

Matters provable by admission

"Admissions are receivable to prove matters of law, or mixed law and fact, though (unless amounting to estoppels) these are generally of little weight, being necessarily founded on mere opinion. Thus, a defendant's admission that his trade was a nuisance has been received.(2) So a prisoner's admisson of a former valid marriage is some, though not sufficient, evidence to support a conviction for bigamy.(3) Matters of fact simply may always be proved in this manner. Thus, a wife's admission of adultery, though uncorroborated, has on more than one occasion been held sufficient evidence, where considered trustworthy, upon which to grant a divorce,(4) though if corroboration is available(5) it must be produced.(6) But, contrary to the English rule, oral admissions are not receivable to prove the contents of documents, except where secondary evidence is admissible or the genuineness of a document produced is in question (7) The execution of documents (whether attested or not) which are not required by law to be attested may be proved by admission or otherwise (8) And even in the case of documents required by law to be attested, the admission of a party to an attested document of its execution by himself is sufficient proof of its execution as against him.(9) Admissions may even sometimes be received as to matters protected by privilege, provided they are proved by third person (v. ante).

The whole admission must be considered

The whole statement containing the admission must be taken together, (10) for though some part of it may be favourable to the party, and the object is only

---

(1) See Taylor, Ev., § 881, s 29, post, and notes thereto

(2) R. v. Neville, 1 Peak, N P., 125, see also as to this case, R v Fairie, 8 E & B., 486 but see also note (6), post

(3) R v. Savage, 13 Cox, 178, [sic., scd., q. whether reference intended is not, R v Flaherty, 2 C & K., 782, R. v Savage, overrules the previous decision of R v Newton, 2 M & Rob., 503, 1 C & K., 164, s. c. nom. R v Simmonsto, in R v Philp, 1 Moo C C., 263, however, a declaration of the prisoner, showing who were (according to his own belief, his co-partners was rejected when by reason of the invalidity of the document evidencing the transfer of their shares, their legal title to them could not be established

(4) Robinson v Robinson, 1 S & T., 362, Williams v. Williams, L. R., 1 P. & D., 29 Getty v Getty (1907), p 334.

(5) White v White, 62 L. T., 663

(6) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 196, in regard to admissions involving matters of law (referred to in the above citation from Phipson, Ev.), it is said in Phillips, Ev., p. 344, 10th Ed.:—"Where admissions involve matters of law, as well as of matters of fact, they are obviously in many instances entitled to very little weight, and in some cases, they have been altogether rejected" Thus it has been held, that the discharge of a defendant by a Court of Quarter Sessions, under an Insolvent Act, could not be established by proof of an acknowledgment of the discharge by the plaintiff himself; for the discharge might have been irregular and void, or might have been mistaken by the Plaintiff; Scott v. Clare, 3 Camp., 236, Summersett v Adamson, 1 Bing., 73, Morris v Miller, Burr., 2057 As to admissions and estoppels on points of law, see Tagore v Tagore, I A., Sup. Vol., 71 (1872), Surendra Keshav v Doorgasundari, 19 I A., 115, 116 (1892), Gopee Lall v. Mussl. Sree Chandraolee, 11 B L R., 395 (1872), and Dungariya v Nand Lal, 3 All L J., 53, an admisson on a point of Law is not a "thing" within the meaning of s 115

(7) S 22, post, as to written admissions, see s 65, cl (h), post.

(8) S 72, post, see Taylor Ev., §§ 414, 1843; Common Law Procedure Act, 1854 s 26

(9) S 70, post, Taylor, Ev., §§ 1848, 1853

(10) Taylor Ev., § 725, Wills, Ev., 109; Soolan Ali v Chand Bibee, 9 W R., 130 (1868), explained in Shaikh Shurfuraz v Shaikh Dhunoo, 16 W R., 257 (1871) [a party cannot select particular passages and read them without the context]; Jodunath Roy v Raja Buroda, 22 W R., 220 (1874); Nusmut Ullah v Hummut Ali, 22 W. R., 519 (1874), Pulin Behartee v Watson & Co., 9 W. R., 100 (1868), explained in Baikanthanath Kumar v. Chandra Mohan, I. B. L R (A C) 131, 10 W. R., 190, Radha Charan v Chander Monee, 9 W. R., 208 (1868), Rajah Nilmoney v Ramanougra Roy, 7 W. R., 29 (1867), Tarinee Pershad v. Dwarkanath, 15 W. R., 451 (1871). [A plaintiff abandoning his own case and falling back on the admissions of the defendant, is bound to take those admissions as they stand in their entirety, by so taking them he would on his own part concede the truth of those statements contained in the admissions of the defendant other than the particular statements on which he specifically relied:

to ascertain what he has conceded against himself, and what may therefore be presumed to be true, yet, unless t[illegible] part which is evidence against hi[illegible] whole of what he said at the same [illegible] given in evidence, it does not follow that all the parts of the statement should be regarded as equally deserving of credit; but the Court must consider, under the circumstances, how much of the entire statement they deem worthy of belief, including as well the facts asserted by the party in his own favour, as those making against him (2) The rule applies equally to written, as to verbal, admissions.(3) Thus where in a suit for rent at an enhanced rate after notice, the plaintiff set forth that the defendant and his predecessors had been holding the tenure without any change in the rent; but alleged also that the tenure had its origin at a period long after the permanent settlement, it was held that the defendant was not at liberty to avail himself to such portion of the admission as afforded a ground for the presumption of uniform payment from the permanent settlement without accepting the latter part of the admission which rebutted such presumption.(4) The principle upon which the rule is grounded is, that if a party makes a qualified statement, that statement cannot be used against him apart from that qualification, an unfair use is not to be made of a party's statement, by trying to convert into a particular admission by him that which he never intended to be such an admission (5) But though it is the rule that an admission which is qualified in its terms, must be ordinarily accepted as a whole, or not taken at all as evidence against a party, yet when a party makes separate and distinct allegations without any qualification, this rule does not apply. It is by no means the case that no portion of a party's statement can by any possibility be given in evidence against him, without every portion of the statement from the beginning to the end being also read.(6) A distinction must also be drawn between the case where an admission by one party has merely the effect of relieving the other party from giving proof of a particular fact, and the case where one party, failing to adduce independent evidence in his favour, attempts to rely on the statement of the other party as an admission In the latter case, as the party relies on the admission, he must take the whole of it together, in the former case, the one party cannot be said to use the admission of the other as evidence at all. Under the Civil Procedure Code, "it is the duty of the Court to examine the written statements in order to see on what points the parties are at issue, to lay down the issues and to receive and consider the evidence adduced on the points in dispute, but the Court will not allow the parties to waste its time by producing evidence to establish that which has never been contradicted, and therefore to lay down that when a defendant admits any one fact contained in the

Ishan Chunder v Haran Sirdar, 11 W R., 535 (1869), Lallah Prohloo v Sheonath, W R., 1864 Act X, 27, Konwur Doorgunath v Ram Chunder, 4 I A, 52 (1876)

(1) Taylor, Ev, § 725; Thomson v Austen, 2 D & R, 361, Fletcher v Froggatt, 2 C & P, 566, Cobbett v Grey, 4 Ex R, 729

(2) Taylor, Ev, § 725, and cases there cited, Rajah Nilmoney v Ramanoograh Roy, 7 W R, 29 (1867), (the Court is not bound to believe the whole of the statement], Soolan Ali v Chand Bibee, 9 W. R., 130 (1868), Shaikh Shurfuraz v. Shaikh Dhunoo, 16 W. R, 257 (1871) sd], Stanton v Percival, 5 H L C, 293; Ishan Chunder v. Haran Sirdar, 11 W. R, 535 (1869) [For instance if the Judge upon the evidence really believes that the payments credited in a plaintiff's book were made, although he disbelieves the entry as to the amount of debits, there is nothing inequitable in his giving the defendant the benefit of the payments] But though the Judge may believe one part and disbelieve the other, he ought not to do so without some good reason, Lallah Prohloo v Sheonath, W R., 1864, Act X, 27

(3) Taylor, Ev, § 726.

(4) Judoonath Roy v Rajah Baroda, 22 W R., 220 (1874)

(5) Baikunthanath Kumar v Chandra Mohan, 1 B L R (A C), 133 (1868), 10 W R., 190, explaining Poolin Beharee v Watson & Co, 9 W. R., 190 (1868)

(6) Ib, see s. 30, post; and notes thereto.

written statement of the plaintiff, and thereby excludes independent evidence thereof, he is entitled to say that the plaintiff has relied on his statement as evidence, and that he (the defendant) is, in consequence, in a position to claim that the whole of it may be read as evidence in his own favour, is a proposition which cannot be maintained. If a party wishes to give evidence in his own favour, of course it is in his power to come forward like any other witness and subject himself to examination and cross-examination in open Court; but until he has subjected himself to cross-examination, no statement which he may volunteer can be used as any evidence in support of his own case, unless the right, so to use it, has accrued from the deliberate act of his adversary. A party cannot himself determine that his own statement shall be used as evidence in his favour."(1)

Weight to be given to admissions

As in the case of admissions in civil cases, admissions in criminal cases must be taken as a whole, and the general rule is that the whole of a confession must be given in evidence, and read and taken together. "There is no doubt that, if a prosecutor uses the declaration of a prisoner, he must take the whole of it together, and cannot select one part and leave another;(2) and, if there be either no other evidence in the case, or no other evidence incompatible with it, the declaration so adduced in evidence must be taken as true. But if, after the whole of the statement of the prisoner is given in evidence, the prosecutor is in a situation to contradict any part of it, he is at liberty to do so, and then the statement of the prisoner and the whole of the other evidence must be left to the jury for their consideration, precisely as in any other case where one part of the evidence is contradictory to another"(3) A confession is evidence for the prisoner as well as against him it must be taken altogether, but still the jury may, if they think proper, believe one part of it and disbelieve another. The Court is at liberty to disregard any self-exculpatory statements contained in the confession which it disbelieves (4)

"Evidence of oral admissions ought always to be received with great caution. Such evidence is necessarily subject to much imperfection and mistake; for either the party himself may have been misinformed, or he may not have clearly expressed his meaning, or the witness may have misunderstood him, or may purposely misquote the expression used It also sometimes happens that the witness, by unintentionally altering a few words will give an effect to the statement completely at variance with what the party actually said."(5) So where a plaintiff sued for a sum said to be due upon a settlement of account, and instead of producing and proving the account current between himself and the defendant produced evidence to prove the admission of the debt, the Privy

---

(1) Shaikh Shurfurat v. Shaikh Dhunoo, 16 W R, 257 (1871), per Ainslie, J

(2) R. v. Chokoo Khan, 5 W. R., Cr, 70 (1866), R. v. Sheikh Boodhoo, 8 W. R., Cr, 38 (1867), R v Gour Chand, 1 W. R, Cr, 17, 18 (1864); R v. Chullundee Poramanick, 3 W. R., Cr, 55, 56 (1856), R v. Beshor Bewa, 18 W. R., Cr, 29 (1872), R v. Nityo Gopal, 24 W. R, Cr., 80 (1875); Golole Chunder v. The Magistrate of Chittagong, 25 W. R., Cr., 15 (1876); [admission not amounting to confession of guilt]; R v. Sonaoollah, 25 W. R., Cr, 23, 24 (1876); R v. Dada Ana, 13 B, 452, 459, 479 (1889); "If one part of a conversation is relied on as proof of a confession of the crime, the prisoner has a right to lay before the Court the whole of what was said in that conversation, or at least so much as is explanatory of the part already proved, and perhaps, in favorem vitæ all that was related to the subject-matter in issue" The Queen's case, 2 Br & Bing, 297, as to distinct or opposing statements by the accused, see R v Soobjan, 10 B L R, 332 (1873), R v Nityo Gopal, 24 W. R, Cr, 80 (1875)

(3) R. v. Jones, 2 C & P, 606, per Bosanquet, J.

(4) R v Clewes, 4 C. & P, 221, 226, R. v. Dada Ana, supra at pp 459 479, R v Babaji, cited, ib, 479; R. v. Sonaullah, 25 W R., Cr, 23, 24 (1876); It may be that the Court would attach very little weight to the exculpatory parts; R v. Amrita Govinda 10 Bom H C R, 497, 500 (1873).

(5) Taylor, Ev., § 781

Council said: "They consider that it is a very dangerous thing to rest a judgment upon verbal admissions of a sum due, especially when there are other means of proving the case, if a true one."(1) But where an admission is deliberately made, and precisely identified, the evidence it affords is often of the most satisfactory nature.(2) Admissions depend very much upon the circumstances under which they are made.(3)

As in the case of admissions in civil proceedings, the evidence of oral confessions of guilt ought to be received with great caution.(4) But a deliberate and voluntary confession of guilt, if clearly proved, is among the most effectual proofs in the law; the degree of credit due to the confession must be estimated by the Court or jury according to the particular circumstances of each case (5) In trials by jury, it is the duty of the Judge to lay the confessions properly before the jury, pointing out the circumstances bearing for, and against, their value, but it is for the jury to form an opinion as to their weight.(6) "A judge, in fact, is hardly justified in treating a confession made by a prisoner before a Magistrate, as a mere piece of evidence which a jury may deal with in the same way as they would with the evidence of a witness of doubtful veracity. If a prisoner has confessed before a Magistrate, the attention of the jury should be drawn to the question whether there was any reason to suppose that that confession was made under any undue influence, and if there is no reason to suppose anything of the kind, the jury should be told so and advised that they may act upon it."(7) The infirmative hypotheses affecting self-criminative evidence have been in particular dealt with in the works of Bentham and Best.(8) False confessions are either the result of mistake (which may be of fact or of law) or are intentional. In the case of intentionally false confession the field of motive must be searched for such causes as mental and bodily torture, desire to stifle further inquiry: weariness of life, vanity, desire to benefit or injure others, and motives originating in the relation of the sexes. False confessions are not confined to cases in which there has really been a crime committed. Frequently such confessions have been made under hallucination of events which are impossible The above causes affect more or less every species of confessional evidence. But extra-judicial statements are subject to additonal infirmative hypotheses such as mendacity in the report, mis-interpretation of the language used and incompleteness of the statement.(9)

Admissio defined

17. An admission, is a statement, oral or documentary, which suggests any inference as to any fact in issue or relevant fact, and which is made by any of the persons, and under the circumstances, hereinafter mentioned.

Admissio by party proceedin or his age

18. Statements made by a party to the proceeding, or by an agent to any such party, whom the Court regards, under the circumstances of the case, as expressly or impliedly authorised by him to make them, are admissions.

---

(1) Lalla Sheopershad v Juggernath, 10 Ind Ap, 74, 79, 13 C L R, 271.

(2) Taylor, Ev, § 861.

(3) R v Simmonsto, 1 C & K, 164, 166 see notes to s 31, post

(4) Taylor, Ev, § 862

(5) Id, § 865, v. ante, Introduction See as to the degree of credit to be given to confessions Roscoe, Cr., Ev, 39, 1 Phillips & Arn, Ev, 402, 10th Ed, R v Dada Ana, 15 B. at p 480 (1889)

(6) R v Dada Ana, 15 B, 452, 461, 478 (1889) R v Mania Dayal, 10 B, 497, 502 (1886)

(7) R v Shahabut Sheikh, 13 W. R, Cr., 42, 43 (1870), per Norman, C J

(8) Best Ev, §§ 554—573, Norton, Ev., 155, 161

(9) Ib

By suitor in representative character

Statements made by parties to suits, suing or sued in a representative character, are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character;

Statements made by—

By party interested in subject-matter.

(1) Persons who have any proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter of the proceeding, and who make the statement in their character of persons so interested, or

By person from whom interest derived.

(2) Persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived their interest in the subject-matter of the suit.

are admissions, if they are made during the continuance of the interest of the persons making the statements,

Admissions by persons whose position must be proved as against party to suit.

19. Statements made by persons whose position or liability it is necessary to prove as against any party to the suit, are admissions, if such statements would be relevant as against such persons in relation to such position or liability in a suit or brought by against them, and if they are made whilst the person making them occupies such position or is subject to such liability.

Illustration

A undertakes to collect rents for B.

B sues A for not collecting rent due from C to B.

A denies that rent was due from C to B.

A statement by C that he owed B rent is an admission, and is a relevant fact as against A, if A denies that C did owe rent to B.

Admissions by persons expressly referred to by party to suit.

20. Statements made by persons to whom a party to the suit has expressly referred for information in reference to a matter in dispute are admissions.

Illustration.

The question is, whether a horse sold by A to B is sound.

A says to B—'Go and ask C, C knows all about it.' C's statement is an admission.

Principle.—The reception of admissions considered as exceptions to the rule against hearsay is grounded upon the fact that what a person says may be presumed to be true as against himself, and when not obnoxious to that rule upon the fact of inconsistency. But the very ground of this presumption excludes such an inference when the declarations of a person are tendered as evi-

When broadly stated in s is that the declarations of him, are as against such terest which determines the relevancy of the admission includes (a) agency:(1)

(1) Best, Ev., § 510, Wills, Ev., 102, but see also Taylor, Ev., § 723; v. ante, Introduction, and s. 21, post.

(2) In re Bailey, L. R. 17 (1892), 558, 564; Stanton v. Percival, 5 H. L. Cas., 273.

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 740.

(4) Ss. 18, 20; see post.

(b) proprietary or pecuniary interest,(1) which includes (a) joint interest,(2) (b) real as opposed to nominal interest;(3) (c) derivative interest.(4) Statements by strangers are not generally relevant.(5) But to this general rule also there are certain exceptions.(6) In respect of the admissions of agents, the general principle applies qui facit per alium facit per se. There is a legal identity of the agent with the principal If the principal constitutes the agent his representative in a certain transaction, whatever the latter does in the lawful prosecution of that transaction is the act of the principal.(7) Agency is the ground of reception of declarations by partners and joint contractors and referees.(8) In respect of declarations by persons having a proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter, the rule in respect of joint interest is that the admission of one party may be given in evidence against another, when the party against whom the admission is sought to be read has a joint interest with the party making the admission in the subject-matter in the thing to which the admission relates (9) This rule depends upon the legal principle that persons seised jointly are seised of the whole; each being seised of the whole, the admission of either is the admission of the other and may be produced in evidence against that other. That is applied from real property law to other matters (10) In the case of parties who have a real as opposed to a nominal interest, the law in regard to this source of evidence looks chiefly to the real parties in interest, and gives to their admissions the same weight as though they were parties to the record (11) Lastly, in the case of derivative interest, the party against whom the admission is sought to be used takes what he claims in the subject-matter from the person who made the admission as where it is sought to read against the heir an admission made by the ancestor. The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them is (as in the case of the other abovementioned exceptions) that they are identified in interest.(12) "He (the person against whom the admission is read) stands in the shoes of the party making the admission He can only claim what he claims because he derives title in that way, and therefore it is only fair, according to legal principles, that he should be bound by the admissions of him through whom he claims." (13)

s. 3 ("Document.")

s. 3 ("Fact in issue")

s. 3 ("Relevant fact.")

ss. 22, 65, cl. (b) (Admissions as to documents.)

s. 23 (Admissions "without prejudice")

ss. 24-30 (Rules with regard to admissions which amount to confessions)

s. 21 (Proof of admissions)

s. 31 (Effect of admissions.)

Admissions generally —Steph. Dig, Arts. 15—20; Taylor, Ev., §§ 723—861. Wharton, Ev., 1075—1220, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62—79, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed., 192—219; Wills, Ev., 101—124; Best, Ev., §§ 518—531; Powell, Ev, 246—309; Norton, Ev, 142—154; Gresley, Ev., 456; Phillips, & Arn., Ev., 308—401; Greenleaf, Ev, Ch. XI; Wigmore, § 1048, et seq. By agents —Steph. Dig., Art 17, Taylor, Ev., §§ 602, 605; Roscoe, N. P., Ev. 69—71; Best, Ev., § 531; p. 487; Evan's Principal and Agent,

(1) S. 18, cl. (1), see post.

(2) See p. 195, post.

(3) See post.

(4) S. 18, cl (2), see post.

(5) Steph. Dig, Art 18, Taylor, Ev, § 740, see post

(6) Taylor, Ev., §§ 759—765, see post, and s 19

(7) Taylor, Ev., § 602, Best, Ev., § 531, see post. As to admissions by agents, see the judgment of Sir W. Grant in Fairlie v Hastings, 10 Vesey, J, 123.

(8) See post, and Introduction, ante

(9) In re Whitley, L. R, 1 Ch (1891), 558, 563

(10) Ib, per Kekewich, J The declarations of partners and joint contractors are admissible both on the ground of joint-interest and of agency; Taylor, Ev, §§ 598, 743, Steph. Dig, Art 17; see post

(11) Taylor, Ev, § 756, see post

(12) Ib, § 787

(13) In re Whitley, L. R., 1 Ch. (1891), 558, 563, per Kekewich, J.

By suitor in representative character

Statements made by parties to suits, suing or sued in a representative character, are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character;

Statements made by—

By party interested in subject-matter.

(1) Persons who have any proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter of the proceeding, and who make the statement in their character of persons so interested, or

By person from whom interest derived.

(2) Persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived their interest in the subject-matter of the suit.

are admissions, if they are made during the continuance of the interest of the persons making the statements,

Admissions by persons whose position must be proved as against party to suit.

19. Statements made by persons whose position or liability it is necessary to prove as against any party to the suit, are admissions, if such statements would be relevant as against such persons in relation to such position or liability in a suit or brought by against them, and if they are made whilst the person making them occupies such position or is subject to such liability.

Illustration.

A undertakes to collect rents for B.

B sues A for not collecting rent due from C to B

A denies that rent was due from C to B.

A statement by C that he owed B rent is an admission, and is a relevant fact as against A, if A denies that C did owe rent to B.

Admissions by persons expressly referred to by party to suit

20. Statements made by persons to whom a party to the suit has expressly referred for information in reference to a matter in dispute are admissions.

Illustration.

The question is, whether a horse sold by A to B is sound.

A says to B—'Go and ask C, C knows all about it.' C's statement is an admission.

Principle—The reception of admissions considered as exceptions to the rule against hearsay is grounded upon the fact that what a person says may be presumed to be true as against himself, and when not obnoxious to that rule upon the fact of inconsistency. But the very ground of this presumption excludes such an inference when the declarations of a person are tendered as evi-

When broadly stated in such a manner as to include these exceptions, the rule is that the declarations of a party to the record, or of one identified in interest with him, are as against such party receivable in evidence.(3) This identity of interest which determines the relevancy of the admission includes (a) agency;(4)

(1) Best, Ev., § 510; Wills, Ev., 102, but see also Taylor, Ev., § 723; v. ante, Introduction, and s. 21, post

(2) In re Hadley, L. R., 1 Ch. (1891), 559, 563, 564, Stanton v. Percival, 5 H. L. Cas., 273

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 740

(4) Ss. 18, 20, see post.

(b) proprietary or pecuniary interest,(1) which includes (a) joint interest,(2) (b) real as opposed to nominal interest.(3) (c) derivative interest.(4) Statements by strangers are not generally relevant.(5) But to this general rule also there are certain exceptions (6) In respect of the admissions of agents, the general principle applies qui facit per alium facit per se. There is a legal identity of the agent with the principal. If the principal constitutes the agent his representative in a certain transaction, whatever the latter does in the lawful prosecution of that transaction is the act of the principal.(7) Agency is the ground of reception of declarations by partners and joint contractors and referees.(8) In respect of declarations by persons having a proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter, the rule in respect of joint interest is that the admission of one party may be given in evidence against another, when the party against whom the admission is sought to be read has a joint interest with the party making the admission in the subject-matter in the thing to which the admission relates.(9) This rule depends upon the legal principle that persons seised jointly are seised of the whole, each being seised of the whole, the admission of either is the admission of the other and may be produced in evidence against that other. That is applied from real property law to other matters (10) In the case of parties who have a real as opposed to a nominal interest, the law in regard to this source of evidence looks chiefly to the real parties in interest, and gives to their admissions the same weight as though they were parties to the record (11) Lastly, in the case of derivative interest, the party against whom the admission is sought to be used takes what he claims in the subject-matter from the person who made the admission as where it is sought to read against the heir an admission made by the ancestor. The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them is (as in the case of the other abovementioned exceptions) that they are identified in interest.(12) "He (the person against whom the admission is read) stands in the shoes of the party making the admission He can only claim what he claims because he derives title in that way, and therefore it is only fair, according to legal principles, that he should be bound by the admissions of him through whom he claims." (13)

s. 3 ("Document.")
s. 3 ("Fact in issue")
s. 3 ("Relevant fact.")
ss. 22, 65, cl. (b) (Admissions as to documents.)
s. 23 (Admissions "without prejudice.")
ss. 24-30 (Rules with regard to admissions which amount to confessions.)
s. 21 (Proof of admissions.)
s. 31 (Effect of admissions.)

Admissions generally.—Steph. Dig., Arts. 15—20, Taylor, Ev., §§ 723—861; Wharton, Ev., 1075—1220; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62—79, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 192—219; Wills, Ev., 101—124; Best, Ev., §§ 518—531; Powell, Ev., 246—309; Norton, Ev., 142—154; Gresley, Ev., 456; Phillips, & Arn., Ev., 308—401; Greenleaf, Ev., Ch. XI; Wigmore, § 1048, et seq By agents.—Steph. Dig., Art. 17; Taylor, Ev., §§ 602, 605; Roscoe, N. P., Ev. 69—71; Best, Ev., § 531; p. 487; Evan s Principal and Agent,

(1) S. 15, cl. (1), see post
(2) See p. 195, post
(3) See post
(4) S. 18, cl. (2), see post.
(5) Steph. Dig., Art. 18, Taylor, Ev., § 740, see post.
(6) Taylor, Ev., §§ 759—765, see post, and s. 19.
(7) Taylor, Ev., § 602, Best, Ev., § 531, see post As to admissions by agents, see the judgment of Sir W. Grant in Fairlie v. Hastings, 10 Vesey, J., 123.
(8) See post and Introduction, ante.
(9) In re Whitley, L. R., 1 Ch. (1891), 554, 563.
(10) Ib., per Kekewich, J. The declarations of partners and joint contractors are admissible both on the ground of joint-interest and of agency; Taylor, Ev., §§ 598, 743, Steph. Dig., Art. 17, see post.
(11) Taylor, Ev., § 756, see post.
(12) Ib., § 757.
(13) In re Whitley, L. R., 1 Ch. (1891), 558, 563, per Kekewich, J.

187—193 ; 2nd Ed. ; Norton, Ev., 144 ; Pearson's Law of Agency in British India, 426—428 ; Powell, Ev., 290 ; Story on Agency, §§ 134, 135 ; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 46, 47 ; Wigmore, Ev., § 1078 By persons having proprietary or pecuniary interest —Steph. Dig., Arts. 16, 17 ; Taylor, Ev., §§ 743—754, 787, 756—758 ; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 67 ; Act IX of 1908 (Limitation), s. 21. By persons from whom interest is derived :—Steph. Dig., Art. 16 ; Taylor, Ev , §§ 787—794, 758, 90. By strangers —Steph. Dig., Art. 18 ; Taylor, Ev., §§ 740, 759—765. By referees .—Steph. Dig., Art. 19 ; Taylor, Ev., §§ 760—765.

COMMENTARY.

Parties.

As to admissions by parties (when sued or suing personally) made when a minor, or when holding a representative character, v. ante, p. 216, and as to st ; admissions may be made past(2) litigation. It is not n between the same parties ; tween statements admissible under the present sections, and those admissible under the thirty-third section, post. And so it was held that the deposition of a person in a suit to which he was not a party, was, in a subsequent suit in which he was defendant, evidence against him and those who claimed under or purchased from him, although he in a suit brought by Government to assess the lands, that the lands were com-character [e.g., as assignees of an insolvent,(7) executors, administrators, trustees, and the like] statements made by them before they were clothed with that character will not be admissible against them so as to affect the interests of the persons they represent.(8) Thus the declarations of a party suing as assignee of a bankrupt, made before he became such, are not admissible against him (9) The admissions of the executor of the donor must

(1) Unless the admission is one made by a person suing or sued in a representative character, in which case it must be made whilst the person making it sustains that character, s. 18, ante, and see Steph. Dig , Art 16, v. ante, Introduction.

(2) Hurish Chunder v. Prosunno Coomar, 22 W. R , 303 (1874) ; Obhoy Gobind v Beejoy Gobind, 9 W. R., 162 (1869) ; Sheo Surn v. Ram Khelawun, 14 W. R., 165 (1870) ; Girish Chunder v. Shama Churn, 15 W. R , 437 (1871) ; Bhuguan Chunder v. Meckoo Lall, 17 W. R., 372 (1872) ; Kashee Kishore v Bama Soondaree, 23 W. R , 27 (1875), Forbes v. Mir Mahomed Taki, 5 B. L R , 529 (1870), 14 W. R. (P. C), 28 ; 13 M. I. A., 438 ; see also cases cited, ante, p. 213. In a suit by A and B, parties not entitled to the property of a deceased Hindu, as his heirs against C and D, an admission by the person legally entitled to the property, made in a petition filed in the suit, that by her gift or relinquishment plaintiffs had a title to the property, was held to be evidence that such title existed anterior to the commencement of the suit · Gour Lall v Mohesh Narain, 14 W. R., 484 (1871)

(3) Sunjan Bibee v. Achmut Ali, 14 B L R , App , 3 (1874), 21 W. R , 414.

(4) Forbes v. Mir Mahomed Taki, supra

(5) Huronath v Preonath, 7 W. R., 249 (1867) ; and admissions made before an arbitrator are receivable in a subsequent trial of the cause, the reference having proved ineffectual Gregory v. Howard, 3 Esp , 113 , Slack v. Buchanan, Pea. R , 5

(6) Taylor, Ev., § 755 , Steph. Dig , Art. 16

(7) Merely to speak of the "plaintiff assignee" is not an admission of the plaintiff's title as assignee ; Clarke v. Mullick, 2 M. I A., 263, 289 (1839)

(8) S. 18, ante, Legge v. Edmonds, 25 L. J., Ch , 125, 140, 141

(9) Fenwick v. Thornton, 1 M. & M , 51 ; see Taylor, Ev , § 755.

be treated as the admissions of the donor.(1) Where property has been devised by will to executors, any admission by parties other than the executors to the will, will not bind the estate of the deceased.(2) The representative capacity of a person who represents a minor comes to an end by the death of that minor.(3) In respect of co-representatives it seems that the admission of one executor will not bind another, at any rate if the admission was not made in the character of executor.(4) The admissions of an executor are not receivable against an administrator appointed during the absence of the executor.(5) Where one of several trustees had admitted that he had money of the trust-estate in his hands, and it was submitted that this admission of one of them bound the rest, it was held that it would, if they were all personally liable, but not where they were only trustees.(6) Under the eighteenth and twenty-first sections the admissions of a person accused in criminal proceedings will be receivable. But in England it appears to be doubtful whether in any case a prosecutor in an indictment is a party to the inquiry in such a sense as that an admission by him could be received in evidence to prove facts for the defence. Of course, this does not refer to the admission of facts which would go to his reputation for credibility as a witness in the case, these may always and under all circumstances be proved by the admission of the witness himself.(7)

Co-defendants.

The general rule is that an admission can only be given in evidence against the party making it and not against any other party.(8) An admission or even a confession of judgment by one of several defendants in a suit, is no evidence against another defendant.(9) It is a fundamental proposition that a plaintiff cannot sue for more than his own right, and that no defendant can, by an admission, or consent, convey the right or delegate the authority to one for more than his own share in property.(10) "In general, the statement of defence, made by one defendant cannot be read in evidence, either for or against his co-defendant: neither can the answer to interrogatories of one defendant be read in evidence, except against himself, the reason being, that, as there is no issue between the defendants, no opportunity can have been afforded for cross-examination; and moreover, if such a course were allowed, the plaintiff might make one of his friends a defendant, and thus gain a most unfair advantage. But this rule does not apply to cases, where the other

(1) Dwarkanath Bose v Chundee Churn, 1 W R., 339 (1865).

(2) Chunder Kant v Ramnarain Dey, 8 W R., 63 (1867).

(3) Hulodhur Roy v. Jupoo Nath, 14 W R., 162 (1870).

(4) Chunder Kant v. Ramnarain Dey 8 W R., 63 (167), and see Tullock v. Dunn, Ry. & M., 416; Scholey v. Walton, 12 M & W., 513, 514, Fox v Waters, 12 A & E., 43, Taylor, Ev., § 750 Act IX of 1908, s. 21 (Indian Limitation Act) Williams on Executors, 1796, 1813, 1937

(5) Rush v Peacock, 2 M & Rob., 162.

(6) Davis v Ridge, 3 Esp., 101, and see Slatje v. Jackson, 3 B. & C., 421 [in which it is also said that a receipt for money is not like a release pleadable in bar, it is nothing more than a primâ facie acknowledgment that the money has been paid]

(7) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 47, see R v Arnall, 8 Cox, 439, and note in 3 Russ Cr., 489 As to whether the admissions of an accused may be used for purely probative purposes, that is to relieve the prosecutor of the proof of facts essential to his case, see R v Flaherty, 2 C. & K., 782, which was a bigamy case, it was held that an admission of the first marriage by the prisoner, made to a constable, was some, though not sufficient, evidence of the marriage, and in R. v Savage, 13 Cox, 178, a similar case (overruling R v. Newton, 2 M & Rob., 503), an admission by the prisoner was tendered to prove the first marriage but was rejected, v ante, Introduction As to admission for the purpose of the trial, see s. 58, post

(8) In re Whitley, L. R., 1 Ch (1891), 558.

(9) Amrutlal Bose v Rajoneekant Mitter, 15 B L R., 10, 26 (1874), 23 W R., 214; 2 I A., 113; Nasmutoollah Khadim v Himmut Ali, 22 W. R., 519 (1874), Lachman Singh v Tansukh, 6 A., 325 (1884), Azizullah Khan v Ahmad Ali, 7 A., 353 (1858), Kali Dutt v Abdul Ali, 16 C., 627, 635 (1888), Taylor, Ev., § 754. Narainee Dassee v. Nurrohurry Mohunto, Marshall, 70 (1862) See Article in 1 All. L. J., 233n defendant claims through the party whose defence is offered in evidence, nor to cases, where they have a joint interest, either as partners or otherwise in the transaction. Wherever the admission of one party would be good evidence against another party, the defence of the former may, à fortiori, be read against the latter "(1) Similarly, the admissions or confessions of a respondent are not admissible evidence against a co-respondent;(2) nor à fortiori against the petitioner.(3) Nor are those of parties engaged in a joint-tort, or joint crime, receivable against each other, except to the limited extent, and under the circumstances, in the tenth section (ante), mentioned.

(10) Azizullah Khan v Ahmad Ali, supra.

Agents. He who sets another person to do an act in his stead as agent is chargeable by such acts as are done under that authority, and so too, properly is affected by admissions made by the agent in the course of exercising that authority. The question, therefore, turns upon the scope of the authority. This question frequently enough a difficult one depends upon the doctrine of agency applied to the circumstances of the case and not upon [illegible] evidence.(4) The principle upon which adm[illegible]e of his authority, are permitted [illegible] his acts are considered as [illegible] What is said or done by an a[illegible] him, as his mere instrument.(5) A [illegible], by an agent whom the Court regards under the circumstances of the case as expressly or impliedly authorized to make it is admissible though not on oath (6)

Before the admissions of an agent can be received, the fact of his agency must be proved This can be done by proving that the agent has acquired credit by acting in that capacity, and that he has been recognised by the principal in other instances of a similar character to that in question.(7) A person either may expressly constitute another his agent to make an admission: thus if a person agree to admit a claim, provided J S will make an affidavit in support of it, such affidavit is proof against him,(8) or he may authorize another to represent him in a particular business, when admissions made by that other, within the scope of his authority, in the ordinary course of, and with reference to such business, will be evidence against him. When the principal constitutes the agent as his representative in the transaction of certain business, whatever the agent does in the lawful prosecution of that business is the act of the principal (9) "Where the acts of the agent will bind the principal, then his representations, declarations and admissions, respecting the subject-matter, will also bind him, if made at the same time and constituting part of the res gestæ."(10) The admission must be one having

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 754, and cases there cited; but as to cross-examination by defendant of co-defendant, see s. 137, post, as to admissions by co-defendants who are joint tenants or joint-contractors, see Chunderesheear Narain v. Chuni Ahir, 9 C. L. R., 359 (1881), Kuresullah Sundari v. Mulla Sundari, 11 C., 588 (1885), and post.

(2) Robinson v. Robinson, 1 S. & T., 363; see also Hay v. Gordon, 10 B. L. R., 304, 307, 308 (1872); as to the question of the admissibility of evidence of respondent against co-respondent, see Allen v. Allen, L. R., P. D. (1894), 248, and s. 137, post

(3) Plumer v. Plumer, 4 S. & T., 257

(4) Wigmore, Ev., § 1078

(5) Franklin Bank v. Pennsylvania D. & M. S. S. Co., 11 L. & J., 28, 33 (Amer)

(6) Gossaijn Jhaver v. Chhedalal Lelu, 2 Bom. L. R., 651 (1900)

(7) Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 71, Evan's Principal and Agent, 192, Watkins v. Vince, 2 Stark., 368; Courteen v. Touse, 1 Camp., 43n Neal v. Erving, 1 Esp., 61. See as to proof of agency, Ram Buks v. Kishori Mohun, 3 B. L. R., A. C. J., 273 (1869).

(8) Lloyd v. Willan, 1 Esp. 178, Stevens v. Thacker, Peake, 187, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 69; see s. 20, ante, and note on "Referees"

(9) Taylor, Ev., § 602, and see generally ib., §§ 602—605; Will. Ev., 112, Steph. Dig., Art 17; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 69—71, Powell, Ev., 290, Pearson's Law of Agency in British India, 426—428, Evan's Principal and Agent, 187—193 Best, Ev., p. 497, Norton, Ev., 144 as to the acts, contracts and representations of the agent which are original evidence, and receivable for, as well as against, his principal, v. ante, Introduction.

(10) Story on Agency, § 134. "res gestæ" here means "the business" regarding which the law reference to the subject-matter of the agency.(1) So whatever is said by an agent either in the making of a contract for his principal, or at the time and accompanying the performance of any act, within the scope of his authority, having relation to and connected with and in the course of the particular contract or transaction in which he is then engaged is, in legal effect, said by his principal and admissible in evidence.(2) "The representation, declaration, or admission of the agent does not bind the principal, if it is not made at the very time of the contract, but upon another occasion; or if it does not concern the subject-matter of the contract but some other matter, in no degree belonging to the res gestæ."(3) It does not follow that a statement made by an agent is an admission merely because, if made by the principal himself, it would have been one, for, the admission of an agent cannot always be assimilated to the admission of the principal (4) "The party's own admission, whenever made, may be given in evidence against him; but the admission or declaration of his agent binds him only when it is made during the continuance of the agency in regard to a transaction then depending, et dum fervet opus. When the agent's right to interfere in the particular matter has ceased, the principal can no longer be affected by his declarations any more than by his acts, but they will be rejected in such case as mere hearsay."(5) Therefore admissions by an agent of his own authority and not accompanying the making of a contract or the doing of an act on behalf of his principal, nor made at the time he is engaged in the transaction to which they refer, are not binding upon his principal, not being part of the res gestæ, and are not admissible in evidence, but come within the rule excluding hearsay, being but an account or statement by an agent of what has passed or been done or omitted to be done—not a part of the transaction, but only statements or admissions respecting it.(6) The words of the eighteenth section (ante) "whom the Court regards, under the circumstances of the case, as expressly or impliedly authorised by him to make them," leave it open to the Courts to deal with each case that arises upon its own merits,(7) having regard to the law of agency applicable and the particular facts of each case. But it is apprehended that the Courts will, in the application of this section, be guided by the principles laid down by the English and American cases and text-writers (8) The admissions are receivable in evidence without identifies the principal and agent, and must not be taken to import that the declarations must form a part of the res gestæ in the evidentiary sense of that term, it has been said that the declarations of an agent are not receivable as to bygone transactions (see Evans, supra, 189, citing Great Western Railway Company v Willis, 18 C B N S, 748, Fairlie v Hastings, 10 Ves, 128, Kahl v Jansen, 4 Taunt, 565, see also Pearson's supra, 427, but this is misleading, for so long as the representations are made concerning the principal's business, and in the ordinary course of it, it is immaterial if they relate to past or present events, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 210, citing Prof Thayer in the Irish Law Times, Feb 19, 1881

---

(1) See Pearson, supra, and cases there cited.

(2) Per Buchanan, C J, in Franklin Bank v Pensylvania D & M S S Co, 11 G & J, 28, 33 (Amer), Wigmore, Ev, § 1078

(3) Story on Agency, § 135

(4) Steph Dig, Art 17, Taylor, Ev, § 602.

(5) Taylor, Ev, ib, and cases there cited the authority to make admissions is at once put an end to by the determination of the agency, whether or no such determination has been properly brought about Kalee Churn v Bengal Coal Co, 21 W R, 405

(6) Franklin Bank v Pensylvania, supra, narratives of, explaining or admitting, a past act are not admissible even though the agency continue unless the agent be empowered to speak for his principal at the time Wharton, Cr Ev, p 594n For instance, an agent might be specially sent to make a statement on behalf of his principal as to what had occurred

(7) Field, Ev, 125 "The point to be regarded in this clause is not only the establishment of an agency, as to which the Court must be satisfied, but that there was authority given sufficient to cover the particular statement relied on as admissions" Norton, Ev, 144.

(8) v post, remarks of Tindal, C. J., in Garth v Howard, 8 Bing, 451.

calling the agent himself to prove them.(1) As an agent can only act within the scope of his authority, declarations or admissions made by him as to a particular fact are not admissible, unless they fall within the nature of his employment as such agent.(2) Account-books, though proved not to have been regularly kept in the course of business, but proved to have been kept on behalf of a firm of contractors by its servant or agent appointed for that purpose, are relevant as admissions against the firm The fact, however, that the books had not been regularly kept might be a good reason for rejecting the account, if offered in evidence against any person other than the contractor or his partners.(3) It is of course open to the contractor or any of his partners to show that the entries have been made after such a fashion that no reliance can be placed upon them, but if made by a clerk of the firm, they are relevant (4) An agent's reports to his principal are not, in general, receivable against the latter in favour of third persons, as admissions.(5) Thus letters of an agent to his principal, in which the former is rendering an account of the transaction he has performed for him, are not admissible against the principal.(6) When, however, the principal had replied to the agent, the letters of the latter were held admissible as explanatory of the statements of the former.(7) As the declarations of an agent are admissible on the ground of the legal identity of the agent with the principal, the declarations and acts of an agent cannot bind an infant, because the latter cannot appoint an agent.(8) Evidence may be given against companies, of admissions made by their directors or agents, relating to matters within the scope of their authority.(9) Thus a letter written by the secretary of a company by order of the acting directors,(10) stating the number of shares held by M, was admitted on behalf of his executors, in proceedings against them.(11) But the confidential reports of directors to a meeting of the shareholders,(12) admissions at a board meeting of less than the requisite number of members (13) have been held not to be receivable The manager of a banking company may make admissions against the bank as to its practice in making loans to customers (14) As to admissions by servants of companies, see cases noted below.(15) The admissions of a surveyor of a corporation,

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 602 Evans, supra, 188, 189, if the statements of the agent are admissible the statements of the agent's interpreter, acting as such in the agent's presence, are admissible without calling the interpreter, and it must be assumed as against the principal that the interpreter interpreted faithfully Reid v Hoskins, 26 L. J., Q. B., 5, 5 E. & B., 729, admissions which consist of hearsay evidence are not receivable against the principal, Kell v Jones, 4 Taunt., 565

(2) Garth v. Howard, 8 Bing., 451, see Venkatramanna v. Chavali Ithayamma, 6 Mad. H. C. R., 127 (1871), as illustrations of the admission and rejection of statements upon this principle. see The Kirkstall Brewery Company v. The Furness Railway Company, L. R., 9 Q. B., 468; 43 L. J., Q. B., 142, Garth v. Howard, supra

(3) R. v. Hanmants, 1 B., 610, 617 (1677) See s. 34, post, and notes thereto.

(4) Ib.

(5) Steph. Dig., Art. 17; Langhorn v. Allnutt, 4 Taunt., 511; Re Derale Co., L. R., 22 Ch. D. 593; Cooper v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 25 Ch. D., 472; Kell v. Jones, 4 Taunt., 565; Rayner Loch v Hastings, 10 Ves., 123, though see contra, Sidney 10 P. D., 137, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed. 211 Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, Evans, supra, 190

(6) Langhorn v Allnutt supra.

(7) Coates v Bainbridge, 5 Bing., 58.

(8) Taylor Ev. § 605, and v ante, Introduction.

(9) Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, Lindley Company Law, 183

(10) But, unless acting under the express order of the directors, the secretary of a company cannot make admissions against the company, even as to the receipt of a letter, Bruff v Great N. Ry. Co., 1 F. & F., 345 see also Burnside v Dayrell, 3 Exch. 225, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, 71

(11) Mews Executor's case 2 D. M. & G., 522.

(12) Re Derala Co., 22 Ch. D. 593, v ante.

(13) Kelley v Plymouth Baking Co., 2 Exch. 711

(14) Simmons v. London Joint Stock Bank (1892), A. C., 201.

(15) Kirkstall Brewery Co v Furness Ry. Co., L. R., 9 Q. B., 468, Gt. W. Ry. Co v Willis, 18 C. B., N. S., 748; Mayhew v Nelson, 6 C. & P., 58; Stiles v. Cardiff S. Navigation Co., 33 L. J., Q. B., 310; Agnew v London Tram Co., 27 L. T.,

respecting a house belonging to the corporation, are evidence against the latter in an action for an injury to the plaintiff's house by work done on the defendant's premises;(1) but the report of a surveyor to the corporation, as to the value of lands about to be purchased by it, is not evidence, either of the truth of the facts or to explain the resolutions or letters of the corporation as to the purchase.(2) The admissions of a way-warden that a certain road is a highway and that the parish is liable to repair it are evidence against a highway board.(3) The admission, as to matters within the ordinary course of business (e.g., the receipt of shop goods) of a shopman are evidence against his master, but not his admissions as to a transaction outside the usual business.(4) An admission by a person who has generally managed A's landed property, and received his rents, is not evidence against A, as to his employer's title, there being no other proof of his agency ad hoc.(5) As to admissions made by partners and joint-contractors, v. post.

The manager of a joint Hindu family, or kurta, is the agent for the other members, and is supposed to have their authority to do all acts for their common necessity or benefit (6) He fully represents the family, and in the absence of fraud or collusion his acts are binding on the other members of the family.(7) But he can be sued by the other members for an account, even if the parties suing were minors during the period for which the accounts are asked (8) In respect of the admission of debts he may acknowledge, as he may create debts, on behalf of the family, but he has no power to revive a claim barred by limitation unless expressly authorised to do so.(9)

The admissions of a wife merely as such cannot affect her husband. They will only bind him where she had expressed or implied authority from him to make them. Whether she had such authority or not, is a question of fact to be found by the Court, as in the other cases of agency The cases on this subject are mostly those of implied authority, turning upon the degree in which the husband permitted the wife to participate, either in the transaction of his affairs in general, or in the particular matter in question (10)

(1) Peyton v St Thomas' Hospital, 3 M & Sy, 625*n*

(2) Cooper v Met Board of Works, 25 Ch D, 5 472, supra, v ante

(3) Loughboro' Highway Board v Curzon, 55 L T, 50

(4) Garth v Howard, 8 Bing, 451, Schumack v Lock, 10 B, Moo 39, and see Clifford v Burton, 1 Bing, 199, Meredith v Footner, supra, Roscoe, N P Ev, 70, 72

(5) Ley v Peter, 3 H & N, 101, 27 L J, Ex, 239, and generally as to admissions see Roscoe, N P Ev, 62, et seq as to admissions by ships' officers, see Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 216.

(6) Kota Ramasami v Bangari Seshama, 3 M, 145, 150 (1881), in which case it is also pointed out that the position of a Polygar differs from that of a manager of a Hindu family, see also as to the kurta and his relations to adult and minor members; Chuckun Lall v Poran Chunder, 9 W. R, 183 (1868), Obhoy Chunder v Pearee Mohun, 1 W. R, F. B, 75 (1870), Gopalnarain v Muddomully, 14 B L R, 21, 32 (1874) [Silence, evidence of ratification of acts of kurta], Succaram Morarji v. Kalidas Kalianji, 18 B., 631 (1894), widow manager], Venkaji Shridhar v. Vishnu Babaji, ib., 534 (1893) [The manager must be allowed a reasonable latitude in the exercise of his powers]

(7) Jagan Nath v Nannu Lall, 16 A, 231, 233 (1894)

(8) Obhoy Chunder v Pearee Mohun, supra

(9) Chinnaya Nayudu v Gurunagham, 5 M 169, F B (1881) (overruling Kumara Sami v Pala Nagappa, 1 M, 385 (1878), Kondappa v Subba, 13 M, 189 (1889), Bhasker Talya v Vijalal Nathu, 17 B, 512 (1892), Gopalnarain v Muddomully, 14 B L R, 21, 49 (1874), followed in Dinkar v Appaji, 20 B, 155 (1894) The manager of a joint Hindu family or the executor of a Hindu will, has no power by acknowledgment to revive a debt barred by law of limitation except as against himself], Shobanadri Appa v Sriramulu, 17 M, 221 (1893)

(10) See generally, Taylor, Ev, §§ 766—771; Roscoe, N P Ev, 72, Powell, Ev, 299, see judgment of Alderson, B, in Meredith v Footner, 11 M & W, 202, as to wife carrying on business, see Taylor, Ev, § 605, and as to admissions in matrimonial causes which differ in some respects from ordinary nisi prius causes, in so far as in the former the interests of public morality are concerned, Plumer v. Plumer, 4 S & T, 263, 5., 763, 769

calling the agent himself to prove them.(1) As an agent can only act within [illegible] as to a par- [illegible] f his employ- [illegible] ve been regu- [illegible] on behalf of a firm of contractors by its servant or agent appointed for that purpose, are relevant as admissions against the firm The fact, however, that the books had not been regularly kept might be a good reason for rejecting the account, if offered in evidence against any person other than the contractor or his partners.(3) It is of course open to the contractor or any of his partners to show that the entries have been made after such a fashion that no reliance can be placed upon them, but if made by a clerk of the firm, they are relevant.(4) An agent's reports to his principal are not, in general, receivable against the latter in favour of third persons, as admissions.(5) Thus letters of an agent to his principal, in which the former is rendering an account of the transaction he has performed for him, are not admissible against the principal.(6) When, however, the principal had replied to the agent, the letters of the latter were held admissible as explanatory of the statements of the former.(7) As the declarations of an agent are admissible on the ground of the legal identity of the agent with the principal, the declarations and acts of an agent cannot bind an infant, because the latter cannot appoint an agent.(8) Evidence may be given against companies, of admissions made by their directors or agents, relating to matters within the scope of their authority.(9) Thus a letter written by the secretary of a company by order of the acting directors,(10) stating the number of shares held by M, was admitted on behalf of his executors, in proceedings against them.(11) But the confidential reports of directors to a meeting of the shareholders,(12) admissions at a board meeting of less than the requisite number of members (13) have been held not to be receivable. The manager of a banking company may make admissions against the bank as to its practice in making loans to customers.(14) As to admissions by servants of companies, see cases noted below.(15) The admissions of a surveyor of a corporation,

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 602 Evans, supra, 188, 189, if the statements of the agent are admissible the statements of the agent's interpreter, acting as such in the agent's presence, are admissible without calling the interpreter, and it must be assumed as against the principal that the interpreter interpreted faithfully Reid v Hoskins, 26 L. J., Q. B., 5, 5 E. & B., 729, admissions which consist of hearsay evidence are not receivable against the principal, Kahl v Jansen, 4 Taunt., 565

(2) Garth v Howard, 8 Bing., 451, see Venkataramanna v. Chavda Atchiyamma, 8 Mad. H. C. R., 127 (1871), as illustrations of the admission and rejection of statements upon this principle, see The Kirkstall Brewery Company v The Furness Railway Company, L. R., 9 Q. B., 468; 43 L. J., Q. B., 142; Garth v. Howard, supra

(3) R. v. Hanmanta, 1 B., 610, 617 (1877) See s. 34, post, and notes thereto

(4) Ib.

(5) Steph. Dig., Art 17; Laughorn v. Allnutt, 4 Taunt., 511, Re Devala Co., L. R., 22 Ch. D., 593; Cooper v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 25 Ch. D., 472; Kahl v. Jansen, 4 Taunt., 565; Rayner v. Preston, [illegible] Fairlie v Hastings, 10 Ves., 123, though see contra Solway, 10 P. D., 137, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed. 211 Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, Evans, supra, 190.

(6) Laughorn v Allnutt supra.

(7) Coates v Bainbridge, 5 Bing., 58

(8) Taylor, Ev., § 605, and v ante, Introduction

(9) Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, Lindley Company Law 183

(10) But, unless acting under the express order of the directors, the secretary of a company cannot make admissions against the company, even as to the receipt of a letter Bruff v Great N. Ry. Co., 1 F. & F., 315, see also Burnside v Dayrell, 3 Exch. 225, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 70, 71

(11) Meux Executor's case, 2 D. M. & G., 522

(12) Re Devala Co., 22 Ch. D., 593, v ante,

(13) Ridley v Plymouth Baking Co., 2 Exch 711

(14) Simmons v London Joint Stock Bank (1892), A. C., 201

(15) Kirkstall Brewery Co v Furness Ry. Co., L. R., 9 Q. B., 468, Gt. W. Ry. Co v Willis, 18 C. B., N. S., 748, Mayhew v. Nelson, 6 C. & P., 58, Stiles v. Cardiff S. Navigation Co., 33 L. J. Q. B., 310; Agassiz v. London Tram Co., 27 L. T.,

respecting a house belonging to the corporation, are evidence against the latter in an action for an injury to the plaintiff's house by work done on the defendant's premises;(1) but the report of a surveyor to the corporation, as to the value of lands about to be purchased by it, is not evidence, either of the truth of the facts or to explain the resolutions or letters of the corporation as to the purchase (2) The admissions of a way-warden that a certain road is a highway and that the parish is liable to repair it are evidence against a highway board.(3) The admission, as to matters within the ordinary course of business (e g, the receipt of shop goods) of a shopman are evidence against his master, but not his admissions as to a transaction outside the usual business.(4) An admission by a person who has generally managed A's landed property, and received his rents, is not evidence against A, as to his employer's title, there being no other proof of his agency ad hoc.(5) As to admissions made by partners and joint-contractors, v. post.

The manager of a joint Hindu family, or kurta, is the agent for the other members, and is supposed to have their authority to do all acts for their common necessity or benefit.(6) He fully represents the family, and in the absence of fraud or collusion his acts are binding on the other members of the family (7) But he can be sued by the other members for an account, even if the parties suing were minors during the period for which the accounts are asked (8) In respect of the admission of debts he may acknowledge, as he may create debts, on behalf of the family, but he has no power to revive a claim barred by limitation unless expressly authorised to do so (9)

The admissions of a wife merely as such cannot affect her husband. They will only bind him where she had expressed or implied authority from him to make them. Whether she had such authority or not, is a question of fact to be found by the Court, as in the other cases of agency. The cases on this subject are mostly those of implied authority, turning upon the degree in which the husband permitted the wife to participate, either in the transaction of his affairs in general, or in the particular matter in question (10)

(1) Peyton v St Thomas' Hospital, 3 M & Ry, 625*n*

(2) Cooper v Met. Board of Works, 25 Ch D, 5 472, supra, v ante

(3) Loughboro' Highway Board v Curzon 55 L T, 50

(4) Garth v Howard, 8 Bing, 451, Schumack v Lock, 10 B, Moo. 39; and see Clifford v Burton, 1 Bing, 199, Meredith v Footner supra, Roscoe, N. P Ev, 70, 72

(5) Ley v Peter, 3 H & N, 101, 27 L. J, Ex, 239; and generally as to admissions, see Roscoe, N. P Ev, 62, et seq as to admissions by ships' officers, see Phipson Ev, 3rd Ed, 216

(6) Kota Ramasami v Bangari Seshama, 3 M, 145, 150 (1881), in which case it is also pointed out that the position of a Polygar differs from that of a manager of a Hindu family, see also as to the kurta and his relations to adult and minor members, Chuckun Lall v Poran Chunder, 9 W R, 183 (1868), Obhoy Chunder v Pearee Mohun, 1 W. R, F. B, 75 (1870), Gopalnarain v Muddomutty, 14 B L R, 21, 32 (1874) [Silence, evidence of ratification of acts of kurta], Surcaram Morarji v. Kalidas Kalianji, 18 B, 631 (1894), widow manager], Vendaji Shridhar v Vishnu Babaji, ib., 534 (1893) [The manager must be allowed a reasonable latitude in the exercise of his powers]

(7) Jagan Nath v Mannu Lall, 16 A, 231, 233 (1894)

(8) Obhoy Chunder v Pearee Mohun, supra.

(9) Chinnaya Nayudu v Gurunagham, 5 M 169, F B (1881) [overruling Kumara Sami v Pala Nagappa, 1 M, 385 (1878), Kondappa v Subba, 13 M, 189 (1889), Bhasker Tatya v Fajalal Nathu, 17 B, 512 (1892), Gopalnarain v Muddomutty, 14 B L R, 21, 49 (1874), followed in Dinlar v Appaji, 20 B, 155 (1894) The manager of a joint Hindu family or the executor of a Hindu will, has no power by acknowledgment to revive a debt barred by law of limitation except as against himself], Shekanadra Appa v Sriramulu, 17 M, 221 (1893)

(10) See generally, Taylor, Ev, §§ 766—771; Roscoe, N P Ev, 72, Powell, Ev, 299, see judgment of Alderson, B, in Meredith v Footner, 11 M & W, 202, as to wife carrying on business, see Taylor, Ev, § 605, and as to admissions in matrimonial causes which differ in some respects from ordinary nisi prius causes, in so far as in the former the interests of public morality are concerned, Plumer v Plumer, 4 S & T., 263, Ib., 713, 769

Admissions by agents in criminal cases.

It has been already observed(1) that certain rules of admissibility are applicable in criminal cases only, but this is because the issues arise in criminal cases only, but in general the rules of admissibility are the same for the trial of civil and criminal causes. Conformably to this general doctrine the admissions of an agent may be equally received in a criminal charge against the principal. But it is a totally different question in the consideration of criminal as distinguished from civil justice how the person on trial may be affected by the fact when so established. It might involve him civilly and yet be not sufficient to convict him of a crime. Whether the fact thus admitted by the agent would suffice to charge the principal criminally without his personal knowledge or connivance would depend upon the particular rule of criminal law and not of evidence involved.(2) Thus it has been said that:—"An admission by an agent is never evidence in criminal, as it is sometimes in civil cases, in the sense in which an admission by a party himself is evidence. An admission by the party himself is in all cases the best evidence which can be produced, and supersedes the necessity for all further proof, and in civil cases the rule is carried still further, for the admission of an agent made in the course of his employment, and in accordance with his duty, is as binding upon the principal as an admission made by himself But this has never been extended to criminal cases. Thus, in order to make a client criminally responsible for a letter written by his solicitor, it is not sufficient to show that such letter was written in consequence of an interview, but it must be shown that it was written in pursuance of instructions of the client (3) Where personal knowledge and authority are shown the admissions will be receivable. Hence the declarations of a messenger sent to a third party by the prisoner, if made with reference to the object of the mission, are admissible in evidence against him, where the evidence shows they were made by his authority.(4) If in other cases the evidence is not admitted it is because in those cases the criminal law requires evidence of personal knowledge and authority of and in respect of the particular act charged before criminal liability can be established. This, however, is a matter of substantive law which may admit of real or apparent exceptions as in the case of a newspaper proprietor who is primâ facie criminally responsible for any libel it contains, though inserted by his agent or servant without his knowledge (5) Where a party is charged with the commission of an offence through the instrumentality of an agent, then it becomes necessary to prove the acts of the agent, and in some cases, as where the agent is dead, the agent's admission is the best evidence of those acts which can be produced Thus on the impeachment of Lord Melville by the House of Lords,(6) it was decided that a receipt given in the regular and official form by Mr. Douglas who was proved to have been appointed by Lord Melville to be his attorney to transact the business of his office as treasurer of the Navy, and to receive all necessary sums of money, and to give receipts for the same and who was dead, was admissible, in evidence against Lord Melville, to establish the single fact, that a person appointed by him, as his pay master, did receive from the Exchequer a certain sum of money in the ordinary course of business.(7)"

(1) Ante, p 215, and see Wigmore, Ev., § 4, where the learned author observes that this is the more worth emphasizing because the occasional appearance in works on the law of the title "Criminal Evidence" has tended to foster the fallacy that there is some separate group of rules or some large number of modifications.

(2) Wigmore, Ev., § 1078.

(3) R v. Downes, 14 Cox, C. C., 490.

(4) Browning v. State, 33 Miss., 48 (Amer.) Whar ton, Cr. Ev., § 693.

(5) Wharton, Cr Ev., p 595 Lord Tenterden, however, considered this case as falling within the general rule, ib It has been argued generally that to impute the agent's act to the principal criminal design must be brought home to the latter, see Cooper v. State, 6 H. L. C., 746

(6) 29 How. St Tr., 746, v ante.

(7) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 46, 47. In which the following criticism on this case is made; "Had, however, Mr. Douglas been alive at the time, there can be no doubt that he must have been called,

Pleader Solicitor Counsel

A vakil in this country has not ordinarily any greater power to bind his client than that which is possessed by an attorney in England.(1) An attorney employed in a matter of business is not an agent to make admissions for his client, except after action commenced, and in matters relating to that action.(2) An admission made before action will, however, of course, affect the client if proof be given that he authorised the communication.(3) A pleader or solicitor has in civil cases implied authority to make admissions of fact against his client during the actual progress of litigation, and the client is affected by admissions of fact made by them. But a plaintiff is not bound by an admission of a point of law, nor precluded from asserting the contrary in order to obtain with the action and without any view to obviate necessity of proof: admissions in such cases may be made in Court, or in chambers, or by documents or correspondence connected [illegible] primâ facie evidence :(6) appear for A and B, [illegible] wards appears for them, is primâ facie evidence of the joint ownership of A and B;(7) so in an action on a bill, a notice, served by the defendant's solicitor, to produce "all documents relating to the bill which was accepted by the said defendant" is primâ facie evidence of the acceptance (8) This class of admissions which are made, not indeed with the express intent of dispensing with proof of certain facts, but as it were incidentally, are generally the result of carelessness, and though not regarded, as conclusive admissions, are still considered, not unfrequently, as raising an inference respecting the existence of facts, which the adversary would otherwise have been called upon to prove.(9) Admissions, however, made by solicitor, during litigation but in mere conversation, are not evidence against his client, since the solicitor's agency only exists for the management of the action.(10) Admissions made for the purpose (v. post) of a former trial, if not expressly limited, may be used on a new trial of the

---

and that he might have been called to prove the receipt of the money would probably not have been questioned. This case does not, therefore, as sometimes appears to have been thought, in any way, touch upon the rules that the admission of an agent does not bind his principal in criminal cases, but merely shows that, where the acts of the agent have to be proved, those acts may be proved in the usual way"

(1) Prem Sookh v Pirthee Ram, 2 Agra Rep., 222 (1867) See Pearson's Law of Agency in British India, pp 16, 153, and as to muktars pp. 17, 114, ib

(2) Wagstaff v Watson, 4 B & Ad, 339, Ley v. Peter, 3 H. & N, 101, 111, per Watson, B Cordery, The Law relating to Solicitors, 2nd Ed (1888) pp 81—83

(3) Ib

(4) Jdendra Mohun v Ganendra Mohun, 18 W R., 359, 367 (1872), Musst Acljoo v. Lallah Ramchundra, 23 W. R., 400, 401 (1875) See as to admissions by legal practitioners, cases cited under s 58, post, Field, Ev., 30, 31, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 14, 213, Taylor, Ev, §§ 772—774, Steph Dig, Art 17—"Barristers and solicitors are the agents of their clients for the purpose of making admissions, whilst engaged in the actual management of the cause, either in Court or in correspondence relating thereto, but statements made by a barrister or solicitor on other occasions are not admissions merely beause they would be admissions if made by the client himself"

(5) Krishnasami v Rajagopala, 18 M, 73, 83 (1895)

(6) Cordery, 82, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 213; Taylor, Ev, § 773. In criminal cases a solicitor has no implied authority, as in civil cases, to affect his client by admissions of fact incidentally made. R v Downer, 14 Cox, 486, v ante, see s 58, post.

(7) Marshall v Cliff, 4 Camp, 133.

(8) Holt v Squire, Ry & M, 282; Taylor, Ev, § 773

(9) Taylor, Ev, § 773

(10) Petch v Lyon, 9 Q B, 147, Taylor, Ev., § 774, Cordery, 82, 83, and cases there cited.

same cause, though the solicitor has, between the two trials, died, and the new solicitor has sent notice that he will make no admissions.(1) And a statement made in a case by a pleader on behalf of his client is admissible in evidence against that client in another case in which he is a party.(2) Admissions by a clerk or agent having the management of the cause stand on the same footing as admissions by the solicitor.(3) These admissions are receivable as those of the solicitor, not only against the client,(4) but against the solicitor in favour of the client.(5) Admissions by counsel stand upon similar though a narrower footing. A solicitor, admitted to prosecute or defend, represents his client throughout the cause, but a counsel represents his client only when speaking for him in Court.(6) Therefore admissions made by counsel out of Court in conversation with the solicitor for the opposite side, are not evidence against his client. Where, therefore, pending a rule nisi, the attorney served with the rule inferred, from a conversation, out of Court, with the counsel who had moved the rule, that the latter would forbear to move to make it absolute for a certain time, and the rule was made absolute by that counsel within the time mentioned, the Court refused to re-open the rule.(7) But statements made by counsel during the conduct of the case are primâ facie evidence against the client (8) Besides admissions of fact made incidentally during litigation they may also be expressly made for the purpose of dispensing with proof at the trial, in which case, in civil suits they are generally conclusive whether made by solicitor or counsel.(9)

Guardian and Ward.

A guardian has, under the Hindu law, a qualified power of dealing with the property of an infant under his charge He can, in case of necessity, sell, charge, or let it for a long term. But the infant is not absolutely bound by the act of the guardian, he could, on attaining majority, recover the property if it had been disposed of without legal necessity and in the case of an uncertificated guardian, the burden of proving legal necessity would, generally speaking, be on the person asserting it.(10) But he will be bound by the act of his guardian, in the management of his estate, when bonâ fide and for his interest, and when it is such as the infant might reasonably and prudently have done for himself, if he had been of full age (11) And where a contract has been validly entered into on his behalf and there is mutuality in such contract, it may be specifically enforced.(12) Where a minor will be bound by the act of his guar-

---

(1) Doe v Bird, 7 C & P, 6, but see also Filton v. Larkins, 5 C & P, 385, 386

(2) Oomabuttee v. Parushnath, 15 W R, 135 (1871), but see Blackstone v Wilson, 20 L. J., Ex, 229; and remarks in Pearson's Law of Agency in British India, p. 423, and see Doe v Ross, 7 M & W, 102, 122

(3) Standage v. Creighton, 5 C. & P., 406, Taylor v. Williams, 2 B. & Ad, 845, 856, Taylor, Ev, § 774.

(4) Taylor v. Williams, supra

(5) Ashford v. Price, 3 Stark., 185; Cordery, 83

(6) Richardson v. Pelo, 1 M. & G, 896; per Tindal, C. J, Taylor, Ev, § 783; and in one sense counsel is not the representative of the client, for he has the power to act without asking his client what he shall do; L. v. Registrar of Greenwich County Court, 15 Q B D, 54, 58 Nor is he the agent (in the ordinary sense) of the client, his position is a peculiar one, Coltidge v. Horn, 3 Ving, 119, 121, Mathews v. Munster, L R, 20 Q B D, 141, Swinfen v Lord Chelmsford, 5 H. & N, 890, see Wills, Ev, 118, and also s 58, post

(7) Richardson v Pelo, supra, and v. sb., as to the practice of entering warrants of attorney on the record

(8) Van Wart v Woolley, By & M, 4, Haller v Worman, 2 P & F, 165, affirmed 3 L T., N. S 8, 741, Cordery, 83 see also notes to s 58, post; and Taylor, Ev, § 783

(9) See s 58, post and as to power of counsel and pleaders to compromise, v sb, and admissions in criminal trials, sb

(10) Jugul Kishore v Ananda Lal, 22 C, 545, 550 (1895), see Mayne's Hindu Law, 5th Ed, §§ 191—197

(11) Mayne's Hindu Law, § 196, and cases there cited. As to the onus in a suit by a minor to set aside a compromise made by a guardian, see Lekraj Roy v Mahtabchand, 10 B L. R., 35 (1871).

(12) Mir Sarwarjan v Fakharuddin Mahomed Chowdhury (1888), 21 C, 161 (Full Bench)

dian, there he may be affected by his declarations made at the same time and forming part of the res gestæ, in respect of the particular act which constitutes a proper exercise of [illegible] although a guardian may have authority [illegible] to make a partition it does not follow th[illegible] lmissions of previous transactions, so as to affect the estate of his ward.(1) It has been held by the Madras(2) and Bombay(3) High Courts, disapproving of a decision to the contrary effect of the Calcutta High Court,(4) that a guardian has authority to acknowledge a debt on the part of the minor, provided that the debt is not barred by limitation at the date of the acknowledgment,(5) and it be shown in each case that the guardian's act was for the protection or benefit of the ward's property.(6) And in a recent case the Allahabad High Court has also adopted this opinion.(7) As to guardians for the suit, and next friends, v. post, p. 234.

Partners, Joint-contractors: Parties interested in subject-matter

A partner charges the partnership by virtue of an agency to act for it How far his admissions are receivable depends therefore on the doctrines of agency as applied to partnership.(8) Partners and joint-contractors are each other's agents for the purpose of making admissions, against each other, in relation to partnership transactions, or joint-contracts.(9) Admissions by partners and joint-contractors are receivable both on the ground of agency and of joint interest.(10) After primâ facie evidence of partnership, the declaration of one partner is evidence against his co-partners as to partnership business,(11) though the former is no party to the suit.(12) Each member of a firm, being the agent of the others for all purposes within the scope of the partnership business, admissions by one (provided the Court regards him as authorized to make the admission) are binding on all, unless, under the special circumstances of the case, this effect when tendered inter se. Thus it has been held that, as between them-

[illegible]

(1) Suraj Mookh v Bhagwati Koonwar, 10 C L R (P C), 377 (1881) But in Brojendra Coomar v The Chairman of the Dacca Municipality, 20 W R, 223, 224 (1873), it was said that the guardian of an infant has no power to bind him by admissions As to an admission by the Court of Wards, see Ram Autar v Raja Muhammad, 24 I A, 107 (1897), as to admission made merely for probative purposes, see s 58, post

(2) Sobhanadri Appa v Sriramula, 17 M, 221 (1893), followed in Kailasa Padiachi v Ponnulannu Achi, 18 M, 456 (1894)

(3) Annapagaudu v Sangadigyapa, 26 B 221 901), overruling Maharana Ranmalsingji v Jadilal Vakhatchand, 20 B, 61 (1894)

(4) Wajibun v Kadir Buksh, 13 C, 292, 295 (1886), followed in Chhato Ram v Bulto Ali, 26 C, 15 (1898), Tilak Singh v Chok Singh 1 All L J, 302 (1904)

(5) See cases in note, ante

(6) See Annapagauda v Sangadigyapa, supra

(7) Ram Charan Das v. Gaya Prasad (1908), 30 A, 238 [Full Bench], dissenting from Tilak Singh v Chok Singh, supra

(8) Wigmore, Ev, § 1078

(9) Steph Dig, Art. 17, Lucas v De la Cour, 1 M. & S, 249, Whitcomb v Whiting, 1 S L C 644, 2 Doug, 652, Kali Kissore v Gopi Mohan, 2 C W N, 166, 168 (1897), and see next note

(10) Taylor, Ev §§ 593, 743, Story on Partnership, §§ 101—125, Re Whiteley (1891), L R, 1 Ch, 558, ante Steph Dig, Art 17, Kowsullia Sundari v Mukta Sundari, 11 C, 588, 591 (1885)

(11) Roscoe, N P Ev, 71, Nicholls v Dowding, 1 Stark., 81, Taylor, Ev, § 743, Lucas v De la Cour, supra "What admissions bind in the case of partners? Those only which relate to matters connected with the partnership For instance, an admission by one partner, that the two had committed a trespass would not bind the other In this case the declaration related to nothing in which there was that community of interest which makes the declaration of one defendant evidence against the other" Fox v Waters, 12 A & E, 43, per Williams, J See Taylor, Ev, § 751, and see generally as to Partnership, ib, §§ 598—601, 743—754 787 Roscoe, N P Ev, 71, Steph. Dig, Art 17, Lindley, Partnership, 128, 162—166, Supp, 40 Pearson's Law of Agency, 428, 429, Act IX of 1872 (Indian Contract Act), ss 239—266

(12) Wood v Braddick, 1 Taunt, 104, Roscoe, N P Ev, 71, Ta, Ev, § 743

(13) Latch v Wedlake, 11 A & E, 959; Taylor, Ev, § 598, as to acknowledgments of debt by partner giving new period of limitation, v post

same cause, though the solicitor has, between the two trials, died, and the new solicitor has sent notice that he will make no admissions.(1) And a statement made in a case by a pleader on behalf of his client is admissible in evidence against that client in another case in which he is a party.(2) Admissions by a clerk or agent having the management of the cause stand on the same footing as admissions by the solicitor.(3) These admissions are receivable as those of the solicitor, not only against the client,(4) but against the solicitor in favour of the client (5) Admissions by counsel stand upon similar though admitted to prosecute or defend, represents but a counsel represents his client only when Therefore admissions made by counsel out of solicitor for the opposite side, are not evidence against his client Where, therefore, pending a rule nisi, the attorney served with the rule inferred, from a conversation, out of Court, with the counsel who had moved the rule, that the latter would forbear to move to make it absolute for a certain time, and the rule was made absolute by that counsel within the time mentioned, the Court refused to re-open the rule.(7) But statements made by counsel during the conduct of the case are primâ facie evidence against the client.(8) Besides admissions of fact made incidentally during litigation, they may also be expressly made for the purpose of dispensing with proof at the trial, in which case, in civil suits they are generally conclusive whether made by solicitor or counsel.(9)

Guardian and Ward.

A guardian has, under the Hindu law, a qualified power of dealing with the property of an infant under his charge. He can, in case of necessity, sell, charge, or let it for a long term. But the infant is not absolutely bound by the act of the guardian, he could, on attaining majority, recover the property if it had been disposed of without legal necessity; and in the case of an uncertificated guardian, the burden of proving legal necessity would, generally speaking, be on the person asserting it (10) But he will be bound by the act of his guardian, in the management of his estate, when bonâ fide and for his interest, and when it is such as the infant might reasonably and prudently have done for himself, if he had been of full age.(11) And where a contract has been validly entered into on his behalf and there is mutuality in such contract, it may be specifically enforced.(12) Where a minor will be bound by the act of his guar-

---

(1) Doe v. Bird, 7 C. & P., 6, but see also Elton v. Larkins, 5 C. & P., 385, 386

(2) Oomabuttee v Parushnath, 15 W. R., 135 (1871), but see Blackstone v. Wilson, 26 L. J., Ex., 229, and remarks in Pearson's Law of Agency in British India, p. 428; and see Doe v Ross, 7 M. & W., 102, 122

(3) Standage v. Creighton, 5 C. & P., 406, Taylor v. Williams, 2 B. & Ad., 845, 858, Taylor, Ev., § 774

(4) Taylor v. Williams, supra

(5) Ashford v. Price, 3 Stark., 185, Cordery, 83

(6) Richardson v Pete, 1 M. & G., 896; per Tindal, C. J., Taylor, Ev., § 783; and in one sense counsel is not the representative of the client, for he has the power to act without asking his client what he shall do. R. v. Registrar of Greenwich County Court, 15 Q. B. D., 54, 58 Nor is he the agent (in the ordinary sense) of the client, his position is a peculiar one, Colledge v Horn, 3 Bing., 119, 121; Matthews v Munster, L. R., 20 Q. B. D., 141, Swinfen v Lord Chelmsford, 5 H. & N., 890, see Wills, Ev., 118, and also s. 58, post

(7) Richardson v Pete, supra, and v. ib, as to the practice of entering warrants of attorney on the record

(8) Van Wart v Wolley, Ry. & M., 4; Haller v Worman, 2 F. & F., 165, affirmed 3 L. T., N. S. S., 741, Cordery, 83, see also notes to s. 58, post, and Taylor, Ev., § 783

(9) See s. 58, post and as to power of counsel and pleaders to compromise, v ib, and admissions in criminal trials, ib

(10) Jugul Kishore v Ananda Lal, 22 C., 545, 550 (1895), see Mayne's Hindu Law, 5th Ed., §§ 191—197

(11) Mayne's Hindu Law, § 196, and cases there cited As to the onus in a suit by a minor to set aside a compromise made by a guardian, see Lekraj Roy v Mahtabchund, 10 B. L. R., 35 (1871)

(12) Mir Sarwarjan v Fakharuddin Mahomed Chowdhury (1908), 34 C., 161 (Full Bench)

dian, there he may be affected by his declarations made at the same time and forming part of the res gestæ, in respect of the particular act which constitutes a proper exercise of the functions of guardianship. But although a guardian may have authority to manage the estate or possibly even to make a partition it does not follow that he would have power to make admissions of previous transactions, so as to affect the estate of his ward.(1) It has been held by the Madras(2) and Bombay(3) High [illegible] the contrary effect of the Calcutta High [illegible] to acknowledge a debt on the part of t[illegible] barred by li[illegible] own in each case [illegible] ward's property [illegible] also adopted this [illegible] post, p 234.

A partner charges the partnership by virtue of an agency to act for it. How far his admissions are receivable depends therefore o[illegible] as applied to partnership (8) Partners and joint-cont[illegible] agents for the purpose of making admissions, against [illegible] partnership transactions, or joint-contracts.(9) Admissions by partners and joint-contractors are receivable both on the ground of agency and of joint interest.(10) After primâ facie evidence of partnership, the declaration of one partner is evidence against his co-partners as to partnership business,(11) though the former is no party to the suit.(12) Each member of a firm, being the agent of the others for all purposes within the scope of the partnership business, admissions by one (provided the Court regards him as authorized to make the admission) are binding on all, unless, under the special circumstances of the case, an intention can be inferred, that a particular act should not be binding without the direct concurrence of each individual partner (13) "Though admissions by partners bind the firm when tendered by strangers, they do not necessarily have this effect when tendered inter se. Thus it has been held that, as between them-

Partners.

Interest.

(1) Suraj Mookhi v. Bhaguati Koonwar, 10 C L. R (P C), 377 (1881) But in Brojendra Coomar v The Chairman of the Dacca Municipality, 20 W. R, 223, 224 (1873), it was said that the guardian of an infant has no power to bind him by admissions As to an admission by the Court of Wards, see Ram Autar v Raja Muhammad, 24 I A., 107 (1897), as to admission made merely for probative purposes, see s 58, post

(2) Sobhanadri Appa v Sriramula, 17 M, 221 (1893), followed in Kailasa Padiachi v Ponnulannu Achi, 18 M, 456 (1894)

(3) Annapagaudu v Sangadigyapa, 26 B, 221 901), overruling Maharana Ranmalsingji v Vadilal Lakhatchand, 20 B, 61 (1894)

(4) Wajibun v Kadir Bukh, 13 C, 292, 295 (1886), followed in Chhato Ram v Bilto Ali, 26 C, 15 (1898), Tilak Singh v Chok Singh 1 All L J, 302 (1904)

(5) See cases in note, ante

(6) See Annapagauda v Sangadigyapa, supra

(7) Ram Charan Das v Gaya Prasad (1908), 30 A, 238 [Full Bench], dissenting from Tilak Singh v Chok Singh, supra

(8) Wigmore, Ev, § 1078

(9) Steph. Dig, Art. 17 Lucas v De la Cour, 1 M. & S, 249, Whitcomb v. Whiting, 1 S L C, 644; 2 Doug, 652, Kali Kissore v Gopi Mohan, 2 C W N, 166, 168 (1897), and see next note

(10) Taylor, Ev, §§ 593, 743, Story on Partnership, §§ 101—125, Re Whiteley (1891), L R, 1 Ch, 558, ante Steph Dig, Art 17, Kowsullia Sundari v Mukta Sundari, 11 C, 588, 591 (1885).

(11) Roscoe, N P Ev, 71, Nicholls v Dowding, 1 Stark, 81, Taylor, Ev, § 743, Lucas v De la Cour, supra, 'What admissions bind in the case of partners' Those only which relate to matters connected with the partnership For instance, an admission by one partner, that the two had committed a trespass would not bind the other In this case the declaration related to nothing in which there was that community of interest which makes the declaration of one defendant evidence against the other' Fox v Waters, 12 A & E, 43, per Williams, J See Taylor, Ev, § 751, and see generally as to Partnership, ib, §§ 598—601, 743—754, 787, Roscoe, N P Ev, 71; Steph Dig, Art 17, Lindley, Partnership, 128, 162—166, Supp, 40 Pearson's Law of Agency, 428, 429, Act IX of 1872 (Indian Contract Act), ss 239—266

(12) Wood v Braddick 1 Taunt, 104, Roscoe, N P Ev, 71, Ta Ev, § 743

(13) Latch v Wedlake, 11 A & E, 959, Taylor, Ev, § 598, as to acknowledgments of debt by partner giving new period of limitation, v. post

selves, entries in the partnership books(1) made without the knowledge of a partner will, as against him, be inadmissible,(2) and a similar rule holds as to directors and other members of a company inter se "(3) Admissions which are made by one partner, in fraud of the firm, are receivable against the latter (4) unless made collusively with the other side.(5)

"When several persons are jointly interested in the subject-matter of the suit, the general rule is, that the admissions of any one of these persons are receivable against himself and his fellows, whether they be all jointly suing or sued or whether an action be brought in favour of, or against one or more of, them separately, provided the admission relate to the subject-matter in dispute, and be made by the declarant in his character of a person jointly interested with the party against whom the evidence is tendered.(6) Thus, as has been already seen, the representation or misrepresentation of any fact made by one partner with respect to some partnership transaction will bind the firm,(7) and so also in the case of a joint-contract where A, B, C and D make a joint and several promissory note, either can make admissions about it as against the rest.(8) In order to render the admission of one person receivable in evidence against another, it must relate to some matter in which either both were jointly interested or one was derivatively interested(9) through the other, and mere community of interest will not be sufficient. Thus, where two persons were in partnership, and an action was brought against them as part-owners of a vessel, an admission made by the one, as to a matter which was not a subject of co-partnership but only of co-part-ownership, was held inadmissible against the other "(10) Nor will the admissions of one tenant-in-common be receivable against his co-tenant, though both are parties on the same side of the suit.(11) And an admission by a co-tenant as to who is the landlord of a holding is not binding on the other co-tenants (12) Nor is an admission by one ryot as to the rate at which he holds (though against his own interest) evidence to prove the rate at which another ryot holds (13) And, where a joint-contract is severed by the death of one of the contractors, nothing that is subsequently done or said by the survivor, can bind the personal representative of the deceased(14) nor can the acts or admissions of the executor bind the survivor (15) The rule that where there are several co-contractors, or persons engaged in one common business or dealing, a statement made by one of them, with reference to any transaction which forms part of their joint business, is admissible as against the others (16) was applied in the

(1) As to the principle on which partnership books are evidence, see Hill v. Manchester and Salford Waterworks Co, 5 B & Ad, 875

(2) Hutcheson v. Smith, 5 Ir Eq, 117, Stewart v. Law, 1 Ch App, 587, Lindley, Partnership, 536

(3) Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 209

(4) Rapp v. Latham, 2 B & Ald, 795, Moore v. Knight (1891), 1 Ch, 547

(5) Taylor, Ev, § 749, and cases there cited

(6) Taylor, Ev, § 743; cited and adopted in Kowsullick Sundari v. Multa Sundari, 11 C, 588, 590 (1888); s. 18, cl (1), ante, Whitcomb v. Whiting, 2 Doug, 652; Wood v. Braddick, 1 Taunt, 104, as to acknowledgments of joint-debts for the purpose of the law of limitation v. post, and Taylor, Ev, §§ 699, 701; 724—747

(7) Taylor, Ev, § 743, and v. ante.

(8) Whitcomb v. Whiting, 2 Doug, 652; 1 S. L. C, 644; Steph Dig, Art 17, illust (f)

(9) See s. 18, cl. (2) and post.

(10) Taylor, Ev, § 750, and other cases there and in §§ 751—753, cited, Steph Dig, Art 17; Jaggers v. Binnings, 1 Stark R, 64, Brodie v. Howard, 17 C B, 109 as to statements by co-executors and admissions by one of several trustees v. ante, first para of commentary

(11) Doe v. Brown, 4 Cowen, 483, 492

(12) Kali Kissen v. Gopi Mohan, 2 C W N, 166 (1897)

(13) Nurrohurry Mohanto v. Narainee Dassee, W R, F B, 23 (1862)

(14) Atkins v. Tredgold, 2 B & C, 23; Fordham v. Wallis, 10 Hare, 217, Slaymaker v. Gundackers, Ex, 10 Serg & R, 75

(15) Slater v. Lawson, 1 B & Ald, 396, Hathaway v. Haskell, 9 Pick, 24

(16) Per Garth, C J, in Kowsullick Sundari v. Multa Sundari, 11 C, 588, 590 (1888); citing Taylor, Ev, § 743, Kemble v. Farren, 3 C & P, 623; Lucas v. De la Cour, 1 M & S, 249

case of Kowsulliah Sundari Dasi v. Mukta Sundari Dasi.(1) The facts of this case were that, in a suit between a zemindar and his ijaradars for rent, a person who was one of several jotedars in the mehal, was called as a witness for the zemindar, and admitted the fact that an arrangement existed whereby he and his co-jotedars had agreed to pay rent to the zemindar direct: this suit was decided in favour of the zemindar. The ijaradars then brought a suit against the jotedars, amongst whom was the witness abovementioned, to recover the sum which the jotedars ought to have paid to the zemindar direct, and which the ijaradars had been decreed to pay. The jotedars disclaimed all liability to pay rent to the ijaradars. In this suit the evidence given by the jotedar in the zemindar's suit was received as evidence on behalf of the plaintiffs against all the defendants. It was contended that the statement of the jotedar might have been received as an admission against himself only, but not as against the other defendants, but it was held, on the principle above stated, that the evidence was admissible. As to admissions founded on derivative interest (v. post). In an action for [illegible] tion for tort, the admission of one [illegible] others. the same rule prevails in [illegible] ecognise any partnership or joint interest in crime.(2)

The joint interest must be proved independently. An apparent joint interest is obviously insufficient to make the admissions of one party receivable against his companions, where the reality of that interest is the point in controversy. A foundation must first be laid by showing primâ facie that a joint interest exists. Where, [illegible] admission of the fact of p[illegible] any of the others, to [illegible] partnership is shown to exist by independent proof satisfactory to the judge, that the admissions of one of the parties are received in order to affect the others.(3) In the case of admissions of persons who are not parties to the record, but who are interested in the subject-matter of the suit, the law looks chiefly to the real parties in interest, and gives to their admissions the same weight as though they were parties to the record.(4) Thus, the admissions of the cestui que trust of a bond, so far as his interest and that of the trustee are identical,(5) those of the persons interested in a policy effected in another's name for their benefit,(6) those of the ship-owners in an action by the master for freight,(7) and, in short, those of any persons who are represented in the cause by other parties, are receivable in evidence against their respective representatives (8) The admissions must have been made while the real party was actually interested (v post), and further they are only receivable so far as his own interests, or the interests of those who claim through him are concerned (9) And as a nominal party may be affected by the admissions of a real party, who, though not named on the record, has substantial interest(1) in the result;(2) so conversely the admissions of a representative if made while sustaining that character(3) and touching his principal's interest,(4) are in general receivable against the principal; and this is so, although the representative is a mere nominal party, or bare trustee, whose name is used only for purposes of form.(5) But the declarations of a guardian for the suit, or next friend of a minor are not receivable against the latter, because these persons, though their names appear on the record, are not in fact parties to the action, but are considered as officers of the Court specially appointed to look after the interests of the minor.(6)

Principal and surety.

"The admissions of a principal can seldom be received as evidence in an action against the surety upon his collateral [illegible] the main inquiry is whether the declarations of [illegible] the transaction of the business for which the sur[illegible] part of the res gestæ If so, they are admissible [illegible] ot. The surety [illegible] and not for wh[illegible] to proof of the [illegible] evidence, when it can be had; excluding quent to the act to which they relate, and out [illegible]"(7)

Limitation Act.

The Limitation Act deals with the subject of the effect of acknowledgments in writing to bar limitation But one of several joint-contractors, partners, executors, or mortgagees(8) is not chargeable by reason only of a written acknowledgment signed by or by the agent of, any other or others of them (9)

In England it appears now to be settled law that a payment on account of debt or a written acknowledgment made by a partner in the usual course of business is sufficient to take a partnership debt out of the Statute of Limitations as against the other members of the firm, the partner being presumed to

---

(1) The "interest" is so qualified in Steph Dig Art. 16, the words of s 18, are, however "any proprietary or pecuniary interest"

(2) ante, Taylor, Ev., §§ 750, 757 Roscoe, N P Ev, 67, Steph Dig, Art 16, Wills, Ev 120

(3) Legge v Edmonds, 25 L J, Ch, 125, Fennell v Thornton, 1 M & M, 51; Metters v Brown, 32 L J Ex, 340.

(4) Fox v Waters 12 A & E, 43, Stanton v. Percival, 5 H L C, 257

(5) Moriarty v L C & D Co, L R, 5 Q B, 314, what the plaintiff on the record has said is always evidence against him, its weight being more or less, even if the plaintiff is merely a nominal plaintiff, a bare trustee for another, though slight in such a case, still it would be admissible; ib, per Blackburn, J.; Steph. Dig, Art 16, Roscoe, N. P. Ev, 67; Bauerman v Radenius, 7 T. R., 663, Phillips, Ev, 362; though see Taylor, Ev, 741

(6) Taylor, Ev, § 742, and cases there cited; Phillips, Ev, 363, Roscoe, Ev, 63, as to the admissions of committees of lunatics see Stanton v. Percival, 5 H L C, 257 v. ante, as to admissions by guardians and as to solemn admissions for the purpose of trials, see s 58, post

(7) Taylor, Ev, § 785, and v ib, § 786, so if a man become surety in a bond conditioned for the faithful conduct of a clerk or collector, confessions of embezzlement, made by the principal after his dismissal, cannot be given in evidence if the surety be sued on the bond, Smith v. Whittingham, 6 C & P, 78, rough entries made by the principal in the course of his duty, or whereby he has charged himself with the receipt of money will, at least after his death, be received as proof against the surety not altogether as declarations made by him against his interest but because the entries were made by him in those accounts which it was his duty as clerk to keep and which the defendant had contracted that he should faithfully keep Whitnash v George 8 B & C, 556, Goss v. Watlington, 3 B & B, 132

(8) Act IX of 1908, s 19 The liability must appear upon the face of the acknowledgment and such liability cannot be read into it by proof aliunde Illapin v Nanu, 12 Mad L J, 101, s c, 26 M, 31, and as to the essentials of a valid acknowledgment, see Shrinivas Krishna Shiralkar v. Narhar Khanderao Khanedkar (1908), 32 B, 296

(9) Ib, s 21, see The Indian Limitation Act with Notes by H T Rivar, 4th Ed (1891), 50—60, 62, 63, and Field, Ev, 125—127; Steph. Dig, Art. 17, as to principal and surety, see Cockrill v. Sparkes, 1 H & C, 699; Re Powers, 30 Ch. D, 291 have authority to act for the firm in making the payment or giving the acknowledgment (1) After a dissolution, however, the authority of the later partners to bind one another in this respect is determined,(2) unless the facts are such as lead to the reference that the payment is made or acknowledgment given as agent for the o writing signed by the executor death jointly and severally acknowledgment only of the several liability of the deceased obligor.(4)

Persons from whom interest is derived

The subject of the second clause of s. 18 is usually included under the head of "privity,"(5) the rule being that the admissions of one person are evidence against another in respect of privity between them.(6) Statements made by persons in possession of property and qualifying or affecting their title thereto, are receivable against a party claiming through them by title subsequent to the admission (7) Thus where A sued B to recover a watch, which B claimed to retain as administrator of C, deceased, a declaration by C that he had given tion of her ornaments by will. The question was disallowed, but the Court of Appeal held that the question was improperly disallowed since a statement by the testatrix suggesting any inference as to the execution of a will would be an admission relevant against her representatives and would therefore be admissible as evidence (9) "The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them, is that they are identified in interest; and, of course, the rule extends no further than this identity (10) If a person who

(1) Goodwin v Parton (1880), 42 L T, 568, in re Tucker (1894), 3 Ch, 429, and see Taylor Ev, § 600, and § 598, and Lindley on Partnership, 6th Ed, p 271

(2) Watson v Woodman (1875), 20 Eq, 730

(3) In re Tucker, supra

(4) Read v Price (1900), 1 K B, 577, Roldam v Morley, 1 De G. & J, 1, In re Lacu (1907), 1 Ch, 330

(5) See Steph. Dig, Art 16, Taylor, Ev, § 787, and generally as to admissions on the ground of privity, ib, §§ 90, 758, 787—794, Wills, Ev, 121

(6) Taylor, Ev, § 787, the term 'privity" denotes mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property, and privies are distributed in several classes according to the manner of this relationship, viz (1) privies in blood, as heir and ancestor, and co-parceners, (2) privies in law, as executor to testator or administrator to intestate, and the like, (3) privies, in estate or interest, as donor and donee lessor and lessee, joint-tenants and the like, ib, § 787 See Bigelow's Estoppel, p 597

(7) Ib, s 18, cl (2), ante Phipson, Ev 3rd Ed, 203, Clark v Brindabun Chunder, W R, F B, 20 (1862), as to admissions by parties through whom others claim see also Forbes v Mir Mahomed, 5 B L R 529, 540 (1870), s c, 14 W R P C 28 13 M I A, 438, Mohun Shahoo v Chutter Mowar, 21 W R 34 (1874) Khesum Kurie v Gour Chunder, 5 W R 268 (1866), Nund Pandah v Gyadhur, 10 W R, 89 (1868); Awadh Beharee Singh v Ram Rai, 18 W R, 105 (1872), Sital Pershad v Monohur Das, 23 W R, 325 (1875), Krishnamma Ayyangar v Rajagopala Ayyangar, 18 M, 73 (1894), Anundmoyee Chowdhrain v Sheeb Chunder, Marshall, 455 (1862), Goreebollah Sircar v Boyd, 2 W R, 190 (1865) Inan Chowdhry v Doolar Chowdhry, 18 W. R, 347 (1872) Somu Gurukhal v Rangammal, 7 Mad H C R, 13 (1871)

(8) Smith v Smith, 3 Bing N C, 29

(9) Nana v Shankar, 3 Bom L R, 465 (1901), not, however under s 11 as the head-note suggest but this section But see also Atkinson v Morris, L R, 1897, P D 40 [statements made by a testator are not admissible to prove the execution by him of a will], which was held inapplicable as it was based on the fact that the English Wills Act prescribes a particular form of proof, while to the will in the case cited no such rule applied

(10) Taylor, Ev, § 787, 'It is to be observed that admissions are relevant only so far as the interests of the persons who made them or of those who claim through such persons are concerned On this principle a distinction must be made between statements made by an occupier of land in disparagement of his own title and statements which go to abridge or encumber the estate itself For example an admission by a patnidar or other holder of a subordinate tenure affects the patni or other tenure as against him and those who derive their title from him, but it will not affect the proprietary interest as against the zemindar or other superior, so as to encumber or diminish his rights.' Field, Ev, 129; see substantial interest(1) in the result;(2) so conversely the admissions of a representative if made while sustaining that character(3) and touching his principal's interest,(4) are in general receivable against the principal; and this is so, although the representative is a mere nominal party, or bare trustee, whose name is used only for purposes of form.(5) But the declarations of a guardian for the suit, or next friend of a minor are not receivable against the latter, because these persons, though their names appear on the record, are not in fact parties to the action, but are considered as officers of the Court specially appointed to look after the interests of the minor.(6)

Principal and surety.

"The admissions of a principal can seldom be received as evidence in an action against the surety upon his collateral [illegible] the main inquiry is whether the declarations of the transaction of the business for which the [illegible] not. The and not to proof [illegible] evidence, when it can be had; excluding all his declarations made subsequent to the act to which they relate, and out of the course of his official duty."(7)

Limitation Act.

The Limitation Act deals with the subject of the effect of acknowledgments in writing to bar limitation. But one of several [illegible] executors, [illegible] ledgment s[illegible]

In Eng[illegible] now to be settled law that a payment on account of debt or a written acknowledgment made by a partner in the usual course of business is sufficient to take a partnership debt out of the Statute of Limitations as against the other members of the firm, the partner being presumed to

---

(1) The "interest" is so qualified in Steph Dig., Art 16, the words of s 18, are, however "any proprietary or pecuniary interest"

(2) v ante Taylor, Ev, §§ 756, 757, Roscoe, N P Ev, 67, Steph Dig, Art 16 Wills, Ev 120

(3) Legge v Edmonds, 25 L J, Ch, 125, Fenwick v Thornton, 1 M & W, 51, Mellers v Brown, 32 L J, Ex, 340

(4) Fox v Waters 12 A & E 43 Stanton v Percival, 5 H L C, 257

(5) Moriarty v L C & D Co, L R, 5 Q B, 314, what the plaintiff on the record has said is always evidence against him, its weight being more or less, even if the plaintiff is merely a nominal plaintiff, a bare trustee for another, though slight in such a case, still it would be admissible; v, per Blackburn, J; Steph. Dig, Art 16, Roscoe, N. P Ev, 67, Bauerman v Radenius, 7 T R, 663; Phillips, Ev, 362, though see Taylor, Ev, 741

(6) Taylor, Ev, § 742, and cases there cited; Phillips, Ev, 363, Roscoe, Ev, 69, as to the admissions of committees of lunatics, see Stanton v. Percival, 5 H L C, 257 v ante, as to admissions by guardians and as to solemn admissions for the purpose of trials, see s 58, post

(7) Taylor, Ev, § 785, and v ib, § 786, so if a man become surety in a bond conditioned for the faithful conduct of a clerk or collector, confessions of embezzlement, made by the principal after his dismissal, cannot be given in evidence if the surety be sued on the bond, Smith v Whittingham, 6 C & P, 78, rough entries made by the principal in the course of his duty, or whereby he has charged himself with the receipt of money will, at least after his death be received as proof against the surety not altogether as declarations made by him against his interest, but because the entries were made by him in those accounts which it was his duty as clerk to keep, and which the defendant had contracted that he should faithfully keep Whitnash v George, 8 B & C, 556, Goss v. Wallington, 3 B & B, 132

(8) Act IX of 1908, s 19 The liability must appear upon the face of the acknowledgment and such liability cannot be read into it by proof aliunde. Bhajan v Nanu, 12 Mad L J, 101, s. c, 26 M., 34, and as to the essentials of a valid acknowledgment, see Shrinivas Krishna Shivalkar v. Narhar Khandeo Khanolkar (1908), 32 B, 296

(9) Ib, s 21, see The Indian Limitation Act with Notes by H T Rivaz, 4th Ed (1894), 59—60, 62, 63, and Field, Ev, 125—127, Steph Dig, Art. 17; as to principal and surety, see Cockell v. Sparkes, 1 H. & C, 699; Re Powers, 30 Ch D, 291.

have authority to act for the firm in making the payment or giving the acknowledgment.(1) After a dissolution, however, the authority of the later partners to bind one another in this respect is determined,(2) unless the facts are such as lead to the reference that the payment is made or acknowledgment given as agent for the o[illegible] writing signed by the executor [illegible] death jointly and severally [illegible] acknowledgment only of the several liability of the deceased obligor.(4)

The subject of the second clause of s. 18 is usually included under the head of "privity."(5) the rule being that the admissions of one person are evidence against another in respect of privity between them.(6) Statements made by persons in possession of property and qualifying or affecting their title thereto, are receivable against a party claiming through them by title subsequent to the admission.(7) Thus where A sued B to recover a watch, which B claimed to retain as administrator of C deceased, a declaration by C that he had given the watch to A was held to be evidence against B.(8) In proceedings for probate of a will a witness who attended on the testatrix during her last illness was asked to depose to a statement made to the witness by the testatrix as to a disposition of her ornaments by will. The question was disallowed, but the Court of Appeal held that the question was improperly disallowed since a statement by the testatrix suggesting any inference as to the execution of a will would be an admission relevant against her representatives and would therefore be admissible as evidence.(9) "The ground upon which admissions bind those in privity with the party making them, is that they are identified in interest; and, of course, the rule extends no further than this identity.(10) If a person who

Persons having an interest in property

(1) Goodwin v Parton (1880), 42 L. T., 568, in re Tucker (1834), 3 Ch., 429, and see Taylor Ev., § 600, and § 598, and Lindley on Partnership, 6th Ed., p. 271

(2) Watson v Woodman (1875), 20 Eq., 730

(3) In re Tucker, supra

(4) Read v Price (1909), 1 K. B. 577, Rotdam v. Morley, 1 De G. & J., 1, In re Lacy (1907), 1 Ch., 330

(5) See Steph. Dig., Art 16, Taylor, Ev., § 787, and generally as to admissions on the ground of privity, ib, §§ 90, 758, 787—794, Wills, Ev., 121

(6) Taylor, Ev., § 787, the term 'privity" denotes mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property and privies are distributed in several classes according to the manner of this relationship, viz (1) privies in blood, as heir and ancestor, and co-parceners, (2) privies in law, as executor to testator or administrator to intestate, and the like, (3) privies, in estate or interest, as donor and donee, lessor and lessee, joint-tenants and the like, ib, § 787 See Bigelow's Estoppel, p 597

(7) Ib, s 18, cl (2), ante, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 203, Clark v Bi[illegible]ddahun Chunder, W. R. F. B., 20 (1862), as to admissions by parties through whom others claim, see also Forbes v Mir Mahomed 5 B. L. R., 529, 540 (1870), s. c., 14 W. R. P. C., 28, 13 M. I. A., 438, Mohun Shahoo v Chuttur Mo[illegible]ur, 21 W. R., 34 (1874) Khenum Kurce v Ku[illegible]ur Chunder, 5 W. R., 268 (1866), Nund Pun[illegible] v. Gyadhur, 10 W. R., 89 (1868), Lindh Behari [illegible] Singh v. Ram Ran, 18 W. R. 105 (1872), Sital Pershad v Monohur Dass, 23 W. R. 325 (1875), Krishnasami Iyyangar v. Rajagopala Aiyangar, 18 M., 73 (1894), Anundmoyee Chowdhrain v Sheeb Chunder, Marshall, 455 (1862), Goreebullah Sircar v Boyd, 2 W. R., 190 (1865) Jnan Choudhry v Dudar Choudhry, 18 W. R., 347 (1872) Sonu Garukhal v Ranjammal, 7 Mad H. C. R., 13 (1871)

(8) Smith v Smith 3 Bing N. C., 29

(9) Nana v Shankar, 3 Bom. L. R., 465 (1901), not however under s 11 as the head-note suggest but this section But see also Hinson v Morris, L. R., 1897, P. D. 40 [statements made by a testator are not admissible to prove the execution by him of a will] which was held inapplicable as it was based on the fact that the English Wills Act prescribes a particular form of proof, while to the will in the case cited no such rule applied

(10) Taylor, Ev., § 787, "It is to be observed that admissions are relevant only so far as the interests of the persons who made them or of those who claim through such persons are concerned On this principle a distinction must be made between statements made by an occupier of land in disparagement of his own title, and statements which go to abridge or encumber the estate itself For example an admission by a patnidar or other holder of a subordinate tenure affects the patni or other tenure as against him and those who derive their title from him but it will not affect the proprietary interest as against the zemindar or other superior, so as to encumber or diminish his rights" Full, Ev 129, see adopts another makes an admission after the adoption, this admission will not bind the person it has been said effect of admissi person adopted, from the adopter in such a way as to make the admission evidence against him.(1) The cases of coparceners and joint-tenants are assimilated to those of joint-promisers, partners, and others having a joint interest, which have been already considered. In other cases, where the party by his admissions has qualified tenant of a third person are admissible to show the seisin of that person in an action brought by him against the heir for the land (2) and the declarations of an intestate right."(4)

ruree at a given rent and the surbarakar of their zemindar, admitted their right on behalf of the zemindar, who himself filed a petition corroborating his surbarakar's statement, it was held that these admissions would bind any subsequent zemindar not being an auction-purchaser at a sale for arrears of Government revenue (5) The same principle holds in regard to admissions made by the assignor of a personal contract or chattel previous to the assignment, where the assignee must recover through the title of the assignor and succeeds only to that title as it stood at the time of its transfer (6) But a distinction must be drawn between the case of an assignee of land or other property and that of an ordinary assignee of a negotiable instrument For, whereas the former has in general no title unless his assignor had, the latter may have a good title though his assignor had none Thus the declaration, of a former holder of a note, showing that it was given without consideration, though made while he held the note, were held to be not admissible against the indorsee, to whom the instrument had been transferred on good consideration, and before it was overdue.(7) For such an indorsee derives his title from the nature of the instrument itself, and not through the previous holder Accordingly, unless the plaintiff on a bill or note stands on the title of a former holder (as if he have taken the bill overdue or without consideration), the declarations of such former holder are not evidence against him.(8)

Sales in execution and for arrears of revenue

The purchaser of an estate sold for arrears of revenue is not privy in estate to the defaulting proprietor. He does not derive his title from him, and is bound neither by his acts nor by his laches;(1) nor by his admissions;(2) nor by a degree against him,(3) and proceedings between the defaulting proprietor and third parties with respect to the title to the land are not admissible in evidence in a subsequent suit brought by the auction-purchaser as against him.(4)

It has in some cases(5) been considered that a similar rule applies to ordinary execution-sales and that a purchaser at such a sale is not in privity with, or the representative in interest of, the judgment-debtor so as to be affected by the admissions or bound by the estoppel of the latter. This view appears to have been based on a misapprehension(6) of certain Privy Council decisions in which it was pointed out there is a great distinction between a private sale in satisfaction of a decree and a sale in execution of a decree.(7) In both cases the purchaser merely acquires the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor;(8) and therefore a suit to enforce an interest purchased at an execution-sale was held to be barred as against such purchaser, since if the interest had remained in the judgment-debtor, a suit to enforce such interest would have been barred as against him.(9) But there is this distinction between a private sale in satisfaction of a decree and a sale in execution of a decree that under the former, the purchaser derives title through the vendor and cannot acquire a better title than that of the vendor. Under the latter the purchaser notwithstanding he acquires merely the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor, acquires that title by operation of law adversely to the judgment-debtor, and freed from all alienations or incumbrances effected by him, subsequently to the attachment of the property sold in execution.(10) The Privy Council

(1) Moonshee Buzlool v. Pran Dhan, 8 W. R., 222 (1867) (and v. sh., p. 62) followed in Radha Gobind v. Rakhal Das, 12 C., 82, 90 (1885). Watson & Co v. Nobin Mohun, 10 W. R., 72 (1868) as to the rights of the auction-purchaser, see Kooldeep Narain v. Government of India, 11 B. L. R. 71 (1871), Forbes v. Meer Mahomed, 20 W. R. (P. C.), 44 (1873).

(2) Rungo Monee v. Raj Coomaree, 6 W. R., 197 (1866).

(3) Ib., Radha v. Rakhal, supra, 12 C., 82, 90, but as to purchasers of patni taluqs sold under Reg. VIII of 1819, see sh. at p. 90, and Taraprasad v. Pam Narain, 6 B. L. R. App. 5 (1870), 14 W. R., 283.

(4) Radha Gobind v. Rakhal Das, supra.

(5) Lala Parbhu v. Mylne, 14 C., 401, 411—414 (1887), Gour Sundar v. Hem Chunder, 16 C. 355, 360 (1889). Bashi Chunder v. Enayet Ali, 20 C., 236, 239 (1892), for earlier decisions, see Rungo Monee v. Raj Coomaree, 6 W. R., 197 (1866), Musst. Imrit v. Lalla Debe, 18 W. R., 200 (1872).

(6) Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub, 24 C. 75—77 (1896).

(7) Dinendronath Sannial v. Ram Kumar Ghose, 7 C., 107, 118, s. c., 8 I. A., 65, 10 C. L. R., 281 (1880), Srimati Anandmayi v. Dhanendra Chandra, 8 B. L. R. (P. C.), 122, 127 (1871).

(8) Ib. All that is sold and bought at an execution-sale is the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor with all its defects, Dorab Ally v. Abdool Azeez, 5 I. A., 116, 125 (1878), followed in Sundara Gopalan v. Venkatavarada Ayyangar, 17 M., 228 (1893) the creditor takes the property subject to all equities which would affect it in the debtor's hands, Megji Hansraj v. Ramji Jonta, 8 Bom. H. C. R., 169, 174, 175 (1871) Sobhag Chand v. Bhaichand, 6 B., 193, 202 (1882), as to the different means available to purchasers of investigating title in the respective cases of private and execution-sales, see Dorab Ally v. Abdool Azeez, supra, 125. See also Kishan Lall v. Ganga Ram, 13 A. 28 (1890), Bashi Chunder v. Enayet Ali, 20 C., 236, 239 (1892) Bapuji Balal v. Satyabhamabai 6 B., 490 (1882).

(9) Raja Enayet v. Giridhari Lal, 2 B. L. R. (P. C.), 75, 78 (1869), explained in Sobhag Chand v. Bhaichand, 6 B., 193, 205 (1882), and see Kishna Lal v. Ganga Ram, supra.

(10) Dinendronath Sannial v. Ramkumar Ghose, supra, see also Srimati Anandmayi v. Dhanendra Chandra, 8 B. L. R. (P. C.), 122, 127 (1871), 14 M. I. A., 101, explained in Sobhag Chand v. Bhaichand, 6 B., 193, 205 (1882), Musst. Imrit v. Lalla Debee 18 W. R., 200 (1872), Lalu Muljí v. Kashibai 10 B., 400, 405 (1886), Lala Parbhu v. Mylne 14 C., 401, 413 (1887), Bashi Chunder v. Enayet Ali, 20 C., 236, 239 (1892), in the case of Gour Sundar v. Hem Chunder, 16 C., 355 (189), it was held that a purchaser at a public sale in execution of a decree is not, but a purchaser at a private sale is, the representative of the judgment-decisions only show that the rights of an execution-purchaser are in some respects different from those at a private sale. They do not afford any basis for the aforementioned broad proposition deduced from them (1) It is true that an execution-purchaser makes his purchase not from the judgment-debtor and often against his wish, and he is not bound by some of the acts of the judgment-debtor such as alienations made by the latter to defeat the decree, but that does not show that his rights are not derived from the judgment-debtor, or that he is not the representative in interest of the judgment-debtor in any sense or for any purpose Even a purchaser at a private sale is not bound by any prior alienation made by the vendor to defraud him, but that does not show that such purchaser is not a representative in interest of the vendor. Because the rights of an execution-purchaser and a purchaser at a private sale are in some respects different, it does not follow that the execution-purchaser is not to be regarded as a representative in interest of the judgment-debtor even in those respects in which, and for those purposes for which, his rights are not higher than those of the judgment-debtor whose right, title and interest he has purchased (2) In the previous edition of this work it was pointed out in respect of admissions made by a judgment-debtor prior to attachment that in so far as the purchaser acquires only the title of the debtor, he should acquire it as qualified by the latter's admissions, though certain decisions of the Calcutta High Court would appear to have held otherwise The view thus taken received support from some of the earlier cases,(3) and has since been confirmed by recent decisions of the Privy Council(4) and the Calcutta High Court (5) The Judicial Committee have held that the equitable principle of estoppel laid down in the case of Ram Coomar Koondoo v. Macqueen,(6) which applies to any person, is equally binding on the purchaser of his right, title and interest at a sale in execution of a decree (7) If such a purchaser may be estopped he may à fortiori be affected by the admissions of the judgment-debtor whose interest he has purchased The result of the cases would therefore appear to be that a purchaser at an ordinary execution-sale is in privity with, and the representative in interest of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of the twenty-first section, post, so as to be affected by the latter's admissions Prior to the last-mentioned decision of the Privy Council it had been held that, where the execution-purchaser is himself an actual party to the admission, it may, so far as it can be considered as his, be used as evidence against him,(8) and that a mortgagee differed from a debtor, followed in Janki Prasad v. Ulfat Ali, 16 A., 284 (1894), but dissented from in Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub, 24 C., 62 (1896), (as to the meaning of the terms "representative" and "legal representative," see Badri Narain v. Joy Kissen, 16 A., 483, 487 (1894), Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub, 24 C., 62, 71 (1896), and s. 21, post] See also Ishwarnath Chardu v. Subraya Shivapa, 15 B., 290 (1890); referred to in Burjorji Dorabji v. Dhunbai, 16 B., 21 (1891)

---

(1) Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub, 24 C., 76 (1896), the case of Lala Parbhu v. Mylne, supra, is based on an erroneous interpretation of the Privy Council decisions cited, supra, and is followed by Lachi Chunder v. Enayet Ali, supra See 24 C. at p. 77; approved in Gulzari Mal v. Madho Ram, P. R., 1 All. L. J., 65 (1904).

(2) Ib., 75, 76.

(3) Unnopurna Dasee v. Nafar Poddar, 12 W. R., 148 (1874). [The purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree is the 'representative in interest' of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of the Evidence Act (1 of 1872), s. 21] referred to in Kishan Lal v. Ganga Ram, 13 A., 28, 51 (1890), Musst. Imrit v. Lalla Debee (1872), supra, "at the utmost the statements would be nothing more than evidence, certainly they will not conclude him," per Couch, C. J.

(4) Mahomed Mozuffer v. Kishori Mohun, 22 C., 909 (1895), s. c., 22 I. A., 129, 1 C. W. N., 38.

(5) Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub, 24 C., 62 (1896)

(6) L. R., I. A., Sup. Vol., 40, 43; s. c., 11 B. L. R., 46; 18 W. R., 166.

(7) Mahomed Mozuffer v. Kishori Mohun, 22 C., 909, 910 (1895); Ishan Chunder v. Beni Madhub, 24 C., 62, 77 (1896)

(8) Musst. Imrit v. Lalla Debee, 18 W. R., 200 (1872)

simple money-creditor in that he derives his title directly from the mortgagor, and is bound by his previous conduct in respect of the property mortgaged,(1) therefore, a purchase by a mortgagee at a sale in execution of a decree upon his mortgage, of the right, title and interest of the mortgagor, who has been estopped from asserting a title to the property as against certain parties, does not place such mortgagee in a better position as regards the estoppel, which, notwithstanding the purchase is binding upon him (2) It has also been held by the Madras High Court(3) that it was a well-known principle that a purchaser at a Court-sale represents the judgment-debtor to the extent of such right, title and interest as he had in the property purchased at the date of the sale and represents the execution-creditor in so far as he had a right, to bring such right, title and interest to sale in satisfaction of his decree, and that when the plea of estoppel is available to a decree-holder, it is likewise available to the purchaser at the execution-sale as his representative or as one claiming under him. It has, however, also been held that a Court-sale cannot by itself be taken to create an estoppel either in favour of or against a Court-purchaser as against or in favour of the person whose right, title and interest, the Court-purchaser buys from the Court, because the Court-purchaser derives his title from proceedings, which are entirely inritum as regards the judgment-debtor.(4) And in a recent case where property purchased in execution of a money decree was subject to a mortgage, but not a mortgage executed by the judgment-debtor, although he would have been estopped from denying liability under the mortgage on account of his conduct in the mortgage-transaction, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the purchaser was bound equally with the judgment-debtor inasmuch as the right, title and interest of the latter had passed to him and his purchase was therefore subject to the mortgage.(5)

A man may bind himself by an admission, but he cannot bind by his admission those who do not claim under him, but who before the admission had acquired a right.(6) But part payment of the mortgage debt by the mortgagor, and appearing in his handwriting, will give a fresh start of limitation to the mortgagee, even as against a person who had purchased a portion of such mortgaged property prior to such payment.(7)

The admissions must be made during the continuance of the interest.

Statements whether made by parties interested,(8) or by persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived their interest,(9) are admissions only if they are made during the continuance of the interest of the persons making the statement.(10) It would be manifestly unjust that a person, who has parted with his interest in property, should be empowered to divest the right of another claiming under him, by any statement which he may choose to make.(11) And so admissions made by a debtor (whose property has been sold) subsequently to such sale are not evidence against the purchaser of the property.(12) "A statement relating to property, made by a person when

(1) Lala Parbhu v. Wyline, supra, at p. 413

(2) Poreshnath Mookerjee v Anathnath Deb, 9 C., 265 (1882), 9 I A, 147, reported in lower Court sub nom, Anathnath Deb v Bishtu Chunder, 4 C., 783, see also Keshore Mohun v. Mahomed Mozuffer, 18 C, 188, 198 (1890), s c, in appeal to Privy Council, 22 C, 909 (1895)

(3) Krishnabhupati Deru v Vikrama Deru, 18 M, 13, 18 (1894)

(4) Gajanam v Nilo, 6 Bom. L. R., 864 (1904).

(5) Pravag Rag v Sidhu Prasad Tewari (1908), 35 C., 877; and as to the estoppel, see Sarat Chandra Dey v. Gopal Chandra Laha (1892), 20 C., 296; Porter v. Incell (1905), 10 C. W. N., 313; and Ganesh v Purshottam (1908), 33 B., 311.

(6) Mowatt v. Castle Steel and Iron Works Co., 14 Ch D, 58, 63

(7) Domi Lal Sahu v Roshan Dubey, 11 C W N, 107; Krishna Chandra Saha v Bhairab Chandra Saha, 9 C W. N, 868, 32 C, 1077

(8) S 18, cl. (1), ante

(9) S 18, cl. (2), ante

(10) S 18 ante, Taylor, Ev., §§ 794, 598, 599

(11) Doe v Webber, 1 A. & E., 740, Khenum Kuree v Gour Chunder, 5 W. R., 268 (1866), Taylor, Ev., § 794

(12) Khenum Kuree v. Gour Chander, supra.

in possession of that property may be evidence against himself and all persons deriving the property from him after the statement; but a statement made by a former owner that he had conveyed to a particular person, could not possibly be evidence against third persons. If it were so, A might sell and convey to B, and afterwards declare that he had sold and conveyed to C, and C might use the statement as evidence in a suit brought by him to turn B out of possession. If such evidence were admissible no man's property would be safe."(1) As for partners, by the very act of association each is constituted the Agent of the others and of the firm for all purposes within the scope of the partnership concern, and his acts and declarations bind his co-partners and the firm, unless he has in fact no authority to act for the firm in the particular matter, and the person with whom he is dealing either knows that he has no authority or does not know or believe him to be a partner (2) But an admission made by a partner before the partnership is not evidence against his co-partner (3) After dissolution of a partnership the subsequent acts of the individual members are binding on themselves alone, except so far as they may be acts necessary to wind up the affairs of the partnership or to complete transactions begun, but unfinished at the time of the dissolution (4) Declarations and admissions made after the dissolution relating to the previous business of the firm are admissible against all the partners interested in the transaction (5) Bankruptcy,(6) or death will sever the joint-interest, therefore, in the latter case, the admissions of the survivors will not bind the estate of the deceased,(7) nor conversely will those of his representatives bind the survivors (8) So, also, the declaration of a bankrupt, though good evidence to charge his estate with debt, if made before his bankruptcy is no admissible at all if it were made afterwards.(9) This equitable doctrine applies to the cases of vendor and vendee, grantor and grantee, and generally, to all cases of rights acquired, in good faith, previous to the time of making the admission in question (10)

To be admissible the declarations must qualify or affect the title of the predecessor and not relate to independent matters. The statement must be one which directly affects the person's interest in the property itself, a mere statement against his interest in other respects, as, for instance, that he is in debt, whence it might be inferred that he would be likely to part with or charge his property, does not come within this rule.(11) It may further be added that it is not sufficient that the interest be subsequent in point of time; it must (as the words of the section point out) have been derived from the person who made the statement sought to be used as an admission.(12).

Proof of admissions

These admissions by third persons, as they derive their legal force from the relation of the party making them to the property in question, may be proved by any witness who heard them, without calling the party by whom they were made. The question is, whether he made the admission, and not merely whether the fact is as he admitted it to be. Its truth, where the admission is not conclusive,—and it seldom is so,—may be controverted by other testimony, and even by calling the party himself, but it is not

(1) Per curiam in Clarke v. Bindabun Chunder, W. R., F. B., 20 (1862); s. c., Marshall, 75

(2) Taylor, 598.

(3) Tunley v. Evans, 2 Dowl. & L., 747; Call v. Howard, 3 Stark., 3

(4) Taylor, 598

(5) Pritchard v. Draper (1830), 1 Russ. & My., 191

(6) In re Widmer's Trusts, 34 W. R. (Eng.), 537

(7) Atkins v. Tredgold, 2 B. & C., 23

(8) Slater v. Lawson, 1 B. & Ad., 396

(9) Bateman v. Bailey, 5 T. R., 513

(10) Taylor, Ev., § 794, and cases there cited.

(11) Beauchamp v. Parry, 1 B. & Ad., 89, Wills, Ev., 122; Code v. Linham, 3 Ex., 183; Taylor, Ev., § 792.

(12) Field Ev., 129, s. 18, cl. (2), ante necessary to produce him for his declarations, when admissible at all, will be received as original evidence, and not as hearsay.(1)

Admissions by strangers.

Statements by strangers to a proceeding are not generally relevant as against the parties,(2) but in some cases, the admissions of third persons, strangers to the suit, are receivable.(3) "These exceptions to the general rule arise when the issue is substantially upon the mutual rights of such persons at a particular time; in which cases the practice is to let in such evidence, in general, as would be legally admissible in an action between the parties themselves. Thus the admissions of a bankrupt made before the act of bankruptcy, are receivable, in proof of the petitioning-creditor's debt,(4) but if made after the act of bankruptcy, though admissible against himself,(5) they cannot furnish evidence against the trustee, because of the intervening rights of creditors, and the danger of fraud "(6) So his answers on public examination are inadmissible even in subsequent stages of the same bankruptcy against all parties other than himself.(7) In actions against sheriffs for not executing process against debtors, statements of the debtor admitting his debt to be due to the execution-creditor are relevant as against the sheriff.(8) The admissions of a person whose position in relation to property in suit it is necessary for one party to prove against another, are in the nature of original evidence, and not hearsay, though such person is alive and has not been cited as a witness.(9) Referees.

"The admissions of a third person are also receivable in evidence against the party who has expressly referred another to him for information in regard to an uncertain or disputed matter. In such cases the party is bound by the declarations of the party referred to in the same manner, and to the same extent, as if they were made by himself."(10) Thus in an action against executors, the defendants having written to the plaintiff that if she wished for further information as to the assets it could be obtained from a certain merchant—the replies of the merchant were held receivable against the executors (11) In the application of this principle, it matters not whether the question referred to be one of law or of fact, whether the person to whom reference is made, have or have not any peculiar knowledge on the subject; or whether the statements of the referee be adduced in evidence in an action on contract, or in an action for tort."(12) Whether the answer of

---

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 793

(2) Steph Dig., Art 18, Coole v Braham, 3 Ex., 183, Taylor, Ev., § 740, Barough v White, 4 B & C., 328

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 759, see s 19, ante

(4) See Coole v Braham, 3 Ex., 183

(5) Jarnett v Leonard, 2 M & S., 265, in action by the trustees of bankrupts an admission by the bankrupt of the petitioning-creditor's debt is deemed to be relevant against the defendants, Steph. Dig., Art. 18

(6) Taylor, Ev., § 759, and cases there cited, see also Ex parte Edwards, Re Tollemache, 14 Q B D., 415, Ex parte Revell, Re Tollemache, 13 Q B D., 720

(7) Re Brunner, 19 Q B D 572

(8) Steph Dig Art 18, Kempland v Macauley, Peake, 95, Williams v Bridges, 2 Stark., 42, as to admissions of an under-sheriff or bailiff against the sheriff, see Snowball v Gandricle, 4 B. & Ad., 541, Jacobs v Humphrey, 2 C & M., 413; Scott v Marshall, 2 C & J., 238, Wirth v. Miles, 1 Camp., 389, Edwards on Execution, p. 72

(9) Ali Moidin v Playachamidathil, 5 M., 239 (1882)

(10) Taylor, Ev., § 760 see s 20, ante, Roscoe, N P Ev., 69 Steph Dig Art 19, this comes very near to the case of arbitration, ib, note xiii

(11) Williams v Innes, 1 Camp., 364, see also Daniel v Pitt, 1 Camp., 366*n* Pea Ad Cas., 238, as to the applicability of the rule in criminal cases, see R v Mallory, 15 Cox, 458 [the accused told a constable that his wife would make out a list of certain property, a list afterwards made out by her and handed to the constable in the husband's presence was held evidence against the latter. Coleridge, C J., however expressly refrained from giving an opinion upon the question if the prisoner had been absent] As to reference by accused to examination of others taken in his presence see Russ Cr., 487, note (E)

(12) Taylor, Ev., § 761, and cases there cited.

a person th· referred to is conclusive against the party is, in England, a matter of some doubt.(1) They will not be so conclusive under this Act unless the admission operates as an estoppel.(2) To render the declarations of a person referred to equivalent to a party's own admission, it is not necessary that the reference should have been made by express words; but it will suffice if the party by his conduct has tacitly evinced an intention to rely on the statements as correct. Therefore, where a party on being questioned by means of an interpreter, gave his answers through the same medium, it was held that the language of the interpreter should be considered as that of the party; and that, consequently, it might be proved by any person who heard it, without calling the interpreter himself.(2)

On the same principle(3) (though as a general rule, the affidavits, depositions or viva voce statements of a party's witnesses are not receivable against him in subsequent proceedings),(4) documents or testimony which a party has expressly caused to be made, or knowingly used as true, in a judicial proceeding, for the purpose of proving a particular fact, are evidence against him in subsequent proceedings to prove the same fact, even on behalf of strangers.(5)

Proof of admissions against persons making them and by or on their behalf.

21. Admissions are relevant, and may be proved as against the person who makes them, or his representative in interest; but they cannot be proved by or on behalf of the person who makes them, or by his representative in interest, except(6) in the following cases:—

(1) An admission may be proved by, or on behalf of, the person making it, when it is of such a nature that, if the person making it were dead, it would be relevant as between third persons under section 32.

(2) An admission may be proved by, or on behalf of, the person making it, when it consists of a statement of the existence of any state of mind or body, relevant or in issue, made at or about the time when such state of mind or body existed, and is accompanied by conduct rendering its falsehood improbable.

(3) An admission may be proved by, or on behalf of, the person making it, if it is relevant otherwise than as an admission.

---

(1) v. s. 31, post.

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 763; Fabrigas v. Mostyn, 20 How. St. Tr., 122, 123.

(3) The following class of cases are explained in Bodleau v. Rullin, 2 Exch., 665, 675, as instances of admissions by conduct; see Richards v. Morgan, 4 B. & S., 641, 657, 658, in which the grounds upon which such evidence is admitted is considered.

(4) Gardner v. Moult, 10 A. & E., 464; Brickell v. Hulse, 7 A. & E., 454; Richards v. Morgan, supra.

(5) Brickell v. Hulse, supra; Gardner v. Moult, supra; Boileau v. Rullin, supra; Richards v. Morgan, supra; Pritchard v. Bagshaw, 20 L. J., C. P., 161; 11 C. B., 459; White v. Dowling, 8 Ir. L. R., 128; Taylor Ev., §§ 763, 764.

(6) Miller v. Babu Madho, 19 A., 76 (1896); s. c., 23 I. A., 106.

Illustrations.

(a) The question between A and B is, whether a certain deed is or is not forged. A affirms that it is genuine, B that it is forged.

A may prove a statement by B that the deed is genuine, and B may prove a statement by A that the deed is forged: but A cannot prove a statement by himself that the deed is genuine, nor can B prove a statement by himself that the deed is forged.

(b) A, the captain of a ship, is tried for casting her away.

Evidence is given to show that the ship was taken out of her proper course.

A produces a book kept by him in the ordinary course of his business, showing observations alleged to have been taken by him from day to day, and indicating that the ship was not taken out of her proper course. A may prove these statements, because they would be admissible between third parties, if he were dead, under section 32, clause (2).

(c) A is accused of a crime committed by him at Calcutta.

He produces a letter written by himself, and dated at Lahore on that day, and bearing the Lahore post-mark of that day.

The statement in the date of the letter is admissible, because, if A were dead, it would be admissible under section 32, clause (2).

(d) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen.

He offers to prove that he refused to sell them below their value. A may prove these statements, though they are admissions, because they are explanatory of conduct influenced by facts in issue.

(e) A is accused of fraudulently having in his possession counterfeit coin which he knew to be counterfeit

He offers to prove that he asked a skilful person to examine the coin, as he doubted whether it was counterfeit or not, and that that person did examine it and told him it was genuine.

A may prove these facts for the reasons stated in the last preceding illustration.

Principle.—This section is an affirmance of the well-known principle that a party's admissions are only evidence against himself and those claiming through him and not against strangers, and of the rule of law with regard to self-regarding evidence, that when in the self-serving form, it is not in general receivable, which is itself a branch of the general rule that a man shall not be allowed to make evidence for himself (1) Not only would it be manifestly unsafe to allow a person to make admissions in his own favour which should affect his adversary,(2) but also such evidence has, if any, but a very slight and remote probative force.(3) With regard to the exceptions to this general rule, see the notes to this section and thirty-second section, post.

---

(1) Best, Ev., § 519, Norton, Ev., 151, and p. 244, notes (2), (3) & (4), post

(2) Ib, v ante, p 208.

(3) "The reason of the rule is obvious If A says, 'B owes me money,' the mere fact that he says so, does not even tend to prove the debt. If the statement has any value at all, it must be derived from some fact which lies beyond it; for instance, A's recollection of his having lent the money. To that fact, of course, A can testify, but his subsequent assertions add nothing to what he has to say If, on the other hand, A had said, 'B does not owe me anything,' this is a fact of which B might make use and which might be decisive of the case" Steph Dig., Introd., 164, 165, Norton, Ev., 151. See Best, Ev., s 519 Illust (a) gives a double example showing how the same statement may be used against, but not for the interest of the party making it.

s. 17 ("Admission.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 ("Proof.")
s. 32 (Statements by persons who cannot be called as a witness)
s. 14 (States of mind or body.)

Steph. Dig., Art. 15; Best, Ev., §§ 519—520; Norton, Ev., 151.

COMMENTARY

As against the person who makes them

"As against the person who makes them" means "as against the person by or on whose behalf they are made "(1) Thus if admissions are made by a referee they would not ordinarily be relevant against him as "the person who makes them," but against the referor on whose behalf and as whose agent they are made The expression "person who makes them" must, therefore, mean the person who makes them either personally or through others by whose admission he is bound With the exceptions mentioned in the notes to the preceding sections, the rule is absolute that an admission can only be read against the party making it and that party's representatives in interest (2) It is a well-established rule of law, that estoppels bind parties and privies, not strangers,(3) and the same rule applies to all admissions and not to estoppels only.(4) And therefore evidence of an admission out of Court by an arbitrator that he made his award improperly, as, for example, by collusion or in consequence of a bribe, is not admissible against a party to the proceedings in support of an application to set aside the award (5) The principle upon which the rule rests that the admissions can only be proved as against the party has been already considered, and in accordance with this rule it has been held that where the accounts of a mortgagee who has been in possession are being taken, his income-tax papers are inadmissible as evidence in his favour, though they may be used against him.(6) Notwithstanding the provisions of this section and the thirty-second section post, road-cess returns cannot, under s 95 of the Road Cess Act, be used as evidence in favour of the person submitting them (7) A road-cess return, signed by one of the plaintiff's vendors and the defendant, was filed by the plaintiff's vendors. It consisted of two parts in one of which the joint properties of the plaintiff's vendors and the defendant were set out, and in the other the properties belonging to the defendant alone were mentioned. In a suit by the plaintiff for some lands as being the joint property of his vendors and the defendant, the latter put in the road-cess return in order to disprove plaintiff's allegation, by showing that the lands were included in the second part The lower Courts had relied on this return It was contended in appeal that it was inadmissible under s. 95 of the Road Cess Act, being evidence in favour of the principal defendant It was however held that the road-cess return was evidence against the plaintiff claiming through his vendor, and it was none the less evidence merely because by admitting it as evidence against the plaintiff it became evidence in favour of the defendant (8)

No definition has been given of this somewhat vague expression.(1) Whatever scope may be given to these words, it is apprehended that they will, generally speaking, include most of the privies in blood, law, or estate of which mention has been already made in the notes to sections 17—20, ante. "Representative in interest"

Though admissions may be proved against the party making them, it is always open to the maker to show that the statements were mistaken or untrue, except in the single case in which they operate as estoppels.(2)

The section proceeds to specify those cases in which an exception is permitted to the general rule and admissions in a person's own interest are admissible in evidence. The first clause is considered under the thirty-second section, post, which must be read in conjunction with it. Illusts (b) and (c) refer to this clause. Exception

"The second clause has received no illustration in the Act, probably because it has already been sufficiently treated of in the fourteenth section (ante) under the head of 'facts,' showing the existence of any state of bodily feeling, and in illusts (k), (l) and (m) thereto, which, together with the notes thereon, should be here consulted. The fourteenth section merely declared that such facts are relevant. The present clause shows that such facts or statements may be proved on behalf of the person making them, notwithstanding the general rule that persons cannot make evidence for themselves by what they choose to say."(3)

The third clause provides that a fact which is relevant under the sixth section, ante, or some one of the sections following it shall not be rejected simply because it assumes the form of an admission.(4) Illusts. (d) and (e) refer to this clause. "Care must likewise be taken not to confound self-serving evidence with res gestæ. The language of a party accompanying an act which is evidence in itself, may form part of the res gestæ and be receivable as such."(5)

It was held in the undermentioned(6) case in which the second and the fourth defendants sold a jote to the first defendant and subsequently colluded with the plaintiff and denied a partition which had taken place as well as the sale, that the statements previously made by them which went to show that there had been a partition and they had changed their attitude were admissible under the third clause of this section and the second clause of the eleventh section of this Act

In a suit against an insolvent and the Official Assignee for sale of mortgaged property, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that title-deeds in his possession after the insolvency were deposited with him as security before the adjudication. Evidence of admissions by him at an earlier date than the adjudication to the effect that the deeds were then in his possession are inadmissible in his favour under this section, not being within any of the exceptions to inadmissibility named in this section. An erroneous omission to object to such evidence does not make it admissible.(7) Any statement, as to rent payable for a holding, made by a person in a sale-certificate, which was obtained by him

---

(1) See remarks in Ishan Chunder v. Bens Madhub, 24 C., 62, 72 (1896), Unnopoorna Dassee v. Nufur Poddar, 21 W. R., 148 (1874), as to the meaning of the terms "representative" and "legal representative," see Badri Narain v. Jai Kishen, 16 A., 483, 487 (1894), Stroud's Judicial Dictionary, 674 (1890), Chathalelan v. Govinda Karumar, 17 M., 186 (1893), and ante, notes to ss. 17—20 "Sale in execution"

(2) See ss. 31—115, post.

(3) Norton, Ev., 152

(4) Ib., Field, Ev., 131, see Fellowes v. Williamson, M. & M., 306, v. ante, ss. 8 and 14 and notes thereto

(5) Best, Ev., § 520

(6) Bibi Gyannessa v. Mussumut Mobaralunnessa, 2 C. W. N., 91 (1897).

(7) Miller v. Baku Madko, 19 A., 76 (1896); s. c., 23 I. A., 106.

as purchaser of the holding, at a sale in execution of a decree against the former tenant, being in the nature of an admission, cannot be used as evidence on his behalf, as such a statement does not come within the exceptions to this section (1)

Confessions

This section is subject to the special provisions relating to confessions enacted in the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections.(2)

When oral admissions as to contents of documents are relevant.

22. Oral admissions as to the contents of a document are not relevant, unless and until the party proposing to prove them shows that he is entitled to give secondary evidence of the contents of such document under the rules hereinafter contained, or unless the genuineness of a document produced is in question.

Principle —The general rule is that the contents of a written instrument, which is capable of being produced, must be proved by the instrument itself and not by parol evidence.(3) An exception to this rule prohibiting the substitution of oral testimony for the document itself exists according to English law in favour of the parol admissions of a party. The admissions being primary evidence against a party, and those claiming under him, are receivable to prove the contents of documents without notice to produce, or accounting for the absence of, the originals (4) The principle upon which such evidence is receivable has been stated to be that what a party himself admits to be true, may reasonably be presumed to be so, and that therefore such evidence is not open to the same objection which belongs to parol evidence from other sources, when the written evidence might have been produced (5) But the correctness of this reasoning and of the decisions founded upon it has been questioned, and the dangerous consequences which are liable to follow on the reception of such evidence have been pointed out.(6) For though what a party himself admits may fairly be presumed to be true, there is no such presumption in favour of the truthfulness of the evidence by which such admission must be proved (7)

s. 17 (" Admission.")
s. 3 (" Document.")
s. 3 (" Relevant ")
s. 58 (Facts admitted)
s. 63 (" Secondary Evidence.") ss 65, 66 (Rules as to giving of secondary evidence.)
s. 65, cl. (b) (Written admissions as to content of documents.)

(1) Ramani Pershad v. Mahanth Adaiya, 31 C 380 (1903)

(2) R v. Bhairub Chunder, 2 C. W. N., 702 (1898)

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 396; ss 59, 64, 91, post

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 410, and cases there cited, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 83; Best, Ev., §§ 525, 526, and see Muttularuppa Kavundan v. Rama Pillai, 3 Mad. H. C. R., 159, 160 (1866)

(5) Slatterie v. Pooley, 6 M. & W., 669, per Parke, B

(6) See observations of Pennefather, C. J., in Lawless v. Queale, 8 Ir Law R., 385, cited ib., § 412, and in Field, Ev., 134, Cunningham, Ev., 130; the views there expressed, have been adopted in the present section which alters the law laid down in Slatterie v. Pooley, supra, Norton, Ev., 152

(7) "According to Slatterie v. Pooley, what A states as to what B, a party, has said respecting the contents of a document which B has seen is admissible, whilst what A states, respecting a document which he himself has seen, is not admissible although in the latter case, the chance of error is single, in the former, double," per Reporter in 9 Com. B., 501, n. c., Darby v. Ousley, 1 H. & N., 1: as to oral testimony by the party to the same effect, see Farrow v. Blomfield, 1 F. & F., 653; Henman v. Lester, 12 C. B. N. S., 781; as to the application of the rule in criminal cases, see Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 6, and as to the case first cited see Chandra Kunwar v. Chauri Nargal Singh, P. C. (1906), 29 A., 184, L. R., 34 I. A., 27. Heane v. Rogers, 9 B. & C., 577.

Taylor, Ev., §§ 410—414; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 63 Field, Ev., 134; Cunningham, Ev., 135; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 6; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 196, 480; Powell, Ev., 345; Norton, Ev., 152; Best, Ev., §§ 525, 526.

COMMENTARY.

Contents of documents.

When the existence, condition, or contents of the original document have been proved to be admitted in writing by the person against whom it is proved or by his representative in interest, such written admission is admissible;(1) but oral admissions, except in the cases abovementioned, are excluded by the present section. The circumstances under which a party is entitled to give secondary evidence of a document are laid down in sections 65, 66, post. "Where the question is, not what are the contents of a document, but whether the document itself is genuine, that is, in the handwriting of the party, whose writing or signature it is alleged to be, evidence may, of course, be given to prove or disprove the forgery. This may be effected in a variety of ways; by the party, sections 21, 70; by an attesting witness, section 68; by the oath of witnesses acquainted with the handwriting; by experts, section 45, or by comparison of handwriting, section 73," "Or unless the genuineness of a document produced is in question." "The effect of the last clause of this section seems to be, that if such a document is produced, the admissions of the parties to it that it is or is not genuine [even though such admissions involve a statement of the contents of a document] may be received."(2) This section does not, it is apprehended, exclude admissions which the parties agree to make at the trial, in which case it becomes unnecessary to prove the fact so admitted.(3)

Admissions in civil cases when relevant

23. In Civil cases(4) no admission is relevant if it is made either upon an express condition that evidence of it is not to be given,(5) or under circumstances from which the Court can infer that the parties agreed together(6) that evidence of it should not be given.(7)

Explanation.—Nothing in this section shall be taken to exempt any barrister, pleader, attorney, or vakil from giving evidence of any matter of which he may be compelled to give evidence under section 126.(8)

Principle.—"Confidential overtures of pacification and any other offers or propositions between litigating parties, expressly or impliedly made without prejudice(9) are excluded on grounds of public policy. For

(1) S 65, cl. (b), post.

(2) Norton, Ev, 153

(3) S. 58, post, Cunningham, Ev., 136; cf. Sheikh Ibrahim v. Parrata, 8 Bom H. C. R., A. C. J., 163 (1871)

(4) The protection given by this section does not extend to criminal cases, see s 29, post As to arbitration, see p. 105, ante

(5) Cory v. Bretton, 4 C. & P., 462

(6) This section, as drafted in the original Bill contained "infer that it was the intention of the parties that" for "infer that the parties agree together that."

(7) Paddock v. Forrester, 3 M. & G., 903, 918; Steph Dig., Art. 20, adds, "or if it was made under duress." Storkfleth v. De Tastet, 4 Camp., 11, per Lord Ellenborough; see Taylor, Ev., 798, and post

(8) Namely, the matters mentioned in provisos (1) and (2) to s. 126, post: see notes to that section.

(9) In re River Steamer Co, L. R., 6 Ch., 822, 827, per James, L. J., "does not 'without prejudice' mean, 'I make you an offer; if you do not accept it, this letter is not to be used against me.'" ib., 831, 832. [Cited in Madharrar v. Gulabhai, 23 B., 177, 180 (1898).] "Now if a man says his letter is without prejudice, that is tantamount to saying, 'I make you any offer which you may accept or not, as you like; but if you do not accept it, the having made it is to have no effect at all.'" per Mellish, L. J; see also Walker v. Wilsher, 23 Q. B. D., 335, 337, per Lindley, L. J.

without this protective rule it would often be difficult to take any steps towards an amicable compromise or adjustment; and, as Lord Mansfield has observed, all men must be permitted to buy their peace without prejudice to them should the offer not succeed, such offers being made to stop litigation, without regard to the question whether anything is due or not." (1) It is most important that the door should not be shut against compromises.(2) When a man offers to compromise a claim, he does not thereby necessarily admit it, but simply agrees to pay so much to be rid of the action

s. 17 ("Admission.") s. 3 ("Evidence.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.") s. 126 (Professional Communications.)

Steph. Dig., Art 20, Taylor, Ev., §§ 774, 795—797, 798, 799; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62, 63; Powell, Ev., 303; Phillips, Ev., 326, 328, Cordery's Law relating to Solicitors, 2nd Ed., 83.

COMMENTARY

Admissions without prejudice

Admissions either verbal or in writing by way of compromise or during treaty are, if made under the circumstances mentioned in the section, protected. Generally, neither letters written without prejudice nor replies to such letters, though not similarly guarded, can be used as evidence against the parties writing them.(3) Thus a letter marked "without prejudice," protects subsequent (4) and even previous(5), letters in the same correspondence. Such letters, however, are only protected if bona fide written with a view to a compromise.(6) Thus a letter "without prejudice," which contains a threat against the recipient if the offer be not accepted, is admissible to prove such threat.(7) So also if the admission be merely of a collateral or indifferent fact, such as the handwriting of a party, which is capable of easy proof by other means, and is not connected with the substantial merits of the cause, it will be received, even though made pending negotiations,(8) as also will offers without prejudice if the offer has been accepted (9) For if the terms proposed in such a letter are accepted, a complete contract is established and the letter, although written without prejudice, operates to alter the old state of things and to establish a new one. A contract is constituted in respect of which relief by way of damages or specific performance would be given (10) The mere fact that a document is stated to have been written "without prejudice" will not exclude it. The rule which excludes documents marked "without prejudice" has no application unless some person is in dispute or negotiation with another, and terms are

(1) Taylor Ev., § 795, and see ib., §§ 774, 796, 797, and cases there cited, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62, 63, Steph. Dig., Art 20, Powell, Ev., 300, Phillips, Ev., 328

(2) Per Pollock, L. J., in Walker v. Walker, supra.

(3) Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62; Pollock v. Forrester, 3 M. & G., 903, Hoyle v. Hoylton, 15 Beav., 278, 321, Walker v. Walker, supra.

(4) Pollock v. Forrester, supra; Re Harris, 41 L. J., Bkcy., 31. "It is not necessary to go on putting 'without prejudice' at the head of every letter," ib., Walker v. Walker, supra, 337.

(5) Piggott v. Harper, 26 W. R. (Eng.), 101 In this case a second letter "without prejudice" was held to protect a previous letter not expressed to be "without prejudice" on the ground that the second letter was to be taken as a postscript to the former.

(6) Grace v. Baynton, 21 Sol. Jour., 631, cited in Cordery, 83. In the case of Hicks v. Thompson, "Times," 19th Jan 1887, a lawyer's clerk sued for breach of promise of marriage, sought to exclude his love-letters because he had headed them all "without prejudice."

(7) Kurtz v. Spence, 58 L. T., 438

(8) Walteridge v. Kennison, 1 Esp., 143, see also per Lord Kenyon, C. J., in Turner v. Railton, 2 Esp., 474

(9) Walker v. Walker, supra, 337; In re Lord Stamer Co., L. R., 6 Ch., 822.

(10) Per Lindley, L. J., in Walker v. Walker, 23 Q. B. D., 335, at p 337.

offered for the settlement of the dispute or negotiation.(1) Further, an admission without prejudice may be used against the party making it where it is made subject to a condition which has been performed by the other party. Thus in a suit on a bill of exchange, where the defendant stated in a letter to the plaintiff that he had not had notice of the dishonour of the bill, but that if the debt was accepted without costs, he would give the plaintiff a cheque for it, and the plaintiff thereupon discontinued the action on payment of costs, it was held that the plaintiff was, in a second action on the bill, entitled to use the letter in proof of waiver of notice of dishonour. The first action being discontinued before the second was begun, the conditional waiver became absolute and the letter admissible in evidence.(2) Letters without prejudice cannot, without the consent of both parties, be read on a question of costs to show willingness to settle; although the mere fact and date of such letters or negotiations, as distinguished from their contents, may sometimes be received to explain delay.(3) "Perhaps, also, an offer of compromise, the essence of which is that the party making it is willing to submit to a sacrifice, or to make a concession,(4) will be rejected, though nothing at the time was expressly said respecting its confidential character, if it clearly appears to have been made under the faith of a pending treaty, into which the party has been led by the confidence of an arrangement being effected."(5) But in the absence of any express, or strongly implied, restriction as to confidence, an offer of compromise is clearly admissible and may be material as some evidence of liability:(6) although it may not be proper to enquire into the terms offered(7) though it must still be borne in mind that such an offer may be made for the sake of purchasing peace and without any admission of liability. Much depends upon the circumstances of the case.(8) The rule does not apply to admissions made before an arbitrator; for though in this last case, the proceedings are said to be before a domestic forum, yet the parties are, at the time, contesting their rights as adversely as before any other tribunal.(9) It has, however, been held that nothing which passes between the parties to a suit in any attempt at arbitration or compromise should be allowed to effect the slightest prejudice to the merits of their case as it eventually comes to be tried before the Court. No presumption can be raised against a party to a suit from his refusal to withdraw from the determination and submit to arbitration (10)

Confession caused by inducement, threat, or promise when irrelevant in criminal proceeding

24. A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat, or promise, having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority, and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds which

(1) Madhavrav v. Gulabhai, 23 B., 177, 180 (1898), citing In re Daintrey; Ex parte Holt (1893), 2 Q. B., 116

(2) Holdsworth v. Dinsdale, 19 W. R. (Eng.), 798

(3) Walker v. Walker, 23 Q. B. D., 335; see, however, Williams v. Thomas, 31 L. J., Ch., 674

(4) Thomson v. Austen, 2 D. & R., 361.

(5) Waldridge v. Kennison, 1 Esp., 144; Taylor, Ev., § 795.

(6) Wallace v. Small, 1 M. & M., 446; Watts v. Lawson, id., 447 n., Nicholson v. Smith, 3 Stark. R., 129; Taylor, Ev., § 785

(7) Harding v. Jones, 1 T. & G., 135; see also Thomas v. Morgan, 2 C., M. & R., 496

(8) Field, Ev., 135, see also observations of Lord St. Leonards in Jorden v. Money, 5 H. L. C., 245 "when an attorney goes to an adverse party with a view to a compromise, or to an action, you must always look with very great care at his evidence of what then occurred"

(9) Doe d. Lloyd v. Evans, 3 C. & P., 279, the admissions may be proved by the arbitrator, Gregory v. Howard, 3 Esp., 113; Taylor, Ev., §§ 798, 799; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 63; as to criminating answers, see s. 132, post.

(10) Mohabeer Singh v. Dhuppo Singh, 20 W. R., 172 (1873).

would appear to him reasonable for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him.

Principle.—The ground upon which confessions, like other admissions, are received, is the presumption that no person will voluntarily make a statement which is against his interest unless it be true.(1) But the force of the confession depends upon its voluntary character.(2) The object of the rule relating to the exclusion of confessions is to exclude all confessions which may have been procured by the prisoner being led to suppose that it will be better for him to admit himself to be guilty of an offence which he really never committed (3) There is a danger that the accused may be led to criminate himself falsely. The principle upon which the confession is excluded. is that, it is under certain conditions testimonially untrustworthy.(4) Moreover, the admission of such evidence would naturally lead the agents of the police while seeking to obtain a character for activity and zeal, to harass and oppress prisoners, in the hope of wringing from them a reluctant confession.(5)

ss. 17—22 (" Admission ")
s. 3 (" Relevant.")
s. 3 (" Court ")
s. 28 (Confession after removal of impression caused by inducement.) s 80 (Presumption as to document purporting to be a confession.)

Steph. Dig., Arts. 21—23; Taylor, Ev, §§ 862—906; Best, Ev., §§ 551—553; 3 Russ, Cr., 440—499; Powell, Ev., 310—321; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 227—238; Wills, Ev, 210—216; Norton, Ev., 154—164; Cr. Pr Code, ss 163, 343; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 34—49. A Treatise on the Admissibility of Confession and Challenge of Jurors in criminal cases in England and Ireland by Henry H Joy; Wigmore, Ev., § 822, et seq.

COMMENTARY

Appears

In the first place, an important question arises as to the meaning of these words and as to the person on whom the onus [illegible] sion was voluntary or involuntary. The use of said,(6) seems to show that this section de (within the definition of the third section) of the rejection of the confession such word indicating a lesser degree of probability than would be necessary if " proof " had been required. A confession may, it has been argued, appear to the Judge to have been the result of inducement on the face of it and apart from direct proof of that fact, or a Court might perhaps in a particular case fairly hesitate to say that, it was proved that the confession had been unlawfully obtained and yet might be in a position to say that such appeared to it to have been the case (7) It is, however, to be

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 865, Phillipps & Arn., Ev, 401; Best, Ev., § 524, v. ante, p. 210, note (6); Wills, Ev., 102

(2) Taylor, Ev., §§ 872, 874; see remarks in R. v. Thompson, L. R. (1893), 2 Q. B. at p. 18

(3) 3 Russ Cr, 442; per Littledale, J., in R v. Court, 7 C. & P., 486; but in R. v. Baldry, 2 Den. C. C., 430, Lord Campbell, C. J., said: " The reason is not that the law supposes that the statement will be false, but that the prisoner has made the confession under a bias, and that, therefore, it would be better not to submit it to the jury " But see also Lord Campbell's dictum in R. v. Scott, 1 D & B, 47, 48, and Taylor, Ev., § 874: R. v Nabadeep Goswami, 1 B L. R., O S, 15, 22, 23 (1868); R v. Thomas, 7 C & P, 345

(4) Wigmore, Ev, § 822

(5) Taylor, Ev, § 874

(6) R v. Basvanta, 25 B, 168 (1900); s. c, 2 Bom. L. R, 761, 765 On this and what follows, see the able article by " Lex " in 2 Bom L. R., 157, as also an article by another contributor at p 217.

(7) R. v Basvanta, supra

Such confessions must be recorded and signed in the manner provided in section 364. The Magistrate referred to in section 164 is a Magistrate other than the Magistrate by whom the case is to be inquired into or tried (1) If the confession is made before a competent Magistrate who is making the preliminary enquiry, it is sufficient if the provisions of section 364 are complied with.(2) But a record is unnecessary when a confession is made in Court to the officer trying the case at the time of trial where the accused can be convicted on the plea of guilty (3) It is important that a Magistrate before recording the confession of an accused person then in custody of the police should ascertain how long the accused has been in custody. If there is no record of that fact the Sessions Judge, before holding the confession relevant under the twenty-fourth section, should send for the Magistrate and satisfy himself on the point.(4) The question of the admissibility of confessions, irregularly recorded, has been much simplified by the provisions of section 533 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In cases coming within that section, the Court may supplement the defective record by taking oral evidence that the accused person duly made the statement recorded, notwithstanding the provisions of section 91, post.(5) If the defects in the record cannot be cured under this section, no secondary evidence can be given of a confession under section 164 (6) Section 533 will not render a confession taken under section 164 admissible where no attempt has been made to conform to the provisions of the latter section (7)

Under section 80 of this Act whenever any document is produced before any Court purporting to be a statement or confession by any prisoner or accused person taken in accordance with law and purporting to be signed by any Judge or Magistrate, the Court shall presume that the document is genuine ; that any statements as to the circumstances under which it was taken (as that the confession was voluntary) purporting to be made by the person signing it, are true, and that such evidence, statement or confession was duly taken. This formal certificate is all that the law in strictness requires, and is primâ facie evidence of the voluntary character of the confession. It is the duty of the Magistrate to satisfy himself that the confession is not excluded by this section.(8) It is to be feared, however, that such certificates are often not worth much as evi-

(1) R v. Jetoo, 23 W. R., Cr., 16 (1875) In the matter of Behari Hajdi, 5 C. L. R., 238 (1879). Krishno Monee v. R., 6 C. L. R., 289 (1880). R v. Anantram Singh, 5 C., 954, F. B. (1880). followed in R v. Yakub Khan, 5 A., 253 (1883). the provisions of s. 164, however, have no application to statements taken in the course of a police-investigation in the town of Calcutta. R v. Nilmadhub Mitter, 15 C., 595 (1888), followed in R v. Viram Bahaji, 21 B., 495 (1896) A Deputy Magistrate should not act as Magistrate in a case in which he is himself the prosecutor, and take confessions of prisoners before himself. R. v. Boolnath Singh, 3 W. R., Cr., 29 (1865)

(2) Krishno Monee v. R., 6 C. L. R., 289 (1880). R. v. Anantram Singh, supra ; R v. Yakub Khan, supra.

(3) In the matter of Chumman Shah, 3 C., 776 (1878)

(4) R v. Narayan, 25 B., 543 (1901)

(5) Cr. Pr. Code, s. 533, this section applies to confessions and statements recorded under both ss. 164 and 364, the corresponding section of the old Code (s. 346, Act X of 1872) dealt only with statements and confessions made in the course of a preliminary enquiry and did not apply to confessions recorded under s. 122 (164 of present Code) R v. Rai Ratan, 10 B. H. C. R., 166 (1873), consequently when a confession taken under s. 122, was inadmissible in evidence oral evidence was excluded by s. 91, post, ib., R v. Shivya, 1 B., 219 (1876), R. v. Manu Tamoli, 4 C., 606 (1879), contra R v. Ramanjiyya, 2 M. 5 (1878) ; but irregularly recorded confessions and statements under either ss. 164 or 426 of the present Act may either be (1) remediable under s. 533 or (2) not In the case of (1), oral evidence is admissible ; in the case of (2), it is admissible at any rate in the case of an irregular record under s. 164 (v. next note)

(6) R. v. Viran, 9 M., 224 (1886) ; Jai Narayan v. R., 17 C., 862 (1890).

(7) R v. Viran, supra ; Jai Narayan Rai v. R., supra ; latter case dissented from in R. v. Viram Bahaji, 21 B., 495, 501 (1896).

(8) R. v. Narayan, 25 B., 543 (1901) ; R v. Judub Das, 27 C., 295 ; s. c., 4 C. W. N., 129. R. v. Basvanta, supra See Circular of Bombay dence of the absence of inducement. Assuming that a prisoner has been induced to confess, he will not unlikely assure the recording Magistrate that his confession is quite voluntary, knowing that he will leave the Magistrate's presence in the custody of the police and remain in their charge for many days to come.(1) In the case of extra-judicial confessions there is no such primâ facie evidence as that afforded by the certificate. In both cases, however, there is to be considered the effect of the word "appear" in this section This as already stated, does not connote strict "proof." Still, although very probably a confession may be rejected on well-grounded conjecture, there must (unless the onus lies upon the prosecution) be something before the Court on which such conjecture can rest.(2) In the first place, does the onus lie upon the prosecution in all cases to prove that a confession is voluntary before it can be used in evidence? If this be the law in England, which is doubtful, it has been held that such a rule does not prevail in this country. In the absence of evidence it is not to be presumed, that a statement objected to on the ground of its having been induced by illegal pressure is inadmissible.(3) To require as the criterion of admissibility affirmative proof that a duly recorded and certified confession was free and voluntary is not consistent with the terms of this Act or with previous decisions or practice (4) If it, however, "appears" that the confession is not voluntary, it must be excluded. Unless this is disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution the onus of establishing this fact will be upon the accused—a fact which in a large number of, if not in most cases, the accused will not be in a position to establish. It is in this connection that the question of the retraction of confessions becomes of the highest importance. If a confession, which has been previously made, whether judicially or extra-judicially, is not retracted at the trial, there appears to be little or no reason why it should not be accepted without any proof being given of its voluntary character. This is, however, not so where, as is frequently the case, the confession is retracted at the trial. In a very large percentage of sessions cases the prisoners will be found to have made elaborate confessions, shortly after coming into the hands of the police; not infrequently these confessions are adhered to in the com-

---

High Court (Bombay Government Gazette, 1900, Part I, p 919, 2 Bom L. R., 157), requiring Magistrates before recording confessions to satisfy themselves by all means in their power, including the examination of the bodies of the accused that the confessions are voluntary. See R v. Ganesh Koormee, 4 W. R., Cr. 1 (1865), where the prisoner retracted his statement when read over to him and said that he was compelled to make it, and the Sessions Judge without making any inquiry or taking evidence upon the point, submitted the prisoner's statement to the jury as a confession; it was held that the Judge was wrong in so doing, and that he should rather have charged the jury not to accept the prisoner's statement as a confession. As regards the Sessions Court, it has been held that it is not necessary for a Sessions Judge to read out to prisoners confessions made by them before a Magistrate and ask them if they have any objection to the reception of their confessions: R. v. Muser Sheikh, 14 W. R., Cr., 9 (1870). But it appears to have been the opinion of Sir Michael Westropp in R. v. Kashinath Dinlar, 8 Bom. H. C. R., 137, 138, that not only the committing Magistrate, but also the trying Court, ought to make needful enquiries where allegations are made in a regular and proper manner to the Sessions Court that a confession before a Magistrate was improperly induced, a procedure which was followed in the English Courts so far back as the 12th century (Pollock and Maitland History of English Law, Book II, pp. 650, 651) See also R v. Narayan, supra, s c, 3 Bom. L. R., 122.

(1) See remarks of Westropp, C J., in R. v. Kasinath Dinlar, 8 Bom H C. R., 126.

(2) R v. Basvanta, 2 Bom. L. R., 761, 765 (1900).

(3) R. v. Balvant Pendhurkar, 11 Bom H C. R., 137, 138 (1874), R. v. Dada Ana, 15 B., 452, 480 (1889); R. v. Bhairam Singh, 3 A., 338, 339 (1880). A prisoner alleging that a confession was unduly extorted should offer some proof of his statements to the Court

(4) R. v. Basvanta, 2 Bom. L. R., 761, 765 (1900); s. c., 23 B., 168, disapproving of R. v. Balya Ingle, Cr R. 3 of 1898 (Bom. H. C.), in which Parsons, J., held that a confession to be admitted at all in evidence must be proved to have been made voluntarily and not to have been caused by improper inducement.

confession and by implication of its voluntariness is required. Where a Sessions Judge came to the conclusion that the confessions must be taken to be voluntary and true, because there was no evidence of ill-treatment by the police, and the confessions had been repeated before the committing Magistrate nearly a month after they had been made and recorded, the Court said, "There is undoubtedly a great deal of force in that reasoning, but where a confession is retracted, it is, we think, the duty of a Court that is called to act upon it, especially in a case of murder, to enquire into all the material points and surrounding circumstances and satisfy itself fully that the confession cannot but be true."(1) In other cases the Court is not at liberty to act upon mere conjecture, and its rejection of a confession must be based upon the nature of the confession, the facts disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution or adduced in proof of his plea of not guilty by the accused. If from the evidence given by the prosecution it appear doubtful whether the confession was voluntary, the onus will of course lie upon the Crown to affirmatively establish that the confession was voluntary and that it is admissible. If in such case this be not established, or if it appear, upon the evidence adduced by the prosecution or the accused, that the confession was not voluntary, it must be rejected under the terms of this section

Inducement threat promise

This and the succeeding sections, up to and including the thirtieth section, deal only with the specific form of admission known as a confession. But the preceding sections, up to and including the twenty-second section, deal with admissions generally in both criminal as well as civil cases. The twenty-first section therefore makes all confessions admissible except those which are declared to be irrelevant or which are prohibited by this and the following sections By sections 24—26 the Legislature intended to throw a safeguard around prisoners (2)

Confession by an accused person

It is difficult to lay down any hard-and-fast rule as to what constitutes an inducement, a term which of course includes torture. The question is one for the discretion of the Judge, and its decision will vary in each particular case (v. post). A statement is inadmissible under this section only if the Court considers it to have been made in consequence of "any inducement, threat, or promise "(3) The relevancy of the confession is to be determined by the Court, that is the Judge or the Magistrate, and not the jury.(4) "Section 24, whilst requiring the inducement to be offered by a person in authority, leaves it entirely to the Court to form its own opinion as to whether the inducement, threat, or promise was sufficient to lead the prisoner to suppose that he would derive some benefit to avoid some evil of a temporal nature by confessing "(5) It is immaterial to whom a confession, obtained by undue influence, is made. [illegible] the Sessions Judge.(6) [illegible] person, e.g., the Traffic [illegible] It is also immaterial whether the confession be made to the same person who has used undue

---

(1) R. v. Durgaya, 3 Bom. L. R., 441 (1901).

(2) R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12, 17 (1878); per West, J., as to the construction of ss. 24—26, see The Madras Law Journal, Jan. and Feb., 1893, pp. 12—44.

(3) R. v. Balwant Pendharkar, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 137, 138 (1874).

(4) R. v. Hannah Moore [illegible] Mag. Ca., 199; see R. v. Na[illegible] R., 738, 367 (18[illegible] R. v. Nare[illegible] per Sargent, C. J., see also s. 28, post.

(6) R. v. Mussamat Luchoo, 5 N.-W. P., 86 (1873).

(7) Id.; R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878); R. v. Asghar Ali, 2 A., 280 (1879); R. v. Umer, 10 [illegible] 775 (1884).

[illegible] Mussamat Luchoo, supra; R. v. Rama [illegible] abhai, supra.

[illegible] B. L. R., App. 1

dence of the absence of inducement Assuming that a prisoner has been induced to confess, he will not unlikely assure the recording Magistrate that his confession is quite voluntary, knowing that he will leave the Magistrate's presence in the custody of the police and remain in their charge for many days to come (1) In the case of extra-judicial confessions there is no such primâ facie evidence as that afforded by the certificate In both cases, however, there is to be considered the effect of the word "appear" in this section. This, as already stated, does not connote strict "proof" Still, although very probably a confession may be rejected on well-grounded conjecture, there must (unless the onus lies upon the prosecution) be something before the Court on which such conjecture can rest (2) In the first place, does the onus lie upon the prosecution in all cases to prove that a confession is voluntary before it can be used in evidence * If this be the law in England, which is doubtful, it has been held that such a rule does not prevail in this country. In the absence of evidence it is not to be presumed, that a statement objected to on the ground of its having been induced by illegal pressure is inadmissible.(3) To require as the criterion of admissibility affirmative proof that a duly recorded and certified confession was free and voluntary is not consistent with the terms of this Act or with previous decisions or practice.(4) If it, however, "appears" that the confession is not voluntary, it must be excluded. Unless this is disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution the onus of establishing this fact will be upon the accused—a fact which in a large number of, if not in most cases, the accused will not be in a position to establish. It is in this connection that the question of the retraction of confessions becomes of the highest importance. If a confession, which has been previously made, whether judicially or extra-judicially, is not retracted at the trial, there appears to be little or no reason why it should not be accepted without any proof being given of its voluntary character. This is, however, not so where, as is frequently the case, the confession is retracted at the trial. In a very large percentage of sessions cases the prisoners will be found to have made elaborate confessions, shortly after coming into the hands of the police, not infrequently these confessions are adhered to in the com-

---

High Court (Bombay Government Gazette, 1900, Part I. p. 919, 2 Bom L. R., 157), requiring Magistrates before recording confessions to satisfy themselves by all means in their power, including the examination of the bodies of the accused that the confessions are voluntary. See R v Ganesh Anormee, 4 W. R., Cr. 1 (1865), where the prisoner retracted his statement when read over to him and said that he was compelled to make it, and the Sessions Judge without making any inquiry or taking evidence upon the point, submitted the prisoner's statement to the jury as a confession, it was held that the Judge was wrong in so doing, and that he should rather have charged the jury not to accept the prisoner's statement as a confession.. As regards the Sessions Court, it has been held that it is not necessary for a Sessions Judge to read out to prisoners confessions made by them before a Magistrate and ask them if they have any objection to the reception of their confessions: R. v. Musser Sheikh, 14 W. R., Cr., 9 (1870). But it appears to have been the opinion of Sir Michael Westropp in R v. Kashinath Dinkar, 8 Bom. H. C. R., 137, 138, that not only the committing Magistrate, but also the trying Court, ought to make needful enquiries where allegations are made in a regular and proper manner to the Sessions Court that a confession before a Magistrate was improperly induced, a procedure which was followed in the English Courts so far back as the 12th century (Pollock and Maitland History of English Law, Book II, pp. 650, 651) See also R. v Narayan, supra, s. c., 3 Bom L. R., 122.

(1) See remarks of Westropp, C J., in R v Kasinath Dinkar, 8 Bom H C. R., 126

(2) R. v. Basvanta, 2 Bom L. R., 761, 765 (1900)

(3) R. v Balcant Pendharkar, 11 Bom. H C R., 137, 138 (1874); R. v Dada Ana, 15 B., 452, 480 (1889), R. v. Bhairam Singh, 3 A., 338, 339 (1880). A prisoner alleging that a confession was unduly extorted should offer some proof of his statements to the Court

(4) R. v Basvanta, 2 Bom L. R., 761, 765 (1900), s. c., 25 L., 168, disapproving of R. v Balya Dajda, Cr. R. 3 of 1898 (Bom H C.), in which Parsons, J., held that a confession to admitted at all in evidence must be prov have been made voluntarily and not to been caused by improper ind *.

mitting Magistrate's Court; they are almost invariably retracted when the proceedings have reached a final stage and the prisoner is at the Bar of the Session Court. "These recurrent phenomena, peculiarly suggestive in themselves, can scarcely fail to attract the anxious notice of Judges who regard the efficient administration of justice as a matter in which they are directly and personally implicated, not as a more routine work mapped out for them in the higher tribunals."(1) The retraction of confessions is, as was said by Straight, J., in R. v. Babu Lal,(2) "an endless source of anxiety and difficulty to those who have to see that justice is properly administered."

In the R. v Thompson(3) Cave, J., said, "I would add that for my part I always suspect these confessions, which are supposed to be the offspring of penitence and remorse and which nevertheless are repudiated by the prisoner at the trial. It is remarkable that it is of very rare occurrence for evidence of a confession to be given when the proof of the prisoner's guilt is otherwise clear and satisfactory, but when it is not clear and satisfactory, the prisoner is not infrequently alleged to have been seized with the desire born of penitence and remorse to supplement it with a confession, a desire which vanishes as soon as he appears in a Court of Justice" Were it not for the presumption raised by section 80 of this Act it is submitted that the rule, which should be followed in all cases of retracted confessions, is to throw the onus on the prosecution of affirmatively proving the voluntary character of the confession. No doubt, abstractedly considered, the mere fact that a confession is retracted raises no inference of improper inducement. Such retraction may be due to the fear of punishment for an offence, which has been the subject of a true and voluntary confession Having regard, however, to the notorious fact that confessions are frequently extorted in this country(4) retraction might not improperly be held to cast upon the prosecution the onus of showing that the confession was a voluntary one. When a prisoner has confessed and afterwards pleads not guilty, the truth and voluntariness of the confession is denied by implication. When a prisoner says he has been forced to confess, the Judge is put upon judicial enquiry, and that enquiry, it may well be urged, should precede the admission of the confession and any examination into its truth (5) As, however, the law now stands, provided it was voluntarily made, the confession of a prisoner before a Magistrate is admissible in evidence against the prisoner even though the confession be retracted before the Sessions Judge.(6) A mere subsequent retraction of a confession, which is duly recorded and certified by a Magistrate, is not enough in all cases to make it appear to have been unlawfully induced.(7) According to some rulings of the Madras High Court a retracted confession must be supported by independent reliable evidence corroborating it in material particulars (8)

---

(1) 2 Bom. L. R., 157

(2) 6 A., at p. 543 (1884), referred to in R. v. Dada Ana, 15 B., 452, 461 (1889).

(3) L. R., 1893, 2 Q. B., 12, 18, cited with approval in the Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna Baistobi, 22 C., at p. 172 (1894).

(4) See cases cited, post.

(5) 2 Bom. L. R., 161, 163

(6) R. v Sreemuty Mongola, 6 W. R., C. R. (1866); R. v. Mussamut Jema, 8 W. R., Cr., 40 (1867); R. v. Balvant Pandharkar, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 137 (1874); R. v. Peita Gazi, 4 W. R., Cr., 10 (1865) [when prisoners confess in the most circumstantial manner to having committed a murder, the finding of the body is not absolutely essential to a conviction]; R. v. Buddeuddeen, 11 W. R., 20 (1869); [a Judge held to have exercised a proper discretion in not passing sentence of death in a case in which the dead body was not found]; R. v. Bhuttun Rajuna, 12 W. R., Cr., 40 (1869); [the properly attested confession of a prisoner before a Magistrate is sufficient for his conviction without corroborative evidence, and notwithstanding a subsequent denial before the Session Court]; but where there was misconduct of the police, it was held that the prisoners could not safely be convicted on their own retracted statements without any corroboration: Sofiruddeen v. R., 2 C. L. R., 132 (1878).

(7) R. v Basvanta, 25 B., 168 (1900).

(8) R. v. Rangi, 10 M., 295 (1886); R. v. Bharmappa, 12 M., 123 (1888); in R. v. Ram Vayer, 10 M., 482 (1890), the confessions were corroborated.

That Court has, however, more recently held(1) in general conformity with the views expressed by the other High Courts(2) that it cannot be laid down as an absolute rule of law that a confession made and subsequently retracted by a prisoner cannot be accepted as evidence of his guilt without independent corroborative evidence. The weight to be given to such a confession must depend upon the circumstances under which the confession was originally given and the circumstances under which it was retracted including the reasons given by the prisoner for his retraction.(3) The credibility of such a confession is in each case a matter to be decided by the Court according to the circumstances of each particular case, and if the Court is of opinion that such a confession is true, the Court is bound to act, so far as the person making it is concerned, upon such belief.(4) The use to be made of such a confession is a matter of prudence rather than of law.(5) It is unsafe for a Court to rely on and act on a confession which has been retracted unless after consideration of the whole evidence in the case the Court is in the position to come to the unhesitating conclusion that the confession is true, that is to say, usually unless the confession is corroborated by credible independent evidence ,(6) or unless the character of the confession and the circumstances under which it was taken indicate its truth.(7)

A retracted confession is almost always open to suspicion, and the Courts will therefore, in conformity with the above-mentioned rulings, generally require corroborative evidence of its truth. This procedure will in effect practically achieve the same results as a rule requiring proof of the voluntary character of a retracted confession, inasmuch as though these decisions require evidence of the truth of the confession and not of its voluntary character, the truth of voluntariness may not unreasonably, though not necessarily, be inferred where the truth of the confession is established. In a recent case, where a friend of the accused had made a statement to a Police officer (which was taken down in writing) but at the trial had denied having made it and the Presiding Judge had admitted the statement in evidence both to discredit its maker and also as evidence against the accused in that it contained statements

The law, as it at present stands, may thus be summarized : (a) In the case of judicial confessions recorded in the manner prescribed by the Criminal Procedure Code, the confession is to be held primâ facie to be voluntary until the contrary is shown (b) Both in the case of judicial and extra-judicial confessions the onus is upon the accused of showing that under this section a confession he has made is irrelevant. (c) While the mere fact of retraction is not in itself sufficient to make it appear to have been unlawfully induced in ordinary cases as a general rule, corroborative evidence of the truth of the

(1) R. v. Raman, 21 M., 83, 88 (1897). As to the necessity of corroboration when it is used as against others than the maker, see Yasin v. R., 28 C., 689 (1901).

(2) R. v. Bhuttun Rajwun, 12 W. R., Cr., 49 (1869); R. v. Gharya, 19 B., 728 (1894); R. v. Ganbia, 23 B., 316 (1898); R. v. Maiku Lal, 20 A., 133 (1897); R v. Kelrie (1907). 29 A., 434, post, p. 186.

(3) R v. Raman, 21 M., 83, 88 (1897).

(4) R. v. Maiku Lal, 20 A., 133 (1897).

(5) R. v. Gharya, 19 B., 728 (1894).

(6) R v. Makabir, 18 A., 78 (1895). See R. v. Jadab Das, 4 C. W. N., 129; s. c., 27 C., 295.

(7) R. v Maiku Lal, 20 A., 133 (1897); see also R. v. Kashinath Dinkar, 8 Bom. H. C. R., Cr. Ca., 126, 138 (1871); R. v. Dada Ana, 13 B., 452, 461 (1889); R. v. Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 542 (1884); R. v. Jagat Chandra, 22 C., 50, 77 (1894); Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna Baistobi, 22 C., 164 (1894).

(8) R. v. Narayan Raghunath Patki (1907), 32 B., 111 (Full Bench).

confession and by implication of its voluntariness is required. Where a Sessions Judge came to the conclusion that the confessions must be taken to be voluntary and true, because there was no evidence of ill-treatment by the police, and the confessions had been repeated before the committing Magistrate nearly a month after they had been made and recorded, the Court said, "There is undoubtedly a great deal of force in that reasoning, but where a confession is retracted, it is, we think, the duty of a Court that is called to act upon it, especially in a case of murder, to enquire into all the material points and surrounding circumstances and satisfy itself fully that the confession cannot but be true."(1) In other cases the Court is not at liberty to act upon mere conjecture, and its rejection of a confession must be based upon the nature of the confession, the facts disclosed by the evidence for the prosecution or adduced in proof of his plea of not guilty by the accused. If from the evidence given by the prosecution it appear doubtful whether the confession was voluntary, the onus will of course lie upon the Crown to affirmatively establish that the confession was voluntary and that it is admissible. If in such case this be not established, or if it appear, upon the evidence adduced by the prosecution or the accused, that the confession was not voluntary, it must be rejected under the terms of this section.

Inducement, threat: promise

This and the succeeding sections, up to and including the thirtieth section, deal only with the specific form of admission known as a confession. But the preceding sections, up to and including the twenty-second section, deal with admissions generally in both criminal as well as civil cases. The twenty-first section therefore makes all confessions admissible except those which are declared to be irrelevant or which are prohibited by this and the following sections. By sections 24—26 the Legislature intended to throw a safeguard around prisoners (2).

Confession by an accused person

It is difficult to lay down any hard-and-fast rule as to what constitutes an inducement, a term which of course includes torture. The question is one for the discretion of the Judge, and its decision will vary in each particular case (v. post). A statement is inadmissible under this section only if the Court considers it to have been made in consequence of "any inducement, threat, or promise."(3) The relevancy of the confession is to be determined by the Court, that is the Judge or the Magistrate, and not the jury.(4) "Section 24, whilst requiring the inducement to be offered by a person in authority, leaves it entirely to the Court to form its own opinion as to whether the inducement, threat, or promise was sufficient to lead the prisoner to suppose that he would derive some benefit to avoid some evil of a temporal nature by confessing."(5) It is immaterial to whom a confession, obtained by undue influence, is made. Thus a confession so tainted is irrelevant wh[illegible] or Magistrate,(7) or any Police-officer,(8) [illegible] Manager of a Railway,(9) or the Master of [illegible] whether the confession be made to the same person who has used undue

(1) R. v. Durgaya, 3 Bom. L. R., 441 (1901).

(2) R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12, 17 (1878), per West, J., as to the construction of ss. 24—26, see The Madras Law Journal, Jan. and Feb., 1895, pp. 12—44.

(3) R. v. Balwant Pandharkar, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 137, 138 (1874).

(4) R. v. Hannah Moore, 21 L. J. Mag. Ca., 199, see R. v. Narroji Dadabhai, 9 Bom. H. C. R., 358, 367 (1872).

(5) R. v. Narroji Dadabhai, supra, at p. 367, per Sargent, C. J., see also s. 28, post.

(6) R. v. Mussumat Luchoo, 5 N.-W. P., 80 (1873).

(7) Id., R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878); R. v. Asghar Ali, 2 A., 200 (1879); R. v. Uzeer, 10 C., 775 (1884).

(8) R. v. Mussumat Luchoo, supra; R. v. Rama Birapa, supra.

(9) R. v. Narroji Dadabhai, supra.

(10) R. v. Hicks, 10 P. L. R., App. 1 (1872).

influence,(1) or whether it be made to a person other than the one who has held out the inducement, threat or promise.(2) Confessions made some days after arrest may also often be true, but such confessions will, I believe, in almost [illegible] have been extorted by [illegible]ng made a witness for the [illegible]tion by the Police must this country are often and this fact has been the subject of frequent judicial and public comment.(5) "The reports show that many confessions are induced by improper means, and that innocent people often accuse themselves falsely is known to the reader of any book on Evidence "(6)

When a confession has been received, and it afterwards appears from other evidence, that an inducement, threat, or promise was held out, the proper course for the Judge is to strike the confession out of the record and to tell the jury to pay no attention to it.(7) A Magistrate acts without due discretion when as a prosecutor, he holds out promises to prisoners as an inducement to confess (8) A Police-officer acts improperly and illegally in offering any inducement to an accused person to make any disclosure or confession (9) In determining whether a confession is admissible or not under this section it is necessary to consider (a) the character of the person alleged to have exercised undue influence (such person must be a "person in authority") and (b) the nature of the inducement, threat, or promise [such inducement must (a) have reference to the charge; and (b) be sufficient, &c.]

"Person in authority."

No definition or illustration is given of this expression. "It is an expression well-known to English lawyers on questions of this nature; and although, as all rules of evidence which were in force at the passing of the Act are repealed, the English decisions on the subject can scarcely be regarded as authorities, they may still serve as valuable guides."(10) A too restrictive meaning should not be placed on these words (11) "The test would seem to be, had the person authority to interfere with the matter, and any concern or interest in it would appear to be held sufficient to give him that authority, as in R. v. Warringham,(12) where Parke, B., held that the wife of one of the prosecutors and concerned in the management of

---

(1) R v Hicks, supra, R v Mussamat Luchoo, supra, R v Rama Birapa, supra, R. v Asghar Ali, supra, R v. Uzeer, supra

(2) R v Nairoji Dadabhai, supra, R v Mussamat Luchoo, supra

(3) R v Gobardhan, 9 A., 528, 566 (1887), per Brodhurst, J

(4) Id, R v Madar, Weekly Notes (1885), p 59, cited, ib, R. v. Behary Singh, 7 W. R., Cr., 3 (1867) [exposition of a Police-officer's powers of arrest and detention with the view to the suppression of torture] R v. Sagal Samba, 21 C., 642, 660, 661 (1893).

(5) See R v Kohdai Kahar, 5 W. R., Cr., 3 (1866), R v. Behary Sing, 7 W R., Cr., 3 (1867), R v Nityo Gopal, 24 W R., Cr., 60 (1875), Bahu Lal, 6 A., 509, 542, 543 (1884), R. v Gobardhan, 9 A., 528, 566 (1887); R. v Dada Ana, 15 B., 452, 461 (1889) "It appears to be well known that the Police are in the habit of extorting confessions by illegal and improper means they find that no enquiry is made of them as to the truth of such charges, but they are merely told they must obtain convictions," per Petheram, C. J, R v. Ramanund, All W N. (1885), p 221; Stephen Hist. of Criminal Law, p. 442; First Report of Indian Law Commissioners, and the Report of the late Police Commission. Section 163, Cr Pr Code, expressly forbids any such inducement, as is mentioned in this section, being offered.

(6) R v. Dada Ana, 15 B., 452, 461 (1889), per Jardine, J.

(7) R. v. Garner, 1 Den. C. C., 329

(8) R. v Ramdhan Singh, 1 W. R., Cr., 21 (1864).

(9) R v. Dhurum Dutt, 8 W. R., Cr., 13 (1867), Cr Pr. Code, s. 163

(10) R. v. Nairoji Dadabhai, 9 Bom H C R., 358, 368 (1872), per Sargent, C. J

(11) Nazir Jhamdar v. R, 9 C W. N 471 (1905).

(12) 2 Den. C. C., 447

their business was a person in authority, and we find the rule so laid down in Archbold's Criminal Practice."(1) Accordingly, it was held that a travelling auditor in the service of the G. I. P. Railway Company was a "person in authority" within the meaning of this section.(2) The members of a panchayat which sat to consider whether two persons should be excommunicated from caste for having committed a murder were held not to be "in authority" within the meaning of this section.(3) In a recent case the Court though not deciding the question, was disposed to think that where a panchayat was assuming an authority and leading the accused to believe that he had that authority, he came within the section.(4) A Police Patel,(5) Police Constable,(6) a Magistrate,(7) and Sessions Judge are "persons in authority" as are also the master of a vessel ,(8) the prosecutor;(9) or his wife;(10) or his attorney ,(11) the master or mistress of the prisoner, if the offence has been committed against the person or property of either, but otherwise not ;(12) and generally any person engaged in the arrest, detention, examination, or prosecution of the accused (13) It has been held in England not to be necessary that the promise or threat should be actually uttered by the person in authority, if it was uttered by some one else in his presence and tacitly acquiesced in by him, so as to appear to have his confirmation and authority.(14) A confession made to, but not induced by, a person in authority is admissible ;(15) while conversely a confession induced by, though not made to such a person will be rejected (16) Confessions procured by inducements proceeding from persons having no authority are admissible.(17)

The inducement must have reference to the charge.

The inducement must (a) have reference to the charge against the accused person ; that is, the charge of an offence in the Criminal Courts.(18) The inducement must have been made for the purpose of extorting a confession of the

---

(1) R. v. Navroji Dadabhai, supra, 369, per Sargent, C. J. "The inducement and authority must all be understood in relation to the prosecution , that is to say, a person is deemed to be a person in authority, within the meaning of this rule, only if he stands in certain relations which are considered to imply some power of control or interference in regard to the prosecution" Wills, Ev , 210

(2) R v Navroji Dadabhai, supra

(3) R v Mohan Lall, 4 A , 46 (1881). And see also R v Fernand 4 Bom L R , 785 (1902), where the member of a Panch was held not to be a person in authority.

(4) Nazir Jhamdar v R , 9 C W. N., 474 (1905), followed in R v Jasha Bewa, 11 C W. N , 204 (1907)

(5) R v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878)

(6) R v. Mussumat Luchoo, 5 N-W P , 88 (1873); R v Shephard, 7 C & P., 579, R v Pountney, 7 C. & P., 302; R v Laugher, 2 C & K., 227; R. v. Millen, 3 Cox, 507; as to private persons arresting, see 3 Russ., Cr., 484, and note, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 40 the wife of a constable is not a person in authority; R. v. Hardwick, 1 C. & P., 93, note (b)

(7) R. v. Asghar Ali, 2 A , 260 (1879), R. v. Umer, 10 C., 775 (1884); R. v. Clewes, 4 C. & P., 221; R. v. Cooper, 5 C. & P., 535; R. v. Parker, L & C., 42; R. v. Ramdhun Sing, 1 W R., Cr., 24 (1864) (Honorary Magistrate acting as prosecutor); also it has been held, in England, the Magistrate's Clerk, R. v. Drew, 8 C. & P., 140.

(8) R v Hicks, 10 B. L. R., App. 1 (1872), but see also R. v Moore, 2 Den , 526; explaining R v Parratt, 4 C & P , 570.

(9) R v Jenkins, R & R , 492; R v. Jones, R R , 152

(10) R. v Warringham, ante , R v. Upchurch, 1 R & M C C , 465, R v. Taylor, 8 C. & P., 733, R v Moore, 2 Den C C , 522, R. v. Sleeman, Dears C C , 249

(11) R v Croydon, 2 Cox, 67.

(12) R v Moore, 2 Den., 522

(13) See Taylor Ev , §§ 873, 874, Roscoe, Cr. Ev , 12th Ed., 40, Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 228; Wills, Ev , 210, R v Moore, 2 Den C. C , 522, 526.

(14) R v Laugher, 2 C & K., 225, R. v. Taylor, 8 C. & P., 733, Quære, whether the section by the use of the words "proceeding from" enacts a different rule; it is submitted not: but see Field, Ev., 136.

(15) R. v. Gibbons, 1 C & P , 97, R v. Tyler, 1 C. & P , 129.

(16) R v. Bonwell, 1 Car & M , 584; R. v. Blackburn, 6 Cox, 333

(17) See Roscoe, Cr. Ev , 41; Field, Ev., 136.

(18) See R. v. Mohan Lal, 4 A., 46 (1881) offence, the subject of that charge.(1) It must reasonably imply that the prisoner's position with reference to it will be rendered better or worse according as he does or does not confess.(2) And if the inducement be made as to one charge, it will not affect a confession as to a totally different charge.(3) An inducement relating to some collateral matter unconnected with the charge

the prisoner a glass his wife,(7), will not ucement need not be expressed, but may be implied from the conduct of the person in authority, the declarations of the prisoner, or the circumstances of the case;(8), nor need it be made directly to the prisoner; it is sufficient if it may reasonably be presumed to have come to his knowledge, providing, of course, it appears to have induced the confession.(9)

The advantage to be gained or the evil to be avoided

Secondly.—The inducement must (b) in the opinion of the Court be sufficient (see next paragraph): and the advantage to be gained, or the evil to be avoided, must (a) be of a temporal nature; therefore any inducement having reference to a future state of reward or punishment does not affect the admissibility of a confession, thus a confession will not be excluded which has been obtained from the accused by moral or religious exhortation, however urgent, ence to the proceedings against the accused;(18) as, for instance, that by

(1) In R v. Hicks, 10 B L R, App 1, a confession under threat, made for purpose other than to extort confession was held to be inadmissible, but the correctness of this ruling is doubtful

(2) R v Garner, 2 C & K, 920, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 229, Taylor, Ev, §§ 879—881, 3 Russ, Cr, 42, 43, Steph Dig, Art 22, Wills, Ev., 210, "the threat must be a threat to prosecute or take some step adverse to the defendant's interests connected therewith, viz, the prosecution, and the promise must be a promise to forbear from some such course," ib

(3) R v Warner, 3 Russ., Cr, 452n, unless where two crimes being charged, both form parts of the same transaction, R v Hearn, 1 Car. & M, 109

(4) Taylor, Ev, § 880

(5) R v Sexton, cited in Joy on Confession, 17—19, is not law: Taylor, Ev, § 880; 3 Russ., Cr, 445, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 42, 12th Ed, 39

(6) R v. Green, 6 C. & P., 655.

(7) R. v Lloyd, 1b, 393.

(8) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 229, R. v. Gillis, 17 Ir. C. L., 534, cited.

(9) Ib, Taylor, Ev, § 885; but a promise or threat to one prisoner will not exclude a confession made by another who was present and heard the inducement; R. v Jacobs, 4 Cox, 54; and see R. v. Bate, 11 Cox, 686, where a confession by a prisoner was received although an inducement had been held out to an accomplice which might have been communicated to the prisoner, but see R v. Harding, 1 Arm M. & O, 340.

(10) R v. Gilham, 1 Moo C. C., 186 (in this case the gaol chaplain told a prisoner that, as the minister of God, he ought to warn him not to add sin to sin by attempting to dissemble with God, and that it would be important for him to confess his sins before God and to repair, as far as he could, any injury he had done, the prisoner after this made two confessions to the gaoler and mayor which were held to be admissible

(11) R. v. Jarvis, L. R, 1 C. C. R, 96; R. v. Reeve, 1b, 362

(12) R v Court, 7 C. & P., 486, R. v. Holmes, 1 Cox, 247; "as a universal rule, an exhortation to speak the truth ought not to exclude confession" per Erle, J, in R. v. Moore, 2 Den, C. C, 522, 523

(13) R v. Lloyd, 6 C. & P, 393

(14) R. v. Reeve, L. R., 1 C. C. R, 362

(15) R. v. Wild, R. & M, 452

(16) R. v. Jarvis, L. R., 1 C. C. R, 96

(17) R v. Sleeman, Dears, 269

(18) Thus in R v. Mohan Lal, 4 A, 46, supra, the evil threatened (excommunication for life) had no reference to the criminal proceedings against the prisoners. The case of R v Hicks, 10 B. L. R., App., 1, supra, is also open to the objection that it is not in accordance with the provision of the section.

confessing he will not be sent to jail;(1) that nothing will happen to him;(2) that steps will be taken to get him off;(3) that he will be pardoned,(4) or the like. A promise or threat as to some purely collateral matter will not exclude the confession (v. ante)

"Sufficient to give the accused grounds"

As the admission or rejection of a confession rests wholly in the discretion of the Judge, it is difficult to lay down particular rules, à priori, for the government of that discretion, and the more so, because much must necessarily depend on the age, experience, intelligence, and character of the prisoner, and on the circumstances under which the confessions was made. Language sufficient to overcome the mind of one, may have no effect upon that of another; a consideration which may serve to reconcile some contradictory decisions where the principal facts appear similar in the Reports, but the lesser circumstances, though often very material in such preliminary enquiries, are omitted.(5) The reported cases in which statements by prisoners have been held inadmissible are very numerous. Various expressions have been held to amount to an "inducement." But the principle has been thus broadly stated "It does not turn upon what may have been the precise words used, but in each case, whatever the words used may be it is for the Judge to consider, before he admits or rejects the evidence, whether the words used were such as to convey to the mind of the person addressed an intimation that it will be better for him to confess that he committed the crime, or worse for him if he does not."(6) "It is not because the law is afraid of having the truth elicited that these confessions are excluded, but it is because the law is jealous of not having the truth "(7) The following are given as examples of confessions which have been admitted or rejected It has been already mentioned that confessions induced by mere moral or religious exhortation are admissible. "At one time almost any invitation to make a disclosure was held to imply some threat or promise, but a sounder practice has since prevailed, and the words used are construed in their natural sense, so that many of the older decisions are no longer safe guides."(8) Such expressions, therefore, as "what you say will be used as evidence against you" or "for or against you" will not exclude a confession,(9) for such language imports a mere caution.(10) Nor does the expression, "I must know more about it," amount to a threat.(11) There is, however, one form of inducement, namely, "you had better tell the truth" and equivalent expressions which are regarded as having acquired a fixed meaning in this connection, as if a technical term, and are always held to import a threat or promise (12) Thus, "you had better pay the

(1) R. v. Narroji Dadabhai, 9 Bom. H. C. R. 258 (1872)

(2) R. v. Mussumat Luchoo, 5 N.-W. P., 58 (1873)

(3) R. v. Pama Durga, 3 B., 12 (1878) or "that if he confessed to the Magistrate he would get off," R. v. Ramdhan Singh, 1 W. R., Cr., 24 (1864)

(4) R. v. Asghar Ali, 2 A., 291 (1879); R. v. Radhanath Dondh, 8 W. R., Cr., 53 (1867). Bisho Manjee v. R., 9 W. R., Cr., 16 (1868) [promises of immunity by the police]. R. v. Jagat Chandra, 22 C., 50, 73 (1894); see Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 45, Abdul Karim v. R., 1 All. L. J., 110 (1904); a confession, however, made under promise of pardon, may be admissible under s. 339, Cr. Pr. Code R. v. Asgar Ali, see supra, R. v. Hanmanta, 1 B., 610 (1877).

(5) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 40, see cases there collected

(6) R. v. Garner, 2 C. & K., 920, 925, per Erle, J

(7) R. v. Mansfield, 14 Cox, C. C., 639, 640, per Williams J

(8) Wills, Ev., 212 See judgment of Parke, B., in R. v. Baldry, 2 Den at p. 445.

(9) R. v. Baldry, 2 Den., 430, overruling several earlier cases

(10) R. v. Jarvis, L. R., 1 C. C. R., 96, Wright's case, 1 Law, 49, and see R. v. Long, 6 C. & P., 179, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 231

(11) R. v. Reason, 12 Cox, 228

(12) Wills, Ev., 212; "The words 'you had better' seem to have acquired a sort of technical meaning." per Kelly, C. B., in R. v. Jarvis money, than go to jail" constitute an inducement.(1) The terms of the inducement constantly involve both threat and promise, a threat of prosecution if disclosure is not made, a promise of forgiveness if it is. The following, for instance, have been held to be such statements when made by persons in authority; "If you don't tell the truth, I will send for the constable to take you;"(2) "if you tell me where my goods are, I will be favourable to you;" (3) "if you confess the truth, nothing will happen to you,"(4) "if you don't tell me, I will give you in charge of the police till you do tell me;"(5) "if you are guilty do confess; it will perhaps save your neck; you will have to go to prison; pray tell me if you did it;"(6) "I only want my money, if you give me that you may go to the devil;"(7) "unless you give me a more satisfactory account, I will take you before a Magistrate,"(8) "the watch has been found, and if you do not tell me who your partner was, I will commit you to prison;"(9) "if I tell the truth shall I be hung?" "No, nonsense, you will not be hung;"(10) "tell me what really happened, and I will take steps to get you off,"(11) "if you confess to the Magistrate, you will get off,"(12) "it is no use to deny it, for there are the man and boy who will swear they saw you do it,"(13) "I shall be obliged if you would tell me what you know about it, if you will not, of course, we can do nothing for you,"(14) "I will get you released if you speak the truth;"(15) "you had better split and not suffer for all of them."(16) A confession made under a promise of pardon is inadmissible.(17) The threat or promise need not be in express terms, if the intention is still clear, as in the case of the following statements "If you (the person in authority) forgive me, I (the prisoner) will tell you the truth" Reply: "Anne, did you do it?"(18) "If you don't tell me, you may get yourself into trouble, and it will be the worse for you."(19) But a promise or threat must be imported. Thus the following statements have been held not to exclude the confession: "I must know more about it,"(20) "now is the time for you to take it [the stolen property] back to the prosecutrix"(21)

---

supra, see also per Field, J, in R v Uzeer, 10 C., 775, 776 (1884), and per Sargent, C J, in R. v Navroji, Dadabhai, 9 Bom H C R, 358 (1872), R v Fennell, 7 Q B D, 147, R v Halls, 49 L T, 780, R v Walkley, 6 C & P, 175, but this construction will not prevail if such a statement is accompanied by other words which indicate that it was not intended in this sense, as if you had better, as good boys, tell the truth," R v. Reeve, L R, 1 C C R, 362. I dare say you had a hand in it, you may as well tell me all about it," is an inducement, R v Croydon, 2 Cox, 67

(1) R v Navroji Dadabhai, 9 Bom H C R, 358 (1872)

(2) R v Hearn, 1 Car, & M, 109 Wills, Ev, 212, R v Richards, 5 C & P, 318

(3) R v Cass, 1 Lea, 293, note

(4) R v Mussumat Luchoo, 5 N-W P, 86 (1873)

(5) R v. Luckhurst, Dears. C C, 245

(6) R v Upchurch, 1 Moo. C C, 465

(7) R v. Jones, R. & R, 152

(8) R v. Thompson, 1 Lea, 291

(9) R v Parratt, 4 C & P, 570

(10) R v Windsor, 4 F & F, 366

(11) R v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878)

(12) R v Ramdhan Sing, 1 W R, Cr, 24 (1864)

(13) R v Mills, 6 C & P, 146

(14) R v Partridge, 7 C & P, 551

(15) R v Dhurum Dutt, 8 W R, Cr, 13 (1867).

(16) R v. Thomas, 6 C & P, 353

(17) R v Ashgar Ali, 2 A, 260 (1879), R v Radhanath Dosadh, 8 W R, Cr, 53 (1867), v ante, p 125, note 3, and as to confession induced by knowledge that reward and pardon had been offered, see R v Blackburn, 6 Cox, 333, R v Boswell, 1 Car & M, 584, R v Dingley, 1 C & K, 637.

(18) R v Mansfield, 14 Cox, 639, Wills, Ev, 212.

(19) R v Coley, 10 Cox, 536

(20) R v Reason, 12 Cox, 228, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 233.

(21) R v Jones, 12 Cox, 241.

Confession made to a Police-officer not to be proved

25. No confession made to a Police-officer,(1) shall be proved as against a person accused of any offence.(2)

Principle.—The powers of the police are often abused for purposes of extortion and oppression;(3) and confessions obtained by the police through [illegible] comment.(4) "The [illegible] from accused persons against them."(5) If a confession be "made to a Police-officer, the law says that such a confession shall be absolutely excluded from evidence, because the person to whom it was made is not to be relied on for proving such a confession, and he is moreover suspected of employing coercion to obtain the confession." "The broad ground for not admitting confessions made to a Police-officer is to avoid the danger of admitting false confessions"(6)

s. 26 (Confession while in custody of police.)

s. 27 (Facts discovered in consequence of information.)

COMMENTARY

Construction of section

The rule enacted by this section is without limitation or qualification: and a confession made to a Police-officer is inadmissible in evidence, except so far as is provided by the twenty-seventh section, post.(7) It is "better in construing a section such as the 25th which was intended as a wholesome protection to the accused, to construe it in its widest and most popular signification The enactment in this section is one to which the Court should give the fullest effect"(8) The terms of the section are imperative, and a confession made to a Police-officer under any circumstances is inadmissible in evidence against the accused The next section does not qualify the present one, but means that no confession made by a prisoner in custody to any person other than a Police-officer, shall be admissible, unless made in the presence of a Magistrate.(9) The twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections do not overlap each other. On the other hand, the twenty-sixth section cannot be treated as an

---

(1) In Upper Burma, after the word "Police-officer," the words "who is not a Magistrate" are to be inserted, see Act XIII of 1898

(2) The above section was taken from s 148, Act XXV of 1861 (Cr Pr. Code); see R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 512 (1884) As to statements made to a Police-officer investing a case, and as to the use of Police-reports and diaries and statements made before the police See Cr Pr Code

(3) See Extract from The First Report of the Indian Law Commissioners cited in Field, Ev, 140—142; and remarks of Straight, J., in R. v Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 542 (1884), and Mahmood, J., ib., 523; but see also remarks of Duthoit, J., ib, 550

(4) v ante, notes to s. 25

(5) Per Garth, C. J., in R. v. Hurribole Chunder, 1 C, 207, 215 (1876); 25 W. R., Cr, 36, see also In the matter of Hiran Moya, 1 C L R, 21 (1877); R. v. Pancham, 4 A, 198, 204 (1882). Sections 25, 26, 27 "differ widely from the law of England and were inserted in the Act of 1861 (from which they have been taken) in order to prevent the practice of torture by the police for the purpose of extracting confessions" Steph., Introd, 165

(6) R v. Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 532 (1884), per Mahomod, J, and v ib, 544, per Straight, J, ib., 513; per Oldfield, J

(7) In the matter of Hiran Moya, 1 C. L R, 21 (1877), R v Babu Lal, 6 All., 509 (1884) See as to construction of this section, the Madras Law Journal Jan and Feb, 1895, pp. 31—36.

(8) Per Garth, C J, in R v. Hurribole Chunder, 1 C., 215, 216 (1876), 25 W R, Cr., 36 but see dictum of Stuart, C J, in R. v. Pancham, 4 A, 198, 203 (1882), in which, however, Straight, J., seems not to have concurred, and which was dissented from by the Calcutta Court in Adu Shikdar v. R, 11 C, 365, 641 (1885), "the prohibition in this section must be strictly applied" R. v. Pancham, 4 A., 204, per Straight, J

(9) R. v. Hurribole Chunder, supra, 215, In the matter of Hiran Moya, supra, R. v. Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 532 (1884) exception or proviso to section. The two sections lay down two clear and definite rules. In this section the criterion for excluding a confession is the answer to the question—to whom was the confession made? If the answer is, that it was made to a Police-officer, it is excluded. On the other hand, the criterion adopted in the twenty-sixth section for excluding a confession is the answer to the question—under what circumstances was the confession made? If the answer is, that it was made whilst the accused was in the custody of a Police-officer, the confession is excluded, "unless it was made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate."(1) Therefore a confession to a Police-officer, even though made in the presence of a Magistrate, is inadmissible.(2) The provisions of the section are unqualified, and it is therefore immaterial whether the confessing party was, at the time of making the confession, accused or not, or whether he was in police-custody or not, and whether the confession was made to a Police-officer in the presence of a Magistrate or not. When a Police-officer has evidence before him sufficient to justify the arrest of an accused, he should not, preliminary to the arrest, examine him and record his statement. The evidence of the Police-officer in regard to such statement cannot be regarded except as a confession to a Police-officer and is inadmissible under this section and is also inadmissible against the co-accused.(3)

"Police officer."

In construing this section the term "Police-officer" should be read not in any strict technical sense, but according to its more comprehensive and popular meaning.(4) A confession, therefore, made to the Deputy Commissioner of Police in Calcutta was held to be inadmissible.(5) The provisions of this section apply to every Police-officer and is not to be restricted to officers of the regular police-force.(6) The following persons are "Police-officers" within the meaning of this section: police patel;(7) daroga,(8) sub-inspector of [illegible] police head-constables in the Presidency [illegible] Police-officers of Native States as well as those of British India.(15) It is immaterial whether such Police-officer be the officer investigating the case the fact that such person is a Police-officer invalidates a confession.(16) A confession made to a Police-officer in the presence and hearing of a private person is not to be considered as made to the latter, and is therefore excluded by the section.(17) But a policeman who overhears a conversation may be in the position of an ordinary witness and competent to depose to what he heard It was, therefore, held that the evidence of a policeman who overheard a prisoner's statement

---

(1) R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 59, 532 (1884), per Mahmood, J., and v., ib., 544, 545, per Straight, J.

(2) Ib., R v Domun Kahar, 12 W. R., Cr. 82 (1869), R v Mon Mohan, 24 W. R., Cr., 33 (1875), in this case the confession was made to the Magistrate, but the report shows that had it been made to the police it would have been held to be inadmissible.

(3) R v Jadab Das, 4 C. W. N., 129 (1899).

(4) R v Hurribole Chunder, 1 C., 207, 215 (1876), per Garth, C. J. In the matter of Hiran Miya, 1 C. L. R., 21 (1877), R v Bhima, 17 B., 485, 486 (1892), per Jardine, J. R v Salemuddin Sheik, 26 C., 570 (1899). R v Nagla Kala, 22 B., 235 (1896).

(5) R v Hurribole Chunder, supra.

(6) R. v Salemuddin Sheik, 26 C., 569 (1899).

(7) R. v Bhima, supra., R v Kamalia, 10 B., 395 (1886).

(8) R v Pancham, 4 A., 198 (1882).

(9) In the matter of Hiran Miya, 1 C. L. R., 21, supra.

(10) R v Pagaree Shaha, 19 W. R., Cr., 51 (1873), Adu Sikdar, v. R., 11 C., 635 (1885).

(11) R v Macdonald 10 B. L. R., App., 2 (1872), R v Pitambur Jina 2 B. 61 (1877), R v Piandharishnath 6 B., 34 (1881), R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 509 (1884).

(12) R v Mussumat Luckoo, 5 N.-W. P., 86 (1873).

(13) R v Salemuddin Sheikh, 26 C., 569 (1899). See Nazir Jhander v R., 9 C. W. N., 474 (1905).

(14) R v Soma Papa, 7 M., 287 (1883), see R. v Bhima, 17 B., 485, 486 (1892).

(15) R v Nagla Kala, 22 B., 235 (1896).

(16) In the matter of Hiran Miya, 1 C. L. R., 21, supra.

(17) R. v Pancham, 4 A., 198, 201, supra.

made in another room, and in ignorance of the policeman's vicinity and uninfluenced by it, was admissible: the statement not being made to a Police-officer, not to others whilst in his custody.(1) A confession is not taken without the scope of this section by the fact that it was made to a person, not in his capacity of a Police-officer, but as an Acting Magistrate, and Justice of the Peace.(2) In this last cited case, Pontifex, J., while agreeing that the confession there in question was inadmissible, added that he did so "without going so far as to say that this section of the Evidence Act renders inadmissible a confession made to any person connected with the police, for there are cases in which a person holding high judicial office has control over and is the nominal head of the police in his district."(3) If a person while in custody, as an accused, gives information to the police as complainant in another case, his statements as such informant cannot be used as evidence against him on his trial (4) A statement made to a Police-officer by an accused person while in the custody of the police, if it is an admission of a criminating circumstance, cannot be used in evidence under this and the following section(5) (v. post).

"Against."

This section only provides that "no confession made to a Police-officer shall be proved as against a person accused of any offence." It may, however, be proved for other purposes. It does not preclude one accused person from proving a confession made to a Police-officer by another accused person tried jointly with him. But under such circumstances it would be the duty of the Judge to instruct the jury that such confession is not to be received or treated as evidence against the person making it, but simply as evidence to be considered on behalf of the other (6) So again it has been held that statements made by accused persons as to the ownership of property which was the subject matter of the proceedings against them were admissible as evidence with regard to the ownership of the property in an inquiry held by the Magistrate under section 523, Act X of 1882 (7) In this case West, J., observed: "Confession in this section of the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872) means, as in the twenty-fourth section, a confession made by an accused person, which it is proposed to prove against him to establish an offence For such a purpose a confession might be inadmissible, which yet for other purposes would be admissible as an admission, under the eighteenth section, against the person who made it (the twenty-first section) in his character of one setting up an interest in property the object of litigation or judicial enquiry and disposal."(8)

Admission made to Police-officers.

An admission made by an accused person to a Police-officer may be proved if it does not amount to a confession ,(9) that is, if it is not a statement by him that he committed the crime with which he is charged, or a statement suggesting the inference that he did so So where the prosecutor's watch, chain and a sum of money had been stolen from him as he was travelling by rail to Calcutta, and evidence was tendered of a statement made by the prisoner to the constable who arrested him to the effect that the watch and Rs. 1,000 had been given to him by his sister, and that he had bought the chain, Phear, J., admitted this evidence, observing that there is a distinction in the Act between Admissions and Confessions (10) This statement was clearly not a

(1) R v. Sageena, 7 W. R., Cr., 56 (1867).
(2) R. v. Hurribole Chunder, 1 C., 207, supra
(3) Ib at p 218
(4) Moher Sheikh v. R., 21 C., 392 (1893)
(5) R v. Jaweharam, 19 B., 363 (1894); R v. Lukmo Anent, 3 W. R., Cr., 21 (1865).
(6) R v. Palamlet Jina, 2 B., 61 (1876).
(7) R v. Trikkaun Manekchand, 9 B., 131 (1884)
(8) Ib, 134.
(9) R. v. Macdonald, 10 B L. R., App., 2 (1872), followed in R. v. Dubee Pershad, 6 C., 530 (1881), 7 C. L R., 541, see also R v. Kangni Mala, Cr Ref 30 of 1905, Cal H C., 18th Sept. 1905. R v Nobodwip Goswami, 1 B L. R., O. S. C. 15 (1868), 15 W. R., Cr., 71, in which it was held that the answer did not amount to a confession of guilt, but was a statement of facts which, if true, showed that the prisoner was innocent
(10) R v Macdonald, supra.

confession of the theft or dishonestly receiving stolen property with which he was charged, as it was not a statement that he had stolen the goods or come by them dishonestly nor does the statement suggest any inference that he was guilty of the offences with which he was charged, but, on the contrary, if true, it showed that he was innocent.(1) So where one of the three prisoners tried for murder made two statements, of which the first was—"Sir, I have something to give you. MA gave me this paper yesterday evening to keep for him," and the other was a detailed statement of how the deceased met his death. Wilson, J., admitted the first statement (from which no inference of guilt could be drawn), but rejected the second (which led to the inference that the person making the statement took part in the commission of the offence.)(2) For an incriminating statement by an accused person to a Police-officer on which the prosecution relies is inadmissible.(3) A statement made by an accused to the police which does not amount directly or indirectly to an admission of any criminating circumstance, is admissible in evidence: hence where the accused was found carrying away a box at night, and when asked by a Policeman on duty about the ownership of the box he stated that the box belongs to him; this statement was held admissible against him, on a trial of theft regarding the box.(4) As was pointed out in the undermentioned case(5) a useful test as to admissibility of statements made to the police is to ascertain the purpose to which they are put by the prosecution. If the latter rely on the statements of the accused to the police as being true, then they may, and probably in many cases will be found to amount to confessions. If on the other hand the statements of the accused are relied on, not because of their truth but because of their falsity they are admissible. They are in such cases brought forward to show what the defence of the accused is, and that as the defence is untrue this is a circumstance to prove the guilt of the accused

Confession by accused while in custody of police not to be proved against him

26. No confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a Police-officer, unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such person.

Explanation.—In this section 'Magistrate' does not include the head of a village discharging magisterial functions in the Presidency of Fort St. George or in Burma or elsewhere, unless such headman is a Magistrate exercising the powers of a Magistrate under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.(6)

---

(1) But a statement, although intended to be made in self-exculpation and not as a confession, may nevertheless be an admission of a criminating circumstances, and if so, it is excluded by ss 25 and 26. R v Pandharinath, 6 B., 34 (1881). v post

(2) R v Meher Ali, 15 C., 589 (1888), see also R v Jogrup, 7 A., 646 (1885), in which, however, the statement was held not to amount to a confession

(3) R v Matheus, 10 C., 1022 (1884). R v Pandharinath, 6 B., 34, 37 (1881). R v. Nana, 14 B., 260, 263 (1889). R v Jaiecharam, 19 B. 363 (1894)

(4) R v Mahomed Ebrahim, 5 Bom. L. R. 312 (1903), distinguishing R v Wandarinath, supra

(5) R v Kangal Mali, Cr Ref 30 of 1905 Cal H C., 18th Sept 1905

(6) The above section was taken from s 149, Act XXV of 1861 (Cr Pr Code), see R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 512 (1884). The explanation to this section was added by s 3, Act III of 1891. It alters the law as laid down by the Madras High Court in R v Ramanayya, 2 M., 5 (1878). See R. v Nagla Kala, 22 B., 237 (1896) See now the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898)

Principle.—The object of this section (as of the last) is to prevent the abuse of their powers by the police.(1) The last section excludes confessions to a Police-officer under any circumstances. The present section excludes confessions to any one else, while the person making it is in a position to be influenced by a Police-officer, unless the free and voluntary nature of the confession is secured by its being made in the immediate presence of the Magistrate, in which case the confessing person has an opportunity of making a statement uncontrolled by any fear of the police.(2)

s. 25 (Confession to a Police-officer.) s. 27 (Facts discovered in consequence of information.)

COMMENTARY.

Construction.

The law is imperative in excluding what comes from an accused person in custody of the police if it incriminates him.(3) The prohibition in this section must be strictly applied (4) This section does not qualify the preceding one(5) and therefore a confession made to a Police-officer is admissible, even if made in the presence of a Magistrate ,(6) but this section as well as the last, is qualified by the following one (7) The twenty-fifth section applies to all confessions to Police-officers, the present section to all confessions to any person, other than a Police-officer, made by persons whilst in police-custody. These last-mentioned confessions are inadmissible unless made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate (8) But a confession inadmissible under this section against the confessing party, might, however, be admissible in favour of a co-accused.(9) The word "Police-officer" in this section include the Police-officers of Native States as well as those of British India.(10) As to the meaning of these words, see Commentary to the preceding section.

Police custody

As this section relates to confessions made to persons other than Police-officers, whilst the accused is in the custody of the police, a confession made to such third person by an accused whilst the latter is not in such custody is not excluded by the section Where, therefore, a woman, who was not in the custody of the police at the time, made a confession to a Village Munsif, whom the Court held not to be a Police-officer within the meaning of the preceding section, it was held that the confession could not be excluded under this section.(11) Some sort of custody appears to be sufficient. So where the prisoners were among certain persons who had been "collected" by a police-patel on suspicion, and the police-patel had himself accused them of complicity in the offence, the prisoners were deemed to be in the custody of the police (12) In the undermentioned case(13) a person under arrest on a charge of murder was taken in a tonga, from the place where the alleged offence was committed, to Godhra. A friend drove with her in the tonga and a mounted policeman rode in front. In the course of the journey the policeman left the tonga and went to a neighbouring village to procure a

---

(1) R v. Mon Mohun, 24 W. R., Cr., 33, 36 (1875), per Birch, J

(2) In the matter of Hiran Miya, 1 C. L. R., 21 (1877), per Ainslie, J., R v. Hurribole Chunder, 1 C., 207, 215 (1876)

(3) R. v. Mathews, 10 C., 1022, 1023 (1884), per Field, J See as to the construction of this section, the Madras Law Journal, Jan and Feb., 1893, pp. 36—44.

(4) R. v. Pancham, 4 A., 198, 204 (1882), per Straight, J.

(5) v. ante, p. 262.

(6) R v. Dumun Kahar, 12 W. R., Cr., 82 (1869), R v. Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 532, v ante p 262

(7) R v. Babu Lal, 6 A., 509 (1884); see note to s. 27, post

(8) v ante, p. 160

(9) R v. Pitamber Jina, 2 B., 61 (1876)

(10) R. v. Nagla Kala, 22 B., 235 (1896)

(11) R. v. Sama Papi, 7 M., 287 (1884)

(12) R. v. Kamalia, 10 B., 595, 596 (1886).

(13) R v. Lester, 20 B., 163 (1894).

fresh horse, the tonga meanwhile proceeding slowly along the road for some miles without any escort. In the absence of the policeman the accused made a communication to her friend with reference to the alleged offence. At the trial it was proposed to ask what the prisoner had said, on the ground that she was not then in custody, and that this section did not apply, but it was held that, notwithstanding the temporary absence of the policeman, the accused was still in custody, and the question must be disallowed. In a subsequent case,(1) it was held that the custody of the keeper of a jail in a Native State, who is not a Police-officer, does not become that of a Police-officer, merely because his subordinates, the warders of the jail, are members of the police-force of that State. In the absence of any suggestion of a close custody inside the jail, such as may possibly occur when an accused person is watched and guarded by a Police-officer investigating an offence, this section does not exclude such a jailor from giving evidence of what the accused told him while in jail.

In the immediate presence of a Magistrate

If the confession be made to a third person, the presence of a Magistrate is necessary in order to render the confession admissible under this section. But a confession made to the Magistrate himself conforms to the requirements of the time in the Act XXV of 1861 (Criminal Procedure Code), from which the present section of this Act has been taken, it was held that, in order to give weight to confessions of prisoners recorded under section 149, there should be a judicial record of the special circumstances under which such confessions were received by the Magistrate showing in whose custody the prisoners were, and how far they were quite free agents.(3) In another case decided under the same section, it was held that the words "a Magistrate" mean "any Magistrate" and not merely "the Magistrate having jurisdiction."(4) The word "Magistrate" in this section includes Magistrates of Native States as well as those of British India. And so a confession made by a prisoner while in police-custody, to a First-class Magistrate of the Native State of Muli in Kathiawar, and duly recorded by such Magistrate in the manner required by the Code of Criminal Procedure, was held to be admissible in evidence (5)

How much of information received from accused may be proved

27. Provided that, when any fact is deposed(6) to as discovered(7) in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence,(8) in the custody of a Police-officer,(9) so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved.(10)

---

(1) R v Tatya, 20 B., 795 (1895)

(2) R v Man Mohun, 24 W. R. Cr., 33 (1875). R v Nilmadhab Mutter, 15 C., 593 (1888).

(3) R v Kadai Kahar, 5 W. R., Cr., 6 (1866) see Criminal Procedure Code ss. 164, 364, 533

(4) R v Vahala Jetha 7 Bom. H. C. R., C. C., 56 (1870)

(5) R v Nagla Kala, 22 B., 235 (1896)

(6) S. 150 of Act XXV of 1861 (Cr. Pr. Code) ran thus —' Deposed to by a police-officer,' etc [see Bishen Manjee v R., 9 W. R., Cr., 16, 17 (1868)] The words in italics were omitted in the amended section substituted by Act VIII of 1869, and the omission has been here retained As the section now stands, the fact may be deposed to by any one, Field, Ev., 45

(7) S. 150 of Act XXV of 1861 ran thus — "Discovered by him," which italicised words were omitted in the amended section substituted by Act VIII of 1869, v. post

(8) S. 150 of Act XXV of 1861 ran thus — "or in the custody etc., v. post

(9) This word has the same meaning as in ss. 25 and 26, ante, see R v Nagla Kala, 22 B., 235, 238 (1896)

(10) This section replaces s. 150 of Act XXV of 1861 (Cr. Pr. Code) as amended by Act VIII of 1869 see R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 512, 516 (1884)

Principle.—The broad ground f inducement, or to a Police-officer, or of admitting false confessions.(1) P pears in a case provided for by this section, when the truth of the confession is guaranteed by the discovery of facts in consequence of the information given. It is this guarantee, afforded by the discovery of the property, for the correctness of the accused's statement, which is the ground of the admission of the exception to the general rule The fact discovered shows that so much of the confession as immediately relates to it is true.(2)

s. 24 (Confession caused by inducement.) s. 26 (Confession by accused while in police-custody.)
s. 52 (Confession to a Police-officer)

Steph. Dig, Art. 22; Taylor, Ev., §§ 902, 903; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 232; Wills, Ev., 214; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 49; 3 Russ Cr., 482—485.(3)

COMMENTARY.

Construction of section

Though the words "in the custody of a Police-officer" might seem to indicate that this section was intended to be a proviso to the preceding section only, and that i' d thereby, c r, been held so to the two m
given by an accused to a Police-officer, whether amounting to a confession or not, as distinctly relates to the facts thereby discovered, may be proved.(4) But the present section only qualifies the twenty-fifth section when the accused person is in the custody of the police, therefore, confessions to Police-officers by persons who are accused, but not in custody, or are in custody but not accused, or are neither accused nor in custody, do not fall within the present section.(5) This section also qualifies the twenty-fourth section. Therefore, whatever the inducement that may have been applied, or made use of, towards the accused, there is nothing in the law which forbids policemen or others from, at any rate, going so far as to say "In consequence of what the prisoner told me, I went to such and such a place and found such and such a thing" Moreover, they may repeat the words in which the information was couched, whether they amount to a confession or not, provided they relate distinctly to the fact discovered (6) Therefore, although a confession may be generally inadmissible, in consequence of an inducement having been offered

(1) See cases cited in the notes to ss 24, 25, 26, ante

(2) R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 513, 517, 546 (1884), R v Nana, 14 B, 260, 264 (1889), 3 Russ Cr, 483, Taylor, Ev, §§ 902, 903 "But not only are confessions excluded when obtained by means of improper inducements, but also the acts of the prisoner done under the influence of such inducements, unless confirmed by the finding of the property; for the same influence which might produce a groundless confession might produce groundless conduct" 3 Russ, Cr, 485.

(3) As to the English authorities, see R. v. Nana, 14 B., 260, 265 (1889); R. v Rama Birapa, 3 B, 12, 17 (1878), R. v. Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 517, 547 (1884).

(4) Field, Ev, 145, R v. Pagaree Shaha, 19 W. R, Cr., 51 (1873); and see under the old law R. v. Peita Gazi, 4 W. R., Cr, 19 (1865); R. v. Jora Bauji, 11 Bom H C R., 242 (1874), R. v Rama Birapa, 3 B, 12 (1878), R. v. Pancham, 4 A 198 (1882), R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, F B. (1884), Idu Shikdar v R., 11 C, 635 (1885), R v Kamalia, 10 B, 595 (1886), R v. Nana, 14 B, 260 (1889) See generally as to the construction of this section, the Madras Law Journal, supra, p 74, et seq, March, 1895, 123, et seq April, 1895

(5) R v Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 513, 537, 534, F B (1884), per Oldfield and Mahmood, JJ, v. post

(6) R v Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, 545, per Straight, C. J., ib, per Brodhurst, J, citing Taylor, Ev, § 902 [contra, per Mahmood, J, ib, 535; and R. v Kuarpala, Weekly Notes (1882), 225; see also to the same effect, viz, that s 27 does not qualify s 24, R v. Mussumat Luchoo, 5 N-W P., 86 (1873)], R v. Rama Birapa, 3 B, 12, 16 (1878); within the meaning of the twenty-fourth section, yet if any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of such confession, so much thereof as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered may be proved under this section. But though the present section qualifies the twenty-fourth section, it will not be applicable in every case that falls within the scope of that section which enacts that confessions unduly obtained are irrelevant whether the confessing party was in custody or not. But the present section refers to confessions made by accused persons in custody. Therefore confessions made by persons when accused but not in custody, or in custody but not accused, or neither accused nor in custody, will not be rendered admissible by the present section even if there is discovery.(1) This section, as a qualification of the imperative rules contained in sections 24—26, should be strictly construed and applied (2) The words "any fact" are qualified by the word "discovered" as used in the section; under the present section, it is not every statement made by a person accused of any offence while in the custody of a Police-officer, connected with the production or finding of property, which is admissible. Whatever be the nature of the fact discovered, that fact must, in all cases, be itself relevant to the case, and the connection between it and the statements made must have been such that that statement constituted the information through which the discovery was made, in order to render the statement admissible. Other statements connected with the one thus made evidence, and thus mediately, but not necessarily or directly, connected with the fact discovered, are not admissible (3) "No judicial officer [dealing with the provisions of this section] should allow one word more to be deposed to by a Police-officer, detailing a statement made to him by an accused, in consequence of which he discovered a fact, than is absolutely necessary to show how the fact that was discovered is connected with the accused, so as in itself to be a relevant fact against him. The twenty-seventh section was not intended to let in a confession generally, but only such particular part of it as set the person, to whom it was made, in motion, and led to his ascertaining the fact or facts of which he gives evidence."(4) The test of the admissibility under this section of information received from an accused person in the custody of a Police-officer, whether amounting to a confession or not, is —"Was the fact discovered by reason of the information and how much of the information was the immediate cause of the fact discovered, and as such a relevant fact ?"(5) per West, J —"It is not pretended that any discovery of facts, through information derived from R, occurred after that statement was made Its defect, as made under undue influence, therefore, was not and could not be counteracted in the only possible way" This qualification of the rule enacted in s 24 by that enacted in the present section is in accordance with the English law upon the subject see Taylor, Ev, § 902 The question does not appear to have been discussed by the Calcutta and Madras Courts in any reported case But under the corresponding section of Act XXV of 1861 (s 150), it was held by the former Court that where a Police-officer had offered an inducement to make a confession no part of his evidence, as to the discovery of facts in consequence of such confession, was admissible. R v Dhurum Dass, 8 W R, Cr, 13 (1867); see also Brahm Manjee v R., 9 W. R. Cr., 16, 17 (1868).

---

(1) See note (6), p. 271.

(2) R v Pancham 4 A 198 (1882) see Adu Shikdar v R 11 C 635 642 (1885) In R v Ram Charan, 24 W R Cr, 36 (1875) Jackson, J, commented upon a prevailing tendency to disregard the provisions of s 26 of the Evidence Act which has occurred in this case, as well as in others recourse being had although not justified by facts, to the proviso contained in s 27

(3) R v Jora Haeji, 11 Bom H C R 242 (1874)

(4) R v Babu Lal 6 A, 509 546 (1884), per Straight, C J, cited and adopted by Norris, J, in Adu Shikdar v R 11 C 635, 641 (1885)

(5) R v Cummer Shaluh, 12 M, 153 (1888), in which it was also said that the reasonable construction of s 27 is that, in addition to the fact discovered so much of the information as was the immediate cause of the discovery is legal evidence."

"Discovered"

The word "discovery" may either mean the purely mental act of learning something which was not known before to a person, as the mere mental act of becoming aware of something after hearing it stated; or, the physical act of finding upon search or inquiry some thing, or material fact, the existence or the exact locality of which was unknown till then. It is in the latter sense that the word is used in this section, that is, in the sense of a finding upon a search or inquiry of articles connected with the crime or other material fact; the reason being that it is only this kind of discovery which proves that the information, in consequence of which the discovery was made, is true and not fabricated. The statements admitted by the section are statements preceding finding upon search or inquiry (1) It is not now necessary that the discovery should be by the deponent,(2) if the latter be a Police-officer investigating a case, he will not be allowed to prove an information received from a person accused of an offence in the custody of a Police-officer, on the ground that a material fact was thereby discovered by him when that fact was already known to another Police-officer (3) When the Police succeed in discovering property in consequence of information received from an accused, it is not competent to the police to replace the property in the place whence it is discovered and to ask the other accused to produce the property because there is no further discovery under this section as against the other accused.(4) While statements preceding finding upon search or inquiry are admissible under this section, on the other hand, mere statements, which lead to no physical discovery after they are made, are inadmissible (5) In the case of statements made while pointing out the scene of the crime, the general rule is that if a prisoner points out or shows the scene of the offence and objects around as connected therewith, and makes contemporaneous statements in reference thereto, his acts may be given in evidence, as amounting to "conduct" relevant under the eighth section ante, but the accompanying statements are not admissible under the present section, there being no such "discovery" as is required by it, nor do they fall within the first Explanation to the eighth section, and are therefore wholly excluded (6) So where the prisoner, besides the formal recorded confession, made a confession to the Police-officers before and during his pointing out particular places and particular articles said to have been connected with the murder of which he was charged, West, J., observed: "A confession of murder made to a police-constable is not at all confirmed by the prisoner's saying, 'this is the place where I killed the deceased,' and when, starting from the pointing to a ditch or a tree, a long narrative of transactions, some of them altogether remote from any connection with the spot indicated, is allowed to be deposed to as a confession by the prisoner, the intent of the

---

(1) See The Madras Law Journal, supra, March 1895, pp. 80, 85, R. v. Jora Hasi, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 242 (1874), R v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878); R. v. Nana, 14 B., 260 (1889). In all the cases under this section where the statements were held to be admissible, the "discovery" was of articles or other material facts The section, as thus understood enacts the same rule as is given in Taylor, Ev., §§ 902, 903 (R. v. Rama Birapa, supra, 17; R v Nana, supra, 265); for an example of an admission subsequent to discovery, see R. v Kamal Fulvar, 17 W. R., Cr., 50 (1872)

(2) Under s. 150, Act XXV of 1861, the words were "discovered by him;" the italicised words have been omitted in the present section.

(3) Ada Shikdar v. R, 11 C., 635, 642 (1885).

(4) R v Beshya, 2 Bom. L. R., 1089 (1900)

(5) R v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878); see the Madras Law Journal, supra, 81.

(6) Ib, 82, R v Jora Hasi, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 242, 246 (1874); R v Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12, 16, 17 (1878), that is, assuming the accompanying statements to amount to confessions; the rule, however, as to such statements when more particularly stated, appears to be that if such statements are really explanatory of the acts they accompany they may be proved (R. v. Jora Hasi, supra; 245, 246; R. v Rama Birapa, supra, 17), subject, however, to the further proviso that s. 8, so far as it admits a statement as included in the word "conduct," cannot admit a statement as evidence which would be shut out by ss. 25, 26; R. v. Nana, 14 B., 260, 263 (1889)

Evidence Act is not fulfilled but defeated."(1) From the statement, "This is the place where I killed the deceased," there is no "discovery" within the meaning of this section, and therefore no guarantee of the truth of the statement; and further, the prosecution had not, in the particular case, shown that any act done by the accused had been so explained by his statements as to make the latter admissible under the first Explanation of the eighth section. Similarly, in the case of statements accompanying production of articles the general rule is that if the prisoner himself produces or delivers articles said to be connected with the offence, and contemporaneously makes declarations as regards them, the act of production or delivery itself may be proved as "conduct" under the eighth section, ante; but as there is no "discovery," the accompanying statements are not admissible under the present section, nor under the first Explanation to the eighth section, ante.(2) So where a Police-officer deposed that the accused told him "that he had robbed K R of Rs. 48, whereof he had spent Rs. 8, and had Rs. 40," and that he, the accused, made over Rs. 40 to him, the statement was held inadmissible, as no facts were discovered thereby. The High Court disapproved of the opinion of the Sessions Judge who had admitted this statement on the ground that the confession was the necessary preliminary of the surrender of the Rs. 40, and that the surrender must necessarily have been accompanied or immediately preceded by some explanatory statement (3) But where the accused makes a statement as to the locality of certain property, and after, and upon such statement, the police accompany him to the locality, where upon arrival, the accused by his own act produces the property, such statements may be admissible as leading to the discovery of the property(4) (v post)

"In consequence of information"

In the first place, whatever be the nature of the fact discovered, that fact must, in all cases, be itself relevant to the case, and the connection between it and the statement made must have been such that that statement constituted the information through which the discovery was made, in order to render the statement admissible.(5) In the next place, the practical test to determine whether or not there is such a connection between the information and the discovery has been stated to be as follows:—"In regard to the extent of the words 'thereby discovered,' we may derive some assistance from the test applied by the Courts in dealing with proximate and remote causes of damage, namely, whether what followed was the natural and reasonable result of the defendant's act.(6)" It was formerly held by the Bombay and Allahabad High Courts(7) that where an article said to be connected with an offence was produced by the party himself after giving information in respect of it, the article could not be said to have been discovered "in consequence of the information" It was said that in such a case the article is discovered by the act of the party and not in consequence of the information. But this view was subsequently dissented from in, and (so far as the Bombay Court is concerned) overruled by, a case,(8) in which the facts were as follows The accused, in the course of the police-

(1) R. v Rama Birapa, supra, 16, 17

(2) R v. Jora Hasji, 11 Bom H C R., 242 (1874), in this case the first prisoner produced a bill-hook and knife from the field, and the second prisoner a stick, and each made a certain incriminatory statement which the Court held to be inadmissible both under this section since there was no "discovery," and under s. 8, Explanation (1), it however held that the acts of the prisoners could be proved; R v Pancham, 4 A., 198 (1882), see R. v. Kamalsa, 10 B., 595, 597 (1886), Adu Shildar v R, 11 C., 635, 640, 641 (1885), v ante, note, (6), p 273 as to accompanying statements and Taylor, Ev., § 903, 3 Russ. Cr., 484

(3) Adu Shildar v R, supra, 640, 641

(4) R v Nana, 14 B., 260 (1889), v post

(5) R v Jora Hasji, 11 B H C R., 242, 244 (1874)

(6) R v Nana, 14 B 260, 267 (1889), per Jardine, J

(7) R v Pancham, 4 A., 198, 204 (1882), R v Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 544 (1884), per Straight, J., R v. Kamalsa, 10 B., 595, 597 (1886).

(8) R. v. Nana, 14 B., 260, (1889).

investigation, was asked by the police where the property was, and replied that he had kept it and would show. He said that he had buried the property in the fields. He then took the police to the spot where the property was concealed, and with his own hands disinterred the earthen pot in which it was kept. It was held that the statement of the accused that he had buried the property in the fields was admissible under this section, as it set the police in motion and led to the discovery of the property, and that a statement is equally admissible whether it is made in such detail as to enable the police to discover the property themselves, or whether it be of such a nature as to require the assistance of the accused in discovering the exact spot where the property is concealed. This view of the section has also been adopted by the Calcutta High Court.(1)

From an accused person in custody.

Section 150 of Act XXV of 1861, as amended by Act VIII of 1869, was re-embodied in the twenty-seventh section of the Evidence Act with slight alterations of language The only alteration on which any stress can be laid is the omission of the word " or ",(2) this shows that the operation of the proviso is restricted to information from an accused person in custody of the police, and does not apply to information from accused persons not in custody of the police (3) It would appear, therefore, that in order to bring a case of discovery within the scope of this section, it is necessary that the party making the statement should be both accused and in custody at such time and that (a) a confession obtained by inducement under the circumstances mentioned in the twenty-fourth section , or (b) a confession made to a Police-officer,(4) will not be affected by the operation of the twenty-seventh section when the person confessing is at the time (a) neither accused nor in custody , (b) in custody but not accused ; (c) accused but not in custody,—notwithstanding any discovery in consequence thereof ; (c) a confession made to any person other than a Police-officer by a person who was at the time in the latter's custody, but not accused, is inadmissible, even though it may lead to discovery, unless indeed it was made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate

Where a fact is discovered in consequence of information received from one of several persons charged with an offence, and when others give like information, the fact should not be treated as discovered from the information of them all It should be deposed that a particular fact has been discovered from the information of J B, and this will let in so much of the information as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered.(5) In the case of R. v. Babu Lal,(6) Straight, J , observed as follows ' I have more than once pointed out that it is not a proper course, where two persons are being tried, to allow a witness to state 'they said this,' or 'they said that,' or 'the prisoners then said.' It is certainly not at all likely that both the persons should speak at once, and it is the right of each of them to have the witness required to depose as nearly as possible to the exact words he individually used And, I may add, where a statement is being detailed by a constable as having been made by an accused, in consequence of which he discovered a certain fact, or certain facts, the strictest precision should be enjoined on the witness, so that there may be no room for mistake or misunderstanding. In detailing statements of this kind

---

(1) Legal Remembrancer v. Chema Nashya, 25 C , 413 (1897); and see also R v. Pajaree Shaha, 10 W R., Cr , 57 (1873), in which case the party himself produced the property.

(2) S 150, ran " accused of any offence or in the custody of a Police-officer "

(3) R v. Babu Lal, 6 A , 509, 513 (1884), per Oldfield, J , see The Madras Law Journal, supra, pp. 128, 129, April, 1895

(4) R. v. Babu Lal, 6 A , 509, 513 (1884); " A confession made to a Police-officer by a person who is not in the custody of the police, even though such confession led to discovery, would not be admissible in evidence, because it could not fall under the purview of s 27 which is restricted to persons " in the custody of a Police-officer," per Mahmood, J , and see per Oldfield, J., at p. 513, supra.

(5) R v. Ram Churn, 24 W. R , Cr., 36 (1875).

(6) 6 A , 509 (1884) at pp. 549, 550.

which are alleged to have led to discovery, it is of the essence of things that what each prisoner said should be precisely and separately stated. If the witness was not clear upon this point, and the witness refused to be more explicit, the Judge should have paid no attention to it."

Upon this question there is little or no difference in High Courts.(1) Assistance in the construction of th distinctly to the fact thereby discovered" may be der tion of the principle upon which the enactment contained in this section is founded. Statements admissible under this section are so admissible because the discovery rebuts the presumption of falsity arising from the fact of their being made under inducement, or to the police, or to others while in police-custody. The discovery proves not that the whole, but that some portion of the information given is true, namely, so much of the information as led directly and immediately to, or was the proximate cause of, the discovery: only such portion of the information is guaranteed by the discovery, and hence only such portion of the information is admissible. A prisoner's statement as to his knowledge of the place where a particular article is to be found, is confirmed by the discovery of that article and is thus shown to be true. But any explanation as to how he came by the article, or how it came to be where it is found, is not confirmed by the discovery, and as the presumption of falsity as to these other statements is not rebutted, therefore proof of them is prohibited. In the words of West, J.: "It is not all statements connected with the production or finding of property which are admissible; those only which lead immediately to the discovery of property, and so far as they do lead to such discovery are properly admissible. .... Other statements connected with the one thus made evidence, and so mediately,(2) but not necessarily or directly, connected with the fact discovered are not to be admitted, as this would rather be an evasion than a fulfilment of the law, which is designed to guard prisoners accused of offences against unfair practices on the part of the police. For instance, a man says: "You will find a stick at such and such a place I killed Rama with it." A policeman, in such a case, may be allowed to say he went to the place indicated, and found the stick; but any statement as to the confession of murder would be inadmissible If instead of 'you will find,' the prisoner has said, 'I placed a sword or knife in such a spot,' where it was found, that too, though it involves an admission of a particular act on the prisoner's part, is admissible, because it is the information which has directly led to the

(1) Per Sargent, C J, in R. v. Nana, 14 B, 260, 263 (1889), and see R v Commer Sahib, 12 M, 153, 154 (1888)

(2) The relevancy of mediate connection appears to be the ratio decidendi of the case of R v Pagaree Shaha, 19 W R, Cr, 51 (1873), in which a wider construction was put on the words "as relates distinctly," so as to admit not only so much of the information as leads directly and immediately to the discovery of the fact, but also the portion which leads mediately by way of explanation. Though Brodhurst, J, in referring to this case in R. v. Babu Lal, 6 A, 509, at p 518 (1884), says that no difference is noticeable in the rulings of R v Pagaree Shaha, supra, R v Jora Hasji, post, R v. Panchum, 4 A., 198 (1882), as to the extent to which statements or confessions of accused persons can be proved by a police-officer under s. 27. It is, however, submitted that the ruling in R v Pagaree Shaha, supra, is not reconcilable with the principle laid down in R v. Jora Hasji, 11 Bom H C R, 242 (1874), R. v Rama Birapa, 3 B, 12, 17 (1878), R v Babu Lal, 6 A, 509 (1884), Adu Shikdar v R, 11 C, 635 (1885), R v Commer Sahib, 12 M, 153 (1888), R v Nana, 14 B, 260 (1889), and is indeed virtually overruled by Adu Shikdar v R, supra referred to in Legal Remembrancer v Chema Nashya, 25 C, 413 (1897), see The Madras Law Journal, supra, April 1898, p 129, et seq, and Field, Ev, 146 In the last cited case, it was said per Banerjee, J, "The view I take is in no way inconsistent with that taken by the Court in Adu Shikdar v R, as the part of the information or statement that is here used as evidence against the accused under s. 27, relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered and does not go beyond it," p. 416.

discovery, and is thus distinctly, and independently of any other statement connected with it. But if, besides this, the prisoner has said what induced him to put the knife or sword where it has been found, that part of his statement, as it has not furthered, much less caused, the discovery, is not admissible. The words in the twenty-seventh section of the Evidence Act 'whether it amounts to a confession or not' are to be read as qualifying the word 'information' in the immediately preceding context, not the words 'so much,' and the effect is that, although ordinarily a confession of an accused while in custody would be wholly excluded, yet if, in the course of such a confession, information leading to the discovery of a relevant fact has been given, so much of the information as distinctly led to this result may be deposed to, though, as a whole, the statement would constitute a confession which the preceding sections are intended to exclude."(1) So where two persons, B and R, accused of offences under section 414 of the Penal Code, gave information to the police which led to the discovery of the stolen property (this information being to the effect that the accused had stolen a cow and calf, and sold them to a particular person at a particular place) the Appellate Court observed that, "If he (the Sessions Judge) had applied, as he should have done, the rule thereby (section 27) laid down, he ought to have held that that portion of H's (the police-witness) statement in which he deposed 'they said they got' (I suppose this was intended to mean stole) 'the cow from L T,' 'they said that they had stolen a cow and a calf,' 'they have stolen it from S G, of Jaitpur,' 'they had stolen a goat in Belupur and sold it,' was inadmissible. The only fact about the cow and calf which was admissible as distinctly relating to the discovery of those animals at A R J's was that they sold it at Madanpur to him. As to the goat, there is nothing to show from the constable's deposition, that it was in consequence of what the accused told him that he found the goat in Chelganj."(2) So also where the prisoner told the police that certain cloths had been left by him with some of the prosecution-witnesses, and the Sessions Judge was of opinion that the statement of the prisoner that he had left the property with these persons should not be proved in evidence, but only that he said that certain property would be so found, the Madras High Court held this view to be wrong, observing: "The reasonable construction is that, in addition to the fact discovered, so much of the information as was the immediate cause of its discovery is legal evidence. The statement made by the prisoner in this case, viz., that he had deposited the cloths produced with the witnesses, who delivered them up on demand, was the proximate cause of their discovery and was admissible in evidence. If he had proceeded further and stated that they were cloths which he stole on the day mentioned in the charge from the complainant, that statement would not be evidence, for it would be only introductory to a further act on his part, viz., that of leaving the cloths with the witnesses, and on that ground it would not be the immediate cause of, or the necessary preliminary to, the fact discovered. The test is: 'was the fact discovered by reason of the information,' and how much of the information was the immediate cause of the fact discovered, and as such a relevant fact?"(3) Again, an accused was charged under section 411 of the Penal Code, with

---

(1) R. v. Jora Haja, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 242, 244, 245 (1874); and see R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12, 17 (1878).

(2) R v. Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 549, 550, per Straight, J. (1884), and v. ib., 514, per Oldfield, J., and 518, per Brodhurst, J. The explanation of Straight, J., as to the meaning of s. 27 (at p. 546) was followed by the Calcutta High Court in Abu Sheikdar v. R., 11 C., 635, 641 (1885) as to the confessional statements in which case v. ante pp. 168, 169.

(3) R. v. Commer Sahib, 12 M., 153 (1888). The Court added: "This appears to us substantially the principle on which the cases reported in Abu Sheikdar v. R., R v. Pancham, and R. v. Jora Haja were decided." ib. at p. 154. Sankappa Bai v. R. (1908), 31 M., 127.

dishonestly receiving stolen property. In the course of the police-investigation the accused was asked by the police where the property was. He replied that he had kept it, and would show. He said he had buried the property in the fields. He then took the police to the spot where the property was concealed, and with his own hands disinterred the earthen pot in which the property was kept. The Court held that the statement by the accused, that he had buried the property in the fields, distinctly set the police in motion, and led to the discovery of the property. But the statement that "he had kept" the property was not necessarily connected with the fact discovered, and was therefore not admissible (1)

Confession made after removal of impression caused by inducement, threat, or promise, relevant.

28. If such a confession as is referred to in section 24 is made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat, or promise, has, in the opinion of the Court, been fully removed, it is relevant.

Principle.—If a confession has been obtained from the prisoner by undue means, any statement afterwards made by him under the influence of that confession cannot be admitted as evidence.(2) But the confession in the case mentioned in this section is deemed to be voluntary and is received as the result of reflection and free determination, unaffected and unmduced by the original threat or promise.(3)

s. 24 (Confession caused by inducement) s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 ("Court.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 22; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 41—43; Taylor, Ev., 878, 3 Russ. Cr., 458—463; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 229, 236, Wills, Ev., 213; Field, Ev, 149.

COMMENTARY

This section forms an exception to the law pro
section,(4) and as a qualification of that section sh
it. The impression caused by the inducement may lapse of time, or by an intervening act, such as a cau of superior authority,(5) to the person holding out the inducement. An inducement may continue to operate on a man's mind for a considerable time after it was uttered,(6) but, on the other hand, it may be altogether removed by subsequent statements which precede the confession, and which clearly inform the defendant that he must expect no temporal advantage from making one.(7) Thus where a Magistrate had told a prisoner that if the latter would confess he would use his influence to obtain a pardon for him, and had afterwards received a letter from the Secretary of State refusing the pardon, which letter the Magis-

(1) R v Nana, 14 B., 260, 265 (1889)

(2) 3 Russ. Cr., 458.

(3) See notes, post and Introduction, ante as also s. 24, ante, Steph. Dig., Art. 22.

(4) R. v. Pancham, 4 A., 198, 201 (1881).

(5) R. v Lingate, 1 Phillips, Ev., 414, Roscoe, 12th Ed., 41 [the prisoner on being taken into custody had been told by a person who came to assist the constable, that it would be better for him to confess; but on his being examined before the committing Magistrate on the following day, he was frequently cautioned by the Magistrate to say nothing against himself, a confession under these circumstances before the Magistrate was held to be clearly admissible], R v Bate, 11 Cox, 686; R v Rosser, 1 Phillips, Ev., 414, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 41 R v Howes 6 C & P., 404, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 236, Field, Ev., 149, Norton, Ev., 166, 167; as to the statutory form of warning, see 11 & 12 Vic., c. 42, s. 18.

(6) Wills, Ev., 213, R. v Hewitt, 1 C. & M., 534.

(7) Ib.; R. v. Cleaves, 4 C. & P., 221.

discovery, and is thus distinctly, and independently of any other statement connected with it. But if, besides this, the prisoner has said what induced him to put the knife or sword where it has been found, that part of his statement, as it has not furthered, much less caused, the discovery, is not admissible. The words in the twenty-seventh section of the Evidence Act 'whether it amounts to a confession or not' are to be read as qualifying the word 'information' in the immediately preceding context, not the words 'so much;' and the effect is that, although ordinarily a confession of an accused while in custody would be wholly excluded, yet if, in the course of such a confession, information leading to the discovery of a relevant fact has been given, so much of the information as distinctly led to this result may be deposed to, though, as a whole, the statement would constitute a confession which the preceding sections are intended to exclude."(1) So where two persons, B and R, accused of offences under section 414 of the Penal Code, gave information to the police which led to the discovery of the stolen property (this information being to the effect that the [illegible] and calf and sold it)

Court [illegible]

have d [illegible] down, he ought to have held that that portion of H's (the police-witness) statement in which he deposed 'they said they got' (I suppose this was intended to mean stole) 'the cow from L T,' 'they said that they had stolen a cow and a calf,' 'they have stolen it from S G, of Jaitpur,' 'they had stolen a goat in Belupur and sold it,' was inadmissible. The only fact about the cow and calf which was admissible as distinctly relating to the discovery of those animals at A R J's was that they sold it at Madanpur to him. As to the goat, there is nothing to show from the constable's deposition, that it was in consequence of what the accused told him that he found the goat in Chelgaun"(2) So also where the prisoner told the police that certain cloths had been left by him with some of the prosecution-witnesses, and the Sessions Judge was of opinion that the statement of the prisoner that he had left the property with these persons should not be proved in evidence, but only that he said that certain property would be so found, the Madras High Court held this view to be wrong, observing "The reasonable construction is that, in addition to the fact discovered, so much of the information as was the immediate cause of its discovery is legal evidence The statement made by the prisoner in this case, viz., that he had deposited the cloths produced with the witnesses, who delivered them up on demand, was the proximate cause of their discovery and was admissible in evidence If he had proceeded further and stated that they were cloths which he stole on the day mentioned in the charge from the complainant, that statement would not be evidence, for it would be only introductory to a further act on his part, viz., that of leaving the cloths with the witnesses, and on that ground it would not be the immediate cause of, or the necessary preliminary to, the fact discovered The test is: 'was the fact discovered by reason of the information,' and how much of the information was the immediate cause of the fact discovered, and as such a relevant fact?"(3) Again, an accused was charged under section 411 of the Penal Code, with

---

(1) R v. Jora Haja, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 242, 244, 245 (1874); and see R. v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12, 17 (1878)

(2) R. v. Babu Lal, 6 A., 509, 549, 550, per Straight, J. (1884), and v. ib., 514, per Oldfield, J., and 518, per Brodhurst, J. The explanation of Straight, J., as to the meaning of s. 27 (at p. 548) was followed by the Calcutta High Court in Adu Shikdar v. E., 11 C., 635, 641 (1885) as to the confessional statements in which case v. ante pp. 168, 169

(3) R v. Cummer Sahib, 12 M., 153 (1888) The Court added: "This appears to us substantially the principle on which the cases reported in Adu Shikdar v. R., R v. Pancham, and R v. Jora Haja were decided." Ib at p. 154. Sankappa Rai v. E. (1908), 31 M., 127.

dishonestly receiving stolen property. In the course of the police-investigation the accused was asked by the police where the property was. He replied that he had kept it, and would show. He said he had buried the property in the fields. He then took the police to the spot where the property was concealed, and with his own hands disinterred the earthen pot in which the property was kept. The Court held that the statement by the accused, that he had buried the property in the fields, distinctly set the police in motion, and led to the discovery of the property. But the statement that "he had kept" the property was not necessarily connected with the fact discovered, and was therefore not admissible (1)

Confession made after removal of impression caused by inducement, threat, or promise, relevant.

28. If such a confession as is referred to in section 24 is made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat, or promise, has, in the opinion of the Court, been fully removed, it is relevant.

Principle.—If a confession has been obtained from the prisoner by undue means, any statement afterwards made by him under the influence of that confession cannot be admitted as evidence (2) But the confession in the case mentioned in this section is deemed to be voluntary and is received as the result of reflection and free determination, unaffected and unmduced by the original threat or promise.(3)

s. 24 (Confession caused by inducement) s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 ("Court.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 22 ; Roscoe, Cr. Ev , 12th Ed., 41—43 ; Taylor, Ev , 878 ; 3 Russ. Cr., 458—463 ; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 229, 236 ; Wills, Ev., 213 , Field, Ev., 149.

COMMENTARY.

This section forms an exception to the law pro
section,(4) and as a qualification of that section sh
it. The impression caused by the inducement may lapse of time, or by an intervening act, such as a caution given by some persons ment of superior authority,(5) to the person holding out the inducement. An inducement may continue to operate on a man's mind for a considerable time after it was uttered ,(6) but, on the other hand, it may be altogether removed by subsequent statements which precede the confession, and which clearly inform the defendant that he must expect no temporal advantage from making one (7) Thus where a Magistrate had told a prisoner that if the latter would confess he would use his influence to obtain a pardon for him, and had afterwards received a letter from the Secretary of State refusing the pardon, which letter the Magis-

(1) R. v. Nana, 14 B , 260, 265 (1889)
(2) 3 Russ Cr , 458
(3) See notes, post and Introduction, ante, as also s. 24, ante , Steph Dig , Art. 22
(4) R v Pancham, 4 A , 198, 201 (1288).
(5) R. v. Lingate, 1 Phillips, Ev , 414 ; Roscoe, 12th Ed., 41 [the prisoner on being taken into custody had been told by a person who came to assist the constable, that it would be better for him to confess , but on his being examined before the committing Magistrate on the following day, he was frequently cautioned by the Magistrate to say nothing against himself , a confession under these circumstances before the Magistrate was held to be clearly admissible] . R v Bate, 11 Cox, 686 ; R v Rosser, 1 Phillips, Ev , 414 ; Roscoe, Cr Ev., 12th Ed , 41 . R v Howes 6 C & P , 404 ; see Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed . 236 , Field, Ev , 149 ; Norton, Ev., 166, 167 , as to the statutory form of warning, see 11 & 12 Vic., c. 42, s. 18.
(6) Wills, Ev., 213 , R. v & 31., 334.
(7) Ib , R. v. Cleeve, 4

trate communicated to the prisoner, a confesssion subsequently made was held to be admissible.(1) It is for the Court to decide under all the circumstances of the particular case whether the improper influence was totally done away with before the confession was made. In this, as well as other respects, the admissiblity of the confession is a question for the Judge.(2) Where the latter is satisfied that the influence has really ceased, the confession will be admitted.(3) But there ought to be strong evidence that the influence has ceased. In R. v. Sherrington,(4) Patteson, J., rejected a second confession, saying, "there ought to be strong evidence to show that the impression under which the first confession was made, was afterwards removed, before the second confession can be received I am of opinion in this case, that the prisoner must be considered to have made the second confession, under the same influence as he made the first, the interval of time being too short to allow of the supposition that it was the result of reflection and voluntary determination."

Confession otherwise relevant not to become irrelevant because of promise of secrecy, etc.

29. If such a confession is otherwise relevant, it does not become irrelevant merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, whatever may have been the form of those questions, or because he was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession, and that evidence of it might be given against him.

Principle—In order that a confession should be invalidated, there must be an inducement operating to influence the mind of the accused either by hope of escape or through fear of punishment connected with the charge. Such inducement must relate to the charge and reasonably imply that the position of the accused with reference to it will be rendered better or worse according as he does or does not confess If the confession be obtained by any other influence, it will not be invalidated (though its weight may be affected,(5) however much it would have been more proper not to have exerted such influence, and however much the statement itself may become liable to suspicion. The

---

(1) R v. Cleaver, supra, see also R v Howes, 6 C. & P., 404

(2) 3 Russ. Cr., 458, Field. Ev., 149

(3) For cases where the inducement has been held to have ceased, see Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 41, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 236, and where held not to have ceased, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 42, Phipson, Ev., ub, and R v Mussumat Luchmi, 5 N.-W. P., 86, 88 (1873) [where a confession had been made upon the inducement held out by the police that nothing would happen if the prisoner confessed, and the prisoner made two different confessions, the one before the Magistrate and the other before the Sessions Judge, who accepted both confessions but did not record any opinion on the point, the Appeal Court held that if it was not prepared to say that the confession made before the Sessions Judge was made after the impression caused by the promise had been fully removed.] Reg v Navroji Hadabhai, 9 Bom. H. C. R., 359, 370 (1872) [where an inducement was held out to the prisoner in his house and he was immediately after taken to the Traffic Manager of a Railway, in whose presence he signed a receipt for a certain sum of money. Sargent, C. J., said it would be impossible to hold that the impression was removed in the short interval which elapsed between the inducement and the signing of the receipt], R. v Sherrington, post.

(4) 2 Lewin, C. C., 123, cited in Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 47, 48; 3 Russ., Cr., 458

(5) R. v Spilsbury, 7 C. & P., 187; v post; Best, Ev., § 529 present section states certain non-invalidating origins of a confession. In none of the instances given is there any inducement relating to the charge, held out to the accused which is of the character above mentioned and the subject of the prohibition contained in the twenty-fourth section.(1) The circumstances mentioned do not affect the testimonial trustworthiness of the confession.

s 21 (Proof of admissions against persons making them.)
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 ("Evidence.")
s. 132 (Criminating answers)

Steph. Dig., Art. 24; Taylor, Ev., §§ 881, 882; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 43; Phipson Ev., 3rd Ed., 230; Wills, Ev., 213; Phillips and Arnold, Ev., 420, 421; Norton, Ev., 167; Best, Ev., § 529, Cr. Pr. Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 163, 343. Wigmore, Ev., § 823. Joy's Confessions, 50.

COMMENTARY.

Non-invalidating origins of a confession.

The principle of testimonial untrustworthiness being the foundation of exclusions, the confessions should be taken into account unless their cause was such that the accused was likely to have been induced to untruly confess.(2) The non-invalidating origins of a confession, which are mentioned in this section are:—(a) promise of secrecy, (b) deception, (c) drunkenness, (d) interrogation; (e) want of warning. But there may be others. So what the accused has been overheard muttering to himself or saying to his wife or to any other person in confidence will be receivable in evidence.(3)

Promise of secrecy.

This does not make the confession inadmissible, though a confidence is thus created in the mind of the prisoner and he is thrown off his guard, the true question seems to be—Does such confidence render it probable that the prisoner should be thus induced untruly to confess himself guilty of a crime of which he was innocent?(4) Thus A was in custody on a charge of murder, B, a fellow prisoner, said to him, "I wish you would tell me how you murdered the boy—pray split." A replied, "Will you be upon your oath not to mention what I tell you?" B went upon his oath that he would not tell. A then made a statement;—held that this was not such an inducement to confess as would render the statement inadmissible.(5)

Deception

Where a prisoner in jail on a charge of felony, asked the turnkey of the jail to put a letter into the post for him, and after his promising to do so, the prisoner gave him a letter addressed to his father, and the turnkey, instead of putting it into the post, transmitted it to the prosecutor, it was held that the contents of the letter were admissible in evidence against the prisoner as a confession, notwithstanding the manner in which it was obtained (6) In another case, artifice was used to induce a prisoner to suppose that some of his accom-

---

(1) Norton, Ev., 167, see s 246 ante, Taylor, Ev., § 881, Best, Ev., § 529, see notes to R v Garin, 15 Cox, 656, and R v Bracklenbury, 17 Cox, 628 (1893)

(2) Wigmore, Ev., § 823, thus a confession is not excluded because of any breach of confidence or deception. The question in all cases is, was the inducement such as by possibility to elicit an untrue acknowledgment of guilt? see § 824

(3) R v Simons, 6 C. & P., 540, R. v Sogeesa, 7 W R, Cr, 56 (1867) but not what he has been heard to say in his sleep, ante, p 213

(4) Joy on Confessions, 50

(5) R v Shaw 6 C & P, 373, R v Nabadeep, Goseami 1 B. L. R Cr 15, 23 (1868), and when a witness promised that what the prisoner said should go on further, the confession was received; R. v. Thomas, 7 C & P, 345

(6) R v Derrington, 2 C. & P., 418, R. v. Nabadeep Goseami, supra, 23.

plices were in custody, under which mistaken supposition he made a confession, and it was admitted in evidence.(1)

Drunkenness

Whether the prisoner be made drunk for the purpose or with the motive of getting a confession, or made the confession while he has made himself drunk, it is equally receivable (2)

Interrogation

Much less will a confession be rejected merely because it has been elicited by questions put to the prisoner whoever (subject to the provisions of the twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections)(3) may be the interrogator and the form of the questions is immaterial, it may be in a leading form or even assume the prisoner's guilt (4) Thus a confession elicited by questions put by a Magistrate has been held admissible in England.(5) In India the law expressly provides for the examination of the accused person by the Court.(6) When the confession is contained in an answer given by a witness to a question put to him in the witness-box the provisions contained in section 132, post, must be borne in mind

Want of warning

A voluntary confession, too, is admissible, though it does not appear that the prisoner was warned, and even though it appears on the contrary that he was not so warned (7) It is no part of the duty of a Magistrate to tell an accused person that anything he may say will go as evidence against him.(8) The Criminal Procedure Code(9) enacts that no police-officer or other person shall prevent, by any caution or otherwise, any person from making, in the course of any investigation under Chapter XIV, any statement which he may be disposed to make of his own free will

Consideration of proved confession affecting person making it and others jointly under trial of same offence

30. When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence, and a confession made by one of such persons affecting himself and some other of such persons is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession.

Explanation.—" Offence," as used in this section, includes the abetment of, or attempt to commit, the offence.(10)

---

(1) R v Burley, 1 Phillips & Arn., 420; see also R v. Ram Churn, 20 W R Cr., 33 (1873) in which the deception practised consisted of a statement made by the police-officer to the prisoner that the latter's brother-in-law had given out that he was guilty

(2) R v Spilsbury, 7 C. & P., 187, in which case Coleridge J., said "This [the fact that the prisoner was drunk] is matter of observation for me upon the weight that ought to attach to this statement when it is considered by the jury" See Best, Ev., § 529

(3) As to the English rule in regard to admissions obtained by questions by the police, see R. v. Brackenbury 17, Cox, 628, not following R. v. Garner, 15 Cox, 656, which seems not to be law, see cases cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 230; Taylor, Ev., § 881; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 43 As to the answers given to the police not amounting to a confession of guilt, see R v Nabadwip Goswami, 1 B. L. R., Cr., 15, 20 (1868)

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 881

(5) R v Rees, 7 C & P., 589, R. v Ellis, 1 Ry & M., 432, cited in R v Nabadwip Goswami, supra, 25.

(6) Field, Ev., 150, Cr Pr Code, s 342

(7) Taylor, Ev., §§ 881, 882, see Field, Ev 150, 151, R v Nabadwip Goswami, 1 B. L. R., Cr., 15 (1868), the decision in which, on this point, has been followed by the present section

(8) R. v Uzeer, 10 C., 775, 777 (1884)

(9) S 167 (Act V of 1898)

(10) This explanation was inserted in this section by Act III of 1891, s 4, and alters the law in this respect as laid down in R. v Jaffir Ali, 10 W. R., Cr., 57 (1873), Bade v. R., 7 M., 579 (1884); R. v Alagappa Bali, Weir, 3rd Ed., 499*n* (1880), v. post, p. 281

Illustrations.

(a) A and B are jointly tried for the murder of C. It is proved that A said—'B and I murdered C.' The Court may consider the effect of this confession as against B.

(b) A is on his trial for the murder of C. There is evidence to show that C was murdered by A and B, and that B said—'A and I murdered C.'

This statement may not be taken into consideration by the Court against A, as B is not being jointly tried.

Principle.—When a person makes a confession, which affects both himself and another, the fact of self-implication takes the place, as it were, of the sanction of an oath, or, is rather supposed to serve as some guarantee for the truth of the accusation against the other.(1) For when a person admits his guilt and exposes himself to the pains and penalties provided therefor, there is a guarantee for his truth.(2) The guarantee, however, is a very weak one, for if the fact of self-inculpation is not in all cases a guarantee of the truth of a statement even as against the person making it, much less is it so as against another. Further, a confession may be true so far as it implicates the maker, but may be false and concocted through malice and revenge so far as it affects others. While such a confession deserves ordinarily very little reliance, it is nevertheless impossible for a Judge to ignore it, and he need no longer pretend to do so, the provisions of this section being inserted for the purpose of relieving him from the attempt to perform an intellectual impossibility.(3)

s. 3 ("Court.") s. 3 ("Proved")

Norton, Ev., 169; Cunningham, Ev., 26, 27, 148; Field, Ev., 156—159.

COMMENTARY.

Construction

The general rule of English law(4) and the rule which prevailed in India prior to the passing of this Act(5) is and was, that the confession of an accused person is only evidence against himself and cannot be used against others. This section forms an exception to this rule. The grounds upon which it has been enacted have been adverted to, but the weakness of the guarantee afforded by self-implication and the dangerous and exceptional character of the evidence require that this section should be construed very strictly,(6) and accordingly such a construction has been applied to each of its terms. Thus it has been held that a person who pleads guilty is not being "tried jointly," that the prisoners must be legally tried jointly, and at the same time that the words "same offence" excluded abetments and attempts, that the term "proved" is to be interpreted strictly, and that no weight is to be given to the confession as against any person other than the party making it, unless it is

---

(1) R v Belat Ali, 19 W. R. Cr., 67 (1873) per Phear J., R v Jagrup, 7 A., 646, 648 (1885) per Straight, J. The object sought by the rule of law is a safeguard for sincerity and for information," R v Nur Mahomed, 8 B., 223, 227 (1883), per West, J.

(2) R v Bapu Narsu, 6 B., 288, 291 (1882) per West, J.

(3) See remarks on this section in Cunningham's Ev., 26, 27, 148.

(4) Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 49, 50; Taylor, Ev., 868, 871; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 231; Powell, Ev., 320.

(5) R v Kally Churn Lohar, 6 W. R., Cr., 84 (1866); R v Bussruddi, 8 W. R., Cr., 35 (1867); R v Durbaroo Dass, 13 W. R., Cr., 14 (1870); R v Sadhu Mundul, 21 W. R., Cr., 69, 71 (1874) per Phear J. The provision contained in the section is a new one there being no similar rule either in Act II of 1855, or in the Criminal Procedure Codes of 1861, 1872.

(6) R v Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R., Cr., 57, 64 (1873); per Glover J.; R v Malappa Bin, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 19 (1880); see R v Sadhu Mundul, supra; Field, Ev., 156; Norton, Ev., 169.

corroborated by independent testimony (v. post). This section must be read together with, and subject to, the provisions contained in sections 24—27, ante (v. post).

And in a recent case it has been held by the Madras High Court that under section 27 and this section a confession made by one accused can be taken into consideration against another accused when such confession is the immediate cause of the discovery of some fact relevant as against the other accused, and a direction to the jury to take such a confession into consideration when it is not the immediate cause of such a discovery is a misdirection.(1)

"Tried jointly."

It is not sufficient that the co-accused should be tried jointly in fact; they must be legally tried jointly.(2) The section applies only to cases in which the confession is made by a prisoner tried at the same time with the accused person against whom the confession is used.(3) Upon the question whether, if one of several prisoners pleads guilty, such person can be held to be "tried jointly" with the rest so as to let in his confession against the others who have claimed a trial. (i) it is clearly established that a prisoner who pleads guilty at the trial and is thereupon convicted and sentenced cannot be said to be jointly tried with the other prisoners committed on the same charge who pleaded not guilty.(4) (ii) and, if the prisoner's plea of guilty is not accepted by the Court, it is plain that such prisoner is still being jointly tried with the rest.(5) For it is not correct to say that a criminal trial ends with a plea of guilty.(6) (iii) The only case in which there may be a doubt is, where neither of these courses has been explicitly adopted, but the accused who has pleaded guilty is left in the dock merely to see what the evidence will show as against him, though the Court intends ultimately to convict him on the plea of guilty. In such a case it would not be fair to allow his confession to be considered as against his co-accused for that would be in effect to comply with the forms of justice while violating it in substance.(7) The mere fact that a prisoner, who has pleaded guilty, is not immediately convicted and sentenced, but is kept in the dock with the prisoners who are being tried, until the close of their trial, will not render his confession admissible, for immediate conviction and sentence are not necessary to exclude a confession by a co prisoner who has pleaded guilty.(8) So where the Judge kept the prisoner in the dock, unconvicted and not sentenced merely because it was possible that the evidence elicited at the trial might enable the Court to determine whether to pass a sentence of death or transportation, it was held that his confession could not be considered as against his co-accused as there was in fact under such circumstances after the plea of guilty, no joint trial.(9)

When one of several prisoners pleads guilty, the proper course for the Court before whom the trial of the others is pending is to sentence him and either to

---

(1) Sankappa Rai v. R. (1908), 31 M., 127

(2) R v. Jagat Chandra, 22 C., 50, 72, 73 (1894)

(3) R v. Sheikh Buxoo, 21 W. R., Cr., 65 (1874).

(4) R. v. Kalu Patil, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 148 (1874); Venlatasami v. R., 7 M., 102 (1883), Weir, 3rd Ed., 491, R v. Chand Valad, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 125 (1890); R. v. Parbhu, 17 A., 524 (1895); s. c., W. N. (1895), 111, it is not quite clear whether in the three last-mentioned cases the prisoners were immediately convicted and sentenced on pleading guilty, but it seems so: R. v. Chinna Paruchi, 23 M., 151, 154 (1899).

(5) Confirmation case, No. 22 of 1893, cited in R v. Pahuja, supra, 194; R. v. Chinna Paruchy, 23 M. 151 (1899).

(6) R v. Chinna Paruchi, 23 M., 151 (1899), dissenting from R v. Lakshmayya Pandaram, 22 M., 491 (1899).

(7) R. v. Chinna Paruchi, 23 M., 151, 154 (1899), R. v. Pattua, 23 A., 63 (1900); R v. Kheorat, (1908), 30 A., 340, and as to English rule on this point, see R v. Gould (1908); C. C. C. Sess. Pa. r 140, p 366, at p 433

(8) R v. Pahuja, 19 B., 195, 197 (1894) See Subrahmania Ayyar v. R., 25 M., 69 (1901) [when an accused person pleads guilty nothing remains to be tried as between him and the Crown]. but see R. v. Kalu Patil, supra, 148, R v. Ram Saran, 8 A., 304, 309 (1886)

(9) Ib.

[illegible] 'm from the dock and call him as a witness,(2) the dock unconvicted merely to see what the him in the dock (whether he be convicted or not), and either to read out his confession made previously, or to allow a person to give an account of what the prisoner had told him,(4) or to take a statement which he makes.(5)

"For the same offence"

The meaning of this expression is an offence coming under the same legal definition,(6) or the same substantive offence,(7) or the same specific offence.(8) But when two persons are accused of an offence of the same definition, arising out of a single transaction, the confession of the one may be used against the other, though it inculpates himself through acts separable from those ascribed to his accomplice, and capable, therefore, of constituting a separate offence from that of the accomplice.(9) Prior to the insertion of the Explanation to this section, the commission of an offence and the commission of its abetment were held to be different offences. Thus it was held that, upon the trial of A for murder, and B for abetment thereof, a confession by A implicating B could not be taken into consideration against B under this section.(10) Act III of 1891 has, however, by the insertion of the Explanation to this section, altered the law in this respect. But this Explanation applies only to cases where one person is charged with an offence and another is actually charged with, and tried for, abetment of it.(11) Where there is a joint trial of accused persons under entirely different sections of the Penal Code, the confession of a co-accused cannot be taken into consideration against the other.(12) But if a joint trial has commenced in which the prisoners are charged under different sections, and afterwards the charge is altered, so that all the prisoners are then tried under the same section, their confessions may be admissible against each other. Thus where A and B were being jointly tried before a Court of Sessions, the first for murder, and the second for abetment of murder, a confession made by A that he himself had committed the murder, at the instigation of B, was put in as evidence against A. Subsequently the charge against A was altered to one of abetment of murder, and the Sessions Judge, under the authority of this section, used the confession against both and convicted them. The High Court held that the original and amended charges were so nearly related that the trial might, without any unfairness, be deemed to have been a trial on the amended

---

(1) R v. Kalu Patil, supra, 148, R v Chinna Paruchi, supra

(2) Venkatasami v. R., supra, 104, R v Pahuji, supra, 198, R v. Chinna Paruchi, supra Quære, whether co-accused can be examined as a witness after conviction and before sentence, see R v Annya, 3 Bom. L. R., 437 (1901). Where two prisoners are tried together for different offences committed in the same transaction, it is improper and illegal to examine one prisoner as a witness against the other. In the matter of A Darvi, 5 C. L. R., 574 (1880), referred to in Bishnu Banwar v R, 1 C W N, 35 (1896).

(3) R. v Pahuji, supra, 197, R v Chinna Paruchi, 23 M., 151 154 (1899) but see R. v Kalu Patil R v Ram Saran, supra, loc cit

(4) Venkatasami v R, supra, 103

(5) R. v Pirbhu, 17 A., 524 (1895), s. c., W N. (1895), 111).

(6) R. v Malappa Bin, 14 Ind. Jur. N.S., 19, 20 (1898), R. v Nur Mahomed, 8 B., 223, 226 (1883)

(7) R v. Alagappan Bali, Weir, 3rd Ed., 499a (1886), see also Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Karuna Baistobi, 22 C., 164, 173 (1894)

(8) Badi v R, 7 M., 579 (1884), sub nom Mahomed Sahib, Weir, 3rd Ed., 495, R v Malappa Bin, supra.

(9) R v Nur Mahomed, 8 B., 223 (1883)

(10) Badi v R, 7 M., 579 (1884), and see R v Jaffir Ali, 19 W R., Cr., 57 (1873), R v Alagappan Bali, Weir, 3rd Ed., 499a (1886), P v Amrita Govinda, 10 Bom H. C R., 497, 499 (1873).

(11) Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karuna Baistobi, 22 C 164, 173 (1894)

(12) R v Bala Patil, 5 B., 63 (1880), R. v. Amrita Govinda, 10 Bom H C R., 497, 499 (1873), Deputy Legal Remembrancer v Karuna Baistobi, supra, loc cit. R v. Alagappan Bali, Weir, 3rd Ed., 499a (1886), R v. Malappa Bin, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 19 (1898).

charge from the commencement; and that no objection having been taken by B, who was represented by a Vakil, to the admissibility of A's confession against him when the charge against A was altered, the Sessions Judge was justified in using the confession against B also.(1)

"Confession."

The word must be construed as meaning the same in this section as in the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth sections.(2) The subject of incriminatory statements which fall short of full admissions of guilt has been already dealt with.(3) A mere admission from which no inference of guilt follows, is not within this section, though it implicates others, and is evidence, therefore, only against the maker. Before a statement can be taken into consideration against a fellow prisoner, it must amount to a "confession" on the part of the maker with respect to the offence with which all are charged.(4) A statement of an accused person, "taken with the other evidence might well seem to establish the case against him. But when the statement is to be used against those jointly charged and tried with him, it must be a confession in the strict sense of the term Its inherent quality must be that of a confession" Where the inherent quality of the statement by the prisoner is not a confession, it cannot be used against the other accused (5) "This Court has already had occasion in more than one case to point out that confessions, which are made use of under the thirtieth section of the Evidence Act, in the first place, can only be used so far as they make the confessing prisoner guilty of the offence for which all are being tried; and secondly, cannot stand higher than the evidence of an accomplice (6) "The test section 30 of the Evidence Act intended should be applied to a statement of one prisoner proposed to be used in evidence as against another, is to see whether it is sufficient by itself to justify the conviction of the person making it of the offence for which he is being jointly tried with the other person or persons against whom it is tendered In fact, to use a popular and well-understood phrase, the confessing prisoner must tar himself, and the person or persons he implicates, with one and the same brush."(7)

To render the statement of one person jointly tried with another for the same offence liable to consideration against that other, it is necessary that it should amount to a distinct confession of the offence charged.(8) In one case,(9) it appears to have been held that the word 'confession' is limited to confessions of actual guilt, but it would seem that this is not so, and that the term will include statements which amount either to a direct admission of constructive guilt or statements short of such admission, but from which the inference of constructive guilt follows.(10)

---

(1) R. v Govind Bobla, 11 Bom H. C. R., 278 (1874)

(2) R v Jagrup 7 A., 640, 649 (1885)

(3) v ante p. 246

(4) R v Mukesh Bowree, 19 W. R., Cr., 16 (1873). R v. Jaffir Ali 19 W. R., Cr., 57 (1873). R v Bilat Ali, 19 W. R., Cr., 67 (1873). R v. Amrita Goronda, 10 Bom H. C. R., 497, 500, 501 (1873). R. v. Kukree Ooram, 21 W. R., Cr., 48 (1874). R. v. Bussearee Lall, 21 W. R., Cr., 53 (1874); R v Naga, 23 W. R., Cr., 24 (1875); R. v. Keshub Bowria, 25 W. R., Cr., 8 (1876); R v Baijoo Chowdhry, 25 W. R., Cr., 43 (1876); R. v. Gonraj, 2 A., 444 (1879). R v. Mulu, 2 A., 646 (1880); R. v. Dipi Narain, 6 B., 288 (1882); Nasir Bux v. E., 6 C., 279 (1880); Bishan Dutt v. R., 2 All L. J., 53 (1904) Quære—As to the correctness of the decision of R. v Bakur Khan, 5 N.-W. P., 213 (1873), the statement in which case it is submitted did not amount to a confession.

(5) R v Amrita Goronda, 10 Bom H. C. R., 97, 500, 501 (1873) the passage in quotation marks is per West, J

(6) R v Naga 23 W. R., Cr., 24 (1875). per Phear, J.

(7) R v Gonraj, 2 A., 444—446 (1879). per Straight, J the same argument was offered, but not accepted in R v Bakur Khan, 5 N.-W. P., 213 (1873)

(8) R. v Dipi Narain, 6 B., 288 (1882), and see Sankappa Rai v. R (1908), 31 M., 127.

(9) R. v. Baijoo Chowdhry, 25 W. R., Cr., 17 (1876)

(10) See R v Amrita Goronda, 10 Bom H. C.

From a consideration of the principle upon whic[illegible] admitted, it is plain that a statement which entirely inculpates his fellow-prisoner is not within the secti[illegible] not amount to a confession of the maker's own individual guilt of the offence for which he and the others are jointly tried; nor is such a statement which affects himself and others but the latter only. Such a statement can afford no guarantee whatever of its own truth, being made without either the sanction of an oath, or of that substitute for that sanction which consists in the self-inculpation of the maker, in short, without the application of any test of truth whatever.(2) The rule with regard to the extent to which the confession must affect the maker thereof has been stated to be as follows, namely:—"That before a confession of a person jointly tried with the prisoner can be taken into consideration against him, it must appear that that confession implicates the confessing person substantially to the same extent as it implicates the person against whom it is to be used, in the commission of the offence for which the prisoners are being jointly tried."(3) It is this self-implication which is supposed to afford a guarantee for the truth of the statement. Again, "this section must be interpreted to mean that the statement of fact made by the prisoner, which amounts to a confession of guilt on his part, may be taken into consideration, so far, and so far only, as that particular statement of fact itself extends against the other prisoners, who are being tried, as well as himself, for the offence which is thus confessed. I think the two illustrations which are given to this section bear out this view. If this be so, we must be careful not to apply statements made by R. I. D., before the Magistrate, against other prisoners than himself further than those same statements amount in themselves to a confession of guilt on his part."(4) "Neither can the statement of one prisoner be taken as evidence against another prisoner under section 30 of the Evidence Act, unless the parties are admittedly in pari delictu, when that is, the confessing prisoner implicates himself to the full as much as his co-prisoner whom he is criminating."(5) The ratio decidendi of the above cases is that statements which inculpate the maker more than, or equally with, others, alone can afford any satisfactory guarantee of their truth. Less weight is to

---

R., 497 (1873) R v Gaura, 2 A., 444 (1879) R. v Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R., Cr., 16 (1873). R. v Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R., Cr., 57 (1873) See Indian Penal Code, ss. 114, 149.

(1) R v Keshub Bhoonia, 25 W. R., Cr. 8 (1876) R v Belat Ali, 19 W. R., Cr., 67 (1873) R v Banwarre Lall, 21 W. R., Cr., 57 (1874) R v Gaura, 2 A., 444 (1879) R v Mulu, 2 A., 646 (1880) R v Daji Narsu, 6 B., 288 (1882). Noor Bux v. R. 6 Cr. 279 (1880). Bishan Datt v R., 2 All. L. J. 53 (1904) see also R v Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R. Cr., 16 (1873). R v Amrita Govinda, 10 Bom. H. C. R., Cr., 497 (1873). R v Khukree Gwam, 21 W. R. Cr., 48 (1874) R v Baijoo Choudhry, 25 W. R., Cr. 43 (1876).

(2) R v Belat Ali, 19 W. R. Cr. 67 (1873) per Phear, J.

(3) R v Belat Ali, 19 W. R. Cr. 67, 10 B. L. R., 433 (1873) per Phear, J. followed in R v Gaura, 2 A., 444 (1879) R v Mulu, 2 A. 646 (1880) R v Baboo Lun Sutha, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 175 (1880) see R v Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R., Cr. 16 (1873).

(4) R v Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R., Cr., 16, 23 per Phear, J. 10 B. L. R., 435*n*.

(5) R v Baijoo Choudhry, 25 W. R., Cr., 43 (1876) per Glover, J. that is only when the confession makes both equally guilty of the offence. The rule is laid down more broadly in R v Belat Ali, supra, and the cases which follow it. A fortiori statement which implicates the confessing prisoner more than his co-prisoners would appear to come within this section [see R v Belat Ali, supra, in which Phear, J., seems to have thought admissible a statement by a prisoner which made certain of his fellow-accessories before the fact and not actual actors in the transaction which constituted the foundation of the charge]. But the decisions of the Calcutta and Allahabad High Courts will exclude a confession which implicates the maker in a lesser degree than his co-accused, unless the self-implication and the implication of others is substantially the same. See however as to this R v Nur Mahomed, 8 B., 223, 227 (1883) in which the confession tended to reduce the guilt of the maker to that of a subordinate agent of another as principal. cf. also R v Govind Baldi, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 278 (1874).

be attached to statements which implicate the maker in a lesser degree than others, and unless the maker (though implicating himself to a lesser degree) the same extent as the others, the statement rulings of the Calcutta and Allahabad High t can be attached to statements which lay the a statement is self-serving according to the ideas of him who makes it, and is entirely excluded by the decisions of the abovementioned High Courts. Lastly, no guarantee whatever is afforded by a statement which entirely exonerates the maker, and such a statement is therefore in all cases inadmissible.

"Made"

The confessions may have been made at any time before or at the trial.(1) This section is not to be read as if the words "at the trial" were inserted after the words "made," and the word "recorded" substituted for the word "proved" Therefore, a confession duly made any time by one of several accused persons who are under trial jointly for the same offence can be taken into consideration under section 30 as against the other accused persons.(2) It is not necessary that the confession, to be taken into consideration, should have been made in the presence of the co-prisoners against whom it is offered in evidence.(3)

"Proved."

But though this section allows a confession to be used against another prisoner although made in his absence, it yet requires that such confession should be "proved" as against the prisoner to whose prejudice it is to be used Therefore, where two accused persons were jointly tried before the Sessions Judge on a charge of murder, and the Judge examined each of the accused in the absence of the other, making the latter withdraw from the Court during the examination of the former though without objection from the pleaders of the accused persons, it was held that the examination of each accused could be used only against himself and not against his fellow-accused (4) Provided a confession is only proved afterwards, it is immaterial whether or not the co-prisoners were present at the time of making it. When a confession is used for the purposes of this section, the person to be affected by it has a right to demand that it be strictly proved and shown to have been, in all essential respects, taken and recorded as prescribed by law.(5) When a confession of one prisoner is taken in the absence of the other prisoners and the latter have had no opportunity of denying or even of knowing what their

---

(1) In R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 483 488 (1878), Garth, C J., appears to have been of opinion that a confession under s 30 must not be one made at the trial, for he says (at p 488) 'The word 'proved' in s 30 must refer to a confession made beforehand" But see R v Tanya valad, post; and in no reported case has it ever been objected to the admissibility of a confession, that it was made at the trial In R v Chandra Nath, 7 C., 65 (1881); and R v. Lakhman Bala, 6 B., 124 (1882); the objection to the admissibility of the confessions taken and recorded by the Sessions Judge at the trial was not to the fact of their having been made at the trial, but to their not having been "proved," v. post.

(2) R. v. Tanya valad, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 516 (1880)

(3) H. C. Proceedings, 31st July 1885, Weir, 3rd Ed., 477; R. v Lakshman Bala, 6 B., 124, 125 (1882) see R v Bepin Biswas, 10 C., 970, 974 (1884) In R v Bepin Biswas, 10 C., 970, 974 (1884), it was held that, in that particular case, the confessions of two of several accused persons, made in the absence of the others, were of no weight against the latter

(4) R v Lakshman Bala, 6 B., 124 (1882), following R v Chandra Nath, 7 C., 65 (1818); in these cases the confessions were objected to not merely because they were made during the absence of the co-prisoners, but because they were not afterwards "proved" in any way, nor opportunity given to them to know what had been said against them.

(5) R v. Chander Bhattacharjee, 24 W. R., Cr., 42 (1875) [Cr. Pr. Code] 1872 s. 122 (s 164 of Act V of 1898), i.e., in the manner provided by ss. 345, 346 (ss 342, 364 of Act V of 1898) fellow-prisoner has said, such a confession cannot be said to have been "proved"; it is only after proper proof is given that it may be taken into consideration.(1)

"Court."

The word "Court" in section 30 of the Evidence Act means not only the Judge, in a trial by a Judge with a jury, but includes both Judge and jury.(2)

"May take into consideration"

By this section the Legislature has only bestowed a discretion upon the Court to take into consideration such confession (3) When more persons than one are jointly tried for the same offence, the confession made by one of them, if a evidence, excluding from that term statements of the character mentioned in this section.(5) And in so far as a statement by a witness only is "evidence" according to the definition given of that term when used in this Act, a confession by an accused person affecting himself and his co-accused is not "evidence" in that special sense (6) These words do not mean that the confession is to have the force of sworn evidence (7) But such a confession is nevertheless evidence in the sense that it is matter which the Court, before whom it is made, may take into consideration in order to determine whether the issue of guilt is proved or not.(8) The wording, however, of this section (which is an exception) shows that such a confession is merely to be an element in the consideration(9) of all the facts of the case; while allowing it to be so considered, it does not do away with the necessity of other evidence. For even when regarded as evidence and taken at its highest value, it is of too weak a character to found a conviction upon it alone, and hence corroboration should be required in all cases: if instead of being the statement of a fellow-prisoner it had been evidence given on oath and on examination as a witness, it would not have been anything other than the evidence of an accomplice, which, in general, requires corroboration in order to its acceptance,(1) and if the testimony of an accomplice given before the Court under the sanction of an oath and a process of careful examination, and capable of being tested by cross-examination, is yet by its nature such that, as against an accused, it must be received with caution, still more so must be the confession of a fellow-prisoner, which is only the bare statement of an accomplice, limited to just so much as the confessing person chose to say, and guaranteed by nothing except the peril into which it brings the speaker and which it is generally fashioned to lessen.(2) Though, in strictness, a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice,(3) yet section 133 applies only to accomplices, as such, and not to confessing co-prisoners whose statements do not stand upon the same but on a lower footing than the testimony of an accomplice (4) And although the instance of corroboration which is appended to Illust.(b) of section 114 is corroboration to be found in accounts of an occurrence given by accomplices, there is no indication that the Legislature intended in this passage by the term 'accounts given by the accomplices' anything other than accounts given in due course of examination as witnesses Therefore the mere confessions of prisoners do not come within the scope of this legislative declaration,(5) and there is no express provision in the Act to limit, in any case, the operation of the rule that confessions of co-prisoners, standing alone, are legally insufficient for conviction

the

prev

Having regard to the aforegoing considerations, the Courts have established the following rules with regard to this species of evidence :—

(1) If there is (a) absolutely no other evidence in the case,(6) or (b) the other evidence is inadmissible,(7) such a confession alone will not sustain a conviction.

Thus (a) a conviction of a person who is being tried together with other persons for the same offence cannot proceed merely on an uncorroborated statement in the confession of one of such other persons (8) So where two prisoners were convicted under sections 312 and 203 of the Penal Code, and there was not, as the Court observed, a particle of evidence against the second prisoner except the confession of the co-prisoner, it was held that the case was one of no evidence, and that the conviction was bad in law and should be set aside.(9) If a prisoner were convicted upon such evidence, whether by a jury

---

(1) R v Mohesh Biswas, 19 W R , Cr 16, 25 (1873), R. v Sadhu Mundul, 21 W R., 69, 71 (1874), R v Malappa bin 11 Bom H C R 196, 198 (1874), R v Naga, 23 W R Cr 24 (1875), R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C , 483 (1878); see ss. 133, 114, post

(2) R v Sadhu Mundul, 21 W. R , Cr., 69, 71 (1874), per Phear, J and see R v Naga, 23 W R , 24 (1875); R v Bhawani, I A , 684 (1878), R. v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C , 483 (1878), R. v Bepin Biswas, 10 C., 970 (1884), R v Doan Jira, 10 B , 231 (1885), R v Krishnabhat, ib 719 (1885), R. v. Ram Saran, 8 A., 306 (1885), R. v. Alagappan Bali, Weir, 3rd Ed , 499a (1886), R. v. Babajibin, 14 Ind Jur , N. S., 175 (1888), R. v. Ganapabhat, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 20 (1889), [the corroborative evidence must be more cogent and should be more strictly examined by the Court than when an accomplice gives evidence as a witness].

(3) S. 133, post.

(4) R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 483, 494, 496 (1878), per Jackson and Ainslie, JJ ; R. v. Babaji bin, 14 Ind Jur , N. S , 175 (1888) [confessions made by accused persons at a joint trial cannot be treated as the evidence of accomplice against one another], R v. Lakshmya Pandaram, 22 M , 491, 493 (1899)

(5) R v Sadhu Mundul, 21 W. R., Cr , 69, 71 (1874), per Phear, J . R v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C , 483, 494, 496 (1878), per Jackson and Ainslie, JJ

(6) Proceedings, 24th January 1873; 7 Mad. H. C R , App 15, followed in R. v Ambagara Halagu, 1 M , 163 (1876) R v Bhawani, I A , 684 (1878); R v. Ram Chand, ib , 875 (1878); R. v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C , 483, F. B. (1878); R. v. Doa Jira, 10 B , 231 (1885); R v. Khandu, 15 B , 66 (1890)

(7) R. v. Ambagara Halagu, 1 M., 163 (1876).

(8) See cases cited in note (6), ante.

(9) Proceedings, 24th January 1873, 7 Mad H C R , App , 15, followed in R. v. Ambagar Halagu, 1 M , 63 (1876).

or otherwise and were to appeal to the High Court, the conviction ought to be set aside; further, any Sessions Judge trying such a case before a Jury ought to direct them to acquit the prisoner.(1) (b) Where the only evidence against the second prisoner was a confession made by the first prisoner, and a statement made by the second prisoner to a police constable, it was held that the latter statement was inadmissible, and that the second prisoner could not be convicted solely on the confession of the first.(2)

(2) (a) The confessions of co-prisoners, to be rendered trustworthy must be corroborated,(3) (b) alsunde by independent evidence, and not by the testimony of accomplices or approvers,(4) (c) as well in respect of the identity of all the persons affected by it, as of the corpus delicti.(5)

(a) It is clear, for the reasons above mentioned, that though admissible under section 30 and capable of being taken into consideration, no weight can be attached to the confession unless it is in the first place corroborated. The confessions of persons tried jointly for the same offence may be "considered' as against other parties then on their trial with them, but such confessions, when used as evidence against others, stand in need of corroboration (6) When confessions of one co-prisoner are admissible against another co-prisoner, the utmost value that can be claimed for them is that if there is other untainted evidence against the accused they may be "considered" together with such evidence (7) The corroborative evidence must be more cogent and should be more strictly examined by the Court than when an accomplice gives evidence as a witness, for a confession cannot be treated as of the same value as the evidence of an accomplice.(8) (b) In the next place, the corroboration must be by independent evidence and not by the testimony of accomplices or approvers. For, if instead of being the statement of a fellow-prisoner, it had been evidence given on oath and subject to cross-examination, it would not be any thing else than the evidence of an accomplice, which itself in general requires corroboration derived from evidence which is independent of accomplice-testimony. The testimony of one accomplice is not sufficient corroboration of another. And further, in so far as a confession does not stand as high as the testimony of an accomplice, there is a greater necessity for independent corroboration.(9) (c) Thirdly, not only must there be corroboration as to the corpus

(1) R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 483, 490 (1878), per Garth, C. J.

(2) R v. Ambigara Hulagu, supra

(3) R. v. Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R, Cr, 57 (1873); R v. Koonjo Leth, 20 W R, Cr, 1, 3 (1873), v. post; R. v Sadhu Mundul, 21 W R, Cr, 69 (1874); R. v. Naga, 23 W. R, Cr, 24 (1885), R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C, 483 (1878), R v. Dosa Jira, 10 B, 231 (1885); R. v Ram Saran, 8 A, 306 (1885); R v. Alagappan Bali, Weir, 3rd Ed. 499a (1886); R. v. Ganapabhat, 14 Ind. Jur, N S., 20 (1889).

(4) R. v Jaffir Ali, supra; R v. Mohesh Biswas 19 W. R, Cr, 16 (1873); R v Koonjo Leth, supra, 3. ["The confession of K. L. of course could not have been legally used against the others at all excepting to such an extent as it was substantially corroborated by unimpeachable evidence, aliunde" per Phear, J] R. v. Sadhu Mundul, supra; R. v. Malapa bin, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 196, R. v. Baijoo Chowdhry, 25 W. R., Cr., 43 (1876); R. v. Dosa Jira, 10 B, 231 (1885); R. v Ram Saran, 8 A., 306 (1885); R. v. Alagappan Bali, Weir 3rd Ed., 499a (1886)

(5) Mohesh Biswas, supra, 21; R v. Sadhu Mundul, supra; R. v. Budhu Nanka, 1 B, 475 (1876); R v. Kaliyappa Goundan, Weir, 3rd Ed, 494 (1883); R v. Dosa Jira, supra, R v. Ram Saran, supra.

(6) R v Jaffir Ali, supra.

(7) R. v. Alagappan Bali, supra.

(8) R v. Ganapabhat, 14 Ind Jur, N S, 20 (1889) See cases cited ante, on page.

(9) R. v. Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R, Cr, 19, 25 (1873); R. v Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R, Cr, 37, 38 [" Tainted evidence is not made better by being doubled in quantity " as it would be, where the only corroboration is accomplice testimony] R. v. Ram Saran, supra [a second accomplice does not improve the position of the first]. R. v. Koonjo Leth, supra, 3, v. ante; R. v Sadhu Mundul, supra; R v. Malapa bin Kapana, supra, and cases cited, ante. One confession does not corroborate another; Takasak v. R., 10 C. W. N., xvi (1905) It may be generally stated that where there are two sets of evidence neither of which can alone be accepted without corroboration, they cannot each in its turn be taken to corroborate the other delicti, but also as to the identity of all the persons concerned. The question is not whether the story is generally true, but whether it is true in the particular points which affect the persons who are accused by him, because it is just at those points that the reason for suspicion and uncertainty comes into force.(1) The accomplice (and, therefore, à fortiori, a confessing prisoner) must be corroborated not only as to one but as to all of the persons affected by the evidence, and corroboration of his evidence as to one prisoner does not entitle his evidence against another to be accepted without corroboration.(2)

(3) The confessions of prisoners are not sufficient corroboration of the testimony of an accomplice, either as to the corpus delicti, or the identity of the persons affected (3) For the corroboration which is needed of an accomplice's testimony is evidence which is independent of accomplices. But a confession of a prisoner, if given on oath, would only be the evidence of an accomplice, and as a mere confession it is even of less value, and hence it can never afford corroboration of the evidence of an accomplice, the tainted evidence of which is not made more trustworthy by a tainted confession (v. ante).

Upon the question as to what independent evidence is legally sufficient corroboration of the confession, it is necessary to bear in mind that being evidence of a very defective character, the confession requires especially careful scrutiny before it can be safely relied on (4) The corroborative evidence must be more cogent and should be more strictly examined by the Court than when an accomplice gives evidence as a witness (5) There is no doubt as to the sufficiently corroborative character of the testimony of independent and credible eye-witnesses, or of a confession made by the accused(6) in addition to the confession by his co-prisoner implicating him, but doubt may arise in cases where the evidence is circumstantial.(7) The rulings on this point are not uniform In one case it seems to have been thought that if the other evidence and joined together so as to justify any court in acting in such evidence R v Jadoh Das, 4 C W. N. 129 (1849) 2, s c, 27 C., 295

---

(1) R v Mohesh Biswas, supra, at p. 21 and see R v Budhu Nanku, 1 B., 47 (1876), and R v Chatur Purushotam, cited in note to same, R v. Sadhu Mundul, supra, R. v Kaliyappa Gounden, Weir, 3rd Ed, 494 (1893), R v. Dosa Jira, 10 B., 231, 233 (1883). [In this case the prisoner was released, as the confession was not corroborated "by any independent evidence to show that the appellant was one of the house-breakers "] R. v Ram Saran, 8 A., 306 (1885), see p. 184, note ante

(2) R. v Ram Saran, supra

(3) R v. Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R., Cr., 57 (1873), R. v. Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R., Cr., 16, 21, 25 (1873); R v. Malappa bin, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 196 (1874); R v. Krishnabhat, 10 B., 310 (1885); R. v. Sadhu Mundul, 21 W. R., Cr., 69 (1874), R v Naga, 23 W. R., Cr., 24 (1875); R. v. Ram Saran 8 A., 306, (1885); R. v Banjoo Choudhry, 25 W. R., Cr., 44 (1876); R v Budhu Nanku, 1 B., 475 (1876); R. v. Bepin Biswas, 10 C., 970 (1884); R. v. Alagappan Bali Weir, 3rd. Ed., 493 (1886); R v. Chand mlad Ibrahim, 14 Ind. Jur., N. S., 125 (1888)

(4) R. v. Sadhu Mundul, 21 W. R., Cr., 69 (1874); R v Naga, 23 W. R., Cr., 24 (1875).

(5) R v Ganapabhat, 14 Ind Jur., N. S., 20 (1889), see also R v Sadhu Mundul, supra.

(6) See R v. Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R., Cr., 39, 60 (1873), R v Banjoo Choudhry, 25 W. R., 44 (1876), R. v. Bayaji Kom, 14 Ind Jur., 384 (1886), see R. v. Baru Nayar, 19 M., 482 (1896), where under the circumstances of that case the corroborating evidence was held to be sufficient

(7) See (1) as to possession or discovery of property (a) on charge of theft, dacoity, dishonestly receiving, R. v. Jaffir Ali, supra, R v Naga, supra; R v Ram Saran; R. v. Koonjo Leth, supra; R. v. Chunder Bhuttacharjee, supra, R. v. Kaliappa Gounden, supra; R. v Hardeva, 5 N.-W. P., 217 (1873), R v. Krishnabhat, supra, R v. Dosa Jira supra, (b) on a charge of murder or injury to the body, R. v. Ram Saran, supra; (2) as to other circumstantial evidence, (a) absence from home; R. v. Jaffir Ali, supra; R. v. Bepin Biswas, supra; (b) sudden disappearance; R. v. Banjoo Choudhry, supra; (c) presence in company of other accused; R v. Kaliyappa Gounden supra; R. v. Ram Saran, supra; (d) medical evidence; R. v. Sadhu Mundul, supra; (e) ill-feeling, R v. Banjoo Choudhry, supra; (f) finding of instrument of crime; R. v. Mohesh Biswas, supra.

"tends" to conviction it would be sufficient.(1) Where, in another prosecution, the circumstantial evidence constituted "a very strong primâ facie case," it was held to be sufficiently corroborative.(2) Again, it has been held that corroboration by circumstantial evidence is not sufficient "unless the circumstances constituting corroboration would, if believed to exist, themselves support a conviction."(3) Lastly, it has been said that "how far any corroborative evidence would be sufficient, coupled with the confession, to convict a prisoner, must depend upon the circumstances of each particular case."(4)

Upon the manner in which the confessions are to be taken into consideration, and upon the relation in which the confessions stand towards the other evidence in the case, the rulings are also not uniform. In some it has been laid down that they cannot be used as the basis of a case, but only as corroborative of other independent evidence, because they are not "evidence"(5) or if they are "evidence," they are "evidence" of a very weak character.(6) In other cases they have been treated as the basis of a case requiring only corroboration. The matter, however, is of no practical importance, as whether they be treated in either of the above modes, the issue of guilt will (if the confession be sufficiently corroborated) be determined upon a consideration of the whole of the evidence, including therein the confessions and the other independent evidence; both of these are elements in the case which, when combined, offer the material for the Court's decision, whichever of the two be regarded as the prior element or basis (7)

In the undermentioned case it was held by the Calcutta High Court that a retracted confession should carry practically no weight as against a person other than the maker, because it is not made on oath, it is not tested by cross-examinaton, and its truth is denied by the maker himself, who has thus lied on one or other of the occasions, and that the very fullest corroboration would be necessary in such a case, far more than would be demanded for the sworn testimony of an accomplice on oath (8) But in a more recent case it has been held by the Allahabad High Court that a retracted confession may be taken into consideration (that is, used as evidence) against not only the person making it but persons tried jointly with the confessing accused for the same offence, and that, as regards the person making it, such a confession may even without any corroborative evidence form the basis of a conviction, and that, as regards other co-accused, although corroborative evidence may be necessary, it is not necessary that such evidence should by itself be sufficient to support a conviction, and semble that a conviction based on the unsupported evidence afforded by the confession of a co-accused would not be unlawful.(9)

As against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession

This section must be read subject to the provisions contained in those which precede it. Therefore a confession by one of several persons, which is inadmissible under sections 24—26, and when there is no "discovery" under sections 27, will be inadmissible under this section as against both the maker of it and the person implicated thereby. If it is not inadmissible, under sections 24—26, against the maker, it is admissible under this section, provided

(1) R. v. Chunder Bhattacharjee, 24 W. R., Cr., 42 (1875), per Jackson, J.: A similar view seems to be indicated in R. v. Bayaji Kom, 14 Ind. Jur., 384 (1886)

(2) R v. Naga, 23 W. R., Cr., 24, 25 (1785), per Phear, J.

(3) R. v Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 483, per Jackson and MacDonnell, JJ.

(4) Ib., 490, per Garth, C. J.

(5) R. v Chunder Bhattacharjee, 24 W. R., Cr., 42 (1875).

(6) R v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 4 C., 483, per Jackson, MacDonnell, and Broughton, JJ.

(7) This seems to be the view of Garth, C. J., in R. v. Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, supra As a matter of convenience, however, it may be desirable to make the confession the starting point or basis, and then to consider how far the independent evidence, direct or circumstantial, supports it

(8) Yasin v. R, 28 C., 689 (1901)

(9) R. v. Kehri (1907), 29 A., 434.

that it satisfies its terms, as well against the maker as against the other whom it affects. If, however, it is excluded by sections 24—26, but there is discovery under section 27, then so much of the whole, as leads immediately to the discovery being made admissible thereunder is also admissible under section 30 against both, if it is a "confession" on the part of the maker and "affects himself and some other" co-accused, but not otherwise. A confession partly(1) under section 27 is admissible under section only when the admissible part is a "confess "affects" himself and the co-accused as against whom it is considered. If the admissible part is a "confession," and "affects" both persons, it cannot be first rejected as against co-prisoner B on the ground that the whole confession was unduly obtained, and then that very part admitted as against the maker A, on the ground of discovery, but should be admitted under section 30 against both;(2) though on taking it into consideration no weight would be attached to it, as against B, unless it was sufficiently corroborated, and the mere discovery, though it might be sufficient for the conviction of A, would not generally, of itself apart from other evidence to show B's complicity, corroborate A sufficiently as to B's being concerned in the offence. But a statement made in Court by one accused, incriminating a co-accused but exculpating himself, is not a "confession" and cannot legally be taken into consideration as against the co-accused. A statement made to the Police by an accused person to the effect that if certain other persons were sent for, he would see that some other property was traced out, is not evidence to prove that the accused had been guilty of abetment of theft.(3)

Admission not conclusive proof but may estop

31. Admissions are not conclusive proof of the matters admitted, but they may operate as estoppels under the provisions hereinafter contained.

Principle.—The policy of the law favours the investigation of truth by all expedient methods The doctrine of estoppels, by which further investigation is precluded, being an exception to the general rule, and being adopted only for the sake of general convenience, and for the prevention of fraud, will not be extended beyond the reasons on which it is founded. Therefore admissions, whether written or oral, which do not operate by way of estoppel, constitute only primâ facie and rebuttable evidence against their makers and those claiming under them, as between them and others.(4)

s. 17 ("Admission" defined.) s. 115 (Estoppel)
s 4 ("Conclusive proof.")

Taylor, Ev., §§ 817—819, 854—861; Norton, Ev., 151; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 194, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62; Powell, Ev., 288—290; Best, Ev., §§ 529, 530.

COMMENTARY

Effect of admissions.

This section deals with the effect, in respect of conclusiveness, of admission, when proved. Every admission is evidence against the person by whom it is made; but it is always for the Court to consider what weight, if any, is to be

(1) See R v. Rama Birapa, 3 B., 12 (1878)
(2) Ib
(3) Bisham Dutt v. R, 2 A. L. J., 53, 2 Cr. L. J., 22, and for definition of "confession" see Bishnath v. R, 2 Cr. L. J., 230.
(4) Powell, Ev., 288: "Thus a receipt endorsed on a bill, and generally, all parol receipts, are only primâ facie evidence of payment, Ib., 289: in general, a person's conduct and language have not the effect of operating against him by way of estoppel," per Chambre, J., in Smith v. Taylor, 1 N. R., 210 given to an admission, or any other evidence, it is not conclusive merely because it is legally admissible.(1) It is only so in certain cases, for instance, where it has been acted upon by the party to whom it was made (2) "A statement made by a party is not, ipso facto, conclusive against him, though it may be used against him and may be evidence, more or less weighty, possibly even conclusive, according to the circumstances of each case and the result come to by judicial investigation."(3) Though admissions may be proved against the party making them, it is always open to the maker to show that the statements were mistaken or untrue, except in the case in which they operate as estoppels (4) The subject was clearly illustrated in the case of Heane v Rogers,(5) in which Bayley, J., observed "There is no doubt but that the express admissions of a party to the suit, or admissions implied from his conduct, are evidence, and strong evidence against him but we think that he is at liberty to prove that such admissions were mistaken or were untrue, and is not estopped or concluded by them, unless another person has been induced by them to alter his condition; in such a case, the party is estopped from disputing their truth with respect to that person (and those claiming under him), and that transaction, but as to third persons he is not bound. It is a well-established rule of law, that estoppels bind only parties and privies and not strangers."(6) The [illegible] intended in this case, that a [illegible] were founded on mistake [illegible] alter his condition, is as applicable to mistakes in respect of legal liability, as to those in respect of matters of facts (7) Where a defendant seeks to make use of

(1) Bulley v Bulley, L. R., 9 Ch App., 739, 747; Ayetun v Ram Sebuk, 12 W. R., 156 (1869)

(2) Janan Chowdhry v Doolar Chowdhry, 18 W. R., 347 (1872), Brojendro Coomar v. The Chairman, Dacca Municipality, 20 W. R., 223 (1873), Yanant Puttu v. Radhabai, 14 B., 312 (1889) An admission made by a party in other cases may be taken as evidence against him, but cannot operate against him as an estoppel in a case in which his opponents are persons to whom the admission was not made, and who are not proved to have heard of it, or to have been in any way misled by it, or to have acted in reliance upon it. Chunder Kant v Pearee Mohun, 5 W. R., 209 (1866), see Mussumat Oodey v Mussumat Ladoo, 13 Moo I A., 585, 600 (1870)

(3) Ayetun v Ram Sebuk, supra

(4) See s. 115, post, and notes thereto, as to admissions which have been held to operate or not as estoppels.

(5) 9 B. & C., 577, 586, 587

(6) See Janan Chowdhry v. Doolar Chowdhry, 18 W. R., 347 (1872), Ayetun v. Ram Sebuk, 12 W. R., 156 (1869), Ram Sarun v. Pran Peary, 13 Moo I. A., 551 (1870); Soopan Bibee v. Achmut Ali, 14 B. L. R., App., 3 (1874); Sreenath Roy v. Bindoo Bashinee, 20 W. R., 112 (1873); Brojendra Coomar v. Chairman, Dacca Municipality, 20 W. R., 223 (1873); Sreemutty Debia v. Bimola Soondaree, 21 W. R., 422 (1874); Mussumat Oodey v. Mussumat Ladoo, 13 Moo. I. A., 585, 599, 600 (1870); Mussumat Luteefoonissa v. Goor Sarun, 18 W. R., 485, 493, 494 (1872); [where a defendant seeks to make use of statements which have been put in evidence and to treat them as admissions by the plaintiff who put them in, it is competent for the plaintiff to show the real nature of the transaction to which they relate, and to get rid of the effect of the apparent admissions. See also Mussumat Ushrufoonessa v Baboo Gridharee, 19 W. R. 118 (1873), in which the Privy Council held that the fact of a party having admitted the execution of a deed in a former suit did not prevent her from contesting the validity of the transactions evidenced thereby, and showing that it was colourable and not real, and see generally as to the ordinarily inconclusive character of admissions: Sreenath Nag v. Mon Mohinee, 6 W. R., 35 (1866); Gordon Stuart v. Beejoy Gobind, 8 W. R., 291 (1867); Grish Chunder v. Issur Chunder, 12 W. R., 226 (1829), Mahomed Haneef v. Mozhur Ali, 15 W. R., 280 (1871), Shaikh Komuroodeen v Shaikh Munye, 16 W. R., 220 (1871); Mussumat Ushrufoonessa v. Baboo Gridharee, 19 W. R., 118 (1873), Bodh Singh v. Ganeschunder Sen, 19 W. R., 356 (1873)

(7) Newton v. Liddiard, 12 Q. B., 925, 927; such a mistaken impression, however, will not exclude his admission, though it will impair its weight as evidence against him. Newton v. Belcher, 1 R. B., 921; Taylor, Ev., § 819, Roscoe, N. P., Ev., 62, 1 Phillips & Arn., 354, see Gopi Lall v. Chundraine Bhuoojee, 19 W. R., 13 (1873), as to admissions involving erroneous conclusions of law.

statements which have been put in evidence, and to treat them as admissions by the plaintiff who put them in, it is competent for the plaintiff to show the real nature of the transaction to which they relate and to get rid of the effect of the apparent admissions.(1) Even if an admission was made with a fraudulent purpose, the party making it may show what was the real state of facts.(2) So where a trader, intending to defraud his creditors, delivered his goods to a friend, and made out an invoice to him and a receipt for the fictitious price, it was held open to him, when these documents were put in evidence, in an action brought by him to recover the goods from the pretended purchaser, to show that they were untrue (3) And a party claiming under another who has made admissions as to a transaction to which that other was a party, is at liberty to allege and prove that the admissions were made with a fraudulent purpose, and were not true, and to show the real nature of the transaction.(4)

But though a mere admission is not legally conclusive, the circumstances under, or the occasion upon, which it was made, or its formal and deliberate character may entitle it to the greatest weight and may require very strong and a clear evidence to rebut the inferences which may be drawn from it.(5) Although it may be shown that the facts were different from what on a former occasion they were stated to be, and though it may be shown (if it were so) that a former statement is false, strong evidence may, under the particular circumstances, be required to prove that what the parties had deliberately asserted was altogether untrue.(6) Moreover, an admission, if of a sufficiently grave character, may have the effect of shifting the onus of proof.(7) "As the weight of an admission depends on the circumstances under which it was made, these circumstances may always be proved to impeach or enhance its credibility. Thus the admission (unless amounting to an estoppel) may be shown by the party against whom it is tendered to be untrue, or to have been made under a mistake of law or fact, or to have been uttered in ignorance, levity, or an abnormal condition of mind. On the other hand, the weight of the admission increases with the knowledge and deliberation of the speaker, or the solemnity of the occasion on which it was made."(8) As to admissions made "without prejudice," and admissions obtained under compulsion, v. ante, s. 23, and p. 247.

---

(1) Mussumat Fedhibi v. Gour Sarun, 18 W. R., 485 (1872).

(2) Ram Sarun v. Mussumat Pranjeary, 13 Moo. I. A., 551 (1870); Sreenath Roy v. Bindoo Bashinee, 20 W. R., 112 (1873); Brojendro Coomar v. Chairman, Dacca Municipality, 20 W. R., 223, 224 (1873); Sreemutty Juhna v. Bimola Soondaree, 21 W. R., 422 (1874).

(3) Bates v. Foster, 27 L. J., Ex., 202.

(4) Sreenath Roy v. Bindoo Bashinee, 20 W. R., 112 (1873).

(5) Soopan Bibee v. Ashmut Ali, 14 B. L. R., App., 3 (1874); 21 W. R., 414; Hunsa Koer v. Sheo Golind, 24 W. R., 431, 432 (1875); Mahomed Hanef v. Mozhur Ali, 15 W. R., 280 (1871), the value of an admission depends upon the circumstances under which it was made; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 62; R. v. Simmonds, 1 C. & K., 164, 166; where it is a mere inference drawn from facts, the admission goes no further than the facts proved, Bulley v. Bulley, L. R., 9 Ch., 739, and generally as to the weight to be attached to admissions, v. ante, p. 117 and post.

(6) Soopan Bibee v. Ashmut Ali, supra; see last note, and post.

(7) Forbes v. Mir Muhomed, 5 B. L. R., 529, 540 (1870), 14 W. R., (P. C.), 28, 13 Moo. I. A., 438; Chandra Kunwar v. Chandri Narpat Sing, P. C. (1906), 29 A., 184; L. R., 34; I. A., 27.

(8) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 194; Best, Ev., §§ 520, 530; Taylor, Ev., §§ 854—861; Roscoe, N. P., Ev., 62.

STATEMENTS BY PERSONS WHO CANNOT BE CALLED AS WITNESSES.

Section 32

The provisions in the following section constitute further exceptions to the rule which excludes hearsay.(1) As a general rule, oral evidence must be direct [illegible] g section may be regarded as excepti[illegible] d reason of the hearsay rule is the [illegible] based on two considerations, a necessity for the evidence and a circumstantial guarantee of trustworthiness.(3) It may be impossible, or it may cause unreasonable expense or delay to procure the attendance of a witness who, if present before the Court, could give direct evidence on the matter in question; and it may also be that this witness has made a statement, either written or verbal, with reference to such matter under such circumstances that the truth of this statement may reasonably be presumed. In such a case the law as enacted by section 32 dispenses with direct oral evidence of the fact and with the safeguard for truth provided by cross-examination and the sanction of an oath, the probability of the statement being true depending upon other safeguards which are mentioned in the following paragraphs.(4) The truth of the declarations are deemed to be primâ facie guaranteed by the special conditions of admissibility imposed. An important difference between the law in India and in England is that in the latter country this class of evidence can only be received where the author of the statement is dead.(5) The ground for its admissibility being the absence of any better evidence, the other conditions mentioned in the section under which, in India, such evidence is receivable are consonant with reason and general convenience. These conditions of admissibility apply to all the eight classes of evidence which it comprises. It is for the Judge in his discretion to say whether the alleged expense and delay is such as justifies the admission of the evidence, without insisting on the attendance of the author of the statement.(6) The statement referred to in all the eight paragraphs of section 32 are evidence against all the world, unlike statements receivable under the sections relating to admissions which may only be proved as against the person who makes them or his representative in interest.(7) But an admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it when it is of such a nature that, if the person making it were dead, it would be relevant as between third persons under the thirty-second section.(8)

Section 33.

The nature of the evidence in the case of depositions in former trials, and the grounds upon which such evidence is receivable is considered in the Notes to section 33, post.

The general ground of admissibility of the evidence mentioned in both sections 32 and 33 is that in the cases there in question no better evidence is to be had.(9)

---

(1) See Sturla v. Freccia, L. R., 5 App. Cas., 639, per Lord Blackburn.
(2) S. 60, post.
(3) Wigmore, Ev., § 1420
(4) Field, Ev., 169, 170.
(5) Steph. Dig., Art., 25.
(6) Norton, Ev., 174, 175.
(7) Ib, 143; Field, Ev., 181; s. 21, ante.
(8) S. 21, cl. (1), ante; ib, ills. (b), (c), as to cess-returns, see Cess Act, IX (B. C.) of 1880.
(9) Steph. Introd., 165

Statements as to cause of death (s 32, cl 1)

The ground of admissibility of "dying declarations," as they are called is said to rest, firstly on necessity,(1) the injured person, who is generally the principal witness, being ity of the approach of the obligation of an oa said however that dying declarations in India are not to be regarded as if they were made in England.(3) And Mr. Field states that he has in more than one instance known a statement made by a person, who did not expect to live many hours, turn out to be wholly and utterly untrue.(4) According to English law, it is the impression of impending death, and not the rapid succession of death in point of fact, which renders the testimony admissible, but it is still doubtful what is meant by "impending." From the English cases the true principle would seem to be that the judge must be satisfied that the expectation of death is so immediate as to give to the declaration a solemnity sufficient to dispense with those sanctions necessary to ensure the purity of evidence in other cases.(5) But in so far as it is not necessary under this Act that the declaration should have been made under expectation of death,(6) the first named ground appears to be more properly that on which this kind of evidence is receivable When, however, the statement has been so made, it will further have the sanction which the approach of death affords in the greater number of cases According to English law evidence of this description is admissible in no civil case, and in criminal cases only in the single instance of homicide, and then only where it is offered in the very words of the deceased, both questions and answers being given where questions have been put.(7) But the above-mentioned sanction has nothing to do with the nature of the crime or other act to which the evidence relates; it is just as existent in the case of declarations relating to the commission of one offence as another Further, if this evidence be admitted on the ground of necessity, that necessity is just as likely to exist where the deceased person has been robbed, or raped, or assaulted, as where he or she has been murdered.(8) And therefore under the Act the statement is admissible, whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of the death of the person, who made the statement, comes into question (v. post) Three reasons have been given for restricting the application of this evidence to cases of homicide (a) the danger of perjury in fabricating declarations, the truth or falsehood of which it is impossible to ascertain; (b) the danger of letting in incomplete statements, which, though true as far as they go, do not constitute "the whole truth." (c) the experienced fact, that, implicit-reliance cannot in all cases be placed on the declarations of a dying person, for his body may have survived the powers of his mind, or his recollection, if his senses are not impaired, may not be perfect or, for the sake of ease, and to be rid of the importunity of those around him, he may say, or seem to say, whatever they choose to suggest.(9) These considerations, though they have nt to exclude this form of yet well be borne in mind statements in particular cases.(10) This kind of evidence has been found to be on the whole useful and

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 716; Norton, Ev., 176, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 27, 28. This ground seems not to have been admitted in R. v. Bissessurjun Mookerjee, 6 W. R., Cr., 75 (1866)

(2) Taylor, Ev., §§ 714, 717, 718, R. v. Bissessurjun Mookerjee, supra; In the matter of Sheik Tenoo, 14 W. R., Cr., 11, 13 (1871); see observations of Erle, J. C. R., in R. v. Woodcock, 1 Leach, 502, cited in the last-mentioned case at p. 13, and in Field, Ev., 170; Anderson, R., in Ashim's case, 2 Leach Cr., 147; Wigmore, Ev., § 1438

(3) Whitley Stokes, ii, 841.

(4) Field, Ev., pp. 174, 175

(5) Taylor Ev., § 718.

(6) v. post, s 32, cl (1), Commentary.

(7) Taylor, § 714, R. v. Mitchell (1892), 17 Cox., 503, R. v. Smith (1901), 65 J. P., 426 but see R. v. Whitmarsh (1898), 62 J. P., 680

(8) R. v. Bissessurjun Mookerjee, supra, 76

(9) Taylor, Ev., § 716

(10) Field Ev., 171

necessary, but the caution with which it should be received has often been commented upon. It will often happen that the particulars of the violence to which the deceased has spoken were likely to have occurred under circumstances of confusion and surprise calculated to prevent their being accurately observed. The consequences also of the violence may occasion an injury to the mind, and an indistinctness of memory as to the particular transaction. The deceased may have stated his inferences from facts, concerning which he may have drawn a wrong conclusion, or he may have omitted important particulars, from not having his attention called to them. Such evidence, therefore, is liable to be very incomplete. He may naturally, also, be disposed to give a partial account of the occurrence, although possibly not influenced by animosity or ill-will. But it cannot be concealed that animosity, and resentment are not unlikely to be felt in such a situation.(1) Such considerations show the necessity of caution in receiving impressions from accounts given by persons in a dying state; especially when it is considered that they cannot be subjected to the power of cross-examination, and the security afforded by the terror of punishment and the penalties for perjury cannot exist in this case. Further, the remarks before made on verbal statements which have been heard and reported by witnesses applies equally to dying declarations; namely, that they are liable to be misunderstood and misreported, from inattention, from misunderstanding or from infirmity of memory.(2) Where the declaration of a person wounded by the accused in committing dacoity was made on the 13th August 1899, and he died on the 20th August of the same year, and there was no other evidence to prove that the death was caused or accelerated by the wounds received at the dacoity, or that it was the transaction which resulted in his death, it was held that his declaration ought not to have been admitted in evidence."(3)

Statements made in the course of business (s 32, cl 2)

The English rule as to the admissibility of these statements is subject to several restrictions which, as such, appear to have no place in the Act (v. post). The considerations which have induced the Courts to recognise this species of evidence have been said to be principally these. That, in the absence of all suspicion of sinister motives, a fair presumption arises that entries made in the ordinary routine of business and in the discharge of a duty are correct, since, the process of invention implying trouble, it is easier to state what is true than what is false, that such entries usually form a link in a chain of circumstances, which mutually corroborate each other; that false entries would be likely to bring clerks into disgrace with their employers, that, as most entries made in the course of business are subject to the inspection of several persons, an error would be exposed to speedy discovery, and that, as the facts to which they relate are generally known but to few persons, a relaxation of the strict rules of evidence in favour of such entries may often prove convenient, if not necessary, for the due investigation of truth.(4)

Statements against interest (s. 32, cl. 3)

The ground of reception of such statements is the presumption that what a man states against his interest is probably true. Self-interest is a sufficient security against wilful mis-statement, mistake of fact, or want of information on the part of the declarant. The place of the tests of oath and cross-examination is in some measure supplied by the circumstances of the declarant and the character of his statement. Lastly, the inconveniences that would result from the exclusion of this kind of evidence are considered to be greater, in general,

---

(1) Roscoe, Cr Ev, 12th Ed., 32, 33; 1 Phill. & Arn., Ev., 251, see Taylor, Ev., § 722 falsehood and the passion of revenge must also be guarded against, and this more especially in India see remarks in Field, Ev., 174, 175; Whitley Stokes, II, 841, cited ante

(2) Roscoe, Cr. Ev, ib.; 1 Phill & Arn., ib

(3) R. v. Rudra Fakerappa, 2 Bom L. R., 331 (1900)

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 697; Wills, Ev, 125; Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 250, Hope v. Hope (1893), W. N., 20, C. A.

than any which are likely to be experienced from its admission.(1) The third clause of section 32 extends the rule as accepted in English Courts. For, while in the latter the interest involved must be pecuniary or proprietary, no other kind being sufficient,(2) under the Indian Act the statement is admissible when, if true, it would expose, or would have exposed, the declarant to a criminal prosecution or to a suit for damages (v. post). It may well be thought that a declaration by which a man makes himself liable to a criminal prosecution or payment of damages, offers as good a guarantee for its truthfulness as one simply against his pecuniary or proprietary interest.(3) Though the ground of admissibility of this kind of evidence is the improbability that a party would falsely make a declaration to fix himself with liability, yet cases may be put where his doing so would be an advantage to him.(4)

Matters of public and general interest (s. 32, cl. 4)

The admissibility of hearsay evidence respecting such matters is said to rest mainly on the following grounds. "That the origin of the rights claimed is usually of so ancient a date, and the rights themselves are of so undefined and general a character, that direct proof of their existence and nature can seldom be obtained, and ought not to be required; that in matters in which the community are interested all persons must be deemed conversant; that, as common rights are naturally talked of in public, and as the nature of such rights excludes the probability of individual bias, what is dropped in conversation respecting them may be presumed to be true, that the general interest which belongs to the subject would lead to immediate contradiction from others, if the statements proved were false, that reputation can hardly exist without the concurrence of many parties unconnected with each other, who are all like interested in investigating the subject, that such concurrence furnishes strong presumptive evidence of truth, and that it is this prevailing current of assertion which is resorted to as evidence, for to this every member of the community is supposed to be privy and to contribute his share.(5) The term "interest" here does not mean that which is interesting from gratifying curiosity, or a love of information or amusement, but that in which a class of the community have a pecuniary interest, or some interest by which their legal rights or liabilities are affected (6) But hearsay is not evidence of matters of mere private interest, for respecting these direct proof may be given, and no trustworthy reputation is likely to arise.(7) But although a private interest should be involved with a matter of public interest, the reputation respecting rights and liabilities affecting classes of the community cannot be excluded, or this relaxation of the rule against the admission of hearsay

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 608, Best, Ev., § 500, Phipson Ev., 3rd Ed., 241; Wills, Ev., 130, Wigmore, Ev., § 1457, the attention and care ordinarily given by men to concerns in which their interests are involved are supposed to be a sufficient guarantee against inaccuracy. "It is, however, easy to conceive cases, e. g., that of a heedless spendthrift heir, who has just succeeded to an inheritance, in which these guarantee would be of little value. This is, however, a point concerned not with the admissibility, but with the weight of the evidence" Field, Ev., 181, and see note, post.

(2) Sussex Peerage Case, 11 C. & F., 103—114, explained and acted upon in Davis v. Lloyd, 1 C. & Kir., 276; Illustration (f) is particularly pointed to this case, and indicates the departure in this Act from the English rule.

(3) Norton, Ev., 184.

(4) Best, Ev., § 500; e.g., the accounts of the receiver or Steward of an estate have, through neglect or worse, got into a state of derangement which it is desirable to conceal from his employer; and one very obvious way of setting the balance straight is, falsely charging himself with having received money from a particular person. Ib

(5) Taylor, Ev., § 608, and cases there cited, R. v. Bedfordshire, 4 E. & B., 542; Starkie, Ev., 4th Ed., 43—50, 188—190

(6) R. v. Bedfordshire, supra, per Lord Campbell

(7) Ib. and see per Lord Kenyon, in Morewood v. Wood, 14 East, 327n; Norton, Ev., 185 In Weeks v. Sparke, 1 M. & S., 686, Bayley, J., modifies rule thus. "I take it that where the term public right is used, it does not mean public in the literal sense, but is synonymous with general, evidence would often be found unavailing.(1) Evidence of this description is frequently included under the general term "reputation."(2) Strictly speaking, "general reputation" is the general result or conclusion formed by society as to any public fact or usage, by the aid of the united knowledge and experience of its individual members. Such fact may, according to English law, be proved not only by such general reputation, but by the declarations of those who were likely to have possessed a knowledge on the subject derived either from their own observation or the information of others.(3)

Statements as to relationship, etc. (s 32, cls 5, 6).

Section 32 in its fifth and sixth clauses deals with two classes of statements which are usually treated by English text-writers under the single head of matter of pedigree and is in some respects more extensive than, and differs from, the English rule on the same subject (v. post). The grounds upon which this class of statements is received are—necessity—such inquiries generally involving remote facts of family history known to but few, and incapable of direct proof; and—the special means of knowledge which are possessed by the declarant.(4)

Statements in document relating to transaction by which any right or custom was created, claimed and the like

As to statements in documents relating to a transaction by which any right and custom was created, claimed or the like, see post, and the thirteenth section, ante.

Statements made by a number of persons and expressing feelings or impressions

As to statements made by a number of persons, and expressing feelings or impressions (v. post).

Burden of proof; contradiction corroboration.

Before statements or depositions under section 32 or 33 are admissible, it must be shown that the circumstances and conditions mentioned and imposed by those sections exist; as that the person who made the statement sought to be proved is dead, or cannot be found, or the like. The burden of proving this is on the person who wishes to give the evidence.(5) Whenever any statement relevant under section 32 or 33 is proved, all matters may be proved either in order to contradict or corroborate it, or in order to impeach or confirm the credit of the person by whom it was made, which might have been proved if that person had been called as a witness and had denied upon cross-examination the truth of the matter suggested.(6)

Cases in which statement of relevant fact by person who is dead or cannot be found, &c., is relevant

32. Statements, written or verbal,(7) of relevant facts made by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, appears to the Court unreasonable, are themselves relevant facts in the following cases :—

---

that is, what concerns a multitude of persons." Gresley, Ev., 305.

(1) R. v. Bedfordshire, supra.

(2) Starkie, Ev., 4th Ed., 43, et seq., 186n.: see as to the difference between reputation of a fact and evidence of a fact, Mosely v. Davis, 11 Price, 167, arguendo.

(3) Starkie, Ev., 43, 44.

(4) See Taylor, Ev., § 635, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 268; Gresley, Ev., 319, and post.

(5) S. 104, post.

(6) S. 158, post: see further as to proof, the Commentary to ss. 32, 33, post.

(7) As to the meaning of this expression, see Chandra Nath v. Nilmadhub Bhattacharjee, 2 C., 236; s. c., 3 C. W. N., 88 (1898), and post.

When it relates to cause of death

(1) When the statement is made by a person as to the cause of his death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question.

Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question.(1)

Or is made in course of business;

(2) When the statement was made by such person in the ordinary course of business,(2) and in particular when it consists of any entry or memorandum made by him in books kept in the ordinary course of business, or in the discharge of professional duty, or of an acknowledgment written or signed by him of the receipt of money, goods, securities or property of any kind, or of a document used in commerce written or signed by him, or of the date of a letter or other document usually dated, written or signed by him.(3)

Or against interest of maker;

(3) When the statement is against the pecuniary or proprietary interest of the person making it, or when, if true, it would expose him or would have exposed him to a criminal prosecution or to a suit for damages.(4)

Or gives opinion as to public right or custom or matters of general interest

(4) When the statement gives the opinion of any such person, as to the existence of any public right or custom or matter of public or general interest, of the existence of which, if it existed, he would have been likely to be aware, and when such statement was made before any controversy as to such right, custom or matter had arisen.(5)

Or relates to existence of relationship

(5) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship by blood, marriage or adoption between persons as to whose relationship by blood, marriage or adoption the person making the statement had special means of knowledge, and when the statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.(6)

Or is made in will or deed relating to family affairs

(6) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship by blood, marriage or adoption between persons deceased, and is made in any will or deed relating to the affairs of the family to which any such deceased person belonged, or in any family pedigree, or upon any tombstone, family portrait or other thing on which such statements are usually made and

---

(1) Ill. (a); v. ante, p. 293, and post, p. 302.

(2) As to the meaning of ordinary course of business see Narayan v. Bhurmappa, 23 B., 63 (1897), and post, p. 307.

(3) Ills. (b), (c), (d), (g), (h), (j) s. 21, ills. (b), (c), and ante, p. 295, and post, pp. 305, 306.

(4) Ills. (e), (f), v. ante, p. 295, and post, notes to clause 3.

(5) Ill. (i); v. ante, p. 295, and post, notes to clause 4.

(6) Ills. (k), (l), (m), v. ante, p. 296, and post, notes to clauses (5) & (6).

when such statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.(1)

Or in document relating to transaction mentioned in s 13. cl (a);

(7) When the statement is contained in any deed, will or other document which relates to any such transaction as is mentioned in section 13, clause (a).(2)

Or is made by several persons, and expresses feelings relevant to matter in question

(8) When the statement was made by a number of persons and expressed feelings or impressions on their part relevant to the matter in question.(3)

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A was murdered by B, or A dies of injuries received in a transaction in the course of which she was ravished

The question is, whether she was ravished by B, or

The question is, whether A was killed by B under such circumstances that a suit would lie against B by A's widow.

Statements made by A as to the cause of his or her death, referring respectively to the murder, the rape, and the actionable wrong under consideration, are relevant facts.(4)

(b) The question is, as to the date of A's birth

An entry in the diary of a deceased surgeon, regularly kept in the course of business stating that, on a given day, he attended A's mother and delivered her of a son, is a relevant fact.(5)

(c) The question is, whether A was in Calcutta on a given day.

A statement in the diary of a deceased solicitor, regularly kept in the course of business, that, on a given day, the solicitor attended A at a place mentioned, in Calcutta, for the purpose of conferring with him upon specified business, is a relevant fact.(5)

(d) The question is, whether a ship sailed from Bombay harbour on a given day.

A letter written by a deceased member of a merchant's firm, by which she was chartered, to their correspondents in London to whom the cargo was consigned, stating that the ship sailed on a given day from Bombay harbour, is a relevant fact.(5)

(e) The question is, whether rent was paid to A for certain land.

A letter from A's deceased agent to A, saying that he has received the rent on A's account and held it at A's orders, is a relevant fact (6)

(f) The question is, whether A and B were legally married.

The statement of a deceased clergyman that he married them under such circumstances that the celebration would be a crime, is relevant.(6)

(g) The question is, whether A, a person who cannot be found, wrote a letter on a certain day.

The fact that a letter written by him is dated on that day is relevant.(5)

(h) The question is, what was the cause of the wreck of a ship.

A protest made by the captain, whose attendance cannot be procured, is a relevant fact.(5)

---

(1) Ills. (k), (l), (m); v. ante, p. 206 and post, notes to clauses (5) & (6)

(2) See s. 13, ante, v. post, notes to clause (7)

(3) Ill. (n); v. post

(4) S. 32, cl. (1).

(5) S. 32, cl. (2).

(6) S. 32, cl. (3)

(i) The question is, whether a given road is a public way.

A statement by A, a deceased headman, of the village, that the road was public, is a relevant fact.(1)

(j) The question is, what was the price of grain on a certain day in a particular market.

A statement of the price, made by a deceased banya in the ordinary course of his business, is a relevant fact.

(k) The question is, whether A, who is dead, was the father of B.

A statement by A that B was his son, is a relevant fact.(2)

(l) The question is, what was the date of the birth of A.

A letter from A's deceased father to a friend, announcing the birth of A on a given day, is a relevant fact (3)

(m) The question is, whether and when, A and B were married.

An entry in a memorandum-book by C, the deceased father of B, of his daughter's marriage with A on a given date, is a relevant fact.(3)

(n) A sues B for a libel expressed in a painted caricature exposed in a shop window

The question is as to the similarity of the caricature and its libellous character. The remarks of a crowd of spectators on these points may be proved.(4)

Principle.—The general ground of admissibility of the evidence mentioned in this section is that in the cases there in question no better evidence is to be had.(5) As to the further and particular grounds on which each of the several classes of evidence mentioned are admitted, see Introduction, ante, and Note, post.

s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 ("Fact.")
s. 3 ("Evidence.")
s. 3 ("Court.")
s. 3 ("Document.")
s 118 (Who may testify.)
s. 158 (What matters may be proved in connection with proved statement relevant under s. 32)
s. 104 (Burden of proving fact to be proved to make evidence admissible.)

s. 38 (Relevancy of depositions.)
s. 80 (Presumption as to documents produced as record of evidence.)

s. 114, ill. (f) (Presumption as to course of business.)
s. 8, ills. (j), (k) (Examples of dying declarations.)
s 21, cl. (1), ills. (b), (c) (Proof of admission by, or on behalf of, person making it.) s 90 (Ancient documents.) ss 47, 67 (Proof of handwriting.) ss 13, 18 (Public and general customs or rights.)
s. 42 (Judgments relating to matters of a public nature.)
s 65, cl. (d) (Secondary evidence.)
s. 50 (Opinion on relationship when relevant.)

Dying Declarations:—Steph. Dig., Art. 26; Wigmore, Ev., § 1430—1452; Taylor, Ev., §§ 714—722; 3 Russ. Cr., 354—362; Best, Ev., § 505, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 277—282; Roscoe, Cr., Ev., 12th Ed., 27—33; Powell, Ev., 205—213; Wills, Ev., 139—141; Field, Ev., 170—175; Norton, Ev., 175—177. Declarations in the course of business:—Steph. Dig., Art. 27; Taylor, Ev., §§ 697—713; Best, Ev., § 501; Roscoe, N. P. Ev.,

(1) S. 32, cl. (i)
(2) S. 32, cls. (5) & (6).
(3) S 32, cls. (5) & (6).
(4) S. 32, cl. (8).
(5) Steph. Introd., 165

60—62; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 1517—1561; Powell, Ev., 226—236; Smith; L. C., Note to Price v Torrington; Wharton, Ev., §§ 238—257; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 250—256; Wills, Ev., 125—129; Field, Ev., 175—179; Norton, Ev., 177—179 Declarations against interest:—Steph. Dig., Art. 28; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 1455—1477; Taylor, Ev., §§ 668—696; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 241—249; Best, Ev., § 50; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 55—59; Smith, L. C. Note to Higham v Ridgway, Powell, Ev., 214—225; Wharton, Ev., 226—237; Wills, Ev., 130—138; Act IX of 1908 (Limitation), s. 20, Field, Ev., 179—185; Norton, Ev., 179—184. Declarations as to public rights—Steph. Dig., Art. 30; Taylor, Ev., §§ 607—634, Best, Ev., § 497; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 257—267; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 1563, Roscoe; N. P. Ev., 48—51; Powell, Ev., 170—185, Wills, Ev., 167—177; Field, Ev., 185—188; Norton, Ev., 184—188 Declarations as to relationship—Steph. Dig., Art. 31; Wigmore, Ev., §§ 1480—1510; Taylor, Ev., §§ 635—637; Best, Ev., § 498; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 268—276; Wills, Ev., 158—166, Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 44—48; Habback's Ev. of Succession, 648—711; Wharton, Ev., §§ 201—225, Powell, Ev., 193—204; Field, Ev., 188—194; Norton, Ev., 188—190 Statements in documents relating to transaction mentioned in s. 13—Field, Ev., 194—196; Norton, Ev., 190—192. Statements by a number of persons expressing feelings or impressions—Field, Ev., 196—198; Norton, Ev., 192—193, cases cited.

COMMENTARY

"Person"

The word "person" must not be read as "persons." If a statement, written or verbal, is made by several persons, and one or some of them is or are dead, and one or others is or are alive, the statement of the deceased person or persons is admissible under this section notwithstanding that the other person or persons who also made the statement is or are alive. In such a case the statement is not one statement but each person making the statement must be taken to have made the statement for himself or herself, and if any of the makers of the statement is dead, the statement made by that person is admissible under this section if it comes under one or other of its clauses, being thus the statement of a person who is dead. It may in such a case however be matter for legitimate comment that the statement of the deceased person must be received with caution, if the party tendering it has not without proper excuse called the author or authors of the statement still living to depose to its accuracy, but the matter cannot be placed higher than that.(1)

"Dead or cannot be found"

The conditions upon which the statement may be tendered are the same as those mentioned in section 33 (see notes to section 33, post), with the excepto be inadmissible in evidence as statements of a deceased person. It was attempted to distinguish the case on the ground that the defendant had himself (after the person whose statements were filed was dead) filed certain other statements of this same man. As to this the Privy Council observed: "But those documents which were doubtless filed in case the respondent's (plaintiff's) documents should be admitted, are not evidence, and their production by the appellant (defendant) cannot be held to compel the Court to depart from the rules of evidence in the decision of the case."(2)

"Incapable of giving evidence"

See Notes to section 33, post.

---

(1) Chandra Nath v. Nilmadhab Bhattacharjee, 26 C. 238, s. c. 3 C. W. N., 88 (1898).

(2) Jagatpal Singh v. Jageshar Baksh, 25 A., 143 (1902).

"Delay or expense"

See Notes to section 33, post

FIRST CLAUSE.

Statement as to cause of death.

The first clause is widely different from the English law upon the subject of "dying declarations," according to which, (a) this description of evidence is admissible in no civil case, and in criminal cases only in the single instance of homicide, that is, murder or manslaughter, where the death of the deceased is the subject of the charge and the circumstances of the death are the subject of the dying declaration.(1) On the other hand, under this Act the statement is relevant whatever may be the nature of the proceeding, in which the cause of the death of the person who made the statement comes into question.(2) And further,(b) according to English law certain conditions are required to have existed at the time of declaration, viz., it is necessary that the declarant should have been in actual danger of death, that he should have been aware of his danger and have abandoned all hope of recovery, and that death should have ensued.(3) The existence of the last condition is of course as necessary under the Act as under the English rule, inasmuch as the statement is admissible only in cases in which the cause of the death of the person who made it comes in question But under the Indian Evidence Act the statement is relevant whether the person who made it was or was not at the time when it was made, under expectation of death (4) Therefore, whether the declarant was or was not in actual danger of death, and knew or did not know himself to be in such danger, are considerations which will no longer affect the admissibility of this kind of evidence in India But these considerations ought not to be laid aside in estimating the weight to be allowed to the evidence in particular cases (5) Of course before the statement can be admitted under this section the declarant must have died. Where a person making a dying declaration chances to live, his statement cannot be admitted in evidence as a dying declaration, though it may be relied on under s. 157 to corroborate the testimony of the complainant when examined in the case.(6)

Subject-matter of the declaration.

The statement must be as to the cause of the declarant's death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death,(7) that is,

---

(1) Taylor, Ev., §§ 714—716, thus in a trial for robbery, the dying declaration of the party robbed has been rejected, and where a prisoner was indicted for administering drugs to a woman, with intent to procure abortion, her statements in extremis were held to be inadmissible, ib., § 715, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 12th Ed., 28—29, 3 Russ Cr., 354—362

(2) S. 32, cl (1), Illustration (a) gives an example of a civil, as well as of a criminal case and as an example of the latter, a charge of rape Even under the previous law as contained in s. 371 of Act XXV of 1861, and s. 29, Act II of 1855, it was held that the rule of English law restricting the admission of this evidence to cases of homicide had no application in India; and that the dying declaration of a deceased person was admissible in evidence on a charge of rape; R. v. Bamcoonjun Mookerjee, 6 W. R., Cr., 75 (1866), Field, Ev., 171; Norton, Ev., 175

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 718; Roscoe, Cr., Ev., 12th Ed., 28—31; 3 Russ Cr., 356—362

(4) S. 32, cl. (1); R. v. Ingumber Thakur, 19 W. R., Cr. 44 (1873), R. v. Blechynden, 6 C. L. R., 278 (1880)

(5) Field Ev., 172, Norton, Ev., 175. Under the law which was in force prior to this Act (s. 371, Act XXV of 1861), s. 29, Act II of 1855, and which, with one modification relating to the entertainment by the deceased of hopes of recovery, was similar in this respect to the English law, it was held that before a dying declaration could be received in evidence, it must be distinctly found that the declarant knew, or believed at the time he made the declaration, that he was dying, or likely to die In the matter of Sheikh Tenoo, 15 W. R., Cr., 11 (1871), R. v. Bamcoonjun Mookerjee, 6 W. R., Cr., 75, 76 (1866), R. v. Nyumber Singh, 9 W. R., Cr., 2 (1868), as to the English rule, see R. v. Gloster, 16 Cox, 471 (1888), in which the result of the case-law is stated, and R. v. Mitchell, 17 Cox, 503 (1892) and text-books cited, supra

(6) R. v. Rama Satta, 4 Bom. L. R., 434 (1902)

(7) S. 32, cl (1); Steph Dig., Art 26.

the cause and circumstances of the death, and not previous or subsequent transactions,(1) such independent transactions being excluded as not falling within the principle of necessity on which such evidence is received.(2) Nor must they include matter inadmissible from the mouth of a witness—e.g., hearsay or opinion;(3) and whatever the declaration may be it must be complete in itself, for, if the dying man appears to have intended to qualify it by other statements which he is prevented by any cause from making, it will not be received.(4)

Competency and credibility

The person whose declaration is thus admitted is considered as standing in the same situation as if he were sworn as a witness. It follows, therefore, that when the declarant, if living, would have been incompetent to testify by reason of imbecility of mind, or tender age, his dying declarations are inadmissible.(5) And his credibility may be impeached or confirmed in the same manner as that of a witness (6) In a trial for dacoity the statement of a deceased person ought not to be admitted in evidence in the absence of evidence to show that his death was caused or accelerated by the wounds received at the dacoity, or that the dacoity was the transaction which resulted in his death (7) As to the weight which should be attached to this kind of testimony, and the caution with which it should be received, v. ante p. 293.

Form of statement.

The declarations may be oral or written.(8) A person was tried for the murder of one D. The deceased had been questioned by a Police-officer, a Magistrate and a Surgeon, the deceased was unable to speak, but was conscious and able to make signs. Evidence was offered and admitted to prove the questions put to D, and the signs, which she had made in answer to such questions. The evidence was held to have been rightly admitted, as the questions and the signs, taken together, might properly be regarded as "verbal statements," within the meaning of this section (9) Sometimes declarations by dying persons are made on oath, in which case, assuming them to be in the presence of the accused and otherwise formal, and that an opportunity for cross-examination has been given, they are depositions The essence of a dying declaration, so-called, is that it is not upon oath The lapse of time between the declarations and death is immaterial, and the presence of the accused at the making of the declaration is unnecessary. But it cannot be used as a deposition unless taken in the presence of the accused with all the usual formalities of a deposition, and unless admissible within the terms of the following section (v. post).(10) Though the declaration must, in general, narrate facts only, and not mere opinions (v. ante), and must be confined to

(1) R. v. Mead, 2 B. & C., 605, R. v Hind, 8 Cox, 300, R. v Murton, 3 F & F., 492, Steph. Dig, Art 26. Khana v. R, 67 P. L. R., 2 Cr L. J, 237.

(2) Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 279, so also in America, the declarations are restricted to the res gestæ ib, and cases there cited.

(3) Taylor, Ev, § 720, citing R. v Sellers, Carr C. L., 233; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 279, citing 1 Greenleaf, s. 159, note (a).

(4) Taylor, Ev, § 721.

(5) R. v. Pike, 3 C. & P, 598; R. v Drummond, 1 Lea. C. C., 338: R v Perkins, 9 C. & P., 295; Taylor, Ev, § 717; Field, Ev, 172; Norton, Ev. 175; see s. 118, post.

(6) S 158, post, Steph. Dig, Art. 135. This rule is also established in America. Thus previous consistent statements by the deceased not made under the fear of death, were admitted for this purpose (Felder v. State, 59 Am. Rep., 777, cited in Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 278), and dying declarations were allowed to be corroborated by proof of prior consistent statements, though the latter were not admissible themselves as dying declarations (State v. Blackburn), 80 N. C., 474, cited in Best, Ev, p 457; see also Roscoe, Cr Ev, 12th Ed, 33, 3 Russ Cr, 361.

(7) R. v Rudra, 25 Bom, 45 (1900).

(8) S. 32.

(9) R v Abdulla, 7 A, 385, F. B. (1885); Bata v. R, Punj Rec., 1886; p 2, cited in Henderson's Cr. Pr. Code So also in America it has been held that the declaration may be by signs, or any other method of expressing thought: Com. v. Casey, 11 Cush, 417, 421, cited in Best, Ev, p. 456.

(10) Norton, Ev, 175, 176; Roscoe, Cr Ev., 12th Ed, 32; if the evidence be inadmissible under s 33, it may yet be admissible under s. 32, cl. (1); R. v. Ruchia Mohato, 7 C., 42 (1881)

what is relevant to the issue. (1) It is not necessary that the examination of the deceased should have been conducted after the manner of interrogating a witness in the cause, though any departure from this mode may affect the weight of the declarations.(2) Therefore, in general, it is no objection to their admissibility that they were made in answer to leading questions,(3) or obtained by earnest solicitation.(4) But where a statement, ready written, was brought by the father of the deceased to a Magistrate, who accordingly went to the deceased and interrogated her as to its accuracy, paragraph by paragraph, it was rejected.(5) A declaration is not irrelevant merely because it was intended to be made as a deposition before a Magistrate, but is irregular and inadmissible as such.(6)

Record and proof of declaration.

The right to offer the declaration in evidence is not restricted to the prosecutor, but it is equally admissible in favour of the accused.(7) When a Judge is sitting with a jury, the admissibility of this evidence in any particular case is a question to be decided by the Judge [illegible] admitted, proof must be given that the [illegible] upon the person who wishes to give the [illegible] circumstances of the case permit, the statement should be taken in the presence of the accused, and should be written as a formal deposition in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code.(10) If this be done, and the injured person die or become incapable of giving evidence at the Sessions, the depositions so taken will, subject to the provisions of the following section, be admissible in evidence without further proof.(11) If the statement be not taken down in the presence of the accused, and as a formal deposition, it will none the less be relevant under this section, but, before it can be admitted in evidence it must be proved to have been made by the deceased it is not rendered admissible without such proof because it was taken down by a Magistrate The writing made by such Magistrate cannot be admitted to prove the statement of the deceased without making it evidence in the ordinary way by calling the Magistrate who took down the declaration and heard it made If the Magistrate be called to prove the dying declaration, he may either speak to the words used by the deceased, refreshing his memory with the writing made by himself at the time when the statement was made, or he may speak to the writing itself as being an accurate reproduction of what the deceased had said in his presence.(12) A dying declaration recorded in the absence of the accused and by a Magistrate other than the inquiring Magistrate is not admissible until it is proved by the recording officer (13) A dying declaration made to a Police-officer in the course of an investigation, may, if reduced to writing, be signed by the person making it, and may be used as evidence against the accused (14) if such writing be

---

(1) S. 32

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 720

(3) R. v. Smith, 10 Cox, 82, but see also R. v. Mitchell, 17 Cox, 503, cited post

(4) R. v. Fagent, 7 C. & P., 238, R. v. Reason, 1 Str., 499, R. v. Whitworth, 1 F. & F., 382.

(5) R. v. Fitzgerald Ir. Cir. Rep., 168, 169, cited in Taylor, Ev., § 720, where see observations of Crampton, J., in the same cause

(6) R. v. Woodcock, 1 East. P. C., 356, Steph. Dig., Art. 26, v. post

(7) R. v. Neale, 1 M. & Rob., 331

(8) Cr. Pr. Code, s. 288; Taylor, Ev., §§ 23x, 24, Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 35.

(9) S. 104, illust. (a), post

(10) Ch. XXI, Act V of 1894, see Field, Ev., 173

(11) Field, Ev., 173, ss. 33, 80, post.

(12) R. v. Fata Adap, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 247 (1874) R. v. Samiruddin, 8 C., 211 (1881): 10 C. L. R., 11 followed in R. v. Daulat Kunjra (1902), 6 C. W. N., 921, and see as to proof of dying declaration R. v. Mathura Thakur (1901), 6 C. W. N., 72

(13) Panchu Das v. R. (1907), 34 C., 618, 11 C. W. N., 601

(14) See Cr. Pr. Code s. 162; Field, Ev., (4th Ed.), 161, such a declaration is admissible not under s. 162 of the Cr. Pr. Code, which is a purely negative provision, but under the general Law as embodied properly proved by the Police-officer in whose presence it was signed, and the declaration, which it embodies, was made. "A declaration should be taken down in the exact words which the person who makes it uses, in order that it may be possible from those words to arrive precisely at what the person making the declaration meant. When a statement is not the ipsissima verba of the person making it, but is composed of a mixture of questions and answers, there are several objections open to its reception in evidence which, it is desirable, should not be open in cases in which the person has no opportunity of cross-examination. In the first place, the questions may be leading questions, and in the condition of a person making a dying declaration there is always very great danger of leading questions being answered without their force and effect being freely comprehended. In such circumstances the form of the declaration should be such that it would be possible to see what was the question and what was the answer, so as to discover how much was suggested by the examining Magistrate and how much was the production of the person making the statements."(1)

SECOND CLAUSE.

Statements made in the course of business.

Statements made in the course of business, whether written or verbal, of relevant facts by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured without an unreasonable amount of delay or expense, are themselves relevant. Though the statement is admissible, whether it be verbal or written,(2) the effect of the statement as to weight may be very different in the two cases. The words "and in particular" in this clause seem to point to the superior force of written over verbal statements.(3)

Illustrations (b), (c), (d), (g), (h), (j), refer to this Clause, as also illustrations (b) and (c) of section 21; the leading case in English law on the subject being that of Price v. Torrington.(4) In this case the plaintiff, who was a of the brew-house, and gave him an account of the beer they had delivered out, which he set down in a book kept for that purpose, to which the draymen set their names, and that the drayman was dead, but that this was his hand set to the book, and this was held good evidence of a delivery, otherwise of the shop-book itself singly, without more (5) Thus also where the plaintiff, a Mahommedan lady, sued for her deferred dower, an entry as to the amount of her dower entered in a register of marriages kept by the Mujtahid, since deceased, who celebrated the marriage, was held to be admissible as evidence of the sum fixed, being an entry kept in the discharge of professional duty within the meaning of this section.(6) In another case a deed of conveyance in s 32, cl (1) of the Evidence Act. The Code merely declares that that law shall not be affected by the fact that the declaration was made to a Police-officer in the course of an investigation.

---

(1) R v Mitchell, 17 Cox, C. C, 503, 507, per Cave, J., adding "It appears to me, therefore, that a statement taken down as this was, giving the substance of questions and answers, cannot be said to be a declaration in such a sense as to make it admissible in evidence, and that this document cannot be admitted upon that ground."

(2) S. 32, cl. 2, ante, ill. (j), Stapylton v. Clough, 2 E. & B., 933, Edie v. Kingsford, 14 C. B., 750, R v. Buckley, 13 Cox, 293.

(3) Norton, Ev, 177

(4) 1 Smith, L. C (9th ed.), 352 and notes, Salkeld, 285 as to English rule, see Taylor, Ev., §§697—713, Steph. Dig., Art., 27 Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 60—62, Best. Ev., § 501, Phipson Ev, 3rd Ed., 250, Wills, Ev., 125—129, Powell, Ev., 226—236

(5) See also Doe v. Turford, 3 B. & Ad., 898, in which the earlier cases are cited and discussed.

(6) Zakeri Begum v. Sakina Begum, 19 C., 689 (1892), 19 I. A., 157.

which purported to bear the mark of the defendant as vendor was tendered in evidence. The defendant, however, denied that she had ever put her mark to it. It was proved to be attested by a deed-writer who was dead, and it was manifestly all in his writing, including the words descriptive of the markswoman. The statement of the deed-writer, that the mark was that of the defendant, was held to be admissible under this clause, apparently on the ground that it had been made by him in the ordinary course of his business.(1) The section makes ment usually dated, written, or signed by him.(5) In a suit to recover loss sus-defendants.(6) It cannot, however, be said that the execution of a mortgage-deed is an act done in the ordinary course of business.(7) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 21 and the present section, cess returns cannot, under section 95 of the Road Cess Act, be used as evidence in favour of the person submitting them.(8) Entries in accounts relevant only under section 34 are not by themselves alone sufficient to charge any person with liability: corroboration is required. But where accounts are relevant under this clause they are in law sufficient evidence in themselves, and the law does not, as in the case of accounts admissible only under section 34, require corroboration. Entries in accounts may in the same suit be relevant under both the sections, and in that case the necessity for corroboration does not apply (9)

It has also been held in England that the declarations must have been made in discharge of a duty to a third person, a mere personal custom not involving responsibility being insufficient (10) No such limitation appears in the words of the section, or is to be directly gathered from a consideration of the Illustrations thereto. It may be that the framers of the Act considered the accuracy which is generally produced by commercial or professional routine to be a sufficient guarantee of the credibility of this class of evidence without having recourse to the guarantee which exists in the obligation to discharge an imposed duty

(1) Abdulla Paru v. Gannibai, 11 B., 690 (1887

(2) Illust (b), (c), as to the admissibility and effect of entries in books of account and official records, whether the maker is dead or not, v. post, ss 34, 35

(3) For some cases relating to dalilas, see Field, Ev., 178, 179

(4) As to letters of advice, see R. v Tarinicharan Dey, 3 B. L. R., App., 42 (1872). In this case the prisoner was charged with forging for the purpose of cheating, and using as genuine a forged railway receipt for the purpose of obtaining from a Railway Company certain goods which had been entrusted to the Company to be carried from Delhi to Calcutta. The Standing Counsel for the prosecution sought to prove the delivery of the goods to the Company by putting in a letter from the consignor at Delhi to his partner in Calcutta, advising the despatch of the goods submitting that the letter was a "document used in commerce, written or signed" by a person "whose attendance could not be procured, etc" The Court (Macpherson, J.) refused to receive the evidence, and intimated a doubt whether such a letter would, under any circumstances, be receivable "since it was beyond the instances specified in the section" As to estimates, see] Hari Chintaman v. Moro Lakshman, 11 B., 97 (1886).

(5) Illustration (g).

(6) Barlow v Chuni Lal, 28 C., 269 (1901)

(7) Nanyana v Dharmappa, 23 B., 63, 65, 70 (1877).

(8) Hem Chunder v. Kali Prasanna, 26 C., 834, 838 (1899)

(9) Rampyarelal v Balaji, 6 Bom. L. R., 30 (1904), s. c. 28 B., 204

(10) R. v Worth, 4 Q. B., 132, Massey v. Allen, 13 Ch. D., 558 563, "the entry must be made in the course of business, in the performance of duty," ib, per Hall, V. C; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 250, an apparent exception is presented by the case of Doe v. Turford, 3 B. & A., 890; but see as to this case, Wills, Ev., 128.

faithfully. Declarations in the course of duty differ, in English law, from those against interest, in requiring contemporaneousness, personal knowledge, and the exclusion of collateral matters, none of which restrictions are declared by the section to exist upon the admissibility of such declarations in Indian Courts.

Course of business

"The applicability of this clause entirely depends on the exact meaning of the words 'course of business.'"(1) "In using the phrase the Legislature probably intended to admit in evidence statements similar to those admitted in England as coming under the same description. The subject is dealt with in Chapter XII (2) of Mr. Pitt Taylor's treatise on the Law of Evidence, and the cases which he has collected show that this exception to the general rule against hearsay extends only to statements made during the course, not of any particular transaction of an exceptional kind such as the execution of a deed of mortgage, but of business or professional employment in which the declarant was ordinarily or habitually engaged. The phrase was apparently used to indicate the current routine of business which was usually followed by the person whose declaration it is sought to introduce."(3) "The expression 'course of business' occurs in more than one place in the Evidence Act. Thus in section 16, where there is a question whether a particular act was done, the existence of any course of business according to which it would naturally have been done is a relevant fact. Illustration (a) to that section is evidently the case of Hetherington v. Kemp.(4) The 'course of business' there put forward was a certain usage in the plaintiff's counting house It was not a usage in a private house which, however methodical, cannot carry the same weight as the ordinary routine of an office So, too, by section 114 the Court may presume the existence of any fact, which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct, and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case. What is meant by the common course of public and private business? Illustration (f) with its explanation refers to the public business of the Post Office. Private business would apparently apply to such a case as that alluded to above (Hetherington v Kemp). If the expression was meant to business, ration (c) ell-known

popular sense must mean a man habitually engaged in mercantile transactions of trade Again, in the Explanation to section 47 it is said that a person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person, when in the ordinary course of business documents purporting to be written by that person have been habitually submitted to him. Here, too, the expression must mean in the ordinary course of a professional avocation. The illustration is that of a broker, to whom letters are shown for the purpose of advice.

Again, by section 34 entries in books of accounts, regularly kept in the course of business, are relevant. In Munchershaw Bezonji v. The New Dhurumsey Spinning and Weaving Company,(5) West, J., referred to a private account tendered in evidence which had been entered up casually once a week or fortnight, with none of the claims to confidence that attach to books entered up from day to day, or (as in banks) from hour to hour as transactions take place "These only" (he said) "are, I think, regularly kept in the course of business."

Having regard, then, to the above considerations, there can, I think, be no doubt that the expression 'in the ordinary course of business' in the second clause of this section must be read in the same sense. It may in one sense be

(1) Nagappa v Bharmappa, 23 B., 63, 64 (1897), per Candy, J.

(2) Chapter VII, Part III of 10th Ed.

(3) Ib., at p. 70, per Fulton, J.

(4) 4 Camp., 193.

(5) 4 B., 576, 583 (1880) This decision was not approved of by the Privy Council in Deputy Commissioner, Bara Banki, v. Ram Persad, 27 C., 118 (1899), s. c., 4 C. W. N., 147.

true that it is, in the ordinary course of business, for a mortgage-deed to contain recitals of the boundaries of the land mortgaged. But that would not make the recitals evidence. The question is, whether the mortgage-deed itself is a statement made in the ordinary course of business. Looking at the particulars set out in the second clause of this section which, though not exhaustive, may fairly be taken as indicating the nature of the statements 'made in the course of business,' and looking at the sense in which the expression is apparently used in other sections of the Evidence Act, it cannot be said that a mortgage-deed executed by an agriculturist falls within that term It is not the 'profession, trade or business' (to borrow the words used in section 27 of the Contract Act) of an agriculturist to execute mortgage-deeds "(1)

Personal knowledge

According to the English rule it is necessary that the declarant should have had personal knowledge of the transaction recorded.(2) But this appears not to be law in India (3) Under the present section it seems to be not necessary that the person making the entry or other statement should have had a personal knowledge of the fact recorded or stated : it is sufficient to show that the statement was made in the ordinary course of business, the question as to how the person making the statement came to know about the matter, though it might affect the weight to be given to the statement not affecting its admissibility.(4) So it has been held that account books containing entries not made by, nor at the dictation of, a person who had a personal knowledge of the truth of the fact stated, if regularly kept in course of business, are admissible as evidence under section 34 and semble under the second clause of this section.(5)

Contemporaneousness

According to the English rule the statement must also have been made at the time of, or immediately after, the performance of the transaction.(6) Thus an interval of two days has sufficed to exclude a declaration.(7) But contemporaneousness is not required by the section for the admissibility of the evidence, though in determining the weight to be allowed to it in particular cases it will always be important to consider how far the statement or entry was contemporaneous with the fact which it relates (8)

Collateral matters

Further, entries made in the course of business are, under English law, evidence only of those things which, according to the course of business it was the duty of the person to enter, and are no evidence of independent collateral matters, however intimately any such collateral matters may be incorporated in the statements (9) Thus, where the question was whether A was arrested in

(1) Nongawa v. Bharmappa, 23 B, 63, 65—67 (1897), per Candy, J

(2) Brain v Preece, 11 M & W, 773, where the facts were as follows —It was the ordinary duty of one of the workmen at a coal pit, named H, to give notice to the foreman of the coal sold The foreman, who was not present when the coal was delivered, being himself unable to write, employed a man named B to make the entries in the books from his dictation, and these entries were read over every night to the foreman. H and the foreman being dead, B was called with the book to prove delivery of the coal; but the evidence was held inadmissible, on the ground that, although the entries made under the foreman's direction might be regarded as made by him, yet, as he had no personal knowledge of the facts stated in them, but derived his information second hand from the workmen, there was not the same guarantee for the truth of the entries as in Price v Torrington, where the party signing the entry had himself done the business. See Taylor, Ev §§ 700 708, Wills, Ev., 128; Phipson, Ev 3rd Ed 251, Steph Dig, Art, 27; Powell, Ev 226

(3) R v Hanmanta 1 B, 610 (1877). The observations of the Privy Council as to the necessity of personal knowledge and belief which must be found or presumed in any statement of a deceased person (Jagatpal Singh v. Jogeshar Baksh, 25 A, 143 (1902), relate to statements under cl (5), the terms of which require "special means of knowledge"

(4) R v Hanmanta, supra Field, Ev., 176; Cunningham, Ev , 150

(5) R. v Hanmanta, supra.

(6) Doe v Turford, 3 B & Ad, 890; Sturla v Freccia, 5 App Cas, 623 Smith v. Blakey, L R, 2 Q B, 326. The Henry Coxon, 3 P D, 156; Taylor, Ev , § 704

(7) The Henry Coxon, supra.

(8) Field, Ev., 177, Cunningham, Ev , 157.

(9) Chambers v. Bernasconi, 1 C M & R, 347, Taylor, Ev., § 705.

a certain parish;—a certificate annexed to the writ by a deceased sheriff's officer stating the fact, time, and place of the arrest, returned by him to the sheriff, was held inadmissible on the ground that the duty merely required the fact and time but not the place of the arrest to be returned.(1) But this restriction on inadmissibility is not imposed in terms by the section. "The statement or entry, in order to be admissible under the Act, must relate to a relevant fact;(2) and it would appear to make no difference, so far as the question of admissibility is concerned, whether this fact is connected with the performance of a duty or is merely an independent collateral matter. Whether this fact naturally finds a place in the narrative, what is the nature of its connection with the fact, the statement of which was matter of duty, and whether this connection was such as to raise a presumption of accuracy of information or observation must, however, be questions of importance in estimating the weight due to such evidence when it relates to collateral matters merely."(3)

Extrinsic proof.

The person wishing to give the evidence must give extrinsic proof of the death of the declarant, or of the existence of the other circumstances conditional to the admission of this evidence (4) Similar evidence of the ordinary course of business will also be necessary.(5) Where the statement is a written one, evidence must be given that it is in the handwriting of the person alleged to have made it; and this may be done by calling a witness who saw him write it or who is conversant with his handwriting.(6)

THIRD CLAUSE.

Statements against interest

The leading case on the subject-matter of this clause is that of Higham v Ridgway (7) There the question was whether one William Fowden, junior, was born before or after the 16th April 1768 The plaintiff, in order to prove that his birth was subsequent to that date, tendered in evidence the following entries from the Day Book and Ledger of a man-midwife, who had attended the mother of William Fowden, junior, at his birth and was since deceased —

DAY-BOOK ENTRIES.

22nd April 1768.

38* Richard Fallow's wife, Bramhall. Filius circa hor 9, matutin, cum forcipe, etc., paid.

[Then followed in the same page the entry in question without any intervening date.]

Wm. Fowden, junr 's† wife, 79* filius circa hor 3, post merid, nat, etc.

(1) Id, per Lord Denman — We are all of opinion that whatever effect may be due to an entry made in the course of any office reporting facts necessary to the performance of a duty, the statement of other circumstances, however, naturally they may be thought to find a place in the narrative, is no proof of these circumstances"

(2) And must have been made in the ordinary course of business

(3) Field, Ev, 177, 178, cases may perhaps, however, occur in which the matter in question is so collateral and the entry for this and other reasons is of such an unusual character that it can scarcely be said to have been made in the ordinary course of business"

(4) v ante, Introd to ss 32 33, s 104, post, Field, Ev, 178, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 251, and cases there cited

(5) In connection with this, see s 114, illust (f), post

(6) Field, Ev, 178, as to ancient documents, see s 90, post Doe Davies, 10 Q B, 314, Riggs-Miller v Wheatley, 28 L R, Ir, 144, and see ss 47, 67, post, as to proof of hand-writing

(7) 2 Smith's L C (9th Ed), 348, 10 East, 109 Illustration (b) in this case, with the portion of the entry which was against interest omitted It is intended to illustrate the rule as to statements made in the course of business, not that as to the present class of statements which is exemplified by Illustrations (e) & (f) See Nanguva v Bharmappa, 22 B, 69 (1897), see also Doe v Davies, referred to in the last-mentioned case, and in Hari Chintaman v. Moro Lakshman, 11 B, 97 (1886).

* The figures 38 and 79 referred to the corresponding entries in the Ledger

† This was the designation at that time of the father of the William Fowden, junr, in question.

LEDGER ENTRY.

Wm. Fowden, junr., 1768.
Aprilis 22. Filius natus, etc.
Wife	...	1	6 1
26th Haustus purg. .	...	0	15 0
Pd. 25th Oct. 1768 . .	...	2	1 1

It was held that all these entries were connected together or one whole, and that the entry as to the payment of the man-midwife's charges rendered them all admissible. It will be observed that the entry of the date (22nd April 1768) was in no way against the interest of the person who made it, but was collateral to that portion of the entry, namely—"Pd. (paid) 25th Oct., 1768," which was against interest, as showing that a certain sum of money was no longer due and owing to such person. On this point Lord Ellenborough said: "It is idle to say that the word 'paid' only shall be admitted in evidence without the context, which explains to what it refers. We must, therefore, look to the rest of the entry to see what the demand was which he thereby admitted to be discharged" (v. post) The statements, provided they be relevant, may be either written or verbal. The form in which such declarations are ordinarily offered is that of written entries, the inaccuracy with which oral statements are repeated makes them less satisfactory, but such objection lies to the credibility of the statement and not to its reception (1) Such entries are not receivable where better evidence is to be had to prove the same fact, as where the maker of the entry is himself forthcoming personally but they are not the less receivable because the same fact may be proved by evidence of another description. "For instance, in Higham v. Ridgway, the evidence of the entry of the accoucheur would not have been rejected, because the evidence of a midwife, who was present at the delivery, might have been forthcoming, though this may seem at first sight to militate against the rule that the best evidence shall alone be received. The entry of the accoucheur would not have been receivable if he himself had been forthcoming, because then his testimony on oath would have been superior to his entry, which was not on oath, but as we shall see hereafter, when we come to consider the rule, that the best evidence must always be given, the rule applies to the quality and not the quantity of evidence, and that a fact may often be proved by independent testimony, notwithstanding there may be two distinct ways of proving it."(2) The distinction should be observed between mere admissions and statements receivable under the present Clause. An admission may or may not be against the interest of the maker at the time when it is made. An admission merely as such is neither receivable in maker's favour nor in favour of his representatives in interest, nor against any person other than the maker or his representative On the other hand, an admission which amounts to a statement against interest within the meaning of this Clause may not only be received in favour of the maker thereof and his representatives, but is evidence in favour of, or against, strangers A class of statements which may be admissible under

(1) Cf. Section and Mussummat Zuynab v. Hadjee Bala, 2 Ind. Jur. N. S., 54 (1866), Best, Ev., § 502

(2) Norton, Ev., 181, "Thus, the mere fact that there has been a written receipt given for money will not preclude the proof of payment by the oral evidence of witnesses who saw the payment. Thus in the case of Middleton v. Melton (10 B. & C., 317) a private book, kept by a deceased collector of taxes, containing entries by him, acknowledging the receipt of sums in his character of collector, was also held to be admissible evidence in an action against his surety although the parties who had paid him were alive and might have been called," ib., 182

this Clause are endorsements or entries in respect of the payment of interest due on bonds and similar instruments.(1) Such endorsements or entries, if made before the claim became barred by the law of limitation, would be against the interest of the payee, inasmuch as they are admissions of payment, but if they are made after the claim became so barred they would be for and not against the creditors' interest, inasmuch as by the admissions of a small payment he would be enabled to recover the larger remaining portion of the debt, such payment having the effect of preventing the claim to the capital sum from being barred. Whether then the endorsement or entry is admissible, as an entry against interest, depends upon the question whether it was bonâ fide made before the claim became barred by limitation, and it ought not to be admitted until it be shown by evidence dehors the instrument that it was made at a time when it was against the interest of the creditor to make it.(2) (See next paragraph.)

The main difference between the rule enacted by this section and the English law(3) upon the same subject consists in the nature of the interest to which statement must be opposed. According to the latter the interest involved must be (a) pecuniary; or (b) proprietary. But declarations against interest in any other sense, as for instance an admission of liability to criminal prosecution, do not come within the rule.(4) Thus where the question was whether A was lawfully married to B, a statement by a deceased clergyman that he performed the marriage under circumstances which would have rendered him liable to a criminal prosecution was held not to be relevant as a statement against interest.(5) But in so far as the present section includes (c) an interest in escaping a criminal prosecution the statement would have been admissible under this Act.(6) Further, under the present section, the interest to which the statement may be opposed may be (d) an interest in escaping a suit for damages. The section not only extends the English rule by recognising two additional forms of interest, but also in rendering this class of statements under certain circumstances admissible, even if the persons who made them be still living. The interest.

An entry against interest means an entry primâ facie against the interest alone, primâ effect or value when received. Thus the following entry in the handwriting of a deceased person—"J. W. paid me three months' interest," which was followed by other entries pointing to a loan to J. W., was held to be admissible

(1) See s. 20 of Act IX of 1908 (Limitation), and ib., Art 75, Sched. II, and remarks in Field, Ev, 181—183, Norton, Ev, 182 183

(2) Taylor, Ev., §§ 690-696, and cases there cited: Rose v. Bryant, 2 Camp, 321, Field, Ev, 181-183, Norton, Ev, 182, 183, Briggs v Wilson, 5 D. M. & G, 12. The express provision of s 20 of the Limitation Act that the payment whether of interest or principal, must have been made before the right to sue had become barred, appears to require proof of the time of payment

(3) See Steph Dig, Art. 28, Taylor, Ev, §§ 668—696; Roscoe, N. P, Ev, 55—59. Best, Ev., § 500, Wills, Ev., 130—138, Powell, Ev, 214—225; Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 241—249, Smith, L. C., Note to Higham v. Ridgway

(4) The Sussex Peerage case, 11 C. & F, 108

(5) Ib.

(6) Illustration (f), Norton, Ev, 183, 184; Field, Ev., 184, 185, Cunningham, Ev, 158.

(7) Taylor v Witham, L R, 3 Ch D, 605, 607, per Jessel, M R, following Parke, B, in R. v. Inhabitants of Lower Heyford "of course, if you can prove aliunde that the man had a particular reason for making it and that it was for his interest, you may destroy the value of the evidence altogether, but the question of admissibility is not a question of value The entry may be utterly worthless when you get it, if you shew any reason to believe that he had a motive for making it, and that though apparently against his interest, yet really it was for it, but that is a matter for subsequent consideration when you estimate the value of the testimony." Ib, per Jessel, M R.

LEDGER ENTRY.

Wm. Fowden, junr., 1768.
Aprilis 22, Filius natus, etc.
Wife	...	1	6	1
26th Haustus purg .	...	0	15	0
Pd. 23th Oct. 1768.	...	2	1	1

It was held that all these entries were connected together or one whole, and that the entry as to the payment of the man-midwife's charges rendered them all admissible. It will be observed that the entry of the date (22nd April 1768) was in no way against the interest of the person who made it, but was collateral to that portion of the entry, namely—"Pd. (paid) 25th Oct., 1768," which was against interest, as showing that a certain sum of money was no longer due and owing to such person. On this point Lord Ellenborough said: "It is idle to say that the word 'paid' only shall be admitted in evidence without the context, which explains to what it refers. we must, therefore, look to the rest of the entry to see what the demand was which he thereby admitted to be discharged" (v. post). The statements, provided they be relevant, may be either written or verbal. The form in which such declarations are ordinarily offered is that of written entries, the inaccuracy with which oral statements are repeated makes them less satisfactory, but such objection lies to the credibility of the statement and not to its reception (1). Such entries are not receivable where better evidence is to be had to prove the same fact, as where the maker of the entry is himself forthcoming personally, but they are not the less receivable because the same fact may be proved by evidence of another description. "For instance, in Higham v. Ridgway, the evidence of the entry of the accoucheur would not have been rejected, because the evidence of a midwife, who was present at the delivery, might have been forthcoming; though this may seem at first sight to militate against the rule that the best evidence shall alone be received. The entry of the accoucheur would not have been receivable if he himself had been forthcoming, because then his testimony on oath would have been superior to his entry, which was not on oath, but as we shall see her after, when we come to consider the rule, that the best evidence must always be given, the rule applies to the quality and not the quantity of evidence, and that a fact may often be proved by independent testimony, notwithstanding there may be two distinct ways of proving it."(2) The distinction should be observed between mere admissions and statements receivable under the present Clause. An admission may or may not be against the interest of the maker at the time when it is made. An admission merely as such is neither receivable in maker's favour nor in favour of his representatives in interest, nor against any person other than the maker or his representative. On the other hand, an admission which amounts to a statement against interest within the meaning of this Clause may not only be received in favour of the maker thereof and his representatives, but is evidence in favour of, or against, strangers. A class of statements which may be admissible under

(1) Cf. Section and Mussammat Zaynab v. Hadjee Bibi, 2 Ind. Jur. N. S., 54 (1866); Best, Ev., § 502.

(2) Norton, Ev., 181, "Thus, the mere fact that there has been a written receipt given for money will not preclude the proof of payment by the oral evidence of witnesses who saw the payment. Thus in the case of Middleton v. Melton (10 B. & C., 317) a private book, kept by a deceased collector of taxes, containing entries by him, acknowledging the receipt of sums in his character of collector, was also held to be admissible evidence in an action against his surety although the parties who had paid him were alive and might have been called," ib., 182.

this Clause are endorsements or entries in respect of the payment of interest due on bonds and similar instruments.(1) Such endorsements or entries, if made before the claim became barred by the law of limitation, would be against the interest of the payee, inasmuch as they are admissions of payment, but if they are made after the claim became so barred they would be for and not against the creditors' interest, inasmuch as by the admissions of a small payment he would be enabled to recover the larger remaining portion of the debt, such payment having the effect of preventing the claim to the capital sum from being barred. Whether then the endorsement or entry is admissible, as an entry against interest, depends upon the question whether it was bonâ fide made before the claim became barred by limitation, and it ought not to be admitted until it be shown by evidence dehors the instrument that it was made at a time when it was against the interest of the creditor to make it.(2) (See next paragraph.)

The main difference between the rule enacted by this section and the English law(3) upon the same subject consists in the nature of the interest to which statement must be opposed. According to the latter the interest involved must be (a) pecuniary; or (b) proprietary. But declarations against interest in any other sense, as for instance an admission of liability to criminal prosecution, do not come within the rule (4) Thus where the question was whether A was lawfully married to B, a statement by a deceased clergyman that he performed the marriage under circumstances which would have rendered him liable to a criminal prosecution was held not to be relevant as a statement against interest.(5) But in so far as the present section includes (c) an interest in escaping a criminal prosecution the statement would have been admissible under this Act.(6) Further, under the present section, the interest to which the statement may be opposed may be (d) an interest in escaping a suit for damages. The section not only extends the English rule by recognising two additional forms of interest, but also in rendering this class of statements under certain circumstances admissible, even if the persons who made them be still living. The interest.

An entry against interest means an entry primâ facie against the interest of the maker that is to say, the natural meaning of the entry, standing alone, must be against the interest of the man who made it.(7) If the entry is primâ facie against interest, it is admissible for all purposes irrespective of its effect or value when received Thus the following entry in the handwriting of a deceased person.—"J. W. paid me three months' interest," which was followed by other entries pointing to a loan to J. W., was held to be admissible

(1) See s 20 of Act IX of 1908 (Limitation), and ib, Art 75, Sched II, and remarks in Field, Ev., 181—183; Norton, Ev, 182 183

(2) Taylor, Ev., §§ 690-696, and cases there cited Rose v Bryant, 2 Camp, 321, Field, Ev, 181-183, Norton, Ev., 182, 183, Briggs v. Wilson, 5 D M. & G, 12. The express provision of s 20 of the Limitation Act that the payment whether of interest or principal, must have been made before the right to sue had become barred, appears to require proof of the time of payment

(3) See Steph. Dig, Art. 28, Taylor, Ev, §§ 668—696, Roscoe, N P, Ev, 55—59, Best, Ev., § 500, Wills, Ev, 130—138, Powell, Ev, 214—225, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 241—249; Smith, L. C., Note to Higham v Ridgway

(4) The Sussex Peerage case, 11 C. & F., 108

(5) Ib.

(6) Illustration (t), Norton, Ev, 183, 184; Field, Ev, 184, 185, Cunningham, Ev, 158

(7) Taylor v Witham, L R, 3 Ch. D, 605, 607, per Jessel, M R, following Parke, B, in R. v Inhabitants of Lower Heyford "of course, if you can prove aliunde that the man had a particular reason for making it and that it was for his interest, you may destroy the value of the evidence altogether, but the question of admissibility is not a question of value. The entry may be utterly worthless when you get it, if you shew any reason to believe that he had a motive for making it, and that though apparently against his interest, yet really it was for it; but that is a matter for subsequent consideration when you estimate the value of the testimony." Ib, per Jessel, M R.

as evidence whether or not the effect of it, when admitted, would be to establish the existence of a debt due to the testator.(1) Where the fact that the declaration is against the declarant's interest does not clearly appear from the statement itself, it is permissible to give independent evidence to supply this want.(2) Though the statement must have been primâ facie against an interest specified by the section, yet the amount of the interest is immaterial so far as the admissibility of the declaration is concerned.(3)

The declaration must have been against interest at the time they were made; it is not sufficient that they might possibly turn out to be so afterwards.(4) Statements and entries against interest may be received as evidence of independent and collateral matters, which, though forming part of the declaration were not in themselves against the interest of the declarant. A statement, though indifferent in itself, becomes against the proprietary interest of the declarant when made as a material part of a deed, the object of which is to limit his proprietary interest It cannot be said not to affect his interest, because assuming it to be material, the deed, if it were struck out, would be less effective than it otherwise would be. If, on the other hand, the statements were unconnected with the purpose of the deed and were not in themselves adverse to the declarant's interest, they would doubtless have to be rejected (5) In an early case where the declarations were partially against interest the rule was applied as follows: "We cannot concur in the opinion of the learned Judge that this statement was not admissible in evidence. It is a statement by which the interest in the mehal of the person making it is reduced or affected, it is against his interest and against his proprietary right. The effect of it is to cut down the proprietary right, to subject it to the tenure or incumbrance which is mentioned It is true that in one part of it there is what may be said to be not against his interest, but in his favour, namely, the amount of the original rent and increased rent payable to him. But when a document of this kind is tendered in evidence, it is not to be divided into parts, and the part which is in favour of the person making it rejected, and that which is against his interest accepted. The question is whether, taking the document as a whole, it is against the interest or the proprietary right of the person making it. In estimating the value of any particular part of it, that may be looked at, but the principle upon which the admissibility of tion of certain land. The defendants denied the plaintiff's title. The latter tendered in evidence a registered mortgage-deed of adjacent land executed in 1877, which set forth the boundaries of the land comprised in the mortgage, and as one of such boundaries referred to the land in question as then belonging to the plaintiff. At the date of the deed there was no litigation existing between the present litigants, and at the date of the present suit the mortgagor was dead. It was held that the statement in the deed was admissible under this clause of this section. The Court, referring to the case cited in the preceding note at the foot of this page and pointing out that the law under and previous to this Act was the same, observed as follows. "If, then, a statement of a zemindar that

(1) Ib

(2) Wills, Ev., 134; see Mussumat Zaynab v. Hadye Ismi, 2 Ind. Jur. N. S., 54 (1866).

(3) Thomson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 241; Field, Ev., 181; but upon the amount of interest involved the degree of attention likely to secure accuracy must materially depend, Ib.

(4) Ex parte Edwards, Re Tidlemache, 14 Q. B. D., 415, 416; Massey v. Allen, 13 Ch. D., 558; Smith v. Blakey, L. R., 2 Q. B., 326 [the interest must not be too remote] Wigmore, Ev., § 1466.

(5) Nanoma v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 63, 71, 72 (1897), following case next cited

(6) Rajah Leelanund v. Mussumut Lalkpallee, 22 W. R., 231, 233 (1874), per Couch, C. J., cited and followed in Nanoma v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 63, 67, 91 (1897).

(7) Nanoma v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 63 (1897).

there was a certain ghatwali occupant in portion of his mehal was held to be a statement against the interest of the zemindar, in the same way the statement of a registered occupant of a survey-number in the Bombay Presidency that he is indebted in a certain sum of money, which is a charge on his land, must be held to be both against his pecuniary and proprietary interest. If so, then the same case quoted above is also an authority for holding that the whole statement is admissible in evidence not only to prove so much contained in it as was adverse to the interest of the person making it, [illegible] in the statement which fact was not for [illegible] and formed a substantial part of it "(1) items of which charge the declarant, though other connected items discharge him, or even show a balance in his favour, for it is not to be presumed that a man will discharge himself falsely for the mere purpose of getting a discharge, and in the latter case, the debit items would still be against interest, since they diminish the balance in his favour (2)

But it is immaterial that the declaration may prove in the circumstances which have happened at the time when it is sought to be put in evidence, to be for the interest of the declarant, or even that it can be shown by independent evidence to have been in truth for his interest at the time when it was made, provided that, standing by itself, it was, at the time when it was made, against his interest (3)

(i) Pecuniary.

A declaration is against the pecuniary interest of the declarant who makes it whenever it has the effect of charging him with a pecuniary liability to another, or of discharging some other person, upon whom he would otherwise have a [illegible] either of [illegible] part.(5) For it is not necessary [illegible] the charge of which the entry shows the subsequent(6) liquidation. Notwithstanding the provisions of the twenty-first section and the present section cess-returns cannot, under section 95 of the Road Cess Act, be used as evidence in favour of the person submitting them.(7)

(ii) Proprietary.

Declarations made by persons in disparagement of their title to land are admissible, if made while the declarant was in actual possession(8) of the pro-

---

(1) Ib

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 674

(3) Taylor v. Witham, L R., 3 Ch. D, 605, Wills, Ev, 130, 131; v ante.

(4) Doe v Robson, 15 East, 32, 35, per Bayley, J.: Wills, Ev, 130 Higham v Ridgway affords an example of a statement which discharges another, and Williams v. Graves (see next note) and illust. (e) of a statement charging the maker.

(5) Steph Dig, Art 28; thus where the question was whether A received rent for certain land, a deceased steward's account, charging himself with the receipt of such rent for A, was held to be relevant, although the balance of the whole account was in favour of the steward. ib, ill. (d); Williams v. Graves, 8 C. & P, 592, see Rajah Ledanund v. Mussumut Lakhputee, 22, W. R., 231 (1874).

(6) Taylor, Ev., § 675, Steph. Dig, Art. 28, R v. Heyford, cited in Note to Higham v. Ridgway in 2 Smith, L. C.; after Doe v. Voules, 1 M. & R, 261; in Taylor v. Witham, L. R, 3 Ch. D, 605, Jessel, M R., followed R. v. Heyford, and dissented from Doe v. Voules There is nothing in the Act to prevent the admission of the statement in the case above mentioned: any objection that may be made will go to the weight, and not to the admissibility of such evidence; Field. Ev, 181.

(7) Hem Chandra v. Kali Prassanna, 26 C, 832, 838 (1899), s. c, 8 C. W. N., 1, 7.

(8) There ought to be some evidence that the declarant was actually in possession, since otherwise his declaration that he has an interest, though limited, may appear to be a statement rather in his favour than otherwise.

perty(1) as statements against their proprietary interest. And as, in the absence of other proof, mere possession implies an absolute interest,(2) any declaration by an occupier tending to cut [illegible] olute interest will be receivable under [illegible] that he has no interest in the land [illegible] had executed, in favour of one B D, a varaspatra or deed of heirship, this deed was, in subsequent suit between the heir of B D, and a mortgagee of certain property covered by it, admitted in evidence as being against the widow's proprietary interest, as by it she divested herself of her widow's estate in the property.(5) Thus also a statement by a deceased occupier of land that he held a life-estate in it under a particular will, of which C and B were executors, was held admissible to prove the existence and executors of the will, being against proprietary interest on account of its two-fold limitation of the declarant's estate to a life-interest, and under a particular document (6) A statement by a landlord who is dead that there was a tenant on the land is a statement against his proprietary interest (7)

A distinction, however, exists between statements which limit the declarant's own title, and those which go to abridge or encumber the estate itself. According to English law the former are admissible even between strangers, whereas the latter are only so as against the declarant and his privies. Thus, admissions by the holder of a subordinate title are not receivable to affect the estate of his superior which he has no right to alienate or encumber—e.g., those of an occupier, his landlord's title; or those of a tenant for life, the title of the remainderman or reversioner. The ground for this distinction is said to be that, though it is unlikely (to take a specific instance) that a person possessed of an absolute interest in property will admit that he is only a tenant, many causes might induce a tenant to acknowledge the existence of an easement, or a highway, or the like, which might be either not inconvenient or even absolutely beneficent to him (8)

(iii) Interest in escaping a criminal prosecution or a suit for damages

It has been already noticed that the section at this point extends the English rule.(9) The words "would have exposed him" mean "would have exposed

(1) The English rule adds "and as to matters within his personal knowledge or belief;" Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 241-242, Taylor, Ev., § 685; Tremblestown v. Kemmis, 9 C. & F., 780, aliter under this section, v. post, p. 112, note 10

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 685

(3) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 241-242; Wills, Ev., 136; Field, Ev., 183, 184; Taylor, Ev., §§ 684-686, Norton, Ev., 179, 180

(4) Grey v. Redman, 1 Q. B. D., 161.

(5) Hari Chintaman v. Muro Lakshman, 11 B., 89 (1886).

(6) Sly v. Sly, 2 P. D., 91; so again where the question was whether A (deceased) gained a settlement in the parish of B by renting a tenement, a statement made by A whilst in possession of a house, that he had paid rent for it, was held relevant, because it reduced the interest which would otherwise be inferred from the fact of A's possession: R. v. Exeter, L. R., 4 Q. B., 341; Steph. Dig., Art. 28, ill. (l).

(7) Abdul Aziz v. Ebrahim, 31 C., 965 (1904) foll. Burka Mandara v. Megh Nath, 2 Cal. L. J., 48 (1905).

(8) R v. Bliss, 7 A. & E., 550; Scholes v. Chadwick, 2 M. & Rob., 507; Howes v. Malkin, 40 L. T., 196, 27 W. R. (Eng.), 340, Papendick v. Bridgewater, 5 E. & B., 166. [In this case the question was whether there was a right of common over a certain field. A statement by A, a deceased tenant for a term of the land in question that he had so much right, was held to be relevant as against his successors in the term but not as against the owner of the field.] Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 242, 203; Steph. Dig., Art. 28, Powell, Ev., 224; Taylor, Ev., § 687 It is difficult to see any objection in principle to treating declarations by an occupier of land which admit the existence of an easement over it as being within the rule, since the admission of its existence might well be considered a statement against interest. See remarks in Wills' Ev., 136, 137. Probably here as elsewhere under the Act any objection that may be made will go, not to the admissibility, but to the weight of the evidence. See Field, Ev., 184.

(9) v. ante, Introd. to ss. 32, 33 and p. 311.

him at the time that the statement was made." It was hardly intended that a statement made after the risk had passed away, as for example after a suit for ant to a prosecution, or suit for damages.(1) This construction is supported by the rule laid down with regard to statements against pecuniary and proprietary interest.(2) On the other hand, it may be said that if the fact that the risk had passed away was not known to the declarant, the statement might in the belief of the latter, though not in fact, be against his interest, and thus have the guarantee which is proper to this class of evidence.

Collateral facts

The statement against interest is not only evidence of the precise fact which is against interest, but of all connected facts (though not against interest) which are necessary to explain, or are expressly referred to by, the declaration and whether contained in the same or other documents(3) (v. ante, "Interest") Thus in an action by the executor of one T, by which it was sought to establish against the defendant a debt of £2,000 as due to the testator's estate for money lent, and where the defence was that the defendant had received it as a gift, the plaintiff tendered in evidence a private account-book of the deceased containing (a) entries of several sums of £20 each, purporting to have been received from the defendant as quarterly payments of interest, and (b) an entry stating that the defendant had on a particular date acknowledged that he had borrowed of the testator the sum of £2,000. The defendant objected to the admissibility of the book on the ground that the tendency of the entries was to establish the claim for £2,000 in favour of the estate. But it was held that since the entries of the receipt of interest, taken by themselves,(4) were at the time when they were made against the interest of the testator, all the entries were admissible, notwithstanding that the entry by which the testator recorded the defendant's acknowledgment of the loan was in his favour.(5) As in the case of a declaration against pecuniary interest, so in the case of a declaration against proprietary interest so soon as the adverse interest is proved the whole statement becomes admissible.(6) So statements by tenants have been admitted to prove not merely the fact that they were tenants, but also both the amount,(7) and the payment(8) of the rent, and the nature of the tenure.(9) But disconnected facts, though contained in the same document or statement, are inadmissible. Statements not referred to in, or necessary to explain, declarations against interest are not relevant merely because they were made at the same time or recorded in the same place.(10) Upon the question, in the case of written entries, as to what is to be deemed the whole statement within the meaning of the rule, it would seem that the same tests,

---

(1) The construction given in the text and adopted in the first edition from Whitley Stokes, ii, 874; Field, Ev., 185, was subsequently approved by the Calcutta High Court in the case of Nichdas v. Asphar, the final judgment in which is reported in 24 C., 216 (1896). The decision of the Court, however, upon this point having been given during the course of the examination of the witnesses has not been reported.

(2) See Ex parte Edwards and Massey v. Allen (v. ante, pp 312—313, note 4).

(3) Nagawa v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 63 (1897); Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 242; Steph. Dig., Art. 28, Powell, Ev., 215, 217; Wills, Ev., 131; Taylor, Ev., §§ 677-680; Higham v. Ridgway, 2 Sm. L. C. (v. ante, p. 206); Taylor v. Witham, 3 Ch. D., 311.

(4) v. ante, p. 311.

(5) Taylor v. Witham, L. R., 3 Ch. D., 605, supra; and see ante, Higham v. Ridgway, and the remarks on debtor and creditor accounts at p. 312; Rajah Leelanund v. Mussamut Lakhputtee, 22 W. R., 231 (1874).

(6) Peacable v. Watson, 4 Taunt., 16.

(7) R. v. Birmingham, 31 L. J., M. C., 63.

(8) R. v. Exeter, L. R., 4 Q. B., 341.

(9) Doe v. Jones, 1 Camp., 367.

(10) Steph, Dig., Art. 28; Doe v. Bevis, 7 C. B., 456, Knight v. Waterford, 4 Y. & Coll., 293, Whaley v. Carlisle, 15 W. R. (Eng.), 1183; Nagawa v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 63 (1897), v. ante.

[illegible] sions, must be applicable here, namely, that the [illegible] be given in evidence as a part of the main statement [illegible] been incorporated in it by reference, and, if contemporary, have been virtually parcel of it (1)

Personal knowledge: contemporaneousness.

The statements are admissible, although the declarant had no personal knowledge of the fact stated, but received them merely on hearsay.(2) Nor is it necessary that such statements should be contemporaneous with the fact recorded, it is sufficient that they are made at any subsequent time.(3) These circumstances affect the weight, not the admissibility, of the declaration.

Extrinsic proof must be given of the declarant's death or of the existence of the other circumstances under which alone this evidence is receivable; and that the statement was either made, written, or signed by him, or if made or written by another on his behalf, that it was authorized or adopted by the declarant.(4) Further, if the declarant purports to charge himself as the agent, or receiver of another, it is generally necessary, in addition, to give some proof that he really occupied the alleged position (5)

FOURTH CLAUSE

Statements giving opinion as to public right or custom or matter of public or general interest

Illustration (i) exemplifies this clause, the points to be regarded in which are, that (a) opinion may be given in evidence as to the existence of (b) any public custom or right, (c) or of any matter of public or general interest, (d) provided there was a probability of knowledge on the part of the declarant, and (e) provided the declaration was made ante litem motem. The grounds upon which the evidence in this and the seventh clause mentioned is admitted, are considered [illegible] memory (6) The best way to prove ancient rights is to prove particular acts and usage, as far back as living memory goes, and then adduce evidence of reputation in regard to the preceding time. In a suit in which the question was whether there existed a custom of the Kadwa Kanbi caste to which the parties belonged, prohibiting a widow from adopting a son, the lower Court, apparently considering that it would be unreasonable to oblige the plaintiff to incur the expense of procuring the attendance of the witnesses, admitted in evidence under this clause, a statement signed by several witnesses to the effect that a [illegible], without [illegible] use of the required [illegible] ment was.

---

(1) Wills, Ev., 132.

(2) Crease v. Barrett, 1 C. M. & R., 919, Percival v. Nanson, 7 Ex., 1; Taylor, Ev., § 669, but see Wills, Ev., 133, 134, these were cases of declarations against pecuniary interest: in England declaration against proprietary interest are not admissible, unless the declarant adds his own belief in the hearsay: Tramlestown v. Kemmis, 9 C. & F., 780, the Act, however, makes no such distinction. As to the decision in Jagatpal Singh v. Jageshar Baksh, 25 A., 147 (1902), which refers to cl. (5), see notes to cl. (2), p. 308, ante.

(3) Doe v. Turford, 3 B. & Ad., 890, 897, 898.

(4) Doe v. Hawkins, 2 Q. B., 212, Barry v. Belkington, 4 T. R., 514, Lancum v. Lovell, 6 C. & P., 437, Exeter v. Warren, 15 Q. B., 773, Bradley v. James, 13 C. B., 822, quære, whether the Acts adopt a different rule by the use of the word "made" in the opening clause of the section Field, Ev., 180, 181, as to proof of handwriting, see ss. 47, 67; and as to documents 30 years old, see s. 90, post.

(5) Taylor, Ev., §§ 682, 683; as to independent evidence of the existence of the charge subsequently liquidated, v. ante, pp. 312, 313

(6) Crease v. Barrett, 1 C. M. & R., 919, 930; and cases cited in Taylor, Ev., § 619.

(7) Patil Vandraban v. Patil Mandal, 15 B., 565 (1890).

The stater
the opinion of reputation whi
The declarant' belief alone, but also the concurring opinions of others similarly interested to himself, and those opinions in their turn may be based in part on earlier traditions extending back through any number of generations. This is what is understood in this connection by the term 'reputation.' But if the declarant's circumstances were such that he was apparently competent to testify as to what the common report upon the subject was, it will be presumed, till the contrary is shown, that his utterance was an expression of opinion common both to himself and others. Reputation as to the existence of particular facts is inadmissible. The declaration must relate to the general right, and not to particular facts which support or negative it, for the latter not being equally notorious are liable to be misrepresented or misunderstood, and may have been connected with other facts which, if known, would qualify or explain them (1) Thus, if the question be whether a road is public or private, declarations by old persons since dead that they have seen repairs done upon it, are inadmissible.(2) On the other indirectly do so, as by setting up an inconsistent private claim, or by omitting all mention of it, where mention might reasonably have been expected.(5)

Matters of public and general interest.

The terms "public" and "general" are sometimes used as synonymous.(6) But a distinction is drawn in English law between the two terms when dealing with the question of the competent knowledge of the declarant. According to it public rights are those common to all members of the State, e.g., rights of highway and ferry, while general rights are those affecting any considerable section of the community, e.g., questions as to the boundaries of a parish or manor. The distinction is of importance in English law, because when the point in issue is of a public character, evidence of any person is receivable as to it, even though he has no specific means of knowledge, all being concerned are presumed competent, the absence of peculiar means of knowledge going to weight and not admissibility; in the case of general rights on the other hand, the declarants must have possessed competent knowledge which may either be shown by proof of residence in, or other connection with, the locality, or presumed from the circumstances under which the declaration was made (7) But as this clause requires a probability of knowledge in all cases, this distinction ceases to be of importance in India. In both classes of rights, public and general, the right must have been one of the existence of which, if it existed, the declarant would have been likely to be aware.(8) Instances of matters which have been held

(1) Wills, Ev, 167, 170, and cases there cited, Taylor, Ev, § 617; Steph Dig, Art. 30 [Declarations as to particular facts from which the existence of any such public or general right or custom or matter of public or general interest may be inferred are deemed to be irrelevant]

(2) R. v. Bliss, 7 A. & E., 550

(3) Crease v. Barrett, 1 C M. & R, 925.

(4) Drinkwater v Porter, 7 C. & P., 181.

(5) Drinkwater v. Porter, supra, followed in Sivasubramanya v. Secretary of State, 9 M., 285, 294 (1884). [No distinction can be drawn between evidence of reputation to establish, and to disparage a public right] Taylor, Ev., § 620; Field, Ev, 186, 187.

(6) As to the meaning of the term "interest" v. ante, introd. to ss. 32-33, R. v. Bedfordshire, 4 E & B, 535.

(7) Taylor, Ev., §§ 609—612; Steph, Dig, Art 30; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 257, v. ante, p. 166; as to the meaning of "general custom or right, see s 48, post; as to whether the rights mentioned in this clause are incorporeal only, see Gujja Lall v. Fateh Lall, 6 C., 180, 186, 187 (1880), and cf. Sivasubramanya v. The Secretary of State, 9 M, 285 (1884).

(8) S. 32, cl. (4).

to be of public and general interest are, questions as to the boundaries of a county, town, parish, manor or hamlet, the existence of a highway or of a right to tolls on a public road, the liability of certain landowners to repair a bridge or sea-wall, manorial customs, and the like. On the other hand, questions as to the boundaries of two private estates, the existence of a private right of way over a field, a custom of electing the master of a grammar school, and the like, have been held to be matters of a private nature.(1)

"The Indian decided cases furnish few examples.(2) Illustration (i) is taken from those parts of the country in which the village-system still exists: it has long died out, if it ever perfectly existed, in Lower Bengal. Public rights or customs are little understood; and the order of the Government or of the Executive head of a district is often accepted as conclusive concerning them. In large zamindaries questions, however, occasionally arise somewhat analogous to those which occur in manors in England, such for example as to the zamindar's right to take dues on the sale of trees, or to receive one-fourth of the sale-proceeds in cases of involuntary sale, as in execution, or in case of a house sold privately "(3)

Declarations by deceased persons as to private rights are inadmissible, since these are not likely to be so commonly or correctly known, and are more liable to be misrepresented (4) In the undermentioned case it was held that neither cl. 4 nor cl 5 of this section justifies the admission of hearsay evidence upon the question whether a particular person survived another or upon the question whether a man was, at the time of his death, joint with or separate from other members of his family, nor can the grounds of the opinion of a deceased person as to the existence of a custom, even if stated to a witness, be as such proved under this section.(5) The grounds upon which evidence of reputation upon general points is receivable do not apply to private titles, either with regard to particular customs or private prescriptions, as it is not generally possible for strangers to know anything of what concerns only private titles.(6) Reputation may, however, be given in evidence under this Act in proof of private rights, if it consists of the written statements mentioned in the seventh clause post.(7)

Form of the declaration.

Declarations as to the public and general rights may be made in any form or manner.(8) The statements under this clause may have been written or verbal But reputation as to matters of general interest is not confined to the declarations here mentioned. It may be evidence by recitals in deeds, wills or other documents under the provisions of the seventh clause. The following are instances of the manner in which declarations as to matters of public and general interest may be made: they may be made by or in statements, verbal or written, giving opinions,(9) maps prepared by, or by the direction of, persons interested in the matter,(10) deeds and leases between private persons;(11) orders, judgments, and decrees of Courts, if final.(12)

Lis mota and interest

In order to prevent bias, the declarations, to be admissible, must have been made ante litem motam, or before the commencement of any controversy, legal or otherwise, touching the matter to which they relate. By lis mota is meant the commencement of the controversy and not the commencement of the suit.(1) This qualification is not confined to matters of public [illegible] the admissibility of hearsay evidence must be, nor merely facts which may [illegible] suit, or controversy preparatory to a suit, actually commenced, or disputes arisen, and that upon the very same pedigree or subject-matter which constitute the question in litigation."(3) Therefore, declarations will not be rejected in consequence of their having been made with the express view of preventing disputes;(4) they are admissible if no dispute has arisen, though made in direct support of the title of the declarant;(5) and the mere fact of the declarant having stood, or having believed that he stood, in pari jure with the party relying on the declaration, will not render his statement inadmissible.(6) The declarations will also be received, although made after a claim had been asserted but finally abandoned,(7) or after the existence of non-contentious legal proceedings involving the same right(8) or after the existence of contentious legal proceedings involving [illegible] the controversy must have declarations made after the [illegible] hough the existence of the controversy was not known to the declarant, for to enquire into this would be to enter into a collateral issue.(11) The admissibility of declarations terminates with the commencement of the controversy, and the termination of this admissibility is not affected by its being shown that proceedings were fraudulently commenced with the view to exclude the possibility of any such declarations:(12) and the evidence will be excluded, even though the former controversy were between different parties, or had reference to a different property or claim, it matters to which the statement relates were clearly under discussion in the former dispute.(13)

FIFTH & SIXTH CLAUSES.

For the purpose of Indian Courts the extent to which hearsay evidence with regard to relationship is admissible may be summarized shortly under three heads—(a) statements made orally or in writing by persons deceased, etc., having special knowledge, ante litem motam (section 32, fifth clause); (b) statements in writing as to relationship between persons deceased in wills or deeds relating to the affairs of the family to which they belonged, etc., made ante litem motam (section 32, sixth clause); (c) opinion shown by conduct as to the existence of a relationship by a person who had special means of knowledge (section 50).(14)

---

(1) Berkley Peerage case, 4 Camp., 417; Monckton v. Atty.-Genl., 2 Russ. & Myl., 161; Taylor, Ev., § 629.

(2) See cls. (5) and (6), its operation may therefore be illustrated by indiscriminate reference to both these classes of cases; Taylor, Ev., § 628.

(3) Davies v. Lowndes, 7 Scott N. R., 214, per Lord Denman; Taylor, Ev., § 630, and cases there cited.

(4) Berkeley Peerage case, supra.

(5) Doe v. Davies, 10 Q. B., 314, 325 [although a feeling of interest will often cast suspicion of declarations it will not render them inadmissible, Per cur.]

(6) Taylor, Ev., §§ 630, 631.

(7) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 258, citing Hubb, Ev. of Suc., 668

(8) Ib., Briscoe v. Lomax, 8 A. & E., 198; Gee v. Ward, 7 E. & B., 509

(9) Ib; Freeman v. Phillips, 4 M. & S., 486

(10) Taylor, Ev., § 632; Wills, Ev., 172; see as to this, Field, Ev., 187.

(11) Shedden v. Atty.-Genl., 30 L. J., P. & M., 217; Berkeley Peerage case, supra.

(12) Shedden v. Atty.-Genl., supra.

(13) Taylor, Ev., § 633.

(14) Bejai Bahadur v. Bhupindar, 17 A., 465, 459 (1895); see s. 50, post.

Clauses fifth and sixth, which are exemplified by illustrations (l and (m), together with section 50, post, deal with the relevancy of ce facts which are treated by English text-writers under the single hea "matters of pedigree." There are, however, important differences bet the English and Indian law on the subject of the statements which are with by the above-mentioned clauses of this section. There is furtl distinction to be noted between the kinds of evidence to which each cl refers The statement declared relevant by the fifth clause is a state relating to the existence of any relationship between persons living or as to whose relationship the person making the statement had special m of knowledge, such as the statement of deceased relatives, servants, and de dents of the family (1) The statement mentioned in the sixth clause statement relating to the existence of relationship between deceased per only. This last clause does not embrace the case of a statement of relat ship between a deceased person and a living person (2) It does not deal the question by whom the statement is to be made nor does it require it should have been made by a person who had special means of knowle possibly on the ground that it is improbable that any person would insert solemn deed, will, etc, any matter the truth of which he did not know or not satisfactorily ascertained (3) but states that it must be containe the documents of other material things therein mentioned.

Besides the documents and other material things mentioned in the s clause family bibles, coffin plates, mural tablets, hatchments, rings, armo bearings and the like amongst Christians, and horoscopes among Hindus, examples of made (4) H mentioned c the cases noted below. Inscriptions on tombstones, mural inscriptions the like may be proved by any secondary evidence.(8) The statement genealogical table filed by a member of a family who is dead, regarding

---

(1) Garurudhwaja Prasad v Saparandhwaja Pershad, 27 I A, 238, 251 (1900), s c, 23A, 37, 51; Oriental Life Assurance Co. v. Narasimha Chari 25 Mad, 183, 207, 209, in which the statements of the deceased himself, his sister and others were tendered or admitted; as to the report of a punchayet as evidence of pedigree, see Ajabsing v. Nanabhai, 26 I. A, 48 (1898); 25 B., 1, 3 C W. N., 130.

(2) Ramnarain Kallia v. Monee Bibee, 9 C, 613, 614, (1883).

(3) Field, Ev., 189, 190

(4) See generally Taylor, Ev., § 650—657

(5) Ramnarain Kallia v. Monee Bibee, 9 C, 613 (1883) The chief ground on which the evidence was rejected in this case was that it was not shown that the attendance of the writer was not procurable; Satis Chunder v. Mohendro Lal, 17 C., 849 (1893); [quære as to this case, assuming the horoscope to have been tendered, as stated, under cl (6), that clause does not require that the maker of the statement should have had any special means of knowledge, and if tendered under cl. (5); Ramnarain Kallia v. Monee Bibee which this case purported to follow, does not seem in point. Further, upon the question whether the evidence is limited to cases where the question in issue is one of relationship v. and whether the words "relates to the exist of relationship" cover statement as to the c mencement of relationship in point of time post] A distinction is to be observed bet horoscopes tendered under s. 32, cl (6), unders cl (5), as the statements of persons having cial means of knowledge, and as being an ad sion under ss. 17, 18. See as to their use as missions, Raja Goundan v. Raja Goundan, 17 134 (1893). See Rattanbhai v. Chabildas, 13 7 (1888).

(6) Ail Monee v. Mussumut Zuheerunnissa W. R, 371 (1867); [where the incidental men of a child's age in the recital of a will was h to be no proof of the exact age of such child; Report does not show whether the child dead at the time the evidence was offered dead, the case is no longer law Field, 1 193] Chamanlu v. Mullanchand, 20 B, (1895).

(7) Timma v Daramma, 10 M, 362 (188 [in which it was ruled that a statement as to lationship in a deed held to be invalid was missible in evidence

(8) S. 65, cl. (d), post: see definition of "do ment" in s. 3, ante

descendants of another member of the family, before any question arose as to the latter is relevant under this clause.(1) Statements, whether they are tendered under the fifth clause or the sixth clause, must, in order to be relevant, have been made ante litem motam;(2) and for the admissibility of statements under either of these clauses it must be shown that the attendance of the person who made the statement is not procurable.(3) So where a plaintiff tendered in evidence a horoscope under the sixth clause, but was unable to say who wrote it, and therefore unable to say whether the writer was dead, or could not be found, etc., the document was on this, as on other grounds held, to be inadmissible.(4) It will in no way affect the admissibility of this class of evidence that witnesses might have been called to prove the very facts to which it relates.(5) A register of baptism, while evidence of that fact and of the date of it, furnishes, even if it states, the date of a person's birth, no proof of the age of that person further than that at the date of such ceremony the person referred to was already born. Evidence regarding the date of a man's birth has been held under certain circumstances to be admissible under cl.5; but in the case of an entry in the register in question there is nothing to show by whom the statement entered was made, much less that the person making the statement had any special means of knowledge.(6)

The statements are admissible to prove the facts contained therein on any issue

According to English law(7) declarations made by deceased relatives are admissible if made ante litem motam to prove matters of pedigree only. They are relevant only in cases in which the pedigree to which they relate is in issue, but not to cases in which it is only relevant to the issue.(8) Thus where the question was whether A sued for the price of horses and pleading infancy was on a given day an infant or not, the fact that his father stated in an affidavit in a Chancery suit to which the plaintiff was not a party that A was born on a certain day, was held to be irrelevant.(9) The terms "matters of pedigree" or "genealogical purpose" are confined primarily to issues involving family succession (testate or intestate), relationship and legitimacy; and secondly, to those particular incidents of family history "which are immediately connected with, and required for the proof of, such issues—e.g., the birth, marriage, and death of members of the family with the respective dates and places of those events, age, celibacy, issue or failure of issue; as well, probably, as occupation, residence, and similar incidents of domestic history necessary to identify individuals.(10) The principle upon which such evidence

(1) Shyamanand Das v Rama Kanta, 32 C., 6 (1904)

(2) v post, p 325

(3) Ramnarain Kallia v Monee Bibee, 9 C., 613 (1883), Surjan Sing v Sardar Singh, 27 I A, 183 (1900), s c, 5 C W N, 49, 2 Bom L R, 942

(4) Ib

(5) Taylor Ev, § 641

(6) Collier v Baron, 2 N. L R, 34, as to proof of date of birth after lapse of years, see Nawab Shah Ara Begam v Nanha Begam, P C. (906), 11 C W N, 130

(7) Taylor, Ev, §§ 635—657, Roscoe, N. P., Ev., 44—48, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 268—276; Steph Dig, Art. 31, Best, Ev, § 498, Powell, Ev, 193—204, Wills, Ev, 158—166

(8) Steph. Dig, Art. 31; Powell, Ev, 202, when they are not required for some genealogical purpose, they will be rejected; see next case.

(9) Haines v. Guthrie, L. R., 13 Q B. D, 818 (1881); this case (in which all the authorities on this point are fully considered) is not law in India; see note 2, p. 322.

(10) Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 268, citing Taylor, Ev., §§ 643 646, Steph Dig., Art 31, Hubback's Ev of Succession, 204, 468, 648—650, citing Hood v. Lady Beauchamp, 8 Sim, 26, Shula v. Boucher, 1 D. G. & S, 40, Rishton v. Nesbitt, 2 M. & R, 554; Loyal Peerage, 10 Ap. Cas., 763; see also Powell, Ev., 201; Taylor, Ev, § 642, Wills, Ev. (159); it was a one time a moot point in English law whether evidence as to date and place of birth was admissible even in "pedigree cases," but the weight of opinion was in favour of its admissibility. (Taylor, Ev., § 642), and this view has been adopted by the framers of the Act: [s 32, illusts (l), (m); Bipin Behary v. Sreedam Chunder, 13 C., 42 (1886); Ram Chandra v. Joyeswar Narain, 20 C, 738 (1893)]; Oriental Life Assurance Co, Ld. v. Narasimha Chari, 25 M., 183, 209, 210 (1901); the words "relates to the existence of relationship" being wide enough to cover statements as to the commencement of Clauses fifth and sixth, which are exemplified by illustrations (k), (l) and (m), together with section 50, post, deal with the relevancy of certain facts which are treated by English text-writers under the single head of "matters of pedigree." There are, however, important differences between the English and Indian law on the subject of the statements which are dealt with by the above-mentioned clauses of this section. There is further a distinction to be noted between the kinds of evidence to which each clause refers. The statement declared relevant by the fifth clause is a statement relating to the existence of any relationship between persons living or dead, as to whose relationship the person making the statement had special means of knowledge; such as the statement of deceased relatives, servants, and dependents of the family.(1) The statement mentioned in the sixth clause is a statement relating to the existence of relationship between deceased persons only. This last clause does not embrace the case of a statement of relationship between a deceased person and a living person (2) It does not deal with the question by whom the statement is to be made. nor does it require that it should have been made by a person who had special means of knowledge, possibly on the ground that it is improbable that any person would insert in a solemn deed, will, etc., any matter the truth of which he did not know or had not satisfactorily ascertained (3) but states that it must be contained in the documents of other material things therein mentioned.

Besides the documents and other material things mentioned in the sixth clause family bibles, coffin plates, mural tablets, hatchments, rings, armorial bearings and the like amongst Christians, and horoscopes among Hindus, are examples of other documents and things on which such statements are usually made.(4) Horoscopes have, however, been held to be admissible in the undermentioned cases.(5) As to statements contained in wills(6) and deeds(7) see the cases noted below. Inscriptions on tombstones, mural inscriptions and the like may be proved by any secondary evidence (8) The statement in a genealogical table filed by a member of a family who is dead, regarding the

---

(1) Garurudhwaja Prasad v Saparandhwaja Pershad, 27 I A, 238, 251 (1900), s. c, 23A, 37, 51; Oriental Life Assurance Co. v. Narasimha Charl. 25 Mad., 183, 207, 209, in which the statements of the deceased himself, his sister and others were tendered or admitted; as to the report of a punchayet as evidence of pedigree, see Apaboing v Nanabhau, 26 I A, 48 (1898), 25 B, 1, 3 C. W N, 130.

(2) Ramnarain Kallia v. Monee Bibee, 9 C, 613, 614, (1883)

(3) Field, Ev, 189, 190

(4) See generally Taylor, Ev., § 650—657

(5) Ramnarain Kallia v. Monee Bibee, 9 C, 613 (1883) The chief ground on which the evidence was rejected in this case was that it was not shown that the attendance of the writer was not procurable; Satis Chunder v. Mohendro Lal, 17 C, 849 (1893), [quere as to this case; assuming the horoscope to have been tendered, as stated, under cl (6), that clause does not require that the maker of the statement should have had any special means of knowledge, and if tendered under cl. (5); Ramnarain Kallia v. Monee Bibee which this case purported to follow, does not seem in point. Further, upon the question whether the evidence is limited to cases where the question in issue is one of relationship v. post, and whether the words "relates to the existence of relationship" cover statement as to the commencement of relationship in point of time, v. post] A distinction is to be observed between horoscopes tendered under s 32, cl. (6), under s 32, cl (5), as the statements of persons having special means of knowledge, and as being an admission under ss 17, 18 See as to their use as admissions, Raja Goundan v Raja Goundan, 17 M, 134 (1893) See Rattonbhai v. Chabildas, 13 B, 7 (1888)

(6) Nil Monee v. Mussumut Zuheerunnissa, 8 W. R, 371 (1867), [where the incidental mention of a child's age in the recital of a will was held to be no proof of the exact age of such child; the Report does not show whether the child was dead at the time the evidence was offered If dead, the case is no longer law. Field, Ev., 193] Chamanbu v. Mullanchand, 20 B, 562 (1895)

(7) Timma v. Daramma, 10 M, 362 (1887). [in which it was ruled that a statement as to relationship in a deed held to be invalid was admissible in evidence

(8) S 65, cl. (d), post: see definition of "document" in s 3, ante.

descendants of another member of the family, before any question arose as to the latter is relevant under this clause.(1) Statements, whether they are tendered under the fifth clause or the sixth clause, must, in order to be relevant, have been made ante litem motam;(2) and for the admissibility of statements under either of these clauses it must be shown that the attendance of the person who made the statement is not procurable.(3) So where a plaintiff tendered in evidence a horoscope under the sixth clause, but was unable to say who wrote it, and therefore unable to say whether the writer was dead, or could not be found, etc., the document was on this, as on other grounds held, to be inadmissible.(4) It will in no way affect the admissibility of this class of evidence that witnesses might have been called to prove the very facts to which it relates (5) A register of baptism, while evidence of that fact and of the date of it, furnishes, even if it states, the date of a person's birth, no proof of the age of that person further than that at the date of such ceremony the person referred to was already born. Evidence regarding the date of a man's birth has been held under certain circumstances to be admissible under cl.5, but in the case of an entry in the register in question there is nothing to show by whom the statement entered was made, much less that the person making the statement had any special means of knowledge.(6)

The statements are admissible to prove the facts contained therein on any issue

According to English law(7) declarations made by deceased relatives are admissible if made ante litem motam to prove matters of pedigree only. They are relevant only in cases in which the pedigree to which they relate is in issue, but not to cases in which it is only relevant to the issue.(8) Thus where the question was whether A sued for the price of horses and pleading infancy was on a given day an infant or not, the fact that his father stated in an affidavit in a Chancery suit to which the plaintiff was not a party that A was born on a certain day, was held to be irrelevant.(9) The terms "matters of pedigree" or "genealogical pr[illegible]volving family succession (testate[illegible]and secondly, to those particular i[illegible]mmediately connected with, and required for the proof of, such issues—e.g., the birth, marriage, and death of members of the family with the respective dates and places of those events, age, celibacy, issue or failure of issue; as well, probably, as occupation, residence, and similar incidents of domestic history necessary to identify individuals.(10) The principle upon which such evidence has been admitted has, as regards the date of birth, been stated to be that the time of one's birth relates to the commencement of one's relationship by blood, and a statement therefore of one's age made by a deceased person having special means of knowledge relates to the existence of such relationship within the meaning of the fifth clause of this section.(1)

But under the Act the declarations are admissible on any issue provided they relate to a fact relevant to the case.(2) Thus where in a case one of the questions was as to whether the plaintiff was a minor when he signed a certain deed, the plaint in a former suit verified by a deceased member of the family was held to be admissible under the fifth clause to prove the order in which certain persons were born and their ages.(3) "It was contended on the part of the plaintiff, on the authority of the English cases, that, as the question at issue in this case did not relate to the existence of any relationship by blood, marriage, or adoption, the section did not apply, and the statements are excluded by the ordinary rules of evidence. I think that on this point the law in India under the Evidence Act is different to the law of England, and that the effect of the section is to make a statement made by such a person, relating to the existence of such relationship, admissible to prove the facts contained in the statement on any issue, and that the plaint was admissible here to prove the order in which the sons of S were born and their ages, and when admitted, it to my mind satisfactorily proves that the defendant was the son who was born on the 6th of June 1868."(4) So also a statement under this clause was admitted to prove the date of the plaintiff's birth for the purpose of the decision of a question of limitation (5) Not only are such declarations admissible in proof of relationship upon any issue, whether of pedigree or not, but they are also admissible in cases other than those of pedigree to prove the commencement of the relationship in point of time or the date of the birth of the person in question (6) It would appear according to English law that hearsay evidence must be confined to such facts as are immediately connected with the question of pedigree, and that incidents which, although inferentially tending to prove, are not immediately connected with the question of pedigree will be rejected (7)

Persons from whom declarations are receivable

In England such declarations are only admissible when made by deceased relatives by blood or marriage, and further the declarants must be legitimately related.(8) But under the Act the statement may be made by any person, relationship in point of time and as to the locality when it commenced or existed See Field, Ev., 191. As to the admissibility of the evidence in cases other than "pedigree cases," v. post

---

(1) Oriental Life Assurance Co., Ld v. Narasimha Chari, 25 M., 183, 209, 210 (1901) See also Jagatpal Singh v. Jageshar Baksh, 25 A., 143, 152 (1902), in which the question was whether one P. S. from whom the respondents descended was born before Z. S. from whom the appellants had descended.

(2) Dhan Mull v. Ram Chunder, 24 C., 265 (1896), s. c., 1 C. W. N., 270, cited in Ram Chandra v. Jogeswar Narain, 20 C., 758, 760 [overruling Bepin Behary v. Sreedam Chunder, 13 C., 42 (1886)], followed in Ram Chandra v. Jogeswar Narain, 20 C., 758 (1893)

(3) Dhan Mull v Ram Chunder, supra.

(4) Ib., per Petheram, C. J.

(5) Ram Chund v Jogeswar Narain, supra.

(6) Ib.; Dhan Mull v. Ram Chunder, supra

(7) Taylor, Ev., § 644

(8) Taylor, Ev., §§ 635—638; Doe v. Barton, 2 M & R., 28, see Doe v Davies, 10 Q. B., 314. As to declarations by a deceased person as to his own illegitimacy, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 269; and cases there cited, and Field, Ev., 190, under the Act such a declaration would be relevant as against strangers, th, s 47 of the repealed Act II of 1885 rescinded the English rule on this subject and admitted the declarations not only of illegitimate members of the family, but also of persons who, though not related by blood or marriage, were yet intimately acquainted with the members and state of the family The latter portion of this section would have included servants, friends, and neighbours who are excluded (Johnson v. Lawson, 2 Bing., 86) under English law. The rule laid down by this Act is still more general in its terms than the Act of 1855, as it renders admissible not merely the statements of persons deceased, but also of per-provided only that such person had special means of knowledge of the relationship to which the statement relates. Proof of this special means of knowledge is a pre-requisite to the admission of the evidence, and this proof must be given by the party who wishes to give such evidence.(1) This knowledge may be shown by proof that the declarant was a member of the family, or was intimately connected with it or had any special means of knowledge of the family concerns.(2) A family priest is a person having special means of knowledge as to the relationship of members of the family .(3) but a mukhtear, merely as such is not.(4) A series of statements extending from 1860 to 1890 by a wasiqadar made in accordance with the practice of the wasiqa office, a department under Government, as to who were her heirs, and made at a time when no controversy on the subject was in contemplation, and letters written by her, in reply to enquiries by the wasiqa officer, explaining and confirming such statements, was held to be admissible in evidence in support of the legitimacy of such heirs, and under the circumstances to be conclusive in their favour.(5) A statement relating to the existence of any relationship contained in a document signed by several persons, some only of whom are dead, is admissible in evidence under the fifth clause of this section (6)

Personal knowledge

According to English law it is not necessary that the declarant should have had personal knowledge of the facts stated , it is sufficient if his information purported to have been derived from other relatives, or from general family repute, or even simply from "what he has heard," provided such "hearsay upon hearsay" as it has been called, does not directly appear to have been derived from strangers.(7) But if the declarant's information purport to have been derived either wholly or in part from incompetent sources, the declarations so founded will be excluded.(8) In other words, this evidence cannot be successfully objected to on the ground that it is "hearsay on hearsay," provided that all the statements come from persons whose declarations on the subject are admissible.(9) "If this were not so—the main object of relaxing the ordinary rules of evidence would be frustrated, since it seldom happens that the declarations of deceased relatives embrace matters within their own personal knowledge."(10) A similar rule will be followed in cases under the Act, provided all the statements come from persons whose declarations on the subject are admissible (that is, persons who are shewn to have had special means of knowledge) the evidence will not be rejected merely on the ground that the declarant had no personal knowledge of the facts stated. But where on a question of relationship the statements of certain witnesses who were supposed to be speaking from information derived from others were sought to be made admissible, but these witnesses did not state the persons from whom they derived that information nor at what period of time they derived it, the evidence was rejected.(11) In other words where the witness is speaking from hearsay he must show that his knowledge comes from a person whose statements are sons whose evidence is not procurable for other reasons As to a person claiming as illegitimate son establishing his alleged paternity, see Gopalasami v Arunachellam, 27 M., 32, 34, 35 (1903)

---

(1) S 104, post, see Taylor, Ev , § 640, Wills, Ev., 160, 161.

(2) Sangram Singh v. Rajan Bibi, 12 C , 219, 222 (1885), 12 I A , 183, see also Bejai Bahadur v Bhupendar Bahadur, 17 A , 456 (1895)

(3) Sham Lall v. Radha Bibee, 4 C. L. R , 173 (1879)

(4) Sangram Singh v Rajan Bibi, supra

(5) Bagir Ali v. Anjuman Ara, 25 A., 236 (1903); s c., 7 C. W. N , 465

(6) Chandra Nath v. Nilmadhab Bhuttacharjee, 26 C , 236 ; s c , 3 C W N , 88 (1898)

(7) Taylor, Ev., § 639, Sheddon v Attorney, General, 30 L. J., P & M., 217; Phipson Ev , 3rd Ed , 270; Wills, Ev , 164

(8) Davies v. Lowndes, 6 M & G , 525.

(9) Thus the declarations of a deceased widow respecting a statement which her husband had made to her as to who his cousins were, have been received: see Taylor, Ev , § 639

(10) Taylor, Ev , § 639, and cases there cited.

(11) Musst Shafiqunnissa v. Shahan Ali, 9 C. W. N , 105 (1904); s c., 16 A., 581 admissible. The statement, however, which is relied on must be shown to be the statement of the [illegible] under this section So in the undermentic[illegible] ument R. G. S. had died before the trial: [illegible] a genealogical table filed on behalf of G in a claim made by him for certain villages. The document, however, was in no way brought home to G except as being an exhibit binding upon him for the purposes of that suit. The Privy Council held that the document was inadmissible, observing as follows:—"His (G's) relation to the document is therefore something entirely different from the personal knowledge and belief which must be found or presumed in any statement of a deceased person which is admissible in evidence. For aught that appears the genealogical table in question might never have been seen or heard of by G, personally, but have been entirely the work of his pleader"(1) But where in a recent case a kursinama was produced purporting to have been made by an ancestress "by the pen of gomasta" and alleged to have been filed by her in a suit to establish the same fact in 1804, the Privy Council held that it was admissible.(2) According to English law in the case of marriage, repute and conduct need not be confined to the family. General reputation among, and treatment by, friends and neighbours being receivable except in certain criminal cases when stricter proof is required, as evidence of marriage.(3) But the testimony must be general, if it is based merely on the statements of some particular person, it ceases to be admissible as geneal reputation, and can only be tendered on a question of pedigree, and in England, as the statement of a deceased relation(4) or in India as the statement of a person having special means of knowledge made ante litem motam (5) The grounds upon which general reputation, when relevant, is receivable are partly the difficulty of obtaining better evidence in such cases, and partly because "the concurrence of many voices" amongst those most favourably situated for knowing, raises a reasonable presumption that the facts concurred in are true.(6) While, however, provision has been made by the Act in s 50 for the reception in evidence of conduct as proof of relationship, there appears to be none for the admission of the general reputation abovementioned

Contemporaneousness

The declarations need not refer to contemporaneous events; thus statements as to matters occurring six generations before have been received,(7) for such a restriction "would defeat the purpose for which hearsay in pedigree is let in, by preventing it from ever going back beyond the lifetime of the person whose declaration is to be adduced in evidence."(8)

Particular facts

It has been already observed that in matter of public or general interest, declarations as to particular facts are excluded But the same rule does not apply in cases of pedigree. "In cases of general right, which depend upon immemorial usage, living witnesses can only speak of their own knowledge to

---

(1) Jagatpal Singh v Jageshar Singh, 25 A., 143 (1902); s c., 7 C W. N, 209.

(2) Shahzadi Begam v Secretary of State for India, P. C. (1907), 34 C., 1059, L. R., 34 I. A, 191

(3) Taylor Ev, § 578; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 338, 94, Wills, Ev, 156, 157, Field, Ev, 197, as to conduct, see note to s. 50, post.

(4) Sheddon v. Patrick, 30 L. J. P, M & A, 217, 231, 232. "There is no doubt that general reputation of a marriage may be given valeat quantum A person living in a particular neighbourhood—say in New York—may be called to say that the reputation in New York was that A and B were man and wife, but you cannot ask what any particular individual, not being a member of the family, said on the subject; that is getting into a different class of evidence," ib, per Sir C. Cresswell see also Wills, Ev., 156, 157.

(5) S. 32, cl (5), ante, as to opinion expressed by conduct, see s 50, post.

(6) Taylor, Ev, §§ 577, 578, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 338

(7) Monckton v Attorney General, 2 R. & My. 157; Davies v. Lowndes, 6 M & G., 525; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 270, citing Hubb, 659 Taylor, Ev., § 630.

(8) Taylor, Ev, s 630, quoting Lord Brougham what passed in their own time; and to supply the deficiency, the law receives the declarations of persons who are dead. There, however, the witness is only allowed to speak to what he has heard the dead man say respecting the reputation of the right of way, or of common, or the like. A declaration, with regard to a particular fact, which would support or negative the right, is inadmissible. In matters of pedigree, it being impossible to prove by living witnesses the relationship of past generations, the declarations of deceased members of the family are admitted; but here, as the reputation must proceed on particular facts, such as marriages, births, and the like, from the necessity of the thing, the hearsay of the family as to these particular facts is not excluded. General rights are naturally talked of in the neighbourhood; and the family transactions among the relations of the parties. Therefore, what is thus dropped in conversation upon such subjects may be presumed to be true."(1)

Lis mota.

As in the case of statements with regard to public and general rights, declarations as to relationship must have been made before the question in dispute, in relation to which they are proved, was raised,(2) but they do not cease to be relevant because they were made for the purpose of preventing the question from arising.(3) Further, the fifth clause of section 32, does not apply to statements made by interested parties in denial, in the course of litigation, of pedigrees set up by their opponents.(4) In a recent case it has been held by the Privy Council that a pedigree (not an ancient family record handed down from generation to generation and added to as a member of the family died or was born, but a document drawn up on a particular occasion for a specific purpose by a member of the family) was to be treated as a mere declaration made by the person who made or adopted it. It was also held that to make a statement inadmissible as post litem motam the same thing must be in controversy before and after such statement is made, and that this pedigree was admissible as a declaration made and adopted by a deceased member of the family, and touching the family reputation, on the subject of its descent, and not shown to be post litem motam.(5)

SEVENTH CLAUSE.

Statements in documents relating to Statements contained in any deed, will, or other document which relates to any such transaction as is mentioned in cl. (a) of the thirteenth section, that is, any transaction by which any right or custom was created, claimed, modified, recognized, asserted or denied, may be proved under this clause.

together with the present clause, re customs.(6) The present clause, t right and customs (7) According verbal, made by deceased persons are admissible in proof of rights of a public or general nature, but to prove rights strictly private, such evidence is not generally receivable.(8) The fourth clause ante, and the present clause deal, the

(1) Berkeley Peerage case, 4 Camp., 415, 416, per Sir James Mansfield

(2) S. 32, cls. (5) and (6) v. ante, p. 319 In Bahadur Singh v. Mohar Singh, 24 A., 94, 107 (1901), where it was objected that the statements were inadmissible as having been made post litem, the Privy Council held that the heirship of the then claimant was not really in dispute at that time, and that the construction of the Act contended for would practically exclude any attainable evidence in that case.

(3) Steph. Dig., Art. 31, Berkeley Peerage case, 4 Camp., 401—417, and see Lovat Peerage case, L. R., 10 Ap. Ca., 797, Wills, Ev., 163

(4) Narain Kuar v. Chandi Din, 9 A., 467 (1886)

(5) Kalka Prasad v. Mathura Prasad, P. C. (1908), 30 A., 510

(6) v. ante, s. 13

(7) See Hurronath Mullick v. Nittanund Mullick, 10 B. L. R., 263 (1872), in which the custom was a family custom, v. ante, p. 183.

(8) v. ante, cl. (4), and post.

former with verbal and written, and the latter with written, statements relating to public or general rights and customs in general accordance with the English law upon the same subject so far as the latter extends. The first-mentioned clause admits the verbal or written statement giving the opinion of some particular persons to the existence of such rights. But hearsay as to matters of general interest is not confined to such declarations. It may be proved under this clause by recitals and descriptions of the public or general right in wills, deeds, leases, maps, surveys, assessments, and the like,(1) however recent, such documents may be.(2) In a suit by a zemindar to recover certain forest tracts from Government, the plaintiff relied on certain accounts, called ayakut accounts, as furnishing proof of the inclusion of the said tracts within the limits of his zemindary Held, that inasmuch as they were from time to time prepared for administrative purposes by village-officers, and were produced from proper custody and otherwise sufficiently proved to be genuine, they were admissible as evidence of reputation (3)

But further, this section deals with rights and customs generally, private rights and customs being therein included, and, in respect of such last-mentioned rights, effects a departure from the English rule. According to the latter, hearsay is not, as has been already mentioned, admissible in questions concerning merely private and personal rights, except by evidence of ancient possession in cases where a controversy refers to a time so remote that it is unreasonable to expect a higher species of evidence It is, therefore, a rule that ancient documents (i.e., documents more than 30 years old) purporting to be a part of the transactions to which they relate, and not a mere narrative of them, are receivable in evidence that those transactions actually occurred, provided they be produced from proper custody (4)

But to prove or disprove a right or custom it is not enough to adduce evidence of a transaction in which, or in the course of which, the right or custom was asserted or denied, though the transaction will be relevant under section 13, cl. (a), if it be one by which the right or custom was asserted or denied. When the question was whether a tenant held lands under the nakdi or bhaoli systems of rent, and the Court based its decision on a statement contained in a hebanama executed by the deceased grandfather of the tenant, it was held that the hebanama was not admissible under this clause read with section 13, cl. (a).(5)

Evidence of ancient possession.

The law upon the subject has been thus summarised :—" Ancient documents by which any right of property purports to have been exercised (e.g. leases, licenses, and grants) are admissible, even in favour of the grantor or his successors, in proof of ancient possession The grounds of admission are twofold,—necessity, ancient possession being incapable of direct proof by witnesses:

---

(1) S 32, cl (7), Norton, Ev , 190, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed , 257—262, Roscoe, N P , Ev , 48—51; Powell, Ev , 170—185, Best, Ev , § 497, Steph. Dig , Art 30, Taylor, Ev , §§ 607—634; Brett v. Beales, M & M , 416; Curzon v Lomax, 5 Esp , 60, Plaxton v. Dare, 10 B. & C , 17, Doe v. Wilcomb, 4 H L C , 425, Coombs v Coether, M & M , 398; Roscoe, N. P., Ev., 214; Private Acts —Curzon v Lomax, supra, Carnarvon v Villebois, 13 M. & W., 313; Beaufort v. Smith, 4 Ex , 450, Roscoe, N. P , Ev., 188; Manor books and presentments —Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 260; Private Maps —R. v Milton, 1 C. & K , 58, Hammond v. Braddyll, 10 Ex , 390, Pipe v. Fulcher, 28 L J , Q B , 12; Daniel v. Wilkin, 7 Ex , 429; Ancient Public Surveys —Freeman v. Read, 4 B & S , 174; Smith v. Brownlow, L R , 9 Eq , 241 , Daniel v Wilkin, supra, Modern public surveys —Bidder v Bridges, 34 W. R. (Eng), 514, 54 L T , 529, affirmed, W. N , 1886, p. 148 Ancient public assessments —Plaxton v Dare, supra , Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 260 Cooke v Banks, 2 C. & P , 478; Ely v. Caldecott, 7 Bing , 433.

(2) Norton, Ev , 102 , the words of the clause are " in any deed, will, etc., " but v post, as to judgments, orders and decrees which are admissible in matters of public or general interest only, see s 42, post.

(3) Sivasubramanya v. Secretary of State, 9 M., 285 (1884)

(4) Powell, Ev., 186

(5) Bansi Singh v. Mir Amir Ali (1907), 11 C. W. N., 703.

and the fact that such documents are themselves acts of ownership, real transactions between man and man, only intelligible upon the footing of title, or at least of a bonâ fide belief in title, since in the ordinary course of things men do not execute such documents without acting upon them (1) (a) The documents should purport to constitute the transactions which they effect; mere prior directions to do the acts, or subsequent narratives of them, being inadmissible (2) Thus, though expired leases (or even counterparts) (3) may be tendered to show ancient possession of the property demised, or reserved from the demise, recitals in such leases of other documents or facts will be rejected except as admissions.(4) (b) Deeds of this nature must, to ensure genuineness, be, like other ancient documents, produced from proper custody; and should, to be of any weight, be corroborated by proof within living memory of payments made, or enjoyment had, in pursuance of them. The absence of evidence of modern enjoyment, however, goes merely to weight and not to admissibility: (c) Ancient documents, admissible as acts of ownership, may be tendered on questions either of public or private right; and must be distinguished from those ancient documents which are received as evidence of reputation, which latter may consist of bare assertions, or recitals, of the right, but are confined to questions of public and general interest.

"Modern possession being susceptible of proof by witnesses cannot be established by modern leases, &c., even though supported by evidence of payments made thereunder."(5)

In the first place, it is to be observed, with reference to the law prevailing in India, that while the fourth clause admits parol evidence of reputation in proof of public or general rights and customs, the present clause does not provide for the admissibility of parol evidence of reputation in the cases to which it applies.(6) The Act, therefore (being in this respect in accord with English law), does not admit parol evidence of reputation in proof of private rights and customs. It, however, declares that reputation to be relevant in proof both of public and private rights (in respect of such last-mentioned rights departing from the English rule) which consists of statements contained in any deed, will or other docu-

[illegible] which any right or custom was created, claimed, enjoyed, or which was inconsistent with its existence. To deal with both public and private rights the present section includes any deed, will or other document, so that the rule as to ancient document receivable either as evidence of reputation or as acts of ownership is in terms extended and enlarged: for under this clause a statement in any relevant document, though not more than thirty years old, and however recent, is admissible (7) In practice, however, the rule under the Act in this last-mentioned respect must remain much the same as that under English law since, in the case of modern documents, direct proof by witnesses will in most cases be procurable, and the conditions under

(1) Malcolmson v O'Dea, 10 H L. C, 593, Bristow v Cormican, 3 Ap Cas, 641, see also The Lord Advocate v Lord Lovat, 5 App, 273, cited p 169, ante, note 4, and cases in notes (6), (7), ib., see also s 13, ante, passim, and as to proof of ancient documents, s 90, post

(2) Ib.

(3) Taylor, Ev, § 427.

(4) Bristow v Cormican, supra, 662

(5) Bristow v. Cormican, supra, 668, per Lord Blackburn; Clarkson v Woodhouse, 3 Doug, 189; the passage in quotation marks is from Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 91, citing Taylor, Ev, §§ 658—667, Roscoe, N P, Ev., 53, 54, Powell, Ev, 186—192, Wharton, Ev, §§ 194—199

(6) The statement made relevant by cl (7) must be written, and the word 'verbal' at the commencement of this section has no application to this clause

(7) Norton, Ev, 192 Field, Ev, 195, 196 in Hurronath Mullick v Nittanund Mullick, 10 B L R, 263 (1872), the document in question was executed only 18 months before suit brought As to the admissibility of reports accompanying orders as hearsay evidence of reputed possession, see Dinomoni Chowdhurani v Brojo Mohini, 29 C., 198 (1901) which this form of hearsay testimony is alone admssible will not be found to exist. Moreover, even where such conditions exist, recent documents may often, for various causes, be of little weight.(1)

EIGHTH CLAUSE.

Statements made by a number of persons, and expressing feelings or impressions Statements made by a number of persons, and expressing feelings or impressions on their part relevant to the matter in question are relevant, and may be proved by the testimony of persons, other than those who made them, when such persons are dead, or cannot be found, or have become incapable of giving evidence, or when their attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense, which, under the circumstances of the case, appears to the Court unreasonable.(2) Some or all of these conditions will necessarily be found to occur, at any rate in by far the greater number of cases, when relevant evidence of this character is tendered. The meaning of this clause has been said to be " that when a number of persons assemble together to give vent to one common exclamations of a crowd ; and the evidence is receivable on account of the difficulty or impossibility of procuring the attendance of all the individuals who compose such crowd or aggregate of persons.(4) So to prove that a caricature destroyed before the trial was meant to represent two of the relations of the defendant, exclamations of recognition by spectators in a public picture-gallery, where the caricature was exhibited, were held to be admissible (5) And to prove that a libel referred to the plaintiff, and the consequences which had necessarily resulted to him from its publication, evidence that he was publicly jeered at in consequence of the libel was held to be admissible.(6) And it was held that,

that they were alarmed at these meetings and had requested him to send for military assistance.(7) But the section has no application to the case of a Police-officer, who goes round and collects a great number of statements from persons in different places ; nor can he be permitted to give the result of these statements as evidence.(8)

Relevancy of certain evidence for proving, in subsequent proceeding, the truth of facts there in stated

33. Evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceeding, or before any person authorized by law to take it, is relevant for the purpose of proving, in a subsequent judicial proceeding, or in a later stage of the same judicial proceeding, the truth of the facts which it states, when the witness is dead, or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circum-

---

(1) Hurronath Mullick v. Nittanund Mullick, supra

(2) S 3, cl. (8), illust. (a) ; Field, Ev., 106, 107

(3) R. v. Ram Dutt, 23 W. R., Cr., 35, 38 (1874), per Jackson, J.

(4) Norton, Ev , 191 ; Field, Ev., 106, 107 ; Taylor, Ev , §§ 578, 779.

(5) Du Bost v. Beresford, 2 Camp , 511 ; see Norton, Ev., 192, 193 ; Taylor, Ev , § 579

(6) Cook v. Ward, 4 M. & P., 99 , Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed., 339

(7) R. v. Vincent, 9 C & P , 275 ; Belford v. Birley, 3 Stark. R , 89

(8) R. v. Ram Dutt, 23 W. R., Cr., 35 (1874.)

stances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable: Provided—

that the proceeding was between the same parties or their representatives in interest; that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right and opportunity to cross-examine;

that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as in the second proceeding.

Explanation.—A criminal trial or inquiry shall be deemed to be a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused within the meaning of this section.

Principle.—The general rule is that the best evidence must be given: no evidence will be received which is merely substitutionary in its nature so long evidence of oral testimony may be given.(2) Under these circumstances the production of primary evidence is either wholly (as if the witness is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable, or is kept away) or partially (as in the case of delay or expense), out of the party's power. In the last mentioned case there is the further ground of convenience. But the use of such secondary evidence is limited by certain provisos based on the following principles. The first is enact than adver

which, had it been tendered against him, would have been clearly inadmissible;(3) the second because it is certainly the right of every litigant, unless he waives it principle involved in the third proviso in requiring identity of the matter in issue is to secure that in the former proceeding the parties were not without the point upon which The admission of that the parties and the issues being the same, and full opportunity of cross-examination having been allowed, the second trial is virtually a continuation of the first (6)

s. 3 ("Evidence.")
s. 3 ("Court.")
s. 3 ("Relevant")
s. 57, cl. 7 (Judicial notice of public officers.)
ss. 74, 76, 77, 79 (Public documents certified copies)
s. 80 (Presumptions as to record of evidence)
s. 91 Except. 1 (Appointment of public officer)
s. 104 (Burden of proof)
ss. 107, 108 (Burden of proof death).
s. 158 (Matters which may be proved in connection with statements under this section)

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 391.
(2) Cf. Taylor, Ev., § 464
(3) Taylor, Ev., § 469; Doe v. Derby, 1 A. & E., 783, 786, Norton, Ev., 196, Lawrence v. French, Drew., 472; Morgan v. Nicholl, L. R., C. P., 117.
(4) Gorachand Sircar v. Ram Narain, 9 W. R., 587 (1868), see also Gregory v. Dooley Chand, 14 W. R., 17 (1870), post
(5) R. v. Ram Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881), at p. 52.
(6) Whart., s. 177, cited in Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 396

Steph. Dig., Art. 32, and see Ch. XVII; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 198—200; Best, Ev., § 496; Powell, Ev., 239, 575—607; Taylor, Ev., §§ 464—478; and Ch. V, passim, 546—549; Starkie, Ev., 408, et seq.; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 396—401; Norton, Ev., 193—198; Wills, Ev., 181—190; Act X of 1873, ss. 5, 13 (Indian Oaths); Cr. Pr. Code, ss. 353—365, 503, 509, 512, 263, 264; Civ. Pr. Code, O. XVIII, pp. 815—822; Cr. Pr. Code, s. 512 (absconding accused); s. 288 (evidence taken before Committing Magistrate), Civ. Pr. Code, O. XXVI, rr. 1—8; pp. 1052—1056; Cr. Pr. Code (Evidence on Commission). See sections, as also Acts and Statutes cited, post.

COMMENTARY.

Depositions in former trials

The conditions on which the evidence is receivable are analogous to those relating to judgments, and whenever a decree in one case would be evidence of the facts decided when tendered in another, then the testimony of a witness in the former trial, who was liable to cross-examination, but is incapable of being called, is receivable. Depositions of witnesses in a former suit are not admissible in evidence when those witnesses [illegible] able.(1) "[illegible] with great c[illegible] it was) to p[illegible] actually impossible to produce him, or to be so difficult to do so that it is, under the circumstances, unreasonable to insist on his production."(2) The grounds of admissibility in the present section depend not, as in the case of the previous section, on the character of the statement and the subject to which it refers, but on the circumstances under which it was made and these circumstances (which must be shown to exist, in order to the admissibility of the evidence) are:—

(a) That the evidence was given in a judicial proceeding,(3) or before a person authorized(4) by law to take it —such as a Commissioner,(5) or Coroner, (6) or Arbitrator. As to evidence given by affidavit, see note to the first section, ante.(7) The evidence should also have been given on oath or solemn affirmation.(8) The evidence of a witness given in a proceeding before a Judge or Magistrate who had no jurisdiction, and which was thus pronounced to be coram non judice, cannot therefore be used under this section on a retrial before a competent Court. (9) (b) that the witness is dead, or that the other grounds mentioned by the section exist thus inconvenience to witnesses is no ground (10) (v. post) · these grounds are (with the exception of the witness being kept away), the same as those enumerated in section 32, ante, and (c) that the conditions required by the provisos have been fulfilled (v. post).

The burden of proving these facts lies on the person who tenders evidence under this section.(11)

---

(1) Hurish Chandra v. Tara Chand, 2 B. L. R., App., 4 (1868); Taylor, Ev., § 464; Bhodun Moyee v. Umbica Churn, 23 W. R., 343 (1874). See generally as to conditions of section, Chakauri Singh v. Suraj Kuar, 2 All. L. J., 91 (1904), in which the conditions of the section not being fulfilled the deposition was rejected.

(2) R. v. Mowjan, 20 W. R., Cr., 69 (1873), per Macpherson, J., concurred in by White, J., in R. v. Pyari Lall, 4 C. L. R., 511 (1879), and see R. v. Mulu, 2 A., 648 (1880).

(3) This can be generally proved by the production of the Original Record: v. ss. 80, 57, cl. (7), 91, Exception (1), post: or a certified copy, see ss. 74, 76, 77, 79, post. Steph. Introl., 166.

(4) See R. v. Dossaji Gulam, 3 B., 334 (1878) [British Consul at Zanzibar].

(5) As to evidence taken on commission v. Civ. Pro. Code, O. XXVI, p. 1052—1056.

(6) R. v. Rigg, 4 F. & F., 1085; and see Acts IV of 1871, V of 1889, and ss. 174—176, Cr. Pro. Code.

(7) And see Civ. Pr. Code, O. XIX, pp. 823—824.

(8) Act X of 1873, s. 5, but see s. 13, ib.

(9) R. v. Rama Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881).

(10) R. v. Burke, 6 A., 224 (1884), as to s. 288, Cr. Pr. Code, v. post.

(11) S. 140, post.

The evidence is admissible for the purpose of proving the truth of the facts which it states either in an entirely new judicial proceeding, or in a subsequent stage of the same proceeding.

The Court has no discretion as to admitting a deposition when the witness (i) is dead; or (ii) cannot be found; or (iii) is incapable; or (iv) is kept out of the way; the deposition of such witnesses is declared to be relevant and must therefore be admitted. The Court has such a discretion in the case of the circumstances mentioned at the close of the section.(1) When the evidence of an absent witness is admitted under this section, the grounds for its admission should be stated fully and clearly, to enable the High Court to judge of the propriety of its admission.(2) Assuming that there are reasons why the Court thinks fit to dispense with the personal attendance of a witness and circumstances are disclosed, showing that his presence could not be obtained without an unreasonabe amount of expense and delay, the evidence to supply such reasons and to prove such circumstances should be formally and regularly taken and recorded.(3)

Where everything turns on the evidence of an absent witness, and without it the prosecution must fail, the provisions of the section ought to be most strictly applied.(4) This section does not justify a Magistrate when proceeding under section 491, Criminal Procedure Code, in using evidence taken in a previous criminal trial in suppression of evidence given in the presence of the accused.(5)

The evidence given in the previous proceeding must have been recorded in the manner prescribed by law (6) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, oral evidence is as receivable under this section as when it has been reduced to a formal deposition (7) When the law requires that the entire statements(8) made by witnesses, or parties called as witnesses, should be reduced into writing, no evidence can be given in proof of such statements except idary evidence ie case has not 533, Criminal

Procedure Code,) (10) and it does not appear to have been so actually decided, it is submitted that statements required by law to be recorded, but which are informally recorded are not admissible under this section Similarly, failure to comply with the provisions of O. XVIII, rr. 5, 6 (Civil Procedure Code), in a tion was admissible.(11) The usual presumptions, however, in favour of the proceedings and depositions having been regular will be made unless the contrary be shown.(12) But where the law either does not require the statements of witnesses to be reduced to writing,(13) or merely requires the substance of the

---

(1) In the matter of Payari Lall, 4 C L R, 500 (1879)

(2) R v Mowjan, 20 W. R., Cr., 69 (1873)

(3) R v Mulu, 2 A., 648 (1880)

(4) R v Mowjan, 20 W R., Cr., 69 (1873) In the matter of Pyari Lall, 4 C L R, 504 (1879), at pp 505, 506, 509, R v Burle, 6 A., 224 (1884)

(5) R v Proonnochundra, 22 W R., Cr., 36 (1874)

(6) See Cr. Pr Code, ss 353—365, 503, 509, 512, 263, 264, Civ Pr Code, O XVIII, rr 4—17, pp. 816—822.

(7) Norton, Ev., 194.

(8) Civ Pr Code, O XVI r 21, p 809, O XVIII, r 5, p 817, Cr Pr. Code, ss 356, 360, 362, 364, 503

(9) v s 91, post, and note to same

(10) See Noshar Mistri v R, 5 C, 958 (1880), and notes to ss 29, ante, and 91, post, and Field, Ev., 418

(11) R v Mayadeb Goswami, 6 C, 762 (1881), and see cases cited in notes to ss 80, 91, Roscoe, Cr Ev, 63, 66, Taylor, Ev, 1756, post. See notes to s 91, post

(12) v s. 114, illust (e), post

(13) S. 263, Cr. Pr. Code.

evidence of witnesses,(1) or of witnesses and parties called as witnesses,(2) to be recorded; in the first of these cases certainly, and it would seem also in the second (though it has not, it is believed, been so decided), oral evidence of such statements as had not been recorded would be admissible under this section.(3) What a witness has orally testified may be proved, either by any person who will swear from his own memory, or by notes taken at the time by any person who will swear to their accuracy, or possibly from the necessity of the case, by the Judge's notes How far it may be necessary to prove the precise words does not clearly appear. Perhaps on occasions when nothing of importance turns on the precise expression used, it will be considered sufficient if the witness can speak with certainty to the substance of what was sworn on the former trial.(4) When a note of the evidence has been made by a reporter or shorthand writer, he could, of course, use the note to refresh his memory, and from such a source a shorthand writer might be able to swear to the very words (5) Under English law a stricter rule is applied in Criminal than in Civil proceedings (6) But this section, which is generally more extensive than the English law on the same subject,(7) applies alike to Civil and Criminal proceedings.

Use of previous statements

The distinction should be carefully preserved between the use of previous statements as evidence-in-chief or substantive evidence under this section, and the use of previous statements (whether on oath or not, and whether in a judicial proceeding or not) to discredit or corroborate a witness only, and as admissions when the witness in a former, is party to a subsequent suit.(8) Depositions may also be used as dying declarations under the preceding section or to refresh the memory of witnesses under section 159 if the conditions set forth in that section exist. Depositions though informally taken are receivable, like any other admissions, against the deponent whenever he is a party : or they may be used to contradict and impeach him when he is afterwards examined as a witness But before they will be available as secondary evidence and as a substitute for [illegible] in a judi-

[illegible] ear that [illegible] itions of deceased witnesses may, under the preceding section, be admissible even against strangers : as for instance, if they relate to a custom, prescription or pedigree where reputation would be evidence ; for, as the unsworn declaration of persons deceased would be here received, their declarations on oath are à fortiori admissible.(10) When depositions are tendered in evidence as secondary proof of oral testimony, they are, of course, open to all the objections which might have been raised had the witness himself been personally present at the trial. Leading and other illegal questions are, therefore, constantly suppressed, together with the answers to them , and this, too, whether the testimony has been taken viva voce or by written interrogatories.(11) But a party cannot repudiate an answer which has been given to an illegal question put on his own side (12) And if secondary evidence of documents is improperly given on commission and is accepted without objection made, it will be too late for the party against whom the evidence is given to take subsequently the objection which he might have urged at the time.(1)

Contradiction. Corroboration.

As to what matters may be proved in connection with statements under this section by way of contradiction, corroboration, or otherwise, see section 158, post.(2)

"Death"

Some proof of death must be offered and proper enquiries be shown to have been made.(3) In proof of this fact reference should be made to the provisions of sections 107, 108, post As to the discretion of the Court and proceedings coram non judice, v. ante.(4)

"Cannot be found"

It must be shown that reasonable exertion has been made to find the witness.(5) A deposition was rejected because there was nothing on the record to show that by ordinary care, and the use of ordinary means, the witness could not have been produced.(6) When a summons was properly taken out to be served on one J A at the Cutcherry-house in which he lived, but the peon in his return stated that, as he was unable to find J A and serve him personally, he hung up the summons on the Cutcherry-house, and there was evidence to show that J A suddenly disappeared from the Cutcherry-house, and it was further shown that enquiry was made in his native village whether he had returned there, but the result of the enquiry was that nothing had been heard of him, and it was, therefore, impossible to say where J A was, or to serve him with a summons, it was held that J A's deposition was properly admitted.(7) How far answers to enquiries respecting the witness are admissible to prove that he cannot be found is not very clearly defined by the decisions. That such answers will be rejected as hearsay, if tendered in proof of the fact that the witness is abroad, is beyond all doubt,(8) but where the question is simply whether a diligent and unsuccessful search has been made for the witness, it would seem, both on principle and authority that the answers should be received as forming a prominent part of the very point to be ascertained.(9) In order to show that enquiries have been duly made at the house of the witness, his declarations as to where he lived cannot be received ;(10) neither will his statement in the deposition itself, that he is about to go abroad, render it unnecessary to prove that he has put his purpose into execution (11) As to the Court's discretion, v. supra

"Incapacity."

The words "incapable of giving evidence," it has been held, denote an incapacity of a permanent, and not of a temporary kind ; and where a witness is proved to be incapable of giving evidence, the Court has no discretion as to admitting his deposition. But where the absence of a witness is casual or due to a temporary cause, the Court has such a discretion "if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense, which under the circumstances the Court considers unreasonable."(12) In a subsequent case,(13) however, the Court was of opinion that the incapacity to give evidence contemplated by this section is not necessarily a permanent incapacity.(14) To bring a case within

---

(1) Robinson v Davies, 1879, 5 Q B. D., 26, Taylor, § 548

(2) See Foolkumary Dossee v Nobin Chunder, post, p 339, note (1).

(3) Benson v Olive, 2 Str., 920

(4) In the matter of Pyari Lall, R v Rama Reddi, supra, Taylor, Ev., 472

(5) R v Lucky Narain, 24 W. R., Cr., 19 (1875)

(6) R. v. Mowjan, 20 W. R., Cr., 69 (1873)

(7) R v. Rochia Mohato, 7 C., 42 (1881)

(8) Taylor, Ev., § 475. Robinson v. Marlie, 2 M. & Rob., 375, Doe v. Powell, 7 C. & P., 617.

(9) Ib., Wyatt v Bateman, 7 C. & P., 586, Burt v Walker, 4 B & A., 697, Austin v Rumsey, 2 C & Kir., 736, R v Rochia Mohato, supra.

(10) Doe v Powell 7 C & P., 617

(11) Proctor v Lainson, 7 C & P., 631

(12) In the matter of Pyari Lall, 4 C L. R. 504

(13) In the matter of Asgur Hossein, 8 C. L. R., 124 (1881) s c, 6 C., 774

(14) Per Pontifex and Field, JJ The dictum is obiter, as it was not necessary to decide that question in the case, v. Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 65,66; Taylor, Ev., § 472, 478.

the section, in order to admit the deposition of a witness alleged to be unable to attend by reason of illness, it is not sufficient that such witness should be stated to be ill and confined to the house; but precise evidence should be required by the Court as to the nature of the illness and the incapacity to attend.(1) If the witness be proved at the trial to be insane, his deposition will be admissible.(2) If from the nature of the illness or other infirmity no reasonable hope remains that the witness will be able to appear in Court on any future occasion, his deposition is certainly admissible (3) Of course a doctor's certificate however authentic in itself, is no legal evidence of the state of the witness. His condition must be proved on oath to the satisfaction of the Judge who tries the case. It appears to be the established practice that in the case of a witness being alleged to be ill, the doctor, if he be attended by one, must be called to prove his condition.(4) Where the attorney for the prosecution was put into the box to prove that the witness was unable to attend, and stated that the witness's residence was 23 miles off, and that he had seen him that morning in bed with his head shaved. Earle [illegible] be, short of that of a person extremely to be ill as to deceive rejected.(5) And Lord Coleridge, C J., in giving judgment in R. v. Farrell,(6) said "it would be dangerous to admit any such latitude of construction as would bring this case within the words of the Statute."

"Kept out of the way

The proposition that if a witness be kept out of the way by the adversary, his former statements will be admissible, rests chiefly on the broad principle of justice, which will not permit a party to take advantage of his own wrong.(7) In a case where three prisoners were indicted for felony, and a witness for the prosecution was proved to be absent through the procurement of one of them, the Court held that his deposition might be read in evidence as against a man who had kept him out of the way, but that it could not be received against the other two men.(8)

Delay or expense

The last ground for admitting the deposition of an absent witness is governed by three considerations,—the delay, the expense, and the circumstances of the case.(9) Of the last "one of the chief which the Judge has and ought to weigh, is the nature and importance of the statements contained in the deposition. It would be unreasonable to incur much delay and expense when the facts spoken to in the deposition are of [illegible] some link in the case or are facts to whic witnesses are produced at the trial. On the other hand, it might be very reasonable to submit to much delay and considerable expense, when the evidence of the deponent is vital to the success of the prosecution, or has a very important bearing upon the guilt of the accused."(10) Where the delay likely to have been occasioned was about a fortnight, and the witness lived or was staying within a short distance of the Court, the witness' deposition was rejected.(11) When

(1) In the matter of Asgar Hossein, supra

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 472—478; Roscoe, Cr. Ev., 65, Doe v. Powell, 7 C & P., 617, Norton, Ev., 196

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 472—478, and cases there cited; as to illness v. s 47, ante.

(4) Roscoe, Cr. Ev, 66; "as a general rule it will be prudent, though it is not absolutely necessary to have the testimony of a medical man." Taylor, Ev, § 488.

(5) R v. Phillips, 1 F. & F., 105, and see R v. Williams, 4 F. & F., 515.

(6) L R, 2 C C R, 116, see also R v. Wilson, 9 Cox, 281, R v Bull, 12 Cox, C. C, 31

(7) Taylor, Ev, § 478

(8) R. v Scaife, 17 Q B, 238, s c, 5 Cox, 243

(9) Asiatic Steam Navigation Co. v. Bengal Coal Co, 35 Cal., 751.

(10) In the matter of Pyari Lall, supra, per White, J., at pp 509, 510

(11) Ib.

the witnesses were at a considerable distance from the place of trial, and their attendance was not easily procurable their depositions were admitted.(1) Where the witness changed his lodging after the order was given for his appearance in the Ses[illegible] admitted his deposition "as much delay w[illegible]n house or elsewhere," it was [illegible] that this witness could not ha[illegible]made to find him.(2) It is only in extreme cases of expense or delay that the personal attendance of a witness should be dispensed with.(3) "In my opinion it was intended that the provisions of the section as to emergency (delay or expense) were only to be sparingly applied, and certainly not in a case like this where the witness was alive and his evidence reasonably procurable."(4) Quære.—Whether the expense contemplated by this section is confined to the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witness, or whether it also includes the expense of adjourning the trial (5) In a case(6) where the Sessions Judge admitted a deposition on the grounds that the attendance of the witnesses could not be procured without an expense of Rs. 500, an amount which he considered unreasonable, that the witnesses would be inconvenienced, and that their evidence did not concern the accused personally, having reference only to the identification of the property in respect of which the accused was charged —Held that the Sessions Judge had improperly admitted such evidence. Inconvenience to witnesses is no ground allowed under this section, and the question of identification was a most material one, and the evidence of the witnesses in question was of the utmost moment, the whole case resting on it; and, as regards the ground of expense, it was impossible to consider the amount unreasonable, considering that the entire case rested on the evidence of those witnesses, and that the accused had not cross-examined those whose evidence had been taken by commission, nor, looking at his position could he arrange for their cross-examination. Held also that on similar grounds the Sessions Judge was not justified in issuing a commission under section 503 of the Criminal Procedure Code.(7) If there is nothing of a special nature to stand in the way, the case should be adjourned to the next sessions to procure the attendance of the witnesses.(8) Where a Sessions Judge, finding that the witnesses who had been summoned to give evidence for the prosecution did not appear upon the date fixed, adjourned the case, and ordered fresh summons to be issued, and on the witnesses failing to appear on the adjourned date, made use of the evidence which they had given before the Magistrate stating that he did so under this section, it was held that the evidence could not be so used, for he ought to have compelled the witnesses to attend (9) But where on remand by the Bombay High Court for the determination of certain issues, the District Court sent down the case to the first Court in order that the evidence might be taken there and the evidence of the plaintiff was taken on commission, it was held that the defendant was not aggrieved by that procedure.(10)

Same parties

The "proceeding" referred to is the former proceeding the language would have been more accurate if it had been "Those whom they represent in interest."(11) It makes no difference that the parties are differently marshalled

(1) R v. Rami Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881).
(2) R v Luthy Narain, 24 W R., Cr., 18 (1875)
(3) R. v. Mulu, 2 A., 646 (1880)
(4) Ib, per Straight, J., at p 648
(5) In the matter of Pyari Lall, supra, at p. 509; R. v. Lukhun Santhal, 21 W. R., Cr., 56 (1874).
(6) R. v. Burke, 6 A., 224 (1884).
(7) Ib, see also R v. Jacob, 19 C (1891), at p. 120
(8) R v Lukhun Santhal, supra
(9) R v Nanke Khan, A W N (1905), 202; 2 A L. J., 599
(10) Kashaba v Chandrabhagabai (1906), 32 Bom., 441
(11) Norton, Ev., 169

in the two proceedings, the plaintiffs in the first proceeding, being defendant in the second, or vice versâ: nor if there have been plurality of parties in the one case and not in the other. Therefore, where a witness testified in a suit in which A and several others were plaintiffs and B defendant, his testimony was, after his death, held admissible in a subsequent action relating to the same matter, brought by B against A alone.(1) Where, however, one of the parties to a subse a representative in interest (3) of a taken in the first suit is not admiss be brought by or against the same parties or their representatives in interest at the time when the suits are proceeding and the evidence is given.(4) This section does not apply to the deposition of a witness in a former suit, when the witness is himself a defendant in the subsequent suit, and the deposition is sought to be used against him, not as evidence given between the parties, one of whom called him as a witness, but as a statement made by him, which would be evidence against him whether he made it as a witness or on any other occasion. such a deposition is admissible under the sections relating to admissions, although it might be shown that the facts were different from what on the former occasion they were stated to be(5) (v post, Note to Explanation).

Cross-examination.

Under the old law, as well as under the present section, there must have been the right and opportunity to cross-examine,(6) and therefore if a commission be executed without any notice, or without a sufficient notice(7) being given to the opposite party, to enable him, if he pleases, to put cross-interrogatories, the depositions will be rejected, (8) yet it is by no means requisite that he should exercise that power; and if notice has been given to him of the time and place of the examination, and he neither intimates any wish to cross-examine, nor applies to the Court to enlarge the time for that purpose it will be presumed that he has acted advisedly, and the depositions will be received.(9) So, where a defendant, after joining the plaintiff in obtaining a commission to examine witnesses upon interrogatories, gave notice that he declined to proceed with the examination, whereupon the plaintiff sent him word that he should apply for a commission ex-parte, which he accordingly did; the Court held that the examinations taken under this order were admissible in evidence, although the defendant had received no notice of the time and place of taking them.(10) The deposition of a witness who was not cross-examined before the committing Magistrate and who died before the trial

---

(1) Wright v. Doe d Thatam, 1 A. & E., 3

(2) R v. Ishri Singh, 8 A., 672 (1886), R v. Rami Reddi, 3 M., 45 (1881); R v. Yaman, 5 Bom. L. R., 590, 601 (1903)

(3) See Mrinomoyee Dabee v. Bhoobunmoyee Dabea, 15 B. L. R., 5, (1874); s. c. 23 W. R., 42, and notes to ss. 21, ante, and 40, post. As to judgments for or against a remainderman where there are several remainders limited by one deed, see remarks of Couch, C. J., 15 B. L. R., 6, supra, and Pyke v. Crouch, 1 Ld. Raym., 730, Doe d. Lloyd v. Passingham, 2 C. & P., 446.

(4) Sitanath Dass v. Mohesh Chunder, 12 C., 727 (1886)

(5) Sonjan Bibee v. Achmut Ali, 14 B. L. R., App., 3 (1874), s. c., 21 W. R., 414

(6) R. v. Pitcaree Dharee, 21 W. R., Cr., 12 (1874); and see R. v. Luckhy Narain, 24 W. R., Cr., 18 (1875), Att.-Genl. v. Davison, M'Cl. & G., 160. Taylor, Ev., § 466; R v. Ishri Singh, 8 A., 672 (1886), R v. Ramchandra Govind, 19 B., 749, 757 (1895) ["There may be circumstances where, although a prisoner has the right he has not the opportunity, e.g., where the witness is at a great distance and the prisoner cannot go to the place and is too poor to employ a pleader or too unfamiliar with the ways of the place to get legal help there" Per Jardine, J

(7) Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 3 Sw. & Tr., 397; Tarucknath Monkerjee v. Gouree Churn, 3 W. R., 47 (1865)

(8) Steinkeller v. Newton, 9 C. & P., 313; see Gregory v. Dooley Chand, 14 W. R., 17 (1870).

(9) Taylor, Ev., § 466; Cazenove v. Vaughan, 1 M. & Sel., 4; R v. Meujan, 20 W. R., 60 (1873); Norton, Ev., 196, 197

(10) M'Combie v. Anton, 6 M. & Gr., 27.

was held to be admissible in evidence inasmuch as the accused persons had the right and opportunity of cross-examining him notwithstanding the omission of their pleader to avail himself of that right.(1) The words "opportunity to cross-examine" do not imply that the actual presence of the cross-examining party or his agent before the tribunal taking the evidence is necessary.(2) In England it has been held that if the prisoner was present, there is a presumption (which may be rebutted) that he had a full opportunity of cross-examination.(3) But, in R. v. Mowjan,(4) the Court remarked as follows: "We observe further that there is nothing on the face of the Extra Assistant Commissioner's record to shew that an opportunity was presented to the prisoner of cross-examining the witness, Ratoo Ray. It may be gathered from the context that [illegible]
But it is not ste[illegible] an opportunity [illegible] that, in order t[illegible] evidence that the accused person did, in fact, have an opportunity of cross-examining."(5) So also it has been held in the Bombay High Court that to make evidence admissible against an accused person, the fact that he had full opportunity of cross-examination, if not admitted, must be proved.(6) Quære—
Whether the [illegible] requires an effectual cross-examination complete and not partial Therefore where a commission was returned when the witness had been in part, but before he had been fully, cross-examined it was held to be inadmissible (8) Platt, B., in R. v. Johnson,(9) reprobated the practice of taking depositions in the absence of the prisoner and then supplying the omission by reading them over to the prisoner and asking him if he would like to put any questions to the witnesses. The Magistrate should, when the prisoner is undefended, invite him to cross-examine the witnesses at the end of each examination, and not merely at the end of all the examinations and should allow him sufficient time to consider his questions (10)

Question in issue

The question in issue must have l[illegible]st as in the second proceeding. And so, i[illegible]fact comes directly in issue, the testimony [illegible]rove the same point in another action between the same parties or their privies, though the last suit relates to other lands.(11) So also in the proceedings before a Magistrate on a charge of causing grievous hurt, two (among other) witnesses, one of whom was the person assaulted, were examined on behalf of the prosecution The prisoners were committed for trial. Subsequently the person assaulted died in consequence of the injuries inflicted on him. At the trial, before
[illegible]

(1) R v Basvanta, 2 Bom L R, 761 (1900), 25 B, 168

(2) R v Ram Chandra Govind, 10 B, 749 (1895)

(3) R v Peacock, 12 Cox, C C, 21

(4) 20 W R, Cr, 69 (1873)

(5) Ib., at p 70, per Macpherson, J

(6) R v. Ramchandra Govind, supra

(7) Ib

(8) Bonwomoff v Nahapiet Jute Co., 5 C. W. N., ccxxx (1901).

(9) 2 C. & K., 394, and see ss 353, 537, Cr. Pr Code, and notes to ss 135, 167, post, and R. v Bishonath Pal, 12 W R., Cr, 3 (1869), R. v Mohun Bunjor, 22 W R, Cr, 38 (1874). Ali Meah, 25 W R, Cr, 14 (1876), R. v. Nandram, 9 A, 609 (1887), Norton, Ev, 197

(10) R. v Dey, 6 Cox, 55, R v. Watts, 9 Cox, 93

(11) Doe d Derby v. Foster, 1 A. & E., 791, cited in R v. Rama Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881), see also Lawrence v. French, 4 Drew, 472, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 397.

evidence was admissible, either under the first clause of section 32, or this [illegible] ldditional charges before the Sessions Court. The s applicable—that is, whether the questions at me depends upon whether the same evidence is consequences may follow from the same act (1) stroke of a sword which, though it did not immediately cause the death of the deceased, yet conduced to bring about that result subsequently. In consequence of the person having died, the gravity of the offence became presumptively increased; but the evidence to prove the act with which the accused was charged remained precisely the same. We therefore think that this evidence was properly admitted under the thirty-third section."(2) "Although the Act in using the word 'questions' in the plural seems to imply that it is essential that all the questions shall be the same in both proceedings to render the evidence admissible, that is not the intention of the law. And though separate proceedings may involve issues, of which some only are common to both, the evidence to those common issues given in the former proceeding may (on the conditions mentioned in section 33 arising) be given in the subsequent proceedings"(3) In deciding whether the questions in issue are substantially the same, it is always an useful test to see whether the same evidence will prove the affirmative of the issue in both (4)

Explanation to section

The Explanation to the section is inserted for the purpose of excluding the objection which may arise, when the depositions are taken in criminal cases, that they cannot be used in a subsequent proceeding for want of mutuality, because the King is the prosecutor in all criminal proceedings.(5) As so explained, the section admits [illegible] a criminal trial or the reverse.
Thus a prosecution was institu behalf, of F for criminal trespass into a house belonging to F (Penal Code, section 448), and on his own behalf for assault and insult (id, sections 352, 504), and S at the trial gave evidence on these charges. A civil suit was subsequently brought by F against N C B for possession of the house under the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act. Between the date of the prosecution and civil suit S died. [illegible] tendere
the cha the charge of F as the real prosecutor, that therefore the parties in both the prosecution for trespass and the civil suit were the same, that N C B had had the right and opportunity to cross-examine and had, in fact, exercised that right, that the issues in the civil suit were whether F was in possession and whether N C B's entry was unlawful; and that in order to establish the charge of criminal trespass, it had had to be shown that F was in possession, that N C B had unlawfully ousted her and that such ouster was with a criminal intent; that two of the issues in the suit were the same as those in the criminal trial; that the fact that there was an additional issue in the criminal trial made no difference,(6) and that under [illegible] S in the criminal trial was admissil [illegible] rein of possession. A certified cop [illegible] and

(1) R. v. Rukhia Mohato, 7 C., 42 (1881), s. c., 8 C. L. R., 273.

(2) Ib., per Pontifex, J., see Taylor, Ev., §§ 467, 468; Norton, Ev., 195.

(3) R. v. Rama Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881), at p. 52.

(4) Field, Ev., 202, 203; see R. v. Rukhia Mohato, supra.

(5) Norton, Ev., 197, 198, for the question "who is prosecutor," "see Gaya Prasad v. Bhagat Singh, 30 A., 525; and Pandit Gaya Parshad Tewari v. Sardar Bhagat Singh, P. C. (1908), Times L. R., v. 24, at p. 46.

(6) See R. v. Rama Reddi, supra.

on objection that such copy was inadmissible and that the original record should be produced, the objection was overruled and the certified copy admitted in evidence. A witness under examination was then asked what information S had given him on the morning following the date of dispossession. On objection being again taken, the question was held admissible under section 158 in corroboration of the deposition of S in the criminal trial.(1)

(1) Fodkissory Dossee v. Nobin Chunder, 21 C., 441 (1895).

evidence was admissible, either under the first clause of section 32, or this section, notwithstanding the additional charges before the Sessions Court. The question whether the proviso is applicable—that is, whether the questions at issue are substantially the same depends upon whether the same evidence is applicable, although different consequences may follow from the same act.(1) "Now here the act was the stroke of a sword which, though it did not immediately cause the death of the deceased, yet conduced to bring about that result subsequently. In consequence of the person having died, the gravity of the offence became presumptively increased; but the evidence to prove the act with which the accused was charged remained precisely the same. We therefore think that this evidence was properly admitted under the thirty-third section."(2) "Although the Act in using the word 'questions' in the plural seems to imply that it is essential that all the questions shall be the same in both proceedings to render the evidence admissible, that is not the intention of the law. And though separate proceedings may involve issues, of which some only are common to both, the evidence to those common issues given in the former proceeding may (on the conditions mentioned in section 33 arising) be given in the subsequent proceedings"(3) In deciding whether the questions in issue are substantially the same, it is always an useful test to see whether the same evidence will prove the affirmative of the issue in both.(4)

Explanation to section

The Explanation to the section is inserted for the purpose of excluding the objection which may arise, when the depositions are taken in criminal cases, that they cannot be used in a subsequent proceeding for want of mutuality, because the King is the prosecutor in all criminal proceedings.(5) As so explained, the section admits of the use, in a civil suit, of a deposition taken in a criminal trial or the reverse, provided the conditions of the section are fulfilled Thus a prosecution was instituted by S against N C B at the instance, and on behalf, of F for criminal trespass into a house belonging to F (Penal Code, section 448), and on his own behalf for assault and insult (id., sections 352, 504), and S at the trial gave evidence on these charges A civil suit was subsequently brought by F against N C B for possession of the house under the ninth section of the Specific Relief Act. Between the date of the prosecution and civil suit S died. At the hearing of the suit, the deposition of S in the Criminal Court was tendered on the issue of possession It was held that, according to the evidence, the charge of criminal trespass had been at the instance of F, and was therefore the charge of F as the real prosecutor, that therefore the parties in both the prosecution for trespass and the civil suit were the same, that N C B had had the right and opportunity to cross-examine and had, in fact, exercised that right, that the issues in the civil suit were whether F was in possession and whether N C B's entry was unlawful; and that in order to establish the charge of criminal trespass, it had had to be shown that F was in possession, that N C B had unlawfully ousted her and that such ouster was with a criminal intent; that two of the issues in the suit were the same as those in the criminal trial, that the fact that there was an additional issue in the criminal trial made no difference,(6) and that under the above circumstances the deposition of S in the criminal trial was admissible in the civil suit, in proof of the issue therein of possession. A certified copy of the deposition was therefore tendered, and

(1) R. v. Rochia Mohata, 7 C., 42 (1881); s. c., 8 C. L. R., 273

(2) Ib, per Pontifex, J, see Taylor, Ev., §§ 467, 468; Norton, Ev., 105.

(3) R. v. Rami Reddi, 3 M., 48 (1881), at p. 52.

(4) Field, Ev., 302, 303; see R. v. Rochia Mohata, supra.

(5) Norton, Ev., 107, 108, for the question "who is prosecutor," "see Gaya Prasad v. Bhagat Singh, 30 A., 525, and Pandit Gaya Parshad Tewari v. Sardar Bhagat Singh, P. C. (1908), Times L. R., v. 24, at p. 46

(6) See R. v. Rami Reddi, supra.

as to carry conviction that they are true."(1) They are, moreover, subject to the restrictions that they shall not be alone sufficient evidence to charge any one with liability without some independent evidence of the facts stated in them.(2) The second class of statements are contained either in public documents, such as official books, registers, or records, or in documents of at least a public character, such as maps offered for public sale. The grounds upon which these statements are admissible have been given in the Notes to the following sections. Public documents are entitled to an extraordinary degree of confidence on the ground of the credit due to the agents who have made them and of the public nature of the facts contained in them. Where particular facts are enquired into, and recorded for the benefit of the public, those who are empowered to act in making such investigations and memorials, are in fact the agents of all the individuals who compose the public: and every member of the community may be supposed to be privy to the investigation.(3) The other documents mentioned in the following sections, such as maps offered for public sale, deal with matters of public interest, are accessible to the entire community, and being open to its criticism, are unlikely to be inaccurate: and if inaccurate, are liable to detection and to consequent correction.(4)

STATEMENTS MADE UNDER SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES.

Two general classes of statements are dealt with in this portion of the chapter,—(a) Entries in books of account, regularly kept in the course of business, (b) entries in public documents, or in documents of a public character. Both classes of statements are relevant, whether the person who made them is, or is not, called as a witness, and whether he is, or is not, a party to the suit, and are admissible owing to their special character and the circumstances under which they are made which in themselves afford a guarantee for their truth. The first class of statements were not generally admissible according to the principles of the English Common Law, except in the case of entries against interest, or made in the course of business, by deceased persons.(1) but Courts of Equity have for some years past acted upon the principle of admitting account-books in evidence, in cases in which the vouchers have been lost(2) and the same principle has now been adopted in certain cases, by the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883,(3) and the powers of the Court with reference to the production of documents and of entries in books or of copies of either have been also considerably enlarged by the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1897, as amended by the Rules of July 1902, O XXX, r. 7, now runs as follows "on the hearing of a summons the Court or a Judge may order that evidence of any particular fact, to be specified in the order, shall be given by statement on oath of information and belief, or by production of documents, or entries in books, or by copies of documents or entries, or otherwise as the Court or Judge may direct."(4) The object of this rule is to dispense, under the powers of the Judicature Act and to a certain limited extent, with the technical rules of evidence.(5) As a general rule, a man's own statement is not evidence for him, though in certain cases it may be used as corroborative evidence.(6) The entries alluded to in section 34, being the acts of the party himself, must be received with caution (7) But these statements are in principle admissible upon considerations similar to those which have induced the Courts to admit them in evidence when made by persons who are dead and cannot be thus called as witnesses. Moreover, in the words of the Judicial Committee, "accounts may be so kept, and so tally with external circumstances

---

(1) Taylor, Ev., 709 Steph., Dig., Arts., § 25—31, Best, Ev., §§ 501, 503; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 60—62; Powell, Ev., 218—228, Starkie, Ev., 65 Thus A sues B for the price of goods sold—an entry in A's shop-books, debiting B with the goods, is not evidence for A to prove the debt, Smith v. Anderson, 7 C. B., 21, but an entry debiting C and not B with the goods is evidence against A to disprove the debt; Storr v. Scott, 6 C. & P., 241.

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 711, and see 15 & 16 Vic., c. 86, s. 4

(3) Ord. XXXIII, rr. 2, 3.

(4) Taylor, § 711.

(5) Bierlein v. The Chartered Mercantile Bank (1893), 2 Ch., 484

(6) Ishan Chunder v. Haran Sirdar, 11 W. R., 526 (1869) See Introduction to the Sections on Admissions (s. 17 et seq.), ante

(7) Kheero Monee v. Bejoy Gobind, 7 W. R., 533 (1867), Taylor, Ev., § 709; but proper weight must be given to them where it was said that "an account-book is nothing, it is one's private affair and he may prepare it as he likes," the Privy Council remarked,—"It is true that there may be accounts to which that description would apply. Other accounts may be so kept, and may so tally with external circumstances as to carry conviction that they are true. And the Evidence Act, s. 34, therefore enacts, &c": Jaswal Singh v. Shiv Narain, 16 A., 157, 161 (1894).

as to carry conviction that they are true."(1) They are, moreover, subject to the restrictions that they shall not be alone sufficient evidence to charge any one with liability without some independent evidence of the facts stated in them.(2) The second class of statements are contained either in public documents, such as official books, registers, or records, or in documents of at least a public character, such as maps offered for public sale. The grounds upon which these statements are admissible have been given in the Notes to the following sections. Public documents are entitled to an extraordinary degree of confidence on the ground of the credit due to the agents who have made them and of the public nature of the facts contained in them. Where particular facts are enquired into, and recorded for the benefit of the public, those who are empowered to act in making such investigations and memorials, are in fact the agents of all the individuals who compose the public and every member of the community may be supposed to be privy to the investigation.(3) The other documents mentioned in the following sections, such as maps offered for public sale, deal with matters of public interest, are accessible to the entire community, and being open to its criticism, are unlikely to be inaccurate: and if inaccurate, are liable to detection and to consequent correction.(4)

Entries in books of account when relevant.

34. Entries in books of account, regularly kept in the course of business, are relevant(5) whenever they refer to a matter into which the Court has to inquire, but such statements shall not alone be sufficient evidence to charge any person with liability.

Illustration

A sues B for Rs. 1,000, and shows entries in his account-books showing B to be indebted to him to this amount. The entries are relevant, but are not sufficient, without other evidence, to prove the debt.

Principle.—The presumption of truth which arises from the character and nature of this evidence and its constant liability, if false, to be detected (v. Introduction, supra, and the second clause of section 32).

s. 32, cl. (2): (Statement made in course of business by person who cannot be called.)

s. 65 (g) (Numerous accounts secondary evidence)

s. 32, cl. (3) (Statement against interest by same person.)

s. 39 (How much of a statement is to be proved

s. 3 ("Relevant.")

Civil Procedure Code, O XIII, r. 5, p 782 (Production of Account Books in Evidence), O XXVI, rr. 11, 12, p. 1061, 1062 (Commissions to examine Accounts); Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), s. 198, Acts XVIII of 1891 and I of 1893 (Bankers' Books and Books of Post Office Savings Bank and Money Order Offices). Taylor, Ev., § 709; Best, Ev., §§ 501, 503. Field, Ev, 212, 5th Ed.: Id., Appendix, 4th Ed.; Wigmore, Ev., § 1558.

(1) v. s. 32, cl. (2), supra., Taylor, Ev, § 697. Powell, Ev., 218, Starkie, Ev, 65, Steph. Introd., 164, 165 Jawaad Singh v. Nheo Narain, supra, 161, 162, one test of genuineness is correspondence of books with themselves, but a better is correspondence with other evidence, ib.

(2) S. 34, post, and Commentary.

(3) Starkie, Ev., 2[illegible], 273. See Samar Dandi v. Juggul Kishore, 2[illegible] C., 366, 370 (1895).

(4) v. ss. 36, 38, post.

(5) "Relevant" [illegible]ans admissible: Lala Lakmi [illegible] C. W. N., cxlvii (1[illegible]

COMMENTARY.

Books of account

A question sometimes arises whether a particular account should be considered, and can be referred to, as the original account. If accounts be merely memoranda and rough books from which the regular accounts are prepared, [illegible] each of such books is an original account-book.(2)

This section takes the place of section 43 of the repealed Act II of 1855 which was as follows "Books proved to have been regularly kept in the course of business shall be admissible as corroborative but not as independent proof of the facts stated therein." Under that Act, therefore, account books would not have been admissible to prove a fact unless some other evidence tending to establish the same fact had also been given. "But the language" of that Act "differs very materially from that of the present Act. That language has not been adopted in the present Act The only limitation in section 34 is that statements contained in documents of this kind shall not alone be sufficient to charge any one with liability It appears to me that this change of expression has made substantial alteration in the law."(3) Therefore documents (jama-wasil baki papers) admissible under this section, though not alone sufficient to charge any one with liability, were held to be sufficient to answer a claim set up to exemption from what would be the ordinary liability of a tenant e.g., in a suit for enhancement of rent to rebut a presumption arising from uniform payment for 23 years.(4) These documents were not used alone in [illegible] with the liability that had been imposed upon him [illegible] the land he occupied by reason of its occ[illegible] considered a fair and equitable rent for the land occupied, and what these documents were used for was not to charge him with the liability, but to answer the claim which he set up to exemption from what would be the ordinary liability of a tenant (5) Therefore, books of account when not used to charge a person with liability (civil or criminal) (6) may be used as independent evidence requiring no corroboration, but when sought to be so used they must be corroborated by other substantive evidence independent of them.(7) And in this sense books of accounts remain under the present as under the repealed Act, corroborated evidence only, and cannot be used as independent primary evidence of the payment or other items to which the entry refers nor when payments entered in many of the items of a book of account are corroborated by other evidence can the inference be raised thereon that even the entries which are not so corroborated are accurate, or in other words, afford good substantive evidence of the pay-

---

(1) Raja Peary v. Narendra Nath, 9 C. W. N., 421, 431 (1905) See Wigmore, Ev., § 1538.

(2) Megraj v. Seemanta, 5 C. W. N., cclxxviii (1901), see s. 63, post.

(3) Belait Khan v. Nath Beharee, 22 W. R., 549 (1874), per Markby, J. (v. post) the present section substitutes "regularly kept" for "proved to have been regularly kept" but of course proof is still required except in those cases in which it is rendered unnecessary by the admissions of the parties As to account-books as corroborative evidence of separation in estate, see Jagun Koer v. Rajkoomaudun Lall, 10 W. R., 149 (1868). As to Act II of 1855, see Ramkristo Pal v. Haripha Koondoo, Marshall, 219 (1862).

(4) Ib.

(5) Ib. this decision, in so far as it held jama wasil baki papers might in certain cases be other than corroborative evidence only, appears to be dissented from by Prinsep and Rose, JJ., in Surnomoyi v. Johur Mahomed, 10 C. L. R., 546 (1882); v. post; but it does not appear in the latter case what use was sought to be made there in of these papers; see also Gopal Mondul v. Nobo Kishen, 5 W. R. (Act X), 84 (1866); Shib Per shad v. Promothonath Ghose, 10 W. R., 193 (1868) and post.

(6) R. v. Hurdeep Sahoy, 23 W. R., Cr., 27 (1875)

(7) Ib., Dwarka Dass v. Sant Bulsh, 18 A., 92 (1895).

ments to which they refer.(1) Entries in accounts relevant only under this section are not by themselves alone sufficient to charge any person with liability: corroboration is required. But where accounts are relevant also under the second clause of section 32, they are in law sufficient evidence in themselves, and the law does not, as in the case of accounts, admissible under only this section, require corroboration. Entries in accounts may in the same suit be relevant under both the sections; and in that case the necessity for corroboration does not apply.(2) In a suit to recover money due upon a running account the plaintiff produced his account-books, which were found to be books regularly kept in the course of business in support of his claim. One of the plaintiffs gave evidence as to the entries in the account-books, but in such a manner that it was not clear whether he spoke from his personal knowledge of the transactions entered in the books, the entries in which were largely in his own handwriting or simply as one describing the state of affairs that was shown by the books He was cross-examined, but no questions were asked him to show that he was not speaking as to his personal knowledge. Held, that the evidence given as above should be interpreted in the manner most favourable to the plaintiff and might be accepted in support of the entries in the plaintiff's account-books, which by themselves would not have been sufficient to charge the defendants with liability.(3) The mere production of the books without further proof is not enough;(4) and such further proof must be afforded by substantive evidence independent of them, as by that of witnesses who speak to the payment of money or delivery of goods, or of evidence of receipt of, or given for, the same.(5) In a case decided under the repealed Act, the Privy Council observed as follows:—"The evidence which the Subordinate Judge seems to have considered sufficient to prove the payments which the defendants were bound to prove consisted of the mercantile books of the banking firm and of a general statement by the defendant G P that the items in those books were correct. Their Lordships are of opinion that the books being that lay upon him, particularly as with respect to many of the disputed items he had the means of producing much better evidence.(6) It has been held that, at all under any section of the Act is, it is submitted, erroneous, and has not in such sense been followed.(8) This section which presupposes the existence of an entry and deals with the question how far existent entries tendered in evidence may fix parties with liability, does not obviously apply where there is no entry.

---

(1) R v Hurdeep Sahoy, 23 W. R., Cr. 27 (1875).

(2) Rampyarabai v Balaji Shridhar, 6 Bom L. R., 50 (1904), s. c., 28 B., 294.

(3) Dwarka Dass v. Sant Bulsh, 18 A. 92 (1895).

(4) Sri Kishen v. Hurs Kishen, 5 M. I. A., 432. Sudhajee Lacha v Koonurjee Manikjee 1 M. I. A. 47, s. c., 5 W. R. (P. C.) 29 (1866). Ramdhan Bibee v Hurray Krishn, 8 C., 931.

(5) R. v Hurdeep Sahoy, 23 W. R., Cr., 27 (1875), and v. post.

(6) Ganga Persad v. Inderjit Singh, 23 W. R. P. C., 300 (1875).

(7) R v Grees Chunder, 10 C., 1024 (1884), and see In the matter of Juggun Lall, 7 C. L. R., 356.

(8) Sagurmull v Mantaj, C. W. N., cevii (1900). In Ram Pershad v Lakpati Koer, 30 C., at p. 247. Lord Davey referred to R. v Grees Chunder, 10 C., 1024, supra, and Lord Robertson said "The Act applies to entries in books of account, but no inference can be drawn from the absence of an entry relating to any particular matter," but this remark must be taken to have been made with reference to the preceding statement of Counsel which referred to this section.

Evidence that there is no entry is not admissible under this section, but may be so under other sections of the Act, as for instance, the ninth and eleventh sections Thus evidence having been given of the visit of M to Calcutta which he denied, the latter's son was called by the other party to corroborate M's statement. He deposed that it was usual when a partner of his firm (to which both he and M belonged) made a journey on the firm's business to enter in the account-book the expenses of such journey, and he was allowed to produce the account-books of his firm and to state that there was no entry of expenses relative to such alleged visit.(1) [illegible] of the statement the whole of it.
that the payments credited in a plaintiff's account-books were made, although he disbelieves the entry as to the amount of the debits, there is nothing inequitable [illegible] The Judge is bound to is he believes to be true.
Books of account regularly kept may be appealed to not only for the purpose of refreshing the memory of a witness but also as corroborative evidence of the story which he tells. Books of account containing entries referring to a particular transaction are not entitled to the same credit that is given to the books that record that transaction in common with other transactions in the ordinary course of business.(3) Where any company is being wound up, all books accounts, and documents of the Company and of the liquidators are, as between the contributories of the Company, primâ facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.(4) As to a hathchitta book being, in the absence of fraud, binding upon the vendor for whose security it is kept, see the undermentioned case.(5) Besides their use as corroborative evidence under this section, entries in books of account, may, under the conditions mentioned in section 159, be used to refresh the memory, or as admissions (v. ante), and also under other sections of the Act. Further, statements made in books kept in the ordinary course of business by persons who cannot be called as witnesses, may be proved under the provisions of the second clause of the thirty-second section.(6)

Kept in the "regular course of business"

The book must have been kept in the regular course of business. A too limited meaning must not be given to this part of the section. Where one of the plaintiff's witnesses, named K T, stated in cross-examination that he had formerly been employed by C D at intervals of a week or fortnight to make entries in his (C D's) cash-book relating to private transactions which he (the witness) [illegible] and this
—"
the designation of books of account regularly kept in the course of business. It is C's private account-book entered up casually once a week or fortnight, and with none of the claims to confidence that attach to books entered up from day to day or (as in banks) from hour to hour as transactions take place. These only are, I think, 'regularly kept in the course of business.' "(7) But in a recent pressed, were cor-ly cases

(1) Rajarmull v. Manraj, 4 C. W. N., cevii (1900).

(2) Ishan Chunder v. Haran Sirdar, 11 W. R., 525 (1869), per Peacock, C. J.

(3) Bhag Hong Kong v. Ramanathen Chetty, 29 C., 334 (1902); s. c., 4 Bom. L. R., 378.

(4) Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), s. 109

(5) Gopee Mohun v. Abdool Rojah, 1 Jur. N. S., 358 (1866)

(6) s. s. 32, ante.

(7) Munchershaw Bezonji v. New Dharumsey Spinning Company, 4 B., 576 (1880) at p. 587; referred to in Nagappa v. Bharmappa, 23 B., 66 (1898).

(8) Deputy Commissioner of Bara Banki v. Ram Persad, 22 C., 139 (1895), s. c., 4 C. W. N., 147 be excluded from being used as corroborative evidence and that the time of making the entries may affect the value of them, but should not, if not made from day to day or from hour to hour, make them entirely irrelevant. It is thus not necessary that the entry should have been made at the time of the transaction, provided that the book has been kept in the regular course of business. In the case cited, the course of business in keeping the accounts in the office of a talukdari estate was that monthly accounts were submitted by kamdars at the head office where they were abstracted and entered in an account book, under the date of entry, that being in some cases many days after the transaction of payment or receipt, but the entries were made in their proper order, on the authority of the officer whose duty it was to receive or pay the money. It was held, that the entry in the account-book was admissible as corroborative evidence of oral testimony as to the fact of a payment for what it was worth, objection being only to be made to its weight, not to its relevance, under this section.(1) But account-books, though proved not to have been regularly kept in the course of business, but proved to have been kept on behalf of a firm of contractors by its servant or agent appointed for that purpose, are relevant as admissions against the firm.(2)

Proof of accounts

The regular proof of books and accounts requires that the clerks who have kept those accounts, or some person competent to speak to the facts, should be called to prove that they have been regularly kept, and to prove their general accuracy.(3) Yet the necessity of strict proof may be removed by the admission of the defendant, and the fact of the absence by him of any evidence to impeach the accuracy of the accounts, the disputed items being satisfactorily accounted for.(4) The section simply requires that entries in accounts should, in order to be relevant, be regularly kept in the course of business, and although it may be no doubt important to show that the person making or dictating the entries had, or had not, a personal knowledge of that fact stated, this is a question which affects the value, not the admissibility, of the entries.(5)

Jama-wasil-baki pap

Jama-wasil-baki papers are accounts made up at the end of the year showear, the balance lance due at the rent (6) They o have been kept ey are not admistherein, but it is perfectly right that a person who has prepared such papers on receiving payments of the rents should refresh his memory from such papers when giving evidence as to the amount of rent payable, when so used, they are not used as independent evidence."(8) In a suit where the Lower Court found upon the evidence of (inter alia) certain jama-wasil-baki papers that the defendant had been the plaintiff's tenant at a certain rate of rent and gave the plaintiff a decree for that rent, it was observed as follows —"Then it is said that, in the first Court, the Munsiff relied improperly on certain jama-wasil-baki papers. These jama-wasil-baki papers, we all know, are not evidence by themselves. The mere production of such papers is not enough. But, coupled with other evidence, these papers often afford a very useful guide to the truth in cases of

(1) Deputy Commissioner, Bara Banki v. Ram Parshad, 27 C., 118 (1899), s. c., 4 C. W. N., 147.

(2) Munchershaw Bezonji v. New Dhurrumsey Spinning Co., 4 B., 576 (1880).

(3) Dwarka Dass v. Jankee Dass, 6 M. I. A., 58 (1855), at p. 98.

(4) As to Bankers' Books and the books of Post Office Saving Banks and Money Order Offices, v. Acts XVIII of 1891 and I of 1893.

(5) R. v. Hanmanta, 1 B., 610 (1877), at p. 616.

(6) Field, Ev., 4th Ed., Appendix.

(7) Ram Lall v. Tara Soondari, 7 W. R., 280 (1867). Kheero Monee v. Brijoy Govind, 7 W. R., 533 (1867). Brijoy Govind v. Bhekoo Roy, 10 W. R., 291 (1868), Jackson, J., doubting.

(8) Akhil Chandra v. Nayu, 10 C., 248 (1883), and see Mahomed Mahmood v. Safar Ali, 11 C., 469 (1885).

this kind; and it is only right that those who have been collecting rent with the assistance of such papers should produce them in Court."(1) And in a suit(2) for arrears of rent at an enhanced rate it was said:—"The appellant's pleader contends that the jama-wasil-baki papers under the Evidence Act of 1872 are no longer regarded as corroborative evidence, and that, therefore, the Judge has taken a wrong view of the weight which should be attached to them. But we would observe that, with the exception of one case, Belaet Khan v. Rash Beharee(3) we are not aware of any case in which this Court has regarded jama-wasil-baki papers in a different light. In fact, so far as my own individual experience goes as a Judge of this Court, I have never known them to be looked upon as anything else. It seems to us, moreover, that the terms of section 34 of the Evidence Act do not give such papers any weight beyond that of corroborative evidence."(4)

Value of these papers

With regard to the value to be attached to these papers, there have been varying decisions. In a suit for possession on the allegation of wrongful dispossession, it was said —"Jama-wasil-baki papers in a case of this kind are really of very little consequence or value, as it is a matter of perfect ease for either party in the suit to produce any number of such papers: the absence of particular papers of this kind does not appear to be a very material omission."(5) In the case of Allyat Chinaman v. Juggut Chunder(6) the Court(7) remarked as follows: "But it is contended their allegations are corroborated by the jama-wasil-baki papers filed by the respondent, in which the names of these raiyats are entered. Now, we observe that such a document — a private memorandum made for the zemindar's own use and by his own servants—must be looked up[illegible] be easier in a case like the present t[illegible] by the production of a document w[illegible] and to any required pattern. Has then this document been attested? We think not. Doubtless a person calling himself a kurkun's muharrir has been produced to depose to I C's (the tehsildar's) signature to this particular paper; but the tehsildar himself has not been examined, and it is not pretended that the man is either dead or unable to depose. The best evidence was required to prove a document so naturally open to suspicion, and that evidence has not been given." In a subsequent case, (8) Norman, J., referring to this case, said: "As to the value of jama-wasil-baki papers as evidence in rent-suits for the zemindar, the Deputy Collector quotes a passage from the 5th Volume of the Weekly Reporter, p. 243, and treats it as if the language applied to all jama-wasil-bakis. But there is a wide distinction between the case with which the learned Judges were then dealing, and to which they applied their remarks, and the present. Here we have a series of jama-wasil-bakis apparently regularly kept for ten years, with one gap, from 1249 to 1258. There is a single paper unattested, the writer of which was not called and his absence not accounted for. Of course, all books of account and entries made by or on behalf of a party when produced as evidence in his favour must be received with caution; but there seems to be no reason why a series of collection-accounts, or jama-wasil-baki papers, appearing to be regularly kept, should not be entitled to credit on the same principle as other contemporary records made and kept by the party producing them in

(1) Roushan Bibee v. Hurray Kristo, 8 C., 931 (1882), per Garth, C. J.

(2) Nurunmoyi v. Jokur Mahomed, 10 C. L. R., 545 (1882).

(3) 22 W. R., 349, v. ante, p. 342.

(4) Ib. at p. 546, per Prinsep & Beyer, JJ.; but see ante, 342 and Note

(5) Shee Suhaye v. Goodur Roy, 8 W. R., 328 (1867), per Jackson, J., but see Roushan Bibee v. Hurray Kristo, 8 C., 926, supra

(6) 5 W. R., 242 (1866)

(7) Phear and Glover, JJ.

(8) Khetro Monee v. Rejoy Gobind, 7 W. R., 533 (1867).

the ordinary course of his business." In a case,(1) where, in order to rebut the presumption in favour of a permanent tenure created by the fourth section, Act X of 1859, the fact of the rate at which rent was paid having varied, was the fact sought to be proved by jama-wasil-baki and similar papers, it was observed :—"The Judge (of the Lower Court) alludes to the evidence of the gomastahs who filed or attested certain papers of the zemindar. Such papers, we need hardly observe, cannot incontestably prove variations in a raiyat's jama, unless it can be shown not merely that the jama-wasil-baki and similar papers show a varying rate, but that the raiyat has paid at a varying rate, otherwise every raiyat would be at the mercy of a zemindar or his agents. The Judge says that the witnesses attest these papers, but he does not say how he considers the raiyats bound by them.(2)

Jamabandi and other papers

The jamabandi shows the quantity of land held by each cultivator, its different qualities (i.e., what is grown upon it), the rate of rent for each kind of land, the total rent for all the land of that particular kind in each cultivator's possession, and, lastly, the grand total for all the lands of every kind held by him (3) Many of the following cases were decided under the law as it stood prior to the passing of this Act In Guppo Koer v. Aalay Ahmed,(4) D N. Mitter, J., said . "The jamabandi paper may be only used as corroborative evidence, viz , of the same value as that which is attached to books of account under Act II of 1855. These papers were admittedly prepared by the zemindar's own agent in the absence of the raiyats, and if the mere fact of the agent coming forward to swear that he wrote the papers is to justify a Court accepting every fact recited therein as true against the raiyats, no raiyat in this country would be safe" And where certain jamabandi papers prepared by former patwari were produced in order to show the rent paid by the defendant during previous years, Phear, J , said "Had the former patwari come forward as a witness and sworn that he had collected rent from the defendant at the rate shown in the jamabandi and that the jamabandi was his own record of the fact, then this would have afforded very material evidence in support of the plaintiff's claim . but this man is not called, and his jamabandi papers without him are valueless"(5) Jamabandi papers for the year in respect of which rent is claimed, made out by the officers of the person claiming the rent, cannot be evidence of his right to that which they set forth ; though the evidence of the patwari (as being the officer usually charged with the duty of collecting rent) as to the amounts collected in previous years, corroborated by the jamabandis of those years, would be about as conclusive in respect of the claim as it well could be (6) But where the raiyats signed a jamabandi they were held to be bound by it (7) A tenant cannot be sued for enhanced rent upon a jamabandi to the terms of which he has not consented.(8) As to Jaibaki,(9) Ism-navisi,(10) Settlement Behari

(1) Gopal Mundul v. Nobo Kissen 5 W R (Act X), 83 (1866)

(2) Ib , at p. 84 , but see Shib Pershad v Promotho Nath, 10 W R., 193 (1868); and Belat Khan v Rash Behary, supra.

(3) Field, Ev., 4th Ed., Appendix, 739

(4) 14 W. R., 474 (1871) s. c , 6 B. L R App., 62 , and see Chamarnee Bibee v. Ayenoddah Sardar, 9 W. R., 451 (1868).

(5) Bhugwan Dutt v Sheo Mungal 22 W R , 258 ((1874).

(6) Dhanookdharee Sahee v Toomey, 20 W. R , 142 (1873); and see Kishore Dass v. Purnn Mahton, 20 W. R., 171 (1873)

(7) Watson & Co v Mohendra Nath, 23 W R , 436 (1875)

(8) Enayetoolah Meah v Nobo Coomar, 20 W R., 207 (1873), Reazooddeen Mahommed v McAlpine, 22 W R , 540 (1874) both followed in Akshaya Kumar v Shama Churn, 16 C 556 (1889)

(9) Bodonath Paroiye v Russick Lall, 9 W. R 274 (1868)

(10) Ferguson v Government, 9 W R., 158 (1868), Farquharson v Dwarkanath Sing, 8 B L. R., 504 (1871), s c., 14 M I A , 259; Erskine v. Government, 8 W. R., 232 (1867).

and Awargha,(1) Hastabud,(2) and Kanungo(3) papers, see cases cited below.(4)

Relevancy of entry in public record made in performance of duty.

35. An entry in any public or other official book, register, or record, stating a fact in issue or relevant fact, and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty, or by any other person in performance of a duty specially enjoined by the law of the country in which such book, register, or record is kept, is itself a relevant fact.

Principle.—The principle upon which the entries mentioned in this section are received in evidence depends upon the public duty of the person who keeps the book, register or record to make such entries after satisfying himself of their truth. It is not that the writer makes them contemporaneously, or of his own knowledge,(5) for no person in a private capacity can make such entries (6) They are admissible though not confirmed by oath or cross-examination, partly because in some cases they are required by law to be kept and in all are made by authorized and accredited persons appointed for the purpose, and under the sanction of the official duty, partly on account of the publicity of the subject-matter, and in some instances of their antiquity. Moreover, though the facts stated in these entries are of a public nature, it would often be difficult to prove them by means of sworn witnesses.(7)

ss. 65 (e), (f), 77 (Proof of public documents.)
s. 74 (Definition of "public documents.")
ss. 76, 77 (Certified copies of public documents.)
s. 78 (Proof of certain official documents)
s. 79 (Genuineness of certified copies)
s. 81 (Genuineness of documents directed to be kept by law.)

Public and Official books, registers, and records —Marriage Registers(8) —Acts XV of 1865 (Parsi Marriage and Divorce), ss. 6, 8, and Schedule: III of 1872 (Non Christian Marriage), ss. 13, 13A, 14, and Schedule III; XV of 1872 (Christian Marriage) ss. 28, 30, 31, 32—37, 54, 62, 79, 80, and Schedules III, IV; 14 & 15 Vic., Cap. 40; Acts VI of 1886 (Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages), ss. 7, 9, 32—35A; I of 1876 (B. C.) (Muhammedan Marriages).(9) Birth and Death Registers —Act VI of 1889 (Registration of Births, Deaths and Marriages), ss. 7, 9, 18, 22, 25, 28, 32—35A. Registers or Records of Baptism, Naming, Dedication, Burial —Act VI of 1886 (supra), ss.

(1) Bunsarry Lall v. Forlong, 9 W. R., 239 (1868).

(2) Ram Narang v. Tripura Sundaree, 9 W. R., 105 (1868).

(3) Khetro Monee v. Beejoy Gobind, 7 W. R., 537 (1867), Nund Dutijut v. Tara Chand, 2 W. R. (Act X), 13 (1865), Dwarkanath Chuckerbutty v. Tara Soondari, 8 W. R., 517 (1867).

(4) And v. Field, Ev., 217, 218.

(5) The dictum of Garth, C. J., which appears to be to the contrary in Saraswati Dasi v. Dhanpat Singh, 9 C., 434 (1882), was dissented from in Shoshi Bhooson v. Girish Chunder, 20 C., 940 (1893), and is, it is submitted, opposed to the decision of the Privy Council in Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 5 Cal., 744, 751, 753 (1879); cf. also acceptance of this principle in ss. 19 A, 20, 21 of Act VI of 1886 (Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages), post.

(6) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 298; Doe v. Andrews, 15 Q. B., 756, per Erle, J., Sturla v. Freccia, 5 App. Cas., 624—644, Lyell v. Kennedy, 56 L. T., 647, Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, ante.

(7) Starkie, Ev., 272, 273, Taylor, Ev., § 1591, see remarks of Privy Council in Raja Bommarauze v. Rangasamy Mudaly, 6 M. I. A., at p. 249 (1855), Nawab Dawath v. Juggul Kishore, 23 C., 370, 371.

(8) See also following repealed Acts: V of 1852 (Marriage by Registrars), ss. 41, 42, 49; XXV of 1864 (Marriage of Christians), V of 1865, s. 44 (Marriage of Christians).

(9) v. Khadem Ali v. Tajmunnissa, 10 C., 607 (1884).

32—35A. Registers directed to be kept by the Indian Registration Act :—Act XVI of 1908 (Indian Registration), Part XI.(1) Log-books :—Act I of 1859 (Merchant Seamen), ss. 103—108 ; 17 & 18 Vic , Cap. 104 (Merchant Shipping Act), ss. 280—285. Registers of Printing Presses, Newspapers and books published in India :—Act V of 1867 (Printing Presses and Newspapers), ss 6—8, and Part V; Registry of Copyright :—Act XX of 1847 (Copyright), ss. 3, 5, 6, 11, 14. Registers of Inventions and Designs(2) :—Act V of 1888 (Inventions and Designs), ss. 12—14, 52, 61 Registers of Literary, Scientific and Charitable Societies :—Act XXI of 1860 (Registration of Societies). Registers of Companies :—Act VI of 1882 (Indian Companies), ss. 47, 60, 68, 70 ; Part V and passim.(3) Register of British Ships :—Act X of 1841 (Ship Registry), s. 4, 17 & 18 Vic., Cap. 104 (Merchant Shipping Act) ; Records of Rights :—Act XVII of 1887 (Punjab Land Revenue) ; N.-W. P. Act III of 1901 ; (N.-W. P. Land Revenue) Settlement Record :—Beng. Reg. VII of 1822, cl. 9, s. 9. Register of Tenures :—Act II of 1869 (B. C.) (Chota Nagpur Tenure).(4) Registers :—Act VII (B C.) of 1876 ("Bengal Land Registration.")(5) Registers of Common and Special Registry :—Act XI of 1859 (Sales for Arrears of Revenue, Lower Provinces), Thirty-ninth section (6).

Taylor, Ev., §§ 1591—1595, 1774—1780 , Powell, Ev., 357—364 , Roscoe, N. P Ev., §§ 24—129, 209—216 . Steph. Dig., Art. 34 ; Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed , 298.

COMMENTARY

"Public" "Official" "Duty."

The Act does not contain any definition of either of the terms " public " or " official " or of a " public servant ", but for the purposes of interpretation reference may be made to the seventy-fourth(7) and seventy-eighth sections, post, and to section 21 of the Penal Code in which the term " public servant " is defined. Certain Acts declare that the officers appointed under them are to be deemed " public servants " Thus, every Registrar of Births and Deaths appointed under Act VI of 1886 is deemed to be a " public servant " within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.(8) So also are census officers,(9) and registering officers appointed under Act XVI of 1908.(10) It has been queried whether the section applies to an entry in a public register or record kept outside British India.(11)

This section in the main follows, but somewhat extends the English law on the same subject.(12) The book, register or record must either be a public

" public document " has been defined to be a document that is made for the

(1) See also repealed Acts VIII of 1871 , XX of 1866 XVI of 1864 , XI of 1851 , XVIII of 1847 , IV of 1845 , XIX of 1843 , I of 1843 , and XXX of 1838

(2) See also repealed Acts XV of 1859 (Patents) and XIII of 1872 (Patterns and Designs)

(3) v Ram Dass v Official Liquidator 9 A , 368 (1887)

(4) v Asrpal Narain v. Sulurmoni, 19 C , 99 Pertab Udai v Mani Das 22 C , 112 (1894)

(5) v. post cases under this Act.

(6) Lukhynarain Chattopadhya v Gouachand Goswamy, 9 C , 116 (1882)

(7) See Somar Nath v Jugul Kishore, 33 C., 366, 369 (1895).

(8) Act VI of 1886, s 14 A manager of an estate employed under the Court of Wards has been held to be a public servant under the Penal Code, P v Mathura Prasad, 21 A , 127 (1898), E v Sidhu, 26 A , 542 (1904). [Gorait]

(9) Act XVII of 1890 (Census) s. 13 Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Evidence Act, Records of Census are not admissible in evidence in any civil proceeding or any proceeding under Chapters 12 or 36 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Act XVII of 1898), s 12)

(10) Act XVI of 1908, s 84 (Indian Registration).

(11) Ponnammal v Sundaram Pillai, 23 M , 499 (1900).

(12) v Field, Ev . 221

(13) Taylor, Ev., § 1592n., and cases there cited

(14) Sturla v. Freccia, 5 App. Cas., 643

purpose of the public making use of it—especially where there is a judicial or quasi judicial duty to inquire. Its very object must be that the public, all persons concerned in it, may have access to it.(1) Registers kept under private authority for the benefit or information of private individuals are inadmissible.(2) Two classes of entries are contemplated by this section: (a) by public servants, (b) by persons other than public servants. In the case of the latter the duty to make the entry must be specially enjoined by the law of the country in which the book, register, or record is kept (the section thus includes British, foreign or colonial register); (3) in the case of entries by the former it is sufficient for their admissibility that they have been made in discharge of official duty. But in either case, as well in India as in England, the entry must have been made by a person whose duty it was to make it. Provision, however, is made by Act VI of 1886 for the admission in evidence under certain conditions of certain records and registers made otherwise than in the performance of a duty specially enjoined (4) (v. post) In England it has been held that the entries should be made promptly or at least without such long delay as to impair their credibility. Thus an entry made more than a year after the event has been rejected.(5) In India such delay will go to the weight of evidence only. Errors, erasures, alterations and minor irregularities affect the weight and not the admissibility of the entries (6) So also the fact that the entry is to the interest of the officer or body keeping the register (7) Where objection was taken to the reception in evidence of certain village-papers directed to be made by Reg. VII of 1822, on the ground that they were not prepared or attested by the Settlement Officer in person as required by law, the Privy Council said "When documents are found to be recorded as being properly made up and when they are found to be acted upon as authentic records, the rule of law is to presume that everything had been rightly done in their preparation unless the contrary appears."(8)

Documents held admissible or not

In the last case it was also held, on the question whether there did or did not exist a custom in the Bahrulia clan in Oudh excluding daughters from inheriting, that entries in a wajib-ul-arz were properly admitted to prove this custom, this custom being a usage of the kind which Settlement Officers were required by Reg. VII of 1822 to ascertain and record.(9) A wajib-ul arz being an official village-record is always admissible in evidence, though its weight may be very slight or considerable according to circumstances (10) A wajib-ul-arz prepared

---

(1) Sturla v. Freccia, 6 App Cas, 643

(2) Taylor, Ev, § 1592*n*, and cases there cited See Baij Nath v. Sukhu Mahton, 18 C, 534 (1891)

(3) With regards to the books recognised as official registers and public documents in England, see Taylor, Ev, 1596*n* Roscoe, N P Ev, 124—129, 209—216; in particular as to births, deaths and marriages in India, pp 127, 128 Ratcliff v Ratcliff, 1 Sw. & Tr, 467, Queen's Proctor v Fry, 4 P. D, 230, 14 & 15 Vic, Cap 40, s. 11, 42 & 43 Vic, Cap 8

(4) Act VI of 1886 (Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages), s. 35

(5) Ilse v Bray, 8 B & C, 813.

(6) Lyell v. Kennedy, 14 App. Cas, 437. As to the correction of errors in registers under Act VI of 1886, r. s 28 of that Act.

(7) Sturla v. Freccia, 5 App Cas, 643; Irish Society v Derry, 12 C. & F., 641.

(8) Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 5 c, 752

(9) Ib A wajib ul-arz is primâ facie evidence of customs its object is to supply a record of existing local custom see the following cases — Jan Singh v Ganga, 2 A, 876 (1880); Muhammad Hasan v Munna Lal, 8 A, 434 (1886); Deokinandan v Sri Ram, 12 A, 257 (1889); Superundhwaja Prasad v Garurudhwaja Prasad, 15 A, 147 (1893), Uma Parsad v. Gandharp Singh, 15 C 20 (1887), Sadhu Sahu v. Raja Ram, 16 A, 40 (1894), Garurudhwaja Prasad v. Superundhwaja Prasad, 5 C W. N, 33 (1900); s c, 23 A, 37, Ik Nasir v Manik Chand, 25 A, 90 (1902), Ram Sarup v Sital Prasad, 1 All. L J, 278 (1904), s c, 26 A, 549. [Entries in wajib ul-arz. Entry primâ facie evidence under this section of existence of custom]; Gokul Dichit v. Maharaj Dichit, 2 All L J, 790 (1905). Mussumat Lall v. Murli Dhar, 10 C W. N., 730, P. C, 8 Bom., 402

(10) Mahammad Imam v Surdar Hussain, 2 C. W. N, 737 (1898)

and attested according to law is primâ facie evidence of the existence of any custom of pre-emption which it records. It is a document of a public character which is prepared with all publicity, and accepted by the Courts as sufficiently strong evidence of the existence of any custom recorded in it so as to cast upon parties denying the custom the burden of proof.(1) In the undermentioned case it was held that upon a question of custom a wajib-ul-arz is generally more valuable as a record of opinion of persons presumably acquainted with the custom, than as an official record of the custom; but if duly attested by Settlement officials and signed by zemindars of the village to which it relates it may be admitted in evidence under this section.(2) In a suit for possession of a fishery, an admission made by the defendant's predecessor in title in a written statement filed in a previous suit was allowed to be proved under this section by the production of the decree in such previous suit, it being the duty of the Court under the old practice of Mofussil Courts to enter in the decree an abstract of the pleadings in each case.(3) Quinquennial papers were rejected by the Lower Court: the latter was ordered to take these into consideration on the remand of the case (4) Revenue-registers in the Madras Presidency, judgments, and other public records were admitted in Byathamma v. Arulla.(5) The measurement papers prepared by Butwara Ameen do not,(6) but chittahs of the revenue-ficate is neither a book nor a register, nor a record kept by any officer in accordance with any law, but is a certificate, as it professes to be, of which there is only this one, and which is not a public record or register of any kind, but is a document issued to a particular person giving to that particular person, and only to him, a particular kind of authority. It is no evidence of minority under this section.(8) A tera khana register (so called from the number of columns in the statement or register) prepared by a patwari under rules framed by the Board of Revenue under section 166 of Regulation XII of 1817, is not a public document, nor is the patwari preparing the same a public servant. It is a document prepared in the zemindar's sheristá by the patwari who is paid by the zemindar but approved by the Collector. These registers are no doubt kept for the information of the Collector, but that does not make them binding as official records of the facts contained in them.(9) Copies of judgments have been admitted under this section.(10) Statements of facts made by a Settlement Officer in the column of remarks in the dharepatrak are admissible as being entries in a public record stating facts, and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty; but the opinion of the survey-officer as evidenced by the effect of the dharepatrak and the place assigned to the defendant's ancestor in it, the survey-officer not being at that time invested with authority to decide questions of tenure between the khot and his tenants, is not, even if regularly recorded admissible.(11) A statement of a witness to a police-officer under the provisions

---

(1) Ali Nasib v. Manik Chand, 25 A., 90, 96 (1902)

(2) Mussmat Parbati Kuar v. Ram Chandra-pal Kuar, 8 C. C., 94

(3) Parbutty Dassi v. Purno Chunder, 9 C., 586 (1883), followed in Byathamma v. Arulla, 15 M., 23 (1891) and Thama v. Kondan, 15 M., 378. cf Subramanyan v. Parameswaran, 11 M., 12 (1887)

(4) Shaik Bhuwan v. Girish Chunder, 20 C. 942 (1893)

(5) 15 M., 24, 25, supra

(6) Mida Chowdhury v. Jhiru Mussmat, 6 C. L. R., 139 (1880)

(7) Grindra Chandra v. Rajendra Nath, 1 C. W. N., 530 533 (1897)

(8) Satis Chunder v. Mohendra Lal 17 C., 849 (1890) followed in Gunjra Kuar v. Aldath Pande, 18 A., 478 (1896)

(9) Easi Nath v. Sukha Mahton, 18 C., 534 (1891), followed in Somar Dumdh v. Jogdhuree Singh, 23 C., 366 (1895).

(10) Krishnasami Ayyangar v. Papyapala Ayyangar, 18 M., 73, 78 (1895).

(11) Madhavrao Appaji v. Dewnal, 21 B., 195 (1896).

of section 162 of the Criminal Proceduce Code, reduced to writing, is not a record within the meaning of this section.(1)

In a case in which the question was a [illegible] existence of a customary right and certain reports of former Collectors c[illegible]le under sections 10 and 11 of Mad. Reg. VII of [illegible]e Privy Council said :—" Their Lordships think it must be conceded that when these reports express opinions on the private rig[illegible] are not to be regarded as having judicial authority c[illegible] lic officers made in the course of duty a[illegible]e entitled to great consideration, so far as [illegible] ceedings and historical facts, and also in so far as they are relevant to explain the conduct and acts of parties in relation to them and the proceedings of the Government founded upon them."(2) A single document may be a public record within the meaning of this section, and a report made by District Officer in the discharge of his duty as such officer is accordingly admissible in evidence.(3) A document purporting to be a certified copy of a will taken from the Protocol of Record in Ceylon was held not to be admissible under this section.(4)

Proof by Public Record.

If the entry states a relevant fact, then the entry having stated that relevant fact, the entry itself becomes by force of the section a relevant fact ; that is to say, it may be given in evidence as a relevant fact, because being made by a public officer or other person in performance of a special duty it contains an entry of a fact which is relevant (5) The entry is evidence, though the person who made it is alive and not called as a witness For the proof of public and official [illegible] 76 to 78 (post). Though the register may be primâ facie [illegible] horized to be inserted therein, yet the person [illegible] sumption [illegible] and the statements in them may be [illegible]

Facts of which public records are evidence

This section does not make the public book evidence to show that a par[illegible] entry has not been made in it.(8) An entry is evidence of those matters [illegible] (9) of a particular [illegible] t law, or of matters entered by a public [illegible] y (10) But entries of matters which there is no duty to record are inadmissible (11) Where a husband and wife (Mahommedans) registered their marriage under Bengal Act I of 1876, setting out in the form prescribed in Schedule A to the Act, as a "special condition" that the wife under certain circumstances therein set out might divorce her husband, it was held in a suit by the husband that the

(1) Ismb Mandal v. R, 5 C W N, 65 (1900), s c, 28 C, 348

(2) Mutta Ramlinga v. Perianayagum Pillai, 1 I A, 209, 238, 239, see Ledanund Singh v. Mussumat Lakhputtee, 22 W. R, 231 (1874), in which a report was rejected.

(3) Raman v. Secretary of State, 11 Mad L J, 115 (taken from headnote of Digest, report not being to hand).

(4) Ponnammal v. Sundaram Pillai, 23 M, 499, 503 (1900)

(5) Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 5 C, 754, Parbutty Dassi v. Purno Chunder, ante

(6) Ram Das v. Official Liquidator, 9 A, 396

(7) Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, 5 C, 755

(8) In the matter of Jaggun Lall, 7 C. L R 356 (1880), and see R v. Gross Chunder, 10 C, 1024 (1884), Ali Nasir v Manik Chand, 25 A, 90 (1902)

(9) Doe d Fenner v. Andrews, 15 Q B, 756; Roscoe, N P Ev, 124

(10) Cf Lekraj Kuar v Mahpal Singh, ante, and Parbutty Dassi v. Purno Chunder, ante

(11) Lyell v. Kennedy, supra. The section does not extend to entries which a Public Officer is not expected to and is not permitted to make Ali Nasir v. Manik Chand, 25 A, at p. 104, the presumption as to truth and accuracy cannot be extended to entries which were never intended to find a place in the record Ib., at p. 103

"special condition" was a matter which, under the provisions of the Act, it was the duty of the Mahommedan Registrar to enter in the register, and that, therefore, a copy of the entry in the register was legal evidence of the facts therein contained.(1) An entry of a particular fact is none the less evidence, though the person enjoined to make that entry has no personal knowledge of that fact, as where it is reported to him.(2)

The admissibility of this class of evidence does not depend upon personal knowledge (v. ante). And so when the manner, in which certain wajib-ul-araiz (or village-papers), directed to be made by Regulation VII of 1822, were made up with respect to a custom, appeared to be that the officer recorded the statements of persons who were connected with the villages in the pargana in which the taluq in suit was situated, and objection was taken to their reception in evidence on the ground that they were not prepared or attested by the Settlement Officer in person, as required by [illegible] of them did not show that the information they received, it w
the papers had been prepared and attested by officers subordinate to the Settlement Officer, and that the fact that the officers recorded these statements and attested them by their signature amounted to an acknowledgment by them that the information they contained was worthy of credit, and gave a true description of the custom (3)

In Saraswati Dasi v. Dhanpat Singh,(4) Garth, C. J., said that he thought that entries in a register made by the Collector under Ben. Act VII of 1876 (Bengal Land Registration) could never be evidence of title nor even of possession, except perhaps in the case of entries made under the fifty-fifth section,(5) and that he understood this section (section 35) to relate to that class of cases where a public officer has to enter in a register or other book some actual fact which is known to him, as for instance, the fact of a death or marriage, but that the entry that any particular person is the proprietor of certain land, is not, properly speaking, the entry of a fact but is a statement that the person is entitled to the property, and is the record of a right, not of a fact.(6) But in a subsequent case,(7) in which the plaintiffs tendered in evidence extracts from the [illegible] authority of Saraswati Dasi v. Dhanpat Singh, it was held (dissenting from the dictum of Garth, C. J., which, it was pointed out was not assented to by Field, J., and was opposed to the decision of the Privy Council in Lekhraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh),(8) that the entries being of matters which it was the Collector's duty to record, and in the form directed by the law to be kept, certified copies thereof were admissible in evidence quantum valeant.(9) In the undermentioned case,(10) the Court said with regard to these entries "as evidence of ownership their value may be, and I think is, very small, but it is impossible to say that

---

(1) Khadem Ali v. Tajimunnissa 10 C., 690 (1884)

(2) Doe v. Andrews, supra, per Garth C. J., contra (v. post)

(3) Lekraj Kuar v. Mahpal Singh, supra, 751, 757

(4) 9 C., 431

(5) Act VII of 1876 (B. C.), which provides for cases in which there is a dispute between two persons, as to which is entitled to be registered, and the Collector has to ascertain which of those persons is in possession

(6) Saraswati Dasi v. Dhanpat Singh, supra, 434, 435, and see Ram Bhusan v. Jeldi Mahto, 8 C., 853 (1882)

(7) Shoshi Bhusan v. Grish Chunder, 20 C., 940 (1893)

(8) 5 C., 744

(9) Shoshi Bhusan v. Grish Chunder, supra, 942.

(10) Gungamoyee Debi v. Apurba Chandra, Suit 632 of 1901, Cal. H. C., 28 Nov., 1902.

they are not evidence, and I therefore admitted them."(1) It has been held in Bombay that a Collector's book is kept for purposes of revenue not for purposes [illegible] in the Colllector's books [illegible] lish that person's title,

[illegible] purporting to be so entered or of the facts [illegible]
A certified copy of certain registers of marriage made otherwise than in performance of a special duty is admissible under Act VI of 1886 for the purpose of proving the marriage to which the entry relates (7) The solemnization of a marriage [illegible] British India may be proved in England by the production [illegible] to which the entry relates(8) [illegible] Registrar is admissible for the same purpose. A certified copy of certain registers of birth, baptism, naming, dedication, death or burial made otherwise than in performance of a special duty, is admissible under Act VI of 1886 for the purpose of proving the birth, baptism, naming, dedication, death or burial to which the entry relates.(12) The register of members of a Company is primâ facie evidence of any matters [illegible] Companies Act directed or authorized, to be inserted therein.(13) [illegible] and [illegible] ce of such [illegible] tings report.(15) The [illegible]

(1) Per Henderson, J.—The value of these entries (which have frequently been admitted in other cases) must to some extent depend upon the circumstances proved In the case cited, the following documents were admitted —Collectorate Registers, Registers under the Land Registration Act, Land revenue challans, Municipal Bills, Collectorate Bill Registers, Mutation-proceedings, Assessment Register of Calcutta Municipality and pottah granted by Government. As to the nature of the latter, see Freeman v. Faidie, 1 M. I. A , 330, 338 346

(2) Fatma v. Durga, 10 Bom. H C. R , 187 (1873); Bhagoji v. Bapuji, 13 B , 75 (1888), Lila Khaser v. Bila Fakha, 6 Bom L. R., 983 (1904).

(3) Act VI of 1886 (Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages), s 9

(4) Act XV of 1865 (Parsi Marriage and Divorce), ss. 6 8.

(5) Act III of 1872 (Non Christian Marriage), ss 13, 14

(6) Act XV of 1872 (Christian Marriage), ss. 79, 80

(7) Act VI of 1886, s. 35 [As to Mahommedan marriages, v Act I of 1876 (B C.), and Alladem Ali v Tajimunnissa, ante]

(8) Westmacott v Westmacott, P. D (1899), 183 s c , 3 C W N. cxlii

(9) Lyell v Kennedy, 14 App Cas , 437, 448

(10) In the estate of Mary Goodrich (deceased), Payne v Bennett (1904), 1 K. B , 138, diss from In re Brittle, L R , 9 Eq , 373. See 1 All L. J . 76*n*.

(11) Act VI of 1886, s 9.

(12) Ib , s 35

(13) Act VII of 1882 (Indian Companies), s 6), Ram Das v Official Liquidator, ante.

(14) Act VI of 1882, s. 34.

(15) Ib , s. 67.

roceedings.(1) When a Company is being any and liquidators are, as between the the truth of all matters purporting to be under section 52 of the Indian Registra- e of proving the contents of the original eclaration under the Printing Presses and News-papers Act is primâ facie evidence that the person whose name is subscribed to such declaration was printer $\frac{\text{or}}{\text{and}}$ publisher of the periodical work mentioned in the declaration.(4) A certified copy of an entry in the book of Registry of Copyright is primâ facie proof of the proprietorship or assignment of copyright or license as therein expressed.(5) An entry in the register of Inventions and Designs will be relevant under the section.(6) Certified copies of documents of Literary, Scientific and Charitable Societies filed with the Registrar are primâ facie evidence of the matters therein contained.(7) Certified and sealed copies of proceedings taken and had under the Insolvent Debtors Act are, without proof of seal or other proof whatsoever, sufficient evidence of the same.(8) Entries in registers prescribed to be kept by the various Municipal Acts, and the proceedings of Municipal Committees recorded in accordance with the provisions of the particular Act applicable thereto, will also be relevant under this section, as also will all other entries in any public and official books, registers and records, directed to be kept by any law for the time being (v. ante, Cognate References to Section and Appendix). In England it has been considered doubtful how far a register can be received to prove incidental particulars concerning the main transaction even where these are required by law to be included in the entry.

It is said that if such particulars are necessarily within the knowledge of the Registering Officer they will be admissible, otherwise they seem to be evidence only when expressly made so by Statute.(9) But it is submitted from a consideration of the words of the section and on the authority of the cases previously cited, that (even where not so expressly declared) a public register in India is evidence of all particulars required by law to be inserted therein, whether they relate to the main or incidental fact or transaction Under this section a statement made by a Survey Officer, in a Village Register of Lands, that the name of this or that person was entered as occupant would be admissible, if relevant, but it would not be admiss ble to prove the reasons for such an entry as facts in another case (10) So also statements of facts made by a Settlement Officer in the column of remarks in the dharepatrak but not his reasons for the same (even though they may consist of statements of collateral facts, which it was no part of his duty to inquire into) are admissible in evidence.(11)

Proof of identity of parties named in record.

The identity of the parties named in the register must be proved independently. Thus in the case of a register of marriage, as the register affords no proof of the identity of the parties, some evidence of that fact must be given, as by calling the minister, clerk or attesting witnesses or others present, the hand-

(1) Act VI of 1882, s 92

(2) Ib, s 198

(3) Act XVI of 1908, s 57 See also Act VII of 1876 (B. C.) (Bengal Land Registration), Ram Bhasun v Jodi Mahto, 8 C, 853 Sarnomoyi Dasi v. Dhanpat Singh, Shoshi Bhusan v Girish Chunder, ante

(4) Act XXV of 1867, ss 7, 8

(5) Act XX of 1847, s 3.

(6) Act V of 1888 (Inventions and Designs), ss 14, 61 (b).

(7) Act XXII of 1860 (Registration of Literary, Scientific and Charitable Societies), s 19

(8) 11 & 12 Vic, Cap 21 s 74, and see s 78

(9) Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 301, Doe v Barnes, 1 M & R, 386, Huntley v Donovan, 15 Q B 96

(10) Govindrao Deshmukh v Raghu Deshmukh, 8 B, 547 (1884), followed in Madhavrao Appaji v Dennal, 21 B, 695 (1896), as to Collectors' books as evidence of title, v Fatma v Darya Saheb 10 Bom H C Rep, 187 (1873), Bhaggi v Bapuji, 13 B, 75 (1888).

(11) Madhavrao Appaji v. Dennal, 21 B, 695 (1896).

writing of the parties may be proved.(1) To prove the handwriting of the parties in the register, it is not necessary to produce the original register for that purpose, but the witness may speak to the handwriting in it without producing (2) A photographic likeness may often be used for the purpose of identification: this is constantly done in actions for divorce,(3) and has been even allowed in a Criminal trial. So where a woman was tried for bigamy, a photograph of her first husband was allowed by Willes, J., to be shown to the witness present at the first marriage, in order to prove his identity with the person mentioned in the certificate of that marriage.(4)

Relevancy of statements in maps, charts and plans

36. Statements of facts in issue or relevant facts, made in published maps or charts generally offered for public sale, or in maps or plans, made under the authority of Government, as to matters usually represented or stated in such maps, charts or plans, are themselves relevant facts.

Principle.—This section includes two classes of maps: (a) published maps or charts generally offered for public sale, and (b) maps or plans made under the authority of Government The admissibility of the first class depends on the ground that the publication being accessible to the whole community any inaccuracy ie ground that they must be taken to have been made by, and to be the result of, the study or inquiries of competent persons and further (in the case of surveys and the like), they contain or concern matters in which the public are interested.(6)

s. 3 ("Fact in issue.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 (A map or plan is a "document")
s. 75 (3), (Reference to maps by Court.)
ss. 74-77 (Proof of public documents.)
s 83 (Presumption of accuracy in case of Government maps or plans.)
s. 83 (Proof of maps or plans made for the purpose of any cause.) s 87 (Presumption as to any published map or chart.) s 90 (Presumption as to map or plan 30 years old.)

Taylor, Ev., §§ 1674, 1767—1773, 1777, Starkie, Ev, §§ 284—291, 404—408; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 194—196; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 313; Steph. Dig, Art. 35.

COMMENTARY.

Maps, Charts and Plans.

This section is a considerable extension of the English rule (7) In the well-known English case of R. v. Orton, maps of Australia were given in evidence to show the situation of So also in the case of Pre cil compared one of the m

(1) Roscoe, N P. Ev , 124
(2) Ib. ; Sayer v. Glossop 2 Exch , 409.
(3) In Martin v Martin, 3 C. W. N., lxxvii (1899), the respondent was identified by her photograph However in Firth v. Firth, L. R. P. D. (1890), 74, it was held that in matrimonial cases, except under very special circumstances the court will not act upon identification by a photograph only.
(4) Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 124, R. v. Tolson, 4 F. & F., 103.
(5) Field, Ev., 224.
(6) Cf Taylor, Ev , § 1767
(7) v Taylor, Ev., §§ 1770, 1771, Steph Dig, Art. 35
(8) Steph Dig, Art 35, p. 47, note and for a recent case on admissibility of railway maps, see Blue & Deschamps v. Red Mountain Railway Co., P. C. (1899), A. C, 361.
(9) 2 B. L. R. (P C), 111 (1869); s. c., 12 W. R. (P. C), 6.
(10) Ib, at p. 139

A mahalwari map is relevant under this section.(1) As to the rule that maps drawn for one purpose are not admissible in a suit for another purpose, see Note to section 83. The maps and plans made under the authority of Government referred to in this section are (as has also been held in the case of section 83) maps or plans made for public purposes such as those of the survey which have been in numerous cases referred to and admitted in evidence (v. post). The provisions of the section are not applicable to a map made by Government for a particular purpose, which is not a public purpose, such as the settlement of the silted bed of a certain river.(2) The statements must be as to matters usually represented or stated in such maps: i.e. (generally, speaking), in the first class of maps, the physical features of the country, the names and positions of towns, and the like; and in the second class, not only such features but also boundaries of villages, estates and (in khasra maps) fields.(3) In a case decided under the 13th section the corresponding section of Act II of 1855, it was held that "Government survey-maps are evidence, not only with regard to the physical features of the country depicted, but also with regard to the other circumstances which the Officers deputed to make the maps are specially commissioned to note down; and that an ordinary Government survey-map was for this reason evidence as to the boundaries of any plots or estates which stand under a separate number in the Collector's books. Further than this, they are not evidence as to rights of ownership."(4) In the first(5) of the undermentioned cases, pencil memoranda on a Government survey-map were held to be admissible. and the second,(6) the Court observed with reference to a chart of the River Hooghly —"The chart to which I have already referred is issued under the authority of Government and the notes thereon may be referred to as authoritative. I find one note which is worthy of attention worded thus Owners of vessels are strongly advised not to risk their vessels laying at anchor awaiting orders at the Sandheads between the months of April to November inclusive. Vessels are recommended to go into Saugor Roads where there is a safe anchorage and telegraph station." The record of the proceedings and the maps of the survey being public documents, are provable by means of certified copies.(7) Maps or plans made by Government are to be presumed to be accurate, but maps or plans made for the purpose of any cause must be proved to be so.(8) This provision refers to maps or plans made by Government for public purposes only, a map made by Government for a particular purpose which is not a public purpose may be admissible, but its accuracy must be proved by the party producing it (9) The Court may, however, presume that any published map or chart, the statements of which are relevant facts, was written and published(10) by the person, and at the time and place by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published. The Court may resort for aid to maps as documents of reference (11) The presumption

'ans as well as to any

Thirteenth section,

the present section is silent as to—maps made under the authority of any public municipal body.

---

(1) Madhab Sundari v. Gajanand Nath, 9 C. W. N., 111, 113 (1904)

(2) Kanto Prashad v. Jajat Chandra, 23 C., 335 (1895)

(3) Whiteley Stokes, Vol. II, p. 878

(4) Kunnodanee Dabia v. Pawan Chunder, 10 W. R., 388 (1868).

(5) Shama Mukhee v. Bissonauree Dibia, 10 W. R., 343 (1868).

(6) In the matter of the German S. S. "Druck-enfels, 27 C., 860, 871 (1900)

(7) Ss. 74—77, post

(8) S. 83, post

(9) Kanto Prashad v. Jajat Chandra, 23 C., 335 (1895)

(10) S. 87 post

(11) S. 57, post

(12) Ss. 3, Illust. ante, and 91, post. See Madhab Sundari v. Gajanand Nath, 9 C. W. N., 111, 113 (1904).

Survey maps as evidence of possession.

There are numerous decisions as to the true effect and value which should be assigned to survey-maps(1) in evidence. "If these cases are carefully examined, it will be found there is no real conflict of decisions between them—reasonable allowance being made for observations, which were directed, not to the consideration of a general proposition but to the particular facts of the case which happened to be at the time before the Court."(2) A survey in these provinces is not made under the authority of any enactment of the Legislature. It is a purely executive act. At the same time the proceedings of the Survey-authorities have been recognized by the Legislature and are referred to in Act IX of 1847 (Assessment of New Lands).(3) The co-operation of the parties interested in the measurement is required to be sought by the Survey Officers. It is reasonable to presume that the parties were present at, and had notice of, the survey proceedings.(4) If the survey was effected in due course, it was made on notice, and in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the survey must be presumed to have been rightly carried out. The survey-map therefore is evidence between the parties quantum valeat.(5) That it is good evidence of possession has been declared by many decisions.(6) When the question is simply one of title, and the probable evidence is proof of possession at a particular period, a survey-map is said to be most cogent evidence.(7) But it is not conclusive evidence of possession.(8) A survey-map is evidence of possession at a particular time, the time at which the survey was made.(9)

But evidence of possession, however short, is evidence of title, and if evidence of possession, they are also therefore evidence of title.(10) There are some cases which seem to imply the contrary.(11) "But the proposition which is to be deduced from all the cases is this: a survey-map is not direct evidence of title.

---

(1) For a description of the maps of the Trigonometrical Survey, Dakhal (boundary mark) and Hasra (detailed measurement-maps) and Chitah, see Field Ev., 215, 216, 4th Ed., and Field's "Land-holding, and the relation of Landlord and Tenant." As to maps other than those of the survey, see Janmajoy Mullick v. Duorbanath Myte, 5 C., 287 (1879); Kanto Prasad v. Jugut Chandra, 23 C., 335 (1895) and Note to ss. 83, and remarks of Jackson, J., in Collector of Rajshahye v. Durga Soondure, 2 W. R., 211, 212 (1865).

(2) Nobo Coomar v. Gobind Chunder, 9 C. L. R. (1881), per Field, J., at p. 307.

(3) Ib., see also Act XXXI of 1858 (Alluvial Lands, Bengal), IV of 1868 (B. C.); V (B. C.) of 1897 (Central Survey).

(4) Ram Narain v. Mahesh Chunder, 19 W. R., 262 (1873).

(5) Padha Chowdrain v. Gireedharee Saha, 20 W. R., 243 (1873).

(6) Gour Mohun v. Hurro Kishore, 10 W. R., 258 (1868); Mahun Mullick v. Lumsoorun Judee, 10 W. R., 343 (1868); Prahlad Sen v. Lukho Singh, 2 B. L. R. (P. C.), 140 (1869); Gudadhar Banerjee v. Tara Chand, 15 W. R., 3 (1871); Padha Chowdrain v. Gireedharee Saha, 20 W. R., 243 (1873); Kasher Kishore Roy v. Ram Soondure, 22 W. R., 27 (1877); Jagdish Chunder v. Chowdhry Zahoor, 24 W. R., 217 (1875); Chowdhry Zahoor v. Zahoor Khanum, 25 W. R., 24 (1876); Prosonno Chunder v. Land Mortgage Bank, 25 W. R., 453 (1876); Mahesh Chunder v. Jagat Sunder, 3 C., 212 (1879) [reversed in 15 C., 253]; Syam Lall v. Lachman Chowdhry, 15 C., 253 (1888); Joykrishna Instee v. Mohamed Mohsin, 8 C., 982 (1882); and see case cited, ante and post.

(7) Mahesh Chunder v. Jugput Chunder, 5 C., 212 (1879), per Jackson, J., at p. 214.

(8) Mahomed Meher v. Sheik Peshad, 6 W. R., 267 (1866), and for a reason why it is not, see remarks of the court in the same; Gudadhar Banerji v. Tara Chand, 15 W. R., 3 (1871); Prosonno Chunder v. Land Mortgage Bank, 25 W. R., 453 (1876).

(9) Syam Lall v. Lachman Chowdhry, 15 C., 253 (1888).

(10) Shaw Mullick v. Bissonarain Dutt, 18 W. R., 343 (1868), per D. N. Mitter, J., at p. 344; Gowri Pershad v. Dukhina Chunder, 6 W. R., 82 (1866); Osmat Fatima v. Bhola Gopal, 13 W. R., 50 (1870); Ram Narain v. Mahesh Chunder, 19 W. R., 262 (1873); Poyne v. Mahomed Chunder, 21 W. R., 36 (1876); Syam Lall v. Lachman Chowdhry, 25 W. R., 15 C., 253 (1888); Sarvan Ghose v. Secretary of State, 22 C., 252, 258 (1894); Krishna Iyer v. Lingam, 20 M., 270 (1896).

(11) Mahima Chandra v. Rajkumar Chakravarty, I B. L. R. (A. C.), 5 (1868). ["This dictum, however, must be understood with reference to the facts of that particular case, in which the award and the maps were the very subject of litigation." Field, Ev., 228]; Gourmoni v. Hurro Kishore, 10 W. R., 258 (1868); Osmat Fatima v. Bhola Gopal, 13 W. R., 50 (1870); Jackson, J., doubting [explained in Osmat Fatima v. Bhola Gopal, 13 W. R., 50 in the same way as a decree in a disputed cause is evidence of title, for the Survey-Officers have no jurisdiction to enquire into or decide questions of title. Their instructions are to lay down the boundary according to actual possession at the time; and this is what they do, ascertaining such actual possession as well as they can; and, if possible, by the admissions of all the parties concerned. A survey-map is, therefore, good evidence of possession according to the boundary demarcated thereupon, and which may be taken to have been admitted by those concerned to be correct, regard being had to what has been said about the nature of this admission in each particular case. In several of the cases quoted this Court has (to my mind, very properly) refused to lay down any general rule as to the weight to be assigned to a survey-map as a piece of evidence: and in one case(1) a learned Judge of this Court declined to say whether in any particular case maps ought not to be corroborated by independent evidence. A survey-map is then direct evidence of possession; and with reference to particular circumstances of each case, the Courts must decide whether this evidence of possession is [illegible] sumption of title."(2) And in Syam Lal Saha [illegible] h Court said: "We are not prepared to say [illegible] of survey-maps be sufficient evidence of title. Each case must be decided upon its own merits." But though evidence of title, maps and survey-proceedings are not conclusive.(4) The Privy Council have in a recent decision held that maps and surveys made in India for revenue-purposes are official documents prepared by competent persons and with such publicity and notice to persons interested as to be admissible and valuable evidence of the state of things at the time they were made. They are not conclusive and may be shown to be wrong, but in the absence of evidence to the contrary they may be judicially received in evidence as correct when made.(5) This decision was followed in the undermentioned case,(6) in which it was held that the object of the thak map being to delineate the various estates borne on the revenue-roll of the District, the entry in thak map that certain lands formed part of a certain estate becomes a relevant fact under this section, and such entries in thakbust maps are evidence on which a Court may act. It is open to a Court to hold that the same state of things existed at the time of the permanent settlement. As to comparison of land with map,(7) and of thak map with survey-map (8) see the cases mentioned below. In the undermentioned case it was held that a thakbust map was not only evidence but very good evidence as to what the boundaries of the property were at the time of the permanent settlement and also as to what they (by the admission of the parties) were in 1859, when the survey was made and maps prepared.(9) As to maps used in subsequent suit admitted to be correct in prior arbitration-proceedings,(10) and as to the amount of accuracy to be expected in a thak map (11) see the undermentioned cases.

(1870), Ram Narain v. Mokesh Chunder, 19 W. R., 202 (1873), and in Mokesh Chunder v. Juggut Chunder, 5 C., 212 (1879)].

(1) Ram Narain v. Mokesh Chunder, 19 W. R., 202 (1873).

(2) Nobo Coomar v. Govind Chunder, 9 C. L. R., per Field, J., at p. 300.

(3) 13 C., 353 (1886).

(4) Peyne v. Mohomed Chunder, 23 W. R. 36 (1876); Lalee Narain v. Narain Singh, 1 W. R., 333 (1865); Thacoor Bromma v. Thacoor Lallit W. R. (1864), 159; Kedesh Chunder v. Ray Chunder (Survey-award), 12 W. R., 181 (1869).

(5) Jogadindra Nath v. Secretary of State, 30 C., 291 (1902).

(6) Abdul Hamid v. Karan Chunder, 7 C. W. N., 849 (1903), and see Tajkur Dumur Singh v. Kalyan Jayatpal Singh, 1906 11 C. W. N., 220.

(7) Radha Churn v. Annund Sein, 15 W. R., 445 (1871).

(8) Burn v. Achumbit Roy, 20 W. R., 14 (1873).

(9) Syama Sundari v. Jogi Hansda, 16 C., 186 (1888); see also Saroswati Ghose v. Secretary of State, 22 C., 252, 258 (1894); had it not been questioned it would have seemed almost unnecessary to state that oral evidence is sufficient to prove boundaries. Surat Soundari v. Fazunder Arakeer, 9 W. R. 125 (1868).

(10) Hanmanth Sircar v. Poonoch Sircar, 7 W. R., 249 (1867); s. c. note s. 33, ante.

(11) Ram Kumardas v. Watson & Co., 4 C. W. N., 113 (1899); s. c., 27 C., 326.

And in a recent case where the ownership of land was disputed and the plaintiff produced survey-maps of the year 1852-1853 and also a thakbust map which contained a statement supporting his case, and it was shown that the predecessor of the defendant had had full notice of the thak proceedings, it was held that the evidentiary value of the plaintiff's thakbust and survey-maps was greater than that of an unsupported survey-map of the year 1855-1856 produced by the defendant; and that the statements of zemindars or their agents contained in thakbust maps may amount to admissions that the land belonged to one village, and that such admissions should be greatly relied on as made at a time when there was no dispute as to boundaries (1)

Evidential value of survey-maps

"Thak maps are, as has been pointed out in many decisions of this Court, good evidence of possession, but the value of that evidence varies enormously. In the case of a thak map containing definite landmarks and undisputed boundaries signed by the parties of their accredited agents and representing and which has been brought under cultivation, and is in the possession of raiyats whose names are known or can be discovered from the zemindary papers, a thak map is very valuable evidence of possession. But the value of such a map is greatly diminished when we find that there are no natural landmarks delineated thereupon: that the land was jungle when measured; that the boundaries are not discoverable from a mere inspection of the map; and that neither the zemindars nor their agents have by their signatures admitted the correctness of the thak."(2) "The officers engaged in survey-operations are required to seek the co-operation of the parties interested in the measurement. These parties are to be induced, if practicable to make themselves acquainted with the contents of the thak and Jhasra plans, and to sign them or state their objections in writing. Persons who are familiar with what takes place in these provinces when Survey Officers commence operations in a locality are well aware that neighbouring proprietors do, as a rule, carefully watch their proceedings; and if the persons interested consider that the boundary demarcated by those officers between any two estates is incorrect, they take immediate and prompt action to object and to have the map rectified. We must then look at the matter somewhat in this way: The proprietors of estates have reasonable notice, and may be presumed to be well aware that the boundaries are about to be demarcated upon a map made by imperial Government Officers, and which is by consent and usage regarded as important evidence in cases of boundary dispute; they are invited to co-operate and to point out to the Survey Officers what they admit to be true boundaries between their estates.(3) If they or their agents point out the boundaries, and the

[illegible] ich is then

[illegible] correctness

[illegible] gents do not

---

(1) Duane v. Dharani Kanta Lahiri (1905) 33 C., 621, and see Abdul Hamid Mian v. Karan Chandra Roy (1903), 7 C. W. N., 849.

(2) Joytara Dasee v. Mahomed Mobarack, 8 C., 975, per Field, J., at p. 983, see also Radha Chowdhrain v. Gureedharee Sahoo (conduct of parties important), 20 W. R., 243 (1873); Ernamali Chowdhry v. Lall Meah, 14 W. R., 391 (1870) (map not questioned); Poonamali Roy v. Kelly Prashad, 18 W. R., 346 (1872) (map admitted to be correct); Radhika Mohun v. Ganga Narain, 21 W. R., 115 (1874) (map not objected to), and 5 C., 212, ante; Satcowri Ghosh v. Secretary of State, 22 C., 232, 237 (1894).

(3) See remarks of Jackson, J., in Collector of Pajshahye v. Joogul Sundaree, 2 W. R., 211 (1865).

(4) Ib. at p. 212. The map shows that at the time of the survey, the plaintiff alone had claim to the land and that no one disputed his claim. Such a public assertion of a right of ownership is also, I think, important evidence of his title. In the absence of direct title-deeds, acts of ownership are the best proofs of title." In connection with the subject of this class of evidence, s. 13, cl. (b), ante, should be kept in mind.

copies of chittahs and a field-book of the Survey Department were received in evidence.(1) Bayley, J., remarking that these papers are the primary records out of which a survey-map is made and are originally component parts of the map and evidence of the fact of demarcation of lands and properties measured and surveyed at or about the date of such map and for the purposes of the State and litigated questions respectively: that notice of their being made is issued to the parties, so that these records cannot be said to be made in the absence of parties; for legally they were present when they had the opportunity of being present. This was a decision under the 11th and 13th sections of Act II of 1855, but on the view there taken of the nature of chittahs they would also had been admissible under this section. But whether admissible or not under this section as component parts of maps or as plans, "a chittah of the revenue-survey is a public record viz., the record of public work carried on by a public officer—the Superintendent of Survey—under the directions of the Government of Bengal "(2) and is therefore admissible under the thirty-fifth section (3) Any chittah moreover if made by the persons and under the circumstances mentioned in the 18th section may be admissible under that section as documentary admissions or under the 13th section as an assertion of right.(4) The Privy Council in the case of Eckowrie Singh v. Heeralall Seal,(5) speak of chittahs as no evidence of title in boundary disputes between rival proprietors when they are without further account, introduction or verification. "By these words," said Hobhouse, J., "it seems to me, their Lordships held that if chittahs are relied upon without any account given or verification made of them, then they are not to be considered as evidence, but here an account was given of the chittahs and that were properly introduced and verified, and therefore that remark of their Lordships does not seem to me to apply to the chittahs now before us. They were therefore, I think, properly used as evidence in this case"(6) "It may here be observed," says Mr. Field "that the reports do not always show what was the precise nature of the chittahs offered in evidence in each particular case; and to this may be attributable some of the difference of opinion which seems to prevail upon the subject in question. There is, and ought to be, a wide distinction as regards both weight and admissibility, between the chittahs and other measurement-papers of the revenue-survey of the country, designed and carried out as an executive act of State: the similar paper of a decennal survey made under the provisions of Act IX of 1847 (v. ante); the chittahs of a measurement of a particular khas mehal made by Government as zemindar;(7) the chittahs of a measurement made by a private zemindar(8) at a time when the relations between him and his ryots were friendly; and the chittahs of a measurement made by the same

---

(1) In the following cases also survey chittahs were received as evidence: Sadukhan Chowdrain v. Rajmohan Bose, 3 B. L. R., (A. C.), 381 (1869). Mahomed Fedye v. Ozeeroodeen, 10 W. R., 340 (1868). Surrooty Dassee v. Umbica Nund, 24 W. R., 192 (1875); Taruknath Mookerjee v. Mohendranath Ghose, 13 W. R., 56 (1870); Mootheeram Majhee v. Bissumbhur Roy, 24 W. R., 410 (1875); Arman Bibi v. Amirmiam (No. 1201 of 1871, decided on 28th Feb 1872 by the Calcutta High Court cited in Field, Ev., p. 227).

(2) Per Jackson, J., in Surrooty Dassee v. Umbica Nund, 24 W. R., 192 (1875).

(3) See Girindra Chandra v. Nogendranath Chatterjee, 1 C. W. N., 529, 533 (1897).

(4) See remarks of Jackson, J., in Collector of Backergunge v. Issurchunder Surmokur, 2 W. R., 211, 212 (1865); (v. post) Taylor, Ev., § 1770 C.

(5) 2 B. L. R. (P. C.), 4 (1868), s. c., 11 W. R. (P. C.), 2.

(6) Sadukhan Chowdrain v. Rajmohan Bose, 3 B. L. R. (A. C.), 381 (1869). See Dinomoni Chowdrani v. Rajmohini Chowdrani, 29 C., 201 (1901).

(7) See Janmajoy Mullick v. Duarkanath Mytee, 5 C., 287 (1875); Ram Chunder v. Bunseedhur Nail, 9 C., 741 (1883), Taruknath Mookerjee v. Mohendranath Ghose, 13 W. R., 56 (1870).

(8) As to chittahs other than those of the survey, see Gopal Chunder v. Madhub Chunder, 21 W. R., 29 (1874); Krishno Chunder v. Meer Saddar, 22 W. R., 326 (1874); Sham Chand v. Ramkristo Boorah, 19 W. R., 309 (1873).

zemindar when disputes had arisen as to enhancement of rents. If the original records of the reported cases were examined with reference to this distinction, it is more than probable that any seeming difference of opinion may be found reconcilable with sound and uniform principle."(1) Where chittahs were pro- [illegible] 'd that they [illegible] they were [illegible] een present when, with their assistance, a purtal (new, revised) measurement had been carried out in the village (2)

Relevance of statement as to fact of public nature contained in certain Acts or Notifications

37. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any fact of a public nature, any statement of it, made in a recital contained in any Act of Parliament or in any Act of the Governor-General of India in Council, or of the Governors in Council of Madras or Bombay, or of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of Bengal, or in a notification of the Government appearing in the Gazette of India or in the Gazette of any Local Government, or in any printed paper purporting to be the London Gazette or the Government Gazette of any colony or possession of the Queen, is a relevant fact.

This section applies also to any Act of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of the North-Western Provnices and Oudh, the Punjab, or Burma.(3)

Principle.—These documents are admissible on grounds similar to those on which entries in public records are received. They are documents of a public character made by the authorized agents of the public in the course of official duty and published under the authority and supervision of the State, and the facts recorded therein are of public interest and notoriety. Moreover, as the facts stated in them are of a public nature, it would often be difficult to prove them by means of sworn witnesses.(4)

s. 3 ("Fact.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 57 (2) (Judicial notice of Acts.)
s. 78 (Proof of Notifications.)
s. 81 (Presumption as to Gazettes, Newspapers and Private Acts)

Steph. Dig., Art. 33; Taylor, Ev., § 1660; Starkie, Ev., 278; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 187, 188; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 294; 31 & 32 Vic., Cap. 37 (The Documentary Evidence Act, 1868, amended by the Documentary Evidence Act, 1882); Act I (Mad.) of 1867, s. 7 (recital in any Act of the Governor in Council of a public nature is prima facie evidence of the fact recited): Act XXXI of 1863 (Gazette of India): 11 & 12 Vic., Cap. 21, s. 82 (Insolvent Debtors): Act XXI of 1879, s. 5 (Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition).

COMMENTARY.

Recitals in Acts and Notifications

The fact as to the existence of which the Court has to form an opinion must be one of a public nature. A similar expression occurs in section 42, post, which speaks of "matters of a public nature."(5) The Gazette of India, the organ of

(1) Field, Ev., 226
(2) Debee Pershad v. Ram Coomar, 10 W. R., 443 (1868).
(3) Added by s. 2, Act V of 18[illegible]
(4) Taylor, Ev., § 1591, Starkie, Ev., 272, 273 et seq.
(5) v. Notes to ss. 13, 32 (4), ante and 42, post.

the Government of India, was first published in 1863 only. Previous to that date the notifications of the Government of India were published in such of the Gazettes of the Local Governments as was necessary. By Act XXXI of 1863 publication in the Gazette of India was declared to have the effect of publication in any other Official Gazette in which publication was prescribed by the law in force at the date of the passing of the Act.(1) In the case of the R. v. Amiruddin(2) the Gazette of India and the Calcutta Gazette containing official letters on the subject of hostilities between the British Crown and Mahomedan fanatics on the frontier were held to have been rightly admitted in evidence under the sixth and eight sections(3) of the repealed Act II of 1855 as proof of the commencement, continuation and determination of hostilities. It was further held that it was not necessary that these documents should be interpreted to the prisoner. It was sufficient that the purposes for which they were put in were explained In the subsequent trial of the Wahabi conspirators at Patna, the Gazette was used in evidence for a similar purpose (4) According to the English rule a recital in a public general Act is in general primâ facie, but not conclusive, evidence of the facts recited, because in judgment of law every subject is privy to the making of it but a private Statute (though it contains a clause requiring it to be judicially noticed as a public one) is not evidenced at all against strangers either of notice, or of any of the facts recited.(5) The present section draws no distinction between public and private Acts of Parliament, merely requiring that the fact spoken to in either should be of a public nature; but of course neither in the case of the Acts nor of the Gazettes in the section mentioned is any recital therein contained conclusive of the fact recited unless expressly declared to be so and knowledge of a fact although it be of a public nature is not to be conclusively inferred from a notification in the Gazette it is a question of fact for the determination of the Court.(6)

By Statute the Gazette has been expressly rendered evidence of various matters

Thus by the Documentary Evidence Act(7) the Gazette is made primâ facie evidence of any proclamation, order, or regulation, issued by Her Majesty, the Privy Council or any of the principal departments of State. So also, by section 82 of the Insolvent Debtor's Act, the production of the London Gazette containing the notice mentioned in the section is sufficient evidence of the filing of petition, adjudication, confirmation or revocation thereof, and of the dates of the same proceedings respectively, and, in the case of any adjudication, of the date of the petition on which the same is grounded,(8) and a notification in the Gazette of India under the fifth section of the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act is conclusive proof of the truth of the matters stated in the Notification.(9)

Gazettes as medium to prove notice.

The Gazettes and Newspapers are often evidence as a medium to prove notices, as of the dissolution of a partnership, which is a fact usually notified in that manner. But, unless the case is governed by some special Act, such evidence is very weak without proof that the party to be affected by the notice has probably read the particular Gazette in which it is contained, e.g., that he takes it in or attends a reading-room where it is taken, or has shown knowledge of other matters contained in the same number, or that it is a publication with which it is his duty to be familiar, or the like, but the mere fact that the paper

---

(1) Act XXXI of 1863, s. 1

(2) 7 B. L. R., 63, s. c., 15 W. R., Cr., 25.

(3) S. 6 of Act II of 1855, corresponds generally to s. 57 (judicial notice) and s. 8 of the same Act to the present section.

(4) Field, Ev., 231, for English cases, v. Taylor, Ev., § 1661, and Starkie, Ev., 278

(5) Taylor, Ev., §§ 1661, 1661; Steph. Dig., Art. 33; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 187, 188. See Lukea Myacha v. Aaja Shiraucha, 2 B., 38 (1876); Lutland v. Bay, 5 L. J., Ex., 207

(6) Harratt v. Wise, 9 B. & C., 712, Starkie, Ev., 280

(7) 31 & 32 Vic., Cap. 37 (1868), s. 2, amended by the Documentary Evidence Act, 1882, s. 2.

(8) 11 & 12 Vic., Cap. 21, s. 82

(9) Act XXI of 1879, s. 5.

circulates in his neighbourhood is not sufficient.(1) Moreover, in the case of those who dissolve partnership, it is incumbent upon them to give to old customers of the firm an express and specific notice by circular or otherwise (2) Under section 350 of the repealed Act VIII of 1859 (Civil Procedure) the Government Gazette containing the advertisement of sale, and a printed paper purporting to be the conditions of sale alluded to in the Gazette, and issued from the Master's Office in the name of the Master, were admitted in evidence to prove the actual conditions of the deed of sale.(3) Notice of a resolution for winding up a Company voluntarily must also be given by advertisement in the Local Official Gazette.(4) In certain cases by the Insolvent Debtor's Act,(5) and certain orders made thereunder will affect creditors after proof of notice given and the lapse of a certain time.(6)

Relevancy of statements in law-books.

38. When the Court has to form an opinion as to a law of any country, any statement of such law contained in a book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of such country and to contain any such law, and any report of a ruling of the Courts of such country contained in a book purporting to be a report of such rulings, is rele-of Parliament, it may refuse, if called upon by any person to do so, until such person produces any such appropriate book or document of reference as it may consider necessary to enable it to do so.(1) Statements of law other than those contained in Reports must purport to be printed or published under authority. So a statement contained in an unauthorized translation of the Code Napoleon as to what the French law was upon a particular matter was held not to be relevant under this section (2) but reports of rulings need no the so published, if only the book containing them purport to be a report of the rulings of such country. As to the presumption of genuineness of the books in this section mentioned, see s. 81, post they administer, a departure from opinion has been obtained under the statutory procedure mentioned below) be proved as a fact by skilled witnesses, or (in the case of foreign customs and usages)(1) by any witness, expert or not, who is acquainted with the fact and not by the production of the books in which it is contained.(5) In India also Foreign law may (in addition to the method provided by this section) be proved by the opinions of persons specially skilled in such law (6) Further there exists a statutory procedure for the ascertainment of Foreign and Colonial law By 22 and 23 Vic, Cap 63, a case may be stated for the opinion of a superior Court in any of Her Majesty's dominions to ascertain the law of that part,(7) and by 24 and 25 Vic., Cap. 11, a similar case may be stated for the opinion of a Court in any Foreign State with which Her Majesty may have entered into a Convention for the ascertainment of such law ,(8) and as to judicial notice of the territorial extent of the jurisdiction and sovereignty exercised de facto see "The Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890."(9)

(1) S. 57, post

(2) Christian v. Delanney, 26 C., 931 (1899) s c, 3 C W N, 614

(3) c definition of "Foreign Court" Civil Pr Code, s 2, p 33.

(4) Lindo v Belisario, 1 Hagg C R, 216 Sussex Peerage Case, 11 C & F., 114—117, Vanderdonckt v. Thellusson, 8 C. B, 812.

(5) Sussex Peerage Case, supra; Mostyn v. Fabrigas, Cowp, 174; Roscoe, N P Ev, 119—121; Butler v. Butler (1907), P 333 (expert evidence required to prove the validity of foreign marriage)

(6) c s 45, post.

(7) Login v Princess Victoria, 1 Jur O S, 109, in which the Court of Chancery in England forwarded a case on Hindu Law to the Supreme Court of Calcutta

(8) This Act is stated to be practically a dead letter, as no Convention has ever been made in pursuance of it. Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 342. See also 6 & 7 Vic, Cap. 94, § 3, and R v. Dossji Gulam, 3 B, 334 (1878)

(9) 53 & 54 Vict, c 37

[HOW MUCH OF A STATEMENT IS TO BE PROVED

WHILE on the one hand, in the case of a statement in a civil or criminal proceeding by way of admission or confession, the whole of it must be taken and read together, since thus alone can the whole of that which the person making the statement intended to convey be certainly arrived at: and since it would be obviously unfair to take that only which is against the interest of the declarant, while the very next sentence might contain a material qualification, on the other hand, great prolixity, waste of time, and not seldom injustice, might occur if evidence of matters (often otherwise inadmissible) were allowed to be given simply on the ground that the whole of the documents or conversations must be before the Court. The latter is, therefore, constituted the judge of the amount which may be given in evidence of any document or conversation. The discretion is to be guided by the principle of letting in so much, and so much only, as makes clear the nature and effect of the statement and the circumstances under which it was made.(I)

What evidence to be given when statement forms part of a conversation, document, book or series of letters or papers

39. When any statement of which evidence is given forms part of a longer statement, or of a conversation or part of an isolated document, or is contained in a document which forms part of a book, or of a connected series of letters or papers, evidence shall be given of so much and no more of the statement, conversation, document, book, or series of letters or papers, as the Court considers necessary in that particular case to the full understanding of the nature and effect of the statement, and of the circumstances under which it was made.

Principle—The rule laid down by the present section (which is to the same effect as the English law on the same subject) is founded on the general ground of convenience and justice (v. Introduction, supra).

ss. 21, 23 (Proof of Admissions.) tion; Cross-examination; [illegible] extract put in expressly refer to other documents, these may be read also,(1) but the mere fact that remaining portions of the papers or books may throw light on the parts selected by the opposite party will not be sufficient to warrant their admission, for such party is not bound to know whether they will or not, and moreover, the light may be a false one "(2) It may be inferred, it has been said, from this section how much of a police-diary may be seen by an accused person when it is used to refresh memory or to contradict the police-officer. In such case the accused person is entitled to see only the particular entry and so much of the special diary as is, in the opinion of the Court, necessary in that particular matter to the full understanding of the particular entry, so used and no more (3)

Conversation

" The same rule prevails in the case of a conversation in which several distinct matters have been discussed, and although it was at one time held, on high authority, that if a witness were questioned as to a statement made by an adverse party, such party might lay before the Court the whole that was said by him in the same conversation, even matter not properly connected with the statement deposed to, provided only that it related to the subject-matter of the suit(4) yet, a sense of the extreme injustice that might result from allowing such a course of proceeding has induced the Courts, in later times, to adopt a stricter rule, and if a part of a conversation is now relied on as an admission, the adverse party can give in evidence only so much of the same conversation as may explain or qualify the matter already before the Court "(5) It is settled law, that proof, on cross-examination, of a detached statement made by or to a witness at a former time does not authorise proof by the party calling that witness of all that was said at the same time, but only of so much as can be in some way connected with the statement proved (6) Therefore, where a witness has been cross-examined as to what the plaintiff had said in a particular conversation, it was held that he could not be re-examined as to other assertions, made by the plaintiff in the same conversation, that were not connected with the assertions to which the cross-examinations related, although they were connected with the subject-matter of the suit.(7)

Letters

" With regard to letters it has been held that a party may put in such as were written by his opponent, without producing those to which they were answers, or calling for their production; because, in such a case, the letters to which those put in were answers are in the adversary's hands, and he may produce them, if he thinks them necessary to explain the transaction (8) But while this is the strict rule, yet in practice if a party reads a letter from his opponent and is in possession of a copy of his own letter to which the opponent's is an answer, he is expected to read both. If a plaintiff puts in a letter by the defendant on the back of which is something written by himself, the defendant is entitled to have the whole read ;(9) and where a defendant laid before the Court several letters between himself and the plaintiff, he was allowed to read a reply of his own to the last letter of the plaintiff, it being considered as a part of an entire correspondence."(10)

---

(1) Sturge v Buchanan, 10 A. & E. 600, 605 The reference incorporates the two together Johnson v. Gibson, 4 Esp., 21, Faltenor v. Hanson, 1 Camp., 171.

(2) Sturge v. Buchanan, supra, 600—605; Taylor, Ev., § 732.

(3) R v. Mannu, 19 A., 405 (1897) per Edge, C. J

(4) The Queen's case, 2 B & E., 207, 298, per Abbott, C. J

(5) Prince v Samo, 7 A. & E., 627, 634, 635. Taylor, Ev., § 733

(6) Prince v. Samo, supra, 627; Sturge v. Buchanan, 10 A. & E., 605.

(7) Taylor, Ev., § 1474 Prince v Samo, supra, 637 In this case the opinion of Lord Tenterden in The Queen's case (2 B & B., 298), that evidence of the whole conversation, if connected with the suit, was admissible, though it related to matters not touched in the cross-examination, was considered and overruled.

(8) Lord Barrymore v Taylor, 1 Esp., 327, De Medina v Owen, 3 C & Kir., 72.

(9) Duglish v. Dodd, 5 C. & P., 238.

(10) Taylor, Ev., § 734, Roe v. Dey, 7 C. & P., 705.

JUDGMENTS OF COURTS OF JUSTICE WHEN RELEVANT.

TRANSACTIONS unconnected with the facts in issue are, according to the general rule of relevancy, inadmissible in evidence. Judgments in Courts of justice on other occasions form, however, in certain cases, an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue.(1) Sections 40-42 declare when, and in what manner, judgments, orders and decrees are admissible Judgments, orders and decrees other than those mentioned in these sections are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provision of this Act.(2) Judgments are either domestic or foreign, and either of these may be in personam or in rem.

The genera rules relating to judg-

(a) In the first place, all judgments are conclusive of their existence as distinguished from their truth Thus if the object be merely to prove the existence of the judgment, its date, or its legal of the decision rendered), the production o is conclusive evidence of the facts against the law attributes unerring verity to the substantive as opposed to the judicial portions of the record. And the reason is, that a judgment being a public transaction of a solemn nature, must be presumed to be faithfully recorded. In the substantive portion of a record of a Court of Justice, the Court records or attests its own proceedings and acts. Quod per recordum probatum, non debet esse negatum. In the judicial portion, on the contrary, the Court expresses in this connection where the record is matter of inducement, or merely introductory to other evidence (5)

(b) All judgments are conclusive of their truth in favour of the Judge, that is, for the purpose of protecting him who pronounced it and the officers who enforced it.(6)

(c) The admissibility and effect of judgments when tendered as evidence of their truth, that is, as evidence of the matters decided, or of the grounds of

(1) Steph Introd., 164

(2) S. 43, post.

(3) Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402, 410 (1904).

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 1667; Best, Ev., § 500; Steph. Dig., Art. 40; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 359—389, c. s. 43, post

(5) See s. 43, post

(6) Taylor, Ev., §§ 1669—1672, Steph. Dig., Art. 45; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 204, 205, 1194—1201; see Act XVIII of 1850

(7) S. 41, post, see Norton, Ev., 206.

JUDGMENTS OF COURTS OF JUSTICE WHEN RELEVANT.

TRANSACTIONS unconnected with the facts in issue are, according to the general rule of relevancy, inadmissible in evidence. Judgments in Courts of justice on other occasions form, however, in certain cases, an exception to the exclusion of evidence of transactions not specifically connected with facts in issue.(1) Sections 40-42 declare when, and in what manner, judgments, orders and decrees are admissible. Judgments, orders and decrees other than those mentioned in these sections are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provision of this Act.(2) Judgments are either domestic or foreign, and either of these may be in personam or in rem.

The genera rules relating to judgments are as follow

(a) In the first place, all judgments are conclusive of their existence as distinguished from their truth. Thus if the object be merely to prove the existence of the judgment, its date, or its legal consequences (and not the accuracy of the decision rendered), the production of the record, or of a certified copy, is conclusive evidence of the facts against all the world.(3) In other words the law attributes unerring verity to the substantive as opposed to the judicial portions of the record. And the reason is, that a judgment being a public transaction of a solemn nature, must be presumed to be faithfully recorded. In the substantive portion of a record of a Court of Justice, the Court records or attests its own proceedings and acts. Quod per recordum probatum, non debet esse negatum. In the judicial portion, on the contrary, the Court expresses its judgment or opinion on the matter in question, and in forming that op be fo

proceeding in which it was pronounced, is only res inter alios judicata ; and hence the rule, that it does not bind, and is not in general, evidence, against anyone who was not such party or privy.(4) So also judgments are admissible in this connection where the record is matter of inducement, or merely introductory to other evidence.(5)

(b) All judgments are conclusive of their truth in favour of the Judge, that is, for the purpose of protecting him who pronounced it and the officers who enforced it.(6)

(c) The admissibility and effect of judgments when tendered as evidence of their truth, that is, as evidence of the matters decided, or of the grounds of the decision for the purpose of concluding an opponent upon the facts determined, vary according as the judgments are (as they are called) in rem or in personam. Generally speaking, a judgment in rem is one which binds all the world and not only the parties to the suit in which it was passed and their privies. It belongs to positive law to enact what judgments shall have such a character. Accordingly, the Act declares (7) that a judgment, in order to have this effect,

(1) Steph. Introd., 184

(2) S. 43, post.

(3) Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402, 410 (1904).

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 1667; Best, Ev., § 530. Steph. Dig., Art. 40; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 359—389; r. s. 43, post.

(5) See s 43, post.

(6) Taylor, Ev., §§ 1669—1672. Steph. Dig. Art. 45; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 204, 205, 1194—1200 see Act XVIII of 1850.

(7) S 41, post, see Norton, Ev., must have been pronounced by a competent Court in the exercise of Probate, Matrimonial, Admiralty, or Insolvency jurisdiction. Such a judgment is conclusive of certain matters against all the world, and not against the parties and their privies only. On the other hand, the judgment in personam (or the ordinary judgment between parties and in cases of contract, tort, or crime) of a Court of competent jurisdiction is conclusive proof, in subsequent proceedings, between the same parties or their privies, only of the matter actually decided (1) but is no evidence of the truth of the decision between strangers, or a party and a stranger,(2) except upon matters of a public nature in which case, however, they are not conclusive evidence of that which they state.(3) The reasons of this rule are commonly stated to rest on the ground expressed in the maxim res inter alios acta vel judicata alteri nocere non debet, it being considered unjust that a man should be affected, and still more that he should be bound, by proceedings, in which he could not make defence, cross-examine or appeal (4)

Foremost among the judgments, orders and decrees which are declared to be admissible by the following sections are those which have the effect of barring a second suit or trial (5) Thus judgments, orders and decrees may be relevant for the purpose of showing that there is a lis pendens,(6) or that the matter is res judicata,(7) or that the claim advanced forms part of a former claim or that the remedy for which the plaintiff sues is one for which the plaintiff [illegible] the same cause of action.(8) [illegible] exercise of Probate, Matrimonial [illegible] declared to be relevant and conclusive proof of certain matters.(9) The general nature of these judgments is not to define a person's rights against the particular individuals who are parties to the proceeding, but to declare his status generally as against all the world. And the broad principle of the rule is that public policy requires that matters of status should not be left in doubt, and a decision in rem not merely declares status, but ipso facto renders it such as it is declared.(10) With the exception of such judgments, there are no judgments conclusive in Indian Courts against persons other than the parties to the proceedings or their representatives,(11) as to the facts which they declare or the rights which they confer. There are, however, such judgments, namely, those relating to matters of a public nature, which,(12) though not conclusive proof of what they state and not binding upon anybody but the parties to the proceeding and their representatives, may yet be considered by the Court by way of evidence as to the facts with which they are concerned. Thus, in a suit in which the existence of a public right of way is disputed, a judgment between other parties, in which the existence of the same right of way is affirmed or negatived may be put in as evidence of the existence or non-existence of the right; though the party against whom it is employed will be at liberty to counteract it, if he can, as he would any other piece of hostile evidence. Further, apart from their admissibility under the preceding sections, the existence of a judgment, order or decree may be a fact in issue in the case or a relevant fact under some of the other provisions of this Act as to relevancy.(13) Thus where A sues B,

---

(1) See s 40, post.

(2) v. ib, s 43, post, illusts (a), (b), (c)

(3) S. 42, post, where the reasons for this Exception are considered.

(4) See Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 384, where the grounds of this rule are considered.

(5) S. 40, post.

(6) Civ. Pr. Code, Part I, s. 10, p 93, see s. 40, post.

(7) Ib., Part I, ss 11—14, pp. 97-99, Cr. Pr Code, s 403, see s 40, post, Furness Withy Co v. Hall (1909), Times L R, v 25, p 233.

(8) Civ Pr Code, O II, r 2, p 549, see s 40, post.

(9) S 41, post

(10) See note to s 41, post

(11) Norton, Ev., 204, 214

(12) S. 42, post.

(13) See s 43, post

because through B's fault A has been sued and cast in damages, the judgment and decree by which such damages are given is a fact in issue; or where B is charged with the murder of A, the fact that A has obtained a decree of ejectment against B may be relevant as showing the motive in B for the murder of A.(1) Lastly, as fraud is an act which vitiates the most solemn proceedings of Courts of Justice, and as a judgment delivered by an incompetent Court is a mere nullity, the Act provides that any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment, order or decree, which is relevant under sections 40—42, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion.(2)

Relevancy of judgments, orders and decrees as barring second suit or trial

40. The existence of any judgment, order or decree, which by law, prevents any Court from taking cognizance of a suit(3) or holding a trial, is a relevant fact when the question is whether such Court ought to take cognizance of such suit, or to hold such trial.

Principle.—See Introduction ante and Notes, post.

ss. 41—43 (Judgments, orders, and decrees.)
s. 44 (Fraud: want of jurisdiction.)
s. 3 ("Court.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 ("Fact.")
ss. 74, 76, 77 (Public documents, certified copies.)

Steph Dig., Arts. 39—47; Taylor, Ev., § 1684, et seq.; Smith's L. C. Note to Duchess of Kingston's case; Field, Ev., 235—319; Estoppel by Matter of Record in Civil suits in India by L. Broughton (1895); The Law of Estoppel in British India by A. Caspersz (1893); The Law of Res Judicata by Hukm Chand (1894).

COMMENTARY.

Previous judgments relevant to bar a second suit or trial

This section provides for the admission of evidence for the purpose of showing that a suit or trial is barred, as for example on the ground (a) that the matter in issue is the subject of a previously instituted pending suit;(4) (b) that the relief sought forms part of a claim for which the plaintiff omitted to sue in former suit; or was one of several remedies in respect of the same cause of action, for which the plaintiff, in a former suit, omitted, without the leave of the Court, to sue;(5) (c) that there is an estoppel by judgment, the matter in issue being res judicata.(6) Under the first of the above-mentioned grounds, the order admitting the plaint of the former suit, in the second and third, the judgment, and in either, such other portions of the record as are material to show that the matter is without the cognizance of the Court, would be relevant and admissible evidence under this section. Each of the abovementioned grounds of objection to a second suit or trial forms a portion of the law of Procedure, and as such is dealt with by the Civil or Criminal Procedure Codes. Whether a person ought to be allowed to litigate any particular question, and if so by what limitations the right should be restricted, are questions which do not belong, in any proper sense, to the Law of Evidence, whose province it is simply to provide the means by which parties to suits may prove any right to which the Legislature entitles them. The

(1) Cunningham, Ev., 29—32; see s. 43, post, and illusts (d), (e), (f), thereto.
(2) S. 44, post.
(3) See Ranchhoddas Krishnadas v. Bapu Narhar, 10 B. at p. 443 (1886).
(4) Civ. Pr. Code, Part I, s. 10, p. 93.
(5) Civ. Pr. Code, O. II, r. 2, p. 561.
(6) Ib., Part I, s. 11—14, p. 97—99, and Civil Code, at 403.

present section, accordingly, is so worded as to carry out whatever may be for the time the law of Procedure on such questions.(1) It is therefore not intended in this work to deal with these subjects, but merely to cite the provisions of the Codes relating thereto.

The reception of this evidence is grounded upon the fact that, unless it were admitted, effect could not be given to the provisions of the law of Procedure which this section is intended to subserve. If that law declares that a Court shall not in particular circumstances hold or take cognizance of a judicial proceeding, it is plainly necessary to be able to show that these circumstances exist The present section accordingly enables such proof to be given.

Pending suits

Except where a suit has been stayed under the Civil Procedure Code, a Court shall not try any suit in which the matter in issue is also directly and substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit for the same relief between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, pending in the same or any other Court, whether superior or inferior, in British India, having jurisdiction to grant such relief, or any Court beyond the limits of British India established by the Governor-General in Council, and having like jurisdiction, or before Her Majesty in Council. Explanation.—The pendency of a suit in a foreign Court,(2) does not preclude the Courts in British India from trying a suit founded on the same cause of action.(3) This section only provides that no suit shall be tried if the same issues are involved in a previously instituted suit It does not dispense with the institution of a suit within the proper time when the law requires such institution (4)

Omission to sue for relief or remedy

In respect of relief or remedies for which the plaintiff in a former action omitted to sue, the Civil Procedure Code enacts as follows —

Every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action;(5) but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of any Court.

If a plaintiff omit to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquish any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished.

A person entitled to more than one remedy in respect of the same cause of action may sue for all or any of his remedies but, if he omits (except with the leave of the Court obtained before the first hearing) to sue for any of such remedies, he shall not afterwards sue for the remedy so omitted For the purpose of this section an obligation and a collateral security for its performance shall be deemed to constitute but one cause of action.(6)

Res judicata

The rule of estoppel by judgment or res judicata is that facts actually decided by an issue in one suit cannot be again litigated between same parties and are conclusive between them for the purpose of terminating litigation.(7)

---

(1) Cunningham, Ev., 175, 176

(2) See as to meaning of Civ Pr. Code, s 2

(3) Civ Pr. Code, Part I, s 10, p 93; Fakirudheen Mahomed v. Official Trustee, 7 C, 82 (1881), Balkishan v. Kishan Lal, 11 A, 148 (1888), Bisweswar Singh v. Ganput, 8 C L R, 113 (1880); Mekjee Keshu v. Ismachund, 4 C L R, 282 (1879); Ramalinga Chetti v. Raghunatha Ram, 20 M., 418 (1897) Narinappa Chetti v. Chidambaram, 21 M, 18 (1897); Venkata Chandrappa v. Venkataramu Reddi, 22 M, 256 (1898).

(4) Nemajanda v. Paresha, 22 B, 640 (1897)

(5) Venkataramu Iyyar v. Venkata Subrahmanian, 24 M, 27 (1900)

(6) Civ Pr Code, O II, r. 2, p 549.

(7) Bouleau v. Rutlin, 2 Ex, 665, 681, per Park, B, and per Lord Hardwicke, in Gregory v. Molesworth, 3 Atkyns, 625, cited in Soorjomonee Dayee v. Suddanund Mohapatter, 12 B L R, 304, 315 (1873) "Estoppel by judgment results from a matter having been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit and having been therein heard and finally decided" Kali Krishna v. Secretary of State, 16 C, 173 (1888), Poulton v. Adjustable Cover and Boiler Block Co, C A. (1908), 2 Ch., 240 For an apparent exception to this rule in the case of a petition to revoke a patent, which exception seems based on the

There is nothing technical or peculiar to the law of England in this rule which is recognised by the Civil law and has been held to be consistent with the Code of Civil Procedure.(1) Independently of the provision in the Code of 1859, the Courts in India recognised the rule and applied it in a great number of cases, and the re-enactment of the provision in the Code of 1877 appears to have been made with the intention of embodying in the 12th and 13th sections of that Code, the law then in force in India, instead of the imperfect provision in the second section of Act VIII of 1859 (2) The provisions in the present Code,(3) which embody the law of estoppel ' ' ' ' ' ' corres-pond very nearly with those in ' ' . ' ' ers deal with this subject under the head ' ' law of estoppel, but the authors of the Indian Codes have regarded it as belonging more properly to the head of the Procedure (5) The principle of res judicata as remarked by West, J., in Sridh ' ' ' ' ' simple in its statement but presents ' ' ' ' ' Very numerous cases have arisen ı ı ' ' ' ections of the Code dealing with this subject, and the reports contain a great number of decisions upon them. Many of them turn upon facts, and the difficulty has generally been to apply the principles to the facts. Even if the matter properly belonged to the subject of this work it would be unprofitable and lead to confusion to enter into an examination of many of these decisions,(7) for a case may perhaps be a binding authority as to the conclusion arrived at where the facts are identical but not otherwise, in any other case the tribunal must investigate the facts for itself and determine,(8) referring to previous cases only for such propositions of law as are contained in them. With respect to the rule as applicable to Civil cases, the provisions of the present Code of Civil Procedure in regard to res judicata as contained in sections 11—14 are as follow:—

No Court shall try any suit or issue(9) in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title, in a Court of jurisdiction competent to try such subsequent suit, or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised and has been heard and finally decided by such Court.

Explanation I.—The expression "former suit" shall denote a suit which has been decided prior to the suit in question, whether or not it was instituted prior thereto.

Explanation II.—For the purpose of this section the competence of a Court shall be determined irrespective of any provision as to a right of appeal from the decision of such Court.

---

ground that such a petition is on behalf of the public, see in re Deely's Patent (1895), 1 Ch., 687, & Taylor, § 1685(a).

(1) Khagdee Singh v Hossein Bux, 7 B. L. R., 673, 678 (1871). But while consistent it was not identical with it, see Hukm Chand, Res. Jud 7.

(2) Musir Rajkhur v. Sheo Balak, 9 C., 439, 445; 9 I. A., 197, 202, 204 (1882), Kameswar Pershad v. Rajkumari Ruttun, 19 I. A., 238, 20 C., 79 (1892).

(3) Act V of 1908, ss. 11—14, pp. 97—99

(4) Cf. as to the law on this subject, Estoppel by matter of record in civil suits in India, by L. Broughton (1893), The Law of Estoppel in British India, by A. Caspersz (1893), Field's Ev., 235—343 (5th Ed., 1894), The Law of Res Judicata by Hukm Chand (1894).

(5) See remarks of Mahmood, J., in Sita Ram v. Amir Begum, 8 A., 325, 331 (1886).

(6) 11 Bom. H. C. R., 228 (1874).

(7) See Broughton, op. cit., 7

(8) London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, Ap. Cas., 1892, at p. 222, per Lord Herschell; v. id. at p. 210 per Lord Halsbury, L. C., "I must make a protest that it is not a very profitable inquiry whether one case resembles another in its facts."

(9) As to the propriety of the extension of the doctrine to exclude the trial of an issue, see Rai Churn v. Kumud Mohun, 2 C. W. N., 287, 301 (1898); s. c., 25 C., 571, and see Chandi Prasad v. Mahendra Singh, 23 A., 5, 8, 11 (1900).

Explanation III.—The matter above referred to must in the former suit have been alleged by one party and either denied or admitted expressly or impliedly by the other.

Explanation IV.—Any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence or attack in such former suit, shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in such suit.

Explanation V.—Any relief claimed in the plaint, which is not expressly granted by the decree, shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to have been refused.

Explanation VI.—Where persons litigate bonâ fide in respect of a public right or of a private right claimed in common for themselves and others, all persons interested in such rights shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to claim under the persons so litigating (1)

The rule contained in this section applies equally to appeals and miscellaneous(2) proceedings as to original suits

Where a plaintiff is precluded by rules from instituting a further suit in respect of any particular cause of action, he shall not be entitled to institute a suit in respect of such cause of action in any Court to which the Code applies.(3)

A foreign judgment shall be conclusive as to any matter thereby directly adjudicated upon between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the same title, except—

(a) Where it has not been pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction,

(b) where it has not been given on the merits of the case;

(c) where it appears on the face of the proceedings to be founded on an incorrect view of international Law or a refusal to recognize the law of British India in cases in which such law is applicable;

(d) where the proceedings in which the judgment was obtained are opposed to natural justice;

(e) where it has been obtained by fraud,

(f) where it sustains a claim founded on a breach of any law in force in British India.(4)

The Court shall presume upon the production of any document purporting to be a certified copy of a foreign judgment that such judgment was pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction unless the contrary appears on the record; but such presumption may be displaced by proving want of jurisdiction.(5)

These sections as also the present section of this Act, must be read as subject to any other enactments touching their subject-matter Thus an entry of a record prepared under section 108 of the Land-Revenue Code, Bombay Act V of 1879, by the Survey Officer, describing certain lands as khoti, is by force of the seventeenth section of the Khoti Act (Bom. Act I of 1880) conclusive and final evidence of the liability thereby established and shuts out the evidence of a prior decision under this section of the Evidence Act as proof of res judicata whereby a Civil Court adjudged the land to be dhara.(6)

---

(1) Civ. Pr. Code, s 11

(2) Balkishan v. Kishan Lal, 11 A, 148 (1888)

(3) Civ Pr. Code, s. 12

(4) Civ. Pr. Code, s. 13.

(5) Civ. Pr. Code, s 14

(6) Ramchandra Bhaskar v. Raghunath Bacha set, 20 B, 475 (1895) See also as to Khoti Act, Balaji Raghunath v. Bulkin Raghoji, 21 B, 235 (1895), Gopal v. Dasarath Set, 21 B, 244 (1895); Antaji Kashinath v. Antaji Madhav, 21 B, 480 (1896), Gopal v Maghenear, 21 B, 608 (1896).

The rule with regard to previous judgments in criminal cases is contained in the Criminal Procedure Code(1) and is as follows:—

A person who has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction for an offence, and convicted or acquitted of such offence, shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 236, or for which he might have been convicted under section 237.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any distinct offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 255, first paragraph.

A person convicted of any offence constituted by any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that of which he was convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was convicted.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

Explanation.—The dismissal of a complaint, the stopping of proceedings under section 249, the discharge of the accused, or any entry made upon a charge under section 273, is not an acquittal for the purposes of this section.

In the Appendix to the second edition will be found a note dealing shortly and analytically with the provisions of the thirteenth section and then with the subject of foreign judgments. The rule, as has been already seen, is applicable in criminal cases also, and a person who has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction and convicted or acquitted, cannot be tried again for the same offence.(2) The principle of the rule of res judicata is one that is well settled, namely, that a matter which has been put in issue, tried, and determined by a competent Civil or Criminal Court cannot be re-opened between those who were parties to such adjudication. The grounds upon which parties and privies are precluded from re-litigating the same matter between them are, firstly, that of public policy, it being in the interest of the State that there should be an end of litigation (interest reipublicæ ut sit finis litium), secondly, that of hardship to be individual that he should be twice vexed for the same cause (nemo debet bis vexari pro una eadem causa), or twice punished for one and the same offence (nemo debet bis puniri pro uno delicto).(3) Inasmuch, however, as an estoppel shuts out enquiry into the truth, it is necessary to see that the principle of res judicata is not unduly enlarged (4) Although the plea of res judicata may be taken at any stage of a suit, including first or second appeal, an Appellate Court is not bound to entertain the plea if it cannot be decided upon the record before that Court and if its consideration involves the reference of fresh issues for determination by the Lower Court.(5)

---

(1) S 403

(2) Cr. Pr Code, s 403 as to the mode of proving a previous conviction or an acquittal, see s. 511, ib

(3) Lockyer v Ferryman, 2 App. Cas., 519. Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 368, cited in Ranchod Manor v Bezanji Edulji 21 B at p 91 (1894)

(4) Ras Churn v. Kumud Mohan, 2 C. W. N., 297, 301 (1898). s c, 25 C., 571

(5) Kanai Lall v Sarej Kunwar, 21 A., 446 (1899).

Relevancy of certain judgments in probate, etc., jurisdiction.

41. A final judgment, order or decree of a competent Court, in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction, which confers upon or takes away from any person any legal character, or which declares any person to be entitled to any such character, or to be entitled to any specific thing, not as against any specified person but absolutely, is relevant when the existence of any such legal character, or the title of any such person to any such thing, is relevant.

Such judgment, order or decree is conclusive proof—that any legal character which it confers accrued at the time when such judgment, order or decree came into operation ; that any legal character, to which it declares any such person to be entitled, accrued to that person at the time when such judgment, order or decree(1) declares it to have accrued to that person ; that any legal character which it takes away from any such person ceased at the time from which such judgment, order or decree(1) declared that it had ceased or should cease ; and that any thing to which it declares any person to be so entitled was the property of that person at the time from which such judgment, order or decree(1) declares that it had been or should be his property.

Principle.—A decision in rem not merely declares the status of the person or thing, but ipso facto renders it such as it is declared. Public policy requires that matters of social status should not be left in continual doubt and as regards things every one, generally speaking, who can be affected by the decision, may protect his interests by becoming a party to the proceedings (2)

ss. 40, 42, 43 (Judgments, orders and decrees)
s. 44 (Fraud and want of jurisdiction)
s. 3 ("Court.")
s. 3 ("Relevant")
s. 4 ("Conclusive proof")

Taylor, Ev., §§ 1673—1681 ; 1733—1738 ; Best, Ev., § 593, Pigott on Foreign Judgments (1879) ; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 193, 194 ; Everest and Strode on Estoppel ; Bigelow on Estoppel ; Story's Conflict of Laws ; Westlake's Private International Law (1880) ; Wheaton's International Law, 216, 225 (1889), 3rd Eng. Ed ; Foote's Private International Law ; Broughton's Estoppel by Matter of Record in India, 114 ; Caspersz's Law of Estoppel, 450 ; Hukm Chand's Res Judicata, 493 ; Field, Ev., 319—335 ; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 364 ; Steph. Dig., Arts. 39—47, pp. 176—178.

(1) The words "order or decree" in the last three paragraphs were added by s. 3, Act XVIII of 1872.

(2) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 364, and authorities there cited.

COMMENTARY.

"Judgments in rem"

Although the term "judgment in rem" is not used in this Act, yet this section incorporates the law on the subject of such judgments as explained in the decision of Sir Barnes Peacock in Kanhya Lall v. Radha Churn.(1) Many difficulties on the subject, at any rate so far as domestic judgments in rem are concerned, are removed by this section, which greatly simplifies the law relating to these judgments. For the section declares what are the judgments which are alone to have a conclusive character, and one of the main difficulties has always been to ascertain some principle upon which to rest this class of judgments so as to determine what cases fall within it. Foreign judgments in rem stand on a footing somewhat different from that of domestic judgments in rem as well as from that of foreign judgments in personam. Their recognition and enforcement is still void of express legislative sanction, as while they are beyond the rule of res judicata enunciated in the Civil Procedure Code, there is nothing in this Act to directly indicate that its provisions relating to judgments in rem are to be construed so as to include foreign judgments But it is apprehended that in analogy with the practice of the English Courts, such judgments given in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, admiralty, or insolvency jurisdiction will receive in India the same recognition as is accorded to domestic judgments of the same character.(2)

It has been pointed out in the note to the last section that a judgment, as a to th worl unfr only an Yar
Lall received a full consideration. The present section, which is based upon the judgment in the latter case, declares that a judgment, order, or decree in order to operate otherwise than inter partes, must be a final judgment of a com-

(1) 7 W. R., 318 (1867) see this judgment Field, Ev., 329—333 Varakalamma v Annakala, 2 Mad H C R., 276 (1864). Jogendra Deb v Funindra Deb, 14 M I A., 367 11 B L R., 244 (1871), where the subject of judgments in rem, and the meaning of the terms 'in rem,' 'jura in rem' and 'status' are fully discussed See also Broughton, op cit, 114 Caspersz op cit, 450, Hukm Chand, op cit, 493 Bigelow on Estoppel Pigott on Foreign Judgments (1879) Westlake's Private International Law (1880) Wheaton's International Law 216 225 (1889) 3rd Eng Ed Foote's Private International Law, Everest and Strode or Estoppel Story's Conflict of Laws With reference to this section the Select Committee on the Bill remarked in their Report as follows — For the sake of simplicity and in order to avoid the difficulty of defining or enumerating judgments in rem we have adopted the statement of the law by Sir Barnes Peacock in Kanhya Lall v Radha Churn 7 W R., 339."

(2) See Hukm Chand, op cit, 503 et seq Pigott, op cit, Westlake, op cit, Wheaton, op cit, supra, note (1)

(3) As to the history and position of judgment in rem in India prior to this Act, see Varakalamma v Annakala, 2 Mad H C R 276 (1864), Kanhya Lall v Radha Churn, 7 W R 338 (1867) Jogendro Deb v Funindra Deb, 14 M I A, 373 (1871) Ahmedbhoy v Lallebhoy, 6 B, 703 (1882)

(4) 2 Mad H C R, 276 (1864) The conclusion of Holloway J —' That a decision by a competent Court that a Hindu family was joint and undivided, or upon a question of legitimacy, adoption partibility of property rule of descent in a particular family or upon any other question in a suit inter partes or more correctly speaking in an action in personam is not a judgment in rem, or binding upon strangers or in other words upon persons who were neither parties to the suit nor privies was approved of and confirmed by Peacock C J delivering the judgment of the Full Bench in the case of Kanhya Lall v Radha Churn, 7 W R., 338, post

(5) 7 W. R., 338 (1867) B L R., Sup. Vol., F B., 662

petent Court made in the exercise of Probate, Matrimonial, Admiralty or Insolvency Jurisdiction. Besides these, there are no other judgments of a conclusive character. Moreover, these judgments are conclusive proof of certain things only,(1) namely, the legal character to which a person may be declared to be entitled, or to which a person may be declared not to be entitled, and the title to which a person may be declared to possess in a specific thing. This section not only therefore enumerates the different kinds of judgments in rem, but also enacts what their effect shall be. This effect is of a limited character and less extensive than that which has been allowed at times to judgments in rem, in English Courts,(2) whose present tendency is, however, to narrow the effect of such judgments, making them binding for their proper purposes only, in accordance with the view which has been adopted by the Indian Legislature. For, according to recent English decisions(3) judgments in rem, with the exception of the adjudications of Admiralty Courts in prize causes,(4) operate in rem against all persons only so far as the judgment itself is concerned, and beyond the judgment only parties and their privies will be within the estoppel.(5) Under the provisions of the present section the judgments therein mentioned will operate in rem only in respect of those matters of which these judgments are declared to be conclusive proof. Beyond this only parties and privies will be within the estoppel In English law a judgment in rem is strong primâ

---

(1) See Kunhya Lall v Radha Churn supra, where it is said of a decree of divorce— It is conclusive upon all persons that the parties have been divorced, and that the parties are no longer husband and wife, but it is not conclusive, nor even primâ facie evidence against strangers that the cause for which the decree was pronounced existed For instance, if a divorce between A and B were granted upon the ground of the adultery of B with C, it would be conclusive as to the divorce, but it would not be even primâ facie evidence against C, that he was guilty of adultery with B, unless he were a party to the suit "

(2) According to English Law a domestic judgment in rem is conclusive inter omnes of the matters actually decided, and also in prize cases of the grounds of the decision, if these are plainly stated. A foreign judgment in rem is generally conclusive against strangers only upon questions of prize, where the ground of condemnation is plainly stated; or of marriage and divorce where the marriage was solemnised and the parties domiciled in the foreign country; or of bankruptcy as to contracts made in such country, or of probate, administration and guardianship to a limited extent: see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 364, 365, where the authorities are cited.

(3) De Mora v. Concha, L. R., 29 Ch D., 268; Concha v Concha L. R., 11 App. Cas., 541

(4) See Bernardi v. Motteux, Doug., 574, 580 "All the world are parties to a sentence of a Court of Admiralty," per Lord Mansfield, Hughes v Cornelius, 2 Sm. L. Ca., 9th Ed., 825, The Helena, 4 Rob Adm., 3 Such adjudications have been held conclusive not only for their own proper purposes but for other purposes as well, but it has been doubted whether, since the case of Concha v. Concha, supra, the findings and ground of the judgment as distinguished from the judgment itself, would be deemed conclusive upon all the world Bigelow on Estoppel, 5th Ed., 242 See Casperez op. cit., 457, 450, 30, and following note

(5) The Court of Appeal in De Mora v Concha, 29 Ch D., 268, plainly intimate that none of the generally accepted kinds of judgment in rem are such, with the single exception of adjudication in prize causes in the admiralty, in the sense, that is to say, that the findings and grounds of decision bind inter omnes The judgment itself may operate in rem in a variety of cases, but nothing else than the judgment except in the case mentioned . The result is that the discussions in regard to the distinction between judgments in rem and judgments in personam appear to have become for the greater part obsolete learning If the two cases referred to point aright (De Mora v Concha, supra; Brigha v Fayerweather, 140, Mass., 411), there is but one pure judgment in rem, carrying, that is to say, in its broadly conclusive effect, necessary findings and grounds of the decision, other judgments operate in rem, only so far as they have perfectly and completely against all persons—established a right in rem. Beyond the judgment, only parties and their privies are within the estoppel Prize cases themselves are treated by both Courts, English and American, as exceptional, possibly the foundations even of Hughes v Cornelius (a prize case, v. supra) are no longer secure." M. M Bigelow in the Law Quarterly Review, Vol II, p. 406 (1886) facie evidence in a criminal case on behalf of the person in whose favour such judgment was given; but it is not conclusive;(1) and a criminal conviction is not in a subsequent proceeding conclusive of the facts necessary to be proved to obtain the conviction, and is subject to the same rules of evidence as an ordinary judgment inter partes; indeed, such a judgment would not seem to be a judgment in rem at all, except in so far as a conviction for felony amounts to a judgment that the person convicted is a felon.(2) But under this Act such a judgment will be conclusive in a criminal, equally and to the same extent, as in a civil proceeding.(3) An order may be conclusive otherwise than under the provisions of this Act. Thus an order upon a contributory under the Companies Act is conclusive evidence that the moneys ordered to be paid are due, and all other pertinent matters stated in such order are to be taken to be truly stated as against all persons and in all proceedings whatsoever.(4) As in the case of judgments inter partes, a judgment in rem must be final and pronounced by a Court of competent jurisdiction.(5)

Probate Jurisdiction

The Courts exercise testamentary and intestate jurisdiction(6) under the Indian Succession Act,(7) the Hindu Wills Act,(8) and the Probate and Administration Act.(9) This section is applicable to probates granted prior to the passing of the Hindu Wills Act.(10) In the case now cited, it was contended that, as the testator died before the Hindu Wills Act came into force, and as the executor of the will of a Hindu dying before that Act came into force, was a mere manager having no title to the estate, the probate of his will neither conferred a legal character, nor declared the executor to be entitled to any legal character. But the Court held as above-mentioned and said —"I have examined the cases which have been cited, but I am of opinion that section 41 of the Evidence Act applies to this case. It is quite true that a Hindu executor was, at any rate until the passing of the Hindu Wills Act, only a manager, but as such manager he had certain powers over the estate, and for many purposes he represented the testator. It may be that the probate did not confer upon the executor any legal character, but I think that the effect of probate is to declare the person to whom probate is granted to be entitled to the powers of an executor, whatever his powers as such may be. The words 'legal character' are not anywhere defined, but I think that it is quite clear that it is intended to include the case of an executor. The fact that this section has been frequently applied to cases of persons dying after the Hindu Wills Act came into force shows this. The only legal character which the Probate Act declares a person to be entitled to is that of executor. It confers the character of administrator. It does not declare it. So the section would be meaningless unless 'legal character' included the office

(1) Taylor, Ev., § 1680.

(2) Taylor, § 1674 & see Anderson v. Collinson (1901), 2 K. B., 107, an order made in affiliation proceedings is not a judgment in rem; neither is an order to wind up a Company. In re Bowling & Welby's contract, 1895, 1 Ch., 663.

(3) Field, Ev., 335, see p. 380, 277, post, notes (2) and (3).

(4) Indian Companies Act 1882, s. 165.

(5) S. 41, see s. 44, post, and s. 40, ante. And see Toronto Railway Co. v. Corporation of Toronto (1904), A. C., 809.

(6) As to the effect of probate and letters of administration, see De Mora v. Concha, L. R. 29 Ch. D., 268, Hickey v. Hume, 7 H. L. C. A., 124, Concha v. Concha, L. R., 11 App. Cas., 541, and other cases cited in Phipson Ev. 3rd Ed., 301—302; Taylor, Ev., §§ 1750—1761, Roscoe, N. P. Ev. 301, 302, Coote's Probate 10th Ed., 352—356, Williams on Executors, 369, 576, 557 (1902-1903), Hukm Chand, op. cit., 513, Act X. of 1865, ss. 242, 188, 191, Act V. of 1881, ss. 59, 12, 14, and post. Komollochun Dutt v. Nilrutton Mundle, 4 C., 360 (1878), Teen Cowree v. Hureehur Mookerjee, 8 W. R., 308 (1867), Hormusjee Nowrojee v. Bai Dhanbaijee, 12 B. 164 (1887), Mayho v. Williams, 2 N.-W. P. Rep., 268 (1870).

(7) Act X. of 1865 see Part XXXI, ss. 242, 179, 331 as to the High Court, see Letters Patent 1865, cl. (34). In the matter of Fazlemoodeen Adam Saw, 11 W. R. 413 (1869).

(8) Act XXI of 1870.

(9) Act V. of 1881.

(10) Girish Chunder v. Lewington, 14 C., 851, 874—876 (1887).

of an executor. I do not think that the circumstance that in the particular case the powers of the executor may be limited makes any difference in the construction of the section."(1)

The judgment of a Court refusing probate, it has been said, is as much a judgment in rem as one which grants it Such a judgment takes away from does not conclusively show that the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. From a refusal to grant probate it by no means necessarily follows that, in the opinion of the Court, the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. It may To operate conclusively there must the genuineness of the will. A mere been given of the execution of the will probate on the part of the executors when they are in a position to support it with more complete proof.(3) Where the genuineness of the will is not disputed and the applicant is not legally incapable, the Court has no discretion to refuse probate (4) The judgment of a Probate Court granting, or refusing probate is a judgment in rem, and, therefore, the judgment of any other Court in a proceeding inter partes cannot be pleaded in bar of an investigation in the Probate Court as to the factum of the will propounded in that Court. The only judgment that can be put forward in a Court of Probate in support of the plea of res judicata is a judgment of a competent Court of Probate (5) In the undermentioned case(6) it was held that the order of a Judge was ultra vires which was passed under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, so long as th was unrevoked ; a ness of a will, and or to convict any person of having forged a will which had been found to be genuine by a competent Court, and that this section provides that in such matters the finding of the Civil Court is conclusive A grant of letters of administration, with the will annexed, does not make any question as to the title to property covered by, or as to the construction of the will, res judicata in a subsequent suit in which such title or construction come in issue.(7)

Matrimonial jurisdiction

The Courts exercise matrimonial jurisdiction under the Indian Divorce Act,(8) and other Acts(9) relating to marriage and divorce A decree of divorce, though conclusive inter omnes that the parties have been divorced,

(1) Girish Chunder v. Broughton, 14 C P., 875, per Trevelyan, J.

(2) Chinnasami v. Harsharabadra, 16 M., 380, 383 (1893)

(3) Ganesh Jayganath v Ramchandra Ganesh, 21 B, 563 (1896)

(4) Hara Coomar v. Durgamoni, 21 C, 195 (1892), Pran Nath v. Jadu Nath, 20 A, 189 (1897)

(5) Chinnasami v Harsharabadra, 16 M., pp. 383, 384

(6) Manjanali Debi v Ramdas Shome, 4 C W N, clxxvi (1900)

(7) Arunmoyi Dasi v Mohendra Nath, 20 C, 189 (1893) : "It has been held that in a proceeding upon an application for probate of a will the only question which the Court is called upon to determine is whether the will is true or not, and that it is not the province of the Court to determine any question of title with reference to the property covered by the will—ib, 894 895, Behary Lall v. Juggo Mohun, 4 C , 1 Brij Nath v Chandar Mohan, 19 A , 458 (1897) Jagganath Prasad v Ranjit Singh, 25 C , 354, 369 (1897) [shebaitship] Ochanram v Dalatram, 6 Bom L R , 966 (1904)

(8) Act IV of 1869 as to the matrimonial jurisdiction of the High Courts see Letters patent, 1865, cl (35)

(9) Acts XV of 1872 (Indian Christian Marriage), XV of 1865 (Parsee Marriage and Divorce); XXI of 1866 (Native Convert's Marriage Dissolution), III of 1872 (Relating to Marriage between persons not professing the Christian, Jewish, Hindu, Muhammadan, Parsi, Buddhist, Sikh or Jaina religions) is not conclusive, nor even primâ facie, evidence against strangers that the cause for which the decree was pronounced existed.(1) But such a decree in common with others may be re-opened on the ground of fraud or collusion.(2) The general rule with regard to foreign judgments is that they are conclusive where the marriage was solemnized and the parties domiciled in the foreign country.(3) Section 20 of the Indian Divorce Act (IV of 1869) does not make the proviso in the seventeenth section applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of nullity of marriage made by a District Judge, and such a decreee may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncement thereof. Assuming the proviso in the seventeenth section to be applicable to a decree of nullity, a decree by High Court confirming the same before the six months' period has expired cannot on that ground be treated as made by a Court not competent to make it, within the meaning of sections 41 and 44 of the Evidence Act, and is therefore under section 41 conclusive proof that the marriage was null and void.(4)

Admiralty jurisdiction

See with regard to this jurisdiction, the Letters Patent of the High Courts(5) and the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890,(6) which abolishes the Vice-Admiralty Courts, and enacts that every Court of law in British possession which is for the time being declared in pursuance of this Act to be a Court of Admiralty, or which, if no such declaration is in force in the posses- jurisdiction, shall be a Court of Ad- mentioned, and may, for the purpose ers which it possesses for the purpose of its other civil jurisdiction, and such Court in reference to the jurisdiction conferred by this Act is in this Act referred to as a Colonial Court of Admiralty.(7) It is with reference to vessels condemned as prizes that questions concerned with this jurisdiction usually arise, and to such judgments of condemnation, the last paragraph of this section will be applicable

Insolvency jurisdiction.

The Presidency High Courts exercise this jurisdiction under their respective Charters,(8) and the Statute 11 & 12 Vic., cap 21, and the Mofussil Courts under Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure

Relevancy and effect of judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in section 41

42. Judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in section 41, are relevant if they relate to matters of a public(9) nature relevant to the inquiry: but such judgments, orders or decrees are not conclusive proof of that which they state.

Illustration.

A sues B for trespass on his land. B alleges the existence of a public right of way over the land, which A denies.

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant, in a suit by A against C for a way, is trespass on the same land, in which C alleged the existence of

---

(1) Kanhya Lall v. Radha Churn 7 W. R., 338 (1867); ante p. 378, note (1). As to the use of a decree in a previous suit, see Ruel v. Ruel L. R. P. D. (1896), 152.

(2) S. 44, post; see Perry v. Wallinscroft 10 Beav., 138, 139.

(3) Westlake, Private International Law, §§ 46, 321, see Sinclair v. Sinclair, 1 Hagg., 294; Roach v. Garvan, 1 Ves. Sr., 157; Shaw v. Gould 3 F. & I., App., 55; Harvey v. Farnie, L. R., 8 App. Cas., 43; Hukm Chand, op. cit., 527.

(4) Cadon v. Cadon, 22 A., 270 (1900), see s. 44, post.

(5) Letters Patent 1865, cls. (32), (33).

(6) 53 & 54 Vict. 27. See in the matter of the British midget ship "Falls of Ettrick," 22 C., 711 (1895).

(7) Ib., s. 2; see Broughton, op. cit., 149-158.

(8) See Letters Patent 1865 (Calcutta), cl. 18; see Broughton op. cit., 158.

(9) See Hennessy v. Lee, 25 B., 441 (1900).

of an executor. I do not think that the circumstance that in the particular case the powers of the executor may be limited makes any difference in the construction of the section."(1)

The judgment of a Court refusing probate, it has been said, is as much a judgment in rem as one which grants it. Such a judgment takes away from the executors named in the will the legal character of executors and from the legatees and beneficiaries their legal character, and this result is final as against all persons interested under the will (2) But every refusal to grant probate does not conclusively show that the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. From a refusal to grant probate it by no means necessarily follows that, in the opinion of the Court, the will propounded is not the genuine will of the testator. It may be based upon entirely different grounds To operate conclusively there must have been a prior final decision against the genuineness of the will. A mere finding that sufficient evidence has not been given of the execution of the will, will not preclude a fresh application for probate on the part of the executors when they are in a position to support it with more complete proof.(3) Where the genuineness of the will is not disputed and the applicant is not legally incapable, the Court has no discretion to refuse probate (4) The judgment of a Probate Court granting, or refusing probate is a judgment in rem, and, therefore, the judgment of any other Court in a proceeding inter partes cannot be pleaded in bar of an investigation in the Probate Court as to the factum of the will propounded in that Court. The only judgment that can be put forward in a Court of Probate in support of the plea of res judicata is a judgment of a competent Court of Probate.(5) In the undermentioned case(6) it was held that the order of a Judge was ultra vires which was passed under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, so long as the probate of the will [illegible] was unrevoked ; and that it was for th[illegible] ness of a will, and that it was not open [illegible] or to convict any person of having fo[illegible] genuine by a competent Court, and that this section provides that in such matters the finding of the Civil Court is conclusive. A grant of letters of administration, with the will annexed, does not make any question as to the title to property covered by, or as to the construction of the will, res judicata in a subsequent suit in which such title or construction come in issue.(7)

Matrimonial jurisdiction

The Courts exercise matrimonial jurisdiction under the Indian Divorce Act,(8) and other Acts(9) relating to marriage and divorce A decree of divorce, though conclusive inter omnes that the parties have been divorced,

---

(1) Girish Chunder v. Broughton, 14 C. P., 875, per Trevelyan, J

(2) Chinnasami v. Harisharabadra, 16 M., 380, 383 (1893)

(3) Ganesh Jagganath v. Ramchandra Ganesh, 21 B., 563 (1896)

(4) Hara Coomar v. Doorgamoni, 21 C., 195 (1892) Pran Nath v. Jadu Nath, 20 A., 189 (1897)

(5) Chinnasami v. Harisharabadra, 16 M., pp 383, 384

(6) Manjanali Deka v. Ramdas Shome, 4 C W. N., clxxxi (1900)

(7) Arunmoyi Dasi v. Mohendra Nath, 20 C., 188 (1893) 'It has been held that in a proceeding upon an application for probate of a will the only question which the Court is called upon to determine is whether the will is true or not, and that it is not the province of the Court to determine any question of title with reference to the property covered by the will—' ib., 894 895, Behary Lall v. Juggo Mohun, 4 C., 1 Brij Nath v. Chandar Mohan, 19 A., 458 (1897) Jagganath Prasad v. Ranjit Singh, 25 C. 354, 369 (1897) [shebaitship] Ochanram v. Dalatram 6 Bom L. R., 966 (1904)

(8) Act IV of 1869 as to the matrimonial jurisdiction of the High Courts see Letters patent, 1865, cl (35)

(9) Acts XV of 1872 (Indian Christian Marriage), XV of 1865 (Parsee Marriage and Divorce), XXI of 1866 (Native Convert's Marriage Dissolution), III of 1872 (Relating to Marriage between persons not professing the Christian, Jewish, Hindu, Muhammadan, Parsi, Buddhist, Sikh or Jaina religions)

is not conclusive, nor even primâ facie, evidence against strangers that the cause for which the decree was pronounced existed.(1) But such a decree in common with others may be re-opened on the ground of fraud or collusion.(2) The general rule with regard to foreign judgments is that they are conclusive where the marriage was solemnized and the parties domiciled in the foreign country.(3) Section 20 of the Indian Divorce Act (IV of 1869) does not make the proviso in the seventeenth section applicable to the confirmation by the High Court of a decree of nullity of marriage made by a District Judge, and such a decreee may therefore be confirmed before the expiration of six months from the pronouncement thereof Assuming the proviso in the seventeenth section to be applicable to a decree of nullity, a decree by High Court confirming the same before the six months' period has expired cannot on that ground be treated as made by a Court not competent to make it, within the meaning of sections 41 and 44 of the Evidence Act, and is therefore under section 41 conclusive proof that the marriage was null and void.(4)

Admiralty jurisdiction

See with regard to this jurisdiction, the Letters Patent of the High Courts(5) and the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890,(6) which abolishes the Vice-Admiralty Courts, and enacts that every Court of law in British possession which is for the time being declared in pursuance of this Act to be a Court of Admiralty, or which, if no such declaration is in force in the possession, has therein original unlimited civil jurisdiction, shall be a Court of Admiralty, with the jurisdiction in this Act mentioned, and may, for the purpose of that jurisdiction, exercise all the powers which it possesses for the purpose of its other civil jurisdiction, and such Court in reference to the jurisdiction conferred by this Act is in this Act referred to as a Colonial Court of Admiralty.(7) It is with reference to vessels condemned as prizes that questions concerned with this jurisdiction usually arise, and to such judgments of condemnation, the last paragraph of this section will be applicable

Insolvency jurisdiction.

The Presidency High Courts exercise this jurisdiction under their respective Charters,(8) and the Statute 11 & 12 Vic., cap 21, and the Mofussil Courts under Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Relevancy and effect of judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in section 41

42. Judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in section 41, are relevant if they relate to matters of a public(9) nature relevant to the inquiry, but such judgments, orders or decrees are not conclusive proof of that which they state.

Illustration.

A sues B for trespass on his land B alleges the existence of a public right of way over the land, which A denies

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant, in a suit by A against C for a way, is trespass on the same land, in which C alleged the existence of

---

(1) Kanhya Lall v. Radha Churn 7 W. R., 138 (1867); ante p. 378, note (1). As to the use of a decree in a previous suit see Ruck v. Ruck L. R. P. D. (1896), 152.

(2) S. 44 post; see Perry v. Mathewcraft 10 Beav. 178, 179.

(3) Westlake Private International Law §§ 46, 321, see Sinclair v. Sinclair, 1 Hagg., 294, Ruck v. Garma, 1 Ves. Sr., 157 Shaw v. Gould 3 F. & I., App., 55 Harvey v. Farnie L. R., 8 App. Cas., 43 Hukm Chand, op. cit, 527.

(4) Caston v. Caston, 22 A., 270 (1900); see s. 44, post.

(5) Letters Patent, 1865, cls. (32), (33).

(6) 53 & 54 Vict., 27. See in the matter of the British sailing ship "Falls of Ettrick," 22 C., 311 (1895).

(7) Ib., s. 2 see Broughton, op. cit, 149-158.

(8) See Letters Patent, 1865 (Calcutta), cl. 18; see Broughton op. cit, 158.

(9) See Heinger v. Lee, 25 B., 441 (1904).

the same right or relevant, but it is not conclusive, proof that the right of way exists.(1)

Principle.—This section also forms an exception to the general rule that no one shall be affected or prejudiced by judgments to which he is not party or privy.(2) In matters of public right, however, the new party to the second proceeding, as one of the public, has been virtually a party to the former proceeding.(3) Judgments of this character (which are regarded as a species of reputation) are said to be receivable on the same grounds as evidence of reputation, which in matters of public or general interest is admissible.(4) On account of the public nature of the earlier proceedings an exception is made to the rules which excludes res inter alios actæ.(5) But the earlier judgment is not conclusive, and the technical considerations by which the rule as to res judicata is narrowed, lose all their force when it is considered whether the judgment may be used, not as a bar, but merely as evidence in the cause.(6)

ss. 40, 41, 43 (Judgments, orders, decrees.) ss 13, 32, cl. (4), 48 (Public right and custom)
s 3 ("Relevant")
s. 4 ("Conclusive proof.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 44; Taylor, Ev., §§ 624-626, 1682, 1683; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed, 261, 385; Starkie, Ev., 386-388, Roscoe, N P. Ev., 190-192; Wills, Ev., 176, 177.

COMMENTARY.

Judgments upon matters of a public nature.

The English rule (which is reproduced by this section)(7) is that on questions of public or general interest, wherein reputation is evidence, the verdict, judgment or order, even inter alios, of a competent tribunal is admissible, not as tending to prove any specific fact existing at the time, but as evidence of the most solemn kind of an adjudication upon the state of facts and the question of usage at the time.(8) The relevancy of adjudications upon subjects of a public nature (which means subjects of public or general interests, nd customs), such as customs, to the general rule that judg- or against strangers in proof of nature, as evidence of reputation or this purpose are regarded as a and this too, whether the parties in the second suit be those who litigated the first or utter strangers (9) The effect, however, of the adjudication, when admitted, will so far vary that, if the parties be the same in both suits, they will be bound by the previous judgment: but if the litigants in the second suit be strangers to the parties in the first, the judgment, though admissible, will not be conclusive (10) It ought

(1) See Petre v. Nuttall, 11 Ex, 569

(2) Judgments are relevant under this section not as res judicata, but as evidence, whether between the same parties or not Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C, 174, 491, post

(3) Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C, 171, 183 (1880); per Pontifex, J

(4) Taylor, Ev, §§ 1682, 1683 (v post), Norton, Ev, 216; see s. 32, 1 (4), ante. When jurors were summoned de vicineto, and assumed to be acquainted with the subject in controversy, their verdicts were properly evidence of reputation: but at the present day they are not so see Taylor, Ev, § 624; Wills Ev, 176, 177.

(5) See Norton, Ev, 216, Madhub Chunder v Tomee Benah, 7 W R, 210 (1867), Bai Baiji v. Bai Santok, 20 B, 53, 57, 58 (198) (1894)

(6) Durga Dass v. Norendro Coomar, 6 W. R, 232 (1866)

(7) Norton, Ev, 216

(8) Taylor, Ev., § 624, as to the meaning of "public or general interest" see s 32, 1. (4), ante.

(9) Taylor, Ev, §§ 1682, 1683, Field, Ev, 105, 106, Wills, Ev, 176, 177

(10) Taylor, Ev, § 1683, and see generally text-books cited, supra.

to appear clearly from the previous judgment that the question of custom was determined.(1) The most satisfactory evidence of an enforcement of a custom is a final decree based on the custom.(2) The existence of local custom, such as a right of pre-emption is a matter of a public nature, and previous judgments will be admissible under this section in proof thereof.(3) Manorial customs may also be of a similar character.(4) Where a plaintiff sued for damages for value of timber carried away by Government, after being washed on to his estate, and to have his right declared, as against Government, to all timbers that in the future may be washed on to his estate, it was held that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to produce in support of the right some decree or decision of competent authority establishing the custom.(5) Where a custom alleged to be followed by any particular class of people is in dispute, judicial decisions in which such custom has been recognised as the custom of the class in question are good evidence of the existence of such custom.(6) Judicial decisions recognizing the existence of a disputed custom amongst the Jains of one place are very relevant as evidence of the existence of the same custom amongst the Jains of another place, unless it is shown that the customs are different; and oral evidence of the same kind is equally admissible. There is nothing to limit the scope of the enquiry to the particular locality in which the persons setting up the custom reside.(7) In a suit brought by the trustees of a temple to recover from the owners of certain lands in certain villages money claimed under an alleged right as due to the temple, it was held that judgments in other suits against other persons in which claims under the same right had been decreed in favour of the trustees of the temple were relevant under this section as relating to matters of a public nature (8) A custom under which lands are held is a matter of public and general interest to all the villagers, and a former decree is most cogent evidence against them of the existence and validity of the custom whose exercise a plaintiff seeks to enforce (9) The existence of customs of succession in particular communities is a matter of public interest, and decrees

---

(1) Tota Ram v. Mohun Lall, 2 Agra, 120, 121 (1867), see also Laybourn v Crisp, 4 M & W, 42, 325, 326, as to reading of the decree in connection with the judgment, see Shri Gonesh v Kesharrai, 15 B, 635 (1890), post

(2) Gurdyal Mal v Jhandu Mal, 10 A, 580 (1888), Luchman Ras v Akbar Khan, 1 A., 445 (1877).

(3) Madhub Chunder v Tomee Bewah, 7 W R, 210 (1867), Tota Ram v Mohun Lall, 2 Agra, 120 (1867), [in this case, however, it was held that a previous decree made in pursuance of a compromise could not be cited as any judicial decision of the existence of the custom, or any admission by the defendant in that suit, that such a custom subsisted], Shaikh Koodoosdah v Mohini Mohon, 5 Rev Civ & Cr Rep, 290 (1867) [Decisions of local Courts, where not conflicting, may be good proof of local customs See also as conflicting decisions, Inder Narain v Mahomed Nazeroodin, 1 W R, 234 (1864), Gurdayal Mal v. Jhandu Mal, 10 A, 585 (1888), [in this last mentioned case the Court appears to have admitted the previous judgments under s 13 (b)], Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhari Singh, 12 A, 117; but they would have also been admissible under the present section.

(4) Luchman Ras v Akbar Khan, 1 A, 440 441 (1877), as to manorial rights, see Kalian Dass v Bhagirathi, 6 A, 47 (1883), Lala v Hira Singh, 2 A, 49 (1878), Akbar Khan v Sheoratan, 1 A, 373 (1877) Sheobaran v Bhairo Prasad, 7 A, 880 (1885), in the case of the Lower Provinces, see Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss 74, 183, and Reg VIII of 1793 s 51

(5) Chuttur Lall v The Government, 9 W R, 97 (1868) [rights of Lords of Manors]

(6) Shimbu Nath v Gayan Chand, 16 A, 379 (1894), Harnath Pershad v Mundal Dass, 27 C, 379 (1899)

(7) Harnath Pershad v Mundal Dass, 27 C, 379 (1899).

(8) Ramasami v Apparu, 12 Mad 9 (1887), the judgments were also held to be relevant under s 13, ante, as being evidence of instances in which the right claimed had been ascertained See s 13, ante see also Nallathambi Pattar v Nallakumara Pillai 7 Mad. H C R, 308 (1873).

(9) Venkatasvami Nayakkan v Subba Rau, 2 Mad H C R., 1, 6 (1864), per Scotland, C. J, as to judgment in regard to the nature of the interest of a certain family and of a shrine in certain villages see Shri Ganesh v. Kesharrai Govind, 15 B, 625, 635 (1890).

of competent Courts are good evidence thereof.(1) In a suit by the landlords to avoid the sale of an occupancy-holding in their mouza and eject the purchaser thereof, one of the questions was as to the existence of a custom or usage under which the raiyat was entitled to sell such a holding. It was held that a judgment of the High Court as to the transferability of similar tenures in an adjoining village of the same pergunnah was admissible as evidence of such usage under this section.(2) It has been held in England that neither interlocutory orders not involving any judgment upon the rights of the parties, awards, nor claims not prosecuted to judgment are admissible under the rule which is contained in this section.(3) Many matters may go to the weight of this class of evidence which will not, however, affect its admissibility. Thus it matters not with respect to the admissibility, though it may as to the weight of such evidence that the judgment has been suffered by default, or, though of a very recent date, is not supported by any proof of execution or of the payment of damages.(4) And judgments standing upon a different footing from ordinary declarations by private persons, the conditions as to lis mota do not, and indeed cannot, apply to them (5)

Judgments etc., other than those mentioned in ss 40 to 42 when relevant

43. Judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in sections 40, 41 and 42, are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree, is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provisions of this Act.

Illustrations.

(a) A and B separately sue C for a libel which reflects upon each of them. C in each case says, that the matter alleged to be libellous is true, and the circumstances are such that it is probably true in each case, or in neither.

A obtains a decree against C for damages on the ground that C failed to make out his justification The fact is irrelevant as between B and C.(6)

(b) A prosecutes B for adultery with C, A's wife

B denies that C is A's wife, but the Court convicts B of adultery

Afterwards, C is prosecuted for bigamy in marrying B during A's lifetime C says that she never was A's wife.

The judgment against B is irrelevant as against C.

(c) A prosecutes B for stealing a cow from him. B is convicted

A afterwards sues C for the cow, which B had sold to him before his conviction.

As between A and C, the judgment against B is irrelevant.

(d) A has obtained a decree for the possession of land against B C, B's son, murders A in consequence,

---

(1) Bai Banji v. Bai Santok, 20 B., 53, 57, 58 (1894)

(2) Dalglish v. Guzuffer Hussain, 23 C., 427 (1896)

(3) Taylor, Ev., § 626, the last mentioned claims, though inadmissible as evidence of reputation may, however, be admissible as evidence of acts of ownership thus old Bills and Answers in Chancery have been admitted on the latter ground to show claims made to a public right and abandoned; Malcolmson v. O'Dea, 10 H. L. C., 593; on the same grounds it has been held that an indictment whether submitted to or prosecuted to conviction was admissible as evidence of the right in suit being exercised R v. Inhabitants of Brightside, 14 Q. B., 933, at to awards, see Evans v. Rees, 10 A. & E., 151, but see also Tota Ram v. Mohan Lal, 2 Agra, 120, supra.

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 624

(5) Starkie, Ev., 190, note (c)

(6) Cf Doorga Churn v. Shoshee Bhooson, 5 W. R., S. C. C. Ref., 23 (1866), in which it was held that the finding in a previous judgment was not evidence of fraud

The existence of the judgment is relevant, as showing motive for a crime.(1)

(e) A is charged with theft and with having been previously convicted of theft. The previous conviction is relevant as a fact in issue.(2)

(f) A is tried for the murder of B.

The fact that B prosecuted A for libel and that A was convicted and sentenced is relevant under section 8 as showing the motive for the fact in issue.(3)

Principle.—Judgments considered as judicial opinions are only relevant under sections 40-42 under the circumstances mentioned in those sections. Other judgments when tendered against strangers, are sometimes said to be

Such judgments are said not to be evidence for a stranger, even against a party because their operation would thus not be mutual. The propriety of this last ground has however been questioned.(6) But if the existence of the judgment is a fact in issue or relevant under some other provision of this Act the judgment is not excluded.(7)

Steph. Dig., Arts. 40, 42, 44; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 359-389; Taylor, Ev., §§ 1667, 1668, 1682, 1694; Best, Ev., § 590; Roscoe, N. P. Ev., 190-192.

COMMENTARY.

Judgments orders and decrees, other than those already mentioned

It has been seen that section 40 deals with the effect of judgments as barring suits or trials by reason amongst others, of their being res judicata; that section 41 deals with the effect of the so-called judgments in rem and section 42 with the admissibility of judgments relating to matters of a public nature. This section declares that judgments, orders, and decrees, other than those mentioned in those sections, are of themselves irrelevant, that is, in the sense that they can have any such effect or operation as mentioned in those sections qua judgments, orders and decrees, that is, as adjudications upon and proof of the particular points which they decide (8) For a former judgment which is not a judgment ic nature,(10) is not admissible judicata,(11) or as proof of th between the same parties or th t section ex-

(1) Gujja Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C., 181.

(2) Illusts. (e) and (f) have been added by s. 5, Act III of 1891. See also Lakshman v. Amrit, 24 B., 591, 593 (1900).

(3) R. v. Fontaine Mobeau, 11 Q. B., 1028, 1035, per Lord Denman, C. J., Krishnasami Ayyangar v. Rajagopala Ayyangar, 18 M., 77 (1893), Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C. at p. 188, per Garth, C. J.

(4) Steph. Dig., Art. 14, Wharf., s. 280, but see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 384.

(5) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 384, where the grounds of this rule are considered, Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C. at p. 189; Taylor, Ev., § 1682.

(6) Taylor, Ev., § 1682, as to bankruptcy, administration, and divorce proceedings, see Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 385-387.

(7) See Notes to s. 13 ante.

(8) Collector of Gorakhpore v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A. (F. B.), 1, 25 (1889).

(9) Under s. 41, ante.

(10) Under s. 42, ante.

(11) Under s. 40, ante.

(12) S. 43, in effect declares that for such purpose they are irrelevant: see R. v. Parbhudas, 11 Bom. H. C. R., 90, 96 (1874).

The sole object for which it was sought to use the former judgment in Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall (v. post) was to show that in another suit against another defendant the plaintiff had obtained an adjudication in his favour on the same right, and it was held that the opinion expressed in the former judgment was not a relevant fact within the meaning of the Evidence Act." Krishnasami Ayyangar v. Rajagopala Ayyangar, 18 M., 77 (1895).

(13) Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C. (F.B.), 171, see ss. 13, 40, ante, and Notes thereto.

pressly contemplates cases in which judgments would be admissible either as facts in issue or as relevant facts under other sections of the Act. And as to this Garth, C. J., in the case last cited, said: "This is quite true. But then I take it that the cases so contemplated by section 43 are those where a judgment is used not as a res judicata, as evidence more or less binding upon an opponent by reason of the adjudication which it contains (because judgments of that kind had already been dealt with under one or other of the immediately preceding sections). But the cases referred to in section 43 are such, I conceive, as the section itself illustrates, viz., when the fact of any to be proved in the case. As that he had been convicted of the alleged slander was true, ct to be proved by B like any other fact in the case, and quite irrespective of whether A had been actually guilty of the forgery or not. This, I conceive, would be one of the many cases alluded to in the forty-third section (1) And though judgments other than those mentioned in sections 40-42 are irrelevant qua-judgments, this section does not make them absolutely inadmissible when they are the best evidence of something that may be proved aliunde.(2) The existence of such judgment may be a fact in issue,(3) or it may be a relevant fact,(4) otherwise than in its character of a judgment.

With regard to the existence of the judgment, its date or its legal consequences, the prduction of the record or of a certified copy is conclusive evidence of the facts against all the

a public transac recorded.(5) "] and sues the pr evidence for the plaintiff to establish the fact of acquittal, although the parties are necessarily not the same in the action as in the indictment,(6) but it is no evidence whatever that the defendant was the prosecutor, even though his name appear on the back of the bill(7) lice or of want of probaverdict, is still at liberty pay the amount of damages awarded, but it is not evidence of the fact upon which it was founded, namely, the misconduct of the servant or agent.(10) So, a judgment recovered against a surety will be evidence for him to prove the amount which he has been compelled to pay for the principal debtor; but it furnishes no proof whatever of his having been legally liable to pay that amount through the principal's default.(11) The same doctrine will apply to other cases where the party has a remedy, over, as for contribution, or the

---

(1) Gujju Lall, v. Fatteh Lall, 6 C. at p. 192

(2) Collector of Gorakhpore v. Palakdhari Singh, 12 A. (F. B.), 1, 25 (1889).

(3) See s. 43, ill (c)

(4) See s. 43, illusts (d), (f), and s. 54, explanation (2).

(5) v. ante, Introduction to ss 40-44; Abinash Chandra v. Paresh Nath, 9 C. W. N., 402, 410 (1904); Taylor, Ev., ss. 1667, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 359; as to certified copies, see s 76, post.

(6) Leyall v Tollervey, 14 East, 302.

(7) B. N. P., 14.

(8) Parcell v Macnamara, 9 East, 361, In- celdon v Berry, 1 Camp, 203, n a, See Keramutoollah Chowdhury v. Gholam Hossein, 9 W R, 77 (1868); Aghore Nath v Radhica Pershad, 14 W. R, 339 (1870); the fact that the plaintiff has been convicted even though acquitted in appeal, is evidence of reasonable and probable cause Jadubar Singh v. Sheo Saran, 21 A, 26 (1898).

(9) B. N. P, 15

(10) Green v. New River Co, 4 T R, 589; Pritchard v. Hitchcock, 6 M & Gr, 165, per Crowswell, J.

(11) King v. Norman, 4 C. B., 884, 898.

like.(1) In an action against a surety where the defence was that the plaintiff had received certain moneys from the principal in satisfaction of his damages it was held that the plaintiff, in traversing this plea, might put in evidence a judgment recovered from him by the assignees of the principal for the amount so received as money had to their use, not indeed as conclusive proof that the money had been paid to him by the principal in the way of fraudulent preference, but as showing that he had actually repaid the money to the assignees, and as generally [illegible] (2) So if the object be to discredit a witness, [illegible] in a former trial, the judgm [illegible] be strangers, will be admissible for the purpose of introducing the evidence of his former statements.(3) Judgments are admissible when they are tendered for the purpose of contradicting the testimony of a witness. So where A having sworn that her son B was born on March 18th, i.e., five days after her marriage, an application order of deceased Justices reciting that A swore B was born on March 8th was received to contradict her testimony though not to prove the bastardy or date of birth.(4) Upon an indictment for perjury committed in a trial the record will be evidence to show that such a trial was had(5) and if a party be indicted for aiding the escape of a felon from prison, the production of the record of conviction from the proper custody will be conclusive evidence that the prisoner was convicted of the crime stated therein.(6) So where the judgment constitutes one of the muniments of the party's title to land or goods,—as where a deed was made under a decree in Chancery(7) or goods were purchased at a sale made by a sheriff upon an execution,(8) the record may be given in evidence against a party who is a stranger to it. So, in an action to recover lands, a decree in a suit between the defendant's father, and other persons unconnected with the plaintiff, which directed that the father should be let into possession of the estate as his own property, has been held admissible on behalf of the defendant not as proof of any of the facts therein stated, but for the purpose of explaining in what character the father, through which the defendant claimed, had afterwards taken actual possession of the estate.(9) Many other instances might be given of the admissibility of judgments inter alios, where the record is matter of inducement, or merely introductory to other evidence; but those cited will suffice to illustrate the principle (10) A judgment may be relevant as between strangers if it is an admission being received in favour of a stranger against one of the parties as an admission by such party in a judicial proceeding with respect to a certain fact (11) This is no exception to the rule which requires mutuality, since the record is not received as a judgment conclusively establishing the fact but merely as the declaration of the party that the fact was so. Thus not appealing against an adverse judgment may operate as an admission by the party of its correctness (12) And a stranger to a judgment may also be estopped thereby, not directly but by his acquiescence therein (13) So if A pleads guilty to a crime and is convicted, the record of judgment upon this plea is admissible against him in a civil action, as a solemn judicial confession of the fact.(1) But if A pleads not guilty to a crime, but is convicted, the record of judgment upon this plea is not receivable against A in a civil action as an admission to prove his guilt.(2) For the judgment contains no admission, and in conformity with the rule which rejects judgments inter partes as evidence either for or against strangers to prove the facts adjudicated, a judgment in a criminal prosecution unless admissible as evidence in the nature of reputation(3) or, taken in conjunction with the prosecution, as an act of ownership (4) cannot be received in a civil action to establish the truth of the facts on which it was rendered, and a judgment in a civil action, or an award, cannot be given in evidence for such a purpose in a criminal prosecution (5) Technically, the judgments are inadmissible as not being between the same parties, the parties in the prosecution being the Queen-Empress on the one hand, and the prisoner on the other, and in the civil suit the prisoner and some third party, and substantially, because the issues in a civil and criminal proceeding are not the same, and the burden of proof rests in each case on different shoulders.(6) Thus A is convicted of forging B's signature to a bill of exchange. B is afterwards sued by C, to whom A has transferred the bill A's conviction is not admissible to prove the forgery (7) So again a certificate of acquittal on a charge of rape is not admissible to disprove the rape in a divorce-suit founded thereon.(8) A mother murdering her son is not beneficially entitled to take his estate by inheritance, but the fact of her having been acquitted or convicted is not relevant in a civil court upon the question whether she has committed the wrongful act imputed to her and, if so, whether by such act she has forfeited her rights of inheritance (9) A stranger to a judgment may also be

---

(1) R. v. Fontaine Moreau, 11 Q. B. 1028, 1033, per Lord Denman, C. J. "Why does what a man says of himself cease to be evidence by being said in Court"? As to a plea of guilty being evidence of an admission, see Khumbo Chunder v. Madhoo Kybert, 10 W. R., 56 (1868); A plea of guilty in the Criminal Court may, but a verdict of conviction cannot, be considered in evidence in a civil case; Taylor, Ev., § 1694.

(2) R. v. Warden of the Fleet, 12 Mod. 339, and v. post.

(3) S. 42, ante; Taylor, Ev., §§ 1693, 624.

(4) Taylor, Ev., §§ 1693.

(5) Taylor, Ev., § 1693, and cases there cited, Castrique v. Imrie, L. R., 4 E. & I., 434, Keeamutoollah Chowdhry v. Ghulam Hossein, 9 W. R., 77 (1868), [A proceeding of a criminal Court is not admissible as evidence a Civil Court is bound to find the facts itself), Bishonath Nergy v. Hura Gobind, 5 W. R., 27 (1866) [The conviction in a criminal case is not conclusive in a civil suit for damages in respect of the same act], Kityanund Surmah v. Kashinath Nyalunker, 5 W. R., 28 (1866) [A Civil Court is not bound to adopt the view of a Magistrate as to the genuineness or otherwise of a document]; Doorga Dass v. Doorga Churn, 6 W. R., Civ. Ref., 26 (1866). [A suit for money forcibly taken from the plaintiff by the defendants is maintainable in Civil Court, notwithstanding the defendants' acquittal in the Criminal Court on the charge of robbery; Ali Bulsh v. Shaikh Samsuddin, 4 B. L. R., A. C., 31 (1869) 1 W. R., 477. In a suit for damages for an assault the previous conviction of the defendant in a Criminal Court is no evidence of the assault. The factum of the assault must be tried in the Civil Court. R. v. Hedger (1852), at p. 135. Agoranath Roy v. Radhika Pershad, 14 W. R., 339 (1870); Gogun Chunder v. R., 6 C., 247 (1880). Ram Lall v. Tulla Ram, 4 A., 97 (1880). See Raj Kumari v. Bama Sundari, 23 C., 610 (1896), in which, however, Ghose, J., observed that he was not prepared to say that the decision in a civil suit would not be admissible in evidence in a criminal case if the parties were substantially the same and the issues in the two cases identical. Rampini J., contra. Manjanadi Debi v. Ramdas Shome, 4 C. W. N., clxxvi (1900). For a case in which a civil judgment was rejected in a criminal proceeding see R. v. Fontaine Moreau, 11 Q. B., 1028.

(6) Gogun Chunder v. R., 6 C. 247 (1880), per White, J.

(7) Castrique v. Imrie, L. R., 4 E. & I., 234; Parsons v. London County Council, 9 T. L. R., 619.

(8) Virgo v. Virgo, 69 L. T., 466. So also on the trial of A as accessory, to a felony committed by B, the conviction of B though admissible to prove that fact, is no evidence of B's guilt. See Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 387, et sic cases.

(9) Velanayagar Mudaliar v. Velanmal, 14 Mad. L. J., 207.

bound by it if he has so contracted. Thus, if A contract to indemnify B against any damages recoverable against the latter by C, and B has bonâ fide defended the action and paid the amount, the judgment will be conclusive of A's liability. But this does not apply where B has no contract with, but merely a claim against A for such indemnity.(1) In the absence of special agreement, a judgment or an award against a principal debtor is not binding on the surety, and is not evidence against him in an action against him by the creditor, but the surety is entitled to have the liability proved as against him in the same way as against the principal debtor.(2) As to decrees considered as evidence of the necessity of alienation, see authorities cited below.(3)

Fraud or collusion in obtaining judgment or incompetency of Court, may be proved

44. Any party to a suit or other proceeding may shew that any judgment, order or decree which is relevant under sections 40, 41 or 42, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion.

Principle.—A judgment delivered by a Court not competent(4) to deliver it, as by a Court which had no jurisdiction over the parties or the subject-matter of the suit, is a mere nullity.(5) And though the maxim is stringent that no man shall be [illegible] fraud can be shewn, this maxim when a decree is passed between each other.(7) Fraus et jus nunquam cohabitant Fraud avoids all judicial acts, ecclesiastical or temporal. It is an extrinsic collateral act, which vitiates the most solemn proceedings of Courts of Justice, which, upon being satisfied of such fraud, have a power to vacate and should vacate their own [illegible]on of this rule it makes no difference whether pronounced by an inferior or by the highest it is competent for every Court, whether superior or inferior, to treat as a nullity any judgment which can be clearly shown to have been obtained by manifest fraud (9)

ss. 40—42 (Judgments, orders and decrees.) s. 3 ("Court.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")

Steph. Dig., Art. 46, Taylor, Ev., §§ 1713—1717; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 362; Best, Ev., § 595; Field, Ev., 340—343; Norton, Ev., 218, 219; Wharton, Law Lexicon (1892); Hukm Chand's Res Judicata, 484.

(1) Parker v. Lewis, 8 Ch App., 1035, 1058, 1059

(2) Ex-parte Young In re Aitchin, 17 Ch D 668

(3) Field, Ev., 328—340, Mayne's Hindu Law, §§ 323, 324, and cases there cited

(4) See Kettilamma v. Kelappan, 12 M., 228 (1887), Sardarmal v. Arunayal Sabhapathy, 21 B., 205, 212 (1896).

(5) See cases cited, post

(6) Rogers v. Hadley, 2 H. & C., 247, see Hafer v. Allen, L. R., 2 Ex., 18.

(7) Bandon v. Becher, 3 C. & F., 510

(8) Duchess of Kingston's case, 2 Sm. L. C., per Lord de Grey, C. J., Philipson v. The Earl of Egremont, 6 A. & E., 587, 605, Paramjee v. Kanaji, 6 B., 148 (1882).

(9) Sheldon v. Patrick, 1 Macq. H. L., 535, as to the procedure to be taken to set aside a decree obtained by fraud and collusion, see Mewa Lal v. Bhujun Jha, 13 B. L. R., App., 11 (1874), Ashootosh Chandra v. Tara Prasanna, 10 C., 612 (1884), Eshan Chandra v. Nundamoni Dassee, 10 C., 357 (1884), Karamali Rahimkhoy v. Rahimkhoy Habibkhoy, 13 B., 137 (1888) Banee Lall v. Ramji Lall, 20 A., 370, 374 (1898), Nistarini Dassee v. Nundo Lall, 26 C., 907 (1899). A consent-decree cannot be set aside on motion on the ground that it was obtained by fraud and misrepresentation. A separate suit must be brought for that purpose Charge of fraud cannot properly be tried on affidavits. Fodoomary Dass v. Woodoy Chunder, 25 C., 649 (1898). See also Act IX of 1908, Sch. I, Art. 95.

COMMENTARY.

Incompetency, fraud, collusion

When one of the parties to a suit tenders or has put in evidence(1) a judgment, order or decree under the fortieth, forty-first, or forty-second section(2) it is open to the other party under this section to avoid its effect on any of the three grounds, (a) want of jurisdiction in the Court which delivered the judgment, (b) that the judgment was obtained through fraud, or (c) collusion.(3)

(i) Incompetency

A judgment delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it is a mere nullity, and cannot have any probative force whatever between the parties.(4) The words 'not competent' in this section refer to a Court acting without jurisdiction.(5) And although one Court cannot set aside the proceedings of another Court, for want of jurisdiction, yet when a matter arises before a Court in the ordinary course of its jurisdiction, and one of the parties relies on, or seeks to protect himself by, the proceedings of another Court, then in that way the jurisdiction of the Court whose proceedings are pleaded may be inquired into.(6) By the law both of this country and of England anybody, whether party or stranger, against whom a previous judgment is used in a subsequent suit may impeach it in the suit in which it is so used on the ground of want of jurisdiction in the Court which passed it (7) The competency of a Court cannot depend on whether a point which it decides has been raised or argued by a party or counsel. It cannot be said that whenever a decision is wrong in law or violates a rule of procedure, the Court must be held incompetent to deliver it. It has never been and could not be held, that a Court which erroneously decrees a suit which it should have dismissed as time barred or as barred by the rule of res judicata, acts without jurisdiction and is not competent to deliver its decree. This and section 41 recognise that given the competency of the Court, even error or irregularity in the decision is a less evil than the total absence of finality which would be the only alternative (8) There is a distinction between an order which a Court is not competent to pass and an order which even if erroneous in law or in fact is within the Court's competency.(9)

(ii) Fraud.

The Act contains no definition of the term "fraud" for the purposes of this section It was held in one case that the fraud must not consist in the fact of a fraudulent defence having been set up, it must be fraud in procuring the judgment, such as collusion or the like between the parties, or fraud in the Court itself (10) In a subsequent case it was said that the fraud

---

(1) See Nistarini Dassi v. Nundo Lall, 30 C, 369, 382 (1902), where it was objected that the decree had not been proved by the adverse party.

(2) In Norton, Ev., 218, it is suggested that the same rule ought to apply in the case of a judgment, order or decree tendered under s. 43

(3) Ib See Ahmedbhoy Habibhoy v Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy, 6 B, 716 (1882); it was suggested that the word may be read as equivalent to "fraud and collusion"; sed quære, see post

(4) See Kalka Parshad v. Kanhaya Singh, 7 N -W. P, 99 (1875), Sookram Misser v. Crowdy, 19 W. R, 284 (1873); Gunnesh Pattro v. Ram Nidhee, 22 W. R, 361 (1874); R v Hussein Gaibu, 8 B, 307 (1884). Where an offence is tried by a Court without jurisdiction, the proceedings are void and the offender if acquitted is liable to be tried

(5) Kelilamma v Kelappan, 12 M., 228 (1887). Competency is here synonymous with jurisdiction, Sardarmal v. Anarrayal Sahhapathy, 21 B, 205, 212 (1896) See the same matter reported in 21 B, 297 (1897).

(6) Gunnesh Pattro v Ram Nidhee, 22 W R, 361 (1874)

(7) Rajib Panda v Lakhan Sendh, 27 C, 11, 21 (1899), Steph Dig, Art 46, Taylor, Ev, § 1714 According to English Law while in the case of fraud or collusion strangers alone may show their existence, want of jurisdiction may be shown by anybody. As to fraud and collusion in this country, v post

(8) This passage was cited with approval in Nathu Ram v Kalyan Das, 1 All L J, 21, 222 (1904), s c, 26 A., 522 Caston v. Caston, 22 A, 270, 281 (1899); see s 41, ante

(9) Sardarmal v. Aarnayal Sahhapathy, 21 B., 205, 211 (1896).

(10) Cammell v. Sewell, 4 Jur N S, 978, (1858), s. c, 3 H & N., 617; 5 H & N, 728, see Story, Eq. Jur, 258, § 252*a*, as to enquiries in the Bank-must be actual fraud, such that there is on the part of the person chargeable with it the malus animus putting itself in motion and acting in order to take an undue advantage of some other person for the purpose of actually and knowingly defrauding him. The fraud must be such as can be explained and defined on the face of a decree and mere irregularity or the insisting upon rights which, upon a due investigation of these rights might be found to be overstated or overestimated, is not the kind of fraud which will authorise the Court to set aside a decree.(1) In a subsequent case(2) an action was brought for infringement of a patent, and judgment was recovered by the plaintiff which was reversed by the Court of appeal on the ground that the facts shewed no infringement. Subsequently the plaintiff brought an action to impeach the judgment on the ground that when an expert sent down by the Court, and whose evidence was the only material evidence before the Court as to the nature of the defendant's process, examined the defendant's works, the defendant fraudulently concealed from him certain parts of the process, so that he had no opportunity of discovering the points in which it resembled that of the plaintiff. On the original trial the fraud was found to be proved and the judgment was set aside. On appeal(3) by the defendant the Court of Appeal (James, Baggallay and Thesiger, L. JJ.) the judgment of the lower Court was reserved on the ground that the fraud was not proved. But James, L. J., added the following observations, in which Thesiger, L. J., concurred; Baggallay, L. J., dissenting: "Assuming all the alleged falsehood and fraud to have been substantiated, is such a suit as the present sustainable? That question would require very grave consideration indeed before it is answered in the affirmative. Where is litigation to end if a judgment obtained in an action fought out adversely between two litigants sui juris and at arm's length could be set aside by a fresh action on the ground that perjury had been committed in the first action or that false answers had been given to interrogatories, or a misleading production of documents, or of a machine, or of a process had been given. There are hundreds of actions tried every year, in which the evidence is irreconcilably conflicting and must be on one side or the other wilfully and corruptly perjured. In this case, if the plaintiffs had sustained in this appeal the judgment in their favour, the present defendants in their turn might bring a fresh action to set that judgment aside on the ground of perjury of the principal witness and subornation of perjury, and so the parties might go on alternately ad infinitum." These observations which were obiter dicta were cited by Petheram, C. J., in the case undernoted,(4) where the plaintiff alleged that he was induced by the fraud of the defendant not to defend the action and in which the following observations (which were also obiter as fraud was negatived) were made —"The principle upon which these decisions rest is that where a decree has been obtained by a fraud practised upon the other side by which he was prevented from placing his case before the tribunal which was called upon to adjudicate upon it in the way most to his advantage, the decree is not binding upon him and may be set aside in a separate suit, and not only by an application made in the suit in which the decree was passed to the Court ruptcy Court guarding against fraud with regard to the consideration for a judgment-debt, see Ex-parte Revell, In re Tellemache, 13 Q. B. D., 720; Ex-parte Lennox, 16 Q. B. D., 315; Ex-parte Flatau, 22 Q. B. D., 83; Ex parte Bonham, 14 Q. B. D., 605; Ex-parte Official Receiver Re Mellor, 67 L. T., 601; Re Fraser (1892), 2 Q. B., 633; Re Hawkins, Ex-parte Troup (1895), 1 Q. B., 404. As to the effect of fraud in judgments see Hukm Chand, op. cit., 484.

---

(1) Patch v. Ward, L. R., 3 Ch. D., 203, cited in Mahomed Golab v. Mahomed Sulliman, 21 C., 617 (1894).

(2) Flower v. Lloyd, 6 Ch. D., 297 (1877), cited in Nadarmi Dossee v. Nundo Lall, 26 C., 891 (1899).

(3) Flower v. Lloyd, 10 Ch. D., 327 (1878), see in this decision criticised Aboulaff v. Oppenheimer, 10 Q. B. D., 295, 307, 308 (1882).

(4) Mahomed Golab v. Mahomed Sulliman, 21 C., 612, 619 (1894).

by which it was passed, but I am not aware that it has ever been suggested in any decided case; and in my opinion it is not the law that because a person against whom a decree has been passed alleges that it is wrong and that it was obtained by perjury committed by, or at the instance of, the other party, which is of course fraud of the worst kind, that he can obtain a rehearing of merely changing the form in which his plaint that the first decree was hose favour it was given. To so avoid the operation not only of that which relates to res judicata ne case are very clearly stated by ed . . ." Since the English decision cited there have been several cases where the Court has under similar circumstances exercised jurisdiction. In the undermentioned case,(1) B in an action brought in the Probate Division had propounded a will and A had propounded the substance of a later will alleging that the earlier will had been obtained by undue influence A compromise was effected under which the alleged earlier will was admitted to probate. Afterwards A discovered that the last-mentioned alleged will was a forgery and that B was a party or privy to the forgery and brought an action to set aside the compromise as having been procured by fraud and obtained judgment in that action. In a recent case,(2) the plaintiff alleged that a judgment was procured by the fraud of the defendant in that the latter fraudulently exhibited to the Court and jury certain false and counterfeit documents and certain memorandum books containing false and fraudulent entries touching the matters in issue in the action and the judgment so fraudulently obtained was set aside.

But in another, where the plaintiff, having obtained letters of administration to the estate of a deceased landlord, sued a tenant for rent, and the latter in his written statement objected that the letters of administration had been obtained upon a misrepresentation by the plaintiff as to his relationship with the intestate, it was held could be regarded as an order tions of the defendant were no for the purpose of proving that the letters of administrations were invalid in law, and also that such a defence could not be successfully raised so long as the letters of administration were not revoked by a competent Court.(3)

With regard to the parties who may show fraud it is clear that a stranger

(1) Priestman v. Thomas, 9 P. D., 210 (1884)

(2) Cole v. Langford, 2 Q. B. (1898), 36, cited in Sri Rangammal, 23 M., 216, 219 (1899)

(3) Ambica Charan Das v. Kala Chandra Das, 10 C. W. N., 422.

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 1713; Steph. Dig., Art. 46; Bigelowe's Estoppel, 208 Hufler v. Allen, L. R., 2 Exch., 15.

(5) This view is by no means a clearly settled and accepted one, the rule with regard to innocent parties being treated as open to some doubt, Rajib Panda v. Lakhan Sendh, 27 C., 23 (1899)

(6) Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy, 6 B., 703, 715 (1882).

a previous suit in which a judgment was obtained may in a subsequent suit aver and prove that it was obtained by fraud though the judgment remains unreversed.(1) So in a suit brought by A against B for khas possession of a tank, the plaintiff put in a decree based on a compromise in a previous suit between him and the defendant to prove his right to khas possession. The defence inter alia was that the decree was a fraudulent one. It was objected by the plaintiff that as the defendant was a party to the former decree which was unreversed, he should not be allowed to prove that it was procured by fraud, but it was held that the defendant was entitled to do so.(2) A party to a proceeding is never disabled from showing that a judgment or order has been obtained by the adverse party by fraud;(3) and if it can be proved that the decree in the former suit was obtained by fraud there can be no question of res judicata (4) In the undermentioned case it appeared that A mortgaged certain property to B, who instituted a suit on his mortgage and obtained a decree therein. Subsequent to such decree A sold the property to a third party C. B having attempted to execute his decree against the property in the hands of C, the latter instituted a suit against A and B, for the purpose of having it declared that the property was not liable to satisfy the decree, because the mortgage-transaction was a fraudulent one, and the decree had been obtained by fraud and collusion. In such suit B contended that C having purchased subsequent to the decree was absolutely bound by it. But it was held that, having regard to the terms of this section, it was perfectly open to C to prove that the decree had been obtained by fraud and collusion (5) The words of the section "any party to a suit, &c.," are wide enough to include parties to the first suit both innocent and guilty. But there can be no doubt that the benefit conferred by the section is given only to an innocent party not privy to the fraud. For though the words of the section would, by themselves and independent of the general law, allow a party to set up his own fraud in procuring the former judgment in order to defeat it (which has been characterised as a startling proposition),(6) it is clear that a guilty party would not be permitted to defeat a judgment by showing that in obtaining it he had practised an imposition on the Court.(7) But in that case a party is precluded not by any rule of evidence but by the general principles of justice which forbid a person to plead his own fraud (8) It is no doubt a general rule that a Court will not interfere actively in favour of a party who has been particeps criminis in an illegal or fraudulent transaction, and this rule

---

(1) Rajib Panda v. Lakhan Sendh, 27 C., 11 (1899), s c., 3 C. W. N, 660, Nistarini Dasee v Nundo Lall, 26 C, 891 (1899), s c, 3 C W. N, 670. In appeal, 30 C, 369, s c, 7 C W N, 353, it was held that the High Court had original jurisdiction to entertain a suit to set aside a decree of a mofussil Court on the ground of fraud and that even if this were not so inasmuch as admittedly the Court had jurisdiction to entertain the suit so far as it was one for administration, if the decree was relied upon by the defendant the plaintiff might show that it was obtained by fraud [approved in Sri Rangammal v. Sandammal, 23 M, 216, 218 (1899),], Bansi Lal v Dhapo, 24 A., 242 (1902), in which cases this matter and prior decisions thereon will be found fully discussed. These three cases are supported by dicta in Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v Vulleebhoy, supra, Manchharam v Kalidas, 19 B., 821, 826 (1894), Nilmoney Mukhopadhya v Nimmoosa Bibee, 12 C., 156 (1885). The case of Bansi Lal v Ramji Lall, 20 A, 370 (1898), cannot be regarded as an authority, as the present section was not considered nor even mentioned in that decision See Bansi Lal v Dhapo, 24 A, 242, 245 (1902). As to foreign judgments, see Nistarini Dasee v Nundo Lall, 26 C at p 910 (1899)

(2) Rajib Panda v Lakhan Sendh, 27 C, 11 (1899)

(3) Manchharam v Kalidas, 19 B, 821 (1894).

(4) Krishnabhupati v Ramamurti, 16 M, 198 (1892)

(5) Nilmoney Mukhopadhya v Nimmoosa Bibee, 12 C, 156 (1885)

(6) Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy, 6 B, 703 (1882), at p. 716, per Latham J, having regard to the maxims Allegans suam turpitudinem non est audiendus and Nemo ex dolo suo proprio relevatur aut auxilium capeat.

(7) Nistarini Dasee v Nundo Lall, 26 C., 891, 907 (1899).

(8) Rajib Panda v Lakhan Sendh, 27 C., 11, 22, 23 (1899).

ordinarily applies to persons who are privies in estate. But the rule that a privy in estate cannot set up fraud as an answer is not of general application. There are cases which form an exception to it, such as cases in which the act in which the parties concur is against the principles of morality or public policy. In such cases the Court sees the necessity of supporting the public interest, however, blameable the parties themselves may be. Another exception is where the collusive fraud has been on a provision of the law enacted for the benefit of the privies. The rule which prevents a person who is a party from pleading the illegality of his act does not hold good as against persons claiming through such party, if they are the parties sought to be defrauded. So where by means of a fraud practised on the Court the owner of considerable property caused a decree to be passed against himself as defendant in a collusive suit upholding a fictitious wakf-namah, by which it was intended to tie up the property in perpetuity for the benefit of the direct descendants of the waqif to the exclusion of his collateral heirs, it was held in a suit by such heirs to recover possession of their share by inheritance of the property so dealt with (a) that a Court, which was otherwise competent to entertain the suit had jurisdiction, on the finding that it had been obtained by means of fraud, to treat the previous decree as a nullity, and (b) that the plaintiffs were not prevented from setting up the plea that the previous decree had been obtained by fraud by the fact that the person who practised such fraud was their predecessor in title.(1)

(111) Collusion

As in the case of the term "fraud" the Act contains no definition of the word "collusion" for the purposes of this section. "Collusion" is the uniting for the purposes of fraud or deception, and has been defined to be a deceitful agreement or compact between two or more persons to do some act in order to prejudice a third person or for some improper purpose Collusion in judicial proceedings is a secret agreement between two persons that the one should institute a suit against the other in order to obtain the decision of a judicial tribunal for some sinister purpose and appears to be of two kinds (a) When the facts put forward as the foundation of the sentence of the Court do not exist, (b) when they exist but have been corruptly preconcerted for the express purpose of obtaining the sentence In either case the judgment obtained by such collusion is a nullity.(2)

It is c[illegible] collusion.

cannot ord

challenged by a third person,(3) or innocent party(4) who stands to suffer by it in the same or any other Court; yet as between parties themselves to a collusive decree neither of them can escape its consequences.(5) Strangers no doubt may falsify a decree by charging collusion, but a party to a decree not complaining of any fraud practised upon himself cannot be allowed to question it It

---

(1) Barkat-un-nissa v. Fazl Haq, 26 A., 272 (1904)

(2) Wharton's Law Lexicon (1892), sub loco "Collusion" p 151 This definition is perhaps in some respects too limited Proof of collusion in the sense that the parties, even without fraud, were not really in contest, will vitiate the judgment Earl of Bandon v. Becher, 3 C & F., 510; Girdlestone v. Brighton Aquarium Co., 4 Ex D., 107 [referred to in Nistarini Dossee v. Nundo Lall 26 C. at p 909 (1899)] The former action in the case last cited was one brought not for the purpose of giving the person named as plaintiff the fruits of it or indeed any benefit whatever from it, but for the protection of the defendants It was held that there was not fraud in procuring the former judgment, but that it was no bar inasmuch as there had been collusion (deceit) and the defendants in the second action were in truth both plaintiff and defendants in the former action the judgment in which was pleaded as a bar In Sardarmal v. Arayal Sabhapathy, 21 B., 205, 215 (1896) it was held that there was no collusion

(3) Chenvirappa v. Puttappa, 11 B., 708, 713 (1887).

(4) In cases cited ante

(5) Chenvirappa v. Puttappa, supra is not competent to a party to a collusive decree to seek to have it set aside (1) A party to a collusive decree is bound by it except possibly when some other interest is concerned that can be made good only through his.(2) The distinction between fraud and collusion has been said(3) to lie in this, that a party alleging fraud in the obtaining of a decree against him is alleging matter which he could not have alleged in answer to the suit, whereas a party charging collusion is not alleging new matter. He is endeavouring to set up a defence which might have been used in answer to the suit, and that he cannot be allowed to do consistently with the principle of res judicata.(4)

(iv) Generally.

The question of fraud as affecting judgment and decree was considered by the Bombay High Court on general grounds of English law in the case of Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy,(5) which must be read in conjunction with the previous observations. After a division of persons into three classes, with reference to their position as affected by the judgment, viz. (a) privies,(b) persons who, though not claiming under the parties to the former suit, were represented by them therein, (c) strangers, neither privies to, nor represented by, the parties to the former suit, the Court proceeded to consider the effect of a previous judgment on these three classes respectively with reference to their capacity to dispute it.

In the first place, the judgment may be an honest one, obtained in a suit conducted with good faith on the part of both plaintiff and defendant In such a case the previous judgment is clearly binding both on class (a) and class (b), class (c) will be in no way effected by the judgment if it be inter partes, but if it be one in rem passed by a competent Court,(6) they will be bound by and cannot controvert it.(7) In the second place, the judgment may be passed in a suit really contested by the parties thereto, but may be obtained by the fraud of one of them as against the other. There has been a real battle, but a victory unfairly won In this case again class (a) and class (b) and as regards judgments in rem class(c) are in one and the same position, which is that of the parties themselves. The judgment is binding on them so long as it remains in force, but it may be impeached for fraud and set aside if the fraud be proved. In the third place, the previous judgment may have been obtained by the fraud and collusion of both the parties to the former suit In this case there has been no battle, but a sham fight. As between the parties to such a judgment, it is binding. The same rule will apply between the privies of these parties;(8) except probably where the collusive fraud has been on a provision of the law enacted for the benefit of such privies (9) Thus in the undermentioned case A with the intention of defeating and defrauding his creditors made and delivered a promissory note to B without consideration, and collusively allowed a decree to be obtained against him on the note, and conveyed to B a house in part-satisfaction of the decree it appeared that certain of A's creditors were consequently induced to remit part of their claims A, having died, his widow and legal representative under Hindu law sued B to have the note and conveyance set aside, and to have the defendant restrained by injunction from executing the decree, but it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to relief in respect of the note and the decree, although she was not personally a party to the fraud inasmuch as she claimed through A by whose

(1) Varadarajulu Naidu v. Srinivasulu Naidu, 20 M., 333 (1897)

(2) Chenvirappa v. Puttappa, 11 B., 708 (1887)

(3) Varadarajulu Naidu v. Srinivasulu Naidu 20 M at p 338

(4) Ib, if it be proved that the decree was obtained by the collusion of others there can be no res judicata. Krishnalingam v. Kumaswami 16 M., 198 (1892)

(5) 6 B. 703 (1882)

(6) s. 41 ante

(7) Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy supra

(8) Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy, supra Ramammal v. Venkatachari, 18 M., 378 (1895)

(9) Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy Cassumbhoy supra.

contrivance and collusion the defendant was enabled to obtain the decree.(1) But as regards class (b) and (where a judgment in rem is in question) class (c) any member of either class may, in any subsequent proceeding, whether as plaintiff or defendant, treat a previous judgment so obtained by fraud and collusion as a mere nullity, provided of course, that he clearly establish the fact of the fraud and collusion.(2)

---

(1) Rangammal v. Venkatachari, 18 M, 378 (1895)

(2) Ahmedbhoy Habibbhoy v. Vulliebhoy Cassumbhoy, 6 B at pp. 710—714, and see Barkanta Nath Roy Choudhry v. Mohendra Nath Roy, 1 C. L J, 65.

OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS, WHEN RELEVANT.

THE opinions of any person, other than the Judge by whom the fact is to be decided, as to the existence of facts in issue or relevant fact are, as a rule, irrelevant to the decision of the cases to which they relate. To show that such and such a person thought that a crime had been committed, or a contract made, would either be to show nothing at all, or it would invest the person whose opinion was proved with the character of a judge. The use of witnesses being to inform the tribunal respecting facts, their opinions are not in general receivable as evidence, though what is matter of opinion is sometimes a question of some difficulty. In some few cases, the reasons for which are self-evident, it is otherwise. They are specified in the following sections 45—51.(1) A distinction, must, however, be drawn between the cases where an opinion may be admissible under sections 6—11 (independently of its correctness as such) as forming a link in the chain of relevant facts to be proved, and those in which an opinion is tendered merely as such, and is sought to be made use of solely by reason of the correctness of its findings upon its subject-matter. In the last of the opinions of experts who cannot be called as witnesses, oral evidence, if it refers to an opinion or to the grounds on which that opinion is held, must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds (section 60).

The weight of such evidence depends on the maxim cuilibet in arte sua credendum est, and the grounds of its admissibility are contained in the general rule "that the opinion of witnesses possessing peculiar skill is admissible, whenever the subject-matter of enquiry is such that inexperienced persons are unlikely to prove capable of forming a correct judgment upon it without such assistance, in other words, when it so far partakes of the character of a science or art, as to require a course of previous habit or study in order to obtain a competent knowledge of its nature."(2) On the other hand, it is equally clear that the opinions of skilled witnesses cannot be received, when the inquiry relates to a subject which does not require any peculiar habits or course of study in order to qualify a man to understand it. (3) Thus witnesses are not permitted matters of moral or is would probably h her than another, be... opinion as the witnesses themselves. (4)

(1) Steph Introd., 167. Opinions in so far as they may be founded on no evidence, or illegal evidence, are worthless, and in so far as they may be founded on legal evidence, tend to usurp the functions of the tribunal whose province alone it is to draw conclusions of law or fact: Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 337, citing Best, Ev., § 511, Powell, Ev., 107, Lawson's Expert and Opinion Evidence, 1, Wigmore, Ev., § 1917 et seq.

(2) Taylor, Ev., § 1418, as to the meaning of the term expert, see Lawson's Expert and Opinion Evidence, 1905.

(3) Taylor, Ev. § 1419 see Pranjivandas v. Mayaram, I Bom H C R., at p. 155 (1863). See remarks to Lord Bramwell in G v M I. R., 10 App. Cas 171, 200 and of Vaughan Williams, J., in R v Silverlock L. R., 2 Q. B. D. (1894), 766, 769.

(4) Taylor, Ev., § 1419, Greenleaf, Ev., § 441.

Opinion when admissible.

The opinions of skilled witnesses are admissible in evidence not only where they rest on the personal observation of the witnesses themselves, and on facts within their own knowledge, but even where they are merely founded on the case as proved by other witnesses at the trial. But here the witnesses cannot in strictness be asked his opinion respecting the very point which the Court or jury are to determine. So if the question be whether a particular act, for which a prisoner is tried, were an act of insanity, a medical man, conversant with that disease, who knows nothing of the prisoner, but has simply heard the trial, cannot be broadly asked his opinion as to the state of the prisoner's mind at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, because such a question involves the determination of the truth of the facts deposed to, as well as the scientific inference from those facts. He may, however, be asked what judgment he can form on the subject, assuming the facts stated in evidence to be true.(1) An expert may refer to text-books to refresh his memory, or to correct or confirm his opinion,(2) e.g., a doctor to medical treatises, a valuer to price-lists, a foreign lawyer to codes, text-writers, and reports. If he describe particular passages therein as accurately representing his views, they may be read as part of his testimony though not (in England) as evidence per se.(3) The opinion of an expert is open to corroboration or rebuttal ;(4) and when the opinion is relevant.(5) The evidence of experts is to be received with caution, because they may often come with such a bias on their minds to support the cause in which they are embarked, that their judgments become warped, and they themselves become, even when conscientiously disposed, incapable of expressing a correct opinion (6)

Distinction between "matter of fact" and "matter of opinion."

Accurately to distinguish 'matter of fact' from 'matter of opinion' is not less difficult than to distinguish it from matter of law.' In all supposed statements of fact the witness really testifies to the opinion formed by the judgment upon the presentment of the senses. Statement of opinion is, therefore, necessarily involved in statement of fact An instance erroneously supposed to be simply an 'opinion,' is found in cases where the phenomena being too numerous or intangible to permit of correct or effective individual statement, witnesses are permitted to state simply the impression such phenomena produced in their minds. This, apparently, is simply another method of stating facts (7) Thus a witness can testify as to whether a person appeared to be in 'good health' or the reverse; or seemed 'hostile' or 'friendly,' or appeared 'intoxicated'; or looked 'excited', or 'scared', 'old', or 'young', or was of a particular age, 'pleased', or 'agitated', or that two persons seemed to be 'attached' to each other, or that a building or document was 'in good or bad preservation,' or the like. Such persons are not experts properly so-called; though experts with the same facilities for observation, may, of course, testify in the same manner and to the same points. The obvious, and perhaps, the only, limitation placed on evidence of this nature, which may be described as the opinions of non-experts, is that the witness will not be allowed unnecessarily to invade the province of the Judge or Jury, substituting his opinion for theirs.(1) But such evidence is admitted on the grounds that positive and direct testimony is unattainable.(2) As all language embodies inferences of some sort, it is not possible to wholly dissociate statements of opinion from statement of fact. The evidentiary test has been said to be, that if the fact stated necessarily involves the component facts, it will be admissible as amounting to a mere abbreviation: if it does not necessarily involve them, but may be supported upon several distinct phases of fact, the particulars only should be given and not the inference. Thus, though a witness might, without objection, state that 'A shot B.' or 'A stabbed B,' yet the statement that 'A killed B' would be improper; as involving a conclusion that might be remote and doubtful, and apply equally to a variety of different incidents."(3) So it was held that a witness's statement that a party 'is in possession' is no evidence of that fact: that the question of possession is a mixed one of law and fact: and that the evidence produced must give the various acts of ownership which go to constitute possession; so that the Court may arrive at its own conclusion.(4) In, however, a subsequent case it was laid down that a statement by a witness that a party is in possession, is, in point of law, admissible evidence of the fact that such party was in possession.(5) Such general and vague statements are, however, as a rule of but little value.(6) A common instance of such opinion evidence of non-experts is that which is given respecting the identity of persons and things,(7) as also respecting the genuineness of disputed handwriting.(8) In Fryer v. Gathercole (9) Parke B., remarked: "in the identification of persons you compare in your mind the man you have been seen with the man you see at the trial. The same rule of comparison belongs to every species of identification," as for instance, to the identification of handwriting.(1) The opinions of witnesses are also admissible to prove the innuendoes of libel, where ordinary words are used in a peculiar sen age wh or

Th

A person may always testify to his own mental and physical condition; his testimony being based not on inference but consciousness,(3) but it is not so with respect to the mental condition of others. Thus, neither the opinion of non-experts nor general reputation is admissible to prove insanity;(4) the proper course being for the witness to state the facts which he considers gave rise to that conclusion. Witnesses may, however, as has been already observed, when they are allowed to speak to character.(6) Value may also be proved by the opinion of any witness possessing knowledge in the subject. There are many things in almost universal use, the value of which any one may testify to, it being a matter of common knowledge. In other cases the opinion of an ordinary witness would not be sufficient. The market-value of land is not a hich only an expert can give an opinion. P may be presumed to have a sufficient kn operty from the location and character of the land in question, and so also witnesses may express their opinions as to the value of goods and chattels. "Market-value," said Mr. Justice Story, in an early case, "is necessarily a matter of opinion as well of fact or rather of opinions gathered from facts. How are we to arrive at it? Certainly not by the mere purchase made by a single person, or by purchases made by a few persons; for in either case they may have purchased above or below the market-price, or the market-price may be fluctuating and the sales too few to justify any general conclusion. Buyers may refuse to buy at a particular price; sellers may refuse to sell at a lower price. In this state of things we must necessarily resort to opinions of merchants and others conversant in trade for opinion what under all the circumstances is the fair market-price or value of the goods. In the next case the knowledge of their market-price being thus, in fact, a matter of skill, judgment and opinion, it is in no just sense mere hearsay; but is in the nature of the evidence of experts."(7)

---

(1) See Best, Ev., § 233; s. 47, post See Harris Law of Identification (1892) [Treating of persons; name, idem sonans, identity of prisoner, photographs, opinion evidence, murder identification; ancient records and documents; handwriting, identity of real estate; identification of personal property; view of premises by jury, compulsory physical examination, mistaken identity, etc.]

(2) Odgers on Libel, 567, Starkie on Libel, 5th Ed., 465; Wharton, s. 975, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 354. Daines v. Hartley, 3 Ex., 200, referred to in Cunningham, Ev., 191, Burnswick v. Harmer, 3 C. & K., 10, Barnett v. Allen, 3 H & N., 376, Simmons v. Mitchell, 6 App Cas., 155, 163, Curtis v. Peek, 13 W. R. (Eng.), 230

(3) v. ante, p. 193

(4) Wright v. Tatham, 7 A. & E., 313, R. v. Nevil, Cr. & Div. Ab. Cas., 96, Greenslade v. Dare, 20 Beav., 284, nor under this Act, Field, Ev., 346, note

(5) v. Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 354—355, and ante, p. 294.

(6) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 355. Ch. XII., see Notes to s. 55, post

(7) Alfonso v. United State, 2 Story, 421 (1843) (Amer.), Lawson's Expert Evidence, 431—456, 439, it is no objection to the evidence of a witness testifying as to market-value that such evidence rests on hearsay. Wharton, Ev., 449. Wigmore, Ev., § 1940 See as to market-rate, Narain Chunder v. Cohen, 10 C., 56 (1884).

Summary

The rule upon evidence in matter of opinion has been thus summarised.(1) The general rule is that a witness must only state facts; and his mere personal opinion is not evidence. But this rule is subject to the following exceptions, namely:—(a) On questions of identification, a witness is allowed to speak as to his opinion or belief. (b) A witness's opinion is receivable in evidence to prove the apparent condition or state of a person or thing. (c) The opinions of skilled or scientific witnesses are admissible evidence to elucidate matters which are of a strictly professional or scientific character. Sections 45, 46, 51 of this Act deal with the last exception, and sections 47, 51 with the first, in so far as it bears on the question of identification of handwriting. Sections 48-50 add further exceptions relating to opinions on general customs and rights,(2) to usages, tenets, and the like,(3) and to opinions on relationship, provided such opinions are expressed by conduct.(4)

Opinions of experts

45. When the Court has to form an opinion upon a point of foreign law, or of science or art, or as to identity of handwriting [or finger-impressions],(5) the opinions upon that point of persons specially skilled in such foreign law, science or art, or in questions as to identity of handwriting [or finger-impressions] (6) are relevant facts.

Such persons are called experts.

Illustrations

(a) The question is, whether the death of A was caused by poison.

The opinions of experts as to the symptoms produced by the poison by which A is supposed to have died, are relevant.

(b) The question is, whether A, at the time of doing a certain act, was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law.

The opinions of experts upon the question whether the symptoms exhibited by A commonly show unsoundness of mind, and whether such unsoundness of mind usually renders persons incapable of knowing the nature of the act which they do, or of knowing that what they do is either wrong or contrary to law, are relevant.

(c) The question is, whether a certain document was written by A. Another document is produced which is proved or admitted to have been written by A.

The opinions of experts on the question whether the two documents were written by the same person or by different persons, are relevant.

46. Facts, not otherwise relevant, are relevant if they support or are inconsistent with the opinions of experts, when such opinions are relevant.

---

(1) Powell, Ev., 111, et seq.
(2) S. 48, post
(3) S. 49, post
(4) S. 50, post.
(5) The portion in brackets was added by s. 3, Act V of 189[illegible]
(6) Id. Finger-impressions ... thumb-impressions ... mittee cited, 3 ... W

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A was poisoned by a certain poison.

The fact that other persons, who were poisoned by that poison, exhibited certain symptoms which experts affirm or deny to be the symptoms of that poison, is relevant.

(b) The question is, whether an obstruction to a harbour is caused by a certain sea-wall.

The fact that other harbours similarly situated in other respects, but where there were no such sea-walls, began to be obstructed at about the same time, is relevant.(1)

Principle.—The use of witnesses being to inform the tribunal respecting facts, their opinions are not in general receivable as evidence. Facts should be stated and not inferences. The rule, however, is not without its exceptions. Being based on the presumption that the tribunal is as capable of forming a judgment on the facts [illegible] when circumstances rebut this presumption, t[illegible] and the opinions of specially skilled persons are [illegible] e foundation on which expert testimony rests is the supposed superior knowledge or experience of the expert in relation to the subject-matter upon which he is permitted to give an opinion as evidence.(3)

s. 3 ("Court.")
s. 3 ("Relevant.")
s. 3 (That a man holds a certain opinion is a fact.)
s. 3 ("Fact.")
s. 60 (Evidence of opinion must be direct)
s. 60 Proviso (Opinion of expert who cannot be called as a witness.)
s. 74 (Opinion as to handwriting.)
s. 51 (Grounds of opinion.) s 73 (Comparison of handwriting)
s. 159 (Expert refreshing memory.)
s 57 (Reference by Court to books of experts)

Steph. Dig, Arts. 49, 50, Taylor, Ev, §§ 1423-1425, 1417-1419; 1425, 1445, 337; Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 339-352; Norton, Ev., 225, Field, Ev., 343-347; Best, Ev., 511, et seq.; Powell, Ev., 114, 116, 340; Roscoe, N.-P. Ev, 85. 174, 175; Rogers on Expert Testimony (1883), 2nd Ed, 1891, Lawson, on Expert and Opinion Evidence (1886); James Ohio Law of Opinion Evidence (1889); Wigmore, Ev., § 1917, et seq.; Harris, Law of Identification (1892); Hagan on Disputed Handwriting (1894).

COMMENTARY.

"Expert" The phrase "expert" testimony is not applicable to all species of opinion evidence. A witness is not giving expert testimony who without any special personal fitness or special intelligence simply testifies as to the impressions produced in his mind or senses by that which he has seen or heard, and which can only be described to others by giving the impression produced upon the witness. Neither is he giving such testimony strictly speaking when he is testifying as to matters which require no peculiar intelligence and concerning which any person is qualified to judge according to his opportunities of observation. Expert testimony properly begins with testimony concerning those branches where some intelligence is requisite for judgment and when opportunities and habits of observation must be combined with some practical experience. An expert is one who is skilled in any particular art, trade or

(1) Folkes v. Chadd, 3 Dougl, 157.
(2) Best, Ev, §§ 511—513 See Introduction ante, and Notes, post
(3) Rogers on Expert Testimony, 21.

profession, being possessed of peculiar knowledge concerning the same.(1) Many definitions have been given,(2) but for the purposes of this Act the term is defined by section 45 (see post).

Competency.

The competency of an expert should be shown before his testimony is properly admissible. The competency of an expert, that is, that he is possessed of the necessary qualifications is a preliminary question for the judge; though in practice considerable laxity prevails upon the point. Though the expert must be skilled by special study or experience, the fact he has not acquired his knowledge in the course of professional experience goes merely to weight and not to admissibility. Thus unqualified practitioners, hospital students and dressers, have been permitted to testify as medical experts, and on questions of handwriting not only specialists but post-office officials, lithographers and bank clerks and a solicitor "who had for some years given considerable attention and study to the subject and had several times compared handwriting for purposes of evidence though never before testified as an expert"(3) have been permitted to testify as experts.(4) If the examination-in-chief (there being no separate preliminary examination according to the practice of Indian Courts) clearly shows no competency, the opinion-evidence of the witness will be excluded. In primâ facie cases of competency the witness will be allowed to give his evidence and also probably in doubtful cases for what the evidence is worth. It is not easy for an incompetent person to sustain himself in the character of an independent witness. The want of qualification may be shown by cross-examination(5) or otherwise (6) The peculiar knowledge or skill may be derived from experience(1) in the particular matter in question whether gained in the way of his business or not(2) or the study(3) of a matter without practical experience in regard to it may qualify a witness as an expert. But it has been held in America that a witness cannot testify as an expert in a particular matter when that matter does not pertain to his special calling or profession and his knowledge of the subject of enquiry has been derived from study alone, it being considered unwise to recognise the principle that a person might qualify himself to testify as an expert, merely by devoting himself to a study of the authorities for the purpose of giving such testimony when such reading or study is not in the line of his special calling or profession. Thus where the question was whether the editor of a stock journal who had read extensively on the subject of "foot-rot" could testify as an expert in relation to that disease, it was held that he could not (4) Of course no exact test can be laid down by which one can determine with mathematical precision how much skill or experience a witness must possess to qualify him to testify as an expert That question rests within the fair discretion of the Court, whose duty it is to decide whether the experience or study of the witness has been such as to make his opinions of any value (5)

Subjects of expert testimony

The subjects of expert testimony mentioned by the section are foreign law, science, art, and the identity of handwriting. The words 'science or art' if interpreted in a narrow sense would exclude matters upon which expert testimony is admissible both in England and America, such as questions relating to trades and handicrafts (6) But it is apprehended that these words are to be broadly construed, the term 'science' not being limited to the higher sciences and the term 'art' not being limited to the fine arts but having its original sense of handicraft, trade, profession and skill in work, which, with the advance of culture has been carried beyond the sphere of the common pursuits of life into that of artistic' and 'scientific' action In some cases it may be difficult to determine whether the particular question be one of a scientific nature or not, and consequently, whether skilled witnesses may or may not pass their opinions upon it The following tests may be applied :— Is the subject-matter of inquiry such that inexperienced persons are unlikely to prove capable of forming a correct judgment upon it without the assistance of experts? Does it so far partake of the character of a science or art as to require a course of previous habit or study in order to obtain a competent knowledge of its nature, or is it one which does not require such habit or study ?(7)

Foreign law

Foreign law must, according to the English rule, unless an opinion has been obtained under the statutory procedure mentioned below(8) be proved as a fact by skilled witnesses, and not by the production of the books in which where persons offer themselves as experts to testify respecting a business in which their experience has not been very great, it is competent to call persons of greater experience and enquire of them how much time and experience are necessary to make one an expert in respect to that business Mason v. Phelps, 48 Mich, 127 (Amer.) cited in Lawson's Expert Testimony, 238.

---

(1) Rogers, op cit, § 18; but the opinion of an expert is not confined to matters or questions which he has actually seen or heard of, Lawson op. cit, 221; see post, "Scope of the Opinion."

(2) R v. Silverlock, 2 Q. B (1894), 766.

(3) Rogers, § 19

(4) Ib, p 48 [see argument, R. v. Silverlock, supra, at p 768, Bristow v. Sequeville, 5 Ex, 275]

(5) Ib, § 21.

(6) "On questions of science or skill, or relating to some art or trade, persons instructed therein by study or experience may give their opinions; such persons are called experts. Every business or employment which has a particular class devoted to its pursuit, is an 'art' or 'trade.'" Lawson, op cit., 2; Taylor, Ev, § 1417.

(7) Taylor, Ev., §§ 1418, 1419

(8) s Notes to s 38, ante, and see Field, Ev., 344, 345.

it is contained.(1) But when an expert has touched a foreign Code, an English Court may construe it for itself.(2) In India such law may not only be proved under this section by the evidence of persons specially skilled in it, but also, under section 38, by the production of a book printed or published under the authority of the Foreign Government.(3) Foreign customs and usages may be proved by any witness whether expert or not, who is acquainted with the fact.(4) Science and Art

"The opinions of medical men are admissible upon questions within their own province, e.g., insanity, the causes of disease or death or injuries, the effects of injuries, medicines, poisons, the consequence of wounds, the conditions of gestation, the effects of hospitals upon the health of a neighbourhood; the likelihood of recovery; those of actuaries as to the average duration of life with respect to the value of annuities, those of naturalists as to the ability of fish to overcome obstacles in a river, those of chemists as to the value of a particular kind of guano as a fertiliser, the safety of a 'non-explosive camphene and fluid lamp,' the constituent parts of a certain chemical compound, the effects of a particular poison, fermentation of liquor; those of geologists as to the existence of coal seams, those of botanists as to the effects of working coke ovens upon trees in the neighbourhood; those of persons specially skilled in insurance-matters, such as the opinion of an insurance agent and examiner that a partition in a room increased the risk in a fire-policy, and so with other branches of science.

The opinions of artists are admissible as to the genuineness and value of a work of art; the opinion of a photographer as to the good execution of a photograph though a non-expert might speak to its being a good likeness; the opinion of an engraver or professional examiner of writings as to erasure in a document; those of engineers as to the cause of obstruction to a harbour; that the erection of a dam would not cause the adjoining land to be overflowed by back water; that certain drains do not lessen the quantity or flow of water; that a contract for doing a piece of work or building a vessel did not call for connecting the engines by a centre shaft; that a bridge built of wood should have been built of stone in order to withstand a flood and the like; those of seal-engravers as to the impressions from a seal, those of officers of a fire-brigade as to the cause of a fire; those of military men as to a question of military practice; those of post-office clerks as to post-marks; those of ship-builders, marine surveyors and engineers as to the strength and construction of a ship, and (when the Court is not sitting with assessors) those of nautical men as to the proper navigation of a vessel."(5)

Trade

Mechanics, artizans, and workmen are experts as to matters of technical skill in their trades, and their opinions in such cases are admissible. So the opinion of a mason as to how long it takes to dry the walls of a house; of a miner as to the cause of the settling of the walls of a mine; of a blacksmith as to whether a horse was properly shod; of the foreman of a mill as to the running order of the machinery; of a road-builder as to the necessity of a railing along an elevated part of a road; of a railroad man as to questions of

---

(1) Ib., Taylor, Ev., §§ 1423, 1425

(2) Concha v. Murrietta, C. A. (1889), 40 Ch. D., p. 543.

(3) v Notes to s 38, ante, et seq; and as to s. 60, v post.

(4) Ganes v Lanesborough, 1 Peake R., 18; Sussex Peerage Case, 11 C. & F., 124; Mostyn v. Fabrigas, 1 Cowp., 174; Vander Donckt v. Thellusson, 8 C. B., 812, Lindo v. Belisario, 1 Hagg C. R., 216: see s. 49, post. As to the construction of foreign documents, see De Sora v Phillipps, 10 H L. C., 624, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 342; Taylor, Ev., § 1424.

(5) Lawson's Expert and Opinion Evidence. See passim, Index, Wharton, Ev., §§ 441, 446, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 340, 341; Taylor, Ev., §§ 1417, 1418, et seq., and cases there cited. As to evidence of medical witnesses and reports of chemical examiners, see Cr. Pr. Code, ss. 509, 510.

railroad management, such as whether a rail was properly laid; as to the cause of a train being thrown from the track; as to the distance within which a train can be stopped; whether the boiler of an engine was safe; whether coupling compliances were defectively constructed; have been held to be admissible. So also are the opinions of farmers and agriculturists on matters peculiarly within their knowledge; as that of a grazier on the effect of disturbance in the value of cattle, of a farmer as to the quality of the soil of a farm. So also a banker may speak as to the genuineness of a bank-note, a merchant may depose to the value of goods in which he deals and so forth. According to English decisions the opinions of shop-keepers are admissible to prove the average waste resulting from the retail sale of goods, those of persons conversant with a market to prove a market-value; and those of business-men to prove the meaning of trade-terms and the like.(1)

Handwriting

Experts may give their opinions upon the genuineness of a disputed handwriting after having compared it with specimens proved to the satisfaction of the Judge to be genuine (2) But independent of all cases in which handwriting is sought to be proved by actual comparison, the testimony of skilled witnesses will be admissible for the purpose of throwing light upon the document in dispute, as upon the question whether a writing is in a feigned or natural hand, or the probable date of an ancient writing, or as to whether interlineations were written contemporaneously with the rest of a document, or whether the writing is cramped, or one document exhibits greater ease or facility than another, or whether a writing has been touched by the pen a second time as if done by some one attempting to imitate, or whether the writing has been made over pencil-marks, or whether a document could have been made with a pen, or whether two documents were written with the same pen and ink, and at the same time, or whether two parts of a writing are written by the same person or the like.(3) But opinion as to handwriting is not confined to experts, but may be given by any person who is duly acquainted with it (4)

By nature and habit individuals contract a system of forming letters which give a character to their [illegible] The general rule which admits on the reason that in every per prevailing character [illegible] other person.(6) In the T [illegible] e jury said: "Manifold as a [illegible] nature in which one man differs from another, there is nothing in which men differ more than in handwriting; and when a man comes forward and says, 'you believe that such a person is dead and gone; he is not, I am the man,' if I knew the handwriting of the man supposed to be dead, the first thing I would do would be to say 'Sit down and write,' that I may judge whether your hand-

---

(1) Phipson, Ev., ib, and see last note and s 49, post

(2) s. 73, post, for a case in which a judge was held to have wrongly called expert testimony, see Bindeswuree Dutt v. Homa Singh, 9 W R., 88 (1868)

(3) Taylor, Ev., §§ 1877, 1417, Best, Ev., § 248 See notes to s 47, post

(4) See notes s. 47, post

(5) Lawson's Expert Ev., 277. "Men are distinguished by their handwriting as well as by their faces; for it is seldom that the shape on their letters agree any more than the shape of their bodies," Buller's Nisi Prius, 236, 2 Evans Pothier on Obligations 'The handwriting of every man has something peculiar and distinct from that of every other man and is easily known those who have been accustomed to see it." Peake's Ev., 67 "Almost everybody's usual handwriting possesses a peculiarity in it and distinguishing it from other people's writing." Ram on facts, 68 See at p 69, citation from Cowper's work (Letters), Vol V, 217, Ed 1896

(6) Strong v. Brewer, 17 Ala., 706—710 (Amer.) cited in Lawson, op. cit, 278.

writing is of the man you assert yourself to be; if I had writing of the man with whom identity was claimed, I should proceed at once, to compare with it the handwriting of the party claiming it. For that reason I shall ask you carefully to look at and consider the handwriting of the defendant and to compare it with that of the undoubted Roger Tichborne and with that of Arthur Orton."(1) "Calligraphic experts have for years asserted the possibility of investigating handwriting upon scientific principles, and the Courts have consequently admitted such persons to testify in cases of disputed handwriting. It is claimed that experiment and observation have disclosed the fact that there are certain general principles which may be relied upon in questions pertaining to the genuineness of handwriting. For instance, it is asserted that in every person's manner of writing, there is a certain distinct prevailing character which can be discovered by observation, and being once known can be afterwards applied as a standard to try other specimens of writing, the genuineness of which is disputed. Handwriting, notwithstanding it may be artificial, is always, in some degree, the reflex of the nervous organisation of the writer. Hence there is in each person's handwriting some distinctive characteristic, which, as being the reflex of his nervous organisation, is necessarily independent of his own will, and unconsciously forces the writer to stamp the writing as his own. Those skilful in such matters affirm that it is impossible for a person to successfully disguise in a writing of any length this characteristic of his penmanship, that the tendencies to angles or curves developed in the analysis of this characteristic may be mechanically measured by placing a fine specimen within a coarser specimen, and that the strokes will be parallel if written by the same person, the nerves influencing the direction which he will give to the pen. So too it is claimed that no two autograph signatures will be perfect fac-similes. Experts, therefore, claim that if, upon superimposition against the light, they find that two signatures perfectly coincide, that they are perfect fac similes, that it is a probability amounting practically to a certainty that one of the signatures is a forgery."(2) In determining the question of authorship of a writing, the resemblance of characters is by no means the only test. The use of capitals, abbreviations, punctuation, mode of division into paragraphs, making erasures and interlineations, idiomatic expressions, orthography, underscoring(3) style of composition and the like, are all elements upon which to form the judgment.(4) "Conclusions from dissimilitude between the disputed writing and authentic specimens are not always entitled to much consideration, such evidence is weak and deceptive, and is of little weight when opposed by evidence of similitude. The reason why dissimilitude is evidence inferior to similitude is that it requires great skill to imitate handwriting, especially for several lines, so as to deceive persons well-acquainted with the genuine character and who give the disputed writing a careful inspection; while, on the other hand, dissimilitude may be occasioned by a variety of circumstances,—by the state of the health and spirits of the writer, by his position, by his hurry or care,

(1) R. v. Castro, 762.

(2) Rogers, op. cit., 291, 292. With reference to the last observation it is stated that in the Howland Will Case (4 Am. Law Review, 625, 649) Prof. Pierce, Professor of Mathematics in Harvard University, testified that the odds were just exactly 2,866,000,000,000,000,000,000 to 1 that an individual could not with a pen write his name three times so exactly alike as were the three alleged signatures of Sylvia Ann Howland, the testatrix, to a will and two codicils, Hagan, op. cit., 91, 92.

(3) See following passage from Cowper's work (Letters), Vol. V., p. 217, 1836: "Hours and hours have I spent in endeavours altogether fruitless to trace the writer of the letter that I send, by a minute examination of the character and never did it strike me until this moment that your father wrote it. In the style I discover him in the scoring of the emphatical words—his never-failing practice—in the formation of many of the letters, and in the adieu at the bottom so plainly, that I could hardly be more convinced had I seen him write it." Cited in Ram on Facts, 69.

(4) Lawson, op. cit., 277, 278, note.

by his materials, by the presence of a hair in nib of the pen, or the more or less free discharge of ink from the pen which frequently varies the turn of the letters,—circumstances which deserve still more consideration when witnesses rest their opinion on a fancied dissimilarity of individual letters."(1)

It being granted that there is such a thing as a science of handwriting it follows that the opinions of witnesses who are skilled in the science, who by study, occupation and habit have been skilful in marking and distinguishing the characteristics of handwriting may be received in evidence. These may be experts in handwriting, strictly so-called, that is persons who have made the study of handwriting, a specialty; or others whose avocations and business-experience have been such as naturally qualify them to judge of handwriting And so writing-engravers, lithographers, letters, cashiers and other officers of banks,(2) post-office officials, book-keepers and cashiers of commercial houses, writing-masters(3) and a solicitor(4) "who had for some years given considerable attention to the subject and had several times compared handwriting for purposes of evidence, though never before testified as an expert," have been admitted to give evidence on this subject.(5)

Finger-impressions.

The palms of the hands are covered with two totally distinct classes of marks. The most conspicuous are the creases or folds of the skin which interest the followers of palmistry and which show the lines of most frequent flexure [illegible] the most numerous by finger impressions. curious variety of shape g all their peculiarities surer criterion of identity than any other bodily feature. So far as the proportions of the patterns go they are not absolutely fixed, even in the adult, inasmuch as they change with the shape of the finger. The measurements vary at different periods, but, on the other hand, the numerous 'bifurcations,' 'origins,' 'islands' and 'enclosures' in the ridges that compose the pattern are said to be almost beyond change. Practice is, however, required before facility can be gained in reading and recognising finger-prints (6)

Those who have made finger-prints their special study have come to the conclusion that their similarity is, as a rule, evidence of personal identity and their dissimilarity will, therefore, as a rule, be evidence of the reverse.(7) Therefore when in the case last cited, one of the main questions for determination was whether a document impugned was or was not presented before the Registrar by the complainant, one N S, a comparison of the thumb-impression of the person who presented the document with that of N S, was held admissible under the 9th section of this Act, if the similarity of those impressions could establish the identity of that person with N S, or under the second clause of the 11th section of this Act if their dissimilarity made such identity improbable. It was, however, held that, though the comparison of thump-impressions was allowable, such comparison must be made by the Court itself; and that the opinion of an expert as to the similarity of such impression was not admissible

---

(1) Lawson, op. cit., 278, 279*n*, citing, Young v. Brown, 1 Hag Ecc R., 556, 569, 571, Constable v Leibel, 1 Hag Ecc. R, 56, 60, 61, 2 Phillips, Ev (Cow. and Hill's Notes), 608 and 482, and American cases. See also Hagan, op cit., 73.

(2) As to the competency, however, of these, see remarks in Hagan, op cit, 30

(3) Ib., 33, where it is stated that these as a class furnish experts of the least ability.

(4) R v. Silverlock (1894), 2 Q B, 766.

(5) Rogers, op cit, 297, 298, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 344, Best, Ev., § 246, and as to expert evidence of writing in criminal cases, see Srikant v. R, 2 All L J, 444 (1904), Panchu Mondal v. R, 1 C. L. J, 385 (1905)

(6) Galton on Finger-Prints; Introduction, passim.

(7) R v. Fakir Mahomed, 1 C. W. N., 33, 34 (1896)—per Banerjee, J, citing Galton on Finger under the present section.(1) The words in brackets were accordingly added to the present sections by Act V of 1899, the Statement of Objects and Reasons of which Act contains the following paragraph:—"The system of identification by means of such impressions is gaining ground and has been introduced with considerable success, especially in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. It seems desirable that expert evidence in connection with it should be admitted, and with that object it is proposed by the third clause of the Bill expressly to amend the law on the subject."(2) Evidence of a witness is now therefore admissible; but the evidence must be that of a person specially skilled in questions of identity of finger-impressions. By the same Act, section 73, as amended, applies also with any necessary modifications to finger-impressions. In order, therefore, to ascertain whether a finger-impression is that of the person of whom it is said to be, any finger-impression admitted or proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be the finger-impression of that person may be compared with the former impression, although that impression has not been produced or proved for any other purpose. The Court may also direct any person present in Court to make a finger-impression for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the impression so made with any impression alleged to be the finger-impression of such person.

The opinions of experts are not receivable upon the question of the construction of documents whether domestic or foreign, though it is otherwise with local, foreign or technical terms, unless they are such as are equally intelligible to ordinary readers, nor upon matters of legal or moral obligation. Their testimony is, of course, not confined to opinion-evidence; as they may, and frequently do testify to matters of facts as well.

Scope of the opinion

The opinions of experts are admissible in evidence, not only where they rest on the personal observation of the witness himself, and on facts within his own knowledge, but even when they are merely founded on the case as proved by other witnesses at the trial. An expert may give his opinion upon facts proved either by himself (3) or by other witnesses at the trial,(4) or upon hypothesis based upon the evidence, that is, the expert may give his opinion on facts put before him in the form of a hypothetical case.(5) But his opinion is

---

Prints, Chs VI, VII (but see an article on "Expert Evidence on Finger-Impressions" in 3 C. W. N., iv, it may further be observed that, inasmuch as the decision quoted ruled that expert evidence could not be given under s. 45, it implied that the subject or knowledge of the identity of finger-impressions did not constitute a 'science'.

(1) Ib.

(2) Statement of Objects and Reasons cited in 3 C. W. N., xxiv, see also ib, pp. iv & lxxxii.

(3) Bellefontaine, etc., R. Co. v. Bailey, 11 Ohio St., 333 (Amer.) cited in Lawson's Expert Ev., 221. In this case the question was whether a certain railroad train could have been stopped in time to avoid running over a team at a crossing. The opinion of the engineer of the train was held admissible, the Court saying that if an expert may give his opinion on facts testified to by others there was no reason why he might not do so on facts presumably within his own personal knowledge. If his knowledge was defective the parties could show it by cross-examination or by testimony aliunde.

(4) e.g., the question is as to the value of a clock. A is a dealer in clocks, but has never seen the clock in question, which is described to him by other witnesses. His opinion is admissible. Hatton v. Snyder, 88 N. Y., 299 (1882), cited in Lawson, op. cit., 221.

(5) Lawson's Expert Evidence, Rule 42, p. 221. The following is an example of a hypothetical question which was propounded by the defence to the experts in the trial of Guiteau charged with shooting President Garfield (cited in Roger's Expert Testimony, 73). 'Assuming it to be a fact that there was a strong hereditary taint of insanity in the blood of the prisoner at the bar also that at or about the age of thirty-four years his own mind was so much deranged that he was a fit subject to be sent to an insane asylum also that at different times after that date during the next succeeding five years, he manifested such decided symptoms of insanity, without simulation that many different persons conversing with him and observing his conduct, believed him to be insane, also that in or about the month of June 1881, at or about the expiration of said term of five years, he became demented by the not admissible as to facts stated out of Court which are not before the Court or Jury,(1) or which have merely been reported to him by hearsay(2) and purely [illegible] no foundation in the evidence are [illegible]tioned rule is this: In examination- [illegible] were assumed in hypothetical questions which did not bear upon the matters under inquiry or which were not fairly within the scope of any of the evidence. The testimony must tend to establish the facts embraced in the question. The Court should not, however, reject a question which Counsel claims embraces facts which the evidence tends to prove, simply because in its opinion the facts assumed are not established by a preponderance of the evidence. The question is properly allowable if there is any evidence tending to prove the fact assumed, it will not be allowed if the evidence does not prove or tend to prove the fact assumed. So in a case involving the value to the plaintiff of a contract which the defendant had broken, a question which did not accurately state the terms of the contract was held inadmissible.(4) A question may, however, be allowed which assumes facts which the evidence already in the case neither proves nor tends to prove, provided Counsel in putting the question declares that they will by subsequent testimony supply the necessary evidence to warrant the facts so assumed. When idea that he was inspired of God to remove by death the President of the United States also that he acted on what he believed to be such inspiration, and as he believed to be in accordance with the divine will in the preparation for and in the accomplishment of such a purpose also that he committed the act of shooting the President under what he believed to be a divine command which he was not at liberty to disobey and which belief made out a conviction which controlled his conscience and overpowered his will as to that act, so that he could not resist the mental pressure upon him, also that immediately after the shooting he appeared calm and as if relieved by the performance of a great duty also that there was no other adequate motive for the act than the conviction that he was executing the divine will for the good of his country—assuming all of these propositions to be true, state, whether in your opinion, the prisoner was sane or insane at the time of shooting President Garfield" The question propounded by the prosecution was too long to permit of its reproduction. In Woodbury v Obear, 7 Gray, 467 (Amer.), Shaw, C. J., said that the proper form of question was this: "if certain facts assumed by the question to be established should be found true by the jury what would be your opinion upon the facts thus found true as to, etc" But in a subsequent case it was said that this form was not to be regarded as an exclusive formula Lawson's Expert Ev., 223, where at p 222 another instance of the hypothetical question is given The question may be put in a great variety of forms Rogers, op cit, 82.

---

(1) Wharton, Ev., § 452, Phipson Ev., 3rd Ed., 345

(2) Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 345, citing R v Stanton, "Times," Sept 28th, 1877, Taly's Legal Medicine, 8, 17, 25, Gardner Peerage, Le Marchant, 75—80

(3) Wharton, Ev., § 452, Best, Ev., American notes (f) to § 511, Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 345, Rogers' Expert Testimony, 67

(4) Lawson's Expert Ev., 222, Rogers' Expert Testimony, 64—68 A hypothetical question is a question which assumes as a hypothesis, the truth of the facts given in evidence by a particular party and embraced in the question Such a question may be asked either simply as to facts given in evidence or as to relevant hypothesis arising on these facts, i e, facts given in evidence. So in a salvage case where the evidence had shown that a steam vessel was lying at anchor in the month of September at the Sandheads at the mouth of the River Hooghly without a rudder which she had lost in a previous gale, that the weather which had been bad prior to the anchoring of the vessel had calmed down at the time of the salvage service, that cyclone storms were likely to occur at that time of year and that the shore off which the vessel was anchored was a dangerous one, a nautical expert was after objection, allowed to be asked a question which, after assuming the above-mentioned facts, proceeded "what would have been the condition of such a vessel lying rudderless at that time of year at the Sandheads in the event of a cyclone storm coming on before assistance could be procured" If closely examined the objection here appears fundamentally to have been not so much to the form of the question or the admissibility of expert testimony but to the relevancy of the evidence having regard to the facts of the case, and the salvage law applicable, it being contended by the objectors, but unsuccessfully, that to earn salvage reward the danger from which a vessel has been rescued must have been actual pre-this course is pursued if such testimony is not afterwards given, it would be the duty of the Court to strike out the answer to the question (1)

Questions should be so framed as not to call on the witness for a critical review of the testimony given by the other witnesses, compelling the expert to draw inferences or conclusions of fact from the testimony or to judge of the credibility of witnesses. A question which requires the witness to draw a conclusion of fact should be excluded. Such a witness is called not to determine the truth of the facts, giving his opinion as to the effect of the evidence in establishing controverted facts, but to obtain his opinion on matters of science or skill in controversy.(2) "A question should not be so framed as to permit the witness to roam through the evidence for himself, and gather the facts as he may consider them to be proved, and then state his conclusions concerning them."(3) Inasmuch as an expert is not allowed to draw inferences or conclusions of fact from the evidence, his opinion should generally be asked upon a hypothetical statement of facts. The question need not be hypothetical in two cases—(a) where the issue is substantially one of science or skill merely the expert may, if he has himself observed the facts, be asked the very question which the Court or Jury have to decide(4). (b) possibly also according to the dictum in the celebrated Macnaghten's Case(5) where the issue is substantially one of science or skill such a question may be put if no conflict of evidence exists upon the material facts, even in cases where the expert's opinion is based merely upon facts proved by others. In this case, however, the question can only be put as a matter of convenience and not of right, the correct course being to put the facts to the witness hypothetically, asking him to assume one or more of them to be true and to state his opinion upon them.

It is always, however, improper where the facts are in dispute, and the opinion of the expert is based merely on facts proved by others, to put to the witness the very question which the Court or Jury have to decide,(6) since such a question practically asks him to determine the truth of the testimony as well as to give an opinion on it (7) So it was held that the evidence of a me of
th opinion of an expert as to the manner in which those injuries were inflicted, and as to the cause of death. A medical man who has not seen the corpse is only in a position to give evidence of his opinion as an expert The proper mode of eliciting such evidence is to put to the witness hypothetically the facts sent peril, and that it was not sufficient that the ship was in a dangerous position in the sense that in certain events which did not actually happen she must have been in actual peril It was, however, held that the term 'danger' was not so limited (see The Charlottee, ' 3 Wm Rob , 71 "The Albion," Lush, 282), and that the hypothetical question which was relevant and based on the evidence was admissible In the matter of the German steam ship "Drachenfels" Retriever v Drachenfels Hugli v Drachenfels 27 C 860 (31st Jan , 1900)

(1) Rogers Expert Testimony, 68

(2) Rogers' Expert Testimony, 60—64

(3) Dale v Morris 17 N Y Sup Ct , 202 (Amer) cited, ib , 61

(4) So where a medical expert had made a personal examination of the uterus of a deceased woman, it was held proper to ask him, ' what in your opinion caused the death of the person from whom the uterus was taken " State v Odaay, 5 Oreg , 73 (Amer) See Rogers op cit , 75, 76

(5) 10 C & F , 200

(6) So on a question whether a particular act, for which a prisoner is on his trial were an act of insanity, a medical man conversant with that disease who knows nothing of the facts, but has simply heard the trial cannot be broadly asked his opinion as to the state of the prisoner s mind at the time of the commission of the alleged crime The proper and usual form of question is to ask him whether assuming such and such facts, the prisoner was sane or insane The Court or Jury are then left to say whether the assumed facts exist or not Macnaghten s Case, 10 C F , 200 , Taylor, Ev , § 1421

(7) Phipson, Ev , 3rd Ed., 345, 346, and cases there cited Rogers, op cit , § 31 Taylor, Ev , § 1421 Wharton, Ev , § 452 which the evidence of the other witnesses attempts to prove, and to ask the witness's opinions on those facts (1) So also a medical man who has not seen a corpse which has been subjected to a post-mortem examination, and who is called to corroborate the opinion of the medical man who has made such post-mortem examination, and who has stated what he considered was the cause of death, is in a position to give evidence of his opinion as an expert. The proper mode of eliciting such opinion is to put the signs observed at the post-mortem to the witness, and to ask what in his opinion was the cause of death, on the hypothesis that those signs were really present and observed.(2)

In order to obtain the opinion of the witness on matters not depending upon general knowledge, but on facts not testified of by himself, one of two modes is pursued, either the witness is present and hears all the testimony, or the testimony is summed up in the question put to him; and in either case the question is put to him hypothetically, whether if certain facts testified of are true he can form an opinion and what that opinion is. The question may be based on the hypothesis of the truth of all the evidence, or on an hypothesis especially framed on certain facts assumed to be proved for the purpose of the inquiry. Inasmuch as it is no part of the expert to determine the truth of the evidence care must be taken in framing the questions not to involve so much or so many facts in them, that the witness will be obliged in his own mind to settle other disputed facts in order to give his answer.(3) The witness should ordinarily not be left to form an opinion on such facts as he can recollect where the evidence is at all voluminous and where it is not entirely harmonious, it is improper to permit a question to be put which requires the expert to give an opinion upon his memory of what the evidence was and upon his conclusions as to what the evidence proved.(4) Though in examination-in-chief the general rule is that it is error to include in the hypothetical question an assumed state of facts which the evidence in the case does not prove or tend to prove, Counsels on the cross-examination of the witness are not [illegible] n may be assumed

Grounds of and corroboration and rebuttal of opinion

Whenever the opinion of any living person is relevant, the grounds on which such opinion is based are also relevant.(6) Thus an expert may give an account of experiments performed by him for the purpose of forming his opinion (7) When a skilled witness says that in the course of his duty he formed a particular opinion on certain facts, he may further be asked by examination-in-chief how he went on to act upon that opinion For the acting on it is a strong corroboration of the truth of his opinion,(8) and what a person does is usually better evidence of his opinion than what he says.(9) Section 46 is but

---

(1) Reghuni Singh v. R, 9 C, 455, 461 (1882)

(2) R v. Meher Ali, 15 C., 589 (1888); and see also Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed., 345—347, where the authorities are collected and analysed

(3) Rogers, op cit., 61—69.

(4) Ib, 70, 71. [So in the matter of the German steamship Drachenfels, 27 C, 860 (31st Jan 1900), in which the evidence was very voluminous, the Court required Counsel to read to the experts specific portions of the evidence in which their opinion was required even though they had heard the evidence being given]

(5) Ib., 79

(6) S. 51, post.

(7) Ib, illust., see R. v. Heseltine, 12 Cox, [404] on a charge of arson, evidence of experiments made subsequently to the fire is admissible in order to show the way in which the building was set fire to] Not only may pre-existing objects be inspected, but the Court may order scientific experiments to be performed (Biggs v. Dickinson, 4 Ch D, 24), artistic tests undertaken (Belt v Lawes, Times, 1882), or specimens of handwriting executed (s 73) in its presence, Phipson, Ev, 3rd Ed, 4, 345

(8) Stephenson v River Tyne Commissioners, 17 W. R. (Eng), 390

(9) Field, Ev, 351, where it is said: "The evidence would doubtless be admissible under s 8, or under s. 11, ante" See Phipson, Ev., 3rd Ed., 94.

a roundabout way of stating that the opinion of an expert is open to corroboration or rebuttal. The illustrations sufficiently exemplify the proposition that for this purpose evidence of res inter alios acta is receivable.(1) This section is in accordance with the rule of English law.(2)

Refreshing memory.

An expert who is called as a witness may refresh his memory by reference to professional treatises; (3) or to any other document made by himself at the time.(4) So a medical man in giving evidence may refresh his memory by referring to a report which he has made of his post-mortem examination, but the report itself cannot be treated as evidence, and no facts can be taken therefrom.(5)

Credit of experts

An expert witness like any other may on cross-examination be asked questions to test his veracity, to discover his position, and to shake his credit by injuring his character.(6) Independent evidence may be given to show his conviction of a criminal offence or to impeach his impartiality.(7) His credit may be impeached by the evidence of persons who testify that they believe him to be unworthy of credit and by proof that he has been corrupted, or that he has expressed a different opinion at other times.(8)

Opinion of expert not called as a witness.

Section 60 enacts a proviso relating to the opinions of experts, to the general rule that oral evidence must be direct. Under this proviso the opinions of experts expressed in any treatise commonly offered for sale, and the grounds on which such opinion are held, may be proved by the production of such treatises, if the author is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence, or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable.(9)

Opinion as to handwriting when relevant

